b Fearing leaſt his authority ſhould be diminiſhed by their prophecying; and therefore, as by the ſignal given at this time, taking authority to themſelves without his knowledge and conſent.

28 And Joſhua the ſon of Nun the ſervant of Moſes, one

one of his young men c anſwered, and ſaid, * My lord Moſes, forbid them d.

c Or, one of his choice miniſters, a choſen or excellent perſon: which may be emphatically added, to note that even great and good men may miſtake and miſ-judge about the works of God. Or, from his youth, as the words will bear, and the Chaldee, Syr. &c. render it. So it may be added as a reaſon why Joſhua above others was concerned for Moſes his honour and authority. d He feared either diſhim, or ſedition, or that by their uſurpation of authority independently upon Moſes and ſeparately from him, his power and eſteem might be leſſened, as the next words ſhew.

29 And Moſes ſaid unto him, Enviеſt thou for my ſake e? would God that all the LORDS people were prophets f, and that the LORD would put his ſpirit upon them.

e Art thou grieved becauſe the gifts and graces of God are imparted to others beſides me? Compare Joh. 3. 26. f He ſaith Prophets, not rulers, for that he knew was abſurd and impoſſible.

30 And Moſes gat him into the camp g, he and the elders of Iſrael.

g Among the people, to exerciſe the gifts and authority now, or formerly received.

Exod. 16. 13. 31 And there went forth a * wind from the LORD, h, and brought quails i from the ſea k, and let them fall by the camp, † as it were a days journey on this ſide, and as it were a days journey on the other ſide round about the camp, and as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth l.

* Pſal. 78. 26. and 105. 40.

† Heb. as it were the way of a day.

h (i. e.) An extraordinary and miraculous wind both for its vehemency and for its effects. i A delicious and very nourihing food, which, conſidering their greedy appetite, and the newneſs and plenty of it, diſpoſed them to ſurfets and other diſtempers of body, and prepared the way for the following plague. God gave them quails once before, Exod. 16. 13. but neither in the ſame quantity, nor with the ſame deſign and effect as now. k Principally from the Red ſea, and both ſides of it; where, by the report of ancient heathen writers, they were then in great numbers, and, no doubt, were wonderfully increaſed by Gods ſpecial providence for this very occaſion. l Not as if the quails did cover all the ground two cubits high for a days journey on each ſide of the camp, for then there had been no place left where they could ſpread them all abroad round about the camp, as it is ſaid they did, ver. 32. but the meaning is, that the quails came and fell down round about the camp for a whole days journey on each ſide of it, and that in all that ſpace they lay here and there in great heaps, which were oft-times two cubits high.

m Or rather roſe up, which word is oft uſed for attempting or beginning to do any buſineſs. n Some at one time, and ſome at the other, and ſome, through the greedineſs or diſſidence, at both times. o (i. e.) Ten aſs loads. Which if it ſeem incredible, you muſt conſider, 1. that the gatherers here were not all the people, which could not be without great confuſion and other inconveniencies, but ſome on the behalf of all, poſſibly one for each family, or the like, while the reſt were exerciſed about other neceſſary things. So the meaning is not, that every Iſraelite had ſo much for his ſhare, but that every collector gathered ſo much for the family, or others by whom he was intruſted. 2. That the people did not gather for their preſent uſe only, but for a good while to come as we ſhall ſee, and being greedy and diſtruſtful of Gods goodneſs, it is not ſtrange if they gathered much more than they needed. 3. That the word, rendred homers, may ſignifie heaps, as it doth, Exod. 8. 14. Judg. 15. 16. Hab. 3. 15. and ten is oft put for many, and ſo the ſence is, that every one gathered ſeveral heaps. If yet the number ſeem incredible, it muſt be further known. 4. That heathen and other authors affirm, that in thoſe eaſtern and ſouthern countreys quails are innumerable, ſo that in one part of Italy, within the compaſs of five miles, there were taken about an hundred thouſand of them every day for a month together; and that ſometimes they fly ſo thick over the ſea, that being weary they fall into ſhips, ſometimes in ſuch numbers that they ſink them with their weight, as Varro and Solinus affirm. And Athenæus relates, that in Egypt, a country prodigiouſly populous, as all agree, they were in ſuch plenty, that all thoſe vaſt numbers of people could not conſume them, but were forced to ſalt and keep them for their future uſe. So that there is no need at all that God ſhould create innumerable quails for this purpoſe: which yet if it were affirmed he did, Arheiſts and Anti-ſcripturiſts have no occaſion of triumph, ſince they muſt either own the creation of the world, which is a far greater miracle, or aſcribe the production of the world to a caſual jumble of Atoms, which is more ſenceleſs and ridiculous than all the fables of the Poets. p That ſo they may dry them, and ſalt them, and preſerve them for their future uſe, according to what they had ſeen and learned in Egypt.

Pſal. 78. 31. 33 And while the * fleſh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed q, the wrath of the LORD was kindled againſt the people, and the LORD ſmote the people with a very great plague r.

q Heb. cut off, to ſ-it, from their mouths, which is here underſtood, and expreſſed Joel 1. 5. i. e. ere it was taken away, as the ſtocks are ſaid to be cut off from the field, Heb. 3. 17. when they are loſt and periſhed. The ſence is, before they had done eating their quails, which laſted for a month, as appears from ver. 20. Whether it was leanneſs ſent into them, Pſal. 106. 15. whereby the food was deprived of its nourihing power which it hath only from Gods bleſſing; or ſurfet, a puniſhment moſt ſuitable to their ſin, and moſt likely to follow their intemperate deſire and uſe of this food; or the peſtilence, it is not much material: but a great and ſore plague unqueſtionably it was. Qu. 3. Why did God ſo ſorely puniſh the peoples murmuring and complaining for lack of fleſh here, when he ſpared them after the ſame ſin, Exod. 16? Anſ. Becauſe this ſin was a far greater ſin than that, and aggravated with worſe circumſtances; as proceeding not from neceſſity, as that did, when as yet they had no food, but from meer luſt and wantonneſs, when they had Manna conſtantly given them; as committed after large experience of Gods care and kindneſs, after God had pardoned their former ſins, and after God had in a ſolemn and terrible manner made known his laws and duty to them.

34 And he called the name of that place * Kibroth-hattaavah s, becauſe there they buried the people that luſted. s Heb. the graves of luſt, i. e. of the men that luſted, as it here follows. The abſtract for the concrete, which is frequent, as ſervery, 2 King. 24. 14. pride, Pſal. 36. 11. deceit, ſins, Prov. 13. 6. &c. dreams, Jer. 27. 9. We are put for men who are poor, or proud, or deceitful, or ſinful, or dreamers. And it notes, that this plague did not ſeize upon all that did eat of the quails, for then all had been deſtroyed, but only upon thoſe who were inordinate both in the deſire and uſe of them. * Heb. they were, &c.

35 And the people journeyed from Kibroth-hattaavah unto Hazeroth t: and † abode at Hazeroth.

t Of which place ſee on Numb 33. 17. and Deut. 1. 1.

CHAP. XII.

Miriam and Aaron murmur againſt Moſes, 1, 2, 3. God commandeth him, Aaron and Miriam to come to the Tabernacle, which they did, 4, 5. God rebuketh Aaron and Miriam, 6 — 9. Miriam becometh Leprous, 10. Aaron humbling himſelf is for Moſes, 11, 12. he intreateth for him, 13. Miriam remains without the camp ſeven days, 14, 16.

1 AND Miriam and Aaron a ſpake againſt Moſes, becauſe of the * Ethiopian woman b whom he had married, (for † he had * married an Ethiopian woman.)

a Whom God permitted to murmur againſt their brother, partly † Exod. 2. to exerciſe and diſcover his admirable meekneſs and patience for 21. the inſtruction of after ages: and partly that by this ſhaking Moſes * Heb. his authority might take the deeper root, and the people might be taken. deterred from all ſedition and rebellion againſt him, by this example. Miriam ſeems to be firſt named, becauſe ſhe was the chief inſtigatour or firſt mover of the ſedition; wherefore ſhe alſo is more eminently puniſhed. b Which was either 1. Zipporah, who is here called an Ethiopian, in the Hebrew a Cuſhite, becauſe ſhe was a Midianitiſh the word Cuſh being generally uſed in Scripture, not for Ethiopia properly ſo called below Egypt, but for Arabia, as ſome late learned men have evidently proved from 2 Kings. 19. 9. 2 Chron. 21. 16. Ezek. 29. 10. and 30. 8, 9. Hab. 3. 7. and other places. If the be meant, as it is commonly conceived, I ſuppoſe they did not quarrel with him for marrying her, becauſe that was done long ſince, but for indulging her too much, and being ſwayed by her and her relations, by whom they might think he was perſwaded to make this innovation, and to chuſe ſeventy Rulers, as he had been formerly, Exod. 18. by which copartnerſhip in government they thought their authority and reputation much diminiſhed, eſpecially when no notice was taken nor uſe made of them in the choice, but all was done by the direction of Moſes, and for his aſſiſtance in the government. And becauſe they durſt not accuſe God, who was the chief agent in it, they charge Moſes, his inſtrument, as the manner of men is. Or 2. ſome other woman, though not named in Scripture, whom he married either whilſt Zipporah lived, or rather becauſe ſhe was now dead, though that, as many other things, be not recorded. For, as the quarrel ſeems to be about his marrying a ſtranger, ſo it is probable it was a late and freſh occaſion about which they contended, and not a thing done 40 years ago. And it was lawful for him as well as any other to marry an Ethiopian or Arabian woman, provided ſhe were, as doubleſs this woman was, a ſincere profelyte, which were by the law of God admitted to the ſame priviledges with the Iſraelites, Exod. 12. 48. for there might be many reaſons why Moſes might chuſe to marry ſuch a perſon rather than an Iſraelite, or why God ſo ordered it by his providence, either becauſe ſhe was a perſon of eminent worth and vertue, or becauſe God intended that the government ſhould not be continued in the hands of Moſes his children, and therefore would have ſome political blemiſh to be upon the family, as being ſtrangers by one parent. And this they here urge as a blemiſh to Moſes alſo.

2 And they ſaid, Hath the LORD indeed ſpoken only by Moſes? * hath he not ſpoken alſo by us? And the LORD heard it. * Mic. 6. 4.

c Are not we Prophets as well as he? ſo Aaron was made, Exod 4. 15, 16. and ſo Miriam is called, Exod. 15. 20. See alſo Mic. 6. 4. And Moſes hath debaſed and mixed the holy ſeed, which we have not done. Why then ſhould he take all power to himſelf, and make rulers as he pleaſeth, without conſulting us in the caſe? d (i. e.) Obſerved their words and carriage to Moſes.

3 (Now the man Moſes was very meek e, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth.

e This is added as the reaſon why Moſes took no notice of their reproach, but was one that heard it not, and why God did ſo ſpeedily and ſeverely plead Moſes his cauſe, becauſe he did not avenge himſelf. Ought. 1. Did it become Moſes thus to command himſelf? Anſw. 1. The holy penmen of Scripture are not to be meaſured or cenſured by other profane Writers, becauſe they are guided by ſpecial inſtinct, in every thing they write; and as they oft-times publiſh their own and their near relations greateſt faults, where it may be uſeful to the honour of God, and the edification of the Church in after ages, ſo it is not ſtrange if for the ſame reaſons ſometimes they commend themſelves, eſpecially when they are forced to it by the inſolence and contempt of their adverſaries, which was Moſes his caſe here, in which caſe St. Paul alſo commends himſelf, 2 Cor. 11. 5, &c. and 12. 11, 12. Which they might the better do, becauſe all their writings and carriage made it evident to all men, that they did not this out of vain glory, and thereby were exalted above the affectation of mens praises, and the dread of mens reproaches. 2. This might be added, as some other clauses were, by some succeeding Prophet, which was no disparagement to the authority of the holy Scriptures, seeing it is all written by one hand, though divers pens be used by it. Quæst. 2. How was Moses so meek, when we oft-times read of his anger, as Exod. 11. 8. and 16. 20. and 32. 19. Levit. 10. 16. Numb. 16. 15. and 20. 10, 11, compared with Psal. 106. 32, 33. Anſw. 1. The meekeſt men upon earth are provoked ſometimes, yea oftner than Moſes was. 2. True meekneſs doth not exclude all anger, but only ſuch as is unjuſt or immoderate or implacable. Moſes was and ought to be angry where God was offended and diſhonoured, as he was in almoſt all the places alledged.

4 And the LORD ſpake ſuddenly f unto Moſes, and unto Aaron, and unto Miriam, Come out g ye three into the tabernacle of the congregation; and they three came out.

f Partly to ſhew his great reſpect unto Moſes, and unto the grace of meekneſs; and partly to ſtifle the beginnings of the ſedition, that this example might not ſpread amongſt the people, who had too much of that leaven among them. g To wit, out of your private dwellings, and from amongſt the people, both that you may not infect them by ſuch ſcandalous words, and partly that you may know my pleaſure and your own doom.

5 And the LORD came down in the pillar of the cloud, and ſtood in the door of the tabernacle h, and called Aaron and Miriam, and they both came forth.

h Where they ſtood without, not being admitted into the Tabernacle, as Aaron uſed to be: which is noted as a ſign of Gods diſpleaſure.

6 And he ſaid, Hear now my words: if there be a prophet among you i, I the LORD will make my ſelf known unto him in a viſion k, and will ſpeak unto him in a dream l:

i If you be Prophets, as you pretend, yet know there is a difference among Prophets, nor do I put equal authority and honour upon all of them. k Whereby God repreſents things to the mind of a Prophet when he is awake, as Gen. 15. 1. and 46. 2. Dan. 8. 18. and 10. 8. l By which God manifeſts his mind to them in a dream, as Gen. 20. 3. and 28. 12.

*Heb. 3. 2. 7 My ſervant Moſes m not ſo, * who n faithful in all mine houſe m.

m (i. e.) Whom I have ſet over all my houſe, i. e. my Church and people, and therefore over you, and who hath diſcharged his office faithfully, and not partially and ſelf-ſeekingly, as you falſly accuſe him.

*Exod. 33. 11. 8 With him will I ſpeak * mouth to mouth n, even apparently o, and not in dark ſpeeches p, and the ſimilitude of the LORD q ſhall he behold: wherefore then were ye not afraid to ſpeak againſt my ſervant r Moſes?

n (i. e.) Diſtinctly, by an articulate voice; immediately, not by an interpreter, nor by ſhadows and repreſentations in his fancy, as it is in viſions and dreams; and familiarly. This is called ſpeaking face to face, 2 Epiſt. of John ver. 12. and 3 Epiſt. ver. 14. o Plainly and certainly. p Not in parables, ſimilitudes, riddles, dark reſemblances; as by ſhewing a bulking pot, an Almond Tree, &c. to Jeremy, a chariot with wheels, &c. to Ezekiel. q Not the face or eſſence of God, which no man can ſee and live, Exod. 33. 20. it being invisible, Col. 1. 15. and never ſeen by man, John 1. 18. but ſome ſingular manifeſtation of his glorious preſence, as Exod. 33. 11, 20, &c. and 34. 5, &c. Deut. 34. 10. Yea the Son of God appeared to him in an humane ſhape, which he took up for a time, that he might give him a foretaſte of his future incarnation. r Who is ſo in ſuch an eminent and extraordinary manner.

9 And the anger of the LORD was kindled againſt them, and he departed s.

s From the door of the Tabernacle, in token of his great diſpleaſure, not waiting for their anſwer, and judging them unworthy of any further diſcourſe.

*Deut. 24. 9. 10 And the cloud departed from off the the tabernacle t, and * behold, Miriam became leprous u, white as ſnow x: and Aaron looked upon Miriam, and behold, ſhe was leprous.

t Not from the whole Tabernacle, for then they muſt have removed, but from that part of the Tabernacle, whither it was come, to that part which was directly over the Mercy-ſeat, where it conſtantly abode. u She, and not Aaron, either becauſe ſhe was firſt or chief in the tranſgreſſion; or becauſe God would not have his worſhip either interrupted or diſhonoured, which it muſt have been if Aaron had been leprous. x This kind of leproſie was the moſt virulent and incurable of all. See Exod. 4. 6. 2 Kings 5. 27. If is true, when the leproſie began in a particular part, and thence ſpread it ſelf over all the fleſh by degrees, and at laſt made it all white, that was an evidence of the cure of the leproſie, Levit. 13. 12, 13. but it was otherwiſe when one was ſuddenly and extraordinarily ſmitten with this univerſal whiteneſs, which ſhewed the great corruption of the whole maſs of blood, as it was here.

11 And Aaron ſaid unto Moſes, Alas, my lord, I beſeech thee, lay not the ſin upon us y wherein we have done fooliſhly, and wherein we have ſinned.

y Let not the guilt and puniſhment of this ſin reſt upon us, upon her in this kind, upon me in any other kind, but pray to God for the pardon and removal of it.

12 Let her not be as one dead z, of whom the fleſh is half conſumed, when he cometh out of his mothers womb a.

z Either naturally, becauſe part of her fleſh was putrefied and dead, and not to be reſtored but by the mighty power of God: Or morally, becauſe ſhe was cut off from all converſe with others, Levit. 13. 46. a Like an untimely birth without due ſhape and proportion, or like a ſtill born child, that hath been for ſome time dead in the womb, which when it comes forth, is white and putrefied, and part of it conſumed.

13 And Moſes cryed unto the LORD, ſaying, Heal her now, O God, I beſeech thee.

14 And the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, * If her father b had but ſpit in her face b, ſhould ſhe not be aſhamed c ſe- *Lev. 15. ven days? let her be * ſhut out from the camp ſeven *Luke 15. days d, and after that let her be received in again. 46.

b (i. e.) Expreſſed ſome eminent token of indignation and contempt, which this was, Job 30. 10. Iſa. 50. 6. c And withdraw her ſelf, from her fathers preſence, as Jonathan did upon a like occaſion, 1 Sam. 20. 34. So though God healed her according to Moſes his requeſt, yet he would have her publickly bear the ſhame of her ſin, and be a warning to others to keep them from the ſame tranſgreſſion. d The time appointed for cleanſing the unclean. See Numb. 6. 9. and 31. 19.

15 And Miriam was ſhut out from the camp ſeven days: and the people journeyed not, till Miriam was brought in again e.

e Which was a teſtimony of reſpect to her both from God and from the people, God ſo ordering it, partly leſt ſhe ſhould be overwhelmed by ſuch a publick rebuke from God, and partly leſt, ſhe being a Propheteſs, together with her perſon, the gift of Propheſie ſhould come into contempt.

16 And afterward the people removed from Hazeroth f, and pitched in the wilderneſs of Paran g.

f Where they abode, as is ſaid, Numb. 11. 35. for Miriams ſake. g (i. e.) In another part of the ſame wilderneſs, as may be gathered from Numb. 10. 12. See alſo Deut 33. 2. It is poſſible they might have removed out of one part of that wilderneſs into another wilderneſs, and then returned again into another part of it, as we know the Iſraelites had many ſtrange windings and turnings in their Wilderneſs travels. And this part was more eſpecially called Rithmah, Numb. 33. 18. and Kadeſh-barnea, Numb. 13. 26. Deut 1. 19. which were two noted places in that part, both which ſeem to be comprehended within their camp, or near adjoining to it.

CHAP. XIII.

God commandeth Moſes to ſend Spies to ſearch out the land of Canaan, 1, 2, 3. their names, 4——15. Moſes's commandment where to go, and what to do, 16——22. their return with the fruits of the land, and their report, 23——29. they are encouraged by Caleb, 30, 31. but ten other diſheartens 'em by their falſe Report, 32——35.

1 AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes a, ſaying, a In anſwer to the peoples petition about it, as is evident from Deut. 1. 22. And it is probable from the following ſtory, that the people deſired it out of diffidence of Gods promiſe, and providence, though Moſes liked of it as a prudent courſe to learn where or how to make the firſt invaſion. And God granted their deſire for their trial and puniſhment, as well knowing from what root it came.

2 * Send thou men b, that they may ſearch the land Chap. of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Iſrael: of Deut. every tribe of their fathers c ſhall ye ſend a man, every 1. one a ruler d among them.

b Do as the people preſs thee to do. c (i. c.) Which comes from their ſeveral parents or Patriarchs. d A perſon of wiſdom and authority, which might make his witneſs more conſiderable with the people.

3 And Moſes, by the commandment of the LORD, ſent them from the Wilderneſs of Paran: all thoſe men were heads of the children of Iſrael.

4 And theſe were their names: Of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the ſon of Zaccur.

5 Of the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the ſon of Hori.

6 Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the ſon of Jephunneh.

7 Of the tribe of Iſſachar, Igal the ſon of Joſeph.

8 Of the tribe of Ephraim, Oſhea e the ſon of Nun.

9 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Palto the ſon of Raphu.

10 Of the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel the ſon of Sodi.

11 Of the tribe of Joſeph, namely, of the tribe of Manaſſeh f, Gaddi the ſon of Suſi.

f (i. c.) Of that part of the tribe of Joſeph, which is peculiarly called the tribe of Manaſſeh, as the other part of it was called the tribe of Ephraim, ver. 8. The name of Joſeph is elſewhere appropriated to Ephraim, as Ezek. 37. 16, 19. Rev. 7. 8. here to Manaſſeh; poſſibly to aggravate the ſin of the ruler of this tribe, who did ſo baſely degenerate from his noble anceſtor, Joſeph.

12 Of the tribe of Dan, Ammiel the ſon of Gemalli.

13 Of the tribe of Aſher, Shether the ſon of Michael.

16 Theſe

16 Theſe are the names of the men which Moſes ſent to ſpy out the land: and Moſes called Oſhea the ſon of Nun, Jeſhoſhua g.

g Oſhea notes a deſire of Salvation, ſignifying, Save we pray thee, but Jeſhoſhua, or Joſhua includes a promiſe of Salvation, that he ſhould ſave, or that God by his hands ſhould ſave the people. So this was a prophecy of his ſucceſſion to Moſes in the government, and of the ſucceſs of his arms.

17 And Moſes ſent them to ſpie out the land of Canaan, and ſaid unto them, Get ye up this way ſouthward h, and go up into the mountain i:

h (i. e.) Into the Southern part of Canaan, which was the neareſt part, and the worſt too, being dry and deſert, Joſ. 15. 1, 3. Judg. 1. 15. Pſal. 126. 4. and therefore fitteſt for them to enter and paſs through with leſs obſervation. i (i. e.) Into the mountainous country, and thence into the valleys, and ſo take an exact ſurvey of the whole land.

18 And ſee the land what it is k, and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be ſtrong or weak, few or many:

k Both for largeneſs, and for nature and quality; as is more particularly expreſſed, ver. 19, 20.

19 And what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad l, and what cities they be that they dwell in, whether in tents m or in ſtrong holds:

l Healthful, or unwholeſome, fruitful or barren. m As the Arabians did, or in unwalled Villages, which, like tents, are expoſed to an enemy.

20 And what the land is, whether it be fat n or lean, whether there be wood therein, or not. And be ye of good courage o, and bring of the fruit of the land, (now the time was the time of the firſt ripe grapes.)

n Rich and fertile. o Doubt not but God will preſerve you in this dangerous Journey, and be not diſmayed nor diſcouraged if you find the people numerous, potent, and well fortified.

21 So they went up, and ſearched the land, from the wilderneſs of Zin p, unto Rehob, as men come to Hamath q.

p In the ſouth of Canaan, Numb. 34. 3. Joſ. 15. 3. differing from the wilderneſs of Sin, which was nigh unto Egypt, Exod. 16. 1. q (i. e.) From the South they paſſed through the whole land even to the Northern parts of it, Rehob, a city in the North-weſt part, Joſ. 19. 28. Judg. 1. 31. and Hemath, a city in the North-eaſt part, Joſ. 19. 35. Ezek. 47. 17. And that they might more expeditiouſly and ſecurely perform this office, it is probable, that they divided themſelves into ſeveral ſmall parties, and informed themſelves not only by their eye, but alſo by their ear, and the information of perſons of whom they enquired about the nature and condition of their land.

22 And they aſcended by the ſouth r, and came unto Hebron: where * Ahiman, Sheſhai, and Talmai, the *Joſh. 15. children of Anak t were: (now Hebron was built ſeven *Judg. 1. years before Zoan in Egypt u.)

r Here Moſes having generally deſcribed their progreſs and courſe from South to North, now returns more particularly to relate ſome memorable places and paſſages, as that having entred the land in the ſouthern parts, they travelled then till they came to Hebron. † Heb. Hebron, no wit, Caleb, as appears from Joſ. 14. 9. 12, 14. For, as was now intimated, the ſpies diſtributed their work among them, and went either ſeverally, or by pairs, and, it ſeems, the ſurvey of this part was left to Caleb. t A famous giant ſo called, whoſe children theſe are called, either more generally, as all giants ſometimes were, or rather more ſpecially, becauſe Arbah, from whom Hebron was called Kiriath-arbah, was the father of Anak, Joſ. 15. 13. And this circumſtance is mentioned as an evidence of the goodneſs of that land and ſoil, becauſe the giants cheſe it for their habitation. u This ſeems to be noted to confront the Egyptians, who vainly boaſted of the antiquity of their city Zoan above all places.

*Deut. 1. 23 * And they came unto the † brook of Eſhcol, and cut down from thence a branch with one cluſter of *Val. grapes, and they bare it between two upon a ſtaff x; and they brought of the pomegranates, and of the figs.

x Either for the weight of it, conſidering the length of the way they were to carry it, or for the preſervation of it whole and entire. In thoſe Eaſtern and Southern countries there are vines and grapes of an extraordinary bigneſs as Strabo and Pliny affirm.

*Or, Val. 24 The place was called the * brook † Eſhcol, becauſe of the cluſter of grapes which the children of Iſ- *That is, rael cut down from thence. Or, of grapes.

25 And they returned from ſearching of the land after forty days.

26 And they went and came to Moſes, and to Aaron, and to all the congregation of the children of Iſrael, unto the wilderneſs of Paran, to Kadeſh y, and brought back word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and ſhewed them the fruit of the land.

y So called by way of abbreviation, which is frequent in Hebrew names, for Kadeſh-barnea, Deut. 1. 19. which ſome raſhly confound with Kadeſh in the wilderneſs of Sin, Numb. 20. 1. and 27. 14. and 33. 16. into which they came not till the 40th year after their coming out of Egypt, as appears from Numb. 33. 37, 38. whereas they were in this Kadeſh in the ſecond year, and before they received the ſentence of their forty years abode in the wilderneſs.

27 And they told him z, and ſaid, We came unto the land whither thou ſenteſt us, and ſurely it floweth with * milk and honey a, and this is the fruit of it. * Exod.

2 In the audience of the people, as appears from ver. 30. 33. a They craftily begin their relation with commendations, that their following ſlanders might be more eaſily believed.

28 Neverthelefs, the * people be ſtrong b that dwell *Deut. 1. in the land, and the cities are * walled, and very great: 28. and moreover, we ſaw the children of Anak there.

b Potent for the ſtrength of their body and the valour of their minds.

29 The Amalekite dwelleth in the land of the ſouth c: and the Hittite, and the Jebuſite, and the Amorite dwelleth in the mountains d: and the Canaanite dwelleth by the ſea e, and by the coaſt of Jordan.

c Where we are to enter the land, and they who were ſo eager and fierce againſt us that they came into the wilderneſs to fight with us, will without doubt oppoſe us when we come cloſe by their land, and are about to ſettle in their neighbourhood, the rather, to revenge themſelves for their former loſs and ſhame received by us. Therefore they mention them, though they were no Canaanites. d (i. c.) In the mountainous country in the South-eaſt part of the land, ſo that you cannot enter there without great difficulty, both becauſe of the natural ſtrength and valour of thoſe people, and becauſe of the advantage they have from the mountains. e Not the mid-land Sea, which is commonly underſtood by that expreſſion, but the ſalt or dead ſea, as appears, 1. becauſe it is that ſea which is next to Jordan, as here follows: 2. becauſe the Canaanites dwelt principally in thoſe parts, and not near the mid-land ſea. So theſe guard the entrance on the Eaſt-ſide, as the others do on the South.

30 And Caleb f ſtilled the people g before Moſes h, and ſaid, Let us go up at once, and poſſeſs it, for we are well able to overcome it i.

f Together with Joſhua, as is manifeſt from Numb. 14. 6 7, 30. but Caleb alone is here mentioned, poſſibly becauſe he ſpake firſt and moſt, which he might better do, becauſe he might be profounded to be more impartial than Joſhua, who being Moſes his Miniſter might be thought to ſpeak only what he knew his maſter would like. g Which implies either that they had began to murmur, or that by their looks and carriages they diſcovered that grief and anger which boiled in their breaſts. h Or, towards Moſes, againſt whom they were incenſed, as the man who had brought them into ſuch ſad circumſtances. i Partly in moral probability, becauſe we are one people united under one head, whereas they are divided into ſeveral nations, and governments of differing counſels and intereſts and inclinations; and principally becauſe of the aſſiſtance of the almighty God.

31 But the men that went up with him k, ſaid, We be not able to go up againſt the people, for they are ſtronger than we l.

k All of them, Joſhua excepted. l Both in ſtature of body and numbers of people. Thus they wickedly queſtion the power and truth and goodneſs of God, of all which they had ſuch ample teſtimonies.

32 And they brought up m an evil report of the land n, which they had ſearched, unto the children of Iſrael, ſaying, The land through which we have gone to ſearch it, is a land * that eateth up the inhabitants Lev. 26. thereof o: and † all the people that we ſaw in it, are 38. * men of a great ſtature. † Amos 2.

m Heb. brought forth, to wit, out of their mouths: they uttered * Heb. a reproach or reproachful words. n (i. c.) Againſt, or, concerning the land. It is the genitive caſe of the object, as Mat. 12. 31. and 14. 1. o Not ſo much by civil wars, as moſt think, for that was likely to make their conqueſt more eaſie; nor by the barrenneſs of the ſoil, which confuted the people with the exceſſive pains it required to make it fruitful, as others think, for they confeſſed the excellency of the land, ver. 27. but rather by the unwholeſomneſs of the air and place, which they gueſſed from the many funerals, which, as ſome Hebrew Writers, for without probability affirm, they obſerved in their travels through it: though that came to paſs from another cauſe, even from the ſingular providence of God, which, to facilitate the Iſraelites conqueſt, cut off vaſt numbers of the Canaanites either by a plague, or by the Amalekites before them, as is expreſſed, Joſ. 24. 12. or ſome other way.

33 And there we ſaw the giants, the ſons of Anak, which come of the giants: and we were in our own ſight as graſhoppers p, and ſo we were in their ſight.

p (i. c.) Small and contemptible.

CHAP. XIV.

The children of Iſrael murmur againſt Moſes and Aaron, 1——4. Joſhua, Aaron, Caleb and Joſhua go to appeaſe the people, 5——9. who ſeek to ſtone them, 10. The Lord threatneth to conſume them with peſtilence, 11, 12. Moſes intercedeth the Lord for the people, 13——19. The Lord heareth Moſes, 20——23. but ſwears that that wicked generation ſhall never enter into the Land of Canaan, 24. Judgments on the murmurers, 25——38. They that brought an evil report to the land die of the plague, 37. They who would take poſſeſſion of the land contrary to Gods command are ſmitten, 40——45.

1 AND all the congregation a lifted up their voice, and cryed, and the people wept that night.

a Except Caleb and Joſhua and ſome few others. A Synecdochical expreſſion, the whole for the greateſt part.

2 And all the children of Iſrael murmured againſt Moſes, and againſt Aaron b, and the whole congregation ſaid unto them, * Would God that we had died in the land of See ver. Egypt, or would God that we had died in this wilderneſs. 28, 29.

b As the inſtruments and occaſions of their preſent calamity. It was not long before they had their deſire, and did die in the wilderneſs.

3 And

3 And wherefore hath the LORD d brought us unto this land, to fall by the sword, that our wives, and our children ſhould be a prey e? were it not better for us to return into Egypt?

d From the inſtruments they riſe higher, and ſtrike at God the chief cauſe and author of their journey: by which we ſee the prodigious growth and progreſs of ſin when it is not reſiſted. e To the Canaanites whoſe land we were made to believe we ſhould poſſeſs.

4 And they ſaid one to another, Let us make a captain f, and let us return into Egypt g.

f Inſtead of Joſhua, one who will be more faithful to our intereſt than he. g This was but a purpoſe or a deſire, and yet it is imputed to them as if they had done it, Nehem. 9. 16, 17. they appointed a captain, &c. even as Abrahams purpoſe to offer up Iſaac is reckoned for the deed, Heb. 11. 17. g Stupendious madneſs! whence ſhould they have proteƈtion againſt the many hazards, and proviſion againſt all the wants of the wilderneſs? could they expect either Gods cloud to cover and guide them, or Manna from heaven to feed them? who ſhould conduƈt them over the Red Sea? or, if they went another way, who ſhould defend them againſt thoſe nations whoſe borders they were to paſs? what entertainment could they expeƈt from the Egyptians, whom they had deſerted and brought to ſo much ruine?

5 Then Moſes and Aaron fell on their faces h before all the aſſembly i of the congregation of the children of Iſrael.

h As humble and earneſt ſuppliants, either, to the people, to intreat them to deſiſt from their wicked and pernicious enterprize: or rather to God, by comparing this with Numb. 16. 4. and 20. 6. the only refuge to which Moſes reſorted in all ſuch ſtraits, and who alone was able to ſtill and govern this tumultuous and ſtiff-necked people. i That they might be awaked to apprehend their ſin and danger, when they ſaw Moſes at his prayers, whom God never uſed to deny, and never failed to defend even with the deſtruƈtion of his enemies.

6 And Joſhua the ſon of Nun, and Caleb the ſon of Jephunneh, which were of them that ſearched the land, rent their clothes k.

k To teſtifie their hearty grief for the peoples blaſphemy againſt God and ſedition againſt Moſes, and that dreadful judgment which they eaſily foreſaw this muſt bring upon the congregation and people of God.

7 And they ſpake unto all the company of the children of Iſrael, ſaying, The land which we paſſed through to ſearch it, is an exceeding good land.

8 If the LORD delight in us l, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us, a land which floweth with milk and honey.

l If by our rebellion and ingratitude we do not provoke God to loath and forſake us.

9 Only rebel ye not againſt the LORD, neither fear ye the people of the land, for they are bread for us m: their † defence n is departed from them, and the LORD is with us o: fear them not.

m We ſhall deſtroy them as eaſily as we do our bread or common food. C mpare Numbers 24. 8. Pſal. 14. 4. n (i. e.) Their counſel, conduƈt, and courage, and eſpecially, God, who was pleaſed to afford them his proteƈtion till their iniquities were full, Gen. 15. 16. is utterly departed from them, and hath given them up as a prey to us. o By his ſpecial grace and almighty power to ſave us from them and from all our enemies.

10 But all the congregation bade ſtone them with ſtones: and the glory of the LORD appeared p in the tabernacle q of the congregation, before all the children of Iſrael.

p Now in the extremity of danger to reſcue his faithful ſervants, and to ſtop the rage of the people. q (i. e.) Upon or above the tabernacle, where the cloud uſually reſided, in which the glory of God did appear upon occaſion, and now in a more illuſtrious manner, as the ſtate of things required.

11 And the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, How long will this people provoke me? and how long will it be e're they believe me, for all the ſigns which I have ſhewed among them?

12 I will ſmite them with the peſtilence, and diſinherit them r, * and will make of thee a greater nation and mightier than they.

* Exod. 32. 10.

r This was not an abſolute determination, as the event ſhewed, but only a commination, like that of Nineveh's deſtruƈtion within 40 days, with a condition implyed, except there be ſpeedy repentance, or powerful intercceſſion.

13 And * Moſes ſaid unto the LORD, Then s the Egyptians ſhall hear it (for thou broughteſt up this people in thy might from among them t.)

* Exod. 32. 12. Deut. 32. 27.

s (i. e.) In caſe thou doſt utterly deſtroy them. t Whereby thou didſt get great honour to thy ſelf, which now thou wilt certainly loſe.

14 And they will tell it to the inhabitants of this land u: * for they have heard that thou, LORD, art among this people; that thou, LORD, art ſeen face to face, and that * thy cloud ſtandeth over them, and that thou goeſt before them, by day time in a pillar of a cloud, and in a pillar of fire by night.

* Exod. 15. 14. Joſh. 2. 9. and 5. 1. * Exod. 13. 21.

u For there was much converſe between theſe two nations.

15 Now if thou ſhalt kill all this people, as one man x, then the nations which have heard the fame of thee will ſpeak, ſaying, x (i. e.) Altogether, or to a man; and ſuddenly as it were by one blow, as if all had but one neck.

16 Becauſe the LORD was not * able to bring this people into the land which he ſware unto them, y therefore he hath ſlain them in the wilderneſs.

* Deut. 9. 28.

y His power was quite ſpent in bringing them out of Egypt, and could not finiſh the work he had begun and had ſworn to do.

17 And now, I beſeech thee, let the power of my LORD be great z, according as thou haſt ſpoken, ſaying, z (i. e.) Appear to be great, diſcover its greatneſs. A real verb put for a declarative, or the thing for the manifeſtation of the thing. And this may be underſtood either 1. of Gods power in preſerving the people and carrying them on into Canaan, which ſence may ſeem to be favoured by the foregoing verſe, where the Egyptians deny that God had power to do ſo. And according to that ſence he adds the following words, not as an explication of this power, but as an argument to move him to ſhew forth his power by his people notwithſtanding theirs ſins, according as, or rather becauſe (as the Hebrew word is oft rendred) he had ſpoken ſaying, &c. and ſo he ſhould maintain the honour and the truth of his own name or of thoſe titles which he had aſcribed to himſelf. Or 2. the power of his grace and mercy, or the greatneſs of his mercy, as he calls it, ver. 19. in pardoning of this and their other ſins: for to this the following words manifeſtly reſtrain it, according as thou haſt ſpoken, &c. where the pardon of their ſins is the only inſtance of this power both deſcribed in Gods titles, ver. 18. and prayed for by Moſes, ver. 19. pardon, I beſeech thee, &c. and granted by God in anſwer to him, ver. 20. I have pardoned, &c. Nor is it ſtrange that the pardon of ſin, eſpecially of ſuch great ſins, be ſpoken of as an aƈt of power in God, becauſe undoubtedly it is an aƈt of omnipotent, and infinite goodneſs; whence deſpairing ſinners ſometimes cry out, that their ſins are greater than God can pardon, as ſome tranſlate Cains words, Gen. 4. 13. And ſince power is applied to Gods wrath in puniſhing ſin, Rom. 9. 22. why may it not as well be attributed to Gods mercy in forgiving it? Eſpecially if it be conſidered that even in men, revenge is an aƈt of impotency, and conſequently it muſt needs be an aƈt of power to conquer their paſſions and inclinations to revenge, and to pardon thoſe enemies whom they could deſtroy.

18 The LORD is * long-ſuffering, and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and tranſgreſſion, and by no means clearing the guilty, * viſiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation a.

* Exod. 34. 6. Pſal. 86. 15. and 103. 8. and 145. 8. Joel 2. 13. Jon. 4. 2. Nah. 1. 3. * Exod. 20. 5. and 34. 7.

a Theſe words may ſeem to be very improperly mentioned, as being a powerful argument to move God to deſtroy this wicked people, and not to pardon them. It may be anſwered, that Moſes uſeth theſe words together with the reſt, partly becauſe he would not ſever what God had put together, and partly to ſhew that he did not deſire a full and abſolute pardon, (but was willing that God ſhould execute his vengeance upon the principal authors of this rebellion, & leave ſome character of his diſpleaſure upon all the people, as God did,) but only that God would not diſinherite them, ver. 12. nor kill all the people as one man, ver. 15. nor deſtroy them both root and branch, becauſe he had promiſed not to extend his wrath againſt them in puniſhing their ſins beyond the third and fourth generation. But the truer anſwer ſeems to be, that theſe words are to be tranſlated otherwiſe, and in deſtroying he will not utterly deſtroy, though he viſit the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation. Of which ſee the notes on Exod. 34. 7. where all this verſe is explained.

19 Pardon, I beſeech thee, the iniquity of this people, according to the greatneſs of thy mercy, and as thou haſt forgiven this people from Egypt, even * until now b.

* Or, hitherto.

b After many and great provocations: ſhew thy ſelf ſtill to be the ſame ſin-pardoning God.

20 And the LORD ſaid, I have pardoned according to thy word c.

c So far, as not utterly to deſtroy them, as I threatned ver. 12. and thou didſt fear, and beg the prevention of it, ver. 15.

21 But truly as I live, * all the earth ſhall be filled with the glory of the LORD d.

* Pſal. 72. 19.

d (i. e.) With the report of the glorious and righteous acts of God in puniſhing this rebellious people in manner following. That this is the true ſence, appears both from the particle of oppoſition, and the ſolemn introduƈtion of them. But truly as I live, and from the following verſes, becauſe all thoſe men, &c. which come in without any note of oppoſition, and have a manifeſt relation to and connexion with this verſe.

22 Becauſe all thoſe men which have ſeen my glory e, and my miracles which I did in Egypt, and in the wilderneſs, and have tempted me now theſe ten times f, and have not hearkened to my voice;

e (i. e.) My glorious appearances in the cloud, and in the Tabernacle. f (i. e.) Many times. A certain number for an uncertain, as Gen. 31. 7. Levit. 26. 8. Job. 19. 3. Though ſome † reckon ten times preciſely, wherein they did eminently provoke God.

23 * † Surely they ſhall not ſee the land which I ſware unto their fathers, neither ſhall any of them that provoked me, ſee it:

ſh. 14. 24. But my ſervant * Caleb g, becauſe he had another ſpirit with him h, and hath followed me fully i; him will I bring into the land, whereinto he went k, and his ſeed ſhall poſſeſs it l.

, 9. * Numb. 32. 12. Joſh. 14. 6, 14.

g Joſhua is not here named, becauſe he was not now among the people, but a conſtant attendant upon Moſes, nor was he to be reckoned as one of them, any more than Moſes and Aaron were, becauſe he was to be their chief commander. h (i. e.) Was a man of another temper, and carriage, faithful and couragious, not acted by that evil ſpirit of cowardize, unbelief, unthankfulneſs, diſobedience, which ruled in his brethren, but by the ſpirit of God. i (i. e.) Univerſally and conſtantly, in and through difficulties and dangers, which made his partners halt. k In general, Canaan, and particularly Hebron, and the adjacent parts, Joſ. 14. 9. l Or, ſhall expel it, i. e. its inhabitants, the land being oft put for the people of it. Compare Joſ. 8. 7. and 14. 12.

m Beyond the mountain at the foot whereof they now were, v. 40. And this clauſe is added, either 1. as an aggravation of Iſraels miſery and puniſhment, that being now ready to enter and take poſſeſſion of the land they are forced to go back into the wilderneſs: or 2. as an argument to oblige them more willingly to obey the following command of returning into the wilderneſs, becauſe their enemies were very near them, and ſevered from them only by that Idumæan mountain, and, if they did not ſpeedily depart, their enemies would hear of them and fall upon them, and ſo the evil which before they cauſelefly feared would come upon them; they, their wives and their children would become a prey to the Amalekites and Canaanites, becauſe God had forſaken them and would not aſſiſt nor defend them. The verſe may be rendred thus, And or But, for the preſent, the Amalekite, and the Canaanite dwell in the valley: therefore (which particle is here underſtood, as it is in other places) to morrow turn ye, &c. Though ſome knit theſe words to the former, and read the place thus, Caleb—and his ſeed ſhall poſſeſs it, to wit, the land near Hebron, and alſo, the land of the Amalekites, and of the Canaanites that dwell in the valley. Queſt. But how are the Canaanites ſaid to dwell in the valley, here, when they dwelt in the hill, v. 45. and by the ſea-coaſts, Numb. 21. 1? Anſ. 1. Part of them dwelt in one place, and part in other places. 2. The word, Canaanite, may here be underſtood more generally of all the inhabitants of Canaan. n (i. e.) That leadeth to the Red-ſea, and to Egypt, the place whither you deſire to return, v. 3, 4.

27 How long ſhall I bear with o this evil congregation which murmur againſt me? I have heard the murmurings of the children of Iſrael which they murmur againſt me.

o Or, pardon, as v. 19, 20. or ſpare: which words are neceſſarily and eaſily underſtood. It is a ſhort and imperfect ſpeech, which is frequent in caſe of anger, as Exod. 32. 32. Pſal. 6. 3. and 90. 13.

s Like ſheep feeding in the deſerts: or, ſhall be ſhepherds, i. e. ſhall live like the ſhepherds of Arabia, in tents and removing from place to place, having no certain dwelling. t (i. c.) So long as to make up the time of your dwelling in the wilderneſs forty years, as appears from Numb. 33. 8. Deut. 1. 3. and 2. 14. Compare Amos 5. 25. It is manifeſt, that one whole year and part of another were paſt before this ſin or judgment. u (i. e.) The puniſhment of your whoredoms, to wit, of your Apoſtacy from, and perfidiouſneſs againſt your Lord, who was your husband, and had married you to himſelf. 39 And Moſes told theſe ſayings unto all the children of Iſrael, and the people mourned greatly.

40 And they roſe up early in the morning, and gat them up b into the top of the mountain, ſaying, Lo, we * be here, and will go up unto the place which the LORD hath promiſed: for we have ſinned.

* Deut. 1. 41

b (i. e.) Deſigned or attempted or prepared themſelves to go up: for that they were not yet actually gone up, plainly appears from v. 42, 44. and from Deut. 1. 41. Things deſigned or endavoured in Scripture-phraſe are oft ſaid to be done. See on Gen. 37. 21, 22. Exod. 5. 18.

41 And Moſes ſaid, Wherefore now do ye tranſgreſs the commandment of the LORD c? but it ſhall not proſper.

c Either that command, Go not up, &c. which, though in this place mentioned after, yet may ſeem to have gone before their tranſgreſſion, by comparing this place with Deut. 1. 42, 43. or that command above, v. 25. turn ye, and get ye into the wilderneſs, &c. which was a courſe directly contrary to that which they took.

42 Go not up, for the LORD is not among you, that ye be not ſmitten before your enemies.

43 For the Amalekite, and the Canaanite are there before you, and ye ſhall fall by the ſword: becauſe ye are turned away from the LORD, therefore the LORD will not be with you.

44 But they preſumed d to go up into the hill top: nevertheleſs the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and Moſes departed not out of the camp.

d Guilty both of raſhneſs and rebellion, thus running from one extreme to another.

45 Then the Amalekite came down, and the Canaanite e which dwelt f in that hill, and ſmote them, * and diſcomfited them, even unto * Hormah g.

* Deut. 1. 44. * Chap. 21. 3.

e Largely ſo called, but ſtrictly the Amorite, as appears from Deut. 1. 44. f So they were a part and branch of thoſe that dwelt in the valley, v. 25. Or, for, i. e. placed themſelves, lay in ambuſh, expecting your coming. g A place ſo called afterwards, Numb. 21. 3. from the great ſlaughter or deſtruƈtion of the Amorites at this time.

CHAP. XV.

Of Meat and Drink Offerings, 1—16. The Law of the firſt of the Dough for a heave Offering, 17——21. The Sacrifice for Sins of Ignorance of the whole Congregation, 22——26. or when a ſingle Soul is guilty, 27——29. Puniſhments for profeſſipriant Sinners, 30——31. Of the Man that gathered Sticks on the Lords Day, and his Death, 32——36. God commandeth them to wear Fringes on their Garments, 37——38. The uſe thereof, 39——41.

1 AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes ſaying,

2 * Speak unto the children of Iſrael, and ſay † unto them, When ye be come into the land of your habitations, which I give a unto you, a (i. e.) Will certainly give you, notwithſtanding this great provocation, and my unchangeable commination. And for their better aſſurance hereof he repeats and amplifies the law of ſacrifices, whereby through Chriſt he was or would be reconciled to them and theirs upon their repentance.

* Lev. 23. 10. † Heb. to.

3 And will make an offering by fire unto the LORD, * a burnt-offering, or a ſacrifice b * in † performing a vow, † Heb. or in a free-will-offering, or * in your ſolemn feaſts, to make a * ſweet ſavour unto the LORD, of the herd or of the flock:

* Lev. 1. 9. and 2. 2. and 3. 5. and 23. 18. Deut. 12. 27. † Heb. to. * Lev. 1. 9.

b (i. e.) A peace-offering, as appears 1. becauſe that word is put by it ſelf is oft ſo taken, as Exod. 18. 12. Levit. 17. 5, 8. and 19. 5. and 22. 37. Deut. 12. 27. 2. becauſe the offerings for ſins and trespaſſes had no meat-offerings and drink-offerings attending upon them, excepting only the caſe of the Lepers cleanſing, Lev. 14. 10. For

3. because this is explained by and called peace-offerings, v. 8. 4. from the words here following, because peace-offerings were commonly offered either in performance of a vow, or freely, or by Gods command in their solemn feasts, all which are here expressed.

* Lev. 2.1. 4 Then * shall he that offereth his offering unto *Ex.29.40 the LORD, bring a * meat-offering of a tenth-deal c
Lev.23.13 of flour, mingled with the fourth part of an hin of oil d.

c Or, tenth-part, to wit, of an Ephah, i. e. an Omer, Exod. 16. 36. d Wherein it seems to differ from such meat-offerings as were solitary, and not accessories to other sacrifices.

5 And the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink-offering shalt thou prepare, with the burnt-offering, or sacrifice, for one lamb.

6 Or for a ram, thou shalt prepare for a meat-offering two tenth-deals e of flour mingled with the third part of an hin of oyl.

e Because this belonged to a better sacrifice than the former; and therefore in the next sacrifice of a bullock, there are three tenth deals. So the accessory sacrifice grows proportionably with the principal.

7 And for a drink-offering, thou shalt offer the third part of an hin of wine, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

8 And when thou preparest a bullock for a burnt-
*Lev.7.11. offering, or for a sacrifice in performing a vow, or * peace-offerings f unto the LORD:

f (i.e.) Or any other peace-offerings, to wit, such as were offered either freely or by command, which may be called peace-offerings or thank-offerings, by way of eminency, because such are offered purely by way of gratitude to God, and with single respect to his command and honour, whereas the peace-offerings made in performance of a vow were made and offered by way of contract, and with design of getting some advantage by them.

9 Then shall he bring with a bullock a meat-offering of three tenth deals of flour, mingled with half an hin of oyl.

10 And thou shalt bring for a drink-offering half an hin of wine, for an offering made by fire of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

11 Thus shall it be done for one bullock, or for one ram, or for a lamb, or a kid.

12 According to the number that ye shall prepare, so shall ye do to every one according to their number g.

g (i.e.) As many cattel as ye sacrifice, so many meat and drink-offerings ye shall offer.

13 All that are born of the country shall do these things after this manner, in offering an offering made by fire of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

h To wit, Proselyte, for such offerings were not accepted from others.

*Ex.12.49. ch. 9.14. 15 * One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger that sojourneth, with you, an ordinance for ever in your generations: as ye are, so shall the stranger be before the LORD i.

i (i.e.) As to the worship of God: his sacrifices shall be offered in the same manner and accepted by God upon the same terms, as yours: which was a presage of the future calling of the Gentiles. And this is added by way of caution and distinction, to shew that strangers were not upon this pretence to partake of their civil privileges.

16 One law, and one manner shall be for you, and for the stranger that sojourneth with you.

17 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

18 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come unto the land whither I bring you,

19 Then it shall be, that when ye eat k of the bread l of the land, ye shall offer up an heave-offering unto the LORD m.

k (i.e.) When you are about to eat it: for before they did eat it, they were to offer this offering to God. l (i.e.) The bread-corn, as that word is used, Job 28. 5. Psal. 104. 14. Isa. 28. 28. m (i.e.) To the Priest of the Lord, as appears from Ezek. 44. 30.

20 Ye shall offer up a cake of the first of your dough
*Lev.2.14. for an heave-offering: as ye do * the heave-offering of and 23.10, the threshing floor n, so shall ye heave it o.

n (i.e.) Of the corn in the threshing-floor, as Deut. 16. 13. when you have gathered in your corn. o (i.e.) You shall offer this in the same proportion, to the same persons, i. e. the Priests, and with the same rites.

21 Of the first of your dough ye shall give unto the LORD an heave-offering in your generations.

*Lev. 4.2. 22 And if ye have erred, and not observed all these commandments p which the LORD hath spoken unto Moses;

p To wit, those now spoken of, those which concern the outward worship and service of God, or the rites or ceremonies belonging to it. And herein principally this law may seem to differ from that Lev. 4. 13. which speaks of some positive miscarriage or doing that which ought not to have been done about the holy things of God, whereas this speaks only of an omission of something which ought to have been done about holy ceremonies. But besides this, that law, Lev. 4. 13. concerns the whole congregation of Israel, as it is there expressed, but this concerns only the congregation, or a congregation, as it is here expressed, v. 24. i. e. any particular congregation of Israelites, whether of a whole tribe meeting together by their representatives, or a lesser congregation, such as there were to be many in Canaan, and the words rendred, all the congregation, may be, and are by some here, rendred, every congregation. And by vertue of this law, as some suppose, the Israelites newly after their return from the captivity offered 12 bullocks, one for each tribe, Ezra 8. 35.

23 Even all that the LORD hath commanded you by the hand of Moses, from the day that the LORD commanded Moses, and henceforward among your generations:

24 Then it shall be, if ought be committed by ignorance, † without the knowledge of the congregation, ‖ that all the congregation shall offer one young bullock the for a burnt-offering q, for a sweet savour unto the LORD, with his meat-offering, and his drink-offering, according to the ‖ manner, and one kid of the goats for a sin-‖ Or, due offering.

q In Levit. 4. the bullock is for a sin-offering, here it is for a burnt-offering, either because they are different laws, as hath been said; or, because here is added a new penalty, to breed the greater caution and diligence in the Israelites, who had given many instances, and now a fresh and eminent instance, of their heedlessness in observing the commands of God: and so, besides that bullock for a sin-offering, which he leaves to be gathered out of Lev. 4. 14. he now requires another bullock for a burnt-offering

25 And the priest shall make an atonement for all the congregation of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them, for it is ignorance: and they shall bring their offering, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD, and their sin-offering before the LORD, for their ignorance.

26 And it shall be forgiven all the congregation of the children of Israel, and the stranger that sojourneth among them, seeing all the people were in ignorance.

27 * And if any soul sin through ignorance, then *Lev.4.27 he shall bring a she-goat of the first year for a sin-offering.

28 And the priest shall make an atonement for the soul that sinneth ignorantly, when he sinneth by ignorance before the LORD, to make an atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

29 Ye shall have one law for him that † sinneth ‖ Hebr. through ignorance, both for him that is born amongst the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them.

30 But the soul that doth ought r † presumptuously s, ‖ He- (whether he be born in the land, or a stranger) the same man reproacheth the LORD u; and that soul shall be cut off h given from among his people.

r Understand, such things as ought not to be done, and things relating to the worship of God. s Heb. with an high, or lifted up hand, i. e. knowingly, wilfully, boldly, resolvedly, deliberately, designedly. So this phrase is elsewhere used. See Exod. 14. 8. Lev. 26. 21. Numb. 33. 3. Job 15. 26. Psal. 19. 13. u (i.e.) He sets God at defiance, and expose h him to contempt, as if he were unworthy of any regard, and unable to punish transgressors.

31 Because he hath despised the word of the LORD, and hath broken his commandment, that soul shall utterly be cut off: his iniquity shall be upon him x.

x (i.e.) The punishment shall be confined to himself, and not fall upon the congregation, as it will do, if they neglect to cut him off.

32 And while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man that gathered sticks on the sabbath day y.

y This seems to be added as an example of a presumptuous sin: for as the law of the sabbath was plain and positive, so this transgression of it must needs be a known and wilful sin.

33 And they that found him gathering sticks, brought him unto Moses and Aaron, and unto all the congregation z.

z (i.e.) To the Rulers of the congregation, who as they represented and governed the congregation are called by the name of the congregation.

34 And they a put him * in ward, because it was * Lev. not declared what should be done unto him b. 24.12.

a (i.e.) Moses and Aaron, and the 70 Rulers last mentioned. b (i.e.) In what manner he was to be cut off, or by what kind of death he was to die, which therefore God here particularly determines: otherwise it was known in general that sabbath-breakers were to be put to death, from Exod. 31. 14. and 35. 2.

35 And the LORD said unto Moses, * The man *Ex.31.15 shall be surely put to death: all the congregation shall stone him with stones without the camp.

36 And all the congregation brought him without the camp, and stoned him with stones, as the LORD commanded Moses.

37 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

r. 22. 38 Speak unto the children of Israel, and bid * them 23.5. that they make them fringes b in the † borders c of their garments d, throughout their generations, and that they put upon the fringe of the borders a ribband e of blue f.

b These were certain threds or ends of their garments, standing out a little further than the reft of their garments, left there for this use. c (i.e.) in the four borders or quarters, as it is, Deut. 22. 12. Heb. wings, which is oft used for borders or ends, as Ruth 3. 9. 1 Sam. 15. 27. and 24. 5. &c. d. (i.e.) Of their upper garment, or that wherewith they covered themselves, as is expressed Deut. 22. 12. This was practised by the Pharisees in Christs time, who are noted for making their borders larger than ordinary, Mat. 23. 5. and by Christ himself, as may be gathered from Luk. 8. 44. e To make it more obvious to the sight, and consequently more serviceable to the use here mentioned. f Or, of a purple colour, as the Jewish writers agree, whole opinion is the more considerable, because it was matter of constant practice among them.

39 And it shall be unto you for a fringe g, that ye may look upon it, and remember h all the commandments of the LORD, and do them: and that ye seek not i after your own heart, and your own eyes k, after which ye use to go a whoring l:

g It (i.e.) the ribband, shall be unto you, i. e. shall serve you for the fringe, to wit, to render it more visible and notorious by its certain and remarkable and distinct colour, whereas the fringe without this was of the same piece and colour with the garment, and therefore less observable. Or, it, (i.e.) the ribband, shall be in your fringes, or, put to your fringes, fastened to them. h That by looking upon it you may remember; that your eyes may affect your mind and heart. i Or, inquire not for other rules or ways of serving me than I have prescribed you. k (i.e.) Neither after the devices and inventions of your own minds or hearts, as Nadab and Abihu did when they offered strange fire, and as you now did when you pretended to serve and please me by going up the hill and toward Canaan without and against my command; nor after the examples or inventions of others which your eyes see, as you did when you were set upon worshipping a calf after the manner of Egypt. l (i.e.) To depart from me, and to prefer your own fancies before my commands, and to live only by present light or sense, and not at all by faith in my promises.

40 That ye may remember, and do all my commandments, and be holy unto your God.

41 I am the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the LORD your God m.

m Though I am justly displeased with you for your frequent and horrid rebellions, for which also I will keep you 40 years in the wilderness, yet I will not utterly cast you off, but will continue to be your God, to preserve and provide for you there, and after that time to bring you into Canaan.

CHAP. XVI.

Korah, Dathan and Abiram, raise Sedition against Moses and Aaron, v. 1—3. Moses reproving them, 4——11. Sends for Dathan and Abiram; their Refusal and Answer, 12——14. The manner of their punishment, 15——35. Their perishing Censers are kept for a Monumental Warning, 36——40. The people murmur against Moses and Aaron, for which they are consumed by the plague, which Aaron by Moses's Order stays, 41——50.

*Jude 11. NOW * Korah a the son of Izhar b, the son of Kohath the son of Levi, and Dathan, and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben c, took men d:

a The first and chief author of this rebellion, ver. 21. Jude ver. 11. b. Amram's brother, Exod. 6. 18. therefore Moses and he were cousen germans. Moreover, Izhar was the second son of Kohath, whereas Eliaphan, whom Moses had preferred before him, and made prince or ruler of the Kohathites, Numb. 3. 30. was the son of Uzziel, the fourth son of Kohath. This, the Jewish writers say, made him malecontent, which at last broke forth into sedition. c These are drawn into confederacy with Korah, partly becauſe they were his next neighbours, both being encamped on the south-side, and therefore could easily communicate counsels, partly in hopes to recover their rights of primogeniture, in which the Priesthood was comprehended, which was given away from their father. d To wit, those 250 mentioned ver. 2. In the Hebrew there is nothing but took, and the Hebrew words are placed and may well be rendred thus, Now Korah——took both Dathan and Abiram, &c. or took Dathan, &c. the particle Vau being here superfluous, as it is Gen. 8. 6. and elsewhere.

2 And they e rose up f before Moses g, with certain *Jude 11. of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty princes *chap. 26. of the assembly, * famous h in the congregation, men of renown.

e (i.e.) Korah, Dathan and Abiram, last mentioned. f (i.e.) Conspired together, and put their seditious design in execution. g Not privily and obscurely, but openly and boldly, not fearing nor regarding the presence of Moses, who was an eye-witness of their conspiracy. h For place and birth.

*Psal.106. 3 And * they i gathered themselves together against Moses, and against Aaron k, and said unto them, † Ye Ex.19.24 take too much upon you l, seeing all the congregation are holy m, every one of them, and the LORD is among them n: wherefore then lift ye up your selves o above the congregation of the LORD?

i (i.e.) Hebor, Korah and the 250 Princes, which may seem probable by comparing this with ver. 12, 25, 27. where we find Dathan and Abiram in another place, even in their tents, whither it is likely they were gone by consent to form and strengthen their party there, while Korah and the rest went to Moses. Or, Korah, Dathan and Abiram, and the rest, who were all together, who Moses spake those words, ver. 5, 6, 7. but after that, Dathan and Abiram retired to their tents, and then Moses sent for Korah and the Levites, who had more special and more colourable pretences to the Priesthood, and treats with them apart, and speaks what is mentioned, ver. 8, 9, 10, 11. and then having dispatched them, he sends for Dathan and Abiram, ver. 12. that he might reason the case with them alſo apart. k Against Aaron, to whom the Priesthood was confined, and against Moses, both because this was done by his order, and because before Aarons consecration Moses appropriated it to himself. For whatever they intended, they seem not now directly to strike at Moses for his supreme civil government, but only for his interest and influence in the disposal of the Priesthood, as may appear by the whole context, and particularly by ver. 5, 10, 15, &c. l By perpetuating the Priesthood in your selves and family, with the exclusion of all others from it. m A kingdom of Priests, an holy nation, as they are called, Exod. 19. 6. a people separated to the service of God, and therefore no less fit to present themselves before God, and to offer sacrifice and incense for themselves, than you are. n By his Tabernacle and cloud, the tokens of his special and gracious presence, and therefore ready to receive all their sacrifices and services from their own hands. o Thou Moses, by prescribing what Laws thou pleaſest about the Priesthood, and confining it to thy brother; and thou Aaron by usurping it as thy peculiar privilege.

p Humbly begging that God would direct him and defend and vindicate him from this false and odious imputation. See Numb. 14. 5. Accordingly God answers his prayers, and inspires him with this following answer to Korah, and strengthens him with new courage, and confidence of good success.

5 And he spake unto Korah, and unto all his company, saying, Even to morrow q the LORD will shew who are his, and who is holy, and will cause him r to come near unto him s: even him whom he hath chosen, will he cause to come near unto him t.

q Heb. In the morning, the time appointed by men for administring justice, Psal. 101. 8. Jer. 21. 12. and chosen by God for that work, Psal. 73. 14. Ps. 47. 11. Zeph. 3. 5. Some time is allowed, partly that Korah and his company might prepare themselves and their censers; and partly to give them space for consideration and repentance. r Or, and whom he will cause. s (i.e.) He will by some evident and miraculous token declare his approbation of him and his ministery.

6 This do; take ye censers u Korah, and all his company:

u Since ye will be Priests, take your censers, and act as Priests, at your peril.

7 And put fire therein, and put incense in them before the LORD to morrow: and it shall be that the man whom the LORD doth choose x, he shall be holy: ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi.

x (i.e.) Declare his choice and appointment of them for that work.

8 And Moses said unto Korah, Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi.

y Consider what I say before it be too late, and repent of your great wickedneſs.

9 Seemeth it but a ſmall thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself z, to do the service of the tabernacle of the LORD, and to stand before the congregation, to minister unto them a?

z Nearer than the other Tribes, though not ſo near as the Priests. a (i.e.) In their ſtead and for their good. So they were the ſervants both of God and of the Church, which was an high dignity, though not ſufficient for their ambitious minds.

10 And he hath brought thee near to him, and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with thee: and seek ye the priesthood alſo b?

b There being at this time but very few Priests, and the profits and priviledges belonging to them being many and great, they thought it but fit and reaſonable that they, or ſome of the chief of them, ſhould be admitted to a ſhare in their work and advantages.

11 For which cauſe both thou and all thy company are gathered together against the LORD c: and what is Aaron that ye murmur against him?

c Whoſe miniſter and choſen ſervant Aaron is. You ſtrike at God through Aaron's ſides. Compare 1 Sam. 8. 7. Luk. 10. 16. Joh. 15. 20.

12 And Moses ſent to call Dathan and Abiram d the sons of Eliab: which ſaid e, We will not come up f.

d To treat with them and give them, as he had done Korah and his company, a timely admonition. e Unto the meſſengers ſent to them by Moſes. f To Moſes his Tabernacle, whither the people uſed to go up for judgment. Men are ſaid in Scripture-phraſe to go up to places of judgment. See Deut. 25. 7. Ruth 4. 1. Ezra 10. 7, 8. But becauſe they would not now go up, therefore they were given quick into the pit, ver. 33.

13 Is it a ſmall thing that thou haſt brought us up out of a land that floweth with milk and honey g, to kill us in the wilderneſs, except thou make thy ſelf altogether a prince over us?

g (i.e.) Out of Egypt, a place indeed of great plenty, but to them a place of torment and intolerable ſlavery. They invidiouſly and feoffingly uſe the ſame words wherewith God by Moſes commended the land of Canaan.

14 Moreover, thou haſt not brought us into a land that floweth with milk and honey, or given us inheritance of fields and vineyards, wilt thou † put out the eyes of theſe men b? we will not come up.

b (i.e.) Of thoſe who are confederate with us, and of all the people who are of our mind: Wilt thou make them blind, or perſuade them that they are blind, and that they do not ſee what is viſible to all that have eyes, to wit, that thou haſt deceived them, and broken thy faith and promiſe given to them? or wilt thou lead them about like blind men whither thou pleaſeſt, one time towards Canaan, another time towards Egypt again? i We will not obey thy ſurmons, nor own thy authority.

15 And Moſes was very wroth k, and ſaid unto the LORD, * Reſpect not thou their offering l: I * have not taken one aſs m from them, neither have I hurt one of them n.

* Gen. 4. 4, 5. * Acts 22. 33.

k Not ſo much for his own ſake, for he had learnt to bear indignities, Numb. 12. as for Gods ſake, who was highly diſhonoured, blaſphemed and provoked, by theſe ſpeeches and carriages, in which caſe he ought to be angry, as Chriſt was, Mark 3. 5. l (i.e.) Accept not their incenſe which they are now going to offer, but ſhew ſome eminent diſlike of it. He calls it their offering, though it was offered by Korah and his companions, becauſe it was offered in the name and by the conſent of all the conſpiratours, for the deciſion of the preſent controverſie between them and Moſes. m (i.e.) Not any thing of the ſmalleſt value, as an aſs was. See 1 Sam. 12. 3. n I have never injured them, nor uſed my power to defraud or oppreſs them, as I might have done, but, which is here implied, I have done them many good offices, but no hurt: therefore their crime is inexcuſable, becauſe without any cauſe or provocation on my part.

16 And Moſes ſaid unto Korah, Be thou and all thy company before the LORD o, thou, and they, and Aaron, to morrow.

o Not in the Tabernacle, which was not capable of ſo many perſons ſeverally offering Incenſe, but at the door of the Tabernacle, ver. 18. which place is oft ſaid to be before the Lord, as Exod. 29. 42. Levit. 1. 11. &c. where they might now lawfully offer it by Moſes his direction upon this extraordinary occaſion and neceſſity, becauſe this work could not be done in that place, which alone was allowed for the offering up of incenſe, not only for its ſmallneſs, but alſo becauſe none but Prieſts might enter to do this work. Here alſo the people, who were to be inſtructed by this experiment, might ſee the proof and ſucceſs of it.

17 And take every man his cenſer, and put incenſe in them, and bring ye before the LORD every man his cenſer, two hundred and fifty cenſers: thou alſo and Aaron, each of you his cenſer.

18 And they took every man his cenſer p, and put fire in them q, and laid incenſe thereon, and ſtood in the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, with Moſes and Aaron.

p Which they could eaſily make in a ſlight manner, which would ſuffice for the preſent purpoſe. q Taken from the Altar which ſtood in that place, Levit. 1. 3. 5. for Aaron might not uſe other fire, Levit. 10. 1. And it is likely the remembrance of the death of Nadab and Abihu deterr'd them from offering any ſtrange fire.

19 And Korah gathered all the congregation r againſt them, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the glory of the LORD appeared † unto all the congregation.

r That they might be witneſſes of the event, and, upon their ſucceſs, which they doubted not of, might fall upon Moſes and Aaron with popular rage, and deſtroy them. And it ſeems by this that the people were generally incenſed againſt Moſes, and inclined to Korahs ſide. † In the cloud, which then ſhone with greater brightneſs and Majeſty, as a token of Gods approach and preſence. See Exod. 16. 7, 10. Levit. 9. 6, 23. Numb. 20. 6.

20 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, and unto Aaron, ſaying, 21 * Separate your ſelves from among this congregation ‖, that I may conſume them in a moment.

* Gen. 19. 17, 22 Jer. 51. 6. Rev. 18 4.

‖ To wit, Korah, and his 250 men, and the people whom he gathered againſt Moſes and Aaron, v. 19.

22 And they fell upon their faces, and ſaid, O God, the God of the ſpirits t of all fleſh u, ſhall one man x ſin, and wilt thou be wrath with all the congregation?

* chap. 27. 16. Job 12. 10. Eccl. 12. 7. Iſa. 57. 16. Zac. 12. 1. Heb. 12. 9.

t (i.e.) Of ſouls, as the word ſpirit in ſcripture is oft uſed, as Pſal. 31. 5. and 77. 3. Prov. 17. 22. Eccl. 12. 7. Luk. 23. 46. Act. 7. 59. And this is no empty title here, but very emphatical and argumentative, thus, Thou art the maker of ſpirits, Zach. 12. 1. &c. Hebr. 12. 9. ſtroy not thy own workmanſhip, Iſa. 64. 8. O thou who art the preſerver of men, and of their ſpirits: the Lord of ſpirits, Job. 12. 10. who as thou mayſt juſtly deſtroy this people, ſo thou canſt preſerve whom thou pleaſeſt: the father of ſpirits, Hebr. 12. 9. O deal mercifully with thy own children: the ſearcher of ſpirits, thou canſt diſtinguiſh between thoſe who have maliciouſly raiſed this tumult, and thoſe whoſe ignorance and ſimple credulity hath made them a prey to cruſty ſeducers. u (i.e.) Of all mankind: the word fleſh is oft put for men, as Gen. 6. 13. Job 12. 10. Iſa. 40. 5. 6. Ezek. 20. 48. and 21. 4, 5. x To wit, Korah, the ringleader of this ſedition.

24 Speak unto the congregation y, ſaying, Get ye up from about the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram z.

y Whom for your ſakes I will ſpare upon the condition here following. z And on foot, who is mentioned ver. 1. though ſome think he deſiſted and repented, and therefore is not now mentioned.

25 And Moſes roſe up, and went unto Dathan and Abiram a: and the elders of Iſrael b followed him.

a Becauſe they refuſed to come to him, he goes to them, to their coſt. b The 70 rulers, whom he carried with him for the greater ſolemnity of the action, and for his own better vindication, becauſe he lay under ſuch calumnies, and to encourage them in their work, notwithſtanding the obſtinate and intractable nature of the people they were to govern.

26 And he ſpake unto the congregation, ſaying, Depart, I pray you, from the tents of theſe wicked men c, and touch nothing of theirs d, leſt ye be conſumed in all their ſins e.

c Shew your diſlike of them and their wicked ways by a ſpeedy removal of your perſons and tents from about them. d Becauſe they and all that was theirs was under a curſe, and therefore not to be touched. See Deut. 13. 16, 17. e Leſt being guilty of their ſins, you periſh together with them.

27 So they gat up from the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram f on every ſide: and Dathan and Abiram came out, and ſtood in the door of their tents g, and their wives, and their ſons, and their little children.

f Whoſe tents were not far aſunder, being both on the ſouth-ſide of the Tabernacle, as appears from Numb. 2. 10. and 3. 29. g An argument of their fooliſh confidence, pride and impudence, obſtinacy and impenitency, whereby they declared that they neither feared God, nor reverenced man; and made themſelves ripe for the approaching judgment.

28 And Moſes ſaid, Hereby ye ſhall know that the LORD hath ſent me to do all theſe works h, for I have not done them † of mine own mind i.

h To wit, which I have done, and for which I am traduced by theſe and ſuch like wicked men, as the bringing of the people out of Egypt; the conducting of them through, and the keeping of them ſo long in the wilderneſs; the exerciſing of power and authority in ſaving and governing them; giving of Laws to them, as about other things, ſo concerning the Prieſthood, which is the ground of the preſent quarrel; and, that which vexeth them moſt, that when they were upon the borders of Canaan, and ready to enter in, I ſhould cauſe them to go back into this vaſt howling wilderneſs, and fix them there for forty years. i By pretending or uſurping an authority which God gave me not; by feigning words or meſſages from God to eſtabliſh my own inventions, and to comply with my own will or luſt or intereſt, as I am now accuſed to have done. For this phraſe ſee Numb. 24. 13. Ezek. 13. 2.

29 If theſe men die † the common death of all men k, or if they be viſited after the viſitation of all men l, then the LORD hath not ſent me m.

k (i.e.) By a natural death. l (i.e.) By plague, or ſword, or ſome unuſual judgment. m (i.e.) I am content that you take me for an Impoſtour, falſly pretending to be ſent of God. This he might well ſay, becauſe he was inſpired by God to ſay this, and infallibly aſſured by God that this ſhould be done.

30 But if the LORD † make a new thing n, and the earth open her mouth, and ſwallow them up, with all that appertain unto them, and they go down quick † into the pit o, then ye ſhall underſtand that theſe men have provoked the LORD p.

n (i.c.) Do ſuch a work as was never heard before. o (i.e.) Into the grave which God thereby makes. The Hebrew word Schoal ſometimes ſignifies hell, and ſometimes the grave, as Gen. 37. 35. Pſal. 55. 15.. p By making his words and works to be nothing but my devices and artifices.

31 * And it came to paſs as he had made an end of ſpeaking all theſe words, that the ground clave aſunder that was under them:

32 And the earth opened her mouth, and ſwallowed them up, and their houſes, and * all the men that appertained unto Korah q, and all their goods.

q (i.e.) All his family which were there, women, children, and ſervants: but his ſons, who were ſpared, Numb. 26. 11. 58. 1 Chron. 6. 22, 37. were abſent either upon ſome ſervice of the Tabernacle, or upon ſome other occaſion, God ſo ordering it by his providence, either becauſe they diſliked their fathers act, or upon Moſes his interceſſion for them, or for ſome other reaſon. This expreſſion may ſeem to intimate, that Korah himſelf was not here, but that he continued with his 250 men before the Lord, ver. 18. 19 where they were waiting for Gods deciſion of the controverſie, nor is it probable that their chief captain would deſert them, and leave them ſtanding there without an head, eſpecially, when Aaron, his great adverſary, abode there ſtill, and did not go with Moſes to Dathan, &c. ver. 25. And Korah may ſeem to have been conſumed with thoſe 250. ver. 35. though he be not mentioned there, but is eaſily underſtood by comparing that verſe with ver. 16, 17, 18. and from the nature of the thing it ſelf, there being no cauſe of doubt but that deſtruction which befel the acceſſaries did much more involve the principal. And ſo much is intimated, ver. 40. that no ſtranger come near to offer incenſe before the Lord, that he be not as Korah, and as his company, i.e. deſtroyed, as they were, by fire from the Lord. And when the Pſalmiſt relates this hiſtory, Pſal. 106. the earths ſwallowing them up is confined to Dathan and Abiram, ver. 17. and for all the reſt of that conſpiracy, it is added, ver. 18. And a fire was kindled in their company, the flame burnt up the wicked. As for Num. 26. 10. which ſeems to oppoſe this opinion, we ſhall ſee more on that place, if God permit.

33 They and all that appertained to them, went down alive into † the pit r, and the earth cloſed upon them; and

and they periſhed from among the congregation.

r (i.e.) Into the earth, which firſt opened it ſelf to receive them, and then ſhut it ſelf to deſtroy them and tranſmit them to further puniſhment.

34 And all Iſrael that were round about them, fled at the cry of them: for they ſaid, Leſt the earth ſwallow us alſo.

35 And there came out a fire from the LORD s, and conſumed the two hundred and fifty men that offered incenſe.

s (i.e.) From the cloud, wherein the glory of the Lord appeared, ver. 19. to give ſentence in this cauſe.

36 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

37 Speak unto Eleazar t the ſon of Aaron the prieſt, that he take up the cenſers out of the burning u, and ſcatter thou the fire x yonder y, for they are hallowed z.

t Rather than to Aaron, partly becauſe the troubleſome part of the work was more proper for him, and partly leſt Aaron ſhould be polluted by going amongſt thoſe dead carcaſſes; for it is probable this fire conſumed them, as lightning ſometimes doth others, by taking away their lives, and leaving their bodies dead upon the place. u (i.e.) From among the dead bodies of thoſe men who were burnt. Burning put for thoſe who are burnt, as captivity for the captives, Numb. 21. 1. and poverty for the poor, 2 King. 24. 14. x (i.e.) The cinders or aſhes which are left in or near their cenſers. y (i.e.) Far from the altar and ſanctuary, into an unclean place, where the aſhes were wont to be caſt: by which God ſhews his rejection of their ſervices. z Either 1. by Gods appointment, becauſe they were preſented before the Lord by his expreſs order, ver. 16, 17. Or 2. by Gods juſt judgment, becauſe they, together with the perſons that uſed them, were accurſed and devoted by God, and therefore were the Lords, and not to be employed in any profane or common uſe, as appears from Lev. 27. 28. But the firſt reaſon is the chief, and is rendred by God himſelf, ver. 38.

38 The cenſers of theſe ſinners againſt their own ſouls a, let them make them broad plates for a covering of the Altar b: for they offered them before the LORD, therefore they are hallowed, and they ſhall be a ſign c unto the children of Iſrael.

a (i.e.) Their own lives: who were the authors of their own death and deſtruction. Compare 1 King. 2. 23. Prov. 20. 2. This he faith for the vindication of Gods juſtice and his own miniſtry in this ſevere diſpenſation. b To wit, of burnt-offerings, which was made of wood, but covered with braſs before this time, Exod. 27. 1, 2. to which this other covering was added for further ornament and ſecurity againſt the fire, which was continually burning upon it. c A monument or warning to all ſtrangers to take heed of invading the Prieſthood, as it follows, ver. 40.

39 And Eleazar the prieſt took the brazen cenſers, wherewith they that were burnt had offered, and they were made broad plates for a covering of the altar:

40 To be a memorial unto the children of Iſrael, that no ſtranger, which is not of the ſeed of Aaron, come near to offer incenſe before the LORD, that he be not as Korah, and as his company d: as the LORD ſaid to him e by the hand of Moſes.

d (i.e.) That he do not imitate them in their ſin, and therefore bring upon himſelf the ſame plague. e (i.e.) To Eleazar. Theſe words belong to ver. 38. the meaning is, that Eleazar did him as God bad him.

41 But on the morrow f all the congregation of the children of Iſrael murmured againſt Moſes and againſt Aaron, ſaying, ye have killed g the people of the LORD h.

f Prodigious wickedneſs and madneſs ſo ſoon to forget ſuch a terrible inſtance of divine vengeance. g You, who ſhould have preſerved them, and interceded for them, have pulled down Gods wrath upon them, for the maintenance of your own authority and intereſt. h So they call thoſe wicked wretches, and rebels againſt God: which ſhews the power of paſſion and prejudice to corrupt mens judgment.

42 And it came to paſs, when the congregation was gathered againſt Moſes, and againſt Aaron, that they i looked toward the tabernacle of the congregation, and, behold, the cloud covered it, and the glory of the LORD appeared.

i (i.e.) Moſes and Aaron, who in all their diſtreſſes made God their refuge.

43 And Moſes and Aaron came before the tabernacle of the congregation k.

k to hear what God, who now appeared, would ſay to him.

44 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

45 Get ye up from among this congregation, that I may conſume them as in a moment: and they fell upon their faces l.

l To beg pardon and mercy for the people, as they oft did; thus rendring good to them for evil, which the people requited with evil for their kindneſs.

46 And Moſes ſaid unto Aaron, Take a cenſer, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incenſe m, and go quickly unto the congregation n, and make an atonement for them: for there is wrath gone out from the LORD; the plague is begun o.

m Which was a ſign of interceſſion, Pſal. 141. 2. and was to be accompanied with it, Luk. 1. 9, 10. n With the incenſe, to ſtir up the people to repentance and prayer to prevent their utter ruine. This he might do upon this extraordinary occaſion, having Gods command for his warrant, though ordinarily incenſe was to be offered only in the Tabernacle. o In cutting off the people by a ſudden and miraculous ſtroke.

47 And Aaron took as Moſes commanded, and ran into the midſt of the congregation p: and behold, the plague was begun amongſt the people: and he put on incenſe, and made an atonement for the people.

p Hazarding his own life to obey God and to do this wicked people good.

48 And he ſtood between the dead and the living q, and the plague was ſtayed.

q Whereby it may ſeem that this plague, like that fire, Numb. 11. 1. began in the uttermoſt parts of the congregation, and ſo proceeded deſtroying one after another in an orderly manner, which gave Aaron occaſion and direction ſo to place himſelf, as a Mediatour to God on their behalf.

49 Now they that died in the plague, were fourteen thouſand and ſeven hundred, beſide them that died about the matter of Korah.

50 And Aaron returned unto Moſes unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the plague was ſtayed.

CHAP. XVII.

God confirming Aarons calling by the budding and bloſſoming of his rod, 1—9. Commanderh it to be laid up for a Memorial, and I reſerves to Rebels, 10. The People being terrified thereby, ſeek to Moſes for ſuccour, 11——15.

1 AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael a, and take of every one of them b a rod c, according to the houſe of their fathers d, of all their princes according to the houſe of their fathers, twelve rods: write thou every mans e name upon his rod.

a That I may fully and finally ſatisfie all their ſcruples, and take away all pretence and cauſe of murmuring. b Not of every perſon, but of every Tribe, as it follows. c Either an ordinary walking ſtaff: or rather, that ſtaff or rod, which the Princes carried in their hands as tokens of their dignity and authority; as may be gathered from Numb. 21. 18. compared with Pſal. 110. 2. Jer. 48. 16, 17. d (i.e.) According to each family proceeding from the Patriarch or Father of that Tribe. e (i.e.) Every Princes: for they being the firſt-born, and the chief of their Tribes might above all others pretend to the Prieſthood, if it was communicable to any of their tribes, and beſides each Prince repreſented and aſſiſted for all his Tribe: ſo that this was a full decition of the whole queſtion. And this place ſeems to confirm, what was before obſerved, that not only Korah and the Levites, but alſo thoſe of other Tribes conteſted with Moſes and Aaron about the Prieſthood, as that which belonged to all the congregation, they being all holy, as they ſaid, Numb. 16. 3.

3 And thou ſhalt write Aarons name f upon the rod of Levi; for one rod ſhall be for the head of the houſe of their fathers g.

f Rather than Levi's name, for that would have left the controverſie undecided between Aaron and the other Levites, whereas this would juſtifie the appropriation of the Prieſthood to Aarons family. g (i.e.) There ſhall be in this, as there is in all the other Tribes, only one rod, and that for the head of their Tribe, who is Aaron in this Tribe: whereas it might have been expected that there ſhould have been two rods, one for Aaron, and another for his Competitours of the ſame Tribe. But Aarons name was ſufficient to determine both the Tribe, and that branch or family of the Tribe, to whom this dignity ſhould be affixed.

4 And thou ſhalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation, before the teſtimony h, * where I will meet with you i.

h (i.e.) Before the Ark of the teſtimony, either mediately, cloſe by the vail behind which the Ark ſtood: or rather immediately, within the vail in the moſt holy place, cloſe by the Ark, as may be gathered by comparing this place with ver. 10. and with Heb. 9. 4. i And manifeſt my mind to you for the ending of this diſpute.

5 And it ſhall come to paſs, that the mans rod whom I ſhall chooſe, ſhall bloſſom: and I will make to ceaſe from me the murmurings of the children of Iſrael, whereby they murmur againſt you.

6 And Moſes ſpake unto the children of Iſrael, and every one of their princes gave him † a rod a piece, for † Heb. each prince one, according to their fathers houſes, even twelve rods: and the rod of Aaron was among their rods h.

h (i.e.) Was laid up with the reſt, being either one of the twelve, as the Hebrews affirm, or the thirteenth, as others think.

7 And Moſes laid up the rods before the LORD in the tabernacle of witneſs.

8 And it came to paſs, that on the morrow Moſes went into the tabernacle of witneſs i, and behold, the rod of Aaron for the houſe of Levi was budded, and brought forth buds, and bloomed bloſſom, and yeilded almonds m.

i Into the moſt holy place, which he might ſafely do under the protection of Gods command, though otherwiſe none but the High-priest might enter there, and that once in a year. m This being, as Aaron with great probability affirms, a staff of an almond tree, as the rest also were.

9 And Moses brought out all the rods from before the LORD, unto all the children of Israel: and they looked, and took every man his rod.

10 And the LORD said unto Moses, * Bring Aarons rod again before the testimony, to be kept for a token †Heb. children of rebellion. against the † rebels, and thou shalt quite take away their murmurings from me, that they die not n.

n For if after all these warnings and prohibitions, backt with such miracles and judgments, they shall usurp the Priesthood, they shall assuredly die for it.

11 And Moses did so: as the LORD commanded him, so did he.

12 And the children of Israel spake unto Moses saying, Behold, we die, we perish, we all perish o.

o Words of consternation arising partly from the remembrance of these severe and repeated judgments, partly from the threatning of death upon any succeading murmurings, partly from the sense of their own guilt and weakness, which made them fear lest they should relapse into the same miscarriages, and thereby bring the vengeance of God upon themselves.

13 Whosoever cometh any thing near p unto the tabernacle of the LORD, shall die: shall we be consumed with dying q?

p (i. e.) Nearer than he should do; an errour which we may easily commit. q Will God proceed with us in these severe courses, according to his strict justice? will he thew us no mercy nor pity, till all the people be cut off and destroyed with dying one after another?

CHAP. XVIII.

God shewing to Aaron, his sons and the Levites, their Office, 1——7. Appointeth to Aaron and his sons their maintenance, 8——20. And also to the Levites, 21——24. He commandeth them by Moses, to give Tenths of their Tenths to the chief Priests, 25——32.

1 AND the LORD said unto Aaron, Thou, and thy sons, and thy fathers house with thee, shall bear * the iniquity of the sanctuary a: and thou and thy sons with thee, shall bear the iniquity of your priesthood b.

a (i. e.) Shall suffer the punishment of all the usurpations, or pollutions of the Sanctuary, or the holy things, by the Levites or any of the people, because you have authority and power from me to keep them all within their bounds, and I expect you use it to that end. Thus the people are in good measure secured against their fears expressed Numb. 17. 12, 13. Also they are informed that Aarons high dignity was attended with great burdens, having not only his own, but the peoples sins to answer for; and therefore they had no such reason to envy him as they might think, if the benefits and encumbrances and dangers were equally considered. b. (i. e.) Of all the errours committed by your selves, or by you permitted in others in things belonging to your Priesthood.

2 And thy brethren also of the tribe of Levi, the tribe of thy father, bring thou with thee, that they may

c About sacrifices and offerings and other things, according to the rules and limits I have prescribed them. The Levites are said to minister to Aaron here, to the Church, Numb. 16. 9. and to God, Deut. 10. 8. They shall not contend with thee for superiority, as they have done, but they shall be subordinate and servants to thee. d Or, both to thee, and to thy sons with thee: Which translation may seem to be favoured by the following words, before the tabernacle, which was the proper place where the Levites ministred, whereas the Priests did minister to God both before and in the Tabernacle. Besides, both the foregoing words, and the two following verses, do entirely speak of the ministry of the Levites, and the ministry of the Priests is distinctly spoken of, ver. 5.

e (i. e.) That which thou shalt command them and commit unto them. f (i. e.) Of the boards and hangings and utensils of the Tabernacle, to take them down and carry them, and set them up again. g Which therefore were to be covered by the Priests before the Levites might meddle with them. h They for presuming to touch them, and you for your negligence in not covering them well, or not looking to them.

4 And they shall be joyned unto thee, and keep the charge of the tabernacle of the congregation, for all the service of the tabernacle: and a stranger shall not come nigh unto you.

5 And ye shall keep the charge of the sanctuary i, and the charge of the altar, that there be no wrath any more upon the children of Israel k.

i (i. e.) Of the holy, and of the most holy, place. k For coming too near the holy place, or for usurping any part of your sacred function, or for any other miscarriage which they may be guilty of through your carelesness or remisness, in which case they shall perish for their errour, but their blood will I require at your hands, who should have advised them better, or over-ruled them.

6 And I, behold, I have * taken your brethren the Levites from among the children of Israel: to * you they are given as a gift for the LORD l, to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

l (i. e.) For the service of the Lord, to assist you therein, in the servile and troublesome parts of it.

7 Therefore thou and thy sons with thee shall keep your priests office for every thing of the altar m, and within the vail n, and ye shall serve: I have given your priests office unto you, as a service of gift o: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

m To wit, of burnt-offering, as appears from the following words. n This phrase of service here signifies the inward or second vail, but here it signifies either the outward vail only, or rather both the vails, the singular number being put for the plural, as when the altar is put for both the altars, as hath been noted; and so this phrase comprehends both the holy and the most holy Place. o As a gift which I have freely conferred upon you, and upon you alone; and therefore let no man henceforth dare either to charge you with arrogance and usurpation in appropriating this to your selves, or to invade your office.

8 And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Behold, I also have given thee the charge of mine heave-offerings, of all the hallowed things of the children of Israel, unto thee have I given them p by reason of the anointing q, and to thy sons by an ordinance for ever.

p Not only the charge of them, but the use of them for thy self and family, in such manner as I have elsewhere expressed. q To wit, to the Priestly office, i. e. because thou art Priest, and art to devote thy self wholly to my service: which that thou must perform more diligently and cheerfully, I give thee this recompense.

9 This shall be thine of the most holy things r reserved from the fire s: every oblation t of theirs, every * meat-offering of theirs, and every * sin-offering of theirs, and every * trespass-offering of theirs, which they shall render unto me u, shall be most holy for thee, and for thy sons x.

How these differ from the holy things, see on Levit. 6. 17. s (i. e.) Such Sacrifices or such parts of Sacrifices as were not burnt in the fire. t Which may be understood either 1. of the wave-loaves, Levit. 23. 17. and the shew-bread, which were most holy things, Levit. 24. 9. and which did belong to the Priest; nor was there any other such oblation, besides what is here particularly expressed: for the peace-offerings were not most holy, and the burnt-offerings were not the Priests. Or, 2. of oblations in general; and so the following particulars are mentioned by way of explication and restriction of that general word, to shew what oblations are here meant, and to exclude peace-offerings and burnt-offerings. u By way of compensation for a trespass committed against me, in which case a ram was to be offered, Lev. 6. 2. 6. which was a most holy thing, and may be particularly designed here. x That shall esteem it as a most holy thing, and shall use it accordingly, in manner following. Or, these are most holy, and therefore shall be for thee and for thy sons, to wit, exclusively, none else may eat them.

10 In the most holy place y shalt thou eat it; every male z shall eat it: it shall be holy unto thee.

y To wit, in the court of the Priests, where there were places for this use. See Lev. 6. 16, 17, 26. and 7. 6. and 8. 31, and 14. 13. Mat. 12. 5, 9. Luke. 6. 4. which is called the most holy place, not simply and absolutely, as the place within the vail was, but in respect of the thing he speaks of, because this was the most holy of all the places appointed for eating of holy things, whereof some might be eaten in any clean place in the camp, Lev. 10. 14. or in their own houses. And as the most holy place is sometimes called simply Holy, so it is not strange if an holy place be called most holy, especially this place which was near to the altar of burnt-offerings, which is called most holy, and made all that touched it holy, Exod. 29. 37. And God would have these things eaten by them in an holy place, as in Gods presence, that they might be obliged to the greater caution, and not to abuse God's good creatures, and especially holy things, to intemperance, and that they might learn to eat this and their other food with thankfulness to God the giver of it, and with respect to his service and glory, which was afterward prescribed to Christians, 1 Cor. 10. 31. 1 Tim. 4. 2. z And they only; whereas of peace-offerings the females might eat their share, Deut. 12. 18.

11 And this is thine: the heave-offering a of their gift b, with all the wave-offerings c of the children of Israel: I have given them unto * thee, and to thy sons, and to thy daughters with thee d, by a statute for ever: * every one that is clean in thy house e shall eat of it.

a (i. e.) The right-shoulder, which was the Priests. b To wit, of their peace-offerings, as may appear because here is an enumeration of all that belonged to the Priest in the several oblations, and therefore it is not likely that he would omit the peace-offerings, wherein the Priest had a share, and the very share here spoken of and called an heave-offering, which was the right shoulder, Lev. 7. 32. which also might be eaten by the daughters, Lev. 7. 34. and 10. 14. as is here said. See Numb. 6. 17. &c. c To wit, the breasts of the peace offerings, which were waved, Lev. 7. 30, 31, 34. d (i. e.) Who are with thee in thy house; for if they were married to strangers, they might not eat of them, Lev. 22. 12, 13. d To wit, as lived members of thy house, though they be bond-slaves: for strangers and hired servants were excepted, Lev. 22. 10, 11.

12 * All the † best f of the oil, and all the best of the wine, and of the wheat, the first fruits of them g which they shall offer unto the LORD, them have I given thee.

Deut. 10. 9. and 12. part x, and thine inheritance among the children of Israel. Josh. 13. 33. Deut. 18. 4.

†Heb. the fat for the best: the fat of wheat is the best of it, Deut. 32. 14. Psal. 81. 16. and 147. 14. g As well those which were offered offered in the name and behalf of the body of the people at the solemn feasts, Lev. 23. 10. 17. as those which were required of particular persons, Exod. 22. 29. and 23. 19. whereof the precise quantity is not determined, but left free to the giver, as an exercise for his piety and charity, only they are enjoyned to give the first and the best of them.

Exod. 22. 29. and 23. 19. 13 And whatsoever is first ripe h in the land, * which they shall bring unto the LORD, shall be thine: every one that is clean i in thine house shall eat of it.

Lev. 2. ch. 15. Deut. 26. 2.

h (i. e.) Not only the first-fruits of the oil and wine, and wheat now mentioned, but all other first-fruits of all other grains, and all fruit-trees, &c. i And none else, because these were first offered to God, and by consequent given to the Priests; but for those which were directly and immediately given to the Priests, the clean and unclean might eat of them.

Lev. 27. 14 * Every thing devoted k in Israel, shall be thine.

k Dedicated to God by vow or otherwise, provided it be such a thing as might be eaten or consumed by use: for the vessels or treasures of gold and silver which were devoted or dedicated by Joshua, David, or others, were not the Priests, but were appropriated to the uses of the Temple.

Exod. 13. 2. and 22. Lev. 27. 26. ch. 3. 13. Ezek. 44. 30

15 Every thing that openeth * the matrix in all flesh, which they bring unto the LORD, whether it be of men l or beasts, shall be thine: nevertheless, the * first-born of man shalt thou surely redeem, and the firstling of unclean beasts shalt thou redeem.

l Which were offered to God in his Temple, Exod. 13. 12. Luk. 2. 22. and to his service and disposal.

16 And those that are to be redeemed m, from a month old shalt thou redeem, according to thine estimation n, for the money of five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary. * which is twenty gerahs.

Lev. 27. 25 Ezek. 45. 12.

m To wit, of men only, not of unclean beasts last mentioned. Num. 3. 47. as is manifest from the time and price of redemption here mentioned, both which appear to men; the time, Numb. 18. 16. the price, Numb. 3. 46, 47. but neither agree to unclean beasts, which were to be redeemed with a sheep, Exod. 13. 13. and that after it was 8 days old. n This belongs, either 1. to the foregoing clause, to this purpose, that whereas women newly delivered of a child continued in their uncleanness either a longer or shorter time, according to the quality of the birth, as it was male or female, Lev. 12. 4, 5. and the temper of the mother, the Priest was to take that time when he judged the mother to be clean, that so the mother might be purified, and the child redeemed at the same time. Or rather 2. to the following clause, to wit, the price which was to be paid, as appears by comparing this place with Lev. 27. 2, 3. And both there and here it is said to be done according to the Priests estimation, though a certain rule be added to guide his estimation, and a certain price set, because the Priest was to apply that general rule to each person, and to put that price upon him.

Num. 18. 17. Deut. 15. 19.

17 But the firstling of a cow, or the firstling of a sheep, or the firstling of a goat, thou shalt not redeem, they are holy o: thou shalt sprinkle their blood upon the altar; and shalt burn their fat for an offering made by fire, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

o To wit, in a peculiar manner, and higher degree than other beasts, consecrated to an holy use, even to be sacrificed unto God, and not to be redeemed, nor alienated to any other use. Compare Deut. 15. 19.

Exod. 29. 26, 28.

18 And the flesh p of them shall be thine: as * the wave-breast, and as the right shoulder are thine.

p All the flesh of them, and not only some parts, as in other sacrifices.

19 All the heave-offerings of the holy things, which the children of Israel offer unto the LORD, have I given thee, and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: it is a covenant of salt q for ever, before the LORD, unto thee, and to thy seed with thee.

Lev. 2. 13. Num. 18. 19. 2 Chron. 13. 5.

q (i. e.) A durable and perpetual covenant; so called here and 2 Chron. 13. 5. either, because salt is a sign of incorruption, as being of singular use to preserve things from corruption: or, because it is confirmed and ratified on their part by salt, which is therefore called the salt of the covenant, for which the Priests were obliged to take care, that it should never be lacking from any meat-offering, Lev. 2. 13. And this promise or priviledge conferred upon the Priests is called a covenant because it is given them conditionally, upon condition of their service, and care about the worship of God, and sacrifices, which were commonly accompanied with meat-offerings, and therefore with salt.

Deut. 10. 9. and 12. 12. and 18. Josh. 13. 33.

20 And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Thou shalt have no inheritance in their land r, neither shalt thou have any part among them: * I am thy part x, and thine inheritance among the children of Israel.

r (i. e.) In the land of the children of Israel, mentioned ver. 23. You shall not have a distinct and separate portion of land, because God would have them wholly devoted to and employed in his service, and therefore free from worldly encumbrances and businesses; partly, because God had abundantly provided for them otherwise by tithes and first-fruits and oblations of all sorts; partly because God would have their worldly comfort and happiness depend singly upon him and his service, and so would oblige them to use more zeal and diligence in the advancement of piety, even for their own interest, which was either better or worse as true religion flourished or decayed. See Psal. 17. 9, 10. and 19. 18. 2 Chron. 13. 9. and 20. 22. and 31. 4. partly that this might be a firm bond of heirty love and affection between the people and their teachers the Levites, who as they performed religious services for the people, so they received their subsistence from them; and partly that by this means being dispersed among the several tribes, they might have the better opportunity for teaching and watching over the people, which was their duty, Deut. 33. 10. 2 Chron. 30, 22. Mal. 2. 4, 5, 6, 7. s (i. e.) I have appointed them a liberal maintenance out of my oblations.

Lev. 27. 30.

21 And behold, * I have given the children of Levi all the tenth t in Israel, for an inheritance, for their service which they serve, even the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

t For the tithes were all given to the Levites, and out of their tithes the tenth was given to the Priests, here v. 26, &c. and Neh. 10. 37, 38.

22 Neither must the children of Israel henceforth come nigh the tabernacle of the congregation u, lest they bear † sin. † and die.

u (i. e.) So nigh as to do any act proper to the Priest or Levites.

23 But the Levites shall do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they shall bear their iniquity x: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, that among the children of Israel they have no inheritance.

x (i. e.) The punishment due not only for their own, but also for the peoples miscarriage, if it be committed through their connivance or negligence. And this was the reason why the Priests withstood King Uzziah, when he would have burnt incense to the Lord, 2 Chron. 26. 17, 18.

24 But the tithes of the children of Israel, which they offer as an heave offering unto the LORD y, I have given to the Levites to inherit: therefore I have said unto them, Among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance.

y (i. e.) As a rent-charge or an acknowledgment that they have and hold all their lands and the fruits of it from Gods bounty. Note that the word heave-offering, which is for the most part understood of a particular kind of offerings heaved or lifted up to the Lord, is here used for any offering in general, as before, v. 8.

25 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Thus speak unto the Levites, and say unto them, When ye take of the children of Israel the tithes, which I have given you from them for your inheritance, then ye shall offer up an heave-offering of it for the LORD, even a tenth part of the tithe.

27 And this your heave-offering shall be reckoned unto you, as though it were the corn of the threshing floor z, and as the fulnes of the wine-press.

z It shall be accepted of you as much as if you offered it out of your own lands and labours.

28 Thus ye also shall offer an heave-offering unto the LORD of all your tithes which ye receive of the children of Israel, and ye shall give thereof the LORDS heave-offering to Aaron the priest a.

a And to his children, which were one with him, and were all to have their share herein.

29 Out of all your gifts b ye shall offer c every heave-offering d of the LORD, of all the † best thereof, even the hallowed part thereof e out of it.

b Not only out of your tithes, but out of the other gifts which you receive from the people, and out of those fields which shall belong to your cities. c To wit, to the Priest. d (i. e.) As many gifts so many heave-offerings; you shall reserve a part out of each of them for the Priest. e This may describe either 1. the nature and proportion of this offering, and so peradventure he means the tenth part, which was the part or proportion that God hallowed or sanctified to himself as his proper portion, both here and elsewhere: or 2. the reason or ground of this offering, because it is a thing hallowed or appropriated by God to himself, and given by him to the Priest, and because the payment of this due doth hallow all the rest, so as they may use it with comfort and good conscience, as it follows, v. 31, 32.

30 Therefore thou shalt say unto them, When ye have heaved the best thereof from it, then it shall be counted unto the Levites, as the increase of the threshing floor, and as the increase of the wine-press.

31 And ye shall eat it in every place f, ye and your houlhouls: for * it is your reward for your service in the tabernacle of the congregation.

f (i. e.) In every clean place, and not in the holy place only.

32 And ye shall bear no sin by reason of it, when ye have heaved from it the best of it g: * neither shall ye pollute the holy things of the children of Israel h, lest ye die.

* Lev. 22. 15, 16.

g Implying, that if they neglected this dury, they sinned in the use of such unhallowed food. h As you will do, if you abuse their holy offerings, by referving that intirely to your selves which they offer to God to be disposed as he hath appointed, to wit, part to you, and part to the Priests.

CHAP. XIX.

The manner of making the water of Separation, and of what, 1—10. The use of it, wherewith the Unclean are to be purified, 11—13. Laws concerning defilers of Cleanſing, 14—22.

1 AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, and unto Aaron, ſaying,

2 This is the ordinance of the law a which the LORD hath commanded, ſaying, Speak unto the children of Iſrael, that they bring thee b a red c heifer without ſpot, wherein is no blemiſh d, and upon which never came yoke e.

a Or, The conſtitution of the law, i. e. that which God hath ordained or eſtabliſhed by Law. b Attheir common charge, becauſe it was for the common good. c A fit colour to ſhadow forth both the bloody nature and compleXion of ſin, Iſa. 1. 18. and the humane nature, and eſpecially the Blood of Chriſt, from which this water and all other Rites had their purifying vertue. d A fit Type of Chriſt, who was ſuch, Heb. 7. 26. 1 Pet. 1. 19. e Whereby may be ſignified, either that Chriſt in himſelf was free from all the yoke or obligation of Gods Command, till for our ſakes he took up our yoke, and put himſelf under the Law; or that Chriſt was not drawn or forced to undertake our burden and croſs, but that he did voluntarily chuſe it. See John 10. 17, 18.

3 And ye ſhall give her unto Eleazar the prieſt f, that he may bring her * forth without the camp g, and one b ſhall ſlay her before his face. Heb. 13.

f Who was the ſecond Prieſt, and, in ſome caſes, the vicegerent or Deputy of the High prieſt. To him, not to Aaron, becauſe this ſervice made him unclean for a ſeaſon, v. 7. and conſequently unfit for Holy Miniſtrations, whereas the High-prieſt was, as far as poſſibly he could, to be preſerved from all ſorts of defilement, and conſtantly fit for his high and holy work. g Partly becauſe it was reputed an unclean and accurſed thing, being ceremoniouſly laden with the ſins of all the people; and partly to ſignifie that Chriſt ſhould ſuffer without the Camp, as he did, Heb. 13. 12. in the place where male-factors ſuffered, Lev. 24. 14. b A Perſon appointed by Eleazar for this work.

i Or, Towards or over againſt the Tabernacle, either 1. Near to it, and ſo we muſt ſuppoſe that he took ſome of the blood in a baſin, and carried it from without the camp to the Tabernacle, and then returned to this place again: Which might be done, though it be not here expreſſed. And this ſeems to agree beſt with other places, where this ſprinkling ſeven times was performed in or near the Tabernacle, as Lev. 4. 17. Or 2. Standing at a good diſtance from it, even without the camp, yet turning and looking towards it. For here is no intimation that he went into the camp before this work was done, but rather the contrary is implied, v. 7. And becauſe being defiled by this work he could not come near to the Tabernacle, it was ſufficient for him to turn and look towards it. Either way this poſture ſignified his prefenting of this blood before the Lord by way of atonement and ſatisfaction for his and the peoples ſins, and his expectation of acceptance and pardon only from God, and from his mercy ſeat in the Tabernacle.

5 And one ſhall burn the heifer k in his ſight: * her ſkin, and her fleſh, and her blood l, with her dung, ſhall he burn. Ex. 29. 14. Lev. 4. 11. Heb. 13. 12.

k To ſignifie the ſharp and grievous ſufferings of Chriſt for our ſins. l All of it, but what was ſpent in ſprinkling.

6 And the prieſt ſhall take cedar-wood, and hyſſop, and ſcarlet m, and caſt it into the midſt of the burning of the heifer.

m All which are here burnt, and as it were offered to God, that they might be ſanctified to this holy uſe for the future; for of theſe kinds of things was the ſprinkle made wherewith the unclean were ſprinkled, Lev. 14. 4.

7 Then the prieſt ſhall waſh his clothes, and he ſhall bathe his fleſh in water, and afterward he ſhall come into the camp, and the prieſt ſhall be unclean until the even n.

n Partly to teach us the imperfection of the Levitical Prieſthood, in which the Prieſt himſelf was defiled by ſome parts of his work; and the abſolute neceſſity of a better and holier Prieſthood; and partly to ſhew that Chriſt himſelf, though he had no ſin of his own, yet was reputed by men, and judged by God, as an unclean and ſinful perſon, by reaſon of our ſins which were laid upon him, Iſa. 53. 12. 2 Cor. 5. 21.

8 And he that burneth her, ſhall waſh his clothes in water, and bathe his fleſh in water, and ſhall be unclean until the even.

9 And a man that is clean, ſhall gather up * the aſhes of the heifer, and lay them up without the camp in a clean place, and it ſhall be kept for the congregation of the children of Iſrael o for a water p of ſeparation q: it r is a purification for ſin s. Heb. 9. 13.

o (i. e.) For their uſe, and therefore in a fit place or places, whence any of them might eaſily procure it. p Or, To the water, i. e. to be put to the water, or mixed with it. q i. e. Appointed for the cleanſing of them that are in a ſtate of Separation, who for their uncleanneſs are ſeparated from the Congregation. r Either the Heifer thus managed, or the Water thus made and ſprinkled.

s Heb. a ſin, i. e. a kind of an offering for ſin, or rather a mean for the expiation or cleanſing of ſin. The name of ſin is ſometimes given to the puniſhment of ſin, and ſometimes to the ſacrifice or offering for ſin.

10 And he that gathereth the aſhes of the Heifer, ſhall waſh his clothes, and be unclean until the even: and it ſhall be unto the children of Iſrael, and unto the ſtranger that ſojourneth among them t for a ſtatute for ever.

t To wit, a Proſelyte, not any ſtranger, as ſome underſtand it. For ſince it is confeſſed all the other ceremonial Laws do not oblige them, and that where the name of ſtranger is put, as here it is, it generally ſpeaks of a Proſelyte, it is more reaſonable to take it for here, than without any reaſon or evidence to make this a particular exception from the general Rule.

11 † He that toucheth the dead body of any † man, ſhall be unclean ſeven days u. Lev. 21. 11. chap. 5. 2.

u Whereas the touch of a dead beaſt made a man unclean only till even, Levit. 11. 24. Lev. 11. 24. chap. 5. 2.

12 * He ſhall purifie himſelf with it x on the third day y, and on the ſeventh day he ſhall be clean z: but if he purifie not himſelf the third day, then the ſeventh day he ſhall not be clean a. Heb. 9. 13. chap. 31. 19.

x (i. e.) With the water of ſeparation. y To typifie Chriſt's reſurrection on that day by which we are cleanſed or ſanctified. z To teach us, that our purification in this life is gradual, and not perfect till we come to that eternal Sabbath, which the ſeventh day reſpected. a But was firſt to purifie himſelf, and four days after that to be clean.

13 Whoſoever toucheth b the dead body of any man that is dead, and purifieth not himſelf, defileth the tabernacle of the LORD c, and that ſoul ſhall be cut off from Iſrael: becauſe the water of ſeparation was not ſprinkled upon him: he ſhall be unclean, his uncleanneſs is yet upon him d.

b To wit, if this tranſgreſſion be done preſumptuouſly; for if it was done ignorantly, he was only to offer ſacrifice, Lev. 5. 3, 6, 17. c By approaching to it in his uncleanneſs: for Holy things or places were ceremonially defiled with the touch of any unclean perſon or thing. See Lev. 15. 31. and 16. 16. Hagg. 2. 13. d He continues in his guilt and filth, not now to be waſhed away by this water, but to be puniſhed by cutting off.

14 This is the law, when a man dieth in a tent, all that come into the tent, and all that is in the tent, ſhall be unclean ſeven days.

15 And every * open veſſel e, which hath no covering bound upon it, is unclean. Lev. 11. 32.

e Becauſe it receives the air of the tent, by which it is ceremonially poſtured. Compare Lev. 11. 32, 33.

16 And whoſoever toucheth one that is ſlain with a ſword f in the open fields, or a dead body, or a bone of a man, or a grave, ſhall be unclean ſeven days.

f Or by any other violent way.

17 And for an unclean perſon, they ſhall take of the † aſhes of † the burnt heifer of purification for ſin, and † running water g ſhall be put thereto in a veſſel h. Heb. 9. 13.

g (e. i.) Waters flowing from a ſpring or River, which are the pureſt. Theſe manifeſtly ſignifie Gods Spirit, which is oft compared to water, Joh. 7. 38, 39. and by which alone true purification is obtained. h Where they were to be mixed, and then the water was to be ſtrained out and kept for this uſe.

18 And a clean perſon i ſhall take hyſſop, and dip it in the water, and ſprinkle it upon the tent, and upon all the veſſels k, and upon the perſons that were there, and upon him that touched a bone, or one ſlain, or one dead, or a grave.

i To wit, a Prieſt; for to ſuch the work of cleanſing was appropriated. See Lev. 13. k Even thoſe which were in part purified by the fire. See Numb. 31. 23.

19 And the clean perſon ſhall ſprinkle upon the unclean on the third day, and on the ſeventh day: and on the ſeventh day, he ſhall purifie himſelf, and waſh his clothes, and bathe himſelf in water, and ſhall be clean at even.

20 But the man that ſhall be unclean, and ſhall not purifie himſelf k, that ſoul ſhall be cut off from among the congregation: becauſe he hath defiled the ſanctuary of the LORD, the water of ſeparation hath not been ſprinkled upon him, he is unclean.

k (i. e.) Shall contemptuouſly refuſe to ſubmit to this way of purification.

21 And it ſhall be a perpetual ſtatute unto them that he that ſprinkleth the water of ſeparation ſhall waſh his clothes l: and he that toucheth the water of ſeparation m ſhall be unclean until even.

l Becauſe he is unclean, as it here follows. It is ſtrange, that the ſame water ſhould cleanſe one perſon, and defile another, but God would have it ſo, partly to teach us that it did not cleanſe by any virtue in it ſelf, or in the work done, but only by virtue of Gods appointment: partly to mind the Jews of the imperfection of their Prieſthood, and their ritual purifications and expiations, and conſequently of the neceſſity of a better Prieſt and Sacrifice and way of purifying, which theſe outward Rites did point at: and partly to ſhew that the efficacy of Gods ordinances doth not depend upon the perſon or quality of his Miniſters, becauſe the ſame perſon who was polluted him-ſelf could and did cleanſe others. m Either by ſprinkling of it, or by being ſprinkled with it: for even he that was cleanſed by it, was not fully cleanſed as ſoon as he was ſprinkled, but only at the even of that day, as is ſaid here and above, ver. 19.

n Not he who is ſo only by touching the water of ſeparation, ver. 21. but he who is ſo by the greater ſort of uncleanneſs, which laſted ſeven days, of which ver. 11. 16. and which was not removed without the uſe of this water of purification, as is manifeſt from the context and other places of Scripture, and from the nature of the thing: For the leſſer ſort of uncleanneſs, mentioned in the foregoing verſe, laſted only till even, and was cleanſed by the ſole waſhing of his clothes and fleſh in water ver. 7. without any uſe of this water of purification, which, if it had been neceſſary, muſt have been uſed on the third, and on the ſeventh day, according to the rule, ver. 12, 19. and ſo the uncleanneſs of one day had been made an uncleanneſs of ſeven days, which is a contradiction. Beſides it is unreaſonable, that he who immediately touched the defiling thing ſhould be no more and longer unclean, than he who touched that perſon onely; and it is contrary to other rules in like caſes, as Levit. 15. where the Man or Woman having an iſſue are thereby made unclean for ſeven days, ver. 13, 28. but he who toucheth them is made unclean onely till even, ver. 7. 27. And therefore this cannot be meant of him who was unclean by touching this water, who himſelf was unclean onely till even, ver. 21. as alſo he who toucheth him is in this place. o To ſignifie to us, the very infectious nature of ſin and of ſinfull company. p Becauſe as his defilement was leſs, ſo it was fit the duration of it ſhould be ſhorter.

CHAP. XX.

The people journey in the wilderneſs of Zin: They murmur againſt Moſes for want of Water, 2—5. God commandeth Moſes to ſpeak to the Rock, that it might yeild water, 6, 7. Moſes ſtriking the Rock twice, 8—11. diſbeleeveth God, 12. Moſes deſiring paſſage through Edom, 13—17. is denied, 18—20. Aaron by Gods command delivering up his Office to Eleazar his Son, dieth, 21—28. All the Congregation bemoan him.

1 THen a came the children of Iſrael, even the whole congregation, into the deſert of Zin b, in the firſt moneth c, and the people abode in Kadeſh d; and Miriam died there e, and was buryed there.

a To wit, after many other ſtations and long journeys here omitted, but particularly deſcribed, Numb. 33. b A place near the land of Edom, diſtinct and diſtant from that Sin, Exod. 16. 1. c To wit, of the fortieth year, as is evident, becauſe the next ſtation to this was in mount Hor, where Aaron died, ver. 22, 23, &c. who died in the fifth month of the fortieth year, Numb. 33. 38. Moſes doth not give us an exact journal of all their occurrences in the wilderneſs, but only of thoſe which were moſt remarkable, and eſpecially of thoſe which happened in the firſt and ſecond, and in the fortieth year, d Whether the ſame place called Kadeſh-barnea, where they were long ſince, Numb. 13. 26. and to which they now return after 38 years tedious travels and wandrings in the deſert, Deut. 2. 14. or another place more ſoutherly, it is not material. e Four months before Aaron, and but a few more before Moſes.

2 And there was no water for the congregation f: and they gathered themſelves together againſt Moſes, and againſt Aaron.

f Which having followed them through all their former journeys, began now to fail them here, becauſe they were now come near Canaan and other countreys, where waters might be had by ordinary means, and therefore God would not uſe extraordinary, leſt he ſhould ſeem to proſtitute the honour of miracles. This ſtory, though like that, Exod. 17. is different from it, as appears by divers circumſtances.

3 And the people * chode with Moſes, and ſpake, ſaying, Would God that we had died * when our brethren died before the LORD g. Exod. 17. 2. Numb. 14. 2. & 16. 41. & 17. 5. Deut. 1. 35.

g (i. e.) Suddenly, rather than to die ſuch a lingering and painful death. Their ſin was much greater than their parents in like caſe, becauſe they ſhould have taken warning by their miſcarriages, and by the terrible effects of them, which their eyes had ſeen.

4 And * why have ye brought up the congregation of the LORD into this wilderneſs, that we and our cattel ſhould die there? Exod. 17. 3.

5 And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us in unto this evil place? it is no place of ſeed, or of figs, or vines, or of pomegranates, neither is there any water to drink.

6 And Moſes and Aaron went from the preſence of the Aſſembly h, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and * they fell upon their faces: and * the glory of the LORD appeared unto them. Numb. 14. 5. Lev. 9. 6. Numb. 14. 10.

h Partly to avoid the growing rage of the people, for Gods ſingular protection of them did not exclude the uſe of ordinary means: and partly to go to God for relief and redreſs.

7 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

8 * Take the rod i, and gather thou the aſſembly together, thou and Aaron thy brother, and ſpeak ye unto the rock k before their eyes, and it ſhall give forth his water, and thou ſhalt bring forth to them water out of the Exod. 17.

rock; ſo thou ſhalt give the congregation and their beaſts drink.

i That rod which was laid up before the Lord in the tabernacle, as appears from ver. 9. But whether it was Aarons rod, which undoubtedly laid up there, Numb. 17. 10. or Moſes his rod by which he wrought ſo many Miracles, it is not conſiderable; or whether his rod, as here, ver. 11. and elſewhere, and ſometimes Aarons rod, as Exod. 7. 12. which may ſeem moſt probable. For it is likely, though led the rod of God, Exod. 4. 20. was laid up as ſome part of the tabernacle, though not in or near the Ark where Aarons Mollifying rod for a particular reaſon was put. k Which will foreſee heart and obey my commands than theſe fooliſh and ſtubborn people.

9 And Moſes took the rod from before the LORD, as he commanded him.

l (i. e.) Out of the Tabernacle.

10 And Moſes and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he ſaid unto them, Hear now, ye rebels, muſt we fetch you water out of this rock?

11 And Moſes lift up his hand, and with his rod he ſmote the rock twice: and the * water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beaſts also. Exod. 17. 6.

m To the men it was a ſacrament, 1 Cor. 10. 3, 4. but to the beaſts it was no holy but a common thing. So that the ſame elements in the Sacraments have no inherent and inſeparable holineſs, but only a relative holineſs with reſpect to their uſe, out of which they are unholy and common.

12 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, and Aaron, Becauſe * ye believed † me not n, to ſanctifie me o in the eyes of the children of Iſrael p, therefore ye ſhall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them. chap. 27. 14. Deut. 1. 37. & 3. 26. & 32. 51.

n But ſhewed your infidelity: which ſince did, either by their looks and geſtures, or rather by the manner and meanour of their expreſſions and actions, ſi her 1. by ſmiting the rock, and that twice, which is emphatically noted, as if he doubted whether once ſmiting would have done it, whereas he was not commanded to ſmite ſo much as once, but only to ſpeak to it: or 2. by the doubtfulneſs of thoſe words, ver. 10. Muſt we fetch water out of this rock? which implies a ſuſpicion of it, as the like words do, Gen. 18. 13. whereas they ſhould have ſpoken poſitively and confidently to the rock to give forth waters. And yet they did not doubt of the power of God, but of his will, whether he would gratifie them ſo much with this further miracle, after ſo many of the like kind. And beſides the words themſelves, it is conſiderable, both with what mind they were ſpoken, which God ſaw to be diſtruſtful, and in what manner they were delivered, which the people might diſcern to come from miſbelief or doubt. And there might be divers other unbelieving words uſed by them at this time and place, though they be not here recorded, it being uſual in Scripture to give only the ſum or principal heads of diſcourſes or events, leaving the reſt to be gathered out of them. See Pſal. 106. 32, 33. o (i. e.) To give me glory of my power in doing this miracle, and of my truth in punctually fulfilling my promiſe to do it, and of my goodneſs in doing it not withſtanding the peoples perverſeneſs. p This made their fact ſcandalous to the Iſraelites, who of themſelves were too prone to infidelity, and little needed ſuch an ill example, to prevent the contagion whereof God leaves a monument of his great diſpleaſure upon them, and inflicts a puniſhment as publick and manifeſt as their ſin was.

13 * This is the water of † Meribah q becauſe the children of Iſrael ſtrove with the LORD, and he was ſanctified in them r. Deut. 32. 51. & Pſal. 95. 8. & 106. 32.

q Called Meribah Kadeſh, to diſtinguiſh it from another Meribah, Exod. 17. 7. r. Or, among them, to wit, of Iſrael, by manifeſtations of his juſtice, power, and mercy towards the Iſraelites, and of their unjuſtifiable hardneſs and feverity againſt him even in his greateſt friends and benefactors, as Moſes was. That is, Heb 16 And * when we cried unto the LORD, he heard our voice, and ſent an angel x, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt: and behold, we are in Kadeſh, a city in the uttermoſt of thy border. Exod. 3. 7.

x To wit, the Angel of the covenant, Chriſt Jeſus, who firſt appeared to Moſes in the buſh, Exod. 3. 2. and afterward in the cloudy pillar, who conducted Iſrael and the people out of Egypt, and thorough the wilderneſs, as appears from Exod. 14. 19. and 23. 20. and 33. 14. 1 Cor. 10. 4. For though Moſes be called an Angel or meſſenger, a title given to divers others, as to the Prophets, 2 Chron. 36. 16. and to Chriſt himſelf, Mal. 3. 1. it is not profitable that he is meant, partly becauſe this was no ſuch perſon that ſent this meſſenger, partly becauſe there was no reaſon why he ſhould expreſs himſelf by ſuch a dark and doubtful phraſe to them; and partly becauſe another Angel both is and has likely to give more authority and efficacy to their prefent meſſage. y (i.e.) Near the city Kadiſh, the particle in being oft ſo uſed, as we have ſhewed.

17 Let us paſs, I pray thee, through thy countrey: we will not paſs through the fields, or through the vineyards, neither will we drink of the water of the wells z: we will go by the kings high-way, we will not turn to the right hand, nor to the left, until we have paſſed thy borders.

z Or, pits, which any of you have digged for your private uſe, to wit, without paying for it, ver. 19. Deut. 2. 6 but only of the waters of common rivers, which are free to all paſſengers, and will not be prejudicial to thee.

18 And Edom ſaid unto him, Thou ſhalt not paſs by me a, leſt I come out againſt thee with the ſword.

a (i.e.) Through my country, as thou deſireſt: I will not ſuffer thee to do ſo: which was an act of common policy to ſecure themſelves from ſo numerous an hoſt.

19 And the children of Iſrael ſaid unto him b, We will go by the high-way: And if I and my cattel drink of thy water, then I will pay for it c: I will only (without doing any thing elſe) go through on my feet.

b (i.e.) Their meſſengers replied unto them what here follows c For water was a ſcarce commodity in thoſe parts.

20 And he ſaid, Thou ſhalt not go through. And Edom came out againſt him with much people, and with a ſtrong hand.

21 Thus Edom refuſed to give Iſrael paſſage through his border d: wherefore Iſrael turned away from him e.

f Whoſe inhabitants were then called Horims, Deut. 2. 12. and Edom the Horite, Gen. 36. 20.

† Heb. the children of Iſrael, becauſe ye rebelled againſt my † mouth. word g at the water of Meribah.

g This was one but not the only reaſon. God would not have Moſes and Aaron to carry the people into Canaan, for this reaſon alſo, to ſignifie the inſufficiency of the Myſtical law and Aaronical Prieſthood to make them perfectly happy, and the neceſſity of a better, and ſo to keep the Iſraelites from reſting in them ſo as to be taken off from their expectation of Chriſt, and from the entertainment of him when he ſhould come.

27 And Moſes did as the LORD commanded: and they went up into mount Hor, in the ſight of all the congregation k.

k That their hearts might be more affected with their loſs of ſo great a pillar, and that they all might be witneſſes of the tranſlation of the Prieſthood from Aaron to Eleazar, and therefore might give him the honour due to him.

CHAP. XXI.

The Canaanites fight againſt Iſrael, and take ſome of them Priſoners, 1. Through God's aſſiſtance they overcome them, and deſtroy their cities, 2, 3. The people murmur, 4, 5. Are plagued with fiery ſerpents, 6. They repent, 7. A brazen Serpent erected, to which they look, and are healed, 8, 9. They journey, 10——16. Their Hymn for water given at Beer, 17. They ſue for a paſſage to the Amorites: are denied: fight them: overcome, and dwell in their cities, 18——26. Proverbial ſayings concerning it, 27——30. Og King of Bashan, his ſon, and all his people, are killed by the Iſraelites, and their Land poſſeſſed by them, 33——35.

21 AND when † King Arad the Canaanite a, which † Heb. dwelt in the ſouth b, heard tell that Iſrael came Atharim. by the way of the ſpies c, then he fought againſt Iſrael, and took ſome of them Priſoners d.

a Or rather, the Canaanite King of Arad: for Arad is not the name of a man, but of a city or territory, as may ſeem from Joſ. 12. 14. Judg. 1. 16. if at leaſt this was the ſame place with that. And he ſeems to be called a Canaanite in a general ſenſe, as the Amorites and others ſometimes are. b To wit, of Canaan, as appears from Num. 33. 40. towards the Eaſt, and near the dead Sea. c Not of thoſe ſpies which Moſes ſent to ſpie the land, Numb. 13. 17. for that was done 38 years before this, and they went ſo privately, that the Canaanites took no notice of them, nor knew which way they came or went; but of the ſpies which he himſelf ſent out to obſerve the marches and motions of the Iſraelites. But the words may be otherwiſe rendred, either thus, in the manner of ſpies, fo the ſenſe is, when he heard that divers of the Iſraelites came into or towards his country in the nature of ſpies, to prepare the way for the reſt: or thus, by the way of Atharim, a place ſo called, as the ſeventy Interpreters here take it, and it ſeems not improbable. d Which God permitted for Iſraels humiliation and puniſhment, and to teach them not to expect the conqueſt of that land from their own wiſdom or valo-r, but wholly from Gods favour and aſſiſtance. See Deut. 9. 4. Iſai. 44. 3. 4.

2 And Iſrael vowed a vow unto the LORD e, and ſaid, If thou wilt indeed deliver this people into my hand, then I will utterly deſtroy their cities f.

e Being ſenſible of their own weakneſs, they endeavour to engage God to help them in the war, which they intended to renew. † I will reſerve no perſon nor thing for my own uſe, but devote them all to total deſtruction, which was the conſequent of ſuch vows. See Lev. 27. 29. Deut. 13. 15.

3 And the LORD hearkened to the voice of Iſrael, and delivered up the Canaanite: and they † utterly deſtroyed them g, and their cities, and he called the name

g When? anſw. Either 1. Some time after this, under Joſhuah, He who ſubdued, among others, the King of Arad, Joſ. 12. 14. And ſo This is mentioned here by anticipation, that the vow being now made and mentioned, the effect or performance of it might be recorded, though out of its place; and ſo this verſe muſt be ſuppoſed to be added by ſome of the Prophets, and inſerted into Moſes his hiſtory, as ſome other paſſages ſeem to be. Or 2. at this time: and ſo this is not the ſame Arad with that, Joſ. 12 14. nor this the time Hormagh with that there mentioned, but another of the ſame name, which is moſt frequent in perſons and places in ſcripture. And this is the more probable, becauſe that Arad and Hormah, Joſ. 12. 14. are two diſtinct places, and had divers kings, whereas here the ſame place is called both Arad and Hormah; and becauſe that Arad ſeems to be at ſome good diſtance from this, and more within the country, and more northward, as may be gathered from the other places joyned with it, Joſ. 12. whereas this Arad was near Edom, ver. 4. and in the ſouth, ver. 1. Queſt. 1. How could this be done in the land of Canaan, when Moſes neither entred himſelf, nor led the people into that land? Anſw. Neither Moſes nor the wholebody of the people did this exploit, but a ſelect number ſent out for this purpoſe to punish that king and people, who were ſo fierce and malicious that they came out of their own country to fight with the Iſraelites in the wilderneſs; and theſe, when they had done this work, returned to their brethren into the wilderneſs. Queſt. 2. Why did they not all now go into Canaan, when ſome of them had once entred it, and purſue this victory? Anſw. Becauſe God would not permit it, there being ſeveral works yet to be done, other people muſt be conquered, the Iſraelites muſt be further humbled and tried and purged, Moſes muſt die, and then they ſhall enter, and that in a more glorious manner, even over Jordan, which ſhall be miraculouſly dried up, and give them paſſage.

4 And they * journeyed from mount Hor by the way Deut. 10. 6. of the Red-ſea h to compaſs the land of Edom: and the h (i. e.) Which leadeth to the Red-ſea, as they muſt needs do to † compaſs the land of Edom. i By reaſon of this journey, which was long and troubleſome, and prepoſterous (for they were now going towards Egypt) and unexpected, either becauſe they doubted not but their brethren the Edomites would grant them their reaſonable requeſt of paſſing through their land, which diſappointment made it worſe; Or, becauſe the ſucceſsful entrance and victorious progreſs which ſome of them had made in the borders of Canaan, made them think they might have ſpeedily gone in and taken poſſeſſion of it, and ſo have ſaved their tedious travels and further difficulties, into which Moſes had again brought them.

5 And the people ſpake againſt God k, and againſt Moſes, Wherefore have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the Wilderneſs? for there is no bread, neither is there any water, and * our ſoul loatheth this light Or, bread l. k Againſt Chriſt, their chief conductor, whom they tempted, 1 Cor. 10. 9. l (i.e.) Of ſmall ſubſtance and virtue. This contemptuouſly do they ſpeak of Manna, whereas it appears it yielded excellent nourihment, becauſe in the ſtrength of it they were able to go ſo many and ſuch tedious journies.

6 And * the LORD ſent fiery ſerpents m among the
* Deut. 8. 15. people, and they bit the people, and much people of Iſ-rael died.

m Such there were many in this wilderneſs, Deut. 8. 15. which having been hitherto reſtrained by God, are now let looſe and ſent among them. They are called fiery from their effects, becauſe their poiſon cauſed an intolerable heat and burning and thirſt in the bodies of the Iſraelites, which was aggravated with this circumſtance of the place, that here was no water, ver. 5.

7 Therefor?

7 Therefore the people came to Moſes, and ſaid, We have ſinned: for we have ſpoken againſt the LORD, and againſt thee: pray unto the LORD that he take away the ſerpents from us: and Moſes prayed for the people.

8 And the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, Make thee a fiery ſerpent n, and ſet it upon a Pole o: and it ſhall come to paſs, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, ſhall live p.

n (i.e.) The figure of a ſerpent in braſs, which is of a fiery colour. This would require ſome time: God would not ſpeedily take off the judgment, becauſe he ſaw they were not thoroughly humbled. o That the people might ſee it from all parts of the camp, and therefore the pole muſt be high, and the ſerpent large p This method of cure was preſcribed, partly that it might appear to be God's own work, and not the effect of nature or art: and partly that it might be an eminent type of our ſalvation by Chriſt. See Joh. 3. 14. Rom. 8. 3. though without ſin, as this brazen ſerpent had the outward ſhape, but not the inward poiſon, of the other ſerpents: the pole reſembled the croſs upon which Chriſt was lift up for our ſalvation: and looking up to it deſigned our believing in Chriſt.

t Or rather, by the torrent or brook of Zared, as we render it, Deut. 2. 13. which ran into the dead ſea, and from which the valley alſo might be ſo called.

13 From thence they removed, and pitched on the other ſide of Arnon u, which is in the wilderneſs that cometh out of the coaſts of the Amorite: for Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorite x.

u Or rather, on this ſide of Arnon, for ſo it now was to the Iſraelites, who had not yet paſſed over it. as appears from Deut. 2. 24. But the ſame words, Judg. 11. 18. are to be rendred, on the other ſide of Arnon, for ſo it was to Sephibah: and the ſame prepoſition ſignifieth on this ſide, or beyond, according to the circumſtances of the place. x (i.e.) Though formerly it and the land beyond it belonged to Moab, yet afterwards it had been taken from them by Sihon, ver. 26. 28. This is added to reconcile two ſeemingly contrary commands of God, the one that of not meddling with the land of the Moabites, Deut. 2. 9 the other that of going over Arnon and taking poſſeſſion of the land beyond it. Deut. 2. 24. becauſe, ſaith he, it is not now the land of the Moabites, but of the Amorites.

14 Wherefore it is ſaid in the book of the wars of the Zaheb LORD y, ‖ what he did in the Read-ſea z, and in the Hoheb. brooks a of Arnon;

y This ſeems to have been ſome Poem or narration of the wars and victories of the Lord, either by or relating to the Iſraelites: which may be aſſerted without any prejudice to the integrity of the Holy Scripture, becauſe this book doth not appear to have been written by a Prophet, or to be deſigned for a part of the Canon, but by ſome other ingenious perſon, who intended only to write an hiſtorical relation of theſe matters, which yet Moſes might quote, as St. Paul doth ſome of the heathen Poets. And as St. Luke aſſures us, that many did write an hiſtory of the things done and faid by Chriſt, Luke 1. 1. whoſe writings were never received as Canonical, the like may be juſtly conceived concerning this and ſome few other books mentioned in the old Teſtament. Though the words may be thus rendred, Wherefore it ſhall be ſaid in the relation or narration (for ſo the Hebrew Sephir is confeſſed to ſignifie) of the wars of the Lord, or Or, At Vaheb in Suphah, or in the land of Suph. Vaheb ſeems to be the name not of a man, but of a city or place, and Suphah the name of the country where it was; and the Hebrew particle eth is oft rendred at. And whereas the ſenſe ſeems to be imperfect, it muſt be noted, that he quotes only a fragment or piece of the book, and that principally to prove the ſituation of Arnon, which he had aſſerted ver. 13. for which end the paſſage quoted is ſufficient. And the ſenſe is eaſily to be underſtood, for it is plain enough that this Poet or Writer is deſcribing the wars and works of God by the ſeveral places where they were done, and having begun the ſentence before, and mentioned other places, he comes to theſe here mentioned, At Vaheb in Suphah, and at the brooks of Arnon, &c. And it ſeems probable that the war here deſigned was that of Sihon againſt the Moabites, mentioned below, ver. 26. which is fitly aſcribed to the Lord, becauſe it was undertaken and perfected by the ſingular direction and aſſiſtance of God, and that for the ſake of the Iſraelites, that by this means that country might be invaded and poſſeſſed by them, without taking it away from the Moabites, which they were forbidden to meddle with or to diſturb, Deut. 2. 9. And ſo their title to it might be more juſt and unqueſtionable. See Judg. 11. 13, 13, 27. a (i. e.) The brook, the plural number for the ſingular, as the plural number rivers is uſed concerning Jordan, Joſ. 24. 15. and concerning Tigris, Nah. 2. 6. and concerning Euphrates, Pſal. 137. 1. and concerning Thermodon in Virgil, all which may be ſo called becauſe of the ſeveral little ſtreams into which they were divided.

16 And from thence they went to Beer c: that is the well whereof the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, Gather the people together, and I will give them water d.

c This place and Mattanah, Nahaliel, and Bamoth named here, v. 19. are not mentioned among thoſe places where they pitched or encamped, Numb. 33. Either therefore they did not pitch or encamp in thoſe places, but only paſs by or through them, nor indeed is it here ſaid they pitched or encamped in thoſe places, which is ſaid of thoſe places, Num. 33. but only that they went to them, ver. 18. or, thoſe are ſtations omitted there, and to be ſupplied from hence: for though it be there ſaid they went from ſuch a place, and pitched in ſuch a place, yet it is not ſaid they went immediately from the one place to the other, and therefore they might take theſe places in their way. d To wit, in a miraculous manner.

n By Gods allowance, that ſo Sihons malice might be the more evident and inexcuſable, and that their title to his country more clear in the judgments of all men, as being gotten by a juſt war, into which they were forced for their own defence.

o They ſpoke what they ſeriouſly intended and would have done, if he had given them quiet paſſage: but withal they knew that Sihon would not do it, and that he would withſtand them, and that they ſhould ſubdue him and take his land, as God had told them before they ſent this meſſage, as appears from Deut. 2. 24, 25, 27. and accordingly God hardened his ſpirit, and made his heart obſtinate, for this end, that he might deliver him into Iſrael's hand there, ver. 30. And no wonder, for he and his people were Amorites, and, therefore devoted to Deſtruction, as all that people were.

26 For Heshbon was the city of Sihon u the king of the Amorite, who had fought against the former king of Moab x, and taken all his land out of his hand, even unto Arnon.

u This is added as a reason why Israel took possession of this land, notwithstanding God's prohibition of meddling with them or their land, Deut. 2. 9. because it was not now the land of the Moabites, but had been some time since taken from them, and in the possession of the Amorites. x (i.e.) The Predecessor of Balak, who was the present King.

27 Wherefore they that speak in proverbs y, say, Come into Heshbon z: let the city of Sihon a be built and prepared.

y The poets or other ingenious persons, to wit, of the Amorites or Canaanites, who made this following Song of Triumph over the vanquished Moabites: which is here brought in, partly as a proof that this was now Sihon's land, and partly as an evidence of the just judgment of God in spoiling the spoilers, and subduing those who insulted over their conquered Enemies. z These are the words either of Sihon speaking thus to his people, or of the people exhorting one another to come and possess and repair the city which they had taken. a That which once was the royal city of the king of Moab, but now is the city of Sihon.

28 For there is a * fire a gone out of Heshbon b, a flame from the city of Sihon: it hath consumed Ar of Moab c, and the lords of the high places d of Arnon.

* Jer. 48. 45.

a (i.e.) The fury of war, which is oft and fitly compared to fire here, as Isa. 47. 14. Amos 1. 7, 10, 12, 14. & 2. 2, 5. b That city which before was a refuge and defence to all the country, now is turned into a great annoyance and a publick mischief. c Quest. How can this be, since Ar was yet in the hands of the Moabites, Deut. 2. 9, 18, 29. Ezek. 1. This may be understood not of the city Ar, but of the people or the country subject or belonging to that great and royal city, as the Chaldee understands it. 2. Possibly Ar was taken by Sihon of the Moabites, but afterwards was either recovered by the Moabites, or upon the Israelites approach quitted by Sihon, gathering all his Forces together, that he might fight with the Israelites, and so repossessed by the Moabites. 3. This place may be thus rendred, It shall consume Ar of Moab, the past tense being put for the future, as is usual in prophetical passages; and so this may be the Amorites prediction or presage, That having taken Heshbon and its territories, they should now extend their victories to Ar of Moab, though they fell short of that hope, as ordinarily men do. d Either 1. the princes or governours of the strong holds, which were frequently in high places, especially in that mountainous country, and which were in divers parts all along the river of Arnon, and having taken some of those, they promised to themselves that they should take all the rest, and so proceed further and further, till they had taken Ar it self. Or rather 2. the priests and people that worship their God in their high places: which may seem more probable, 1. because as the Israelites worshipped God, so the heathens worshipped Baal, in high places, Numb. 22. 41. and particularly the Moabites are noted for so doing, Jer. 48. 35. 2. Because amongst the eminent places of Moab there is mention of Beth-baal, or, of the high places of Baal, Jos. 13. 17.

29 Wo to thee, Moab e; thou art undone, O people of * Chemosh f: he hath given his sons that escaped, and his daughters into captivity g, unto Sihon king of the Amorite h.

1 Kin. 11. 7, 33.

e Alas poor Moab, thou couldst not save thy self from Sihon's sword. f (i.e.) The worshippers of Chemosh: for the God of the Moabites was called, 1 King. 11. 7, 33. 2 Kg. 23. 13. Jer. 48. 46. g He, (i.e.) their God, hath delivered up his own people to his and their enemies; he could not defend them, but suffered many of them to be killed, nor could he secure even those that had escaped the sword, but suffered them to fall into their enemies hands, and by them to be carried into captivity. h Now the words of this and the following verse seem to be not a part of that triumphant song or poem made, as I suppose, by some Amoritish bard or poet, which seems to be concluded, ver. 28. but of the Israelites making their observation upon it. And here they confess e the impotency not only of the Moabites, but of their God also, who could not save his people from the sword of Sihon and the Amorites.

30 We have shot at them i: Heshbon is perished, even unto Dibon k, and we have laid them waste even unto Nophah, which reacheth unto Medebah l.

i Though you feeble Moabites, and your God too, could not resist Sihon, we Israelites, by the help of our God, have shot, to wit, with success and victory, as the following words shew, at them, to wit, at Sihon and his Amorites; which is easily and plainly understood, both from the foregoing and following words. k Heshbon the Royal City of Sihon, and by him lately repaired, is perished, is taken away from Sihon, and so is all his Territory or Countrey, even as far as Dibon, which, as some think, is called Dibon-gad, Numb. 33. 45. l (i.e.) Whose Territory extendeth to Medeba. Or, yea, even to Medeba: for the Hebrew word asher, is sometimes used for yea, or moreover, as 1 Sam. 15. 20. Psal. 10. 6. & 95. 11. The sense is, the whole Country of Sihon, taken by him from the Moabites, is wasted and perished.

31 Thus Israel dwelt in the land of the Amorite.

32 And Moses sent to spy out Jaazer m, and they took the villages thereof, and drove out the Amorite that was there.

m One of the Cities of Moab formerly taken from them by Sihon, and now taken from him by the Israelites, Numb. 32. 1, 3, 35. and after the decay or destruction of the Kingdom of the Ten Tribes, repossessed by the Moabites, Jer. 48. 32.

33 * And they turned, and went up by the way of Bashan: and Og n the King of Bashan o went out against them, he, and all his People, to the battel at Edrei.

* Deut. 3. 1, &c.

n Who also was a king of the Amorites, of whom see Deut. 3. 1, 11. And it may seem that Sihon and Og were the leaders or Captains of two great Colonies which came out of Canaan, and drove out the former Inhabitants of these places. o A rich Countrey, famous for its pastures and breed of Cattle, Deut. 32. 14. Psal. 22. 12. Jer. 50. 19. and for its Oaks, Ezek. 27. 6.

34 And the LORD said unto Moses, Fear him not p: for I have delivered him into thy hand, and all his people, and his land, and * thou shalt do to him, as thou didst unto Sihon King of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

* Deut. 3. 2, 6, 21.

p A necessary caution, for he was a great Giant, Deut. 3. 11. likely to strike them with terrour.

35 So they smote him, and his Sons, and all his people, until there was none left him alive, and they possessed his land.

CHAP. XXII.

The Israelites pitch in the Plains of Moab, 1. Balak the King sends for Balaam to curse Israel, 2—8. He enquires of the Lord, who forbids him to go: He goes not, 9—14. Balak sends again: The Lord permits Balaam to go, 15—21. An Angel stands in the way; which his Ass perceives: His eyes are at length opened to see the Angel, who rebukes him, 22—33. He confesses his fault, and offers to go back: He is commanded to go on, and speak as should be revealed to him, 34, 35. Balak comes to meet him; receives him; expostulates with him; he declares he has no power but to speak the Word which God should put into his mouth, 36—41.

1 AND * the children of Israel set forward, and pitched in the plains of Moab a, on this side Jordan by Jericho b.

* Deut. 4.

a Which still retained their antient title, though they had been taken away from the Moabites by Sihon, and from him by the Israelites. b (i.e.) Over against Jericho. Or, near the passage over Jordan to Jericho, or its Territories.

2 And Balak the son of Zippor c saw all that Israel had done to the Amorite.

c The son or successour of him whom Sihon had spoiled of part of his Kingdom, Numb. 21. 26. Of him see Judg. 11. 25. Mich. 6. 5.

3 And Moab was sore afraid d of the people because they were many, and Moab was distressed because of the children of Israel.

d As it was foretold both in general of all Nations, Deut. 2. 25. and particularly concerning Moab, Exod. 15. 15.

4 And Moab said unto the elders of Midian e: Now shall this company lick up f all that are round about us g, as the ox licketh up the gras of the field. And Balak the son of Zippor was King of the Moabites at that time.

e Called the Kings of Midian, Numb. 31. 8. and Princes of Midian, Jos. 13. 21. who though divided into their Kingdoms, yet were now united upon the approach of the Israelites their common Enemy, and being, as it seems, a potent and crafty people, and Neighbours to the Moabites, these seek Confederacy with them. We read of Midianites near Mount Sinai, Exod. 2. and 3. which seem to have been a part or colony of this people, that went out to seek new quarters, as the manner of those times was, but the body of that people were seated in those parts, as is evident from many Scriptures. f (i.e.) Consume and utterly destroy, in which sense the fire is said to lick up the water and sacrifices, 1 King. 18. 38. The meaning is, we can expect no mercy from them, they will utterly root us out as they did the Amorites, if we do not make a stout and timely opposition. g (i.e.) All our people, who lived in the Countrey and Territory adjoyning to each City, where the Princes resided.

5 * He sent messengers therefore unto Balaam h the son of Beor i to Pethor k, which is by the river of the land of the children of his people l, to call him, saying, Behold, there is a people come out from Egypt: behold, they cover the † face of the earth, and they abide over against me m.

* Deut. 23. 4. Josh. 24. 9. Neh. 13. 2. Mic. 6. 5.

h Who is called a Prophet, 2 Pet. 2. 16. because God was pleased to inspire and direct him to speak the following prophecie, as he did inspire Caiphas to speak those words, Joh. 11. 51, 52. and as sometimes he did for a time inspire other wicked men, but in truth he was a soothsayer, as he is called, Jos. 13. 22. See Numb. 24. 1. Oh, Beor, 2 Pet. 2. 15. for he had two names, as many others had. i A City in Mesopotamia or Aram, see Numb. 23. 7. Deut. 23. 4. k (i.e.) By Euphrates, which is oft called the River, by way of eminency, as Gen. 15. 18. Jos. 24. 2, 15. and here the River of Balaam's land or country, to wit, of Mesopotamia or Aram, Numb. 23. 7. m They are encamped in my neighbourhood, ready to invade my Kingdom.

6 Come now therefore, I pray thee, curse me n this people, for they are too mighty for me: peradventure I shall prevail, that we may smite them o, and that I may drive them out of the land: for I wot that he whom thou blessest, p is blessed, and he whom thou cursest, is cursed q.

n (i. e.) Curse them for my sake and benefit; use thy utmost power, which thou hast with thy Gods or infernal Spirits, to blast and ruine them. o Thou by thy magical imprecations, and I by my sword joyned with them. p He had some experience of, or, at least, a great confidence in Balaam's skill and power in these matters.

7 And the elders of Moab, and the elders of Midian departed, with the rewards of divination q in their hands, and they came unto Balaam, and spake unto him the words of Balak.

q Heb. with divinations, by which he understands not the Instruments of Divination, which it was needless and absurd to bring to so eminent a Diviner, who doubtless was throughly furnished for his own trade; but the Rewards of it, as it is explained 2 Pet. 2. 15. and as in the Hebrew, 2 Sam. 4. 10. good tydings is put for the reward of good tydings. Nor is it probable, they would go to, or could expect to prevail with such a person, especially being noted for his covetousness, as appears from the story, without that powerful engine.

8 And he said unto them, Lodge here this night r, and I will bring you word again, as the LORD s shall speak unto me: and the princes of Moab t abode with Balaam.

r The Night was the time when God used to reveal his mind by dreams. Here is the first discovery of his Wickedness, that he takes time to consider, and doth his endeavour to effect that wicked motion of cursing the Israelites, which he should have rejected and abhorred at the first mention of it. s Heb. Jehovah, the true God, whom he here mentions, either for his own greater reputation, as if he consulted not with inferior spirits, as other Soothsayers did, but with the supream God; or rather because this was Israel's God, and the only possible way of ruining them was by engaging their God against them: as the known way of the Romans and other Heathens, when they went to besiege any City, they used Inchantments to call forth that God under whose peculiar protection they were. t And of Midian too, as is manifest from ver. 7. which was needless to repeat here.

9 And God came unto Balaam u, and said, What men are these with thee x?

u Not to gratifie his covetous desire, but to advance his own honour and service, even by the Counsels of his enemies. x He asketh not this for his own Information, but partly that Balaam by repeating the thing in God's presence might be convinced and ashamed of his sin and folly in offering his Service in such a cursed business; and partly for a foundation to the following answer.

10 And Balaam said unto God, Balak the son of Zippor, King of Moab, hath sent unto me, saying, 11 Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which covereth the face of the earth: come now, curse me them; peradventure I shall be able to overcome them, and drive them out.

† Heb. I may be able to overcome them, and drive them out.

12 And God said unto Balaam y, Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people, for they are blessed z.

y To whom God revealeth his mind, not for any love to him, but for the sake of his people concerned in it, as he did to Pharaoh, Gen. 41. 25. and to Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. 2. 45. z By my irrevocable decree and sentence, and therefore it is in vain for men to curse them.

13 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and said unto the Princes of Balak, get ye into your land: for the LORD refuseth to give me leave to go with you a.

a He conceals the principal things, to wit, the reason of God's prohibition, which might have given a flop to their further course and counsels in this matter, and secretly intimates his own good will and readiness to comply with them, if God had not hindred him.

14 And the Princes of Moab rose up, and they went unto Balak, and said, Balaam refuseth to come with us b.

b Thus they lay the blame upon Balaam, which he imputed to God.

15 And Balak sent yet again princes, mo, and more honourable than they.

16 And they came to Balaam, and said to him, Thus saith Balak the son of Zippor, † let nothing c, I pray thee, hinder thee from coming unto me.

c No counsel nor suggestion either of God or Man.

17 For I will promote thee unto very great honour d, and I will do whatsoever thou sayest unto me: come therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people.

d Before he wrought upon his covetousness, now upon his ambition.

18 A Balaam answered and said unto the servants of Balak, * If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot e go beyond the word of the LORD my God f, to do less or more.

* Chap. 24. 13.

e You desire and expect that from me which is out of my power, to resist the Will of the great God. He flily insinuates, That he wanted not Will, but Power only. f So he calls him, partly to magnifie himself as the servant of the great Jehovah; partly, that by professing this reflect unto God he might the sooner induce him to grant his Desire; and partly because he worshipped the true God, together with Idols, as many in those times and places did.

19 Now therefore, I pray you, tarry ye also here this night, that I may know what the LORD will say unto me more g.

g Possibly he may change his mind, or yield to my renewed suit. Thus he thought to make God and his confidence stoop to the service of his pride and covetousness, which was abominable.

20 And God came unto Balaam at night, and said unto him, If the men come to call thee, rise up and go with them h: but yet the word which I shall say unto thee: that shalt thou do i.

h Since this is thy great desire and purpose, as far as thou canst, take thy course; I will, according to thy will, withdraw my restraint, and leave thee to thy self and thy own choice. Compare Psal. 81. 11, 12. i These words signifie not so much his duty, as the event and his disappointment, Thou shalt not do what thou desirest, to wit, curse my people and so envie and advance thy self, but I will so over-rule thy mind and bridle thy tongue, that thou shalt speak nothing but what is contrary to thy desire and interest; and therefore though I permit thee to go, thou shalt lose thy design in it.

21 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and saddled his ass, and went with the princes of Moab.

22 And God's anger was kindled because he went k: and the Angel of the LORD stood in the way † for an adversary against him l: now he was riding upon his ass, and his two servants were with him. m.

k Either 1. Because he went of his own accord, with the Princes of Moab, and did not wait till they came to call him, i.e. urged him to go, which was the sign and condition of Gods permission, ver. 20. but rather himself rose and called them, as it may seem from, ver. 21. Or 2. Because those words, v. 20. did contain no approbation nor licence, but a bare permission, and that in anger, as Balaam might easily have understood, if he had considered his own heart, or the circumstances of his concession. This was no more an approbation than that passage of Christ to Judas, Joh. 13. 27. That thou doest, do quickly. Or 3. Because he went with ill design, and desire to do contrary to what God had charged him, to wit, to curse the people, as plainly appears from the following story, and from Deut. 23. 5. For God hath been oft and justly angry with those who have done what God had them, when they did it in evil manner, or for evil ends, as appears from 1 Sam. 10. 6, 7. and many other places. l (i.e.) To oppose and terrifie, if not to kill him. m The rest of the company being probably gone before them. For in those ancient times there was more of simplicity, and less of ceremony, and therefore it is not strange that Balaam came at some distance, after the rest, and attended only by his own servants.

23 And * the ass saw the Angel n of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand, and the ass turned aside out of the way, and went into the field: and Balaam smote the ass, to turn her into the way.

* 2 Pet. 2. 16.

n Which Balaam saw not, because God withheld his eyes as he did the eyes of Daniel's companions, Dan. 10. 7. It is a truth, which meer Philosophers own, that when God withdraws his concourse or help from any of his creatures, they cannot perform their natural acts and offices; the eye cannot see, as Ps. 19. nor the ear hear, nor the fire burn, as Dan. 3.

24 But the angel of the LORD stood in a path of the vineyards: a wall being on this side, and a wall on that side:

25 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she thrust her self unto the wall, and crushed Balaam's foot against the wall: and he smote her again.

26 And the angel of the LORD went further, and stood in a narrow place, where was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left.

27 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she fell down under Balaam: and Balaam's anger was kindled, and he smote the ass with a staff.

28 And the LORD opened the mouth of the ass o, and she said unto Balaam, What have I done unto thee, that thou hast smitten me these three times?

o (i.e.) Conferred upon her the power of Speech and reasoning for that time. Impudent are the scoffs heathens that disbelieve and scoff at the Scripture for this and such like relations contained in it, when there are examples of the same kind of Prodigies, to wit, of Oxen and other brute-creatures speaking these few words, in the greatest and most approved writers of the Roman History, as Plutarch, Polybius, Livy, and others. See the particulars in my Latin Synopsis on this place.

29 And Balaam said unto the ass p, Because thou hast mocked me; I would there were a sword in mine hand, for now would I kill thee.

p Balaam was not much terrified with the Ass's speaking, because he was much accustomed to converse with evil Spirits who often appeared to him and discoursed with him in the shape of such creatures.

30 And the ass said unto Balaam, Am not I thine ass, † upon which thou hast ridden ever since I was thine, unto this day? was I ever wont to do so unto thee? and he said, Nay.

31 Then the LORD opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the and angel, &c.

and he saw the angel of the LORD ſtanding in the way, and his ſword drawn in his hand: and he bowed down his head, and ‖ fell flat on his face q.

q In token of reverence and ſubmiſſion.

32 And the Angel of the LORD ſaid unto him, Wherefore haſt thou ſmitten thine aſs theſe three times? Behold, I went out † to withſtand thee, becauſe thy way is perverſe before me r.

r Howſoever thou mayeſt deceive thy ſelf or others, I ſee the perverſeneſs of thy heart and way; the wickedneſs of thy deſign and deſires in this journey, which thou haſt undertaken, not to pleaſe me, but to gratifie Balak, and, if it be poſſible, to curſe my people.

33 And the aſs ſaw me, and turned from me theſe three times: unleſs ſhe had turned from me, ſurely now alſo I had ſlain thee, and ſaved her alive s.

s I had ſlain thee alone, and not her, and therefore her turning aſide and falling down was wholly for thy ſake and benefit, not for her own, and thy anger againſt her was unjuſt and unreaſonable.

34 And Balaam ſaid unto the angel of the the LORD, I have ſinned, for I knew not that thou ſtoodeſt in the way againſt me: now therefore if it † diſpleaſe thee t, I will get me back again.

t A frivolous ſuppoſition; for it was apparently diſpleaſing to God, who had now told that his way was perverſe, and had therefore oppoſed him and fought to ſlay him: but hereby he ſhews how loth he was to go back and loſe the hopes he had conceived, and beſides he ſpeaks of deſiſting from the outward action, but ſhews no ſenſe of the plague of his heart, his vile affections, which were the root of this ill deſigned journey.

35 And the angel of the LORD ſaid unto Balaam Go with the men u: but only the word that I ſhall ſpeak unto thee, that thou ſhalt ſpeak x: ſo Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

u This may be either 1. A meer permiſſion, ſince neither the convictions of thy own conſcience, nor the experience of thy danger have weanted thee from thy baſe deſigns and inclinations, I ſhall no further reſtrain thee; my Angel ſhall give thee no more diſturbance; go on and proſper. Or 2. a conceſſion; I allow thee to go, upon the following terms. For the word here are more abſolute and unconditional than in thoſe, ver. 20. x Theſe words may expreſs either 1. The event; Or, 2. His duty. See above on ver. 20.

36 And when Balak heard that Balaam was come, he went out to meet him y unto a city of Moab, which z in the border of Arnon, which a in the utmoſt coaſt z.

y That by this great honour he might give him a taſte and earneſt of thoſe great rewards he deſigned him, and thereby oblige him to uſe his utmoſt skill and intereſt for him. z Not far from the Camp of the Iſraelites, whom he deſired him to curſe.

37 And Balak ſaid unto Balaam, Did I not earneſtly ſend unto thee, to call thee? wherefore cameſt thou not unto me? Am I not able indeed to promote thee to honour?

38 And Balaam ſaid unto Balak, Lo, I am come unto thee: have I now any power at all to ſay any thing a? the word that God putteth in my mouth, that ſhall I ſpeak b.

a To wit, agreeable to thy expectation or my own intention. b I am forced to do ſo by his ſuperiour power, and therefore be not offended with me, if I ſpeak things unpleaſing to thee.

39 And Balaam went with Balak, and they came unto ‖ Kirjath huzoth.

‖ Or, neatly of Hoſts.

40 And Balak offered c oxen and ſheep, and ſent to Balaam d, and to the princes that were with him e.

c Or, killed, either for ſacrifice: or rather for a feaſt: for the ſacrifices were offered after this, Numb. 23 1. 2. d To invite him to the feaſt. e Whom the King had left to accompany him and attend upon him.

41 And it came to paſs on the morrow, that Balak took Balaam, and brought him up into the high places of Baal f, that thence he might ſee the utmoſt part of the people g.

f (i.e.) Conſecrated to the Worſhip of Baal, i. e of Baal Peor, who was their Baal or God, Numb. 25. 2, 3. or of Chemoſh. g (i.e.) All that people, even to the utmoſt and remoteſt of them, as appears by comparing this with Numb 23. 13. He hoped that the ſight of ſuch a numerous hoſt ready to break in upon his countrey would ſtir up his paſſion and further his charms.

CHAP. XXIII.

Balak and Balaam ſacrifice: God meets him, and bleſſes Iſrael, 1—10. Balak is troubled: they go to another place to curſe them: they ſacrifice again: Balaam conſults God, who meets him, and he again bleſſes Iſrael, 11—24. They goto a third place and ſacrifice again, 27—30.

1 AND Balaam ſaid unto Balak, Build me here ſeven altars a, and prepare me here ſeven oxen, and ſeven rams b.

a Either 1. To Baal, in whoſe high places this was done, and to whom alone Balak uſed to ſacrifice. Or rather 2 To the true God, otherwiſe he would not have mentioned it to God as an argument why he ſhould grant his requeſts, as he doth, ver. 4. And though Balak was averſe from God and his Worſhip, yet he would be eaſily over-ruled by Balaam, who doubtleſs told him that it was in vain to make an addreſs to any other than the God of Iſrael, who alone was able either to bleſs or curſe them, as he pleaſed. And therefore when Balaam loſt his deſign this way, he tried it another way with greater ſucceſs, but ſtill uſed the ſame method, in promoting their own God to deſtroy the Iſraelites, Numb. 25. But though he direct his ſacrifices to a right object, he chooſeth a wrong place, and, to comply with Balak's deſire, makes uſe of the high places of Baal for this end, and mingles his own ſuperſtitions with the Worſhip of God, in erecting divers Altars, according to the manner of Heathens and Idolaters, 2 King. 18. 22. Iſa. 17. 8. Jer. 11. 13. Heſ. 8. 11. and 10. 1. and 12. 11. whereas God appointed and holy men uſed but one Altar, though many ſacrifices were to be offered upon it, Gen. 8. 20. Exod. 17. 15. and 24. 4. b This being the ſolemn and uſual number in ſacrifices, 1 Chron. 15. 26. 2 Chron. 29. 21. Job 42. 8.

2 And Balak did as Balaam had ſpoken, and Balak and Balaam c offered on every altar a bullock and a ram.

c Balak by procuring them, and Balaam by offering them: though in antient times Kings were Prieſts alſo, and ſo might perform a prieſtly work, as this was.

3 And Balaam ſaid unto Balak, Stand by thy burnt-offering d, and I will go e: peradventure the LORD will come to meet me: and whatſoever he ſheweth me f, I will tell thee. And ‖ he went to an high place g.

d As in God's preſence, as one that offers thy ſelf as well as thy ſacrifices to obtain his favour. e To ſome ſolitary and convenient place, where I may by my inchantments prevail with God to appear to me, and to anſwer thy and my deſires in curſing this people. f (i. e.) Reveals to me, either by word or ſign. g Or, into the plain, as that word properly ſignifies, for he was now in an high place. Numb. 22. 41. But this is not material, it was doubtleſs ſome ſolitary place, where he might uſe ſome geſtures and ceremonies which he would not have others ſee, and where he might more reaſonably expect to meet with God; for both good and evil ſpirits moſt commonly appeared to perſons in ſuch places.

4 And God met Balaam h; and he ſaid unto him, I have prepared ſeven altars, and I have offered upon every altar a bullock and a ram i.

h Not to comply with Balaam's charms, nor to gratifie, but to oppoſe, his wicked deſires, and to force him againſt his own inclination and intereſt to utter the following words. i Which I pray thee accept, and give me leave to curſe thy people, as their abundant wickedneſs deſerves.

5 And the LORD put a word in Balaams mouth k, and ſaid, Return unto Balak, and thus thou ſhalt ſpeak.

k He ſuggeſted what he ſhould ſay, even thoſe words, ver. 8. 9. 10.

6 And he returned unto him, and lo, he ſtood by his burnt-ſacrifice, he, and all the princes of Moab.

7 And he took up l his parable m, and ſaid, Balak the King of Moab hath brought me from Aram n, out of the mountains of the eaſt o, ſaying, Come, curſe me Jacob p, and come, defie Iſrael.

l To wit into his mouth; he expreſſed or ſpoke. m (i. e.) His oracular and prophetical ſpeech; which he calls a parable, becauſe of the weightineſs of the matter, and the majeſty and ſmartneſs of the expreſſions which is uſual in parables. n From Aram, Meſopotamia, or Meſopotamia, Deut. 23. 4. See Gen. 10. 22. o In which quarter Aram lay. The Eaſt was infamous for charmers or ſoothſayers, Iſa. 2. 6. p The poſterity of Jacob, i. e. Iſrael, as it here follows.

8 How ſhall I curſe whom God hath not † curſed? or how ſhall I defie, whom the LORD hath not defied? q

q God hath not curſed but bleſſed Iſrael, and therefore it is vain and ridiculous attempt for me to curſe them in ſpight of God.

9 For from the top of the rocks r I ſee him, and from the hills I behold him: lo, * the people ſhall dwell alone, and ſhall not be reckoned among the nations s.

* Or, they ſhall dwell alone, and not be reckoned among the nations.

r Upon which I now ſtand. s I ſee the people, according to thy deſire, chap. 22. 41. but cannot improve that ſight to the end for which thou didſt deſign it, to wit to curſe them. t This people are of a diſtinct kind from others, God's peculiar people, ſeparated from all other nations, as in Religion and Laws, ſo alſo in divine protection; and therefore my inchantments cannot have that power againſt them which they have againſt other perſons and people. See Exod. 19. 5. Levit. 20. 24. 26.

10 Who can count the duſt of Jacob u, and the number of the fourth part of Iſrael x: Let † me dye * the death of the righteous y, and let my laſt end z be like his.

* Or, the death of the righteous.

u (i. e.) The numberleſs people of Jacob or Iſrael, who accordding to God's promiſe, Gen. 13. 16. and 28. 14. are now become as the duſt of the earth. x (i. c.) Of one of the camps of Iſrael; for they were divided into four camps, Numb. 2. which Balaam from this height could eaſily diſcover: much leſs can any man number all their hoſt. y (i. e.) Of this righteous and holy people, the Iſraelites, called Jeſurun, Deut. 32. 15. which word ſignifies upright or righteous. The ſenſe is, they are not only happy above other Nations in this life, as I have ſaid, and therefore in vain ſhould I curſe them, but they have this peculiar privilege, that they are happy after death: their happineſs begins where the happineſs of other people ends; and therefore I heartily wiſh that my ſoul may have its portion with theirs when I dye. But it was a vain wiſh, for as he would not live as God's people did, ſo he died by the ſword, as others of God's enemies did, Numb. 31. 8. Joſ. 13. 22. z (i. e.) My death, as the word is uſed. Or, My poſterity, as this Hebrew word ſignifies, Pſal. 109. 13. Dan. 11. 4. Amos 4. 2. And as the covenant and bleſſing of God given to Abraham did reach to his poſterity, ſo this might not be unknown to Balaam, which might give him occaſion for this wiſh. Or, my reward, as the word is taken, Prov. 23. 18. and 24. 20. But the firſt ſenſe ſeems the moſt true, becauſe it agrees beſt with the uſage of Scripture to repeat the ſame thing in other other words, and this includes the third ſenſe, to wit, the reward, which is here ſuppoſed to follow death; and for poſterity, it doth not appear that he had any, or, if he had, that he was ſo very ſolicitous for them; or that he knew the censure of Gods covenant with Abraham and his poſterity. May he rather ſeems to have had ſome hope of ruining Abraham's poſterity, which he attempted both here and afterwards.

11 And Balak ſaid unto Balaam What haſt thou done unto me? I took thee to curſe mine enemies, and behold, thou haſt bleſſed them altogether.

12 And he anſwered and ſaid, Muſt I not take heed to ſpeak that which the LORD hath put in my mouth a?

a I ſpeak not theſe words by my own choice, but by the conſtraint of an higher power which I cannot reſiſt.

13 And Balak ſaid unto him, Come, I pray thee, with me unto another place, from whence thou mayeſt ſee them: thou ſhalt ſee but the utmoſt part of them, and ſhalt not ſee them all b; and curſe me them from thence.

b He thought the ſight of the people neceſſary both to excite Balaam's paſſions, and to ſtrengthen and direct his conjurations, but he would now have him ſee but a part of the people, and not all, becauſe the ſight of all of them might diſmay and diſcourage him, and, as it did before, raiſe his fancy to an admiration of the multitude and of the felicity of the people, ver. 9. 10.

14 And he brought him into the field of Zophim c to the top of ‖ Piſgah d, and built ſeven altars, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

c A place ſo call'd from the ſpies & watches which were kept there. d An high hill in the land of Moab, ſo called, Deut. 3. 27. and 34. 1.

15 And he ſaid unto Balak, Stand here by thy burnt-offering, while I meet the LORD e yonder.

e To conſult him, and to receive an anſwer from him, if peradventure thoſe renewed ſacrifices will melt him into ſome compliance with our deſires.

16 And the LORD met Balaam f, and * put a word in his mouth, and ſaid, go again to Balak, and ſay thus.

* Or, ſet a word

f See above on verſe 4. and Numb. 22. 35.

17. And when he came to him, behold, he ſtood by his burnt-offering, and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak ſaid unto him, What hath the LORD ſpoken?

18 And he took up his parable, and ſaid, Riſe up g, Balak, and hearken unto me, thou ſon of Zippor:

g This word implies, either 1. The reverence wherewith he ſhould hear and receive God's meſſage, as Eliud did, Judg. 3. 20. which might have been probable, if Balak had been now ſitting, as it was there: but he was ſtanding, ver. 17. or rather 2. The diligence & attention required; ſouſe up thy ſelf and carefully mind what I ſay.

* Or, Will God lie, or the ſon of man repent?

h (i. e.) Break his Faith and Promiſes made to his People for their preſervation and benediction. i (i. e.) Change his counſels or purpoſes; which men do, either becauſe they are not able to execute them or becauſe they are better informed and their minds changed by ſome unexpected occurrent, or by their luſts and paſſions, none of which have place in God. And therefore I plainly ſee that all our endeavours and repeated ſacrifices are to no purpoſe, and can make no impreſſion in God, nor induce him to curſe thoſe whom he hath purpoſed, and ſolemnly and frequently promiſed, to bleſs. k In like a man that offſpeaks and promiſes what he either never intends, or cannot or will not perform?

20 Behold, I have received commandment to bleſs l: and he hath bleſſed, and I cannot reverſe it.

l Or, I have received a bleſſing, to wit, a ſentence of bleſſing, which God hath put into my mind and mouth, and which I cannot forbear to utter. Heb. I have received to bleſs. The infinitive put for the noun, as is frequent.

m He, (i. e.) God, underſtood, v. 20. and expreſſed, v. 19 hath not or doth not behold or ſee iniquity or perverſeneſs, i. e. any ſin, in Jacob or Iſrael; which cannot be meant of a ſimple ſeeing or knowing of him, for ſo God did ſee and obſerve, yea and chaſtiſe their ſins, as is manifeſt, Exod. 32. 9. Deut. 9. 13. but of ſuch a ſight of their ſins as ſhould provoke God utterly to forſake and curſe and deſtroy them, which was Balak's deſire, and Balaam's hope and deſign. For as Balaam knew that none but Iſraelites could curſe or deſtroy Iſrael, ſo he knew that nothing but their ſin could move him ſo to do; and therefore he took a right though wicked courſe afterwards, to tempt them to ſin, and thereby to expoſe them to ruine, Numb. 25. And Balaam had now hoped that God was incenſed againſt Iſrael for their ſins, and therefore would be prevailed with to give them up to the curſe and ſpoil. But, ſaith he, I was miſtaken, I ſee God hath a ſingular favour to this people, and though he ſees and puniſheth ſin in other perſons and people with utter deſtruction, as he hath now done in Sihon and Og and the Amorites, yet he will not do ſo with Iſrael; he winks at their ſins, forgets and forgives them, and will not puniſh them as their iniquities deſerve. In this ſenſe God is ſaid not to ſee ſin, as elſewhere he is ſaid to forget them, Iſa. 43. 25. Jer. 31 34. and, to cover them, Pſal. 32. 1. which keeps them out of ſight and ſo out of mind, and to hide them out, Pſal. 51. 1, 9. and to caſt them behind his back, Iſa. 38. 17. or, into the depth of the ſea, Mic. 7. 19. in which caſes they cannot be ſeen nor read. And men are ſaid not to know or ſee thoſe ſins in their children or others, which they do not take notice of ſo as to puniſh them. And this ſenſe beſt agrees with the context, God hath decreed and promiſed to bleſs this people, and he knows it is in vain to reſiſt him, and he knows no reaſon for, v. 20. and he will not reverſe it, though provoked to do ſo by their ſins, which he will take no notice of for the preſent. Others thus, He hath not obſerved, as hitherto he hath not, ſo for the future he will not behold, i. e. ſo as to approve it, as that word is uſed againſt Iſrael, Gen. 7. 1. Iſa. 66. 2. Hab. 1. 13. or ſo as to take care, or in that ſence, as Pſal. 5. 6, 7. Prov. 12. 21. & 22. 8. And this reſpect of the word amal rendred perverſeneſs oft notes vanity and trouble as in Pſal. 5. 6, 7. Pſal. 25. 17. & 56. 4. and the particle beth rendred in is oft uſed for againſt, as Exod. 14. 25. & 20. 16. Numb. 12. 1. So the ſenſe is, God will not ſee them wronged, or ruined by any of their adverſaries, whereof the following words may be a good reaſon. See God is with him, &c. in (i. e.) He hath a favour for this people, and will defend and ſave them. So the phraſe of God's being with a perſon or people ſignifies, as Judg. 6. 13. Pſal. 46. 7. Iſa. 8. 10. Jer. 1. 8. Such joyful and triumphant ſhouts as thoſe wherewith a people congratulate the approach and preſence of their King when he appears among them upon ſome ſolemn occaſion, or when he returns from battel with victory and ſpoils. The expreſſion implies God's being their King and Ruler, and their abundant ſecurity and juſt confidence in him as ſuch. And here is an allution to the ſilver trumpets which were made by God's command, and uſed upon a great ſolemnities, in which God the King was preſent in a ſpecial manner, Numb. 10. 9. Joſ. 6. 16, 20. 1 Sam 4. 5. 2 Sam. 6. 15. it were the ſtrength of an unicorn p: he ſhall eat up the nations his enemies, as ſacrifices uſe to be eaten by the Prieſts, Deut. 12. 9. Jer. 50. 7.

p To wit, by a ſtrong hand, and in ſpight of all their enemies, and therefore it is in vain to ſeek or hope to overcome them. Like unbecoming. Or rather, 2. Iſrael, warm God ſpeaks after the manner of men, in which God the King was preſent in a ſpecial manner, Numb. 10. 9. Joſ. 6. 16, 20. 1 Sam 4. 5. 2 Sam. 6. 15. Pſal. 46. 7. Iſa. 8. 10. Jer. 1. 8. (i. e.) Such joyful and triumphant ſhouts as thoſe wherewith a people congratulate the approach and preſence of their King when he appears among them upon ſome ſolemn occaſion, or when he returns from battel with victory and ſpoils. The expreſſion implies God's being their King and Ruler, and their abundant ſecurity and juſt confidence in him as ſuch. And here is an allution to the ſilver trumpets which were made by God's command, and uſed upon a great ſolemnities

c In the order appointed Numb. 2. d (i. e.) Inspired him to speak the following words, and so constrained him again to bless those whom he desired to curse.

3 * And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man † whose eyes are open hath said;

4 He hath said, which heard the words of God, which saw the vision f of the Almighty, falling into a trance g, but having his eyes open:

5 How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel!

6 As the valleys h are they i spread forth, as gardens by the rivers side k, as the trees of lign-aloes l which the LORD hath planted m, and as cedar-trees n beside the waters o.

7 He shall pour the water out of his buckets p, and his seed shall be in many * waters q, and his king r shall be higher than Agag s, and his kingdom shall be exalted.

8 * God brought him forth out of Egypt, he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn: he shall eat up the nations his enemies, and shall break t their bones, and pierce them through with his arrows.

9 * He couched, he lay down t as a lion, and as a great lion: who shall stir him up u? * Blessed is he that

1 Having conquered his enemies the Canaanites, and their land he shall quietly and securely rest and settle himself their. u (i. e.) Awake or provoke him

10 And Balaks anger was kindled against Balaam, and he smote his hands together x: and Balak said unto Balaam, I called thee to curse mine enemies, and behold, thou hast altogether blessed them these three times.

x A sign of great anger, Ezek. 21. 17. and 22. 13.

11. Therefore now, flee thou to thy place y: I thought to promote thee unto great honour, but lo, the LORD hath kept thee back from honour.

y Whence I sent for thee, Numb. 22. 5. z Whose commands thou hast preferred before my desires and interest; and therefore seek thy recompence from him, and not from me.

12 And Balaam said unto Balak, Spake I not also to thy messengers which thou sentest unto me, saying,

13 * If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the LORD, to do either good or bad † of mine own mind: but what the LORD saith that will I speak.

14 And now behold, I go unto my people: come therefore, and * I will advertise thee a what this people shall do to thy people in the latter days b.

a Or, inform thee, to wit, concerning future things, as it here follows, for this word seems inseparably joyned with the following. Others, give thee counsel, and tell thee what this people, &c. So it is a short and defective speech, such as we have, Exod. 4. 5. and 13. 8. And by counsel they understand that which is related, Numb. 25. 1, 2. which was done by Balaam's counsel, Numb. 31. 16. Revel. 2. 14. But the former sense is more unforced and agreeable to the following words, as they ly. b Not in thy time, therefore thou hast no reason to fear, but in succeeding ages, as 2 Sam. 8. 2. Gen.

15 And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man whose eyes were open hath said:

16 He hath said, which heard the words of God, and knew the knowledge of the most High, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

17 I shall c see him d but not now e: I shall behold him, but not nigh: there shall come a * star f out of Jacob, and a scepter g shall rise out of Israel, and shall smite the corners h of Moab, and destroy all the children of Sheth i.

c Or, I have seen, or do see, for the future is oft put for other times or tenses: he speaks of a prophetical sight, like that of Abraham's, who saw Christ's day, Joh. 8. 56. d To wit, the star, and scepter as it here follows, i. e. a great and eminent Prince, which was to come out of Israel's loyns, either 1. David, who first did the things here spoken of, 2 Sam. 8. 2. Psal. 60. 8. and 108. 9. and some of the Kings of Judah and Israel after him, for it is not necessarily understood of one particular person: or 2. the Messias, as both Jewish and Christian Interpreters expound it, who most eminently and fully performed what is here said, in destroying the enemies of Israel or of God's Church, who are here described under the names of the nearest and fiercest enemies of Israel: which he doth partly by himself, by his word and spirit, and spiritual plagues; and partly by his ministers, those princes whom he makes nursing fathers to his Church, and scourges to his Enemies. And to him alone agrees the foregoing verb properly, I shall see him, to wit, in my own person, or with the eyes of my own body, as every eye shall see him, Revel. 1. 7. when he comes to judgment. Nor can it seem strange that Balaam should speak of such high and remote things, seeing he foresaw and foretold these things by the revelation of the Spirit of God, by which also he foresaw the great felicity of good men, and the miserable state of bad men after death and judgment, Numb. 23. 10. e Not yet, but after many ages. f A title often given to Princes and eminent and illustrious persons, and particularly to the Messias, Revel. 2. 28. and 22. 16. g (i. e.) A scepter-bearer, a king or ruler, even that scepter mentioned Gen. 49. 10. h Either literally, the borders, which by a Synecdoche are oft used in Scripture for the whole country to which they belong, as Exod. 8. 2. Psal. 74. 17. and 147. 14. Jer. 15. 13. and 17. 3. Or 2. metaphorically, to wit, princes and rulers, who are sometimes compared to corners, as Zach. 10. 4. and Christ himself is called a corner stone, because he unites and supports the building. But I prefer the former sense. i Which seems to be the name of some eminent, though now unknown, place or prince in Moab, where there were many princes, as appears from Numb. 23. 6. Amos 2. 3 there being innumerable inftances of such places or persons sometimes famous, but now utterly lost as to all monuments and remembrances of them.

d Which was also foretold, Gen. 25. 23. and in part fulfilled, 2 Sam. 8. 14. 1 Chron. 18. 13. but more fully by Christ, Amos 9. 12. Obad. v. 18. who shall subdue and possess all his enemies; here signified by the name of Edom, as Jacob or Israel, his brother, signifies all his Church and people. e A part and mountain of Edom, Gen. 36. 8. which may be here mentioned as the strongest part of Edom, to shew that not only the rest of Edom, which is more accessible, but even the rocks and best munitions of it, shall be taken. f The Israelites. g Or, gain power, or riches, or victory, all which are comprehended in this phrase.

19 Out of Jacob h shall come he that shall have dominion i, and shall destroy him that remaineth of the city k.

h Out of Jacob's loyns. i David, and especially Christ. k Or, from or out of this city, i. e. the cities, the singular number for the plural, which hath been oft noted before. The sence is, He shall not only subdue those Moabites and Edomites which meet him in the field, but he shall pursue them even to their strongest holds and cities, and shall pull them out thence. Possibly he may note some eminent city in which they confided most, their Metropolis or royal city as may be guessed from Psal. 60. 9.

20 And when he looked l on Amalek, he took up his parable, and said, Amalek was ‖ the first m of the nations, but his latter end ‖ shall be that he perish for ever n.

l From the top of Pisgah, which was exceeding high, and gave him the prospect of parts of all these kingdoms. m Heb. the first of his fruits; so called either, 1. because they were the first of all the, Exod. neighboring nations which were embodied together in one government: or, 2. because they were the most powerful and eminent of or, shall them, as is implied above, ver. 7. the best things in each kind be-even to ing oft signified by the name of first-fruits. Or, 3. because he was fruitless. the first who fought against Israel and was vanquished by them, in that famous battel Exod. 17. which victory was an earnest and first-fruits of that large harvest of victories which the Israelites should in due time get over all their enemies, and among others, over Amalek himself, 1 Sam. 15. 3. n He began with God and with Israel, but God will end with him, and the firm purpose and will of God is, that he shall be utterly destroyed, Exod. 17. 14. so that Saul lost his kingdom for not executing this decree and God's command pursuant thereunto, 1 Sam. 15.

21 And he looked on * the Kenite o, and took up his parable, and said, Strong is thy dwelling-place, and thou puttest thy nest p in a rock:

o The posterity or kindred of Jethro; not that part of them which dwelt among the Israelites, to whom the following words do not agree, but those of them who were mingled with the Amalekites and Midianites. See Exod. 3. 1. Judg. 1. 16. & 4. 11. 1 Sam. 15. 6. p (i. e.) Thy dwelling-place, so called, either because it was in an high place, as nests commonly are: or from their security and confidence of continuing long and safe in it: See Job 29. 18. or in allusion to their name, for ken in Hebrew signifies a nest.

q Heb. Kain, i. e. the Kenite, so called, either by a transposition of letters, which is very usual in the Hebrew tongue: or from the name of some eminent place where they lived, or person from whom they were descended, though now the memory of them be utterly lost, as it hath fared with innumerable other places and persons famous in their generations mentioned in ancient heathen writers. r (i. e.) Shall be by degrees diminished and wafted by the incursions of divers enemies, till at last the Assyrian comes to compleat the work and carries them into captivity. For the Kenites lived partly among the ten tribes, Jos. 19. 33. compared with Judg. 4. 11. and partly with the two tribes, Judg. 1. 16. & 4. 16. 17. and were carried captive with them, part by Salmanasser, the king of Assyria, 2 King. 17. 6. and part by Nebuchadnezzar, who also is called an Assyrian, Ezra 6. 22. Isa. 52. 4. The words may be rendred thus, shall be wasted. How long? to wit, shall they be thus wasted? (these particles being oft used abruptly and pathetical y in the same manner, Psal. 6. 3. & 90. 13. Isa. 6. 11.) till Asshur comes, Asshur shall carry thee away captive.

23 And he took up his parable, and said, Alas! who shall live s when God doth this?

s How calamitous and miserable will the state of the World be, when the Assyrian, and after him the Chaldean, shall over-run and over-turn all these parts of the World? who will be able to live and keep his heart from fainting under such grievous pressures? how few will then escape the destroying sword?

24 And ships shall come from the coast of Chittim t, and shall afflict Asshur, and shall afflict Eber u, and he also x shall perish for ever.

t A place or people so called from Chittim the son of Javan, Gen. 10. 4. whose posterity were very numerous, and were first seated in the lesser Asia, and from thence sent forth colonies into the illands of the Ægean Sea, and into Cyprus, and afterwards into Macedonia and other parts of Greece, and then into Italy. Whence it comes to pass that by this name is understood sometimes Macedonia, as appears from 1 Macc. 1. 1. and 1 Mac. 8. 5. and sometimes Italy, as is manifest from Dan. 11. 29, 30. and sometimes both, as in this place: for he speaks here of the scourge that God hath appointed for the Assyrian after he had done God's work in punishing of his people and the bordering nations. Now although the Assyrian and Chaldean empire was subdued by the Medes and Persians, yet the chief afflictions and calamities of that people came from two hands, both from the sea and brought to them by ships, as is here expressed: first from the Grecians under Alexander and his successors, by whom that people were grievously oppressed and wasted; then from the Romans, who subdued all the Grecian empire, one great part whereof were the Assyrians largely so called, and after many bloody wars made them a colony. u (i. e.) The posterity of Eber, Gen. 10. 24. the Hebrews, who were the chief and flower of Ebers children, and therefore are here designed by that general name, such general expressions being oft used concerning one particular and the most eminent of its kind. And it pleased God to express it in this manner here, because though he would foretel this for the comfort and instruction of his people in after ages, yet he would not have Balak, nor Balaam neither, understand or utter any thing which might seem to thwart that happy estate of Israel, which Balaam clearly saw and openly applauded. x Not the Hebrews, as some understand, for his affliction was now mentioned before, and other Scriptures tell us they shall have a better end, and that all Israel shall be saved, and therefore not perish for ever, but the affliction or scourge of Asshur and Eber, to wit, the Grecian and Roman Empire.

25 And Balaam rose up, and went, and returned to his place y: and Balak also went his way.

y (i. e.) To Mesopotamia. Obj. He went only to Midian, where he was slain, Numb. 31. 8. Answ. 1. He is said to return home, because he intended and began to do so, tho' he was diverted by the Midianites: For men in Scripture are oft said to do what they design or attempt to do, as Exod. 8. 18. Numb. 14. 40. Josh. 2. He did go homeward, tho' afterwards he returned to the Midianites, either because they sent for him, or to recover his lost credit, and to do that by policy which he could not do by charms, to which purpose he gave them that devilish counsel which was put in practice, Numb. 25. and that by his advice, Rev. 2. 14. 31. 16.

CHAP. XXV.

The Israelites Whoredom and Idolatry: God commands the guilty to be put to death: Phinehas, a Priest, is blessed for his zeal: God proclaims a War against the Midianites, and immediately upon the notice he gives him of their Treachery in arming the People to fall upon Israel.

1 AND Israel abode in * Shittim a, and the people b began to commit whoredom c with the daughters of Moab d.

a A place called more largely, Abel-Shittim, Numb. 33. 49. it being usual with the Hebrews to abbreviate long proper names, as Bethsaida is put for Bethsaidamus, Judg. 3. 3. Tola for Elechtad, Jos. 19. 4. Ataroth for Ataroth-addar, Jos. 16. 5. for Beth-nimrim, Numb. 32. 36. And this was their last station, from whence they passed immediately into Canaan. So this is here noted as a great aggravation of their sin, that they committed it, when God was going to put them into the possession of their long-expected and much-desired land. b Not all, but many of them, as appears from Deut. 4. 3. 4. 1 Cor. 10. 8. c Both corporally and spiritually, either because they prostituted themselves to them upon condition of worshipping their God: or because their filthy God was worshipped by such filthy acts, as Priapus and Venus were. d And of Midian too, as is evident from ver. 6 17, 18. and Numb. 31. 16 for both these people being confederated in this wicked design, the one is put for the other, and the daughters of Moab may be named, either because they began the transgression or because they were the chief persons, possibly, the relations or courtiers of Balak king of Moab.

2 And * they called e the people unto the sacrifices * Jer. 32. of their gods f: and the people did eat, and bowed 7. Psal. down g to their gods h: 106. 28.

e This may be noted, either 1. as the consequent of their whoredom, an invitation to further society in their sacred feasts; or rather 2. as the cause or occasion of their whoredom, the Hebrew word here signifying for, as it oft doth. The Moabites being now neighbours to the Israelites, and finding themselves unable to effect their design against Israel by war and witchcraft, they now fell another way to work, by contracting familiarity with them, and, perceiving their evil and lustful inclinations, their i. e. their daughters, left mentioned, invited them to their feasts. e (i. e.) Unto the feasts which were made of their parts of their sacrifices, after the manner of the Jews and Gentiles too, the participation whereof, was reckoned a participation in the worship of that God to whom the sacrifices were offered, 1 Cor. 10. 8. and therefore was forbidden to the Israelites when such gifts and sacrifices belonged to a false God, Exod. 34. 15. Yet this was a less and more modest kind of Idolatry, and therefore is justly used to it when it was more gross and impious. f (i. e.) Of their God, Baal-peor, the plural Elohim being here used, as commonly it is, for one God. g Which properly notes the outward act of worship, which here consisting in, or being accompanied with filthy actions, may either signifie or connote them. h Before their Gods, or, to the honour and worship of their Gods.

3 And Israel joyned himself i unto Baal-peor k: and the anger of the LORD was kindled l against Israel.

i The word implies a forsaking of God to whom they were and should have been joyned, and a turning to, embracing of, strict conjunction with, and fervent affection after, this false God. Compare Hos. 9. 10. and 2 Cor. 6. 14. k Called Baal, by the name common to many false Gods, and especially to those that represented any of the heavenly bodies, and Peor, either from the hill Peor, where he was worshipped, Numb. 23. 28. or rather from a verb signifying to open and uncover, either because of the obscene posture in which possibly the Idol was set, as Pictures were: or because of the filthiness which was exercised in his worship. l (i. e.) Discovered it self in a dreadful plague, Psal. 106. 29.

4 And the LORD said unto Moses, * Take all the heads of the people, and hang them up m before the LORD n against the sun o, that the fierce anger of the LORD may be turned away from Israel. * Deut. 4. 3. Jos. 22. 17

m The sense is, either 1. Take, to wit, by the self and thy assistance, all the heads, i. e. the Judges, as they are called ver. 5. Or Rulers, of the People, and in their presence, and their help, hang them, i. e. the people, now mentioned, to wit, such of them as were guilty, as was said ver. 2. And this seems to be favoured by the next verse, where the execution of this command is mentioned, Moses said unto the Judges of Israel, whom he had taken to himself and called together, Slay i. e. every one his men, i. e. Each of you execute this command of God, and hang up the delinquents under your several jurisdictions. Or 2. Take, i. e. apprehend, all the heads, i. e. the chief, of the people, such as were chief, either in this transgression, or rather in place and power, who are singled out to this exemplary punishment either for their neglect in not preventing, restraining or punishing the offenders according to their power and duty, or for their concurrence with others in this wickedness, which was more odious and mischievous in them than in others. And then this must be necessarily limited to such heads as were guilty, which is evident from the nature of the thing, and from the words of the verse. And to these heads of the people differ as in name and title, so in place and dignity from the judges of the people, ver. 5. which may seem to note the superior Magistrates, even the 70 Elders, which, being persons of great worth and piety, chosen by God, and endowed with his spirit, most probably kept themselves from this contagion, and therefore were fitter to punish others; and the heads of the People, seem to be the inferior Magistrates, the rulers of tens or hundreds, or the like, who as they did many of them, partake with the people in other rebellions, so probably were involved in this guilt. Now these are to be hanged up as other malefactors, and condemned persons were, Deut. 21. 23. 2 Sam. 21. 6. n To the vindication of God's honour and justice. o (i. e.) Publickly, as these sin was publick and scandalous, and speedily before the Sun go down. But withal this phrase may signifie, that these also must be taken down about Sun-setting, as other malefactors were, Deut. 21. 23.

*Exod. 32. 27. 5 And Moses said unto the judges of Israel, * slay ye every one his men p that were joined unto Baal-Peor.

p (i.e.) Those under his charge: for as these 70 were chosen to assist Moses in the government, so doubtless the care and management of the people was distributed among them by just and equal proportions.

6 And behold q one of the children of Israel came, and brought into his brethren r a Midianitish woman, in the sight of Moses s, and in the sight of all the congregation t of the children of Israel, who were weeping u before the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

q This was done, either 1. Before God's command to Moses, and by him to the Judges, ver. 4, 5. such transpositions and disorders being not unusual in sacred story. Or rather, 2. In the order it is related, to wit, when Moses had given the charge to the Judges, and, as it may seem, before the execution of it, otherwise it is probable he would not have been so bold and foolish to have run upon present and certain ruin, when the examples were fresh and frequent before his eyes. r (i.e.) Into the camp of the Israelites, or to his Friends and Relations in his tent, whither he carried her, ver. 8. for his or their flathly satisfaction. s An argument of intolerable impudence and contempt of God and of Moses. t (i.e.) The rulers of the congregation with divers of the people. u Bewailing the abominable wickedness of the people, and the dreadful judgments of God, and imploring God's mercy and favour.

*Psal. 106. 30. 7 And * when Phinehas the * son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose up from amongst the congregation, and took a javelin in his hand,

*Exod. 6. 25. 8 And he went after the man of Israel into the * tent v, and thrust both of them through y, the man of Israel and the woman through her belly z: so the plague a was stayed from the children of Israel.

x Or, Brothel-house: For since they gave way to such lewd practices, no doubt they singled out convenient places for their wickedness. y Which is no warrant for private persons to take upon them the execution of justice upon any, though the greatest malefactors, because Phinehas was himself a man in great authority and power, and did this after the command given by Moses to the rulers to slay these transgressors, and in the very sight, and no doubt, by the consent of Moses himself, and also by the special instinct and direction of God's spirit. z Or in her brothel-house, for the word is the same before used, and translated tent, and it may be called hers, because the choice or usual place for her wicked purposes, as the rest doubtless did other places of like nature. a Either the pestilence, or some other sudden and grievous mortality.

*1 Cor. 10. 8. 9 And * those that died in the plague, were twenty and four thousand b.

b Object. They were but 23000. 1 Cor. 10. 8. Answ. The odd thousand here added were slain by the Judges according to the order of Moses, the rest by the immediate hand of God, but both forts paid the price of the plague, the word being used, as oft it is, for the sword, or hand, or stroke of God.

10 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

*Psal. 106. 30. 11 * Phinehas the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel, (while he was zealous c for my sake d among them) that I consumed not the children of Israel in my jealousie.

c Fervent and resolute and valiant. d For my satisfaction and vindication.

12 Wherefore say, Behold, I give unto him my covenant of peace e.

e (i.e.) The covenant of an everlasting priesthood, as it is expounded, v. 13. which is called a covenant of peace, partly with respect to the happy effect of this heroical action of his, whereby he made peace between God and his people; and partly with regard to the principal end and use of the Priestly office, which was constantly to do that which Phinehas now did, even to mediate between God and Men, to obtain and preserve his own and Israel's peace and reconciliation with God, by offering up sacrifices and incense, and prayers, to God on their behalf, Numb. 16. 47, 48. as also by turning them away from iniquity, which is the only peace-breaker, and by teaching and pressing the observation of that Law, which is the only bond of their peace, Mal. 2. 5, 6, 7.

13 And he shall have it, and his seed after him f, even the covenant of an everlasting priesthood g, because he was zealous for his God, and made an atonement for the children of Israel.

f Quest. What advantage had he by this promise, seeing the thing here promised was due to him by birth? Josh. 1. The same blessing may be oft-times promised, as the Kingdom was to David; and the renewing of this promise might seem convenient here, to signifie that bloodshed was so far from polluting him, and thereby casting him out of the Priesthood, that it was a mean to confirm him in it. 2. This promise secured him and his against divers contingences, which otherwise might have befallen him or them, as that he should live longer than his father, else he could not have been the High-priest; that he should be preserved from those blemishes which might have rendred him uncapable of the Priesthood, which were many; that he should have a seed, and they such as were fit for that office. g (i.e.) To continue as long as the Law and Commonwealth of the Jews did. Quest. How was this verified, seeing the Priesthood went from Eleazar's to Ithamar's line in Eli and three or four of his Successors? Josh. 1. This promise, as others of the like nature, was conditional, and therefore might be made void and of none effect, by the miscarriages of Phinehas his sons, as it seems it was, and thereupon a like promise was made to Eli of the line of Ithamar, that he and his should walk before the Lord to wit, in the office of High-priest, for ever, which also for his and their sins was made void, 1 Sam. 2. 30. Answ. 2. That was but a short interruption, and not considerable in so long a succession, for the Priesthood returned to Phinehas his line in the time of Solomon, 1 King. 2. 26, 27, 35. 1 Chron. 24. 3. and continued in that line till the captivity of Babylon, as is evident, and afterward too, 1 Chron. 6. 4. Ezra 7. 1, 5. even until Christ's time, for any thing which appears to the contrary.

14 Now the name of the Israelite that was slain, even that was slain with the Midianitish woman, was Zimri the son of Salu, a prince h of † a chief house i among the Simeonites k.

h This is added as a proof of Phinehas his zeal that he durst venture upon so great a person, who was likely to have many avengers of his blood. i Heb. Of the house of his Fathers. Every Tribe was divided into great Houses called the houses of their Fathers, Numb. 1. 2. and he was the Prince or chief of one of these, though not of the whole Tribe. † Of the Tribe of Simeon, which seems to have been too much influenced by his and other such examples, for that the 59300. which were numbred, Numb. 1. 22, 23. there were now only 22200. Numb. 26. 14.

15 And the name of the Midianitish woman that was slain, was Cozbi the daughter of Zur l; he was head over a people, and of a chief house m in Midian.

l One of the Kings or Princes of Midian, Numb. 31. 8. Josh. 13. 21. m Or, and over her father's house.

17 * Vex the Midianites n and smite them o.

n And why not the Moabites, who were as guilty, ver. 1. Answ. 1. Because God will reserve to himself a liberty of punishing or sparing, according to his own good pleasure. 2 God had a kindness for the Moabites for Lot's sake, Deut. 2. 9. 3. God punished the Moabites in another manner, to wit, by his own immediate hand, whereby it is probable he cut off those Moabitish women that were guilty of this fact, partly by a particular and dreadful kind of excommunication, Deut. 23. 3 and partly by impunity, which in its consequences is commonly worse and more pernicious than any or all temporal punishments, which none that believes the Bible can deny. 4 It is probable the Midianites were most guilty, as in perswading Balak to send for Balaam, as may be gathered from Numb. 22. 4. So in the reception of Balaam after Balak had dismissed him, Numb. 31. 8. and in further consultation with him, and in contriving the means for the executing of this wicked plot. o (i. e.) Kill them: in which words as there is a command to war against them, so there is a promise of success.

18 For they vex you with their wiles p, wherewith they have beguiled you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi q, the daughter of a prince of Midian, their sister r, which was slain in the day of the plague for Peors sake.

p For under pretence of Kindred and Friendship and Leagues, yea and Marriages, which they offered to them, instead of the War which the Israelites expected from them, they fought only an opportunity to insinuate themselves into their familiarity, and execute their hellish plot of bringing that curse upon the Israelites, which they had in vain attempted to bring another way. q By drawing you both to spiritual and corporal whoredom. r In a large sense, to wit, their Country woman.

CHAP. XXVI.

Israel numbred: such as were fit for War: of every Tribe: Levi excepted: their Number, 1——51. The Land to be distributed according to their Number, 52——56. The Levites numbred by themselves, because they had no Inheritance, 57——62. All that were numbred by Moses and Aaron at Sinai, save only Caleb and Joshua, died in the Wilderness, 63——65.

1 AND it came to pass after the plague a that the LORD spake unto Moses, and unto Eleazar * the son of Aaron the priest, saying, a Last mentioned, chap. 25. 8, 9. b Who, his father being dead, was High-priest.

2 Take the sum c of all the congregation of the children of Israel * from twenty years old and upward, throughout their fathers house, all that are able to go to war in Israel.

c They were numbred twice before, Exod. 30. 11, 12. and Numb. 1. 1, 2. Now they are numbred a third time, partly to demonstrate the faithfulness of God, both in curting all those off whom he had threatned to cut off, Numb. 14. 29. and in a stupendious increase and multiplication of the people according to his promise, notwithstanding all their sins, and the sweeping judgments inflicted upon them; and partly to prepare the way for the equal division of the Land which they were now going to possess.

3 And Moses and Eleazar the priest spake with them in the plains of Moab d, by Jordan near Jericho e saying, d See Numb. 22. 1. & 33. 48. e See Numb. 22. 1.

4 Take the sum of the people f, from twenty years old and upward as the LORD * commanded Moses, and the children of Israel which went forth out of the land of Egypt.

f Which words are easily supplied and necessarily to be understood from ver. 2.

Gen. 46. 9. Exod. 6. 14. Chro. 5. 3. 5 * Reuben the eldest son of Israel: the children of Reuben; Hanochic, of whom cometh the family of the Hanochites: of Pallu, the family of the Palluite:

6 Of Hesron, the family of the Hesronite: of Carmi, the family of the Carmite.

7 These are the families g of the Reubenite: and they that were numbred of them, were forty and three thousand and seven hundred and thirty h

g (i.e.) The chief houses, which were subdivided into divers lesser families. h Whereas their last numbring they were 46500, Numb. 1. 21. for Korah's conspiracy, as well as other provocations of theirs had cut off many of them.

8 And the sons i of Pallu: Eliab.

i For, son, of which change of the number. See Gen. 21. 7. & 46. 7.

9 And the sons of Eliab; Nemuel, and Dathan, and Gen. 46. 9. Abiram: this is that Dathan, and Abiram, which were * famous in the congregation, who strove against Moses, and against Aaron in the company of Korah, when they strove against the LORD.

10 And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up together with Korah k, when that company died, what time the fire devoured two hundred and fifty men: and they became a sign l:

k According to this translation Korah was not consumed by fire with his 250 men, Numb. 16. but swallowed up by the Earth. But others rather think he was devoured by the fire, of which see on Numb. 16. 32, 35. and render these words, and the things of Korah, or belonging to Korah, to wit, his tent and goods, and family, children excepted as here follows. Which interpretation receives strength by comparing this place with Numb. 16. 32. And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them (to wit, Dathan and Abiram, as is manifest from ver. 24. 25, 27.) up and their houses, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, which variation of the phrase plainly shews that Korah himself was not swallowed up with them, but only his men and his tabernacle, which is mentioned there together with the tabernacles of Dathan and Abiram, ver. 24. 27. but his person is not there mentioned with their persons. Nor is it unusual both in sacred and profane authors, by the name of a man who is the head and master to understand not only his house and family, though himself be not included. But this difficulty may be cleared another way. The Hebrew particle eth may be here the note of a Nominative case, as it is 2 Kings 6. 5. Job 9. 19. Jer. 38. 16. Ezek. 39. 14. & 43. 7. and there may be a defect of a verb, which is most frequent, and so the place may be rendred thus, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, to wit, Dathan and Abiram, ver. 9. and Korah got, and as for Korah he died (which verb is easily understood out of the following noun, of which Ellipsis there are many instances in Scripture, some whereof have been given before, and more will follow in their places) in the death of that company, or when that company died, what time the fire devoured the two hundred and fifty men. And so this place, and Numb. 16. 35. explain one another, and whereas there is mention only of 250 men consumed by that fire, Korah is here added to the number. l (i. e.) God made them a monument or example, to warn others not to rebel against God nor against Magistracy, nor to usurp the Priestly Office.

11 Notwithstanding the children of Korah died not m. m God being pleased to spare them, either because they disowned their fathers fact, and thereupon separated themselves both from his tent and company, or because Moses interceded for them, or because God would glorifie his own free mercy in sparing some, while he punished others, according to his declaration in a like case, Exod. 33. 19. Hence the sons of Korah are mentioned, 1 Chron. 6. 22, 38. and oft in the book of Psalms.

12 The sons of Simeon after their families: of Nemuel n, the family of the Nemuelite: of Jamin, the family of the Jaminite: of Jachin o, the family of the Jachinite:

n Called Jemuel, Gen. 46. 10. Exod. 6. 15. o Called also Jarib, 1 Chron. 4. 24. And such names might be either added or changed upon some special occasion not recorded in Scripture.

13 Of Zerah p, the family of the Zarhite: of Shaul, the family of the Shaulite.

p Called also Zohar, Gen. 46 10. Exod. 6. 15. There is another of his sons, Obad, mentioned Gen. 46. 10. not here, possibly because his family was extinct before this time.

14 These are the families of the Simeonite: twenty and two thousand and two hundred p.

p Whereas there were 37400 in Numb. 1. 23. It is thought the example of Zimri, one of their princes, Numb. 25. and some others among them, did infect the generality of the Tribe, and so caused this great diminution, in their numbers.

15 The children of Gad q after their families: of Zephon r, the family of the Zephonite; of Haggi, the family of the Haggite: of Shuni, the family of the Shunite.

q Who is placed next, because he was joined with Reuben and Simeon in the same camp and quarters, Numb. 2. 10, 14. r Called Zephion, Gen. 46. 16.

16 Of Ozni s, the family of the Oznites: of Eri, the family of the Erites:

s Called Ezbon, Gen. 46. 16.

17 Of Arod t, the family of the Arodites: of Areli, the family of the Arelites.

t Called Arodi, Gen. 46. 16.

18 These are the families of the children of Gad, according to those that were numbred of them, forty thousand and five hundred u.

u Fewer by above 5000 than there were in their last numbring, Numb. 2. 15.

Gen. 38. 2. Exc. and 46. 12. 19 * The sons of Judah were Er and Onan: and Er * and Onan died in the land of Canaan.

20 And the sons of Judah after their families were: of Shelah, the family of the Shelanites: of Pharez, the family of the Pharzites: of Zerah, the family of the Zarhites.

21 And the sons of Pharez x were; of Hesron, the family of the Hesronites: of Hamul, the family of the Hamulites.

x Which though Judah's Grandchildren are here mentioned among his sons, because they are put in the stead of Er and Onan, which died before.

22 These are the families of Judah, according to those that were numbred of them, threescore and sixteen thousand and five hundred y.

y About 9000 more than they were, Num. 1. 27. whereas the foregoing Tribes were all diminished, this Tribe was now encreased, and the blessing promised to that Tribe above the rest, Gen. 49. 8. doth herein begin to shew it self.

23 * Of the sons of Issachar after their families: of * Gen. 46. Tola, the family of the Tolaites: of Pua z, the family of the Punites.

z Called also Phuvah, Gen. 46. 13. as his brother Jashub, ver. 24. is called Job, Gen. 46. 13.

24 Of Jashub, the family of the Jashubites: of Shimron, the family of the Shimronites.

25 These are the families of Issachar, according to those that were numbred of them, threescore and four thousand and three hundred a.

a A great increase. Compare Numb. 2. 6.

26 Of * the sons of Zebulun, after their families, of * Gen. 46. Sered, the families of the Sardites: of Elon, the family of the Elonites: of Jahleel, the family of the Jahleelites.

27 These are the families of the Zebulunites, according to those that were numbred of them, threescore thousand and five hundred b.

b Whereas before they were but 57400 in Numb. 1. 31. & 2. 8. So that Judah's camp was much encreased, as Reuben's was much diminished.

28 * The sons of Joseph, after their families, were * Gen. 46. Manasseh and Ephraim. 20.

29 Of the sons of Manasseh: of * Machir, the family of the Machirites: and Machir begat Gilead: of * Josh. 17. 1. Gilead come the family of the Gileadites c.

c Gilead is here mentioned as Machir only son, and therefore some conceive that the family of the Machirites, and of the Gileadites, are one and the same family, only called by two names, first Machirites, but after wards Gileadites. Others make them distinct families, because Machir had other children, Gen. 50. 23. 1 Chron. 7. 14, 15, 16. which are called by their fathers name, Machirites, whereas the children of his eldest son Gilead are called by his name, Gileadites. But though Machir had other children, it seems they and their posterity were extinct at this time, and that Machir alone was left and his posterity, as may be gathered by comparing this and the following verses with Jos. 17. 1, 2, 3. & 1 Chron. 7. 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19.

30 These are the sons of Gilead, of Jeezer d, the family of the Jeezerites: of Helek, the family of the Helekites.

d Called also Abiezer, Jos. 17. 2. Judg. 6. 11, 34. 1 Chron. 7. 18.

31 And of Asriel, the family of the Asrielites: and of Sechem, the family of the Sechemites:

32 And of Shemida, the family of Shemidaites: and of Hepher, the family of the Hepherites.

33 And * Zelophead the son of Hepher had no sons * ch. 27. 1. but daughters: and the names of the daughters of Zelophead, were Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

34 These are the families of Manasseh, and those that were numbred of them, fifty and two thousand and seven hundred e.

e Whereas they were but 32200. in Numb. 1. 35. So they are now increased above 20000. according to that prophecy, Gen. 49. 22.

35 These are the sons of Ephraim, after their families: of Shuthelah, the family of the Shuthalhites: of Becher f, the family of the Bachrites: of Tahan, the family of the Tahanites.

f Called also Bered, 1 Chron. 7. 20.

36 And these are the sons of Shuthelah: of Eran g, the family of the Eranites.

g Called Edan or Hadan, 1 Chron. 7. 26. the letters Daleth and Resh being alike in the Hebrew tongue, and therefore oft changed, as is evident from Scripture-instances.

37 These are the families of the sons of Ephraim, according to those that were numbred of them, thirty and two thousand and five hundred. These are the sons of Joseph after their families.

* 1 Chron. 7. 6. 38 * The sons of Benjamin b after their families: of Bela, the family of the Belaites: of Ashbel i, the family of the Ashbelites: of Ahiram k, the family of the Ahiramites:

b Who were ten, Gen. 46. 21. whereof only five are here mentioned, the rest probably, together with their families, being extinct ere this time. i Called also Jediael, 1 Chron. 7. 6. k Called also Aharah, 1 Chron. 8. 1. and Ehi, Gen. 46. 21.

39 Of Shupham l, the family of the Shuphamites: of Hupham m, the family of the Huphamites.

l Called also Shoupham, 1 Chron. 7. 12. and Muppim, Gen. 46. 21.

m Called Huppim, Gen. 46. 21. 1 Chron. 7. 12.

40 And the sons of Bela were Ard and Naaman: of Ard n, the family of the Ardites: and of Naaman, the family of the Naamites.

n Or, Ardi, and by transposition, Addar, 1 Chron. 8. 3.

41 These are the sons of Benjamin after their families: and they that were numbred of them, were forty and five thousand and six hundred.

42 These are the sons of Dan after their families: of Shuham o, the family of the Shuhamites. These are the families of Dan after their families p.

o Called, by transposition, Hushim, Gen. 46. 23. p The greater families subdivided into lesser families.

43 All the families of the Shuhamites, according to those that were numbred of them, were threescore and four thousand and four hundred q.

q All from one son and family, whereas of Benjamin who had ten sons, and here five families, there were only 45600. to shew that the increase of families depends singly upon God's blessing and good pleasure.

1 Chron. 7. 30. 44 * Of the children of Asher after their families: of Jimna, the family of the Jimnites: of Jesui r, the family of the Jesuites; of Beriah, the family of the Berilites.

r Called Ishui, Gen. 46. 17. where also there is another son of Asher named, to wit, Ishuah, whose family seems now to be lost.

45 Of the sons of Beriah: of Heber, the family of the Heberites: of Malchiel, the family of the Malchielites.

46 And the name of the daughter of Asher, was Sarah s.

s Who seems to be here mentioned because she was a woman of masculine wisdom, or courage, or other vertue.

47 These are the families of the sons of Asher, according to those that were numbred of them, who were fifty and three thousand and four hundred t.

t Whereas they were only 41500 in Numb. 1. 41.

* Gen. 46. 24. 1 Chron. 7. 13. 1 Chron. 8. Sechalum. 48 * Of the sons of Naphtali after their families: of Jahzeel, the family of the Jahzeelites: of Guni, the family of the Gunites:

49 Of Jezer, the family of the Jezerites: of * Shillem, the family of the Shillemites.

50 These are the families of Naphtali, according to their families: and they that were numbred of them, were forty and five thousand and four hundred.

51 These were the numbred of the children of Israel, six hundred thousand, and a thousand seven hundred and thirty u.

u Very nigh as many as there were before, Numb. 1. 46. So wisely and marvellously did God at the same time manifest his justice in cutting off so vast a number, and his mercy in giving such a speedy and numerous supply, and his truth in both.

52 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

53 Unto these x the land shall be divided y for an inheritance, according to the number of names z.

x To these families now mentioned. y By lot, ver. 55. The land was divided into nine parts and an half, respect being had in such division to the goodness as well as to the largeness of the several portions, and the lot gave each tribe their part. z (i.c.) Of the persons, persons being oft put for persons, as Act. 1. 15. Phil. 2. 9. Rev. 3. 4. & 11. 13. The meaning is, that the share of each tribe was divided amongst the several families, to some more, to some less, according to the number of the persons of each family, Numb. 33. 54. And withal, if one of the lots or portions proved too large or too little for all the families and persons of that tribe, in this case they might either give part of their portion to another tribe, as Simeon and Dan had parts of Judah's share, Jos. 19. 4, 40. or take away a part from the portion belonging to another tribe.

a Then May. partly by the self, for he divided the land between the two tribes and an half, and partly by thy successors, to wit, Joshua for 9 tribes, whom thou shalt empower and command to do it. b According to the number of the families and persons now numbred and being 20 years old, no regard being to be had either to any increase of the number by those who came up to that age between this time and the division of the land, or to the diminution of this number by the sword of Canaanites or otherwise.

c Which lots seem to have been cast only for the tribes, not as some would have it for the several families, for the distribution of it to them was left to the rulers wisdom according to the rule now given, ver. 54. Yet, if any lot was too large for the Tribe, they might give up part of their right to others, with the Rulers consent, as Judah gave a share to Simeon and to Dan within his lot. d (i.e.) The lots shall go under the names of each tribe or each Patriarch.

56 According to the lot shall the possession thereof be divided between many and few e.

e (i.e.) That share, which shall by Lot fall to each tribe, shall be distributed to the several families and persons in such proportions as their numbers shall require.

57 * And these are they that were numbred of the Levites: of Gershon the family of the Gershonites: of Kohath, the family of the Kohathites: of Merari, the family of the Merarites.

58 These are the families of the Levite f: the family of the Libnites, the family of the Hebronites, the family of the Mahlites, the family of the Mushites, the family of the Korhites: and Kohath begat Amram.

f Which are here numbred by themselves, because they were not to have a distinct share of the land, whence it is that they are not so distinctly and exactly mentioned as the other tribes, but confusedly and imperfectly, some of them being who ly omitted here. See Exod. 6. 17, 18, 19.

59 And the name of Amrams wife was * Jochebed, the daughter of Levi, whom her mother g bare to Levi in Egypt: and she bare unto Amram, Aaron and Moses, and Miriam their sister.

g To wit, Levi's wife, which must necessarily be understood.

60 And unto Aaron was born Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar.

61 And * Nadab and Abihu died, when they offered * strange fire before the LORD.

62 And those that were numbred of them, were twenty and three thousand h, all males from a month old and upward i: for they were not numbred among the children of Israel, because there was no inheritance given them among the children of Israel.

h One thousand more than they were, Numb. 3. 39. i The reason of which different way of numbring, see on Numb. 3. 15.

63 These are they that were numbred by Moses and Eleazar the priest, who numbred the children of Israel in the plains of Moab, by Jordan near Jericho.

64 But among these there was not a man of them whom Moses and Aaron the priest numbred, when they numbred the children of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai.

65 For the LORD had said of them, They * shall surely die in the wilderness: and there was not left a man of them i, save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

i To wit, of those who then murmured and rebelled against God, as plainly appears both because this threatning and punishment is confined to those transgressors, and because otherwise this had not been true, for of those that were then numbred there were now left Eleazar and Ithamar, and possibly many of the Levites, and some others, who being not guilty of that sin did not partake of their judgment. Caleb and Joshua are mentioned here, as also Numb. 14. not by way of exception, as if these were murmurers, which is utterly denied, Numb. 14. 24. but by way of opposition, to signify that they, though they were two of the Spies, and companions of them who were the chief authors and ringleaders of that mutiny, yet they kept themselves from their sin, and therefore God kept them from their plague and destruction, as also he did some others for the same reason.

CHAP. XXVII.

The Law of Inheritance: for Daughters on defect of Sons: and on defect of them to the Brother: and if there be none, to the next Kinsman. 1——11. God Commands Moses to go up into a Mountain to view the Land of Canaan, and die there: The Reason, 12——14. Moses prays to the Lord to appoint an able Successor, 15——17. Joshua chosen, and confirm'd in his Office by Imposition of hands before all the People, 18——23.

THen came the daughters of * Zelophehad a, the son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of Manasseh, the son of Joseph; and these are the names of his daughters; Mahlah, Noah and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Tirzah.

a Perceiving that the males only were numbred, and that the land was to be divided to them only, they put in their claim for a share in their fathers inheritance.

2 And they stood before Moses, and before Eleazar the priest, and before the princes, and all the congregation, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation b, saying,

b Nigh unto which it seems was the place where Moses and the chief rulers assembled for the administration of publick affairs, which also was very convenient, because they had frequent occasion of recourse to God for his assistance and direction therein.

3 Our father * died in the wilderness, and he was not c in the company of them that gathered themselves together against the LORD * in the company of Korah c: but died in his own sin d, and had no sons.

c Nor in any other rebellion of the people, which must be understood, because all of them are opposed to his own sin, in which alone he is said to die. But they mention this only either 1. because he might possibly be accused to be guilty of this: Or 2. because, he being an eminent person might be thought guilty of that rather than of any other, because the great and famous men were more concerned in that rebellion than others: Or 3. to gain the favour of Moses, against whom that rebellion was more particularly directed, and more desperately prosecuted than any other. Or 4. because peradventure he died about that time, and therefore might be presumed guilty of that crime. Or, rather, 5. because that sin, and, as it may seem, that only of all the sins committed in the wilderness, was of such a flagitious nature, that God thought fit to extend the punishment not only to the persons of those rebels, but also to their children and families, Numb. 16. 27, 32. as was usual in like cases, as Deut. 13. 15. Jos. 7. 24. Whence it is noted as a singular priviledge granted to the children of Korah, that they died not, Numb. 26. 11. whereas the children of their confederates died with them. And this makes their argument here more proper and powerful, that he did not die in that sin for which his posterity were to be cut off, and to lose either their lives or their inheritances, and therefore their claim was more just.

d Either 1. for that sin mentioned Numb. 14. which they call his own sin, in opposition not to the rest of the people, for it was a common sin, but to his children, i. e. the sin for which he alone was to suffer in his person and not in his posterity, as God had appointed, Numb. 14. 33. Or rather 2. for his own personal sins, for 1. these were more properly his own sins. 2. It was a truth, and that believed by the Jews, that death was a punishment for mens own sins. 3. The punishment of that common sin was not directly and properly death, but exclusion from the land of Canaan, and death only by way of consequence upon that.

e As it will be, if it be not preserved by an inheritance given to us in his name and for his sake. Hence some gather, that the first son of each of these heirelles was called by their fathers name, by vertue of that law Deut. 25. 6. whereby the brothers first son was to bear the name of his elder brother, whose widow he married. f In the land of Canaan upon the division of it, which though not yet conquered, they concluded would certainly be so, and thereby gave glory to God by believing.

5 And Moses brought their cause before the LORD g.

g (i.e.) Into the Tabernacle, where God was pleased to speak with Moses upon occasions, Exod. 25. 22. Numb. 7. 89. For it was an hard case, and though their plea seemed reasonable, yet Moses shewed his humility and modesty, that he would not determine it himself without Gods particular direction.

6 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

7 The daughters of Zelophehad speak right: thou shalt surely give them h a possession of an inheritance among their fathers brethren, and thou shalt cause the inheritance of their fathers i to pass unto them.

h In Hebrew it is of the masculine gender, to shew that women in this case should enjoy the mans priviledge, and that the heavenly Canaan, whereof this was a type, did belong no less to women than to men, Gal. 3. 28. i (i.e.) Which belonged to their fathers, in case they had lived.

8 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall cause his inheritance to pass unto his daughter.

9 And if he have no daughter, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his brethren.

10 And if he have no brethren k, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his fathers brethren.

k Nor sisters, as appears from ver. 8.

11 And if his father have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his kinsman, that is next to him of his family, and he shall possess it: and it shall be unto the children of Israel a statute of judgment l, as the LORD commanded Moses.

l A statute or rule, by which the Magistrate shall give judgment in such cases.

ch. 36. 1. and Josh. 17. 3. 12 And the LORD said unto Moses, * Get thee up into this mount Abrim m, and see the land which I have given unto the children of Israel.

17 which may go out before them, and which may go in before them r, and which may lead them out, and which may bring them in; that the congregation of the LORD be not * as sheep which have no shepherd.

Mat. 9. 36. r (i.e.) Which may wisely conduct them in all their affairs, both when they go forth to war, or upon other occasions, and March e when they return home and live in peace. An allusion from shepherds, as it here follows, which in their pleasant use to go before their sheep, as ours now do, but before them, and to lead them forth to their pasture, and in due time to lead them home again. Of this phrase see Deut. 28. 6. and 31. 2.

18 And the LORD said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom s the spirit t, and lay thine hand upon him t; s The spirit of government, of wisdom, and of the fear of the Lord, Gen. 41. 38. t By which ceremony Moses did both delegate the person and confer the power, and by his prayers, which accompanied that rite, obtain from God all the spiritual gifts and graces necessary for his future employment, as appears from Deut. 34. 9. See of this custom Gen. 48. 14. Levit. 1. 4. Numb. 8. 12. 1 Sam. 4. 14.

19 And set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation u, and give him a charge x in their sight.

u That they may be witnesses of the whole action, and may acknowledge him for their supream ruler. x Thou shalt command him in my name to undertake the government of my people, which otherwise he will be afraid and unwilling to do, and thou shalt give him counsels and instructions for the right management of that great truth.

20 And thou shalt put some of thine honour upon † Heb. him, y, that all the congregation of the children of Israel may be obedient.

y Thou shalt not now use him as a servant, as thou hast done, but as a brother and thy partner in the government, shewing respect to him, and causing others to do so, and thou shalt impart to him the enfignes and evidences of thy own authority, whatsoever they be. Some understand this honour of those spiritual endowments which did adorn Moses, which Moses was now to confer upon him. But this Joshua had before, for in him was the spirit, ver. 18. and he received a further measure of the spirit by the laying on of hands, from both which this cannot be distinguished, and had he meant this, he would not have expressed it in so dark and doubtful a phrase, but have called it a passing not of honour, but of the spirit, upon him, as it is called, Numb. 11. 17. And seeing the word honour here may very well be properly understood, why should we run to figurative significations?

21 And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him z, * after the judgment ‖ of * Exod. 28. 30. Urim † before the LORD *: at his word ‖ shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he and all the children of Israel with him, even all the congregation.

z When he requires him to do so, and in important and difficult matters. See Jos. 9. 14. Judg. 1. 1. and 20. 18. 1 Sam. 23. 9. ‖ Or, by or from the judgment, i. e. by seeking and receiving and communica ing to him the judgment or sentence thereby given: or, by the judgment is here put distinctively for, by the urim-plates of judgment, as it is called, Exod. 28. 30. as the testimony is oft put for, the ark of the testimony. Or, concerning the judgment, or sentence, i. e. what the mind and will of God is in the matter. Or, after the manner or rite, for lo the Hebrew word mishpat here used oft signifies. † Understand, and of Thummim, for these two generally go together, only here, as also 1 Sam. 28. 6. Urim is fynecdochically put for both Urim and Thummim. For the manner of this enquiry and answer see on Exod. 28. 30. * O. dinarily in the Tabernacle near the second vail setting his face to the Ark, or otherwise presenting himself as in Gods presence, as Abiathar did by David's direction, 1 Sam. 23. 9. when they were both banished from the Ark. ‖ (i.e.) The word of the Lord, last mentioned, delivered to him by the High-priest.

22 And Moses did as the LORD commanded him: and he took Joshua, and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation.

23 And he laid his hands upon him, and gave him a charge, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Offerings to be observed at set times: the daily burnt offerings to be renewing: together with its meat and drink offering: and at a sacrifice. 1——8. The Sabbath-offering, 9, 10. The burnt-offering of two bullocks, with it's meat, drink, and drink-offering, 11——15. The Passover, 16, 18. Sacrifices: their continuance, 19——25. The Pentecost and the sacrifices thereof, 26——31.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel a, and say * unto them, My offering and * my bread for my sacrifices made by fire b for a † sweet savour unto me, shall ye observe to offer unto me in their due season.

* Lev. 3. 11. & 21. 6. & 22. 25.

a God here repeats some of the former laws about sacrifices, not without great reason, partly because they had been generally ‖ H. b. a discontinued for 38 years together; partly because the generation future of to my to which the former laws had been given about these things was wholly dead, and it was fit the new generation should be instructed about them, as their parents were; partly to renew the testimonies of Gods grace and mercy, notwithstanding their frequent forfeitures thereof by their horrid Apostacies and Rebellions; and principally because they were now ready to enter into that land, in which they were obliged to put these things in practice, Deut. 12. 8. &c. b According to this translation the fence is, My offering, i. e. my offering or sacrifices, and my bread, i. e. either my shewbread, or rather my meat-offering made of bread or meal, for my sacrifices made by fire, i. e. which is to accompany my burnt-offerings. Or thus, My offering, to wit, my bread, (i. e.) my meat-offering, which was made of bread or meal, which is oft expressed by this very name of korban or offering, as Levit. 2. 1. and 6. 20. but because korbm signifies not only a meat-offering but other offerings also, as Lev. 7. 37, 38. therefore he limits that general word by adding, my bread) with (to the Hebrew Lamed is oft used, as Gen. 46. 26. Ezra 1. 5. and 2. 65. &c.) my sacrifices made by fire, which may be understood either 1. generally for all the sacrifices, as that phrase is sometimes taken, as 1 Sam. 2. 28. where it must needs be so meant, because the burnt-offerings properly so called were not given to the Priest, but reserved to God himself, and the Priests portion lay in the other sacrifices only, or 2. specially and properly for burnt-offerings; and so under them, as the most eminent kind, are contained all other sacrifices; as under the meat-offering here is contained the drink-offering. And according to this translation and explication these words contain a full and general rule, comprehending all the particulars following in this chapter, as in reason they ought to do, and which otherwise they do not.

* Exod. 29. 38.

3 And thou shalt say unto them, * This is the offering made by fire, which ye shall offer unto the LORD: † Heb. in a day. two lambs of the first year without spot, † day by day, for a continual burnt-offering.

4 The one lamb shalt thou offer in the morning, and the other lamb shalt thou offer † at even.

5 And a tenth part of an ephah of flour for a * meat-offering c, mingled with the fourth part of an * hin of beaten oil.

* Exod. 29. 40.

c Which was an appendix or accessory to the principal sacrifice. See on Lev. 2. 1 and Numb. 15. 4.

6 It is a continual burnt-offering, which was ordained d in mount Sinai for a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

d Or, prescribed, instituted by God. Or, made, i. e. offered at that place; though since omitted for 38 years.

7 And the drink-offering thereof shall be the fourth part of an hin for the one lamb: in the holy place e shalt † Heb. Shekar. Gr. Sicera. See Luk. 1. 15. thou cause the † strong wine f to be poured unto the LORD, for a drink-offering.

e i. e.) Upon the altar of burnt-offerings which was in the court of the Priests nigh to the entrance into the Sanctuary. See Exod. 29. 42. 2 Chron. 29. 7. f Heb. Shecar, which though it signifie in the general all kinds of strong drink, yet is here put for the most famous of that kind, to wit, for wine, which alone was used in offerings, as appears below, ver. 18. Exod. 29. 40.

8 And the other lamb shalt thou offer at even: as the meat-offering of the morning, and as the drink-offering thereof, thou shalt offer it g, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

g Or, thou shalt offer with it. Or, with the meat-offering of the morning, and with the drink-offering thereof, thou shalt offer it; the letter caph being put for beth, which are alike in Hebrew, and the words are said to be read with beth in some copies.

9 And on the sabbath day two lambs h of the first year without spot, and two tenth-deals of flour for a meat-offering, mingled with oyl, and the drink-offering thereof.

h Besides that for the daily sacrifice, ver. 10.

10 This is the burnt-offering of every sabbath, beside the continual burnt offering, and his drink-offering.

* chap. 10. 10. 1 Sam. 20. 5.

11 And * in the beginnings of your months i ye shall offer a burnt offering unto the LORD: two young bullocks, and one ram, seven lambs of the first year without spot.

i Which, though not reckoned among the solemn feasts, Lev. 23. yet were celebrated as such, by the the sound of trumpets, Numb. 10. 10. by extraordinary sacrifices, by abstinence from servile works, Amos 8. 5. and by attendance upon the ministry of Gods word, 2 Kings. 4. 23. And God ordained it thus, partly that by giving God the first fruits of every month, they should acknowledge him as the Lord of all their time, and own his providence by which all times and seasons and all the fruits and blessings of them, and actions done in them are ordered, and partly that it might be a type of the future renovation of the world by Christ.

12 And three tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oyl, for one bullock; and two tenth deals of flour for a meat-offering mingled with oyl, for one ram.

13 And a several tenth deal of flour mingled with oyl, for a meat-offering unto one lamb, for a burnt-offering of a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

14 And their drink-offerings shall be half an hin of wine unto a bullock, and the third part of an hin unto a ram, and a fourth part of an hin unto a lamb: this is the burnt-offering of every month throughout the months k of the year.

k (i. e.) To be offered in the beginning of every month.

15 And one kid of the goats l for a sin-offering unto the LORD m shall be offered, besides the continual burnt-offering, and his drink-offering.

l An he-goat. See Numb. 15. 24. m Not unto the moon, to which the Gentiles offered it.

16 * And in the fourteenth day of the first month n the passover of the LORD n. * Exod. 12. 18.

n Instituted by him and to his honour and service. See on Lev. 23. 5. See on Lev. 23. chap. 9. Deut. 16. 1.

17 And in the fifteenth day of this month o the feast o, seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten. Deut. 16. 16. Levit. 23.

o To wit, of unleavened bread; of which see on Lev. 23. 6.

18 In the * first day shall be an holy convocation: ye * Exod. 12. 16. shall do no manner of servile work therein.

19 But ye shall offer a sacrifice made by fire for a burnt-offering unto the LORD, two young bullocks, and one ram, and seven lambs of the first year: they shall be unto you without blemish.

20 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oyl: three tenth deals shall ye offer for a bullock, and two tenth deals for a ram.

21 A several tenth deal shalt thou offer for every lamb throughout the seven lambs.

22 And one goat for a sin-offering, to make an atonement for you.

23 Ye shall offer these beside the burnt-offering in the morning p, which is for a continual burnt-offering.

p And that in the evening too, as is evident from the nature of the thing, and from other scriptures, but the morning-sacrifice alone is mentioned, partly because the celebration of the feast began with it, and principally because this alone was doubtful, whether this might not be omitted when so many other sacrifices were offered in that morning, whereas there was no question but the evening sacrifice should be offered, when there were none other besides it to be offered.

24 After this manner ye shall offer daily throughout the seven days † the meat of the sacrifice made by fire, † Heb. bread of a sweet savour unto the LORD: it shall be offered beside the continual burnt-offering, and his drink offering. Lev. 23. 18.

q (i. c.) The sacrifice made by fire, which is as it were my meat or food: for as God is said to smell the sacrifices, to wit, metaphorically, i. e. to accept of them, so is he said to eat them, i. e. to devour or consume them, and to be satisfied with them; such things spoken of God after the manner of men are to be understood so as to agree with the majesty of God.

25 And on the seventh day ye shall have an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work.

26 Also * in the day of the first-fruits r, when ye bring a new meat-offering unto the LORD, after your weeks s be out t, ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work. * Exod. 23. 16.

r In the feast of Pentecost, Act. 2. 1. s New fruits, two loaves made of your new corn, Levit. 23. 16. t (i. c.) The seven weeks Deut. 16. 10. which you are to number from the Passover, Lev. 23. 15. Heb. in the weeks, in being put for after, as it is Isa. 20. 2. Luk. 9. 36. and 11. 37 u For the celebration of the feast over and besides that other offering which was joined with the first-fruits, Lev. 23. 18. So here is a new additional sacrifice prescribed, which doth not destroy the former.

27 But ye shall offer the burnt-offering u for a sweet savour unto the LORD, two young bullocks, one ram, seven lambs of the first year.

28 And their meat-offering of flour mingled with oyl, three tenth deals unto one bullock, two tenth deals unto one ram.

29 A several tenth deal unto one lamb, throughout the seven lambs.

30 And one kid of the goats to make an atonement for you.

31 Ye shall offer them besides the continual burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, (they shall be unto you without blemish) and their drink-offerings.

CHAP. XXIX.

The Sacrifice at the Feast of the Trumpets: it's Burnt-offering: and Sin-offering, 1—4. Of the Feast of Atonement: it's Offerings, 5—11. Of the Feast of Tabernacles: during 7 days: their Offerings: the 8th day a great Holiday, 12—36.

1 AND in the seventh month a, on the first day of the month, ye shall have an holy convocation, Ye shall do no servile work: * it is a day of blowing the * Lev. 23. 24. trumpets b unto you.

a So it was in their Ecclesiastical account, in which the month Abib was the first: but as to civil matters this was the first month. † Whereby the people were admonished solemnly to prepare themselves for the feasts, which were as many in this month, as in all the year besides.

2 And ye shall offer a burnt-offering c for a sweet savour unto the LORD, one young bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year without blemish.

c Besides the offerings of every month and day, as is expressed, ver. 6.

3 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oyl, three tenth deals for a bullock, and two tenth deals for a ram:

4 And one tenth deal for one lamb, throughout the seven lambs:

5 And one kid of the goats for a sin-offering, to make an atonement for you.

6 Beside * the burnt-offering of the month d, and his meat-offering, and * the daily burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and their drink-offerings according to their manner e for a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD. * Exod. 29. 38. Numb. 28. 3.

d Belonging to every new moon, of which see Numb. 28. 11, 12. 2 Chron. 2. 4. e According to the order, rites and ceremonies appointed by God.

7 And * ye shall have on the tenth day of this seventh month an holy convocation; and ye shall afflict your souls f: ye shall not do any work therein. * Lev. 16. 29. and 23. 27.

f (i. e.) Your selves, by fasting and abstinence from all delightful things, and by compunction and bitter sorrow for your sins and the judgments of God either deserved by you or inflicted upon you for your sins. See Levit. 16. 29. 30. and 23. 27.

8 But ye shall offer a burnt-offering unto the LORD, for a sweet savour, one young bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year: they shall be unto you without blemish.

9 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oyl, three tenth deals to a bullock, and two tenth deals to one ram:

10 A several tenth deal for one lamb, throughout the seven lambs.

11 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering, beside the * sin-offering of atonement g, and the continual burnt-offering, and the meat-offering of it, and their drink-offerings. Lev. 16. *

g By which the High-priest made atonement; of which see Lev. 16. 9, 29, 30.

12 And * on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, ye shall have an holy convocation, ye shall do no servile work, and ye shall keep a feast h unto the LORD seven days i. Lev. 23.

h The feast of booths; of which see Lev. 23. 34, 35. Deut. 16. 13. i Not by abstaining so long from all servile works, but by offering extraordinary sacrifices each day.

13 And ye * shall offer a burnt-offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD, thirteen young bullocks k, two rams and fourteen lambs k of the first year: they shall be without blemish. * Ezra 3.

k More sacrifices than at any other feast, partly because this feast was in the close of the year, when it was meet to supply the defects of the year past, and when they had gathered in all their fruits, Deut. 16. 13, 15. and therefore ought to make the larger returns and acknowledgment to God; partly because it was Gods pleasure so to order it, for reasons known to himself, in whose will we ought to acquiesce. And the same reason holds why these sacrifices grew fewer and fewer every day.

14 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oyl, three tenth-deals unto every bullock of the thirteen bullocks, two tenth deals to each ram of the two rams:

15 And a several tenth deal to each lamb of the fourteen lambs:

16 And one kid of the goats for a sin-offering beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

17 And on the second day ye shall offer twelve young bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year without spot.

l Of which see for meat-offerings, ver. 3, 4, 9, 10. and for drink-offerings, Numb. 28. 7, 14.

19 And one kid of the goats for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, and the meat-offering thereof, and their drink-offerings.

20 And on the third day, eleven bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish.

21 And their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

22 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

23 And on the fourth day ten bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish.

24 Their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

25 And one kid of the goats for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

26 And on the fifth day nine bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without spot:

27 And their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

28 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

29 And on the sixth day eight bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish:

30 And their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

31 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offerings.

32 And on the seventh day seven bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish:

33 And their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

34 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

35 On the eighth day ye shall have a * solemn assembly: ye shall do no servile work therein. * Lev. 23. 36.

36 But ye shall offer a burnt-offering, a sacrifice made by fire of a sweet savour unto the LORD, one bullock, one ram, seven lambs m of the first year without blemish:

m This was the last and great day of the feast, as it is called, Joh. 7. 37. and yet the sacrifices were fewer than any other day, to teach them not to trust to the multitude of their sacrifices, nor to expect remission of sins from them, but from the one and only sacrifice of Christ.

37 Their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings for the bullock, for the ram, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

38 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

39 These things ye shall ‖ do unto the LORD, in ‖ offer. your set feasts, besides your * vows, and your free will- * Lev. 7. offerings n, for your burnt-offerings, and for your meat- 11, 16. offerings, and for your drink-offerings, and for your peace-offerings.

n Your ordinary sacrifices shall not be omitted because of the extraordinary, which ye offer on special occasions.

40 And Moses told the children of Israel according to all that the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. XXX.

Vows not to be broke: If a man vow, he must perform, 1, 2. If a daughter living with her father vows, and he disapproves thereof, &c. 3—5. If a married woman vows, and her husband disapproves thereof, she is free, 6—8. A widow or divorced woman's vow binding, 9. but not those of a married woman, which her husband confirms or he silent, 10—15.

AND Moses spake unto the heads of the tribes a, concerning the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded.

a The chief Rulers of each Tribe, who were to communicate it to the rest.

2 If a man b vow a vow c unto the LORD d, or swear an oath e to bind his Soul with a bond f, he shall not † break his word g: he shall do according to all that † Heb. profane. proceedeth out of his own mouth h.

b Which notes both the Sex, as appears by v. 3. and the Age, that he be grown up, for none can be so weak as to think the vow of a young Child would bind it. c i. e. A simple vow to do something possible and lawful. d To the Honour and Service of God. e Confirm his Vow by an Oath. f To restrain himself from something otherwise lawful, as suppose from such a sort of Meat or Drink; or to oblige himself to the performance of something otherwise not necessary, as to observe a private day of fasting. g Heb. not pollute, or profane his word, as the same phrase is used, Psal. 55. 20. and 89. 34. i. e. not render his word, and consequently himself prophane, or vile and contemptible in the eyes of others. h And that without delay, Deut. 23. 21. Eccles. 5. 4. provided the thing be not unlawful and forbidden by God, Act. 23. 14. for it is an idle conceit that a man can give away Gods right, or that he can make void Gods commands by his own vows, which was the dotage of the Pharisees, Mark 6, 13, 26.

3 If a woman i also vow a vow unto the LORD, and bind her self by a bond, being in her fathers house k, in her youth l:

i Or a man in the same circumstances, a son or a servant, as plainly appears from hence, because the reason of this Law is perfectly the same in both Sexes, which is, that such persons have given away what was not their own, but anothers, even their superiours right, which is against the Rule and Law of Natural Reason, and against the Word of God, which binds all persons to give to every one their due. He instanceth only in the Woman, because that Sex is both by Creation and Sin put into a state of subjection, but under the chief and most unquestionable kind all other Subjects in like circumstances are comprehended, as is very usual. k (i. e.) Under his Care, Power, and Government which she is, whilst she continues in her Fathers House, being a Virgin, as appears by the opposition of a married Woman, v. 6. and of a Widow, and Divorced Woman, v. 9. and by this Phrase of being in her fathers house, for when she marries, she is removed into her Husbands house, Ruth. 1.9. Or, being in, or of her Fathers Family, the word House being commonly used for Family, for when she marries, she is translated and removed into another Family. l When not only her Sex, but her Age difenables her for vowing; and this clause is added not by way of restriction, as if Virgins in their riper years were freed from their Parents jurisdiction, and at their own disposal, (which undoubtedly they are not) but by way of addition, or amplification, a. d. especially (which particle is here to be understood, such defects of particles being frequent in the Hebrew Tongue) in her youth, which is commonly reckoned about her Twelfth or Thirteenth year.

m Under which Title seem to be comprehended, as in other places of Scripture, Masters, Magistrates, and all other Superiours, in such cases wherein their right is given away by the inferior's vow; as for instance, when a Servant vows to go a long journey for his Friend, and his Master will not permit him to do so; but not in other cases; as if a Servant vows to do something for another in that time which his Master alloweth to his own use and disposal, in this case his vow binds him, but not in the former. n His silence being an interpretative consent, and much more if he declares his approbation of it. o i.e. Be established, or confirmed, or be in force.

5 But if her Father disallow her in the day that he heareth p; not any of her vows, or of her bonds, wherewith she hath bound her soul, shall stand: and the LORD shall forgive her q, because her Father disallowed her.

p i. e. Speedily, or without delay, allowing only necessary and convenient time for deliberation. And it is hereby intimated, that the day or time he had for disallowing her vow, was not to be reckoned from her vowing, but from his hearing, or knowledge of her vow. q Or will forgive either her rashness of making such vows, or rather her not performing of it. But this is to be understood only of such vows which could not be performed without invading the Fathers, or Superiours right; for if one should vow to sacrifice such, or such a sin, and all unnecessary occasions or means leading to it, and to perform such, or such duties, when he had opportunity, no Father, nor Superiour can discharge him from such vows.

6 And if she had at all an husband r when † she vowed s, or uttered ought out of her lips t, wherewith she bound her soul;

r To whose Will and Authority she was thereby made subject. s To wit, when she was in her Fathers house, as is evident by comparing v. 10. and this clause seems to be added by way of exception to that which was said, v. 3, 4. to signifie, that though she were in her Fathers house, yet if she were married, her Husband only, and not her Father, could disoblige her from her vow. t Either 1. By way of vow, and so this clause explains and determines the former, i. e. if the express her vow in words. Or 2. By way of Oath, concerning which this same phrase is used Levit. 5. 4. and so this clause is distinct from the former, which the disjunctive particle, or, implies.

7 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her in the day that he heard it: then her vows shall stand, and her bonds, wherewith she bound her soul, shall stand.

8 But if her husband disallow her, on the day that he heard it, then he shall make her vow which she vowed, and that which she uttered with her lips, wherewith she bound her soul, of none effect, and the LORD shall forgive her.

9 But every vow of a widow, and of her that is divorced u, wherewith they have bound their souls, shall stand against her.

u Though she be in her Fathers house, whether such persons soft returned: which limitation may be gathered both from the opposition of her being in her Husbands house, v. 10. and from hence, that this was the only doubtful case, for if such a person was not in her Father's house, she was unquestionably bound by it, but being now freed from her Husband, and returned to her Father, it was doubtful whether she was not returned to the same state of subjection in which she was before, and consequently unable to make or perform a vow without her Fathers consent, as she was before, which is here denied.

10 And if she vowed in her husbands house x, or bound her soul by a bond with an oath;

x i. e. If she that now is a Widow, or Divorced, made that vow whilst her Husband lived with her; as suppose she then vowed, that if she was a Widow, she would give such a proportion of her estate to pious or charitable uses, of which vow she might repent when she came to be a Widow, and might believe or pretend she was free from it, because that vow was made in her Husbands life time, which is here granted, in case her Husband then disallowed it, but denied, in case by silence, or otherwise he consented to it. And thus this Law is sufficiently distinguished from that above, v. 6, 7, 8.

11 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her, and disallowed her not: then all her vows shall stand, and every bond, wherewith she bound her soul, shall stand.

12 But if her husband hath utterly made them void on the day he heard them, then whatsoever proceeded out of her lips, concerning her vows, or concerning the bond of her soul, shall not stand, her husband hath made them void, and the LORD shall forgive her.

13 Every vow, and every binding oath to afflict the soul y, her husband may establish it, or her husband may make it void.

y i. e. Her self by fasting, which oft goes under that name, as Levit. 16. 29, 31. and 23. 27, 32. Isa. 58. 5. by watching, or the like. And these words are added not for limitation, for it is manifest from v. 5. 8, 10, 12. that the power of Parents and Husbands was more general and large, but for amplification, to shew that the Husband had this power not only in those vows which concerned himself or his estate, but also in those which might seem only to concern her own Person, or Body. And the reason hereof is, because the Wives person or body being the Husbands right, she might not do any thing to the injury of her body without his consent.

14 But if her Husband altogether hold his peace at her, from day to day, then he establisheth all her vows, or all her bonds which are upon her: he confirmeth them, because he held his peace at her, in the day that he heard them.

15 But if he shall any ways make them void after that he hath heard them z, then he shall bear her Iniquity.

z And approved them by his silence from day to day, if now after that time spent, he shall upon further thoughts dislike and hinder it, which he ought not to do. † Her non-performance of her vow shall be imputed to him, not to her.

16 These are the Statutes which the LORD commanded Moses, between a man and his wife, between the father and his daughter, being yet in her youth in her fathers house.

CHAP. XXXI.

God commands Moses, before he die, to avenge Israel of the Midianites, 1, 2. he chooses 12000 men: and Phinehas: Five Kings of Midian and Balaam slain, 3—8. their Women and Cattle taken: and Cities burnt: they bring the spoil to Moses and Eleazar, 7—12. Moses is wroth with the Officers for saving the Women alive: commands them to kill every Male-child and Woman that had known man: the rest saved alive: and to purifie themselves and the captives, 13—24. a Law for dividing the Booty: executed: and the sum of the Booty, 25—40. The Tribute-offering of the Lord given to the Priests and Levites, 41—47. The Captains make an Offering to the Lord: which is laid up in the Tabernacle for a memorial, 48—54.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 * Avenge the children of Israel of the Midianites: a afterwards shalt thou * be gathered unto thy people.

a For their malicious designs and practices against Israel, both by hiring Balaam to curse them, and by sending their Women to intrap them. The Moabites also were guilty, but God out of his own good pleasure, and in kindness to Lot, was pleased to spare them, the rather, because the measure of their Iniquity was not yet full.

3 And Moses spake unto the people, saying, Arm some of your selves unto the war, and let them go against the Midianites, and avenge the LORD b of Midian.

b For the affront and injury which they offered to God, partly by their own Idolatry and lewdness, and partly by seducing Gods people into Rebellion against him. Gods great care was to avenge the Israelites, v. 2. and Moses his chief desire was to avenge God rather than himself or the people. Which he doth hereby insinuate, that God and his people have the same cause, the same Friends and Enemies.

4 † Of every tribe a thousand, throughout all the tribes of Israel, shall ye send to the war.

5 So there were delivered out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand of every tribe c, twelve thousand armed for war.

c To prevent Emulations or Divisions. d God would send no more, though it is apparent that the Midianites were numerous and strong, because he would try and exercise their trust in him, and because he would hereby give them an earnest of their Canaanitish Conquests.

6 And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand of every tribe; them and Phinehas e the son of Eleazar the Priest to the war, with the holy instruments f, and the trumpets to blow g in his hand.

e Who had the charge not of the Army, as General, (an Office never committed to any Priest in all the Old Testament) but of the holy Instruments, &c. as is here expressed, and was also sent to encourage, and quicken, and confirm them in their good enterprize. It is not here mentioned who was the general, whether Josua, as some think, because he is not named amongst those who went out to meet the returning host, though that might be for other reasons, or some other Prince, nor is it worth while to determine. f Either 1. the Ark, with the things belonging to it, which before the building of the Temple, they did sometimes carry into the War for the encouragement of their Army. See Numb. 14. 44. Jos. 6. 9. 1 Sam. 4. 4. and 14. 18. But gave them unto the Levites, which kept the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

48 And the officers, which were over thousands of the host, the captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds came near unto Moses,

49 And they said unto Moses, Thy servants have taken the sum of the men of war which are under our † charge, and there lacketh not one man of us:

50 We have therefore brought an oblation for the LORD, what every man hath † gotten, of jewels of gold, chains and bracelets, rings, earings, and tablets, to make an atonement for our souls e before the LORD.

e For their error noted ver. 14. 15, 16. and withal for a memorial, as it is said ver. 54. or by way of gratitude for such a stupendious assistance and deliverance, as appears from the word therefore in the beginning of this verse, and from ver. 49.

51 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of them: even all wrought jewels.

52 And all the gold of the † offering that they offered up to the LORD, of the captains of thousands, and of the captains of hundreds, was sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels.

53 (For the men of war had taken spoil, every man for himself.)

54 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of the congregation, for a memorial for the children of Israel before the LORD.

CHAP. XXXII.

The Reubenites and Gaadites sue for their inheritance on that side Jordan, as being fit for Cattel, 1——5. Moses reproacheth them as discouraging the People, and herein following their Father's ill example, 6——15. They promise to leave their Children and Cattel there, and go armed before their Brethren till Canaan should be subdued, 16——19. On which condition, they, together with the half Tribe of Manasseh, obtain their desire, 20——42.

NOW the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, had a very great multitude of cattel: and when they saw the land of Jazer a, and the land of Gilead b, that behold, the place was a place for cattel:

c A city and country taken from the Amorites, Numb. 21. 32.

b A mountainous country, famous for pasturage, Jer. 50. 19. Mich. 7. 14.

2 The children of Gad, and the children of Reuben, came and spake unto Moses, and to Eleazar the priest, and unto the princes of the congregation, saying,

3 Ataroth c, and Dibon, and Jazer, and Nimrah d, and Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Shebam e, and Nebo, and Beon f.

c Different from that Ataroth, Josh. 16. 2, 7. which was on the other side of Jordan. d Called Beth-nimrah, ver. 36. and Jos. 13. 27. and the waters of Nimrim, Isa. 15. 6. e Called Shibmah, ver. 38. f Which is thought to be the same place called Baal-meon, ver. 38. and Beth-meon, Jer. 48. 23.

4 Even the countrey * which the Lord smote before the congregation of Israel g, is a land for cattel, and thy servants have cattel.

g And given to them for a possession, in the same manner as he will give the land of Canaan.

5 Wherefore, said they, if we have found grace in thy sight, let this land be given unto thy servants for a possession: and bring us not over Jordan h.

h To wit, to give us our possession there, but let this land on this side Jordan be our whole possession.

6 And Moses said unto the children of Gad, and to the children of Reuben, Shall your brethren go to war, and shall ye sit here i?

i In ease and peace, whilest your brethren are ingaged in a bloody war. Their words were ambiguous, and Moses thought this to be an act of unbelief and sloth, and self-love and policy.

7 And wherefore † discourage ye the heart of the children of Israel, from going over into the land which the LORD hath given them?

* ch. 13. 3. * Deut. 1. Kadesh-barnea * to see the land.

8 Thus did your fathers, when I * sent them from

ch. 13. 24.

9 For * when they went up into the valley of Eshcol, and saw the land, they discouraged the heart of the children of Israel, that they should not go k into the land which the LORD had given them.

k That they should not attempt to go, but rather return to Egypt, Numb. 14. 4.

10 And the LORDS anger was kindled the same time, and he sware, saying, * ch. 14. 28, 29. * chap. 14. 24, 30. † Heb. fulfilled after me.

11 Surely none of the men that came up out of Egypt, * from twenty years old and upward, shall see the land which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, because * they have not † wholly followed me:

l So called from Kenaz, his grand-father, or one of his eminent ancestors, Jos. 15. 17. 1 Chron. 4. 13, 14, 15.

13 And the LORDS anger was kindled against Israel, and he made them wander in the wilderness forty years, until all the generation that had done evil in the sight of the LORD were consumed.

14 And, behold, ye are risen up in your fathers stead, an increase of sinful men m, to augment yet the fierce anger of the LORD toward Israel.

m Succeeding your fathers, as in their places and estates, so also in their sins.

15 For if ye turn away from after him, he will yet again leave them in the wilderness, and ye shall destroy all this people n.

n Who being moved by your counsel and example, will refuse to go over Jordan, and to possess the land of Canaan.

16 And they came near unto him, and said, We will build sheep folds here for our cattel, and cities for our little ones:

17 But we our selves o will go ready armed before the children of Israel, until we have brought them unto their place: and our little ones shall dwell in the fenced cities, because of the inhabitants of the land p.

o Either all, or as many of us as shall be thought necessary, leaving only so many as may be necessary to provide for the sustenance and defence of our wives and children here. See Josh. 1. 12, 13. p The Moabites and Edomites, or other bordering people.

18 * We will not return unto our houses, until the children of Israel have inherited every man his inheritance:

19 For we will not inherit with them on yonder side Jordan, or forward, because our inheritance is fallen to us on this side Jordan eastward.

20 And * Moses said unto them, If ye will do this thing, if ye will go armed before the LORD q, to war, p Either 1. sincerely and heartily, as in God's presence. Or rather 2. before the Ark, which was the token of God's presence. He alludes either to the order of the tribes in their march, whereby Reuben and Gad marched next and immediately before the Ark, as appears from Numb. 2. 10, 14, 16, 17. Or to the manner of their passage over Jordan, wherein the Ark went first into Jordan, and stood there whilest all the tribes marched over Jordan by and before it, Jos. 3. & 4. and these amongst the rest, as is expressly noted in these very words, that they passed over before the Lord, Jos. 4. 13.

21 And will go all of you armed over Jordan before the LORD, until he hath driven out his enemies from before him.

22 And * the land be subdued before the LORD q; then afterward ye shall return, and be guiltless before the LORD, and before Israel; and * this land shall be your possession before the LORD.

* Deut. 3. 20. * Josh. 22. 4.

q (i.e.) By his presence and gracious and powerful assistance.

23 But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the LORD: and be sure your sin r will find you out.

r (i.e.) The punishment of your sin; as that word is very oft used.

24 Build your cities for your little ones, and folds for your sheep, and do that which hath proceeded out of your mouth s.

s Which you have uttered and promised to do. See this or the like phrase, Numb. 30. 2. Mat. 15. 18.

25 And the children of Gad, and the children of Reuben, spake unto Moses, saying, Thy servants will do as my lord commandeth.

26 Our little ones, our wives, our flocks, and all our cattel shall be there in the cities of Gilead t.

t Largely so called, as that word is oft used, for that whole country beyond Jordan, as in other places it is taken more strictly for a part of it, as here below, ver. 39, 40. and elsewhere.

27 * But thy servants will pass over, every man armed to war, before the LORD to battel, as my lord saith.

28 So * concerning them, Moses commanded Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the chief fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel:

29 And Moses said unto them, If the children of Gad, and the children of Reuben will pass with you over Jordan, every man armed to battel before the LORD, and the land shall be subdued before you, then ye shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession:

30 But if they will not pass over with you armed, they shall have possession among you in the land of Canaan u.

u They shall forfeit and lose their possessions in Gilead, and shall be constrained to go over Jordan, and to seek possession there among their brethren.

31 And

31 And the children of Gad, and the children of Reuben answered, saying, As the LORD hath said unto thy servants, so will we do.

x Either at this time by thy mouth: or formerly, where he commandeth us as well as our brethren to go into Canaan and possess it.

32 We will pass over armed before the LORD into the land of Canaan, that the possession of our inheritance on this side Jordan may be ours.

ch. 32. 33 And * Moses gave unto them, even to the children ch. 13. 8. of Gad, and to the children of Reuben, and unto half the ch. 32. 4. tribe of Manasseh y the son of Joseph, the * Kingdom of Josh. 21. Sihon king of the Amorite, and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land with the cities thereof, in the coasts, even the cities of the country round about.

y Who are here added to the Tribes of Reuben and Gad, either because upon the good success of the two Tribes of Reuben and Gad, they were encouraged to make the same request for themselves, as having much cattel, as well as they: or because upon further consideration it was found that this portion of land was more than sufficient for those two tribes, and it was given by Moses to these rather than to any other, because they fought against the Amorites with great courage and success, here ver. 39. & Jos. 17. 1.

z (i. e.) Repaired and fortified, as that word is oft used, as 1 King. 12. 25. 2 King. 14. 22. 2 Chron. 8. 4. & 11. 5, &c. and 26. 2. Dan. 4. 30. For they neither had need nor leisure as yet to do more, the old cities not being burnt and ruined, as divers in Canaan were.

ch. 32. 35 And Atroth, Shophan, and * Jaazer, and Jogbehah, ch. 32. 36 And * Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran, fenced cities: and folds for sheep.

ch. 32. 37 And the children of Reuben * built Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Kirjathaim, ver. 3 38 And Nebo a, and Baal-meon, (* their names being changed b) and Shibmah: and † gave other names unto the cities which they builded.

a Of which city see Deut. 34. 1 Jer. 48. 1. b Either because conquerors of places use to do so: or because the names of other Gods (which Nebo and Baal-meon unquestionably were) were not to be mentioned, Exod. 23. 13. especially at the first settling of the Israelites there, that the very remembrance of the Idols might be blotted out, and so the temptation to Idolatry removed, though afterwards, when that danger was over, they were called by their old names again, Isa. 13. 17, 20.

ch. 32. 39 And the children of * Machir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead, and took it c, and dispossessed the Amorite which was in it.

c (i. c.) Part of it, or Gilead is here taken more strictly. See above on ver. 29 and Gen. 31. 21. Deut. 3. 12, 13.

ch. 32. 40 And Moses * gave Gilead unto Machir the son of Manasseh d, and he dwelt therein.

d (i. e.) Not to Machir himself, who doubtless was long since dead, (see Gen. 50. 23.) but the family or posterity of Machir, which are called by their fathers name; as the names of Abraham, Act. 7. 16. of Isaac, Amos 7. 9. of Jacob or Isra. frequently, of Judah and Simeon, Judg. 1. 3. of Barzilai, 1 King. 12. 6. are manifestly put for their posterity.

41 And * Jair the son of Manasseh e went and took the small towns thereof, and called them Havoth-jair.

ch. 32. 41. 1 Chron. 2. 22.

e Called here the son of Manasseh, partly because he was so by his mother, 1 Chron. 2 21, 22. and partly because he joined himself with the Manassites in this expedition, and settled himself among them.

42 And Nobah f went and took Kenath, and the † villages thereof, and called it Nobah, after his own name.

f Who, though not elsewhere named, was doubtless an eminent person of the Tribe of Manasseh.

CHAP. XXXIII.

A relation of the marches and Campings of the Israelites from Egypt to Canaan, 1——50. They are commanded to drive out the Canaanites, and destroy their Pictures, Molten Images, and high Places, and to divide the Land by Lot, 51——54. The Canaanites, if not dispossessed, should trouble and vex them: and God would do to them as he thought to do to the others, 55, 56.

THese are the journeys of the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt with their armies a, under the hand of Moses and Aaron.

a (i.e.) In great number and exact order, as armies march, and they did, Exod. 12. 37, 38. & 13. 18.

b Who would have this done, partly to evince the truth of the history, partly to preserve the remembrance of God's glorious and miraculous works both of judgment and mercy towards his people, and thereby to confirm their faith in their present difficult undertaking.

50 And the LORD spake unto Moses, in the plains of Moab, by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

51 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye are passed over Jordan into the land of Canaan:

* Deut. 7. 2. Josh 11.12. * Exod. 34. 13. 52 * Then ye shall drive out p all the inhabitants of the land from before you, and destroy all their pictures q, and destroy all their molten images r, and quite pluck down all their high places s.

p Not by banishing, but by destroying them, as it is explained, Deut. 7. 1, 2. and elsewhere. q Which seem to have been stones curiously ingraven, and set up for worship. See Deut. 16. 22. r See Exod. 23. 24, 32. Deut. 7. 5. s (i. e.) by a Metonymy, the Chapels, Altars, Groves, or other means of worship there set up, for the hills themselves could not be destroyed by them. See on Deut. 12. 2.

53 And ye shall dispossess the inhabitants of the land, and dwell therein: for I have given you the land to possess it.

*ch. 26.53. 54 And * ye shall divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families, and to the more ye shall † Heb. multiply his inheritance. † give the more inheritance, and to the fewer ye shall † give the less inheritance: every mans inheritance shall be in the place where his lot falleth, according to the † Heb. diminish his inheritance. tribes of your fathers ye shall inherit.

55 But if ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you, then it shall come to pass, that * Josh. 23. 13. Judg. 2. 3. those which ye let remain of them, shall be * sticks in your eyes t, and thorns in your sides, and shall vex you in the land wherein ye dwell.

t (i. e.) Both vexatious and pernicious, for the eye is a tender part, and a wound there is very mischievous.

56 Moreover, it shall come to pass, that I shall do unto you, as I thought to do unto them.

CHAP. XXXIV.

God describes the Borders of Canaan, 1—15. And names those who should divide the same among the Children of Israel, 16—29.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land of Canaan (this is the land that shall fall unto you for an inheritance, even the land of Canaan with the coasts a thereof:)

a Or, limits, or bounds, to wit, of the land beyond Jordan. Which are here particularly described, 1. to direct and bound them in their wars and conquests, that they might not seek the enlargement of their empire, after the manner of other nations, but be contented with their own portion. 2. To encourage them in their attempt upon Canaan, and allure them of their success. 3. To guide them in the approaching distribution of the land.

*Josh. 15.1 3 Then * your south-quarter b shall be from the wilderness of Zin, along by the coast of Edom c, and *Gen. 14.3 your south-border shall be the outmost coast of * the salt sea d eastward e.

b Which is here described from East to West by diverse windings and turnings, by reason of the mountains, rivers, &c. c Bordering all along upon the Edomites. d So called from the salt and sulphurous taste of its waters. e (i. e.) At the eastern part of that sea, where the Eastern and Southern borders meet.

4 And your border shall turn from the south to the ascent of Akrabbim f, and pass unto Zin: and the going forth thereof shall be from the south g to Kadesh-Barnea h, and shall go on to Hazar-addar i, and pass on to Azmon k, f Called Maaleh-akrabbim, Jos. 15. 3. which was at the south end of the salt or dead sea. g Or, on the south, i. e. proceeding onward towards the South. h Which was on the Southern part of Canaan, Numb. 13. 17. i Which in Jos. 15. 3. may seem distinguished into two places, Hezron and Addar, which here are united, because paradventure they were contiguous, or joined together. Or, to the village of Addar, and so this is the same place called Addar, Jos. 15. 3. and for Hezron, that may be another place here omitted, and there supplied for more exactness. k Which is at the West-end of the mount of Seir.

5 And the border shall fetch a compass from Azmon unto the river of Egypt l, and the goings out of it shall be at the sea m.

l Called Sihor, Jos. 13. 3. which divided Egypt from Canaan. See Gen. 15. 18. m The midland sea, called the sea emphatically, whereas the other seas there, as they are called, are indeed but lakes.

6 And as for the western border, ye shall even have the great n sea for a border: this shall be your west-border.

n The midland sea from the south to the North so far as runs parallel with mount Libanus.

7 And this shall be your north border: from the great sea ye shall point out for you mount Hor o.

o Not that Hor where Aaron died, Numb. 20. 22. which was Southward, and bordering upon Edom, Numb. 33. 37, 38. and therefore could not be their northern border, but another mountain, and, as it is conceived, the mountain of Libanus, which is elsewhere mentioned as the Northern border of the land, and which, in regard of divers parts, or by divers people, is called by divers names, as Sirion and Senir, Deut. 3. 9. and Sion. Deut. 4. 48. and Hermon, Jos. 13. 5. and here Hor, which signifies a mountain, and this may be called so by way of eminency. Certain it is, that as Hor here, so Hermon, Jos. 13. 5. is joined with the entrance of Hamath, which makes it probable they are one and the same place.

8 From mount Hor, ye shall point out your border unto the entrance of Hamath p, and the goings forth of the border shall be to Zedad.

p Called Hamath the great, Amos 6. 2. which is among the Northern borders, Ezek. 47. 16, 17. See Gen. 10. 15, 18. Numb. 13. 21. Judg. 3. 3. 1 King. 8. 65.

9 And the border shall go unto Ziphron, and the goings out of it shall be at Hazar-enan ? this shall be your north-border.

10 And ye shall point out your east-border, from Hazar-enan to Shepham.

11 And the coast shall go down from Shepham to Riblah, on the east-side of Ain: and the border shall descend, and shall reach unto the † side of the sea of † Heb. shoulder. Chinnereth q eastward.

q Of this name we have a city, Jos. 19. 35. and a country, Jos. 11. 2. 1 King. 15. 20. and a Sea or Lake, here and Jos. 12. 3. and 13. 27. which in the New Testament is called the sea of Genesareth, Luk. 5. 1. and of Galilee, and of Tiberias, Joh. 6. 1.

12 And the border shall go down to Jordan r, and the goings out of it shall be at the salt sea: this shall be your land with the coasts thereof round about.

r (i. e.) All along the river of Jordan even to the end of it, which is the eastern border.

13 And Moses commanded the children of Israel, saying, This is the land which they shall inherit by lot, which the LORD commanded to give unto the nine tribes, and to the half tribe.

14 * For the tribe of the children of Reuben, according to the house of their fathers, and the tribe of the children of Gad, according to the house of their fathers, have received their inheritance, and half the tribe of Manasseh have received their inheritance.

15 The two tribes, and the half tribe, have received their inheritance on this side Jordan near Jericho, eastward, toward the sun-rising.

16 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 These are the names of the men which shall divide the land unto you: * Eleazar the priest s, and Joshua the son of Nun.

s Who was to act in God's name, to cast lots, to prevent differences and contentions, to consult with God in cases of difficulty, to transact the whole business in a solemn and religious manner.

18 And ye shall take one prince of every tribe, to divide the land by inheritance.

19 And the names of the men are these: of the tribe of Judah t, Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

t The order of the Tribes is here differing from that Numb. 1. 7, 26. and in other places, being here, as also Jos. 16. and 17. & 18. & 19. conformed to the order of their several inheritances, which afterwards fell to them by Lot. Which is an evident demonstration of the infinite wisdom of God's providence, and of his exact and peculiar care over his people.

20 And

20 And of the tribe of the children of Simeon, Shemuel the son of Ammihud.

21 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad the son of Chisbon.

22 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Dan, Bukki the son of Jogli.

23 The prince of the children of Joseph: for the tribe of the children of Manasseh, Hanniel the son of Ephod.

24 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Ephraim, Kemuel the son of Shiphtan.

25 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Zebulun, Elizaphan the son of Parnach.

26 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Issachar, Paltiel the son of Azzan.

27 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Asher, Ahihud the son of Shelomi.

28 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Naphtali; Pedahel the son of Ammihud.

29 These are they whom the LORD commanded to divide the inheritance unto the children of Israel, in the land of Canaan.

CHAP. XXXV.

Eight and forty Cities given to the Levites: together with their suburbs: among which six Cities of Refuge: for an Israelite or Stranger who had kill'd another unawares, 1—15. Wilful murther decided: and the murtherer to be put to death, 16—21. The Man-slayer must abide in the City of Refuge till the death of the High-Priest: and if caught out of it might be killed, 25—29. Two witnesses required to condemn a man to dye, 30. No satisfaction to be taken for the Life of a Murtherer, 31. nor that any one might return from a City of Refuge before the time, 32. that the land be not defiled and polluted and not cleansed of the blood shed in it, 33, 34.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the plains of Moab by Jordan, near Jericho, saying,

2 * Command the children of Israel, that they give unto the Levites of the inheritance of their possession, cities to dwell in: and ye shall give also unto the Levites, suburbs for the cities round about them.

3 And the cities shall they have to dwell in, and the suburbs of them shall be for their cattel a, and for their goods, and for all their beasts.

a For pasturage for their cattel: where they might not build houses, nor plant gardens, orchards or vineyards, no nor sow corn, for which they were abundantly provided out of the first-fruits and tithes. And these suburbs did not belong to the Levites in common, but were distributed to them in convenient proportions, as may appear from Jos. 21. 18. 1 Chron. 6. 60.

4 And the suburbs of the cities which ye shall give unto the Levites, shall reach from the wall of the city and outward, a thousand cubits round about b.

b Obj. In the next verse it is two thousand. How do these agree? Answ. 1. LXX Interpreters read both here and ver. 5. two thousand cubits, whence some suppose this to be an error in the Hebrew Text, which, being in a matter neither concerning faith nor good manners, is not prejudicial to the authority of the holy Scriptures. Answ. 2. The one thousand cubits may be in length from the city, and the two thousand cubits in breadth on each side of the city, and so they well agree; for a line of a thousand cubits being drawn in length eastward and another westward and another northward and another southward, a line, drawn at a thousand cubits distance from the city, from east to west must needs contain two thousand cubits, and so must the other line from north to south, and so on every side of the city there must be two thousand cubits. Answ. 3. This verse and the next do not speak to the same thing: this speaks of the space or place from whence the suburbs shall be measured, the next verse speaks of the space unto which that measure shall be extended; and the words may very well be read thus, And the suburbs—— shall be (so it is only an ellipsis of the verb substantive, which is most frequent, and the meaning is, shall be taken or accounted) from the wall of the city and from (that particle being supplied or underflood from the foregoing words, which is very usual) without it, or, from the outward parts of it, (which being a general and indefinite expression is limited and explained by the following words) even from a thousand cubits round about. Which are mentioned not as the thing measured, for as yet there is not a word of measuring, but as the term or space from which the measure from without the city, that is, from the wall of the city, as was said before ver. 4. but from without it, i. e. from the said outward part or space of a thousand cubits without the wall of the city round about) on the east-side two thousand cubits, &c. So in truth there were three thousand cubits from the wall of the city, whereof one thousand probably were for out-houses, stalls for cattel, gardens, vineyards and olive yards, and the like, and the other two thousand for pasture, which are therefore called the field of the suburbs, Lev. 25. 34. by way of distinction from the suburbs themselves, which consist of the first thousand cubits from the wall of the city.

5 And ye shall measure from without the city on the east-side two thousand cubits, and on the south-side two thousand cubits, and on the west-side two thousand cubits, and on the north-side two thousand cubits: and the city shall be in the midst: this shall be to them the suburbs of the cities.

6 And among the cities which ye shall give unto the Levites, there shall be * six cities for refuge c, which * Deut. 4. thither: and † to them ye shall add forty and two cities. 43. 2. and ye shall give in all forty and two cities, them with the cities are assigned among the Levites, partly because they might be presumed to be the most proper and impartial Judges of controversies between man-slayers, and wilful murderers; partly because their † Heb. it shall preference and counsel and authority would more effectually bridle give. the passions of the avenger of blood who might pursue him thither; and partly to signifie, that it is only in Christ (whom the Levitical Priests did represent) that sinners find refuge and safety from the destroyer. The names of these Cities we have Deut. 4. 41, 43. Jos. 20. 8. d Such as is here described, ver. 11, 15, 22, 23.

7 So all the cities which ye shall give to the Levites shall be forty and eight cities: them shall ye give with their suburbs.

8 And the cities which ye shall give, shall be of the possession of the children of Israel: * from them that * chap. have many, ye shall give many e; but from them that 15. 54. have few, ye shall give few. Every one shall give of his cities unto the Levites according to his inheritance which † he inheriteth.

e Compare Numb. 33. 54. Jos. 20. 2. † Heb. they inherit.

9 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, * When ye be come over Jordan, into the land of * Deut. Canaan: 19. 2. Josh. 20. 2.

11 Then * ye shall appoint you cities to be cities of * Exod. refuge for you, that the slayer may flee thither, which 21. 13. killeth any person † at unawares f. † Heb. by mistake.

f (i. e.) Not wilfully, designedly or maliciously, but inconsiderately, error. rarely, through mistake or indifcretion or carelefness. See Lev. 4. 2.

12 And they shall be unto you cities for refuge from the avenger g, that the man-slayer die not h, until he stand before the congregation i in judgment k.

g To wit, of the party slain, or, of blood, as it is fully expressed below ver. 19, 25. Heb. from the redeemer, or, from the next kinsman, to whom by the law belonged the right of redemption of the lands of, and vindication of the injury done to, the person deceased.

h (i. e.) Be not killed by the avenger meeting him in some other place. i (i. e.) Before the society or convention of Judges or Elders who were appointed in every City for the decision of criminal causes, who were 23 who were to examine the matter, and that publickly before the people, whether the murder was wilful or casual quæst. In what City was this cause to be tried? Answ. Some say, in the City of refuge, others say, in the City in or near which the fact was committed. It seems to me it was done in both, at first in the City of refuge, as is manifest in Jos. 20. 4. but if that trial and sentence did not satisfie the avenger of blood, it was fully and finally determined in the other City, as is sufficiently evident both by comparing this place with ver. 25. and Jos. 20. 6. and from the usual and most reasonable course of Justice, which is that facts should be examined, as far as may be, in or near the places where they were committed, and where the witnesses and evidences were at hand. k Or, for judgment, i. e. to receive sentence there according to the nature of the fact.

13 And of these cities which ye shall give, six cities shall ye have for refuge.

14 Ye shall give three cities on this side Jordan l, and three cities shall ye give in the land of Canaan, which shall be cities of refuge:

l Because that land was as long as Canaan, though not so broad, and besides these might be convenient for many of them that lived in Canaan.

15 These six cities shall be a refuge, both for the children of Israel, and for the stranger m, and for the sojourner among them: that every one that killeth any person unawares, may flee thither.

m Not the proselyte only, but all strangers, this being no matter of religious priviledge, but of common right and agreeable to the Law of nature and practice of wife heathens.

16 * And if he smite him with an instrument of iron * Exod. n (so that he die o) he is a murderer: the murderer shall 21.12,14. surely be put to death p.

n Wittingly and wilfully, though not with premeditated malice or design, as appears by comparing this with ver. 20, 21, 22, 23.

o To wit, suddenly, not so, if he walked abroad afterward, Exod. 21. 19, 20. p Yea though he were fled into the City of refuge.

17 And if he smite him † with throwing a stone q, † Heb. (wherewith he may die) and he die, he is a murderer: with a stone of his hand. the murderer shall surely be put to death.

q Heb. with the stone of the hand, i. e. cast by the hand, and that knowingly, as appears by ver. 23.

18 Or if he smite him with an hand-weapon of wood (wherewith he may die) and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death.

19 The revenger of blood himself shall slay the murderer r: when he meeteth him, he shall slay him.

r Either 1. By himself, as the following words shew: so it is only a permission, that he may do it without offence to God or danger to himself: Or 2. By the Magistrate, from whom he shall demand justice: so it is a command, as may appear by comparing this with ver. 31. and Deut. 19. 12, 13.

20 But

* Deut. 19. 11. 20 But * if he thrust him of hatred, or hurl at him by laying of wait, that he die:

21 Or in enmity smite him with his hand that he die: he that smote him shall surely be put to death, for he is a murderer: the revenger of blood shall slay the murderer when he meeteth him.

* Exod. 21. 13. 22 But if he thrust him suddenly i, * without enmity, or have cast upon him any thing without laying of wait:

i Through sudden passion, or provocation. Or, by chance, or unawares.

23 Or with any stone wherewith a man may die, seeing him not, and cast it upon him that he die, and was not his enemy, neither sought his harm:

24 Then a the congregation shall judge between the slayer, and the revenger of blood, according to these judgments.

a If the man slayer flee to the city of refuge.

25 And the congregation shall deliver the slayer out of the hand of the revenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to the city of his refuge, whither he was fled: and he shall abide in it x, unto the death of the high priest y * which was anointed with holy oyl.

* Exod. 29. 7. Lev. 4. 3. and 21. 10. x Be confined to it, partly to shew the hatefulness of wilful murder in Gods account by so severe a punishment, as this in many cases might prove, inflicted upon the very appearance of it, and partly for the security of the manslayer, lest the presence of such a person, and his conversation among the kindred of the deceased, might occasion reproach and blood-shed. y Partly because the publick grief for the loss of so publick a person was likely to asswage the private griefs and passions of men, the rather, because by this example they were minded of their own mortality, and thereby withheld from taking vengeance; and principally to shew that the death of Christ (the true High-Priest, whom the others did evidently and eminently represent and typifie) is the only mean whereby sins are pardoned and sinners are set at liberty.

26 But if the slayer shall at any time come without the border of his city of refuge, whither he was fled:

† Heb. the blood shall be to him. 27 And the revenger of blood find him without the borders of the city of his refuge, and the revenger of blood kill the slayer, he † shall not be guilty of blood z:

z i. e. Not liable to punishment from men, though not free guilt before God, because he kills an innocent person, as appears from Deut. 19. 12. This God ordained to oblige the man-slayer to abide in his city of refuge. See ver. 32.

28 Because he should have remained in the city of his refuge, until the death of the high priest: but after the death of the high priest, the slayer shall return into the land of his possession.

29 So these things shall be for a statute of judgment unto you, throughout your generations, in all your dwellings.

30 Whoso killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death by the * mouth of witnesses: but one witness shall not testifie against any person to cause him to die a.

* Deut. 17. 6. and 19. 15. Matt. 18. 16. 2 Cor. 13. 1. Heb. 10. 28. a No Judge shall condemn any man to death upon a single testimony.

† Heb. soul 31 Moreover, ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer b which is † guilty of death, but he shall be surely put to death.

b No intercession, nor ransom shall be accepted to save his Life, or procure him a pardon.

† Heb. family to die. 32 And ye shall take no satisfaction for him that is fled to the city of his refuge, that he should come again to dwell in the land, until the death of the priest c.

c Whereby God would signifie the absolute and indispensable necessity of Christs death to expiate sin, and to redeem the sinner.

* Mic. 4. 11. † Heb. there can be no expiation for the land. 33 So ye shall not pollute the land wherein ye are: for blood, it * defileth the land: and † the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed therein, but by the blood of him that sheddeth it d.

d These words are added as a reason not of the last Law, ver. 32 for in that case the land was cleansed without the blood of the man-slayer, but of the Law next foregoing that, ver. 31. in which case it holds, and the sense is, if you shall spare the murderer or take any satisfaction for him, you do together with your selves involve your Land and People in guilt, and will certainly bring down Gods vengeance upon your selves and them.

34 Defile not therefore the land which ye shall inherit e, wherein I dwell: for I the LORD dwell among the children of Israel.

e Be not cruel to your own land by making it a den of murderers.

CHAP. XXXVI.

The inconvenience of Daughter's Inheriting is remedied by a general Command, that all such marry in the tribe of their Fathers: to which of them they shall think best, 1—9. They obey, 10—12. These Commands God gave by Moses to Israel in the Plains of Moab, 13.

1 AND the chief fathers of the families a of the children of Gilead the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of the sons of Joseph came near, and spake before Moses, and before the princes, the chief fathers of the children of Israel.

a Who had the care and management of the publick affairs of that Tribe committed to them.

2 And they said, * The LORD commanded my lord to give the land for an inheritance by lot to the children of Israel: and * my lord was commanded by the LORD, to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother b unto his daughters.

* Chap. 26. 55. Josh. 17. 3.

b (i. e.) Our kinsman, one of our Tribe, Jos. 17. 2, 3.

3 And if they be married to any of the sons of the other Tribes of the children of Israel, then shall their inheritance be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put to the inheritance of the Tribe, † where- unto they are received c: so shall it be taken from the lot of our inheritance.

c For their inheritance will pass to their children, who will be of another tribe by their fathers side, which alone is considered in this place.

4 And when the * jubile of the children of Israel shall be d, then shall their inheritance be put unto the inheritance of the Tribe whereunto they are received: so shall their inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.

* Lev. 25. 10.

d Which God appointed principally for this end to preserve the inheritance in the hands of the Tribes and Families to which they were first given.

5 And Moses commanded the children of Israel according to the word of the LORD, saying, The tribe of the sons of Joseph hath said well e.

e Their plea is just and reasonable. God did not take particular care about every occurrence that happened or might happen, but left divers things to be found out by humane prudence, which being his own gift it was meet there should be opportunities left for the exercise of it, and God thought fit to approve and ratifie the prudent and profitable inventions of men by his own law or sanction, as in the case of Jethro, Exod. 18. of Zelophehads Daughters, Numb. 27. and here of their brethren. But it is observable, that God allowed this only in civil affairs, but never in the matters of his worship, where he utterly forbids it.

6 This is the thing which the LORD doth command concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, Let them † marry to whom they think best: only to the family of the tribe of their father f shall they marry.

f They seem hereby to be confined not only to the same Tribe, but also to the family of their Tribe, as appears from the reason of the Law, for God would have the inheritance of Families as well as Tribes kept entire and unmixed: and this was one reason of that Law of marrying the Brothers wife, Deut. 25. And although the next verse may seem to thwart this interpretation, the reason of this Law being there given that inheritances might not go from Tribe to Tribe, yet ver. 8. confirms it, where the very same phrase is repeated, and that more emphatically, that such shall marry one of this family of the Tribe of her Father; and this further reason and restriction is added, that they may enjoy every man the inheritance (not only of his Tribe, but) of his Fathers, to wit, belonging to his fathers family.

7 So shall not the inheritance of the children of Israel remove from tribe to tribe: for every one of the children of Israel shall † keep himself to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers.

8 And every daughter that possesseth an inheritance g in any tribe of the children of Israel, shall be wife unto one of the family of the tribe of her father: that the children of Israel may enjoy every man the inheritance of his fathers.

g By which clause it seems that this Law was not general to forbid every woman to marry into another Tribe (as may be reasonably concluded from the practice of so many Patriarchs, Kings, Priests, and other holy men, who have married women of other Tribes, yea sometimes of other Nations, which it is not likely they would have done, if this had been a transgression of Gods Law) but restrained to heiresses, or such as were likely to be so. See 1 Chron. 23. 22. But if they had brethren, it is probable they were free to marry into any Tribe, yet so that, if their brethren dyed, their punishment was, that the inheritance went from them to the next a kin of their fathers Tribe and Family. And the principal reason why God was solicitous to preserve Tribes and Families unmixed was, that the Tribe and Family too, out of which the Messiah was to come, and by which he should be known, might be evident and unquestionable.

9 Neither shall the inheritance remove from one tribe to another tribe: but every one of the tribes of the children of Israel shall keep himself to his own inheritance.

10 Even as the LORD commanded Moses, so did the daughters of Zelophehad.

11 * For Mahlah, Tirzah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Noah the daughters of Zelophehad, were married unto their fathers brothers sons h.

* Heb. they.

h It is uncertain whether brothers or sons be taken strictly and properly, or more large, as those words are oft used in Scripture.

12 And they were married † into the families of the sons of Manasseh, the son of Joseph and their inheritance remained in the tribe of the family of their father.

13 These are the commandments, and the judgments which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses, unto the children of Israel in the plains of Moab, by Jordan near Jericho.

DEUTERONOMY.

The ARGUMENT.

MOses, in the two last Months of his life, rehearseth, what God had done for them, and their frequent murmurings, rebellions, and constant ingratitude; he begs to enter into the Land, but is permitted only to see it; he forbiddeth any communion with the Nations for several reasons. Chap. 7. He gives a short repetition of those sundry Laws, Moral, Ceremonial, Judicial, and Military, which he had given them, from whence this Book is called Deuteronomy. Then, after many Exhortations, he prophesieth of Christ, afterwards he shews how matters of War are to be managed, and, giving many other particular directions with reference to Duties, Conditions, and Persons of both Sexes, he pronounceth Blessings on the Obedient, and Curses on the Disobedient; he then gives a charge for laying up, and reading of the Law at certain times, and every seven years to be solemnly read before all the people; he composeth a Song for common use, comprizing the wonderful things here mentioned; he prophesieth of Christs coming, and the calling of the Gentiles, seeth the Land, and dieth, leaving Joshua, after he had consecrated him, to succeed.

CHAP. I.

A Rehearsal of what had befallen Israel in their forty years march, at Gods Command to depart, 1,—6. Moses's inability to judge alone, 9—12. other Judges and Officers appointed, 13—16. Charge given the Judges, 17, 18. Their passage to Kadesh-Barnea, 19, 20, 21. Spies sent to search the Land of the Amorites, 22. Their Return and Report, 23. The disobedience of the people, 26. God's Wrath, 34. they smitten by the Amorites, 44. Their Complaint to God, which the Lord regards not, 45.

1 THese be the words which Moses spake a unto all Israel b, on this side Jordan, in the wilderness, in the plain c over against the ‖ Red sea, between Paran d, and Tophel, and Laban e, and Hazeroth f, and Dizahab.

a These are the Laws, Counsels and Admonitions delivered by Moses from God to Israel, which are here repeated for the instruction and obligation of those who by reason of their tender years were uncapable either of understanding them, or of entring into Covenant with God. b To wit, by the Heads or Elders of the several Tribes, or others, who were to communicate these discourses to all the people in several Assemblies. c Either 1. In the vast desert of Arabia. But that is no where called a plain. Or rather 2. In the plain of Moab, as may appear by comparing this with v. 5. and Numb. 22. 1. and Deut. 34. 8. Obj. That was far from the Red-Sea here mentioned. Answ. The word Suph here used doth not signifie the Red-Sea, which is commonly called jam-Suph, and which was at too great a distance, but some other place now unknown to us (as also most of the following places are) so called from the Reeds or Flags, or Rushes (which that word signifies) that grew in or near it; which reason of the name being common to other places with the Red-Sea, it is not strange if they got the same name. Compare Numb. 21. 14. d Not that Numb. 10. 12. Which there and elsewhere is called the Wilderness of Paran, and which was too remote, but some other place called by the same name, than which nothing more usual. e Places not mentioned elsewhere. f Of which see Numb. 11. 35. and 33. 17, 18. And these places seem to be the several bounds and limits not of the whole Country of Moab, but of the plain of Moab, where Moses now was, and spake these words.

2 (There are eleven days journey g from Horeb h, by the way of mount Seir i, unto Kadesh-barnea k) g This is added to shew that the reason why the Israelites in so many years were advanced no further from Horeb, than to these plains, was not the great distance of the places or length of the way, which was but a journey of eleven days at most, but because of their rebellions, as is mentioned before and repeated in this book. h Or Sinai, the place where the Law was given, which is promiscuously called by both those names. i Or Mount Edom, i. e. the mountainous Country of Seir, which was first possessed by the Horims, and afterwards by the Edomites, Deut. 2. 12. k which was not far from the borders of Canaan. See Gen. 16. 14. Numb. 13. 26.

3 And it came to pass in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month l, on the first day of the month, that Moses spake unto the children of Israel, according unto all that the LORD had given him in commandment unto them;

l Which was but a little before his death.

4 * After he had slain Sihon the King of the Amorite, which dwelt in Heshbon; and Og the King of Bashan, which dwelt at * Ashtaroth, in Edrei m:

* Josh. 13. 33.

m His Palace or Mansion-house was at Ashtaroth, and he was slain at Edrei, Numb. 21. 23. of both these places, see Gen. 14. 5. Jos. 13. 31.

5 On this side Jordan, in the land of Moab, ‖ began Moses to declare this law, saying, i Of Horeb, where they continued about a years space, Exod. 19. 1. Numb. 10. 11, 12.

6 The LORD our God spake unto us in Horeb, saying, Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount i.

7 Turn ye, and take your Journey, and go to the mount of the Amorite k, and unto † all the places nigh thereunto, in the plain, in the hills and in the vale, and in the south, and by the sea-side, to the land of the Canaanite, and unto Lebanon, unto the great river the river † Euphrates.

k i. e. To the mountainous Country where the Amorites dwelt, which is oppos'd to the plain here following, where others of them dwelt. And this is the first mentioned, because it was in the borders of the land; See below, v. 19. 20. The divers parts or bounds of the land are here mentioned.

8 Behold, I have † set the land before you l: go in, and possess the land, which the LORD sware unto your fathers, * Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to give unto them, and to their seed after them.

l Heb. Before your faces; it is open to your view, and to your possession; there is no impediment in the way. See of this phrase, Gen. 13. 9. and 34. 10.

9 And I spake unto you at that time m, saying, I am not able to bear you my self alone:

m i. e. About that time, to wit, a little before their coming to Horeb. Exod. 18. 18.

10 The LORD your God hath multiplied you, and behold, ye are this day as the stars of heaven for multitude.

11 * The LORD God of your fathers make you a † thousand times so many moe as ye are, and bless you, * as he hath promised you.

* Gen. 15. 5. & 22. 17. & 26. 4. † Heb. a thousand of. * Exod. 32. 13.

12 How can I my self alone bear your cumbrance, and your burden n, and your strife o?

n The trouble of ruling and managing so perverse a people. o Either your quarrellings with God: or rather your contentions among your selves, for the determination whereof the Elders were appointed.

13 † Take ye wise men, and understanding p, and † Heb. known q among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you.

p Persons of Knowledge, Wisdom and Experience. q Men Famous, and had in reputation, for ability and integrity: for to such they would more readily submit.

14 And ye answered me, and said, The thing which thou hast spoken is good for us to do.

15 So I took the chief r of your tribes, wise men and known, and † made them heads over you; captains over † Heb. thousands, and captains over hundreds, and captains over fifties, and captains over tens, and officers s among your tribes.

17 * Ye shall not † respect persons u in judgment, but ye shall hear the small x as well as the great, ye shall not be afraid of the face of man: for the judgment is Gods y: and the cause that is too hard for you, bring it unto me, and I will hear it.

18 And I commanded you at that time all the things which ye shall do z.

z I delivered unto you, and especially unto your Judges, all the Laws, Statutes, and Judgments revealed unto me by the Lord in Horeb.

19 And when we departed from Horeb, we went through all that great and terrible † wilderness, which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Amorite, as the LORD our God commanded us, and * we came to Kadesh-Barnea.

† That is, of Paran. Numb. 10. 12. * Deut. 1. 2.

20 And I said unto you, Ye are come unto the mountain of the Amorite, which the LORD our God doth give unto us.

21 Behold, the LORD thy God hath set the land before thee: go up, and possess it, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath said unto thee: fear not, neither be discouraged.

22 And ye came near unto me every one of you, and said, We will send men before us, and they shall search us out the land, and bring us word again, by what way we must go up, and into what cities we shall come.

* Num. 13. 3.

23 And the saying pleased me well b: and * I took twelve men of you, one of a tribe.

b For there seemed to be some prudence and good policy in it: but Moses could not see into their hearts, nor from what root this desire grew: but God saw it, and therefore in just judgment complied with their desire, and permitted them to do so for their trial and exercise, Numb. 13. 1, 2, 3.

* Num. 13. 24.

24 And * they turned and went up into the mountain, and came unto the valley c of Eschol d, and searched it out.

c Or, the brook: the word signifies both, for brooks commonly run in Valleys. d i. e. of grapes, so called from the goodly cluster of grapes which they brought from thence, Numb. 13. 23.

25 And they took of the fruit e of the land in their hand, and brought it down unto us, and brought us word again, and said, It is a good land f which the LORD our God doth give unto us.

e Grapes, Pomegranates and Figs, Numb. 13. 23. f Which acknowledgment coming from its Enemies, should have prevailed with you to go in, more than their discouraging words should have beat you off, because the Lord who had given you this land, was unquestionably able to settle you in it in spight of all opposition.

26 Notwithstanding ye would not go up, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD our God.

27 And ye murmured in your tents, and said, Because the LORD hated us g, he hath brought us forth out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorite, to destroy us.

g And therefore designed to destroy us.

28 Whither shall we go up? our brethren have † discouraged our heart, saying, * The people is greater b and taller than we, the cities are great, and walled up to Heaven i; and moreover, we have seen the sons of the * Anakins k there.

b In number and strength and valour. i i. e. To a great height. A common Hyperbole, as Gen. 11. 4. Psal. 107. 26. k The Children of Anak or Enak. See Judg. 1. 10, 20.

29 Then I said unto you, Dread not, neither be afraid of them.

30 The LORD your God which goeth before you, he shall fight for you, according to all that he did for you in Egypt l, before your eyes, l Where you were weak, disbirited, divided, raw and unexperienced and in a great measure unarmed, and able to do nothing against your numerous, potent, united Enemies, but to stand still and see the salvation of God. And therefore now your distrust is highly unreasonable, when you have been hardned and fitted for military service by your travels, disciplined and experienced in some degree as to Martial Affairs, encouraged by frequent and glorious Miracles for 40 years together, and you are going into a Country divided into several Nations and Kingdoms.

* Isa. 63. 9. Hos. 11. 3.

31 And in the wilderness, where thou hast seen how that the LORD thy God * bare thee m as a man doth bear his son, in all the way that ye went, until ye came into this place.

See of this or the like phrase, Numb. 11. 12. Deut. 32. 10, 11. Psal. 91. 12. Isa. 46. 3, 4.

32 Yet in this thing n ye did not believe the LORD your God;

t A common description of the state of childhood, as Jonah 4. 11.

40 But as for you, turn ye, and take your journey into the Wilderness by the way of the Red-sea.

41 Then ye answered and said unto me, * We have sinned against the LORD, we will go up and fight, according to all that the LORD our God commanded us. And when ye had girded on every man his weapons of war, ye were ready u to go up into the hill.

* Num. 14. 40.

42 And the LORD said unto me, Say unto them, Go not up, neither fight, for I am not among you x: lest ye be smitten before your enemies.

x With my powerful presence and assistance.

43 So I spake unto you, and ye would not hear, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD, and † went presumptuously up into the hill.

44 And the Amorite which dwelt in that mountain came out against you, and chased you, as bees do y, and destroyed you in Seir, even unto Hormah.

y As Bees which being provoked come out of their Hives in great numbers, and with great fury pursue and sting their Adversary and Disturber, Psal. 118. 12.

45 And ye returned, and wept before the LORD, but the LORD would not hearken to your voice, nor give ear unto you.

46 So ye abode in Kadesh many days, according unto the days that ye abode there z.

z i. e. As you abode in Kadesh many, even 40 days, until the spies which you sent returned to give you an account, so you also abode there many days, or a long time after, and were not now permitted to make any further progress towards Canaan.

CHAP. II.

Their march from Kadesh-Barnea, 1—3. A charge that they trouble not the Edomites, 4, 5. nor the Moabites, 9. nor the Ammonites, 19. But are encouraged to fight the Amorites; they put them to flight, and take possession of their Lands, 26—37.

THen we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness, by the way of the Red-sea, * as the LORD spake unto me: and we compassed mount Seir a many days b.

* Num. 14. 25. Ch. 1. 40.

a The Mountainous Country of Seir or Edom. b Or, many years, even for 38 years.

2 And the LORD spake unto me, saying,

3 Ye have compassed this mountain long enough, turn ye northward c.

c Towards the land of the Amorites and Canaanites.

4 And command thou the people, saying, * ye are to pass through the coast d of your brethren, the children of Esau, which dwell in Seir e, and they shall be afraid of you f: take ye good heed unto your selves therefore.

* Num. 20. 14.

d Or, by, or near the coast or border: for they did not pass through their borders, as it is said, Numb. 20. 21. And the particle beth doth oft signifie by or near, as Gen. 37. 13. Jos. 5. 13. Judg. 8. 5. Jer 32. 7. Thus that difference may be reconciled, which others reconcile thus, that they at first denied it, but afterwards granted it. e These words refrain the prohibition to these particular Children of Esau, for there were another sort or branch of Esau's Children, which were to be meddled with and destroyed, even the Amalekites, Exod. 17. 14. Deut. 25. 17. who were Esau's posterity, Gen. 36. 12. f But, I charge you take no advantage of their fears, which you will be very apt to do.

5 Meddle not with them f, for I will not give you of their land, † no not so much as a foot-breadth, * because I have given mount Seir unto Esau for a possession.

f To wit, in battel at this time.

6 Ye shall buy meat of them g for money, that ye may eat, and ye shall also buy water of them h for money, that ye may drink.

g For though the Manna did yet rain upon them, they were not forbidden to buy other meats when they had opportunity, but only were forbidden greedily to hunger after them when they could not obtain them. h For water in those parts was scarce, and therefore private persons did severally dig pits for their particular use. See Gen. 26. 18. Numb. 21. 18.

7 For the LORD thy God hath blessed thee i in all the works of thy hand; he knoweth k thy walking through this great wilderness: these forty years the LORD thy God hath been with thee, thou hast lacked nothing.

i By Gods blessing thou art able to buy thy conveniencies, and therefore thy theft and rapine will be inexcusable, because without any pretence of necessity. k Heb. He hath known, i. e. observed, or regarded with care and kindness, which that word oft notes, as Psal. 1. 6. and 31. 7. Which experience of God's singular goodness to thee, should make thee truft him ſtill, and not uſe any undirect and unjuſt practices to procure what thou wanteſt or deſireſt.

8 And

8 And when we passed by from our brethren, the children of Esau which dwelt in Seir, through the way of the plain from Elah, and from Ezion-Gaber l, we turned m and passed by the way of the wilderness of Moab.

l Of which see Numb. 33. 35. which may be either that place upon the Red-sea, 1 King. 9. 26. or another of the same name. m To wit, from our direct road which lay through Edom land.

9 And the LORD said unto me, ‖ Distress not the Moabites, neither contend with them in battel: for I will not give thee of their land for a possession, because I have given Ar n unto the children of Lot o for a possession.

n The chief City of the Moabites, Numb. 21. 15, 28. here put for the whole Country which depended upon it. o So called to signifie that this preservation was not for their sakes, for they were a wicked people, but for Lot's sake whose memory God yet honours.

10 (The Emims p dwelt therein in times past, a people great and many, and tall as * the Anakims:

* Deut. 9. 2.

p Men terrible for stature and strength, as their very name imports. See Gen. 14. 5. whose expulsion by the Moabites is here noted as a great encouragement to the Israelites, for whose sake he would much more drive out the wicked and accursed Canaanites.

11 Which also were accounted giants; as the Anakims: but the Moabites call them Emims.

12 * The Horims q also dwelt in Seir before-time, but the children of Esau † succeeded them, when they had destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their ‖ stead: as Israel did unto the land of his possession which the LORD gave unto them r.

* Deut. 2. 22.

q Of whom see Gen. 14. 6. and 36. 20. r Obj. God had not yet given it unto them. Answ. 1. The past tense is here put for the future, will give, after the manner of the Prophets. 2. Things are oft said to be done when they are only resolved, or decreed, or attempted to be done, in which sence Reuben is said to deliver Joseph, Gen. 37. 21. Esau to fight against Israel, Jos. 24. 9. Abraham to have offered his Son, Heb. 11. 17. 3. God may well be said to have given it, not only because he had purposed and promised to give it, but also because he was now about to give it, and had already given them some part of it, and that as an earnest of the whole. 4. This may be particularly understood of that part of Israels possession which was beyond Jordan, which God had actually given to them, that is, to some of them, for even the land of Canaan on this side Jordan was not given to all of them, but only to some of the tribes.

13 Now rise up, said I, and get ye over * the ‖ brook Zered: and we went over the brook Zered.

* Num. 21. 12. ‖ Heb. valley.

14 And the space in which we came from Kadesh-Barnea, until we were come over the brook Zered, was thirty and eight years, until all the generation of the men of war were wasted out from among the host, as the LORD sware unto them.

15 For indeed the hand of the LORD was against them, to destroy them from among the host, until they were consumed.

16 So it came to pass when all the men of war were consumed and dead from among the people,

17 That the LORD spake unto me, saying,

18 Thou art to pass over through Ar, the coast of Moab s, this day.

s Or, to pass by the border of Moab, by Ar.

19 And when thou comest nigh over against the children of Ammon, distress them not, nor meddle with them: for I will not give thee of the land of the children of Ammon any possession, because I have given it unto the children of Lot for a possession.

20 (That also was accounted a land of giants: giants dwelt therein in old time, and the Ammonites call them * Zamzummims t; t Which signifies men most wicked and abominable, or most presumptuous, or most crafty.

* Gen. 14. 5.

21 A people great, and many, and tall as the Anakims: but the LORD destroyed them before them u, and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead:

u Who therefore will certainly do as much for his own people.

22 As he did to the children of Esau, * which dwelt in Seir, when he destroyed the Horims from before them, and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead, even unto this day.

* Deut. 2. 12.

23 And the * Avims which dwelt in Hazerim, even unto Azzah, the Caphtorims x, which came forth out of Caphtor y, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead.)

* Gen. 10. 14.

x A people akin to the Philistines, Gen. 10. 14. and confederate with them in this enterprize, and so dwelling together, and by degrees were probably united together by Marriages or otherways, and became one people, the Caphtorims being at last swallowed up in the Philistines. See Jer. 47. 4. Amos 9. 7. y Which is by the Learned thought to be Cappadocia. Whither these people might make an expedition out of Egypt either because of the report of the great Riches of part of that Country which drew others thither from places equally remote, or after the manner of those ancient times, or for some other reason now unknown.

24 Rise ye up, take your journey, and * pass over the river Arnon: behold, I have given into thy hand Sihon the Amorite, King of Heshbon, and his land: † begin to possess it, and contend with him in battel.

* Num. 21. 13. † Heb. possess to begin.

25 This day will I begin to put the dread of thee and the fear of thee upon the nations that are under the whole heaven z, who shall hear report of thee, and shall tremble, and be in anguish because of thee.

z Which is a Synecdoche and an Hyperbole, but is explained by the following words which restrain the sentence to those nations that heard of them.

26 And I sent messengers out of the wilderness of Kedemoth a, unto Sihon king of Heshbon, * with words of peace b, saying, a So called from a city of that name, Jos. 13. 18. and called Jeshimon, Numb. 21. 20. b With offers of peace, which they refusing, their destruction was highly just and reasonable.

* Deut. 20. 10.

27 * Let me pass through thy land; I will go along by the high way c, I will neither turn unto the right hand, nor to the left.

* Numb. 21. 21, 22.

c In my direct road to Canaan, from which I will not turn aside into thy Fields, or Vineyards, or Houses.

28 Thou shalt sell me meat for money, that I may eat, and give me water for money, that I may drink: only I will pass through on my feet d:

d Or, with my foot-men, or with my company which are on foot: which is added significantly, because if their Army had consisted as much of Horsemen as many other Armies did, their passage through his land might have been more mischievous and dangerous: but they were generally on foot.

29 (As the children of Esau which dwell in Seir, and the Moabites which dwell in Ar, did unto me e) until I shall pass over Jordan, into the land which the LORD our God giveth us.

e Obj. The king of Edom, i. e. of the children of Esau, did not grant them passage, Numb. 20. Answ. They did permit them to pass quietly by the borders, though not through the heart of their Land, and in their passage the people sold them meat and drink, being it seems more kind to them than their king would have had them; and therefore they here ascribe this favour not to the king, though they are now treating with a king, but to the people, the children of Esau.

30 But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let us pass by him f: for * the LORD thy God hardened his spirit, and made his heart obstinate g, that he might deliver him into thy hand, as appeareth this day.

* Josh. 11. 20.

f i. e. By his Borders. g Unmoveable and inexorable to our desires.

31 And the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have begun to give Sihon and his land before thee, begin to possess, that thou mayest inherit his land.

32 * Then Sihon came out against us, he and all his people, to fight at Jahaz.

* Numb. 21. 23.

33 And the LORD our God delivered him before us, and we smote him, and his sons, and all his people.

34 And we took all his cities at that time, and utterly destroyed g the † men, and the women, and the little ones of every city, we left none to remain.

g By God's command, there being a part of those people who were devoted by the Lord of Life and Death, to utter destruction for their abominable wickedness. See Deut. 7. 2. and 20. 16.

35 Only the cattel we took for a prey unto our selves, and the spoil of the cities which we took:

36 From Aroer h, which is by the brink of the river of Arnon, and from the city that is by the river i, even unto Gilead, there was not one city too strong for us: the LORD our God delivered all unto us

h Which was in the border of Moab, but now in the hands of the Amorites. i Heb. In the river, whereof it was encompassed, Numb. 21. 15. 28. Jos. 12. 2. and 13. 9. He speaks exclusively for this was Ar, which now was in the Moabites jurisdiction, above 9. 9.

37 Only unto the land of the children of Ammon thou camest not, nor unto any place of the river * Jabbok k, nor unto the cities in the mountains l, nor unto whatsoever the LORD our God forbad us m.

* Gen. 32. 22.

k i. e. Beyond Jabbok: for that was the border of the Ammonites, Jos. 12. 2. Obj. Half the land of the Ammonites is said to be given to the tribe of Gad, Jos. 13. 27. Answ. This is true of that half of it which the Amorites had taken from them, but not of the other half which yet was in the possession of the Ammonites. l The mountainous Country of the Ammonites. m Heb Commanded us: commanding is put for forbidding, here, as Gen. 2. 16. and 3. 11. Lev. 4. 2. Deut. 4. 23. The words may be thus rendred, Concerning which the Lord gave us command or charge, to wit, that we should not meddle with them, as was said before. So it is only an ellipsis of the preposition, which is very frequent.

CHAP. III.

Their march to Bashan, 1. Og its King is put to flight, they possess his land, 2—11. which is distributed to two Tribes and half, 12—17. who are commanded to assist their Brethren to possess the land beyond Jordan, 18—20. Moses encourages Joshuah, 21, 22. His Prayer to go into the promised land, 23—25. God grants not his request, 26. He gives him a prospect of it, 27. and bids him encourage Joshuah, 28.

THen we turned, and went up the way to Bashan: and * Og the King of Bashan came out against us, he, and all his people to battel at Edrei.

* Num. 21. 33.

2 And the LORD said unto me, Fear him not a: for I will deliver him, and all his people, and his land, and thou shalt do unto him, as thou didst unto Sihon King of the Amorite, which dwelt at Heshbon.

a Though he be of so frightful a look and stature, v. 11.

*Num. 21. 24.

*Num. 21. 33. 3 So the LORD our God delivered into our hands Og also the King of Bashan, and all his people: and we smote him, until none was left to him remaining.

4 And we took all his cities at that time, there was not a city which we took not from them; threescore cities, all the region of Argob b the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

b A Province within Bashan. or at least subject and belonging to Bashan, as appears from v. 13. and 1 King. 4. 13. called Argob, probably from the name of a man its former Lord and owner.

5 All these cities were fenced with high walls, gates, and bars c, besides unwalled towns a great many.

c Which may encourage you in your attempt upon Canaan, notwithstanding the fenced cities which the spies told you of, and you must expect to find.

6 And we utterly destroyed them, as we did unto Sihon King of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and children of every city.

7 But all the cattel, and the spoil of the cities, we took for a prey to our selves.

8 And we took at that time out of the hand of the two Kings of the Amorite, the land that was on this side Jordan d, from the river of Arnon, unto Mount Hermon e:

d So it was when Moses wrote this book, but afterward when Israel passed over Jordan it was called the land beyond Jordan.

2 Which Hermon the Zidonians call Sirion: and the Amorite call it Shenir e.

e Elsewhere called Mount Gilead, and Libanus or Lebanon, and here Shenir, and Sirion, and, by abbreviation, Sion, Deut. 4. 48. Which several names are given to this one mountain partly by several people, and partly in regard of several tops and parts of it, whence Sebonite and Hermon are mentioned as distinct places, Cant. 4. 8.

*Josh. 12. 5. and 13. 11. 10 All the cities of the plain, and all Gilead f, and all Bashan, unto Salchah and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

f Gilead is sometimes taken largely for all the Israelites possessions beyond Jordan, and so it comprehends Bashan, but here more strictly for that part of it which lies in and near mount Gilead, and so it is distinguished from Bashan and Argob.

11 For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of giants g: behold, his bedstead was a bedstead of iron: is it not in * Rabbath of the children of Ammon? nine cubits was the length thereof, and four cubits the breadth of it, after the cubit of a man k.

g The other giants of Bashan were destroyed before; and therefore when Og was killed, the Israelites work was done. l Where it might now be, either because the Ammonites in some former battel with Og had taken it as a prize or because after Og's death, the Ammonites desired to have this monument of his greatness, and the Israelites permitted them to carry it away to their chief city. k To wit, of ordinary stature. So his bed was four yards and an half long, and two yards broad.

12 And this land which we possessed at that time from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon, and half mount Gilead, and * the cities thereof, gave I unto the Reubenite, and to the Gadite.

*Num. 32. 33. Josh. 13. 8. &c.

13 And the rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, being the kingdom of Og, gave I unto the half tribe of Manasseh: all the region of Argob, with all Bashan, which was called the land of giants.

* 1 Chron. 2. 22. *Num. 32. 41. 14 * Jair the son of Manasseh took all the country of Argob, unto the coasts of Geshuri l, and Maachathi m, and called them after his own name Bashan. *Havoth-Jair unto this day n.

l Or, Gesshurites, a people towards the North of Canaan, 2 Sam. 3. 3. and 15. 8. See also Josh. 13. 13. m Of whom see 2 Sam. 3. 3. and 10. 6. n This must be put among those other passages which were not written by Moses, but added by those holy men who digested the books of Moses into this order and inserted some very few passages to accommodate things to their own time and people.

*Num. 32. 39. 15 And * I gave Gilead o unto Machir p.

o (i.e.) The half part of Gilead, as appears from v. 12, 13. See on Numb. 32. 40. p (i.e.) Unto the children of Machir son of Manasseh, for Machir was now dead.

16 And unto the Reubenite, and unto the Gadite I gave from Gilead even unto the River Arnon, half the valley q, and the border, even unto the river Jabbok r,

q Or rather to the middle of the River: for the word rendred half signifies commonly middle, and the same Hebrew word signifying both a valley and a brook or river, it seems more reasonable to understand it of a River, as the same word is here rendred in the next foregoing clause of this verse, than of a valley, which was not mentioned before, especially seeing there is here an article added which seems to be emphatical, and to note that River, to wit, now mentioned. Add to this, that there was no such valley, much less any half-valley, belonging both unto the Reubenites and Gadites. But according to the other translation the sense is plain and agreeable to the truth, that their Land extended from Gilead unto Arnon, and, to speak exactly, to the middle of that River, for as that River was the border between them and others, so one half of it belonged to them, as the other half did to others. And that this is no subtil device, as some may think it, but the truth of the thing, and the real meaning of the place, will appear by comparing this place with two others, 1. with Jos. 12. 2. where the same thing is expressed in the same words in the Hebrew which are here, though our translators render the self-same words there, from the middle of the River, which here they render, half of the valley; and where the bounds of Sihons kingdom, which was the same portion here mentioned as given to Reuben and Gad, are thus described, from Aroer, which is upon the bank of the River of Arnon, and from the middle of the River, and from half Gilead, even unto the river Jabbok which is the border of the children of Ammon. 2. With Deut. 2. 36. From Aroer, which is by the brink of the river of Arnon, and from the city that is by the River, or rather, as the Hebrew hath it, in the River, i. e. from Ar, which was the chief city of the Moabites, and therefore denied to the Israelites, as is here implied, and more fully expressed, Deut. 2. 9. which City was seated in an Island in the middle of the River. So that here we have a just and full reason why the border of this Land given to Reuben and God is so nicely and critically described here, even to the middle of a River, which although in truth and strictness it be the bound of those Lands which are divided by a River, yet is not usually expressed in the description of borders, either in Scripture or other Authors, because here was an eminent City of the Moabites in the middle of this River, which by this curious and exact description is excepted from their possession, as God would have it to be.

r The meaning seems to be this, And the border, to wit, of their Land, was, which verb substantive is common, understood, or went forth, (as the phrase is, Jos. 15. 6, 7, &c.) from thence, to wit, from the River Arnon, even unto the River Jabbok, for so indeed the border did proceed. 1 Object. This was the border between them and the Manassites, as is evident, and therefore not the border of the Ammonites. Answ. It bordered upon the Manassites in one part, and upon the Ammonites in another part, to wit, in that part which is remoter from Jordan, and so both are true.

17 The plain t also, and Jordan, and the coast thereof from Chinnereth u, even unto the sea of the plain x even the salt sea, ‖ under Ashdoth Pisgah y eastward.

[Or, unto the sea

t The Low Country towards Jordan. u Of which see on Numb. 34. 11. Jos. 12. 3. x (i. e.) That salt Sea, as it here follows, which of Pisgah before that dreadful conflagration was a goodly plain, called the plain of Jordan, Gen. 13. 10. y The proper name of a City, of which, Jos. 13. 20.

18 And I commanded you z at that time, saying, The LORD your God hath given you this land to possess it: * ye shall pass over armed before your brethren, the children of Israel, all that are † meet for the war a.

z To wit, the Reubenites and Gadites mentioned, v. 16. to whom of war. he now turns his speech by an Apostrophe. a In such number as your brethren shall judge necessary. See Jos. 1. 14. and 4. 13.

19 But your wives, and your little ones, and your cattle (for I know that ye have much cattle) shall abide in your cities, which I have given you.

20 Until the LORD have given rest b unto your brethren, as well as unto you, and until they also possess the land which the LORD your God hath given them beyond Jordan: and then shall ye * return every man unto his possession which I have given you.

*Josh. 1. 15.

b A peaceable and fixed possession.

21 And * I commanded Joshua at that time, saying, Thine eyes have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto these two kings: so shall the LORD do unto all the kingdoms whither thou passest.

*Num. 27. 18.

22 Ye shall not fear them: for the LORD your God he shall fight for you.

23 And I besought the LORD at that time, saying,

24 O LORD God, thou hast begun to shew thy servant thy greatness, and thy mighty hand: for * what God is there in heaven or in earth, that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might?

*Psal. 86. 8. and 89. 6. Isa. 46. 9. Jer. 10. 6, 7.

25 I pray thee let me go over c, and see the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly mountain d, and Lebanon e.

c For he supposed God's threatning might be conditional and reversible, as many others were. d Or, that blessed mountain, which the Jews not improbably understand of that mountain on which the Temple was to be built. For as Moses desired and determined to prepare an habitation for God, Exod. 15. 2. and knew very well that God would chuse a certain place for his habitation, and to put his name there, Deut. 12. 5. So he also knew that it was the manner both of the true worshippers of God and of Idolaters to worship their God in high-places, and particularly that Abraham did worship God in the mount of Moria, Gen. 22. 2. and therefore did either reasonably conjecture that God would chuse some certain mountain for the place of his habitation, or possibly understood by revelation that in that very mount of Moria, where Abraham performed that eminent and glorious act of worship, there also the children of Abraham should have their place of constant and settled worship. This he seems to call that mountain, emphatically and eminently, that which was much in Moses his thoughts, though not in his eye, and the blessed (as the Hebrew tob oft signifies) or the goodly mountain. Or, the mountain may be here put for the mountainous countries, as that word is oft used, as Gen. 36. 9. Numb. 13. 29. and and 23. 7. Deut. 1. 7. Jos. 10. 6. and 11. 16, 21, &c. And it is known that a great part of the glory and beauty and profit of this Country lay in its Hills or Mountains. See Deut. 11. 11. and 33. 15. And that goodly mountain may by an Enallage of the number be put for those goodly mountains in Canaan, which were many. Thus also he proceeds gradually in this desire and description, and prays that he may see in general the good land that is beyond Jordan, and then particularly, the goodly mountains of it, and especially that famous mount of Lebanon, which was so celebrated for its tall and large Cedars, and other Trees and excellent Plants. See Psal. 29. 5. and 104. 16. Isa. 2. 13. and 14. 8.

*Numb. 20. 12. and 27. 14. 26 But the LORD * was wroth with me for your sakes f, and would not hear me: and the LORD said unto me, Let it suffice thee g, speak no more unto me of this matter.

*Deut. 3. 26. and 31. 2. 37. 27 * Get thee up into the top of ‖ Pisgah h, and lift up thine eyes i westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes: for thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

f By occasion of your sins which provoked me to unadvised words and carriages, Psal. 106. 32, 33. See Numb. 20. 12. Deut. 31. 2. and 34. 4. g That this is my pleasure and unalterable resolution. Compare 2 Cor. 12. 8, 9.

h Of which see on Numb. 27. 12. i Towards the Land of Canaan and its several quarters.

*Numb. 27. 18. 28 But * charge Joshua k, and encourage him, and strengthen him l: for he shall go over m before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which thou shalt see.

k Give him commission and authority, and a command to execute his trust, and conduct the people. l With exhortations and promises and assurances of my presence and help and of good success. m It was not Moses, but Joshua or Jesus that was to give the people rest, Heb. 4. 8.

*Deut. 3. 6. 29 So we abode in the valley over against Beth-Peor n.

n The House or Temple of Peor, or of Baal-Peor, of which see Numb. 25. 3. whence this place or city had its name.

CHAP. IV.

An Exhortation to obey the Law, 1—13. And warning against Idolatry, 14—24. From the mischief of it upon themselves and Children, 25. 28. Gods promise upon their Repentance, 29—31. And from Gods wonders towards them, 32—40. Cities of Refuge are appointed, 41—43.

1 NOW therefore hearken, O Israel, unto the statutes a, and unto the judgments b which I teach you, for to do them, that ye may live, and go in, and possess the land which the LORD God of your fathers giveth you.

a The Laws which concern the worship and service of God. b The Laws concerning your duties to men. So these two comprehend both Tables, and the whole Law of God.

*Lev. 18. 5. Ezek. 20. 11. 13. 21. Rom. 10. 5. Gal. 3. 12. 2 Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you c, neither shall ye diminish ought from it d, that ye may keep the commandments of the LORD your God, which I command you.

c By deviling other doctrines or ways of worship than what I have taught or prescribed. See Numb. 15. 39, 40. Deut. 12. 8, 32. 1 King. 12. 33. Prov. 30. 6. Matth. 15. 9. For this were to accuse me of want of wisdom or care or faithfulness in not giving you sufficient instructions for my own service. d By rejecting or neglecting any thing which I have commanded, though it seem never so small.

*Numb. 25. 3, &c. Deut. 32. 17. 3 Your eyes have seen what the LORD did because of * Baal-Peor: for all the men that followed Baal-Peor, the LORD thy God hath destroyed them from among you.

4 But ye that did cleave unto the LORD your God, are alive every one of you this day.

5 Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the LORD my God commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it.

*Josh. 8. 28. 11. 19. Psal. 107. 7. 6 Keep therefore, and do them, for this is * your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations d, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.

d For though the generality of Heathen people in the latter and degenerate ages of the world did through inveterate prejudices and for their own lusts and interests condemn the Laws of the Hebrews as foolish and absurd, yet it is most certain, that divers of the wisest heathens did highly approve of them so far that they made use of divers of them, and translated them into their own Laws and Constitutions; and Moses, the giver of these Laws, hath been mentioned with great honour for his wisdom and learning by many of them. And particularly the old Heathen Oracle expressly said, that the Chaldeans or Hebrews, who worshipped the uncreated God, were the only wise men.

*Num. 7. 89. Heb. a thing or word. 7 For * what nation is there so great, who hath † God * so nigh unto them e, as the LORD our God is in all things that we call upon him for?

*Deut. 4. 34. 5. 26. 1 Sam. 12. 22. Psal. 145. 18. Isa. 55. 6. e By glorious miracles, by the pledges of his special presence, by the operations of his grace, and particularly, as it here follows, by his readiness to hear our prayers, and to give us those succours which we call upon him for.

8 And what nation is there so great, that hath statutes and judgments so righteous f, as all this law which I set before you this day?

f Whereby he implies that the true greatness of a nation doth not consist in pomp or power, or largeness of empire, as commonly men think, but in the righteousness of its Laws.

9 Only take heed to thy self, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life: but * teach them thy sons and thy sons sons:

*Gen. 18. 19. Ch. 6. 7. 11. 19. Psal. 78. 5, 6.

10 *Specially * the day that thou stoodst before the LORD thy God in Horeb g, when the LORD said unto me, Gather me the people together, and I will make them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me all the days that they shall live upon the earth, and that they may teach their children.

*Exod. 19. 9, 16 and 20. 18. Heb. 12. 18.

g Some of them stood there in their own persons, though then they were but young, the rest stood then in the loins of their Parents, in whom they may well be said to stand there, because they are said to have entred into covenant with God, because their Parents did so in their name and for their use.

11 And ye came near, and stood under the mountain, and the * mountain burnt with fire unto the † midst of † Heb. heart. heaven h, with darkness, clouds and thick darkness.

*Exod. 19. 18.

h Flaming up into the air, which is oft called Heaven, and the midst or the heart of it is not only that which is strictly and properly the middle part, but that which is within it, though but a little way, in which sense places or persons or things are said to be in the heart of the Sea, Exod. 15. 8. Prov. 23. 34. Ezek. 28. 2. and Christ in the heart of the Earth, Matth. 12. 40.

12 And the LORD spake unto you out of the midst of the fire: ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude i, † only ye heard a voice.

i (i. e.) No resemblance or representation of God, whereby either his essence or properties or actions were represented, such as were usual among the heathens.

13 And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even * ten commandments, and * he wrote them upon two tables of stone.

*Ex. 34. 28 *Deut. 4. 13. and 10. 4. *Ex. 24. 12 and 31. 18.

14 And * the LORD commanded me at that time, to teach you statutes and judgments k, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go over to possess it.

k (i. e.) The ceremonial and judicial Laws which are here distinguished from the moral, or the Ten Commandments, v. 13.

15 Take ye therefore good heed unto your selves l (for ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that the LORD spake unto you in Horeb m, out of the midst of the fire.)

l By which caution he insinuates mans great proneness to the worship of Images. m God, who in other places and times did appear in a similitude, in the fashion of a man, now in this most solemn appearance, when he comes to give eternal Laws for the regulation and direction of the Israelites in the worship of God, and in their duty to men, he purposely avoids all such representations, to shew that he abhors all Worship of images, or of himself by images of what kind soever, as is here follows, v. 16, 17, 18, 19. because he is the invisible God and cannot be represented by any visible image. See Isa. 40. 18. Act. 17. 29.

n (i. e.) Corrupt your minds with mean and carnal thoughts of God. Or, corrupt your ways or courses, by worshipping God in a corrupt manner, or by falling into Idolatry. o To wit, for worship, or for the representation of God, as it is explained v. 19. for otherwise it was not simply unlawful to draw the picture or make a figure of a man or a beast.

17 The likeness of any beast p that is on the earth, the likeness of any winged fowl that flieth in the air:

p Whereby the Heathen nations did represent and worship God some by an Ox, some by a Goat, or an Hen, or a Serpent, or a Fish, &c.

18 The likeness * of any thing that creepeth on the ground, the likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth:

*Rom 1. 23.

19 And lest thou * lift up thine eyes unto heaven, and when thou seest the sun, and the moon and the stars, even * all the host of heaven, shouldst be driven to worship them q, and serve them, which the LORD thy God hath ‖ divided unto all nations r under the whole heaven.

*Ch. 17. 3. Job 31. 27. Gen. 2. 1. [Or, imparted.

q (i. e.) Strongly enclined, and in a manner constrained partly by the glory of these heavenly bodies, which may seem to be made for higher purposes than to enlighten this lump of earth; partly from that natural propension which is in men to Idolatry. Or, lest ye should be driven or thrust, to wit, out of the way of the Lord, (as it is more fully expressed, Deut. 13. 5.) or, be seduced, or led aside, as filly sheep easily are, and worship them. Or, shouldst be cast down, or throw down thy self and worship them, i. e. Worship them by falling down before them. r Which are not Gods, but Creatures, made not for the worship, but for the use of men, yea, of the meanest and most barbarous people under Heaven, and therefore cannot without great absurdity be worshipped, especially by you who are so much advanced above other Nations in Wisdom and Knowledge, and in this, that you are my peculiar people.

20 But the LORD hath taken you, and * brought you forth out of the iron furnace s, even out of Egypt, to be unto him a people of inheritance, as ye are this day.

* 1 King. 8. 51 Jer. 11. 4.

s (i. e.) The furnace wherein Iron and other Metals are melted, to which Egypt is fitly compared, not only for the Torment and Misery which they there indured, but also because they were throughly tried and purged thereby, as Metals are by the fire. t His peculiar possession from generation to generation. See Exod. 19. 5. Deuter. 7. 6. Tit. 2. 14. And therefore for you to forsake God, and worship Idols, will be not only wickedneſs and madneſs, but most abominable ingratitude.

*Num. 20. 12. 21 Furthermore, * the LORD was angry with me for your ſakes, and ſwear that I ſhould not go over Jordan, and that I ſhould not go in unto that good land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee t for an inheritance.

t God hath granted you the favour which he denied to me: which greatly increaſeth your obligation to God.

22 But I muſt die in this land, I muſt not go over Jordan: but ye ſhall go over, and poſſeſs that good land.

23 Take heed unto your ſelves, leſt ye forget the covenant of the LORD your God, which he made with you, and make you a graven image, or the likeneſs of any thing,

* Exod. 20. 4, 5. * which the LORD thy God hath forbidden thee u.

u Or, commanded thee, to wit, not to do, which is eaſily underſtood by comparing this place with Exod. 20. 4, 5. and with Gen. 3. 11. where this phraſe is fully expreſſed. See more on Lev. 4. 2. Deut. 3. 37.

*chap. 9. 3. Iſa. 33. 14. Heb. 12. 29. *Exod. 20. 5. Iſa. 42. 8. 24 For the * LORD thy God is a conſuming fire x, even a * jealous God y.

x A juſt and terrible God, who, notwithſtanding his ſpecial relation to thee, will ſeverely puniſh and deſtroy thee, if thou provoke him by Idolatry, or other ways. y Who being eſpouſed to thee, will be highly incenſed againſt thee, (if thou followeſt after other lovers, or committeſt whoredom with Idols,) and will bear no rival or partner.

25 When thou ſhalt beget children, and childrens children, and ſhalt have remained long in the land, and ſhall corrupt your ſelves, and make a graven image, or the likeneſs of any thing, and ſhall do evil in the ſight of the LORD z thy God, to provoke him to anger:

z Which words are here added, either 1. As a caution. Your Idolatry, though poſſibly ſecretly and cunningly managed, will not be hid from him; he ſees it, and he will puniſh it. Or 2. To aggravate their ſpiritual Whoredom, as being committed in the ſight and preſence of their Lord and Husband, whoſe eye is more peculiarly upon them in all their ways, than it is upon other people. Or 3. By way of oppoſition unto mens judgment. Idolatry oftimes ſeems good, and reaſonable, and religious in the eyes of men, but, ſaith he, it is evil in the eyes of the Lord, whoſe judgment is moſt conſiderable.

26 I call heaven and earth a to witneſs againſt you this day, that ye ſhall ſoon utterly periſh from off the land whereunto ye go over Jordan to poſſeſs it; ye ſhall not prolong your days upon it; but ſhall utterly be deſtroyed.

a Either 1. Figuratively, i. e. God, and Angels, and Men. Or rather 2. Properly; it being uſual in Scripture to call in the ſenſeleſs Creatures as witneſſes in ſuch caſes, as Deut. 32. 1. Iſa. 1. 2. Jer. 2. 12.

*Levit. 26. 33. ch. 28. 64. Neh. 1. 8 27 And the LORD * ſhall ſcatter you among the nations, and ye ſhall be left † few in number among the heathen, whither the LORD ſhall lead you.

b (i. e.) Idols. You ſhall be compelled by men, and given up by me to Idolatry. So that very thing which was your choice, ſhall be your puniſhment: it being juſt and uſual for God to puniſh one ſin by giving them up to another, as is manifeſt from Rom. 1. 24, 25.

29 * But if from thence thou ſhalt ſeek the LORD thy God, thou ſhalt find him, if thou ſeek him c with all thy heart d, and with all thy ſoul.

c If thou deſireſt his help and favour. See Deut. 30. 1. Iſa. 55. 6. d (i. e.) ſincerely and fervently.

30 When thou art in tribulation, and all theſe things † are come upon thee, even in the latter days e, if thou turn to the LORD thy God, and ſhalt be obedient unto his voice:

e Either in general, in ſucceeding Ages and Generations: or particularly, in the days of the Meſſias, which are commonly called in Scripture the latter, or laſt days, as Iſa. 2. 2. Hoſ. 3. 5. Mich. 4. 1. Dan. 2. 44. Heb. 1. 2. and 9. 26. And ſo this may reſpect the converſion and redemption of the Jewiſh Nation even in thoſe times when their caſe ſeems moſt deſperate, when they have forſaken their God, and rejected their Meſſias for many ages, to wit, towards the end of the World.

31 (For the LORD thy God is a merciful God) he will not forſake thee, neither deſtroy thee, nor forget the covenant of thy fathers f, which he ſware unto them.

f (i. e.) Made with thy fathers including their poſterity, as Gen. 17. 7.

32 For ask now of the days that are paſt, which were before thee, ſince the day that God created man upon the earth, and ask from the one ſide of heaven g unto the other, whether there hath been any ſuch thing, as this great thing is or hath been heard like it:

g (i. e.) Of the Earth under Heaven. Ask all the Inhabitants of the world. Compare Matt. 24. 31. with Mark 13. 27.

33 Did ever people hear the voice of God ſpeaking out of the midſt of the fire, as thou haſt heard, and live h?

h (i. e.) And was not overwhelmed and conſumed by ſuch a glorious appearance. See Exod. 24. 11. and 33. 20.

34 Or hath God aſſayed to go and take him a nation * ch. 7. 19. from the midſt of another nation, * by temptations i, by and 29. 3. ſigns, and by wonders, and by war, and by a mighty hand, and by a ſtretched-out arm, and by great terrors k, according to all that the LORD your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes?

i By tribulations and perſecutions, which are commonly called temptations, which are here ſtily mentioned, as one great occaſion firſt of their criesunto God, and then of Gods coming for their reſcue. Or, temptations is the general title, which is explained by the following particulars, ſigns, and wonders, &c. which are called temptations, becauſe they were trials both to the Egyptians and Iſraelites, whether thereby they would be inſtructed to believe and obey God or no. k Raiſed in the minds of the Egyptians, as the Hiſtory ſheweth: compare Deut. 2. 25. and 34. 12. or, by terrible things done among them.

35 Unto thee it was ſhewed, that thou mighteſt know, that the LORD he is God, * there is none elſe beſides him.

* ch. 32. 39. Ex. 34. 6 Heb. 11

36 * Out of heaven l he made thee to hear his voice, that he might inſtruct thee: and upon earth u he ſhewed thee his great fire, and thou heardeſt his words out of the midſt of the fire.

l (i. e.) Out of the air, above Mount Sinai. See Exod. 19. 9. and 20. 18, 22. u At the top of Mount Sinai.

37 And becauſe he loved thy fathers, therefore he choſe their ſeed after them, and brought thee out in his ſight x with his mighty power out of Egypt;

x Keeping his eye fixed upon him, as the Father doth on his beloved child. Or, with his preſence. i. e. He did not ſend them forth by Moſes, but he himſelf was preſent with them, and as it were marched along with them, in the pillar of cloud and fire.

38 To drive out nations from before thee, greater and mightier than thou art, to bring thee in, to give thee their land for an inheritance, as it is this day.

39 Know therefore this day, and conſider it in thine heart, that * the LORD he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath, there is none elſe.

* Joh. 13. 11.

40 Thou ſhalt keep therefore his ſtatutes, and his commandments, which I command thee this day, that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee: and that thou mayeſt prolong thy days upon the earth, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for ever.

41 Then Moſes ſevered three cities y on this ſide Jordan towards the ſun-riſing:

45 Theſe are the teſtimonies, and the ſtatutes, and the judgments which Moſes ſpake unto the children of Iſrael, after they came forth out of Egypt;

CHAP. V.

God upon Mount Horeb, makes a Covenant with Iſrael, 1—5. The Covenant or Ten Commandments is delivered to Moſes in two Tables, 6—22. The Iſraelites deſire, that not God, but Moſes may ſpeak to them, 23—27. which God approves of, 28, 29. Moſes exhorts them to Obedience, with a promiſe of life, 32, 33.

1 AND Moſes called all Iſrael a, and ſaid unto them, Hear, O Iſrael, the ſtatutes and Judgments, which I ſpeak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and † keep, and do them.

† Heb. keep to do them.

a To wit, by their Elders, who were to impart it to the reſt.

2 * The LORD our God made a covenant with us in Horeb.

* Deut. 4. 13. Ex. 19. 5

3 The LORD * made not the covenant with our fathers b, but with us: even us, who are all of us here alive this day c.

* See Mat. 13. 17. Heb. 8. 9

b Either 1. Not only with them, the word only being here underſtood, as it is Gen. 32. 28. and 35. 10. 1 Sam. 8. 7. Jer. 7. 19. and 31. 34. Matt. 9. 13. Or, 2. Not at all with them. But then the word Covenant is not here to be taken for the Covenant of Grace in general, for ſo it was made with their fathers, Exod. 2. 24. but for this particular and mixed diſpenſation of the Covenant at Sinai, as appears both by the foregoing and following words. c He ſaith not, that all who made that Covenant at Sinai are now alive, for many of them were dead, but that this Covenant was made with all that are now alive, alive, which is moſt trite, for it was made with the elder ſort of them in their own perſons, and with the reſt in their Parents, who did covenant for them: for this phraſe with us, is put exclusively as to their fathers, but not as to their poſterity, as is evident from the nature of the Covenant, Act. 2. 39. and courſe of the ſtory.

Ex. 19. 9, 19. 4 * The LORD talked with you face to face d, in the mount out of the midſt of the fire.

d Not in a viſible ſhape, which was utterly denied, Deut. 4. 12, 15. but perſonally and immediately, not by the Mouth or Miniſtery of Moſes; plainly and certainly, as when two men talk face to face; freely and familiarly, ſo as not to overwhelm and confound you. Compare Exod. 33. 11. Numb. 12. 8.

5 (I ſtood between the LORD and you e at that time, to ſhew you the word of the LORD f: for ye were afraid, by reaſon of the fire, and went not up into the mount) ſaying, e As a Mediator or Meſſenger between you, according to your deſire, below v. 27. Compare Exod. 19. 16, &c. and 20. 19. Gal. 3. 19. f Nor the ten Commandments, which God himſelf uttered, but the following ſtatutes and judgments.

Ex. 20. 2. &c. Lev. 26. 1 6 * I am the LORD thy God b, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the houſe of † bondage.

b The ten Commandments delivered Exod. 20. are here repeated with ſome ſmall difference of words, but the ſence is perfectly the ſame, and therefore the explication of them muſt be fetched thence.

7 Thou ſhalt have none other gods before me.

8 Thou ſhalt not make thee any graven image, or any likeneſs of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the waters beneath the earth.

Pſal. 81. 10.

9 Thou ſhalt not bow down thy ſelf unto them, nor ſerve them: for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God, * viſiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me;

* Ex. 34. 7. Jer. 32. 18

10 * And ſhewing mercy unto thouſands, of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

11 Thou ſhalt not take the Name of the LORD thy God in vain: for the LORD will not hold him guiltleſs that taketh his Name in vain.

12 Keep i the ſabbath-day to ſanctifie it, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee k.

i To wit, in mind and memory, as it is Exod. 20. 8. k To wit, in Exod. 20. whither he directs them, and therefore he here omits the Argument of the Creation, which is urged there.

13 Six days thou ſhalt labour, and do all thy work.

Gen. 2. 2. Heb. 4. 4 14 But the ſeventh day is the * ſabbath of the LORD thy God, in it thou ſhalt not do any work, thou, nor thy ſon, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-ſervant, nor thy maid-ſervant, nor thine ox, nor thine aſs, nor any of thy cattel, nor thy ſtranger that is within thy gates; that thy man-ſervant, and thy maid-ſervant may reſt as well as thou.

15 And remember that thou waſt a ſervant l in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand, and by a ſtretched-out arm: therefore the LORD thy God commanded thee to keep the ſabbath-day.

l And therefore art highly obliged both to ſerve that God who redeemed thee, eſpecially upon his own day, and not to grudge thy ſervants their reſt upon that day.

Ex. 20. 12. Deut. 5. 16. 16 * Honour thy father and thy mother, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee, that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

Mat. 5. 17 * Thou ſhalt not kill.

Luk. 18. 18 * Neither ſhalt thou commit adultery.

19 * Neither ſhalt thou ſteal.

Prov. 13. 20 Neither ſhalt thou bear falſe witneſs againſt thy neighbour.

Rom. 7. 7. 21 * Neither ſhalt thou deſire thy neighbours wife, neither ſhalt thou covet thy neighbours houſe m, his field, or his man-ſervant, or his maid-ſervant, his ox, or his aſs, or any thing that is thy neighbours.

m In Exod. 20. the order is contrary, and thy neighbours houſe is put before his wife, whereby it is evident, that Moſes intended this but for one Commandment, wherein the order of the words was an inconſiderable circumſtance: for if this were two Commandments, as ſome would have it, it would be altogether uncertain which is the Ninth, and which the Tenth Commandment, ſeeing the one is firſt, Exod. 20. and the other here.

22 Theſe words the LORD ſpake unto all your aſſembly in the mount, out of the midſt of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkneſs, with a great voice, and he added no more n, and * he wrote them in two tables of ſtone, and delivered them unto me.

Deut. 4. 12 ded no more n, and * he wrote them in two tables of n He ceaſed for that time to ſpeak immediately, and with that loud voice unto the people, for the reſt were delivered to Moſes, and by him communicated to the people. This he did to ſhew the preeminency of that Law above the reſt, and its everlaſting Obligation.

Ex. 20. 18 23 * And it came to paſs, when ye heard the voice out of the midſt of the darkneſs, (for the mountain did burn with fire) that ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders, 24 And ye ſaid, Behold, the LORD our God hath ſhewed us his glory and his greatneſs, and * we have heard his voice out of the midſt of the fire: we have ſeen this day that God doth talk with man, and * he liveth.

* Ex. 19. 19 * ch. 4. 33.

25 Now therefore why ſhould we die o? for this great fire will conſume us, If we † hear the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we ſhall die.

o For though God hath for this ſeaſon kept us alive to our admiration, yet we ſhall never be able to endure any further diſcourſe from him in ſuch a terrible manner, but ſhall certainly ſink under the burden of it. Compare Gen. 16. 13. Judg. 6. 22.

26 For who is there of all fleſh p, that hath heard the voice of the living God, ſpeaking out of the midſt of the fire (as we have) and lived!

p Fleſh is here put for Man in his frail corruptible and mortal ſtate, as Mat. 16. 17. 1 Cor. 15. 50. Eph. 6. 12. Heb. 2. 14.

27 Go thou near, and hear all that the LORD our God ſhall ſay, and * ſpeak thou unto us all that the LORD our God ſhall ſpeak unto thee, and we will hear it, and do it.

* Ex. 20. 19

28 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, when ye ſpake unto me, and the LORD ſaid unto me, I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have ſpoken unto thee: * they have well ſaid all that they have ſpoken.

* Deut. 18. 17.

29 † * O that there were ſuch an heart in them q that they would fear me, and keep all my commandments always, that it might be well with them, and with their children for ever!

† Heb. who will give their heart to be ſuch in them.

q Heb. Who will give them ſuch an heart? This is ſpoken of God after the manner of men, to ſhew that ſuch an heart is deſirable to him, and required by him: otherwiſe it is certain that God can give ſuch an heart, and hath promiſed to give it, Jer. 32. 40. Ezek. 36. 27. And if God will work, who can hinder him? Job. 11. 10.

* ch. 32. 29 Pſal. 81. 13 Iſa. 48. 18. Mat. 23. 37.

30 Go, ſay to them, Get ye into your tents again.

31 But as for thee, ſtand thou here by me, and I will ſpeak unto thee all the commandments, and the ſtatutes, and the judgments which thou ſhalt teach them, that they may do them in the land which I give them to poſſeſs it.

32 Ye ſhall obſerve to do therefore as the LORD your God hath commanded you: * ye ſhall not turn aſide to the right hand, or to the leſt r.

* ch. 17. 20 and 28. 14.

r Neither by ſuperſtitious additions to Gods Commands, nor by a bold or prophane rejection or contempt of any one of them.

Joſh. 1. 7.

33 Ye ſhall walk in all the ways which the LORD your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days, in the land which ye ſhall poſſeſs.

CHAP. VI.

The end of the Commandment, Obedience, 1—2. He exhorts them thereto, 3. The Unity of the Divine Eſſence aſſerted, 4. The Duty required of the Iſraelites, 5. To Love God, 5, 6. And teach their Children, 7. To uſe Signs, as Memorials of it, 8, 9. Not to forget God in proſperity, 10—12. Nor to worſhip other Gods, 13—15. Nor to tempt God, 16. But keep his Commandments, 17. And to reaſſume the Knowledge of Gods works to their poſterity, 20—25.

1 NOW theſe are the commandments, the ſtatutes, and the judgments which the LORD your God commanded to teach you, that ye might do them in the land whither ye † go to poſſeſs it:

2 That thou mighteſt fear the LORD a thy God, to keep all his ſtatutes; and his commandments which I command thee, thou and thy ſon, and thy ſons ſon, all the days of thy life: and that thy days may be prolonged.

a Which he hereby implies to be the firſt principle of true Obedience.

3 Hear therefore, O Iſrael, and obſerve to do it, that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increaſe mightily, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promiſed thee, in the land that floweth with milk and honey.

* Mark. 12. 29. † Heb. the LORD one Gr. LORD is one. So Gr.

4 * Hear O Iſrael, † the LORD our God is one LORD b.

b One in Eſſence, and the only object of our Worſhip.

5 And * thou ſhalt love the LORD c thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy ſoul, and with all thy might.

* ch. 10. 12 Mat. 22. 37. Mark 12. 30. Luk. 10. 27.

c Now he ſhews another ſpring or principle of ſincere Obedience to God, even hearty love to God, which will make his work and ſervice eaſie, and that the fear he mentioned before, v. 2. was ſuch as would conſiſt with love to God, and not that ſlaviſh fear and horrour which produceth hatred.

* ch. 11. 18. Pſal. 37. 31. & 40. 8. & 119 98. Iſa 51. 7

6 And * theſe words which I command thee this day ſhall be in thine heart d.

d i. e. In thy mind to remember them, and mediate upon them, and in thy Affection to love and purſue them.

7 And thou ſhalt * † teach them diligently e unto thy children, and ſhalt talk of them when thou ſitteſt in thine houſe, and when thou walkeſt by the way, and when thou lieſt down, and when thou riſeſt up.

* ch. 4. 9. † Heb. whet or ſharpen.

e Heb. Whet, or sharpen them, for as they may pierce deep into their hearts. This Metaphor signifies the manner of instructing them, that it is to be done diligently, earnestly, frequently, discreetly, and dexterously.

8 And thou shalt * bind them for a sign upon thy hand, and they shall be † as frontlets between thy eyes f.

f Thou shalt give all diligence, and use all means to keep them in thy remembrance, as men oft times bind something upon their hands, or put it before their eyes to prevent forgetfulness of a thing which they much desire to remember, Compare Prov. 3. 3. and 6. 21. and 7. 3. See the notes on Exod. 13. 16.

9 * And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thine house, and on thy gates.

10 And it shall be, when the LORD thy God shall have brought thee into the land, which he sware unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give thee great and goodly cities * which thou buildedst not;

11 And houses full of all good things, which thou filledst not, and wells digged which thou diggest not, vineyards and olive-trees which thou plantedst not, * when thou shalt have eaten, and be full,

12 Then beware lest thou forget the LORD which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of † bondage.

13 Thou shalt * fear the LORD thy God, and serve him, and shalt swear g by his name h.

14 Ye shall not go after other gods, of the gods of the people which are round about you:

15 (For the LORD thy God is a jealous God among you i) lest the anger of the LORD thy God be kindled against thee, and destroy thee from off the face of the earth.

16 Ye shall not tempt the LORD k your God * as ye tempted him in Massah.

17 Ye shall diligently keep the commandments of the LORD your God, and his testimonies, and his statutes which he hath commanded thee.

18 And thou shalt do that which is right and good in the sight of the LORD l that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in, and possess the good land which the LORD sware unto thy fathers:

19 * To cast out all thine enemies from before thee, as the LORD hath spoken.

20 And when thy son asketh thee † in time to come, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments which the LORD our God hath commanded you?

21 Then thou shalt say unto thy son, we were Pharaohs bondmen in Egypt, and the LORD brought us out of Egypt * with a mighty hand.

22 And the LORD shewed signs and wonders, great and sore upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon his household, before our eyes:

23 And he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which he sware unto our fathers.

24 And the LORD commanded us to do all these statutes, to fear the LORD our God for our good m always, that he might preserve us alive as it is this day.

25 † And it * shall be our righteousness n, if we observe to do all these commandments, before the LORD our God, as he hath commanded us.

i Heb. In the midst of you, to see and observe all your ways and your turnings aside to other Gods.

k Heb. Provoke him, as the following instance explains. Sinners, especially presumptuous sinners, are oft said to tempt God, i. e. to make a trial of God, whether he be what he pretends to be, so wise as to see their sins, so just and true and powerful as to take vengeance on them for their sins, concerning which they are very apt to doubt because of the present impunity and prosperity of many such persons. See Numb. 14. 22. Psal. 78. 18. Mat. 4. 7. Acts 5. 9.

l i. e. Not provoke him, as the following instance explains. Sinners, especially presumptuous sinners, are oft said to tempt God, i. e. to make a trial of God, whether he be what he pretends to be, so wise as to see their sins, so just and true and powerful as to take vengeance on them for their sins, concerning which they are very apt to doubt because of the present impunity and prosperity of many such persons. See Numb. 14. 22. Psal. 78. 18. Mat. 4. 7. Acts 5. 9.

m The benefit of Obedience is ours, not Gods, Job 35. 7. and therefore our Obedience is highly reasonable, & absolutely necessary.

n Heb. And righteousness shall be to us. Gr. It shall be our righteousness. Heb. Righteousness shall be to us. We shall be owned and pronounced by God to be truly righteous and holy persons, if we finish the rest. See carefully obey him, otherwise we shall be declared to be unrighteous and ungodly persons, and all our profession of Religion will appear to be in Hypocrisie. Or, mercy shall be to us, or with us. For as the Hebrew word rendred righteousness is very oft put for mercy, as Psal. 24. 5. and 36. 10. and 51. 14. Prov. 10. 2. and 11. 4. Dan. 9. 16. &c. so this sence seems best to agree both with the Scripture use of this phrase, in which righteousness, seldom or never, to my remembrance, but grace or mercy frequently, is said to be to us or with us, as 2 Sam. 15. 20. Psal. 89. 24. Prov. 14. 22. Gal. 6. 16. 1 Joh. 3. and with the foregoing verse and argument, God, saith he, v. 24. commanded these things for our good, that he might preserve us alive, as it is this day. And, saith he in this verse, this is not all, for as he hath done us good, so he will go on to do us more and more good, and Gods mercy shall be to us, or with us, in the remainder of our lives, and for ever, if we observe, &c.

CHAP. VII.

Israel is Commanded to cast out the Hittites, the Perizzites, &c. 1. All Communion with them forbidden, 2—5. For fear of Idolatry, 4. They must ruin the places of Idolatry, 5. The Israelites holiness and relation to God, 6. His faithfulness to the Obedient, 9. And vengeance on them that hate him, 10. The Advantages of Obedience, 12—16. God encourages them, and promises to drive out the Nations before 'em, 17—24. They are commanded to destroy their Images, 25. And keep themselves clean from their cursed things, 20.

1 WHen the * LORD thy God shall bring thee into the land whither thou goest to possess it, and hath cast out many nations before thee, the Hittite, and the Girgasshite, and the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Perizzite, and the Hivite, and the Jebusite, seven Nations a greater and mightier than thou:

2 And when the LORD thy God shall deliver them before thee, thou shalt smite them, and * utterly destroy them; * thou shalt † make no covenant with them b, nor shew mercy unto them.

3 Neither shalt thou make marriages with them, thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter thou shalt not take to thy son.

4 For they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods c: so will the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and destroy thee suddenly.

5 But thus shall ye deal with them; ye shall * destroy their altars, and break down their † images, and cut down their groves d, and burn their graven images with fire.

6 * For thou art a holy people unto the LORD thy God: * the LORD thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all the people that are upon the face of the earth.

7 The LORD did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were moe in number than any people: (for ye were the fewest of all people e.)

8 To wit, at that time when God first declared his love to you, and choice of you for his peculiar people, which was done to Abraham. For Abraham had but one Son concerned in this choice and covenant, to wit, Isaac, and that was in his hundredth year; and Isaac was 60 years old ere he had a Child, and then they had only two Children; and though Jacob had 12 Sons, yet it was a long time ere they made any considerable increase. Nor do we read of any great multiplication of them till after Joseph's death, Exod. 1. 6, 7.

8 But because the LORD loved you f, and because he would keep the oath which he had sworn unto your fathers, hath the LORD brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen, from the hand of Pharaoh King of Egypt.

f i. e. Because it pleased him to love you, it was his free choice, without any cause or motive on your part. Compare Deut. 10. 15. 1 Sam. 12. 22. Psalm 43. 4.

9 Know therefore that the LORD thy God, he is God, the faithful God g, * which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him, and keep his commandments, to a thousand generations:

g True to his word, and constant in performing all his promises.

h Not only those who hate him directly and properly, (for so did few or none of the Israelites to whom he here speaks,) but those who hate him by construction and consequence; those who hate and oppose his People, and Word, and Image, those who presumptuously and wilfully persist in the breach of Gods Commandments, as appears from v. 9. where the love of God, to which this hatred is opposite, is described and expressed by the keeping of his commandments.

i i. e. Openly, and so as they shall see it, and not be able to avoid it.

k To wit, so as some men count slackness, 2 Pet. 3. 9. So as to delay it beyond the fit time or season for vengeance, yet withal he is long-suffering, and slow to anger, as that and other places inform us.

11 Thou shalt therefore keep the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments which I command thee this day, to do them.

12 * Where-

12 * Wherefore it shall come to pass, † if ye hearken to these judgments, and keep and do them, that the LORD thy God shall keep unto thee the covenant and the mercy l which he sware unto thy fathers.

l i. e. The Covenant of Mercy or Grace, which he out of his own meer grace made with them. A figure called Hendiadys.

13 And he will love thee m, and bless thee, and multiply thee, he will also bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land, thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oyl, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep, in the land which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee.

m He will continue to love thee, and to manifest his love to thee, he will not repent of his love to thee.

14 Thou shalt be blessed above all people: * there shall not be male or female barren among you, or among your cattel.

15 And the LORD will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the * evil diseases of Egypt n, (which thou knowest) upon thee, but will lay them all upon them that hate thee.

n Such as the Aegyptians were infested with, either commonly, as that Boch. Deut. 28. 27. or miraculously and extraordinary from the hand of the Lord, as Exod. 9. 10, 15. Compare Exod. 23. 25. Psal. 105. 37.

16 And thou shalt consume all the people which the LORD thy God † shall deliver thee; thine eye shall have no pity upon them, neither shalt thou serve their Gods, for that will be a * snare unto thee.

o An occasion of sin and utter destruction. See Exod. 23. 33. and 34. 12. Judg. 2. 3.

17 If thou shalt say in thine heart, These nations are moe than I, how can I dispossess them?

18 Thou shalt not be afraid of them: but shalt well remember p what the LORD thy God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt;

p Heb. Remembring, remember, i. e. remember it frequently, considerately, practically, and for thy encouragement; for men are said to forget those things which they do not remember to good purpose.

19 * The great temptations q which thine eyes saw, and the signs, and the wonders, and the mighty hand, and the stretched-out arm, whereby the LORD thy God brought thee out: so shall the LORD thy God do unto all the people of whom thou art afraid r.

q The Trials and Exercises of thy Faith and Obedience to my call and commands. r So as he did to Pharaoh and his people, mentioned, v. 18.

20 * Moreover, the LORD thy God will send the hornet s among them, until they that are left and hide themselves from thee, be destroyed.

s Of which, see on Exod. 23. 28.

21 Thou shalt not be affrighted at them: for the LORD thy God is among you, a mighty God, and terrible.

22 And the LORD thy God will † put out those nations before thee by little and little: thou mayst not consume them at once t, lest the beast of the field increase upon thee.

t Or, Thou shalt not be able to consume them at once, i. e. in an instant. I will not assist thee with my omnipotency, to crush them in a moment, but will bless thee in the use of ordinary means, and destroy them successively by several battels.

23 But the LORD thy God shall deliver them † unto thee, and shall destroy them with a mighty destruction, until they be destroyed.

24 And * he shall deliver their Kings into thine hand, and thou shalt destroy their name from under heaven: there shall no man be able to stand before thee, until thou have destroyed them u.

u This promise is made upon condition of their performance of their duty, which they neglecting, they justly lose the benefit of it, as we see, Judg. 2. 1, 2, 3.

25 The graven images of their gods * shall ye burn with fire: thou * shalt not desire the silver or gold that is on them x, nor take it unto thee, lest thou be * snared therein: for it is an abomination to the LORD thy God.

x Wherewith the Idols are covered or adorned, nor consequently any other of their ornaments. This he commands to shew his utter detestation of Idolatry, and to cut off all occasions of it.

26 Neither shalt thou bring an abomination into thine house, lest thou be a cursed thing y like it: but thou shalt utterly detest it, and thou shalt utterly abhor it: for * it is a cursed thing.

y i. e. Devoted to utter destruction, as that was. See Jos. 7. 11, 21, 24, &c.

CHAP. VIII.

Israel is exhorted to Obedience, 1, and to remember God's Judgments and Mercies, 2—6. The excellency of the Land they were going into, 7—9. Not to forget the Lord in their Fulness and Prosperity, 10—16. nor ascribe their wealth to their own power, 17. but to God, 18. God threatens to destroy Idolaters, 19, 20.

ALl the commandments which I command thee this day, shall ye observe to do, that ye may live a, and multiply, and go in, and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers.

a i. e. Live comfortably and happily, as life is often taken, as Gen. 17. 18. Prov. 3. 2. as on the contrary, troubles or afflictions are called Death, Exod. 10. 17. 2 Cor. 11. 23.

2 And thou shalt remember all the way b which the LORD thy God led thee these fourty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to * prove thee, to know c what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments or no.

b i. e. All the events which befel thee in the way, the miraculous protections, deliverances, provisions, instructions which God gave thee; and withal the frequent and severe punishments of thy disobedience. c i. e. That thou mightest discover to thy self and others that infidelity, inconstancy, hypocrisie, apostacy, rebellion and perverseness, which lay hid in thy heart; the discovery whereof was of singular use both to them, and to the Church of God in all succeeding ages.

3 And he humbled thee, and * suffered thee to hunger, and fed thee with * Manna (which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know) that he might make thee † know, that man doth * not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the LORD d doth man live.

d i. e. By every or any thing which God appoints for this end, how unlikely soever it may seem to be for nourishment, as appears in the Manna; seeing it is not the Creature, but only Gods command and blessing upon it, that makes it sufficient for the support of life.

4 * Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee e, neither did thy foot swell f these fourty years.

e Did not wear away through age, which they must needs have done without a miracle. f Notwithstanding thy long and hard travels, which also was miraculous.

5 * Thou shalt also consider in thine heart, that as a man chasteneth his son g, so the LORD thy God chasteneth thee.

g (i. e.) Unwillingly, being constrained by thy necessity; moderately, in judgment remembring mercy; and for thy reformation, not for thy destruction. Compare Prov. 3. 11, 12. Heb. 12. 5, &c.

6 Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, and to fear him.

7 For the LORD thy God bringeth thee into a good land, * a land of brooks of water, of fountains, and depths h that spring out of valleys, and hills.

h (i. e.) Deep Wells or Springs, or Lakes, which were divers and large.

8 A land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig-trees, and pomegranats, a land of † oil olive i, and honey.

i Heb. Of the Olive-tree of oyl, i. e. Not of wild and barren, but of fruitful Olive trees, which yield plenty of Oyl.

9 A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack any thing in it: a land * whose stones are iron k, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass l.

k Where are mines of iron in a manner as plentiful as stones, and upon which Travellers must tread, as in other parts they do upon stones. l To wit, in great plenty. These are mentioned, because they had none such in Egypt whence they came.

10 * When thou hast eaten, and art full, then thou shalt bless the LORD thy God m, for the good land which he hath given thee.

m (i. e.) Solemnly praise him for thy food; which is a debt both of gratitude and justice, because it is from his providence and favour that thou receivest both thy food and refreshment and strength by it. The more unworthy and abhorrid is that too common profaneness of them, who, professing to believe a God and his Providence, from whom all their comforts come, grudge to own him at their meals, either by desiring his blessing before them, or by offering due praise to God after them.

11 Beware that thou forget not the LORD thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day.

12 * Lest, when thou hast eaten, and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein:

13 And when thy herds, and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied:

14 Then thine heart be lifted up n, and thou forget the LORD thy God, (which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage;

n As if thou didst receive and enjoy these things either by thy own wisdom, and valour, and industry, &c. or for thy own merit, Deut. 9. 4. See Hos. 13. 6. 1 Cor. 4. 7.

15 Who led thee through that great and terrible wilderness, * wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought, where there was no water, * who brought thee forth water out of the rock of flint;

16 Who fed thee in the wilderness with * manna, which thy fathers knew not, that he might humble thee o, and that he might prove thee to do thee good at thy

o By keeping thee in a constant dependance upon him for every day's bread, and convincing thee what an impotent, helpless, and beggarly Creature thou art in thy self, having nothing whereon to subsist, but from hand to mouth, and being supported wholly by the alms of divine goodness given to thee from day to day. The mercies of God, if duly considered, are as powerful an argument or means to humble us as the greatest afflictions, because they increase our debts to God, and manifest our dependance upon him, and insufficiency without him, and by making God great, they make us little in our own eyes. Though this clause, as well as that which follows, may have respect to their afflictions, mentioned, v. 15.

p (i.e.) That after he hath purged and prepared thee by afflictions, he may give thee, and thou mayest receive and enjoy his blessings with less disadvantage, whilst by the remembrance of former afflictions thou art made thankful for them, and more cautious not to abuse and forfeit them again.

17 And thou say in thine heart, My power, and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth.

18 But thou shalt remember the LORD thy God; for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth q, that he may establish his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day.

q So this word is used, Numb. 24. 18. Job 20. 18. Prov. 31. 29.

19 And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the LORD thy God, and walk after other gods, and serve them, and worship them, I testifie against you this day that ye shall surely perish.

20 As the nations which the LORD destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish; because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the LORD your God.

CHAP. IX.

Israel's march over Jordan to possess Canaan, 1—3. But must not ascribe it to their own Righteousness, 4—6. A rehearsal of their manifold provocations at Horeb, 8. at Taberah, 22. and at Kadesh-Barnea, 23, 24.

1 HEar, O Israel, thou art to pass over Jordan this day a, to go in to possess nations b greater and mightier than thy self c, cities great and * fenced up to heaven d.

a (i.e.) Shortly, within a little time, the word day being oft put for time, as Jer. 8. 56. 1 Cor. 4. 5. Revel. 16. 14. within two months: for Moses spake this on the first day of the eleventh month, Deut. 1. 3. and they passed over Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, Jos. 4. 19. b (i.e.) The land of those nations; for that only they were to possess, but as for the Nations or people they were not to possess, but to destroy them. Thus they are said to inherit God, Jer. 49. 1. i. e. the Country and Cities of God, as it is there explained. c This he adds, partly that they might not be surprised when they find them to be such: partly that they might not trust to their own strength, but wholly rely upon Gods help for the destroying of them, and, after the work was done, might ascribe the praise and glory of it to God alone, and not to themselves. d As the Spies reported, Deut. 1. 28. See on Gen. 11. 4.

2 A people great and tall, the children of * the Anakims, whom thou knowest, and of whom thou hast heard say e, Who can stand before the children of Anak?

*Numb. 13. 28, 29.

e Either from the spies, or rather from common fame, for this seems to be a proverb used in those times.

3 Understand therefore this day, that the LORD thy God is he which goeth over before thee as a * consuming fire: he shall destroy them and he shall bring them down before thy face; so shall thou drive them out, and destroy them quickly f as the LORD hath said unto thee

f Without great difficulty or long wars.

4 Speak not thou in thine heart, after that the LORD thy God hath cast them out from before thee, saying, * For my righteousness the LORD hath brought me in to possess this land: but * for the wickedness of these nations the LORD doth drive them out from before thee.

*Deut. 8. 17. Rom. 10. 6. *Deut. 18. 12.

5 Not for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart g, dost thou go to possess their land: but for the wickedness of these nations the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before them, and that he may perform * the word which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob h.

*Gen. 12. 7. & 15. 18. & 26. 3. & 28. 13. & 35. 12. & 50. 24.

g Neither for thy upright heart, nor holy life, which are the two things which God above all things regards, 1 Chron. 29. 17. Psal. 15. 1, 2. And consequently he excludes all merit. And surely they who did not deserve this earthly Canaan, could not merit the kingdom of Glory. h To shew my faithfulness in accomplishing that promise which I graciously made and confirmed with my oath. By which words it is implied, that this land was not given to them for the righteousness of their fathers, though they were righteous and holy persons, and much less for their own righteousness, which they had not, as it follows.

6 Understand therefore, that the LORD thy God giveth thee not this good land to possess it for thy righteousness, for thou art a * stiff-necked people i.

*Deut. 31. 27.

i Rebellious and perverse, and so destitute of all pretence of righteousness; such were the people, but there were divers particular persons amongst them truly righteous and holy, and yet even their righteousness is denied to be the procuring cause of this land.

7 Remember, and forget not how thou provokedst * the LORD thy God to wrath in the wilderness: * from the day that thou didst depart out of the land of Egypt, until ye came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the LORD.

*Exod. 14. 11. & 16. 2. & 17. 2. Num. 11. 4. & 20. 10. & 25. 3.

8 Also * in Horeb k, ye provoked the LORD to wrath, so that the LORD was angry with you, to have destroyed you.

*Exod. 32. 4. Psal. 106. 19.

k When your miraculous deliverance out of Egypt was fresh in memory; when God had but newly manifested himself to you in so stupendious and dreadful a manner, and had taken you into covenant with himself, when God was actually conferring further mercies upon you.

9 * When I was gone up into the mount, to receive the tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant which the LORD made with you, then * I abode in the mount forty days and forty nights; I neither did eat bread, nor drink water l.

*Exod. 24. 12. *Exod. 24. 18. & 34. 28.

l (i.e.) I wholly abstained from all meat and drink. Compare 1 King. 13. 8, 9, 13. 2 King. 6. 22.

10 * And the LORD delivered unto me two tables of stone, written with the finger of God m, and on them were written according to all the words which the LORD spake with you in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, * in the day of the assembly n.

*Exod. 31. 18. & 32. 15, 16.

m Immediately and miraculously, which was done not only to procure the greater reverence to the Law, but also to signifie, that it was the work of God alone to write this Law upon the Tables of mens hearts. See Jer. 31. 33. 2 Cor. 3. 3, 7. n (i.e.) When the people were gathered by Gods command to the bottom of Mount Sinai, to hear and receive Gods Ten Commandments from his own mouth.

*Exod. 19. 17. & 20. 1.

11 And it came to pass at the end of fourty days, and fourty nights, that the LORD gave me the two tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant.

12 And the LORD said unto me, * Arise, get thee down quickly from hence; for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt, have corrupted themselves: they are quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them; they have made them a molten image.

*Exod. 32. 7.

13 Furthermore, the LORD spake unto me, saying, I have seen this people, and behold, it is a stiff-necked people.

14 Let me alone o, that I may destroy them, and blot out their name from under heaven: and I will make of thee a nation greater and mightier than they.

o Stop not the course of my fury by thy intercession.

15 So I turned and came down from the mount, and the mount burned with fire: and the two tables of the covenant were in my two hands.

16 And * I looked, and behold, ye had sinned against the LORD your God, and had made you a molten calf: ye had turned aside quickly out of the way which the LORD had commanded you.

*Exod. 32. 19.

17 And I took the two tables, and cast them out of my two hands, and brake them before your eyes p.

p Not by an unbridled passion, but in zeal for Gods honour, and by the direction of Gods spirit, to signifie to the people, that the covenant between God and them contained in those tables was broken and made void, and they were now quite cast out of Gods favour, and could expect nothing from him but fiery indignation and severe justice. See on Exod. 32. 19.

18 And * I fell down q before the LORD, as at the first, fourty days, and fourty nights; I did neither eat bread, nor drink water, because of all your sins, which ye sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

*Psalm. 106. 23.

q In way of humiliation and supplication, on your behalf.

19 (For I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure wherewith the LORD was wroth against you, to destroy you) But the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also.

20 And the LORD was very angry with Aaron r, to have destroyed him: And I prayed for Aaron also the same time.

r Though he was only accessary, as being perswaded, and in a manner compelled to comply with your desire.

21 And * I took your sin s, the calf which ye had made, and burnt it with fire, and stamped it, and ground it very small, even until it was as small as dust: and I cast the dust thereof into the brook t that descended out of the mount.

*Exod. 32. 20.

s (i.e.) The object and matter of your sin, as sin is taken Isa. 31. 7.

t That there might be no monument or remembrance of it left.

22 And at * Taberah, and at * Massa, and at * Kibroth-hattaavah, ye provoked the LORD to wrath.

*Num. 11. 3. *Exod. 17. 7. *Num. 11. 34.

23 Likewise * when the LORD sent you from Kadesh-barnea, saying, Go up, and possess the land which I have given you, then ye rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God, and ye believed him not, nor hearkened to his voice.

*Num. 13. 3. & 14. 30.

24 Ye have been rebellious against the LORD, from the day that I knew you.

25 Thus I fell down before the LORD forty days and forty nights u, as I fell down * at the first, because the LORD had said, he would destroy you.

ver. 18.

u The same mentioned before, v. 18. as appears, 1. By comparing this with Exodus, where this History is more fully related, and where this is said to be done twice only. 2. By the occasion and matter of Moses his prayer here following, which is the same with the former. 3. By the words here following, as I fell down at first, which shew that this was the second time of his so doing.

26 I prayed therefore unto the LORD and said, O LORD God, destroy not thy people, and thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed through thy greatness x, which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand.

x (i.e.) Through the greatness of thy power, which appeared most eminently in that work, as is noted, v. 29.

27 Remember thy Servants y, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: look not unto the stubbornness of this people, nor to their wickedness, nor to their sin.

y (i.e.) The promise made and sworn to thy Servants, which was mentioned above, v. 5.

28 Lest the land whence thou broughtest us out say, * Because the LORD was not able to bring them into the land which he promised them, and because he hated them, he hath brought them out to slay them in the wilderness.

*Exod. 32. 12. Num. 14. 13.

29 Yet they are thy people z, and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest out by thy mighty power, and by thy stretched-out arm.

z Whom thou hast chosen to thy self out of all mankind, and publickly owned them for thine, and hast purchased and redeemed them from the Egyptians.

CHAP. X.

Moses repeats God's mercies in restoring the two Tables, 1—5. Aaron's death. Eleazar his Son officiates in his stead, 6, 7. The Tribe of Levi is separated for the Priesthood, 8, 9. God hearkening to Moses not to destroy them, 10. He is commanded to lead towards Canaan, 11. God requires their Obedience, 12—15. To circumcise their Hearts, 16, 17. To help the Fatherless and Widow, 18. To love strangers, 19. To fear and serve the Lord for his Mercies towards them, 20—22.

1 AT that time a the LORD said unto me, * Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and make thee an ark of wood b.

a When God was newly appeased by my intercession. b Either a temporary Ark for this use, till the other was finished: or the famous Ark, as may seem by comparing this with v. 5. It is not evident in what order these things were done, nor is it strange if Moses in this short and general relation neglect the order of time, as being nothing to his present purpose.

2 And I will write on the tables, the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest, and thou shalt put them in the ark.

3 And I made an ark of * Shittim wood, and hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in mine hand.

*Exod. 25. 10. & 37. 1.

4 And * he wrote on the tables according to the first writing, the † ten commandments, which the LORD spake unto you in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, in the day of the assembly; and the LORD gave them unto me.

*Exod. 34. 28. †Heb. ten words.

5 And I turned my self: and came down from the mount, and put the tables in the ark which I had made, and there they be, as the LORD commanded me.

6 And the children of Israel took their journey c from Beeroth of the children of Jaakan to * Mosera d; * there Aaron died e, and there he was buried, and Eleazar his son ministred in the priests office in his stead.

*Deut. 32. 50. Num. 33. 38.

c This following History comes in manifestly by way of Parenthesis, as may appear from ver. 10. where he returns to his former discourse; and it seems to be here inserted, either, 1. Because the Priests and Levites here mentioned were the Guardians and Keepers of the Ark and Tables here mentioned. Or rather, 2. As an evidence of God's gracious answer to Moses his prayers, and of his reconciliation to the people, notwithstanding their late and great provocation. For, saith he, after this they proceeded by God's guidance in their Journeys, some eminent stages whereof he names for all: and though Aaron died in one of them, yet God made up that Breach, and Eleazar came in his place, and ministred as Priest, one branch of which office was to intercede for the people. Then, saith he, God brought them from the barren parts of the wilderness to a land of rivers of waters, v. 7. a pleasant and fruitful Soil. Then he adds, God separated the Levites, &c. v. 8. d Obj. This place seems directly contrary to that, Numb. 33. 31. where their journey is quite contrary to this, even from Mosera to Bene-jaakan. This indeed is a great difficulty, and prophane wits take occasion to cavil. And if a satisfactory answer be not yet given to it by Interpreters, it ought not therefore to be concluded unanswerable, because many things formerly thought unanswerable, have been since fully cleared, and therefore the like may be performed concerning other doubts yet remaining. And it were much more reasonable to acknowledge here a transposition of the words through the Scribe's mistake, than upon such a pretence to reject the divine Authority of those sacred Books, which hath been confirmed by such irresistible Arguments. But there is no need of these general pleas, seeing particular answers are and may be given to this difficulty sufficient to satisfie modest and impartial enquirers. Answ. 1. The places here mentioned are differing from those, Numb. 33. it being very frequent in Scripture for divers persons and places to be called by the same names, and yet the names are not wholly the same; for there it is Bene-jaakan, and here Beeroth bene-jaakan, or Beeroth of the children of Jaakan; there Mosera, here Moserah; there Hor-hag-gadgad, here Gudgodah; there Jotbathah, here Jotbath. If the places were the same, it may justly seem strange why Moses should so inadvertently make a change in every one of the names. And therefore these may be other Stations, which being omitted in Numb. 33. are supplied here, it being usual in sacred Scripture to supply the defects of one place out of another. Answ. 2. Admitting their two places to be the same with those, Numb. 33. 31. yet the journeys are divers. They went from Beeroth of the children of Jaakan to Moserah, which is omitted in Numbers, and therefore here supplyed; and then back again from Moserah or Mosera to Bene-jaakan, as is there said: for which return there might then be some sufficient reason, though now unknown to us, as the reasons of many such like things are; or God might order it so for his own pleasure, and it is not impossible he might do it for this reason, that by this seeming contradiction, as well as some others, he might in just judgment do what he threatned to the Jews, Jer. 6. 21. even lay stumbling blocks before prophane and proud wits, and give them that occasion of deceiving and ruining themselves, which they so greedily seek and gladly embrace; which is the reason given by some of the antients why God hath left so many difficulties in Scripture. Answ. 3. The words may be otherwise rendred, from Beeroth of the children of Jaakan, and from Moserah: where the order of the places is not observed, as was noted before of the order of time, v. 1. because it was nothing to the purpose here, and because that might be easily fetched from Numb. 33. where those journeys are more particularly and exactly described. For the conjunction and, that may be here wanting, and to be supplied, as it is, Exod. 6. 23. 1 Sam. 4. 7. Psal. 133. 3. Isa. 63. 11. Heb. 3. 11. And the preposition from is easily supplied from the foregoing words, as is most usual. Nor seems there to be any more reason to render it to Moserah, than from Moserah, seeing the Hebrew letter He in the end is made a part of the proper name, and therefore is not local. e Ibn. How is this true? when Aaron dyed not in Moserah, but in Mount Hor, Numb. 33. 37. 1 Moserah may be a different place from Moserah, and that may be the name of a Town or Region in which Mount Hor was, or to which it belonged. Or, the same mountain, in respect of divers parts and oppolite sides of it, might be called by divers names, here Moserah, and there Hor. And it is possible they might go several journeys, and past to divers stations, and by fetching a compass (which they oft did in their wilderness travels) come to the other side of the same Mountain. Answ. 2. The Hebrew particle, jekam, may here note the time, and not the place of Aaron's death, and may be rendred then, as it is taken, Gen. 49. 24. Psal. 14. 5. Eccles. 3. 17. Zephan. 1. 14. And then is not to be taken precisely, but with some latitude, as it is oft used in Scripture; that is, about that time, after a few removes more; as the words, at that time, v. 8. must necessarily be understood.

7 * From thence e they journeyed unto Gudgodah, and from Gudgodah to Jotbath, a land of rivers of waters.

*Num. 33. 32, 33.

e Either, 1. From that place, and not that either from Mosera, last mentioned: or from Bene-jaakan: for relatives many times in Scripture belong to the remoter antecedent. Or, 2. from that time: for this particle sometimes notes not place, but time, as 2 King. 2. 21. Isa. 65. 20. So the meaning is, at, or about that time, as it is v. 8. which being considered, may serve to clear the great difficulty discoursed upon the last verse concerning the seeming contradiction of this place, and Numb. 33. 31, 32.

8 At that time f * the LORD separated the tribe of Levi to bear the ark of the covenant of the LORD, to stand before the LORD g to minister unto him, and to bless in his name h unto this day.

*Num. 3. 6. & 4. 4. & 8. 14.

f About that time, i. e. when I was come down from the Mount, as was said v. 5. For these words manifestly look to that verse, the 6 & 7 verses being put in by way of Parenthesis, as was said before. Or, if it relate to the words immediately foregoing, this may be meant of a second separation of them upon Aaron's Death, and having mentioned the separation of Eleazar to the Office of the high Priest in his Father's stead, v. 6. he now repeats it, that the Levites who were his, as they had been his Father's Servants, were seperated as before, or were confirmed in their Office. g A phrase used concerning the Prophets, 1 Kin. 17. 1. & 18. 15. this being the posture of Ministers. Hence the Angels are said to stand, 2 Chron. 18. 18. Luk. 1. 19. h Either, 1. Particularly, to pronounce the solemn blessing of God upon the Congregation, which was done in God's name, of which see Levit. 9. 23. Numb. 6. 23. &c. But that work was peculiar to the Priests, not common to all the Levites. Or more generally, to bless, Either 1. God, i. e. to praise him, which being a considerable part of the Levites work, 1 Chron. 16. it is not probable it would be omitted here, where their Office is so particularly described. Or, 2. The people, whom they did bless by performance of those holy ministrations for the people, and giving those instructions to them, to which God's blessing was promised and usually given; and this they did in Gods name, i. e. by command, and commission from him.

i (i.e.) The Lord's portion, to wit, tithes and offerings, which belong to God, are given by him to the Levites for their subsistence from generation to generation, as inheritances run.

10 And * I stayed in the mount, according to the first time, forty days, and forty nights: and the LORD * hearkened unto me at that time also, and the LORD would not destroy thee.

11 * And the LORD said unto me, Arise, † take thy journey before the people, that they may go in k, and possess the land, which I sware unto their fathers to give unto them.

k This shews, that God was appeased and reconciled to the people, whom therefore he led forwards towards Canaan.

14 Behold * the heaven m, and the heaven of heavens n is the LORD thy God's, * the earth also, with all that therein is. *Ex. 19. 5. Psal. 24. 1.

15 Only the LORD had a delight in thy fathers to love them p, and he chose their seed after them, even you, above all people, as it is this day.

p He shews that God had no particular reason nor obligation to their fathers any more than to other persons or people, all being equally his creatures, and that his choice of them out of and above all others, proceeded only from God's good pleasure and free love.

CHAP. XI.

Moses exhorts them to Obedience by rehearsing God's Works, 1——9. and by the Excellency of the Land they were to possess, 10——12. A Promise of Blessings to their Obedience, 13——15. They are warned against Idolatry, 16, 17. To teach it their Children, 19. And keep Memorials of it, 20. for their own Benefit, 21. God promises again, upon their Obedience, to drive out the Nations, 22, 25. A Blessing and a Curse is set before them, 26,—28. They are bid to bless on Mount Gerizim, but curse on Mount Ebal, 29.

1 THerefore thou shalt love the LORD thy God, and keep his charge, and his statutes, and his judgments, and his commandments alway.

2 And know a ye this day: for I speak not with your children, which have not known, and which have not seen the chastisement of the LORD your God, his greatness, his mighty hand, and his stretched-out arm:

a (i. e.) Acknowledge and consider it with diligence and thankfulness.

3 And his miracles, and his acts, which he did in the midst of Egypt, unto Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and unto all his land.

4 And what he did unto the army of Egypt, unto their *Ex. 14. 5. horses, and to their chariots, * how he made the water of the Red-sea to overflow them, as they pursued after you, and how the LORD hath destroyed them unto this day b:

b The effect of which destruction continueth to this day, in their weakness and fear, and our safety from all their further attempts against us.

5 And what he did unto you in the wilderness, until ye came unto this place:

6 And * what he did unto Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, the son of Reuben: how the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their households, and their tents, and all the ‖ substance that † was in their possession c, in the midst of all Israel:

*Num. 16. 31, 32. ‖ Heb. substance. † Or, going after.

c Heb. At their feet, i. e. under their power, Psal. 8. 6. which followed them or belonged to them.

7 But your eyes have seen all the great acts of the LORD d, which he did.

d All of them had been some, and some of them had seen all the great things done in Egypt and at the Red-sea, and in the Wilderness, Int.

8 Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this day, that ye may be strong, and go in, and possess the land whither ye go to possess it:

9 And that ye may prolong your days in the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give unto them, and to their seed, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 For the land whither thou goest in to possess it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, where thou sowedst thy seed, and wateredst it with thy foot e as a garden of herbs:

e (i. e.) With great pains and labour of thy feet, partly by going up and down to fetch water and dispersest it, and partly by digging furrows with thy foot, and using engines for distributing the water, which engines they thrust with their feet. For though the River Nilus did once in a year overflow the grounds, and made them fruitful, yet oft times it failed or scanted them, and then they were put to great pains about their ground; and when it did overflow sufficiently, and left its mud upon the earth, yet that Mud was in a little time hardned, and needed another watering and much digging and labour both of the hand and feet, especially in places fomething higher or more remote from that River; which inconvenience Canaan was free from.

11 But the land whither ye go to possess it, is a land of hills and vallies f and drinketh water of the rain of heaven g:

f And therefore much more healthful than Egypt was, which as it was enriched, fo it was annoyed, with Nilus, which overflowed the land in fummer time, and thereby made the Country both unpleasant, and, which is much worse, unhealthful. And health being the greateft of all outward blefsings, Canaan muft therefore needs be a more desirable habitation than Egypt, which is the thing here implyed. g Which is more honourable, becaufe this comes not from man sart or industry, but immediately from God's power and goodnefs; more eafie, being given thee without thy charge or pains; more fweet and pleafant, not hindering thy going abroad upon thy occafions, as the overflow of Nilus did, whereby the Egyptians were confined in a great measure to their several houfes; more fafe and healthful, being free from that Mud which attends upon the waters of Nilus; and more certain too, the former and the later rain being promifed to be given to them in their feveral feafons, upon condition of their obedience, which condition, though it may feem a clog and inconvenience, yet indeed was a great benefit, that by their own neceffities and worldly intereft they fhould be obliged to that obedience, upon which their happinefs depended both for this life and for the next.

12 A land which the LORD thy God † careth for h: * the eyes of the LORD thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year, even unto the end of the year i.

h To wit, in a fpecial manner, watering it immediately as it were by his own hand, without man's help, and giving peculiar blefsings to it, which Egypt enjoys not. i To give it the rain, and other blefsings proper to the fe*eral feafons. But all thefe mercies, and the fruitfulnefs of the land confequent upon them, were fuspended upon their difobedience, as it here follows. And therefore it is not at all ftrange that fome later writers decry the land of Canaan as in great part a barren foyl, which is fo far from affording any ground to queftion the divine authority of the holy Scriptures, in which its fruitfulnefs is declared, that it doth much more confirm it, this being but an effect of that threatning that God would turn a fruitful land into barrenneſs for the wickedneſs of thoſe that dwell in it, Pſal. 107. 34. and elfewhere; and the wickednefs of the Iſraelites in fucceeding ages being notorious, it is but juft and fit that the barrennefs of their land fhould be as evident and infamous.

13 And it fhall come to paſs, if ye fhall hearken diligently unto my commandments, which I commanded you this day, to love the LORD your God, and to ferve him with all your heart, and with all your foul;

14 That I will give you the rain of your land k in his due feafon, the firft rain, and the latter rain l, that thou mayeft gather in thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil.

k (i. e.) which is needful and fufficient for your land; or which is proper to your land, not common to Egypt, where, as all authors agree, agree, there is little or no rain. l The firft fell in feed time, to make the corn fpring, the other a little before harveft, to ripen it. See Jer. 5. 24. Joel 2. 23. Amos 4. 7. Jam. 5. 7.

Heb. rain.

15 And I will † fend graſs in thy fields for thy cattle, that thou mayeſt eat and be full.

16 Take heed to your ſelves, that your heart be not deceived m, and ye turn aſide, and ſerve other gods, and worſhip them:

m By the ſpecious pretences of Idolaters, who will plead the general conſent of all nations, except yours, in the worſhip of creatures, and that they worſhip the creatures only for God's ſake, and as they are glorious works of God, whom they worſhip in and by them: which, and the like arguments, being commonly alledged by Heathens for their Idolatries, as their own writers declare, might poſſibly ſeduce an unwary Iſraelite: and therefore they are here cautioned againſt ſuch deceit, and withal it is implyed, that if a man's mind be corrupted and deceived, ſo as he believes Idolatry to be lawful, this will not excuſe him in the ſight of God.

17 And then the LORD's wrath be kindled againſt you, and he ſhut up the heaven n, that there be no rain, and that the land yeild not her fruit, and leſt ye periſh quickly from off the good land which the LORD giveth you.

n Which is compared ſometimes to a bottle, Job 38. 37. which may be either ſtopped or opened: ſometimes to a great ſtore-houſe wherein God lays up his treaſures of rain, Job 38. 22. Pſal. 33. 7. the doors whereof God is ſaid to open when he gives rain, and to ſhut when he with-holds it. 19 And * ye ſhall teach them your children, ſpeaking of them when thou ſitteſt in thine houſe, and when thou walkeſt by the way, when thou lieſt down, and when thou riſeſt up.

20 And thou ſhalt write them upon the door-poſts of thine houſe, and upon thy gates:

21 That your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD ſware unto your fathers to give them, as the days of heaven upon the earth o.

o (i. e.) As long as this viſible world laſts; whil*t the heaven keeps its place and continues its influences upon earth, until all theſe things be diſſolved. Compare Pſal. 72. 5. and 81. 5. and 89 29. Jer. 33. 25.

22 For if ye ſhall diligently keep all theſe commandments which I command you, to do them, to love the LORD your God, to walk in all his ways, and to cleave unto him:

g Which were wiſely appropriated to that one and publick place, partly for the ſecurity of the true Religion, and for the prevention of Idolatry and Superſtition, which otherwiſe might more eaſily have crept in: and partly to ſignifie that their Sacrifices were not accepted for their own worth, but by God's gracious appointment, and for the ſake of God's Altar, by which they were ſanctified, and for the ſake of Chriſt, whom the Altar did manifeſtly repreſent. h Of which ſee below on ver. 17. i (i. e.) Your firſt-fruits, as plainly appears by comparing this place with Deut. 18. 4. and 26. 2. where theſe are commanded to be brought thither; and feeing here is an exact and particular enumeration of all ſuch things, and theſe cannot be put under any of the other branches, theſe muſt needs be intended here, the rather, becauſe the other kind of firſt-fruits, to wit, of the herds and flocks, are here expreſly mentioned. And theſe are called here the heave-offering of their hand, becauſe the offerer was firſt to take theſe into his hands, and to heave them before the Lord (as other places tell us) and then to give them to the Prieſt, as appears from Deut. 18. 3, 4. and 26. 4. k Even ſuch voluntary oblations, which were not due by any preſcription, but only by your own choice and voluntary engagement: you may chuſe what kind of offering you pleaſe to vow and offer, but not the place where you ſhall offer them. l Either 1. the holy firſtlings or firſt-born, as appears by Numb. 18. where they are commanded to be brought to this one place here deſigned, and to be offered upon God's altar, v. 17. It is objected by ſome, that theſe were given to the Prieſts, Numb. 18. 18. but theſe were to be eaten by the people here, ver. 7. But that the next verſe doth not ſay, but only in general, there ſhall ye eat, to wit, ſuch of the offerings mentioned ver. 6. as they were allowed to eat, but not ſuch as were the Prieſts peculiar, for theſe they might not eat, nor all there expreſſed; for it is evident they might not eat any of the burnt offerings, nor ſome parts of the other ſacrifices, which are here mentioned. Or, 2. the ſecond births, which were the peoples firſt-born, or the firſt which they could eat of, which they were to eat before the Lord by way of acknowledgment of his favour in giving them to them and all their ſucceeding births. See more on ver. 17.

7 And there m ye shall eat n before the LORD o your God, and ye shall rejoyce in all that ye put your hand unto p, ye and your households, wherein the LORD thy God hath blessed thee.

m Not in the most holy place, wherein only the Priests might eat, Numb. 18. 10. but more generally in places allowed to the people for this end in the holy city. n To wit, your part of the things mentioned, ver. 6. o (i. e.) In the place of God's presence, where God's Sanctuary shall be. p Either to bestow your pains and labour upon it: or, to take and use or enjoy it. The sense is, You thus doing shall be blessed and enabled to rejoyce, or to take comfort in all your labours and enjoyments, which otherwise would be accursed to you. We have the same phrase below, ver. 18. and Deut. 15. 10.

8 Ye shall not do after all the things that we do here q this day, every man whatsoever is right in his own eyes r.

q Where the inconveniency of the place and the uncertainty of our abode in and removal from several places, would not permit exact order in sacrifices and feasts and ceremonies, which therefore God was pleased then to dispense with; but, saith he, he will not do so there. ‖ Not that universal liberty was given to all persons to worship whom and how they lifted, but that in many things their unfixed condition gave every one opportunity to do so, if he thought good.

9 For ye are not as yet come to the rest, and to the inheritance which the LORD your God giveth you.

10 But when ye go over Jordan, and dwell in the land which the LORD your God giveth you to inherit, and when he giveth you rest from all your enemies round about, so that ye dwell in safety,

*Heb 8.29. Ps. 78.68. 11 Then there shall be * a place which the LORD your God shall chuse to cause his Name s to dwell there, thither shall ye bring all that I command you: your burnt-offerings, and your sacrifices, your tithes, and the heave-† Heb. the offering of your hand. offerings of your hand, and all † your choice vows t, which ye vow unto the LORD.

r (i. e.) His Majesty and glory, his worship and service, his special and gracious presence, and the tokens of it. ‖ Heb. the choice of your vows, i. e. your lebeli or chosen vows; so called, because things offered for vows were to be perfect, whereas superfluous or defective creatures were accepted in free-will offerings, as appears from Lev. 22. 21, 23.

12 And ye shall rejoyce before the LORD your God, ye, and your sons, and your daughters t, and your men-servants, and your maid-servants, and the Levite that is *ch. 10. 9. within your gates, forasmuch as * he hath no part nor inheritance with you.

t Hence it appears, that though the males only were obliged to appear before God in their solemn feasts, Exod. 23. 17. yet the women also were permitted to come, as they did. See Judg. 21. 19, 21. 1 Sam. 1. 3, 7, 21, 22, 23.

13 Take heed to thy self, that thou offer not thy burnt-offerings u in every place that thou seest x:

u Nor the other things mentioned above, this one and most eminent kind being put for all the rest, as is usual: for being all expressed before, it was needless to repeat them again. x To wit, with complacency and approbation, which thou thinkest very fit and proper for such a work, as one might possibly judge of some high-places or groves or gardens.

14 But in the place which the LORD shall chuse in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerings, and there thou shalt do all that I command thee.

15 Notwithstanding thou mayest kill and eat flesh y in all thy gates z, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after a, ac-* ver. 22. cording to the blessing of the LORD thy God, which he hath given thee b: the * unclean c and the clean may eat thereof d, as of the roe-buck, and as of the hart.

*Gen. 9. 4. Lev. 3. 17. ch. 12. 23. 16 * Only ye shall not eat the blood, ye shall pour it † Heb. as out upon the earth as water.

17 Thou e † mayest not eat within thy gates f the tithe of thy corn, or of thy wine, or of thy oil g, or the firstlings of thy herds, or of thy flock h, nor any of thy vows which thou vowest, nor thy free will offerings, or heave-offerings of thine hand.

e Either 1. thou, O Levite: or rather 2. thou, O Israelite, whom he distinguisheth from the Levite, ver. 18, accordingly as the following particulars agree to the one or to the other of you. f (i. e.) In your private habitations, here opposed to the place of God's Worship, ver. 18. g Here seems to be a great difficulty, not yet sufficiently observed nor cleared by Interpreters. There were divers kinds of tithes, 1. The tithes given to the Levites out of all, of which Numb. 18. 21, 24. Deut. 14. 22. Neh. 10. 37. 2. The tithe of those tithes, which were to be given by the Levites to the Priests, of which Numb. 18. 26, 28. Neh. 10. 38. 3. The third years tithe, of which Deut. 14. 28. To which some add another tithe, which they call the second tithe which they say was taken after the Levites tithe was laid by. Now each of these hath its difficulty. It seems this place cannot be understood 1. of the Levites tithe, partly because it might seem a great and wholly superfluous trouble to carry all their tithes up to Jerusalem, and to carry them back to their several habitations for their use; partly because those were holy to the Lord, Lev. 27. 30. and not to be eaten by the people, ver. 31. whereas these belonged principally to the people, the Levites being only taken in as accessories to eat with them, as it is here ver. 18. and partly because those might be eaten in every place, as it is expressly affirmed, Numb. 18. 31. Nor 2. of the tithe of the tithe, which was the Priest's, and neither Levites nor others might eat of it, except they were of or in the Priests houshold. Nor 3. of the third years tithe, because that was to be eaten within their gates, Deut. 14. 28. 29. as this was not. I do therefore humbly conceive, that this is meant of the second tithe, spoken of Deut. 14. 22. and that this was the very same tithe with that third years tithe, with this only difference, that in the third year they were to eat them, together with the Levites within their gates, Deut. 14. 28, 29. but in the two first years they were to eat them, together with the Levites also, in the place of God's Worship, as it is prescribed here and Deut. 14. 23. And that it is one and the same tithe which is spoken of, Deut. 14. 22. and ver. 28. seems more than probable, both because they are called by the same name, all the tithe of their increase, and because that ver. 28. manifestly looks back to that ver. 22. and because otherwise every third year the Israelites were to pay three several tithes one after another, which Scripture no where affirms, and it seems to make the peoples burdens and the Levites Provisions too great. For the objection taken from Deut. 26. 12, 13. it shall be considered in its place. And the reason of that difference of place, and why the same tithes were eaten for two years together in Jerusalem, and the third year in their own gates, seems to be this, That in the two first years there was a more special regard had to the Levites, who were very much conversant in Jerusalem, where those tithes were then eaten, and in the third year there is a respect had to the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, who are mentioned as joynt-sharers with the Levites in this third years tithe, whose occasions and obligations of coming to Jerusalem were not so many nor strong as those of the Levites, and therefore they were to be found generally within their gates, where these were to be eaten. And whereas the objection made before against the chargeable and useless carrying of the first tithes to Jerusalem might be applied here, it is answered there, and it is provided, that when they lived at a great distance from Jerusalem they might turn it into money and bestow it there, Deut. 14. 24, 25, 26. which both confirms the objection as to the first tithe, for which no such provision was made, and answers it as to this, where such a remedy is expressed. And whereas it may be pleaded on the behalf of the first, or the Levitical tithe, that those tithes were brought to Jerusalem, and that there were store-houses or chambers in the Temple appointed for the receiving of the tithes, 2 Chron. 31. 5, 6, 11, 12. Neh. 10. 37, 38. and 12. 44. it may be answered, That those chambers, being only 38 in number, and each of them, except two, but six cubits broad, and twelve cubits long, were altogether uncapable of all those tithes, and seem principally, if not solely appointed for the Priests tithes, and not for all them neither, but only for so much of them as would serve for the use and necessity of those Priests and Levites too that were in the actual ministration. h As the tithes now mentioned were not the Levitical, but second tithes, as hath been discoursed, so these firstlings do not seem to be the first firstlings, which being appropriated to the Levites were not to be eaten by any of the people, except those of or in the Levites Families, but the second firstlings, which were the first which the owner could dispose of, and which, in conformity to the second tithes, he is required to set apart for this use.

18 But thou must eat them before the LORD thy God, in the place which the LORD thy God shall chuse, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, and the Levite that is within thy gates: and thou shalt rejoyce before the LORD thy God, in all that thou puttest thine hands unto.

19 * Take heed to thy self i, that thou forsake not the Levite, † as long as thou livest upon the earth. † Heb. all thy days.

i Left a worldly mind and self-love make thee rob the Levites of their dues, as afterwards the ungodly Jews did. See Neh. 13. 8.

20 When the LORD thy God shall enlarge thy border k, * as he hath promised thee, and thou shalt say, I will eat flesh; (because thy soul longeth to eat flesh) thou mayest eat flesh, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after.

k Which will make it inconvenient and impossible to do what now thou dost, and because of the narrow bounds of thy Camp cannot conveniently do, to wit, to bring all the cattle thou useth to the Tabernacle, which it seems probable they did, to prevent their eating of blood. Compare Lev. 17. 3, 4. Sam. 14. 32.

21 If the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen to put his name there, be too far from thee ‖, then thou shalt kill of thy herd, and of thy flock, which the LORD hath given thee, as I have commanded thee l, and thou shalt eat in thy gates whatsoever thy soul lusteth after. ‖ In

‖ In which case being obliged to carry their sacrifices to the place of worship, that the blood might be there poured forth, &c. they might think themselves obliged, for the same reason, to carry their other cattle thither to be killed. They are therefore released from all such obligations, and left at liberty to kill them at home, whether they lived nearer to that place, or further from it; only the latter is here mentioned, as being the matter of the Scruple, and as containing the former in it. l In such manner as the blood may be poured forth, as above, ver. 16. and below, ver. 24.

ver. 15. 22 * Even as the roe-buck and the hart m is eaten, so thou shalt eat them: the unclean and the clean shall eat of them alike n.

m As common or unhallowed food, though they be of the same kind with the sacrifices which are offered to God. n Because there was no holiness in such meat for which the unclean might be excluded from it.

ver. 16. Heb. be the blood o the † life o, and thou mayest not eat the † life with the flesh.

o Of which see on Gen 9. 4. Lev. 17. 11. The animal life depends upon the blood.

24 Thou shalt not eat it, thou shalt pour it upon the earth as water.

25 Thou shalt not eat it, that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee; when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

26 Only thy holy things p which thou hast, and thy vows thou shalt take, and go unto the place which the LORD shall chuse.

p Mentioned before, ver. 6. 11, 17. which thou hast consecrated to God.

Lev. 1, 5, 27 And * thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerings, the flesh and the blood, upon the altar of the LORD thy God: and the blood of thy sacrifices shall be poured out upon the altar of the LORD thy God, and thou shalt eat the flesh q.

q Excepting what shall be burned to God's honour, and given to the Priest according to his appointment.

28 Observe and hear all these words which I command thee, that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee for ever, when thou dost that which is good and right in the sight of the LORD thy God.

29 When the LORD thy God shall cut off the nations from before thee, whither thou goest to possess them r, Heb. in- and thou † succeedest them, and dwellest in their land: vest or possess. r Of which phrase see Deut. 9. 1. and 11. 23.

Heb. of them. 30 Take heed to thy self, that thou be not snared s † by following them, after that they be destroyed t from before thee; and that thou inquire not after their gods u, saying, How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise.

s Drawn into their sin and ruine. t (i. e.) By following the example they left, when their persons are destroyed. u Through curiosity to know their Gods and the manner of the worship, left thy vain and foolish mind be seduced by its speciousness or newness.

Heb. abo- minations of them. 31 Thou shalt not do so unto the LORD x thy God: for every † abomination to the LORD which he hateth, have they done unto their Gods: for * even their sons and their daughters they have burnt in the fire to their gods.

x Either 1. Not offer him that indignity and injury to worship other gods together with him. Or rather, 2. Not worship him in such manner as they worshipped their Gods, to wit, by offering thy children to him, as they did to their gods, as it here follows, or by thy own devices or superstitions, as is implied, ver. 32.

32 What thing soever I command you, observe to do it: * thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it.

CHAP. XIII.

Enticers to Idolatry, being permitted by God, to try Israel, were to be slain, and to be death, 1—5. though near of kin, 6—11. A city found guilty of Idolatry, to be burnt and utterly destroyed, 12—16. They were not to take any of its cursed things, but to obey God's Command, that his mercy might be upon them, 17, 18.

1 IF there arise among you a a prophet, or a dreamer of dreams b, and giveth thee a sign or a wonder c:

a (i. e.) One of your nation, for such might be both seduced and afterwards seducers. b One that pretends himself to be one to whom God hath revealed himself, either by visions or dreams. See Numb. 12. 6. c (i. e.) Shall foretell some strange and wonderful thing to come, as appears from ver. 2. as the true Prophets used to do, as 1 Sam. 10.

2 And * the sign or the wonder come to pass d, where-Deut 18 Jer. 28. of he spake unto thee, saying e, Let us go after other Mat. 7. gods, (which thou hast not known) and let us serve them:

d Which God may suffer for the reason after mentioned. e This word is to be joyned with the beginning of verse 1. If there arise among you a prophet, or dreamer of dreams, saying, what there follows, and giveth thee a sign, &c. to confirm his doctrine, such transpositions are frequent.

3 Thou shalt not hearken to the words of that pro-Gen. 22. phet e, or that dreamer of dreams; for the LORD your God * proveth you f, to know g whether ye love the LORD your God with all your heart, and with all your soul.

e Not receive his doctrine, though the sign come to pass. For although when such a sign or wonder foretold did not follow or come to pass, it was a sign of a false prophet, as is said, Deut. 18. 22. yet when it did come to pass, it was no sufficient or infallible sign of a true one, especially in such a case when he brings in new Gods. The reason of the difference is, because many causes must concur to make a thing good and true, but any one failure is sufficient to make a thing bad or false. And particularly there are many signs, yea such as men may think to be wonders, which may be wrought by evil spirits, God so permitting it for divers wise and just reasons, not only for the trial of the good, as it here follows, but also for the punishment of ungodly men, who would not receive Divine Truths, though attested by many evident and unquestionable miracles, and therefore are most justly exposed to thole temptations to believe lies. f (i. e.) Try with your faith and love and obedience, examineth your sincerity by your constancy. See Matt. 24. 24. 2 Thes. 2. 11. Rev. 13. 14. See on Gen. 22. 1. Deut. 8. 2, 3. g That he may know it, to wit, judicially, or in a publick manner, so as both you and others may know and see it, that so the justice of his judgments upon you may be more evident and glorious.

4 Ye shall walk after the LORD your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, ch. 10. 20. and ye shall serve him h, and * cleave unto him.

h To wit, only as appears from the opposition. Compare Deut. 6. 13. with Mat. 4. 10.

5 And * that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams shall ch. 18. 20. be put to death (because he hath † spoken i to turn you Zech. 13. 3. away from the LORD k your God, which brought you † Heb. speech against the out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed you out of the LORD. house of bondage, to thrust thee out of the way l which the LORD thy God commanded to walk in.) * so shalt ch. 22. 21, thou put the evil m away from the midst of thee. 24. 1 Cor.

i (i. e.) Taught or perswaded you. k To forsake God and his worship. He shews that the chiefest and most certain character of a true Prophet, is to be taken from his doctrine rather than from his miracles. l This phrase notes the great force and power of deceivers to corrupt men's minds. Compare Deut. 4. 19. Acts 13. 10. Mat. 24. 24. m Either 1. that evil thing, that wicked doctrine and practice. Or 2. that wicked and scandalous man, that Idolater and Seducer.

6 * If thy brother, the son of thy mother n, or thy ch. 17. 2. son, or thy daughter o, or the wife of thy bosom p, or thy friend, which is as thine own soul q, intice thee r secretly, saying, Let us go and serve other gods s (which thou hast not known, thou, nor thy fathers,)

n This is added, to restrain the signification of the word brother, which is oft used generally for one near akin, and to express the nearness of the relation, the mother's side being the surest, and usually the ground of the truest and most fervent affection. See Gen. 20. 12. o Thy piety must overcome both thy affection to thy nearest relation, and thy compassion to the weaker Sex. p Either 1. that is near to thy heart, that hath thy dearest love. Or rather 2. that lyeth in thy bosom, as it is expressed, Mic. 7. 5. Compare Gen. 16. 5. Prov. 5. 20. Deut. 28. 54. So we read of the husband of her bosom, Deut. 28. 56. q As dear to thee as thy self. The father and mother are here omitted, not, as some fancy, because children might not in this nor in any case accuse their parents, for certainly they owe more reverence and duty to God, who is injured in this case, than to their parents, and Levi is commended for neglecting his father and mother in this case; but because they are sufficiently contained in the former examples; for since mens love doth usually descend more strongly than it ascends, and the relation of a wife is and ought to be nearer and dearer than of a parent, that favour which is denied to wives and children cannot be thought fit to be allowed to parents. r Though it be without success, because the very attempt of such an abominable crime deserved death, as it is judged in case of treason. s Unknown and obscure and new Gods; which greatly aggravates the crime, to forsake a God whom thou and thy fathers have long known, and had great and good experience of, for such upstarts.

7 Namely, of the gods of the people which are round about you, nigh unto thee, or far off from thee, from the one end of the earth, even unto the other end of the earth t:

t He arms against the pretence of the universality of this Idol-worship, wherewith they were like to be oft assaulted.

8 Thou shalt not consent unto him, nor hearken unto him, neither shall thine eye pity him, neither shalt thou spare, neither shalt thou conceal him u.

u (i. e.) Smother his fault, hide or protect his person, but shalt accuse him to the Magistrate, and demand justice upon him, which was not to be done in most other criminal causes; and no wonder, this crime being of a far higher nature than others.

9 But * thou shalt surely kill him x; thine hand shall ch. 17. 7. be first upon him, to put him to death y, and afterwards the hand of all the people.

x Not privately, which pretence would have opened the door to innumerable murders, but by procuring his death by the sentence of the Magistrate. y Thou shalt call the first stone at him, as the Witness was to do. See Deut. 17. 7. Acts 7. 58.

10 And thou shalt stone him with stones that he die: because he hath sought to thrust thee away from the LORD thy God which brought thee from the land of Egypt, from the house of † bondage. † Heb. house of service.

11 And all Exo. 20. 17. 13.

*ch. 17. 3. 11 And * all Israel shall hear, and fear, and shall do no more any such wickednes as this is, among you.

12 If thou shalt hear say in one of thy cities which the LORD thy God hath given thee, to dwell there, saying,

‖Or naughty men. 1. Sam. 2. 12. & 25. 25. 2 Cor. 6. 15. 13 Certain men, ‖ the children of Belial z, are gone out from among you a, and have withdrawn the inhabitants of their city, saying, Let us go and serve other gods (which ye have not known:)

z A title oft used in Scripture, as Judg. 19. 22. 1 Sam. 1 16. and 25. 25. 2 Sam. 16. 7. It signifies properly persons without yoke, vile and wretched miscreants, lawless and rebellious, that will suffer no restraint, that neither fear God, nor reverence man. a (i.e.) From your Church and Religion. It notes a separation or departure from them, not in place (as appears by their partnership with their fellow Citizens both in the sin and punishment, as is here follows) but in heart, doctrine and worship, as the same phrase is used, 1 Joh. 2. 19.

14 Then shalt thou b inquire, and make search, and ask diligently: and behold, if it be truth, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought among you:

b This is meant of the Magistrate, to whose office this properly belongs, and of whom he continues to speak in the same manner, thou, ver. 15. and ver. 16.

15 Thou shalt surely smite the inhabitants of that ci- *Jos.6. 17. ty c with the edge of the sword, * destroying it utterly d, and all that therein is, and the cattel with the edge of the sword.

c To wit, all that are guilty, not the innocent part, such as disowned this Apostacy, who doubtless by choice and interest, at least upon warning, would come out of so wicked and curfed a place.

d The very same punishment which was inflicted upon the cities of the curfed Canaanites, to whom having made themselves equal in sin, it is but fit and just that God should equal them in punishment.

16 And thou shalt gather all the spoil of it into the midst of the street thereof, and shalt burn with fire the city, and all the spoil thereof every whit, for the LORD thy God e: and it shall be an heap for ever, it shall not be built again f.

e (i.e.) For the satisfaction of God's justice, the maintenance of his honour and authority and laws, and the pacification of his offended Majesty. f It shall be an eternal monument of God's justice, and terrour to after ages, who may be tempted to like practices.

g (i.e.) Of the goods of that accursed city. h So thou shalt have no loss of thy numbers by cutting off so many people.

18 When thou shalt hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep all his Commandments which I command thee this day, to do that which is right in the eyes of the LORD thy God.

CHAP. XIV.

Heathenish Rites of Mourning prohibited, 1, 2. And the eating of any abominable thing, 3. All unclean Beasts, 4——8. Fish, 9, 10. and Birds, prohibited, 11, 12. True tything commanded, 22. And where it was to be eaten, 23——27. A command about the third years Tything, 28. And who should eat it, 29.

*Lev.19. 28. 1 YE are the children of the LORD your God a: * ye shall not cut your selves, nor make any baldnes between your eyes b for the dead c.

a Whom therefore you must not disparage by unworthy or unbecoming practises, such as here follow, and whom you must not dishonour. b Which were the practices of Idolaters, both in the worship of their Idols, as 1 King. 18. 28. or, in their funerals, as here, and Jer. 16. 6. or upon occasion of publick calamities, as Jer. 41. 5. and 47. 5. See more on Levit. 19. 27, 28. and 21. 5.

c Through excessive sorrow for your dead friends, as if you had no hope of their happines after death, 1 Thess. 4. 13.

*ch. 7. 6. & 26. 18. 2 * For thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God, and the LORD hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth.

3 Thou shalt not eat any abominable d thing.

d (i.e.) Unclean and forbidden by me, which therefore should be abominable to you.

*Lev. 11. 2. &c. 4 * These are the beasts e, which ye shall eat, the ox, the sheep, and the goat, e Of which see on Levit. 11. The small differences between some of their names here and there are not proper for this work. The learned Reader may find them cleared in my Latin Synopsis. For others, they may well enough want the knowledge of them, both because these are the smaller matters of the Law, and because this distinction of clean and unclean beasts is now out of date.

5 The hart, and the ro-buck, and the fallow deer, and the wild goat, and the ‖ † pygarg, and the wild ox, and the chamois:

‖ Or, bison. † Heb. ashsan. 6 And every beast that parteth the hoof, and cleaveth the cleft into two claws, and cheweth the cud amongst the beasts: that ye shall eat.

7 Nevertheless, these ye shall not eat, of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the cloven hoof, as the camel, and the hare, and the coney: for they chew the cud, but divide not the hoof, therefore they are unclean unto you,

8 And the swine, because it divideth the hoof, yet cheweth not the cud, it is unclean unto you: ye shall not eat of their *flesh, nor touch their dead carcase. *Le.11.7.

9 * These ye shall eat, of all that are in the waters: *Le.11.9. all that hath fins and scales shall ye eat.

10 And whatsoever hath not fins and scales, ye may not eat: it is unclean unto you.

11 Of all clean birds ye shall eat.

12 But these are they of which ye shall not eat: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the osprey,

13 And the glede, and the kite, and the vulture after his kind,

14 And every raven after his kind,

15 And the owl, and the night-hawk, and the cuckow, and the hawk after his kind,

16 The little owl, and the great owl, and the swan,

17 And the pelican, and the gier-eagle, and the cormorant,

18 And the stork, and the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the * bat.

*Le.11.9 19 And every creeping thing that flyeth is unclean unto you: they shall not be eaten.

20 But of all clean fowls ye may eat.

21 Ye shall not eat of any thing that dieth of it self: thou shalt give it unto the stranger that is in thy gates, that he may eat it: or thou mayest sell it unto an alien: for thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God. * Thou shalt not seeth a kid in his mothers milk.

*Ex.23.19. & 34.26. f Not to the proselyte, for such were obliged by this Law, Lev. 17. 15. but to such as were strangers in Religion as well as in Nation.

22 * Thou shalt truly tithe all the encrease of thy * chap.12. 6,17. seed g, that the field bringeth forth year by year.

g This is to be understood of the second tithes, which seem to be the same with the tithes of the third year, mentioned here below, ver. 28. and Deut. 26. 12. on which see above, on chap. 12. ver. 17. And to confirm this opinion, (though I would not lay too great a stress upon criticisms) yet I cannot but observe that this tithing is spoken of only as the peoples act here, and Deut. 26. 12. and the Levites are not at all mentioned in either place as receivers or takers of them, but only as partakers of them together with the owners, and therefore they are so severely charged here upon their consciences, thou shalt truly tithe all thine encrease, because the execution of this was left wholly to themselves, whereas the first tithes were received by the Levites, who therefore are said to take or receive those tithes, Numb. 18. 26. Neh. 10. 38. Heb. 7. 5.

23 And thou shalt eat before the LORD h thy God, in the place which he shall chuse to place his Name there, the tithe of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and * the firstlings of thy herds, and of thy flocks, that thou * chap.15. 19, 20. mayest learn to fear the LORD thy God always.

h See on Deut. 12. 6, 17.

24 And if the way be too long for thee, so that thou art not able to carry it, or if the place be too far from thee, which the LORD thy God shall chuse to set his Name there, when the LORD thy God hath blessed thee:

25 Then shalt thou turn it into money, and bind up the money in thine hand i, and shalt go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall chuse.

i (i.e.) In a bag to be taken into thy hand and carried with thee.

26 And thou shalt bestow that money for whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, for oxen, or for sheep, or for wine, or for strong drink, or for whatsoever thy soul † desireth: † Heb. asheh. and thou shalt eat there before the LORD thy God, and thou shalt rejoyce, thou and thine houshold.

27 And * the Levite that is within thy gates, thou * ch.12. shalt not forsake him k: for * he hath no part nor inheritance with thee. * Num.18.

k Thou shalt give him a share in such tithes or in the product of them.

28 At the end of three years l thou shalt bring forth all the tithe of thine increase m the same year n, and shalt lay it up within thy gates, l (i.e.) In the third year, as it is expressed, Deut. 26. 12. So, in the end of three years, or of seven years, is the same with in the third or seventh year, as appears by comparing Deut. 31. 10. Jos. 9. 16, 17. 2 King. 18. 9, 10. and 17. 6. m I joyn with those Expositors who make this the same tithe with the former, ver. 22. as being called by the same title without any distinction between them, save only as to the place of eating them. See above on ver. 22. and Deut. 12. 17. n This is added to shew that he speaks of the third year, and not of the fourth year, as some might conjecture from the phrase, at the end of three years.

29 And the Levite (because he hath no part nor inheritance with thee) and the stranger, and the fatherless, less, and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat, and be satisfied, that * the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hand which thou doest. *See Mal. 3. 10.

CHAP. XV.

The seventh Year a Year of Releasse, 1. to their Brethren only, 2. God promiseth to bless them in the Land of Canaan, 4——6 And commandeth them to lend freely to the poor, 14——18. The Firstlings to be sanctified and eaten before the Lord, 19——23.

*Ver. 25. 1 AT the end of * every* seven years a thou shalt make a releasse.

a (i.e.) In the last year of the seven, as is most evident from ver. 9. Exod. 21. 2. Jer. 34. 14. So the like phrase is oft used, as Deut. 14. 28. Jos. 3. 2. Jer. 25. 12. Luk. 2. 21. Act. 2. 1. And this year of releasse, as it is called below, ver 9. is the same with the Sabbatical year, Exod. 23. 11. Levit. 25. 4.

Heb. master of the thing of Lend. 2 And this is the manner of the releasse. Every † creditor that lendeth ought unto his neighbour, shall releasse it b: he shall not exact it of his neighbour, or of his brother: because it is called the LORD's releasse d.

b Not absolutely and finally forgive it, but forbear it for that year, as may appear, 1. because the word doth not signifie a total dismission or acquitting, but an intermission for a time, as Exod. 23. 11. He shall not exact it, as it here follows, i. e. force it from him by course of Law or otherwise, to wit, that year, which is easily understood out of the whole context. 2. Because the person releasing is called a creditor, and his communicating to him what he desires and needs is called lending here and ver. 8. whereas it were giving, and the person giving it were no creditor, but a donor, if it were to be wholly forgiven to him. 3. Because the reason of this Law is temporary and peculiar to that year, wherein there being no sowing, nor reaping, they were not in a capacity to pay their Debts. 4. Because it seems unjust and unreasonable, and contrary to other Scriptures, which require men to pay what they borrow, as Psal. 37. 21. Yet I deny not that in case of poverty the debt was to be forgiven; but that was not by vertue of this law, but of other commands of God. c This is added to explain and limit the word neighbour, which is more general, unto a brother, to wit, in Nation and Religion; to an Israelite, who is opposed to a foreigner, ver. 3. Heb. and a brother, for, that is a brother, the particle and being oft so used, as Gen. 13. 15. &c. d Or, a releasse to or for the Lord, in obedience to his command, for his honour, and as an acknowledgment of his right in your estates, and of his kindnes in giving and continuing them to you. If you are unwilling to releasse this for your brother's sake, yet do it for God's sake, your Lord and the chief creditor.

3 Of a forreigner e thou mayest exact it again: but that which is thine f with thy brother, thine hand shall releasse.

e Or stranger, yea though a proselyte. For 1. they are oft called by this name, as Gen. 17. 12. Ruth 2. 10. 2. Though proselytes were admitted to the Church-privileges of the Israelites, yet they were not admitted to all their civil immunities or privileges. See 1 Chron. 22. 2. and 2 Chron. 2. 17. 3. Such were not exempted from their personal debt, to wit, of their service, Levit. 25. 44. Deut. 15. 12. Jer. 34. 14. therefore not from their real debt. f To wit, by right though lent to him.

Or, in the land that he owns among posses it. 4 ‖ Save when there shall be no poor among you g: for the LORD shall greatly bless thee h in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, to g So the words are an exception to the foregoing clause, which they refrain to the poor, and imply that if his brother was rich, he might exact his debt of him in that year. And indeed this Law seems to be chiefly, if not wholly, designed and given in favour to the poor and to the borrower, as is manifest from ver. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11. But the words are and may be rendred thus, as in the margent of our Bibles, To the end that there be no poor among you. And so they contain a reason of this Law, to wit, that none be impoverished and ruined by a rigid and unreasonable exaction of Debts. They may also be translated thus, Nevertheless of a truth, or assuredly (as the particle chi is oft used) there shall be no poor among you, and the sense may be this, Though I impose this Law upon you, which may seem hard and grievous, yet the truth is, supposing your performance of the conditions of God's Covenant, you shall not have any great occasion to exercise your charity and kindness in this matter, for God will greatly bless you, &c. so as you shall be in a capacity of lending, and few or none of you will have need to borrow, and thereby to expose his brethren to the inconvenience and burden of this Law. Thus the connexion is plain and easie, both with the foregoing and following words. Object. It is said, the poor should never cease, ver. 11. Answ. That also is true, and affirmed by God, because he foresaw they would not perform their duty, and therefore would bereave themselves of the promised blessing. h And therefore this will be no great inconvenience nor burden to thee.

5 Only if thou carefully hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all these commandments which I command thee this day.

*chap. 28. & 44. 6 For the LORD thy God blesseth thee, as he promised thee, and * thou shalt lend unto many nations i, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee.

i Thou shalt be rich and able to lend not only to thy poor brother, but even to strangers of other Nations, yea to many of them.

7 If there be among you a poor man, of one of thy brethren, within any of thy gates, in thy land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not harden thy heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother:

8 * But thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him k, * Mat. 5. and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in that 42. Luk. 6. which he wanteth. 34, 35.

k (i.e.) Deal bountifully and liberally with him, giving him as it were by handfuls.

9 Beware that there be not a † thought in thy † wicked † Heb. word heart l, saying, The seventh year, the year of releasse, is at hand, and thine eye be evil m against thy poor brother, and thou giveth him nought, and he cry unto the LORD against thee, and it be sin n unto thee. † Heb. Belial

l Suppress the first risings and inward motions of such uncharitableness. m (i.e.) Envious, unmerciful, unkind, as this phrase is used, Prov 23. 6. Matth. 20. 15. as a good eye notes the contrary disposition, Prov. 22. 9. n. (i.e.) Be charged upon thee as a sin, and as a great sin, as the word sin sometimes signifies, as Prov. 24. 9. Joh. 15. 24. Jam. 4. 17.

10 Thou shalt surely give him, and thine heart shall not be grieved when thou givest unto him o: because that for this thing the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in all that thou puttest thine hand unto p.

o (i.e.) Thou shalt give, not only with an open hand, but with a willing and chearful mind and heart, Rom. 12. 8. 2 Cor. 9. 7. without which thy very Charity is uncharitable and not accepted by God, who requires the heart in all his services. p (i.e.) In all thy works, as before, for the hand is the great instrument of action.

11 For * the poor shall never cease out of the land q: * Matt. 26. therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine 11. hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy John. 12. 8. needy in the land.

q God by his providence will so order it, partly for the punishment of your disobedience, and partly for the tryal and exercise of your obedience to me and charity to your brother, both which are best discovered by your performance of costly duties.

12 And * if thy brother, an Hebrew man, or an He- * Ex. 21. brew woman be sold unto thee r, and serve thee six *Jer.*34.14. years s, then in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free from thee.

r See on Exod. 22. 3. s To be computed, either, 1. From the year of releasse; as they gather from hence that personal and real debts were both released together. But that seems to be supposed rather than proved; nay there is a manifest difference between them, for the releasse of real debts is expresly mentioned and required in the year of releasse, but so is not the releasse of the personal debt of servitude, either here or elsewhere. Or rather, 2. From the beginning of this servitude, which is every where limited unto the space of six years, as here and below, ver 18. and Exod. 21. 2. Jer. 34. 14. And it seems a strange and forced exposition, to take these six years, for so much of the six years as remains until the year of releasse, which possibly might not be one quarter of a year, whereas an hired servant serves for a far longer time, and this is said to be worth a double hired servant, in regard of the longer time of his service, ver. 18. Add to this, that it is mentioned as the peculiar privilege of the year of Jubilee, that such servants were then freed though their six years of service were not expired.

13 And when thou sendest him out free from thee, thou shalt not let him go away empty.

14 Thou shalt furnish him liberally out of thy flock, and out of thy floor, and out of thy wine-press, of that wherewith the LORD thy God hath blessed thee, thou shalt give unto him.

15 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee t: therefore I command thee this thing to day.

t And brought thee out with triumph and with riches, which because they would not, God did, give to thee as a just recompence for thy service, and therefore thou shalt follow his example, and send out thy servant furnished with all convenient provisions.

16 And it shall be if he say unto thee, I will not go away from thee (because he loveth thee, and thine house, because he is well with thee) u, u Because he is sensible that he fares well with thee. Or, because it is good, i. e. acceptable in his eyes, or pleasing to him, to be with thee.

17 * Then thou shalt take an awl, and thrust it through * Ex. 21.6. his ear unto the door, and he shall be thy servant for ever x: and also unto thy maid-servant thou shalt do likewise y.

x (i.e.) All the time of his life, or, at least, till the year of Jubile. See on Exod. 21. 6. y (i.e.) Either distinct her honourably, and with plenty of provisions; or engage her to perpetual servitude in the same manner and by the same Rites. Whence it appears, that this case differs from that, Exod. 21. 7. and that the maid-servant there was taken in upon other and better terms than this here.

18 It shall not seem hard unto thee, when thou sendest him away free from thee: for he hath been worth a double * hired servant to thee z, in serving thee six years, * See Isa. and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all that thou 16. 14. doest.

z Or, he deserves double wages to an hired servant, because he served thee upon better terms, both without wages, which hired servants require, and for a longer time, even for 6 years, as it here follows, whereas servants were ordinarily hired but from year to year,

Lewis

Levit. 25. 53. or at most but for 3 years, as they gather from this place and Isa. 16. 14.

*Exod. 34. 19. Lev. 27. 26. Num. 3. 13.

19 * All the firstling males that come of thy herd, and of thy flock, thou shalt sanctifie unto the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work with the firstling a of thy bullock, nor shear the firstling of thy sheep.

a This is meant, either, 1. Of the male firstlings; which, they say, is forbidden here, because some did plow with the firstlings of their oxen, and shear the firstlings of their sheep, before they were offered. But this seems absurd and incredible, because they were to be offered upon the eighth day, Exod. 22. 30. when they were very unfit for such uses. Or, rather 2. The second firstlings, of which see on Deut. 12. 17.

20 Thou b shalt eat it c before the LORD thy God year by year d, in the place which the LORD shall chuse, thou and thy houshold.

b Either, 1. Thou, O Priest. Or rather, 2. Thou, O Israelite. For it is evident that the same person who was forbidden to work with these, verse 19. is here commanded to eat them, &c. c Together with the Levites, as it is to be understood from Deut. 12. 18. & 14. 27, 29. where that is expressed in like cases. d To wit, in the solemn feasts which returned upon them every year. See Deut. 16. 11, 14.

*Lev. 22. 20. ch. 17. 1. 21 * And if there be any blemish therein, as if it be lame, or blind, or have any ill blemish, thou shalt not sacrifice it unto the LORD thy God.

*ch. 12. 15. 22 Thou shalt eat it within thy gates: the * unclean and the clean person shall eat it alike, as the ro-buck, and as the hart.

*ch. 12. 16, 23. 23 *Only thou shalt not eat the blood thereof: thou shalt pour it upon the ground as water.

CHAP. XVI.

Their Feast of the Passover to be kept, 1—7 and to eat unleavened bread, 8. The seven Weeks and their Feasts, 9—12. The Feast of the Tabernacles to be observed by them, and their Family, seven days, 13—15. All the Males to appear before the Lord three times a year, and at their three Feasts, 16, 17. Judges and Officers are appointed, 18—20. and are prohibited to set up Idolatry, 21, 22.

*Exod. 12. 2. &c. Ex. 13. 4. of Abib the LORD thy God brought thee forth out of *Exod. 23. 15. Egypt by * night e.

a Object. They came out of Egypt by day, and in the morning, as appears from Exod. 12. 22. and 13. 3. Numb. 33. 3. Answ. They are said to be brought out by night, because in the night Pharaoh was forced to give them leave to depart, and accordingly they made preparation for their departure, and in the morning they perfected the work.

2 Thou shalt therefore sacrifice the passover b unto the *ch. 12. 5. LORD thy God, of the flock, and the herd, in the * place which the LORD shall chuse to place his Name there.

b (i. e.) Either 1. properly and strictly so called, which was the Paschal Lamb, and to it the Sheep and Oxen, which here follow, are mentioned only as additional Sacrifices, which were to be offered in the seven days of the Paschal solemnity, Numb. 28. 18, 19, &c. Or 2. largely, to wit, for tha Passover-offerings, to wit, which were offered after the Lamb in the seven days, and so this very word is used, 2 Chron. 35. 8, 9. And this signification seems necessary here, partly because it is here said to consist of the flock and of the herd, or, of Sheep and Oxen, and partly because it follows, v. 3. Thou shalt eat no leavened bread with it, seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread therewith, i. e. with the Passover, which could not be done with the Passover strictly so called, which was to be wholly spent in one day. Or 3. The Feast of the Passover, and so the place may be rendred, Thou shalt therefore observe or keep the Feast of the Passover (as those same Hebrew words are taken, Numb. 9. 5. Jos. 5. 10. 2 Chron. 35. 1, 17, 18, 19.) unto the Lord thy God, with Sheep, and with Oxen, as is prescribed, Numb. 28. 18, &c.

*Ex. 12. 15. 3 * Thou shalt eat no leavened bread with it c: seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread therewith, even the bread of affliction d (for thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt in haste) that thou mayest remember the day when thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt, all the days of thy life.

c To wit, with the Passover, in the sense delivered: Or, in it, i. e. during the time of the Feast of the Passover. d (i. e.) Bread which is not usual nor pleasant, but unsavoury and unwholesome, to put thee in mind both of thy miseries endured in Egypt, and of thy hasty coming out of it, which allowed thee no time to leaven or to prepare thy Bread.

*Exod. 34. 25. 4 * And there shall be no † leavened bread seen with thee in all thy coasts seven days, * neither shall there any †Heb. lea-ven. thing of the flesh which thou facrificest the first day at even e remain all night until the morning,

*Exod. 12. 10. e (i. e.) Of the Passover properly so called, and by these words plainly described; which circumlocution may seem to insinuate that the word Passover, v. 1. was improperly used, and therefore he chose rather to describe it, then to name it, lest the ambiguity of the word should occasion some mistake.

‡ Heb. cannot. ch. 12. 17. 5 Thou ‡ mayest not ‖ sacrifice the passover within any of thy gates f which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

‖ Or, kill. f (i. e.) Of thy cities, as that word is oft used, as Gen. 22. 17 and 24. 60. Deut. 17. 2. Ruth. 4. 10.

6 But at the place which the LORD thy God shall chuse to place his name in, there thou shalt sacrifice the passover g, at even, at the going down of the sun, at the season h that thou camest forth out of Egypt.

g To wit, in the Court of the Tabernacle or Temple. This he prescribed, partly that this great work might be done with more solemnity and care in such manner as God required; partly, because it was not only a Sacrament, but also a sacrifice, as appears because it is so called, Exod. 12. 27. and 23. 18. and 34. 25. Numb. 9. 7. and because here was the sprinkling of blood, which is the essential part and character of a sacrifice; and partly to design the place where Christ, the true Passeover or Lamb of God, was to be slain.

h Understand this with some latitude, as such phrases are commonly taken, about that season, when you had received command from me to go out of Egypt, and were preparing your selves for the journey.

7 And thou shalt roft i, and eat it it in the place which the LORD thy God shall chuse, and thou shalt turn in the morning k and go unto thy tents l.

i So that word is used also, 2 Chron. 35. 13. k Either 1. The morning after the seventh day, as appears, partly by the following verse, which is added to explain and limit this ambiguous word; partly by the expres command of God that the people should come to Jerusalem to keep this Feast, which by Gods appointment lasted for seven days; partly from the examples of the people staying there the whole time of the feast, 2 Chron. 30. 21. and 35. 17. and partly from the nature and business of this feast, wherein there being so many extraordinary sacrifices to be offered, and feasts made by the people upon the sacrifices, and two days of solemn assemblies, it is not probable that they would absent themselves from these solemn services, for the performance whereof they came purposely to Jerusalem. Or 2. The morning after the first day, and so they were permitted to go then, and possibly some that lived near Jerusalem might go and return again to the last day of the solemn assembly. But the former seems more probable. l (i. e.) Thy dwellings, which he calls Tents, as respecting their present state, and withal to put them in mind afterwards when they were settled in better habitations, that there was a time when they dwelt in Tents.

8 Six days m thou shalt eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day shall be a † solemn assembly to the LORD thy God, thou shalt do no work there. †Heb. stay.

m To wit, besides the first day, on which the Passover was killed: or rather besides the seventh and the last day, which is there mentioned apart, not as if leavened bread might be eaten then, for the contrary was evident from many places, but because there was something more to be done, to wit a solemn assembly to be kept So in all there were seven days, as it is said, Exod. 12. 15. Lev. 23. 6. Numb. 28. 17.

9 * Seven weeks n thou shalt number unto thee: begin to number the seven weeks from such time as thou Deut. 23. 9. beginnest to put the sickle to the corn o. Lev. 23.

m He ſpeaks to the inferiour Magiſtrates, who were erected in ſeveral Cities, as appears by the oppoſition of theſe to them at Jeruſalem. If, ſaith he, thou haſt not skill or confidence to determine ſo weighty and difficult a cauſe. n (i. e.) in capital cauſes in matter of bloodſhed, whether it be willful or caſual murder, whether puniſhable or pardonable by thoſe laws, Exod. 21. 13, 20. 22. 2, and 22. 2. Numb. 35. 11, 16, 19. Deut. 19. 4, 5. o In civil cauſes or ſuits between plaintiffs and defendants about words or Eſtates. p (i. e.) Either firſt in Ceremonial cauſes, between plague and plague, between the true leproſie, which is oft times called the plague, and the ſeeming and counterfeit leproſie; which was oft times hard to determine. And under this as the moſt eminent of the kind, may ſeem to be contained all ceremonial uncleanneſſes. But this ſeems not probable. 1. Becauſe the final determination of the matter of leproſie is manifeſtly left to any particular Prieſt, Levit. 13. and 14. because the perſon, ſuſpected of leproſie was not to be brought to Jeruſalem, to be tryed there, but was to be ſhut up in his own city and houſe, Levit. 13. 4, 5. and the Judges at Jeruſalem neither could nor would determine his caſe without once ſeeing the perſon. 3. Becauſe the caſe of leproſie was not hard or difficult, as thoſe cauſes are ſaid to be, but plain and evident, and ſo particularly and punctually deſcribed, that the Prieſt needed only eyes to decide it. Or rather 2. In Criminal Cauſes, concerning blows or wounds inflicted by one man upon another, and to be requited to him by the ſentence of the Magiſtrate according to that law, Exod. 21. 23, 24, 25. wherein there might be many caſes of great difficulty and doubt, about which ſee the Annotations there. q (i. e.) Such things or matters of blood and pleas and ſtrokes being doubtful, and the Magiſtrates divided in their opinions about it, for if it was a clear caſe, this was not to be done. Some make this an additional caſe to comprehend theſe and all other things, thus as if he had ſaid, and in general, any words or matters of ſtrife or contention. r To wit, to ſet up his Worſhip and Tabernacle, or Temple there; becauſe there was the abode, both of their Sanhedrim, or chief Councel, which was conſtituted of Prieſts and civil Magiſtrates, who were moſt able to determine all controverſies, and of the High-Prieſts, who were to conſult God by Urim, Numb. 27. 21. in great matters, which could not be decided otherwiſe.

9 And thou ſhalt come unto the prieſts the Levites s, and unto the judge t that ſhall be in thoſe dayes, and enquire, and they ſhall ſhew thee the ſentence of judgment u.

s (i. e.) Unto the great councel, which it is here denominated from, becauſe it conſiſted chiefly of the Prieſts and Levites, as being the beſt Expoſitors of the Laws of God, by which all theſe Controverſies mentioned v. 8. were to be decided. And the High-Prieſt was commonly one of that number, and may ſeem to be underſtood here under the Prieſts whereof he was the chief. t This Judge here is, either 1. The ſupream civil Magiſtrate, who was made by God the keeper of both tables, and was by his Office to take care of the right adminiſtration both of Juſtice and of Religion, who was to determine cauſes and ſuits by his own skill and authority in civil matters, and by the Prieſts direction in ſpirituel or ſacred cauſes. But this ſeems obnoxious to ſome difficulties, becauſe this Judge was obliged to dwell in the place of Gods Worſhip, which the civil Magiſtrate was not, and oft times did not. This Judge was one whole Office it was to expound and teach others the law of God, as it here follows, v. 11. therefore not the civil Magiſtrate. Or 2. The High-Prieſt who was obliged to live in this place, to whom it belonged to determine ſome or leaſt of thoſe controverſies mentioned v. 8. and to teach and expound the Law of God. And he may be diſtinctly named, though he be one of the Prieſts, partly becauſe of his eminency and ſuperiority over the reſt of them, as after all Davids counſel Saul is particularly mentioned, Pſal. 18 title. and partly to ſhew that amongſt the Prieſts, he eſpecially was to be conſulted in ſuch caſes. But this alſo ſeems liable to objections. 1. That he ſeems to be included under that general expreſſion of the Prieſts and Levites. 2. That the High-Prieſt is never in all the Scripture called ſimply the Judge, but generally called the Prieſt, or the High-Prieſt, or the Prieſt the High-Prieſt, or the like; and it is moſt probable if Moſes had meant him here, he would have expreſſed him by ſome of his uſual Names and Titles, and not by a ſtrange Title which was not likely to be underſtood,

3. That divers controversies between blood and blood, plea and plea, stroke and stroke, were not to be determined by the High-Priest, but by other Persons, as appears, by Exod. 18. 22. Deut. 1. 16, 17. Or 3. The Sanhedrim or Supreme Council, which as was said before, consisted partly of Priests, and partly of wise and learned persons of other tribes, as is confessed by all the Jewish, and most other writers. And so this is added by way of explication, partly to shew that the Priests and Levites here mentioned, as the persons to whom all hard controversies are to be referred, are not all the Priests and Levites which should reside in Jerusalem, but only such of them as were or should be Members of that great Council by whom, together with their fellow-Members of other Tribes these causes were to be decided; partly to intimate, that that great Council, which had the chief and final determination of all the aboveſaid controverſies, was a mixed aſſembly conſiſting of wiſe and good men, ſome Eccleſiaſtical, and ſome Secular; as it was moſt meet it ſhould be, becauſe many of the cauſes which were brought unto them were mixed cauſes. As for the Conjunctive particle, and, that may be taken either disjunctively for or, as it is Exod. 21. 15, 17. compared with Matt. 15. 4. and Numb. 30. 5, 6. compared with Matt. 12. 37. and Lev. 6. 3, 5. 2. Sam. 2. 19, 21. or exegetically, for, that is, or, to wit, as Judg. 7. 24. 1 Sam. 17. 40. and 28. 3. 2 Chron. 35. 14. and ſo the ſence may be, the Prieſts, the Levites, or the Judge, as it is, v. 12. or, the Prieſts, the Levites, that is, the Judge, or the Judges appointed for this work. And though the word Judge be in the ſingular number, and may ſeem to denote one perſon, yet it is only an Enallage, or change of the number, the ſingular for the plural, Judges, which is moſt frequent, as Gen. 3. 2, 7. and 49. 6. 1 Sam. 21. 1. 1 King. 10. 22 and 2 King. 11. 10. compared with 2 Chron. 9. 21. and 23. 9 and in the Hebrew, 1 Chron. 4. 42. where divers Officers are called one Head. And ſo it is moſt probably here. 1. Becauſe the following words which belong to this, run altogether in the plural number, they, they, they, &c. here and v. 10. 11. 2. Becauſe here is the ſame Enallage in the other branch, the ſame perſon or perſons being called the Prieſts here, and the Prieſt, v. 12. 3. Becauſe for the Judge here is put the Judges, Deut. 19. 17. where we have the ſame phraſe uſed upon the ſame or a like occaſion, the Men between the controverſie is ſhall ſtand before the Lord, before the Prieſts and whom the controverſie is ſhall ſtand before the Lord, before the Prieſts and the Judges, which ſhall be in thoſe dayes. Nor is it ſtrange, but very fit and reaſonable, that ſo many perſons being all united in one body, and to give judgment or ſentence by the conſent of all, or the greateſt part ſhould be here called by the name of one Judge, as indeed they were; and for that reaſon the Prieſts are ſpoken of in the plural number, becauſe they were many as alſo the other members of that Aſſembly were, and the Judge in the ſingular number, becauſe they all conſtituted but one Judge. u Heb. The Word, or matter of Judgment, i. e. the true ſtate and right of the cauſe, and what judgment or ſentence ought to be given in it.

10 And thou ſhalt x do according to the ſentence, which they of that place (which the LORD ſhall chooſe) ſhall ſhew thee, and thou ſhalt obſerve to do y according to all that they inform thee:

x (i. e.) Thou ſhalt paſs ſentence: for he ſpeaks to the inferiour Magiſtrates; as was before noted, who were to give ſentence, and came hither to be adviſed about it. y It is very obſervable that this place doth not ſpeak of all controverſies of faith; as if they were to believe every thing which they ſhould teach, but only of ſome particular matters of practice and ſtrife between man and man, to which it is plainly limited, v. 8. And they are not here commanded to believe, but only to do, which is thrice repeated.

z Theſe words are a manifeſt limitation of the foregoing aſſertion, that they were to do according to all that the Judge or Judges informed him. And they ſeem to limit and regulate 1. The judges in their ſentence, that they ſhall not, upon pretence of this Supreme Authority put into their hands, preſume to teach or direct otherwiſe than the Law preſcribes: 2. The People in their obedience: that they ſhall not ſimply obey them in all things, but ſo far forth as their ſentence is according to the Law and Word of God, but not when their commands are evidently contrary to Gods Law, for then, ſay even Popiſh Commentators on this place, they muſt obey God rather than Man. And this cannot be denied by any man of ſenſe, upon ſuppoſition that this place ſpeaks of, and this power given to the Prieſt or Judge reacheth to, all controverſies or queſtions of faith and manners, as the Papiſts would extend it: For put caſe theſe Prieſts or Judges ſhould give a ſentence directly contrary to the expreſs words of Gods Law, Thou ſhalt worſhip a graven image, as Aaron did in the caſe of the calf; thou ſhalt prophane the Sabbath, thou ſhalt diſhonour thy Father and Mother, thou ſhalt Murder, Steal, commit Adultery, &c. I ask, were the People in this caſe bound to do as the Judge determined, or not? If any ſay they were, ſuch a bold and wicked aſſertion muſt needs ſtrike all ſober Chriſtians with horrour; and if they ſay they were not, then this muſt needs be taken for a limitation. But if this place ſpeak onely of particular ſuits between man and man, as is apparent from the notes on v. 8. And in all ſuch caſes although the Judge be hereby confined and tied to his rule in giving the ſentence, yet it ſeems but fit and reaſonable that people ſhould be bound ſimply to acquieſce in the ſentence of their laſt and higheſt Judge, or elſe there would have been no end of ſtrife.

12 And * the man that will do preſumptuouſly a, ‡Heb. not ‡ and will not hearken unto the Prieſt (that ſtandeth to hearken. to Miniſter there before the LORD thy GOD) or unto the judge, even that man ſhall die, and thou ſhalt put away the evil b from Iſrael.

a (i. e.) That will proudly and obſtinately oppoſe the ſentence given againſt him. This is oppoſite to ignorance and errour, Exod. 21. 13, 14. b either 1. The Evil thing, that ſcandal, that pernicious example. Or, 2. That evil, refractory, pernicious perſon, whoſe practice herein tends to the diſſolution of all Government, and the ruine of the Common-wealth of Iſrael.

13 And all the people ſhall hear, and fear, and do no more preſumptuouſly.

14 When thou art come into the land which the LORD thy GOD giveth thee, and ſhalt poſſeſs it, and ſhalt dwell therein, and ſhalt ſay, c I will ſet a King over me c, like as all the nations that are about me:

c He only foreſees and foretells what they would do, but doth not ſeem to approve of it, becauſe when they did this thing for this very reaſon here alledged, he declares his utter diſlike of it, 1 Sam. 8. 7.

15 Thou ſhalt in any wiſe ſet d him king over thee, whom the LORD thy God ſhall chuſe e. One * from a-Jer. 30. mong thy brethren f ſhalt thou ſet king over thee: thou 21. mayeſt not ſet a ſtranger over thee g, which is not thy brother.

God reſerved to himſelf the nomination both of the Family, and of the Perſon. See 1 Sam. 9. 15, & 10. 24. and 16. 12. 1 Chron. 28. 4, 5. f Of the ſame nation and religion; partly becauſe ſuch a perſon was moſt likely to maintain true religion, and to rule with righteouſneſs, gentleneſs, and kindneſs to his ſubjects; and partly that he might be a fit type of Chriſt their ſupream King, who was to be one of their brethren. g To wit, by thy own choice and conſent; but if God by his providence and for their Sins ſhould ſet a ſtranger over them, they might ſubmit to him, as appears from Jer. 38. 17. Ezek. 17. 12. Mat. 22 17.

16 But he ſhall not multiply horſes to himſelf g, nor cauſe the people to return to Egypt h, to the end that he ſhould multiply horſes: foraſmuch as the LORD hath ſaid i unto you, * Ye ſhall henceforth no more return that way k. chap. 28. 68. Iſai. 31. 1.

g To wit, exceſſively, beyond what the State and Majeſty of his place required. Hereby God would prevent many ſins and miſchiefs, as 1. Pride of heart, and contempt of his people. 2. Oppreſſion and Tyranny, and the Impoſition of unneceſſary burdens upon his people. 3. Carnal confidence, which by this means would be promoted. See Pſal. 33. 17. Prov. 21. 31. 4. Much commerce with Egypt, as it here follows, which was famous for horſes, as appears from Exod. 14, 23. 1 King. 10. 26, 28. 2 Chron. 1. 16. and 9. 28. Iſa. 31. 1, 3. Ezek. 17. 5. h Either for habitation; or for trade. This God forbad to prevent. 1. Their unthankfulneſs for their deliverance out of Egypt; 2. Their confederacies with the Egyptians, their truſting to them for aid, which they were very prone to, and their infection by the Idolatry and other manifold wickedneſſes, for which Egypt was infamous. 3. Their multiplication of Horſes, as it here follows, i When or where? Anſw. Either implicitely, when he ſhewed his diſlike of their return to Egypt, as Exod. 13. 17. Numb. 14. 3, 4. or expreſly at this time, The Lord hath now ſaid it to me, and in his name, and by his command declare it to you. k In the way that leadeth to that place.

17 Neither ſhall he multiply wives to himſelf l, that his heart turn not away m: neither ſhall he greatly multiply to himſelf n ſilver and gold.

l As the manner of other Kings was. m To wit, from God and his law, Either 1. To Idolatry and Superſtition, to which women are oft times prone, and eſpecially ſuch women as he was likely to chuſe; even the Daughters of Neighbouring and Idolatrous Kings and Princes, as Salomon did: Or, 2. To other manifold Sins and violations of his duty to his people, either by neglect and contempt of his buſineſs through effeminacy and floath, or by oppreſſing his people, and perverting Juſtice to comply with the vaſt and exorbitant deſires of his Wives. n Left this ſhould lift up his heart in confidence and pride, which God abhorrs, and beget in him a contempt of his people; and leſt it ſhould encline or engage, or enable him to burden his people with immoderate exactions. They are not ſimply forbidden to be rich, if God made them ſo either by the voluntary gifts of their ſubjects, or by the ſpoils of their enemies, which was the caſe of David and Solomon, and Jehoſhaphat, &c. but they are forbidden either inordinately to deſire, or irregularly to procure great riches by grinding the faces of their poor people, or by other wicked arts and courſes, as the manner of their neighbouring Kings was.

18. And it ſhall be when he ſitteth upon the throne of his kingdom, that he ſhall write o him a † a copy of ‡Heb. to this law in a book, out of that which is before the prieſts plicate. the Levites p,

19 And * it ſhall be with him, and he ſhall read there- Joſ. 1. 8. in all the dayes of his life q, that he may learn to fear the LORD his God, to keep all the words of this law, and theſe ſtatutes, to do them:

20 That his heart be not liſted up above his brethren r, and that he turn not aſide from the commandment, to the right hand, or to the left: to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he, and his children in the midſt of Iſrael.

r He intimates, that the Scriptures diligently read and ſtudied, are a powerful and probable means to keep him humble, becauſe they ſhew him that, though a king, he is ſubject to as higher Monarch, to whom he muſt give an account of all his adminiſtrations and actions, and receive from him his ſentence and doom agreeable to their quality, which is ſufficient to abate the pride of the haughtieſt perſon in the world, if he duly conſider it.

CHAP. XVIII.

The Lord is the Prieſts and Levites Inheritance, 1, 2. Their due from the people, 3—5. A Levites portion that came to ſerve voluntarily, 6—8. All unlawful arts prohibited, 9—14. Chriſt is promiſed, whom they muſt hearken to, 15—19. Falſe prophets threatned, 20. The mark of a falſe prophet, 21, 22.

1 THE prieſts, the Levites, and all the tribe of Levi, * ſhall have no part nor inheritance with Iſrael: Numb. 18. 20. Chap. 10. 9. 1 Cor. 9. 13. they *ſhall eat the offerings of the LORD made by fire a, and his inheritance b.

a By which phraſe we here manifeſtly ſee that he means not burnt-offerings, which were wholly conſumed by fire, and no part of them eaten by the Prieſts; but other Sacrifices, whereof part was offered to the Lord by fire, and part was allotted to the Prieſts for their food. b (i. e.) The Lords portion or inheritance, which God had reſerved to himſelf, as Tithes and firſt Fruits, and other oblations diſtinct from thoſe which were made by fire, and ſo theſe two branches make up the whole of that which belonged to God, and was by him given to the Levites.

2 Therefore ſhall they have no inheritance among their brethren: the LORD c is their inheritance, as he hath ſaid unto them.

c (i. e.) The Lords part and right, as was now ſaid.

3 And this ſhall be the prieſts due from the people, from them that offer a ſacrifice d, whether it be ox or ſheep, and they ſhall give unto the prieſt the ſhoulder, and the two cheeks, and the maw e.

d To wit, a Sacrifice of Thankſgiving, or a Peace-Offering, as appears from Levit. 7. 31, 33. which is oft times called ſimply a Sacrifice, as Exod. 18. 12. Levit. 17. 5, 8. Numb. 15. 3. Deut. 12. 27. e Or. How doth this agree with other Texts, in which the ſhoulder and the breaſt, and thoſe parts only are the Prieſts due, not the cheeks and maw? Anſw. 1. Who ſhall tie Gods hands: what if he now makes an addition, and enlargeth the Prieſts commons? Nothing more uſual than for one Scripture to ſupply what is lacking in another, and for a latter Law of God to add a former. 2. The Breaſt may be here omitted, becauſe it is comprehended under the Shoulder, to which it is commonly joined, and with which it was waved before the Lord. 3. The Hebrew word here rendred Maw or Stomach, which was reckoned among dainties by the Ancients, is not to my remembrance uſed elſewhere, and therefore it may have another ſignification, and ſome render it the boſſe, others take it for the uppermoſt part of the ſtomach, which lies under the breaſt.

Num. 18. 12, 24. 4 The * firſt fruit alſo of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thy oil, and the firſt of the fleece of thy ſheep ſhalt thou give him.

Exod. 22. 29. Neh. 10. 35. 5 For * the LORD thy God hath choſen him out of all thy tribes, to ſtand to miniſter in the Name of the LORD f, him, and his ſons for ever.

f (i. e.) Either by Authority and Commiſſion from him, or for his Honour, Worſhip or Service.

6 And if a Levite come from any of thy gates out of all Iſrael, where he ſojourned, and come with all the deſire of his mind unto the place which the LORD ſhall chuſe g;

g Either for any private occaſions, or to ſojourn there for a ſeaſon, or rather with full purpoſe to fix his abode, and to ſpend his whole time and ſtrength in the ſervice of God, as appears by the ſale of his patrimony mentioned, v. 8. It ſeems probable that the ſeveral Prieſts were to come from their Cities to the Temple by turns, before David's time, and it is certain they did ſo after it. But if any of them were not contented with this ſeldom attendance upon God in his Tabernacle, or Temple, and deſired more intirely and conſtantly to devote himſelf to Gods ſervice there, he was permitted ſo to do, becauſe this was an eminent act of piety joyned with ſelf-denial to part with thoſe great conveniencies which he could and did enjoy in the City of his poſſeſſion, and to oblige him-ſelf to more conſtant and laborious work about the Sacrifices, &c.

7 Then he ſhall miniſter in the Name of the LORD his God, as all his brethren the Levites do, which ſtand there before the LORD.

Heb. ſold by the fathers. 8 They ſhall have like portions h to eat, beſide † that which cometh of the ſale of his patrimony i.

h To wit, with their Brethren who were in actual miniſtration: as they ſhare with them in the work, ſo ſhall they alſo in the incouragements. i Though he have an eſtate whereby he may ſubſiſt caſied by the ſale of his Houſe in his City, and his Cattel, and other moveables, yet you ſhall not upon this ground either deny or diminiſh their part of your maintenance. The reaſon of this Law was, partly, becauſe he that waited on the Altar, ought to live by the Altar: and partly becauſe it was fit he ſhould keep his money, wherewith he might redeem what he ſold, if afterwards he ſaw occaſion for it. Heb. Beſides his ſales by the fathers, i. e. Of that which came to him by his Fathers, or, according to the ſale of or, his Fathers houſe: and theſe words may be joyned immediately foregoing, but with the former part of the next word coming in by a kind of parentheſis, in the ſame ſence and order, Beſides that which cometh by the ſale of their goods, ſhall have like portions to eat to what their Brethren have, ſuch as them eating according to his Fathers houſe, i. e. AS family ſhall have with his Brethren the Gephonites who are then miniſtring, and Merarits with the Merarits, &c. and ſo there ſhall be no difference nor change in the appointed courſes by their acceſſion to the number.

9 When thou art come into the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, thou ſhalt not learn to do after the abominations of thoſe nations.

u Sincerely and wholly his, ſeeking him and cleaving to him and to his word alone, and therefore abhorring all commerce and converſations with Devils or their agents, ſuch as were now mentioned.

14 For theſe nations which thou ſhalt ‖ poſſeſs, Or, are hearkened unto obſervers of times, and unto diviners: but as for thee, the LORD thy God hath not ſuffered thee ſo to do x.

x Hath not ſuffered thee to follow thy own vain mind and theſe ſuperſtitious and Diabolical practices, as he hath ſuffered other nations to do, Act. 14. 16. but hath inſtructed thee better by his word and ſpirit, and thereby kept thee from ſuch courſes, and will more fully inſtruct thee by a great Prophet, &c. Or, hath not given it thee, to wit, ſuch perſons to conſult with, but hath given thee prophets to inſtruct thee, and will in due time give thee an eminent prophet as it here follows.

15 * The LORD thy God will raiſe up y unto thee a Joh. 1. 45. prophet z from the midſt of thee, of thy brethren, like Act. 3. 22. unto me, unto him ye ſhall hearken. & 7. 37.

y (i. e.) Will produce and ſend into the world in due time.

z Theſe words may be underſtood ſecondarily concerning the ſucceſſion of Prophets which God would raiſe for the inſtruction of his Church, both becauſe this is alledged as an argument why they need not conſult with diviners, &c. becauſe they ſhould have Prophets at hand whenſoever it was needful, to adviſe them, and becauſe this Prophet is oppoſed to the falſe prophet, and a general rule is hereupon given for the diſcovery of all ſucceeding Prophets whether they be true or falſe, ver. 20, 21, 22. but they are chiefly to be underſtood of Chriſt, as the following words ſhew which do not truly and fully agree to any other; particularly where he is ſaid to be like unto Moſes, which is ſimply denied concerning all other Prophets, Deut. 34. 10. and therefore it is not probable that it ſhould be ſimply affirmed concerning all true Prophets ſucceeding him. But Chriſt was truly, and in all commendable parts like him, in being both a Prophet and a King and a Prieſt and Mediatour, as Moſes was, in the excellency of his Miniſtry and work, in the glory of his miracles, in his familiar and intimate converſe with God, &c. And this place is expounded of Chriſt alone by God himſelf in the New Teſtament, Act. 3. 22. and 7. 37. See alſo Joh. 1. 45. and 6. 14.

16 According to all that thou deſireſt of the LORD thy God in Horeb, in the day of the aſſembly a, ſaying, * Let me not hear again the voice of the LORD my God, * Exod. 20. 19. Heb. 12. neither let me ſee this great fire any more, that I die not.

* Jer. 28. 9.

22 * When a prophet speaketh in the Name of the LORD, if the thing e follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the LORD hath not spoken f, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously g: thou shalt not be afraid of him h:

e Which he gives as a sign of the truth of his prophecy; He means the prediction of some strange and wonderful event, as appears by comparing this with Deut. 13. 1, 2. f The falshood of his prediction shews him to be a false prophet, though the truth and accomplishment of his prediction had not proved him to be a true Prophet, as is evident from Deut. 13. 2, 3. g Impudently affecting his own vain and lying fancies to the God of truth. h (i.e.) Of his predictions or threatnings, so as to be scared from doing thy duty in bringing him to deserved punishment.

2 * Thou shalt separate three cities for thee in the midst of thy land a, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.

a To wit, beyond Jordan, as there were three already appointed on this side Jordan, Numb. 35. 14. He saith, in the midst of the land, either for, in the land, as in the midst of the city, Jer. 52. 25. is the same with that, in the city, 2 Kings. 25. 19. or to design the places, that they should be situated in the midst of the several parts of their land, to which they might conveniently and speedily flee from all the parts of the land.

3 Thou shalt prepare thee a way b, and divide the coasts of thy land (which the LORD thy God giveth thee to inherit) into three parts c, that every slayer may flee thither.

b Distinguish it by evident marks, and make it plain and convenient, to prevent mistakes and delays. c Not into more, because it was fit that these places should, as far as it was possible, be at some considerable distance from the friends of the slain person, left the fight of the manslayer might have provoked their passion and occasioned his ruine.

4 And this is the case of the slayer which shall flee thither, that he may live, whoso killeth his neighbour ignorantly, whom he hated not † in time past.

5 As when a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the ax to cut down the tree: and the † head slippeth from the † helve, and lighteth upon his neighbour that he die, he shall flee unto one of those cities, and live:

6 Lest the avenger of blood pursue the slayer d, while his heart is hot, and overtake him, because the way is long, and † slay him e; whereas he was not worthy of death, inasmuch as he hated him not † in time past.

d This verse is to be joyned with ver. 3. as is evident, the 4th and 5th verses, coming in as a parenthesis, which is usual, in Scripture and other authors. e Which is supposed, but not allowed, as appears from the following words. But the avenger of blood is not to be punished with death for killing the manslayer in case he found him without the borders of the city of refuge after he had been received there, Numb. 35. 26, 27. because then he was guilty of a new crime, to wit, a contempt of Gods ordinance, and a gross neglect of the duty of self-preservation, and therefore deserved death from God, who might permit it to be inflicted by the avenger of blood.

7 Wherefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt separate three cities for thee.

* chap. 12. 20.

8 And if the LORD thy God * enlarge thy coast f (as he hath sworn unto thy fathers) and give thee all the land which he promised to give unto thy fathers:

a Upon a just and necessary cause, as upon great provocation, or for thy own defence.

2 And it shall be when ye are come nigh unto the battel, that the priest b shall approach, and speak unto the people c, b An eminent Priest appointed for this work, and to blow with the holy trumpets, Numb. 10. 9. and 31. 6. c Either successively to one regiment of the army after another, or to some by himself, to others by his brethren or deputies, which accompanied him for that end.

3 And shall say unto them, Hear, O Israel, ye approach proach this day unto battel against your enemies: let not † Heb. be your heart † faint d, fear not, and do not † tremble, tender. neither be ye terrified because of them. † Heb. make haste.

d Heb. be soft or tender. Softness or tenderness of heart towards God is commended, 2 King. 22. 19. but towards enemies it is condemned, here and ver. 8. Levit. 26. 36. 2 Chron. 13. 7. Isa. 7. 4.

4 For the LORD your God is he that goeth with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you.

5 And the officers shall speak unto the people, saying, What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not dedicated it? let him go and return to his house f, lest he die in the battel, and another man dedicate it g.

e Which was done by feasting and thanksgiving to God. See the title of Psal. 3. and Nehem. 12. 27. Heb. hath initiated it, i.e. entred upon it, taken possession of it, dwelt in it. f Lest his heart be set upon it, and thereby he be negligent or timerous in the battel to the scandal and prejudice of others. g And so he should lose and another get the fruit of his labours, which might seem unjust or hard. And God provides even for mens infirmities. But this and the following exceptions are to be understood only of a War allowed by God, not in a War commanded by God, not in the approaching War with the Canaanites, from which even the Bridegroom was not exempted, as the Jewish writers note.

6 And what man is he that hath planted a vineyard h, and hath not yet † eaten of it? let him also go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battel, and another man eat of it. Heb. made it common. Lev. 19. 23, 24.

h This and the former dispensation were generally convenient, but more necessary in the beginning of their settlement in Canaan, for the encouragement of those who should build houses or plant vineyards, which was chargeable to them, and beneficial to the commonwealth. i Heb. made it common, to wit, for the use of himself and family and friends, which it was not till the fifth year, Levit. 19. 23, &c. Per. 31. 5. chap. 28. 30.

7 * And what man is there that hath betrothed k a wife, and hath not taken her? let him go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battel, and another man take her.

k Which was done by a solemn and mutual promise, but not by an actual contract. See Gen. 19. 14. Deut. 22. 23.

8 And the officers shall speak further unto the peop'e: and they shall say, * What man is there that is fearful and faint-hearted? let him go and return unto his house, lest his brethrens heart † faint as well as his heart. Heb. to melt. Deut. 1. 28. Isa. 7. 4.

9 And it shall be when the officers have made an end of speaking unto the people, that they shall make cap tains of the armies † to lead the people l.

† Or rather, as the Hebrew hath it, they shall set or place the captains of the armies in the head or front of the people under their charge, that they may conduct and manage them, and by their example incourage their souldiers But it is not likely they had their captains to make or chuse when they were just going to battel. Num. 14. 18.

10 When thou comest nigh unto a city to fight against it, then * proclaim peace unto it m.

m This seems to be understood not of the cities of the Canaanites, as is manifest from ver. 16, 17, 18. who were under an absolute sentence of utter destruction, Exod. 23. 32, 33. Deut. 7. 2. whence they are blamed that made any league or peace with them, Judg. 2. 2. but of the cities either of other nations who injured or disturbed them, or commenced war against them, or aided their enemies, or oppressed their friends and allies; or of the Hebrews themselves, if they were guilty or abettors of Idolatry or Apostacy from God, or of sedition or rebellion against authority, or of giving protection and defence to capital offenders. See Gen. 14. Judg. 20. 2 Sam. 20. &c.

11 And it shall be, if it make thee answer of peace, and open unto thee, then it shall be, that all the people that is found therein, shall be tributaries unto thee, and they shall serve thee n.

n By their purses, and by their labours too, as appears from 1 King. 9. 15. 2 Chron. 8. 7.

12 And if it will make no peace with thee, but will make war against thee, then thou shalt besiege it.

13 And when the LORD thy God hath delivered it into thine hand, thou shalt smite every male thereof with the edge of the sword o.

o A just punishment of their obstinate refusal of peace offered.

14 But the women, and the little ones p, and * the cattel, and all that is in the city, even all the spoil thereof, shall thou † take unto thy self, and thou shalt eat the spoil of thine enemies, which the LORD thy God hath given thee. Josh. 8. 2. Heb. prey.

p Excused by their sex or age, as not involved in the guilt, nor being likely to revenge their quarrel.

15 Thus shalt thou do unto all the cities which are very far off from thee, which are not of the cities of these nations.

16 But * of the cities of these people which the LORD thy God doth give thee for an inheritance, thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth q: Num. 31. 52. Deut. 7. 2.

q Heb. no soul, i. e. no man, as that word is oft used. Compare Josh. 10. 40. with 11. 14. For the beasts, some few excepted as being under a special curse, were given them for a prey.

17 But thou shalt utterly destroy them, namely, the Hittites, and the Amorites, the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee:

18 That they teach you not to do after all their abominations which they have done unto their gods: so should ye sin against the LORD your God.

19 When thou shalt besiege a city a long time in making war against it, to take it, thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof r, by forcing an ax against them, for thou mayest eat of them, and thou shalt not cut them down (‖ for the tree of the field is mans life 2.) † to employ them in the siege. † Or, for, O man, the tree of the field is to be employed in the siege, as it is in the Hebrew, to go before thy face, i. e. to make fences for thy Security, in the siege. The trees of the field, I here understand not its general signification of all trees including fruit-bearing trees, as that phrase is commonly used, but in its more special and distinct signification, for unfruitful trees, as it is taken Isa. 55. 12. or such as grow only in open fields, such as are ellewhere called the trees of the wood, 1 Chron. 16. 33. Isa. 7. 2. or the trees of the forest, Cant. 2. 3. Isa. 10. 19. which are opposed to the trees of the gardens, Gen. 3. 3, 8. Eccl. 2. 5. Ezek. 31. 9. as the flower of the field, Psal. 103. 15. Isa. 40. 6. and the Lilies of the field, Mat. 6. 28. are opposed to those that grow in Gardens, and are preserved and cultivated by the gardners art and care. And so it is a very proper argument to dissuade from the destroying of fruit-trees, because the wild and unfruitful trees were sufficient for the use of the siege And this sence fitly agrees with the following words, where the concession or grant which here is delivered in more ambiguous terms of the tree of the field is repeated and explained concerning the trees which thou knowest that they be no trees for meat. † Heb. to come from.

20 Only the trees which thou knowest that they be not trees for meat, thou shalt destroy, and cut them down, and thou shalt build bulworks against the city that maketh war with thee, until † it be subdued.

CHAP. XXI.

How to expiate an uncertain murder, 1—9. The usage of a Captive taken to Wife, 10—14. The first-born, though the son of the hated, is not to be disinherited, 15—17. The punishment of a stubborn Son, viz. Death, 18—21. The cursed death of them that are hanged, 22, 23.

1 IF one be found slain in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it, lying in the field a, and it be not known who hath slain him:

a Or, in the city, or any place: only the field is named, as the place where such murders are most commonly committed, and most easily concealed.

2 Then thy elders and thy judges b shall come forth, and they shall measure c unto the cities which are round about him that is slain.

b Those of thy Elders who are Judges: for the latter word explains and restrains the former, the Judges or Rulers of all the neighbouring cities, who were all concerned in this enquiry. c Unless it be evident and confessed which city is nearest, for then measuring was superfluous.

3 And it shall be that the city which is next unto the slain man, even the elders of that city shall take an heifer which hath not been wrought with, and which hath not drawn in the yoke d.

d A fit vicegerent and reprefentative of the murderer, in whose stead it was killed, who by this act hath shewn himself to be a son of Belial, who would not bear the yoke of Gods law. A type also of Christ, who was obliged to no work, and under no yoke, but what he had voluntarily taken upon himself.

4 And the elders of that city shall bring down the heifer unto a rough valley, which is neither eared nor sowen e, and shall strike off the heifers neck f there in the valley.

e Partly to represent the hard and unprofitable and untoured heart of the murderer; and partly that such a desert and horrid place might beget an horrour of murder and of the murderer. f To shew what they would and should have done to the murderer if they had found him.

5 And the priests the sons of Levi shall come near g (for * them the LORD thy God hath chosen to minister * chap. unto him, and to bless in the Name of the LORD) and 10. 8. * by their † word shall every controversie h, and every † Heb. stroke be tried. chap. 17. 8, 9.

g Both to direct them in all the circumstances of action and to † Heb. see that the law was observed, and to bless them in Gods name, mouth. by praying for them, and absolving or pronouncing them guiltless in in this matter. b Not absolutely all manner of controverſies that could poſſibly ariſe, as if their word were to determine whether there were a God or providence or no, whether God ſhould be worſhipped, and his commands obſerved or no, whether Moſes was a true Prophet or an impoſtour, whether Apoſtate and Idolatrous Iſraelites ſhould be puniſhed or no; which is apparently abſurd and ridiculous; but every ſuch controverſie as might ariſe about the matter here ſpoken of; nothing being more uſual than to underſtand univerſall expreſſions in a limited ſenſe; and indeed this is limited and explained by the following words, and every ſtroke, the particle and being put expoſitively; of which inſtances have been formerly given, i. e. every controverſie which ſhall ariſe about any ſtroke, whether ſuch a mortal ſtroke as is here ſpoken of; a murder, which may well be called a ſtroke, as to ſmite is oft uſed for to kill, as Gen. 4. 15. Levit. 24. 17. &c. or any other ſtroke or wound given by one man to another.

6 And all the elders of that city that are next unto the
* See Pſ. 19. 12. ſlain man, * ſhall wash their hands i over the heifer that is beheaded in the valley, i In teſtimony of their innocency. See on Mat. 27. 24.

7 And they ſhall anſwer k, and ſay, Our hands have not ſhed this blood l. neither have our eyes ſeen it m.

k To wit, to the Prieſts who ſhall examine them and determine this controverſie. l This about which the preſent enquiry is made: or this which is here preſent: for it is thought the Corps of the ſlain man was brought into the ſame place where the heifer was ſlain. m Nor have we ſeen or underſtood how or by whom this was done.

8 Be merciful, O LORD, unto thy people Iſrael
* Judg. 9. 24. whom thou haſt redeemed, and * lay not innocent blood † Heb. in the midſt. † unto thy people of Iſraels charge: and the blood ſhall be forgiven them n.

n (i.e.) Not imputed to them nor puniſhed in them: for God is ſom-times ſaid to forgive, when he doth not puniſh, as Pſal. 78. 38. Beſides though there was no mortal guilt in this people, yet there was a ceremonial uncleanneſs in the land, which was to be expiated and forgiven

9 So ſhalt thou put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you, when thou ſhalt do that which is right in the ſight of the LORD.

10 When thou goeſt forth to war againſt thine enemies o, and the LORD thy God hath delivered them into thine hand, and thou haſt taken them captive;

o Of other nations, but not of the Canaanites, for they might not ſpare their women, and much leſs marry them, Exod. 34. 16. Deut. 7. 3.

11 And ſeeſt among the captives a beautiful woman, and haſt a deſire unto her p, that thou wouldeſt have her to thy wife:

p Or, haſt cleaved to her, to wit, in love: or haſt taken delight in her. Which may be a modeſt expreſſion for lying with her, and ſeems probable, becauſe it is ſaid v. 14. that he had humbled her, to wit, by military inſolence when he took her captive, not after he had married her, for then he would have expreſſed it thus, becauſe thou haſt married her, which had been more emphatical than to ſay, becauſe thou haſt humbled her. And here ſeem to be two caſes ſuppoſed, and direction given what to do in both of them, 1. that no did deſire to marry her, of which he ſpeaks ver. 11, 12, 13. 2. that he did not deſire this, or not delight in her, of which he ſpeaks, ver. 14.

12 Then thou ſhalt bring her home to thine houſe,
Or, ſhe ſhall and ſhe ſhall ſhave her head, and † pare her † Heb. make. or do. nails q.

q Either 1. to take off his affections from her by rendring her uncomely and deformed, but then the laſt words muſt not be rendred, ſhall pare her nails, but ſhall nouriſh them or ſuffer them to grow, as the Chaldee, Arabick and divers of the learned Jews and other Interpreters render it. Or 2. to expreſs her ſorrow for the loſs of her father and mother, as it follows ver. 13. it being the antient cuſtom of mourners in moſt nations to ſhave themſelves, and in ſome to pare their nails, in others to ſuffer them to grow. Or rather 3. in token of her renouncing her heatheniſh Idolatry and ſuperſtition, and of her becoming a new woman, and embracing the true religion. Which her captive condition and ſubjection to his will would make her inclinable to do in profeſſion.

13 And ſhe ſhall put the raiment of her captivity
r from off her, and ſhall remain in thine houſe, and bewail her father and mother s a full month: and after that thou ſhalt go in unto her, and be her husband, and ſhe ſhall be thy wife t.

r (i.e.) Either 1. thoſe goodly raiments in which ſhe was when ſhe was taken captive, in ſtead of which ſhe now muſt put on a ſervile habit, as this is generally underſtood, or rather 2. thoſe ſervile and ſordid raiments which were put upon her when ſhe was taken captive, as the manner was to do with captives, as the phraſe it ſelf ſeems to intimate, as priſon-garments, Jer. 52. 33. are ſuch garments as priſoners uſe to wear; and garments of praiſe are praiſe-worthy or glorious garments, and it ſeems harſh to call thoſe garments of captivity, which are made for and generally worn by free perſons only, and which are uſually taken away from perſons when they come into captivity; Add, that this doth not ſeem to be any part or token of her ſorrow, but rather a mending of her condition, and exchanging her ſervile habit for a better and more decent one, which might be, though this were a mourning habit. s Either their death, or, which was in effect the ſame, her final ſeparation from them. Withall this ſignified her alienation from them or from their ſuperſtitious and Idolatrous courſes, and her tranſlation of her love from all other perſons to her husband and to the true religion. Compare Pſal. 45. 11. t Supposing what might very rationally be ſuppoſed of one in her circumſtances, and what ſhe ſignified by the foregoing rites, that ſhe ſhould ſubmit to her husbands Religion, in which caſe the marriage might be tolerable. Or this was a permiſſion and indulgence given to them for the hardneſs of their hearts, as in the caſe of Divorce, Deut. 24. 1. Mat. 19. 8.

14 And it ſhall be, if thou have no delight in her u, Gal. 3. Heb. curſed of God. then thou ſhalt let her go whether ſhe will; but thou ſhalt not ſell her at all for money, thou ſhalt not make merchandiſe of her x, becauſe thou haſt humbled her y.

u Either 1. after thou haſt married her, and ſo this is a permiſſion of a Divorce, which being indulged towards an Iſraeliteſh woman, was not likely to be denied towards a ſtranger. Or rather 2. before thy marriage: for it is not probable, that God having given him competent time for the trial of his affections to her before he was permitted to marry her, would ſuffer him upon ſo ſlight an occaſion within a day or two after ſo ſolemn a contract, to ſend her away: nor is there a word ſpoken here of any Divorce. x (i. e.) Make gain of her, either by uſing her to thy own ſervile works, or by proſtituting her to the luſts or to the ſervice of others. y (i.e.) Lain with her as this phraſe is oft uſed, as Gen. 34. * Deut. 22. 29. Judg. 19. 24. Exod. 22. 16, 17.

15 If a man have two wives z, one beloved, and another hated a, and they have born him children, both the beloved, and the hated: and if the firſt-born ſon be hers that was hated:

z Either 1. both together: which practice, though tolerated, is not hereby made lawful, but only proviſion is made for the children in that caſe. Or 2. one after another. a Comparatively, i.e. leſs loved, as Gen. 29. 31. Mat. 6. 24. Luk. 14. 26.

16 Then it ſhall be, when he * maketh his ſons to Or, to inherit. inherit that which he hath, that he may not b make the firſt-born ſon of the beloved, firſt-born, before the ſon c of the hated, which is indeed the firſt-born.

b It is not lawful, becauſe contrary to the rights and law of nature. c Or, before the face of the ſon, i. e. in his life time, as this phraſe is underſtood, Gen. 11. 28. and 16. 12. and 25. 18. And when this phraſe is rendred before another it ſignifies only in the preſence of another, but never notes the preference of one perſon to another, which the Hebrews expreſs in another manner. And this may be added to intimate, that if the eldeſt ſon were dead and had left a child, the father was free to give the right of his firſt-born unto his ſecond ſon rather than to the child of the eldeſt. Or this phraſe may be an aggravation of the fact, whereby his father did in a manner ſpit in his face, and faſten a reproach upon him in his very ſight and preſence.

17 But he ſhall acknowledge d the ſon of the hated for the firſt born, by giving him a double portion e of all † that he hath: for he is the * beginning of his ſtrength; † Heb. to him. the right of the firſt-born is his.

d (i.e.) Make it appear that he owns him. e For the phraſe ſee 2 King. 2. 9. Zach. 13. 8. and for the thing ſee Gen. 25. 31. 1 Chron. 5. 1. f (i.e.) The firſt evidence of his manly ſtrength and ability for procreation.

18 If a man have a ſtubborn and rebellious ſon, which will not obey the voice of his father, or the voice of his mother, and that when they have chaſtened him, will not hearken unto them:

19 Then ſhall his father and his mother g lay hold of him, and bring him out unto the elders of his city h, and unto the gate of his place, g The conſent of both is required to prevent the abuſe of this Law to cruelty. And it cannot reaſonably be ſuppoſed that both would agree without manifeſt neceſſity and the ſons abominable and incorrigible wickedneſs, in which caſe it ſeems a fit and righteous law, becauſe the crime of Rebellion againſt his own Parents was ſo high in it ſelf, and did ſo fully ſignifie what a pernicious Member, and ſon of Belial he would be in the Commonwealth of Iſrael, who had diſſolved all his Natural Obligations. Yet the Jews ſay this Law never put in practice, and therefore it might be made for terrour and prevention, and to render the authority of Parents more ſacred and powerful. h Which was a ſufficient caution to preſerve Children from the malice of any hard-hearted Parents, becauſe theſe Elders were firſt to examine the cauſe with all exactneſs, and then to pronounce the ſentence.

20 And they ſhall ſay unto the elders of his city, This our ſon i is ſtubborn and rebellious i, he will not obey our voice: he is a glutton, and a drunkard k:

i Adds incorrigibleneſs to all his wickedneſs. k Under which two offences others of a like or worſe nature are comprehended by a Synechdoche.

21 And all the men of his city ſhall ſtone him l with ſtones that he die: ſo ſhalt thou put evil away from among you, and all Iſrael ſhall hear, and fear.

l Which was the puniſhment appointed for blaſphemers and Idolaters; which if it ſeem ſevere, it is to be conſidered that Parents are in Gods ſtead, and entruſted in good meaſure with his authority over their Children, and that Families are the matter and foundation of the Church and Commonwealth, and they who are naughty Members and Rebellious children in them, do commonly prove the bane and plague of theſe; and therefore no wonder if they are nipped in the bud.

22 And if a man have committed a ſin worthy of death, and he be put to death, and thou hang him on a tree m:

m Which was done after the Malefactor was put to death ſome other way, this publick ſhame being added to his former puniſhment. See Joſ. 7. 25. and 8. 29. and 10. 26. 2 Sam. 4. 12.

23 His body ſhall not remain all night upon the tree,
Gal. 3. but thou ſhalt in any wiſe bury him that day (for * he that is hanged, is † accurſed of God n) that thy land be not Heb. curſe of defiled o, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

n (i.e.) He is in a ſingular manner curſed and puniſhed by Gods appointment with a moſt ſhameful kind of puniſhment, as this was held among the Jews and all Nations; and therefore this puniſhment may ſuffice for him, and there ſhall not be added to it that of lying unburied, which was another great calamity, Jer. 16. 4. And this curſe is here appropriated to thoſe that are hanged, partly becauſe this puniſhment was inflicted only upon the moſt notorious and publick Offenders, and ſuch as brought the curſe of God upon the community, as Numb. 25. 4. 2 Sam. 21. 6. and principally to foreſignifie that Chriſt ſhould undergo this execrable puniſhment, and be made a curſe for us, Gal. 3. 13. which though it was yet to come in reſpect to them, yet was preſent unto God and in his eye at this time. And ſo this is delivered with reſpect unto Chriſt, as many other paſſages of Scripture manifeſtly are. o To wit, morally, either by inhumanity towards the dead: or rather by ſuffering the monument or memorial of the mans great wickedneſs, and of Gods curſe, to remain publick and viſible a longer time than God would have it, whereas it ſhould be put out of ſight, and buried in oblivion.

Becauſe elſe the obligation of this Law had been uncertain, ſeeing men could not ordinarily tell whether the ſtraying Ox or Sheep belonged to a Jew or to a ſtranger. 3. Becauſe this was a duty of common juſtice and charity, which the Law of Nature taught even Heathens, and it is the ſame that the Law of God delivered to the Jews ſhould have leſs charity in it than the law of nature given to the Gentiles. b (i.e.) Diſſemble or pretend that thou doſt not ſee them; or neglect or paſs them by as if thou hadſt not ſeen them.

2 And if thy brother be not nigh unto thee c, or if thou know him not d, then thou ſhalt bring it unto thine own houſe e, and it ſhall be with thee until thy brother ſeek after it, and thou ſhalt reſtore it to him again f.

c Which may make the duty more troubleſome or chargeable. d Which implies, that if they did know the owner, they ſhould reſtore it to him. e To be uſed like thine own Cattel. f The owner, as it may be preſumed, paying the charges.

3 In like manner ſhalt thou do with an Aſs, and ſo

4 Thou ſhalt not ſee thy brothers aſs, or his ox fall down by the way, and hide thy ſelf from them: thou ſhalt ſurely help him h to lift them up again.

5 The woman ſhall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither ſhall a man put on a womans garment: for all that do ſo, are abomination unto the LORD thy God.

i To wit, ordinarily or unneceſſarily, for in ſome caſes this may be lawful, as to make an eſcape for ones life. Now this is forbidden, partly for decency ſake, that men might not confound, nor ſeem to confound thoſe Sexes which God hath diſtinguiſhed, that all appearance of evil might be avoided, ſuch change of garments carrying a manifeſt umbrage or ſign of ſoftneſs and effeminacy in the man, of arrogance and impudency in the woman, of lightneſs and peruleney in both; and partly to cut off all ſuſpicions and occaſions of evil, which this practice opens a wide door unto.

6 If a birds neſt chance to be before thee in the way, in any tree, or on the ground, whether they be young ones, or eggs, and the dam ſitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, thou ſhalt not take the dam with the young.

7 But thou ſhalt in any wiſe let the dam go k, and take the young to thee, that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayeſt prolong thy days.

k Partly for the Birds ſake, which ſuffered enough in the loſs of its young; for God would not have cruelty exerciſed towards the brute Creatures: and partly for mens ſake to reſtrain their wantonneſs and coveteouſneſs that they ſhould not monopolize all to themſelves, but might leave the hopes of a future ſeed to others.

8 When thou buildeſt a new houſe, then thou ſhalt make a battlement l for thy roof, that thou bring not blood m upon thine houſe, if any man fall from thence.

l (i.e.) A fence or breaſtwork, becauſe the roofs of their houſes were made flat or plain, that men might walk on them. See Judg. 16. 27. 1 Sam. 9. 25. 2 Sam. 11. 2. Neh. 8. 16. Mat. 10. 27. m (i.e.) The guilt of blood, by a mans fall from the top of thy houſe, though thy neglect of this neceſſary proviſion.

With divers kinds of ſeed mixed and ſowed together Diverſe ſeeds of between the rows of Vines in thy Vineyard: which was forbidden thy ſeed. to be done in the Field, Levit. 19. 19. and here, in the Vineyard. Or 2. With any kinds of ſeed differing from that of the Vine, which would produce either Herbs, or Corn, or Fruit-bearing Trees, whoſe fruit might be mingled with the fruit of the Vines. Now this and the two following precepts, though in themſelves ſmall and trivial, are given, according to that time and ſtate of the Church, for documents or inſtructions in greater matters, and particularly to commend to them ſimplicity and ſincerity in all their carriages towards God and Man, and to forbid all mixtures of their inventions with Gods Inſtitutions in Doctrine or Worſhip. o Heb. The fulneſs of thy ſeed, i. e. that ſeed when it is ripe and full. See Exod. 22. 29. Prov. 18. 27. p Either 1. Naturally corrupted or marred, whileſt one ſeed draws away the fat and nutritious part of the Earth from the other, and ſo both are ſtarved and ſpoiled. Or rather 2. Legally and Morally, as being prohibited by Gods Law, and thereby made unclean; as on the contrary, things are ſanctified by Gods word; allowing and approving them, 1 Tim. 4. Heb. be ſanctified, or, be as a ſanctified thing, by an Effuſis of the particle, as, i. e. unlawful for the owners uſe, as things conſecrated were. Or, ſanctifying is put for polluting, by a figure called Enantiophemiſmus, which is frequent in Scripture, as when bleſſing is put for curſing, as Job 2. 9. and in other Authors, as when they uſe good for execrable.

10 Thou ſhalt not plow with an ox and an aſs together q.

q Either 1. Becauſe the one was a clean beaſt, the other unclean; whereby God would teach men to avoid polluting themſelves by the touch of unclean perſons or things, 2 Cor. 6. 14. Or 2. Becauſe of their unequal ſtrength, whereby the weaker, the aſs, would be oppreſſed and over-wrought. Or 3. For myſtical reaſons, of which ſee on v. 9. and Levit. 19. 19.

Lev. 19. of woolen and linnen together.

12 Thou ſhalt make thee * fringes r upon the four r Or Laces, or Strings, partly to bring the commands of God to their remembrance, as it is expreſſed, Numb. 15. 38. and partly as Matt. 23. 5. a publick profeſſion of their Nation and Religion, whereby they might be diſcerned and diſtinguiſhed from ſtrangers, that ſo they might be more circumſpect to behave themſelves as became the people of God, and that they ſhould not be aſhamed to own their God and Religion before all the World. s Theſe words are either reſtrictive to the upper Garment wherewith the reſt were covered; or argumentative, why they ſhould uſe theſe things, becauſe here with they might poſſibly faſten their Garments, and prevent the uncovering themſelves, as might eaſily happen, when they were no Breeches, but only looſe Garments.

13 If any man take a wife, and go in unto her t, and hate her,

t (i.e.) Hath had carnal knowledge of her.

14 And give occations of ſpeech u againſt her, and bring up an evil name upon her, and ſay, I took this woman, and when I came to her, I found her not a maid;

u Heb. of words, i. e. of diſcourſes or diffamations.

15 Then ſhall the father of the damſel, and her mother, take and bring forth the tokens of the damſels virginity x, unto the elders of the city, in the gate.

x (i.e.) The linnen cloth or ſheet, as is expreſſed v. 17. which in the firſt congreſs was infected with blood, as is natural and uſual. But becauſe this is not now conſtant, the enemies of Scripture take occaſion to quarrel with this Law, as unreaſonable and unjuſt, and ſuch as might oppreſs the innocent, and hence take occaſion to reject the Holy Scriptures. It were much more reaſonable for theſe men either to expound this place metaphorically of producing thoſe proofs and teſtimonies of her virginity which ſhould be as ſatisfactory as if that cloth were produced, as ſome of the Jews underſtand it, or modeſtly to acknowledge their own Ignorance in this, as they are forced to do in many other things, and not impudently to conclude it is inſoluble, becauſe they cannot reſolve it. But there is no need of ſuch general anſwers, many things may be particularly ſaid for the vindication of this law. 1. That it was neceſſary for that people, becauſe of their hard-heartedneſs towards their Wives, and their levity and deſire of change of Wives. 2. That either this tryal, or at leaſt the proof of her Virginity, was to be taken preſently after the day of marriage, and that proof was to be admitted afterwards upon occaſion. 3. That this Law was ſeldom or never put in execution, as the Jews note, and ſeems to be made for terrour and caution to Husbands and Wives, as many other Laws have been in like caſes. 4. That that God who gave this Law, did by his Providence govern all Affairs, and rule the Tongues and Hearts of Men, and therefore would doubtless take care so to order matters that the innocent should not suffer by this means, which he could prevent many ways. 5. That there is a great difference in times and climates. Who knows not that there are many things now by our Moderns thought uncertain or false, which by the Ancient Physicians were thought and affirmed to be true and certain in their times and Countreys, and that many signs of Diseases and other things do generally hold true in those more Southernly and warmer parts of the World, which are many times deceitful in our Northern and colder Climates? 6. That this very way of tryal of Virginity hath been used not only by the Jews, but also by the Arabians and Egyptians, as is affirmed by divers Learned Writers, among whom yet it was more doubtful and hazardous than among the Jews, who might promise to themselves that God would guide the execution of his own Law to a just and good issue. 7. That this sign if it were uncertain in persons of riper years, yet it may be reasonably thought certain and constant in Virgins of young and tender age, and that the Jews did ordinarily marry their Daughters when they were about 12 or 13 years old, as is confessed, as making haste to roll away that reproach which they thought to be in an unmarried state.

16 And the damsels father shall say unto the elders, I gave my daughter unto this man to wife, and he hateth her:

17 And lo, he hath given occasions of speech against her, saying I found not thy daughter a maid: and yet these are the tokens of my daughters virginity: and they shall spread the cloth before the elders of the city.

18 And the elders of that city shall take that man, and chastise him x.

x Either 1. By the following mulct. Or, 2. By severe reproofs, which that word oft signifies. Or, 3. By stripes, as is expressed, Deut. 25. 2, 3. Which is not strange, considering how pretious a thing ones good Name is, of which he endeavoured to deprive his Wife.

19 And they shall amerce him in an hundred shekels of silver, and give them unto the father of the damsel y because he hath brought up an evil name upon a virgin of Israel: and she shall be his wife, he may not put her away all his days z.

y Because this was a reproach to his family, and to himself, because such a miscarriage of his daughter would have been ascribed to his evil education. z Which seems to have been his design in this false accusation, and therefore that liberty of a divorce which is permitted to others, Deut. 24. 1. shall be denied to him.

20 But if this thing be true, and the tokens of virginity be not found for the damsel:

21 Then they shall bring out the damsel to the door of her fathers house, and the men of her city shall stone her with stones that she die a, because she hath wrought folly in Israel, to play the whore in her fathers house: so * shalt thou put evil away from among you.

* Chap. 13. 5.

a 22. Why should she die when her crime was only Fornication, which was not punished in a woman with death, Exod. 22, 16, 17: infra. Because there was not only Fornication in this case, as Exod. 22. but this was accompanied with deep dissimulation and injury to her Husband in the false profession of Virginity, and it might be presumed that the committed this folly after she was betrothed to him, and therefore so obstinately denied it, as knowing the danger of it in that case; Or God ordered it thus for the honour and custody of the matrimonial bed from all defilement, that she, who being defiled before she was married or betrothed, and therefore not punishable by death, yet if she should presume to carry her defilement into the married estate with a pretence of Virginity, the should then be put to death.

* Lev. 20. 10. 22 * If a man be found lying with a woman married b to an husband, then they shall both of them die: both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman: so shalt thou put away evil from Israel.

b To be convicted of this fault, though not taken in the very act.

23 If a damsel that is a virgin be betrothed unto an husband, c and a man find her in the city, and lie with her:

c For by this betrothing he had actually engaged her self to another man, and was in some sort his Wife, and therefore is sometimes so called, as Gen. 29. 21 Mat. 1. 20.

24 Then ye shall bring them both out unto the gate of that city, and ye shall stone them with stones, that they die: the damsel because she cried not d, being in the city; and the man because he hath humbled his neighbors wife: so thou shalt put away evil from among you.

d And therefore is justly presumed to have consented to it.

25 But if a man find a betrothed damsel in the field, and the man force her e, and lie with her: then the man only that lay with her shall die

e Which was to be examined and determined by the consideration of all the circumstances.

26 But unto the damsel thou shalt do nothing; there is in the damsel no sin worthy of death: for as when a man riseth against his neighbour and slayeth him, even so is this matter f.

f Nor an act of choice, but of force and constraint.

27 For he found her in the field, and the betrothed damsel cried g, and there was none to save her.

g Which is in that case to be presumed; charity obliging us to believe the best till the contrary be manifest.

28 * If a man b find a damsel that is a virgin, which is not betrothed, and lay hold on her i, and lie with her, and they be found: * Exod. 22. 16.

b (i.e.) An unmarried man, as appears, 1. From his obligation to marry the person he abused, which it is not probable would have been imposed upon him had he been married. 2. Because if the man had been married, this had been adultery, and so had been punished with death. i Which notes some kind of force or artifice whereby she was overpowred; whereas Exod. 22. 16. she was enticed, which implies consent, and therefore the man doth here receive a greater punishment, because he used hostile violence towards her, which was the greater sin.

29 Then the man that lay with her shall give unto the damsels father fifty shekels of silver k, and she shall be his wife l, because he hath humbled her: he may not put her away all his days m.

k Besides the dowry, as Philo the Learned Jew notes, which is here omitted, because that was common and customary, and because it might easily be gathered out of Exod. 22. 16. it being sufficient here to mention what was peculiar to this case. l To wit, if her Father consent to it, which is to be supposed out of Exod. 22. 16. it being not likely that the Father should lose his paternal right of disposing his Child when she was in some sort forced, rather than when she was inticed. m Which others were suffered to do, Deut. 24. 1. and he who inticed the maid, Exod. 22. 16. was not prohibited to do.

30 * A man shall not take n his fathers wife o, nor discover his fathers skirt p. * Lev. 18. 8.

n To wife. So this respects the state, and the next branch speaks of the act only. o His Mother in law. See Levit. 18. 8. and 20. 11. 1 Cor. 5. 1. p (i. e.) The skirt of the mothers Garment, i. e. the nakedness, which is here called his fathers skirt, because his Father and Mother were one flesh, or because his Father alone had the right to uncover it. The phrase is taken from the ancient custom or ceremony of the Bridegrooms spreading the skirt of his Garment over the bride, to signifie his right to her, and authority over her, and his obligation to the marriage duty. See Ruth. 3. 9. Ezek. 16. 8.

CHAP. XXIII.

Who are to be excluded from the congregation, 1—6. An Edomite and Egyptian not to be abhorred, and why, 7. 8. No uncleanness to be in the camp, 9—14. No filthiness, 15. No abominable sacrifice must be, 18. No usury, but to strangers, 19, 20. Vows must be kept, 21—23. The liberty that was lawful in their neighbours field or vineyard, 24, 25.

1 HE that is wounded in the stones a, or hath his privy members cut off, shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD b.

a Heb. wounded by compression or attrition or contusion, to wit, of the stones, which was the course the Gentiles took with Infants to make them Eunuchs. And these Eunuchs and Bastards, v. 2. seem to be not only those of other Nations, as some understand it, without any foundation for such restriction, but also of the Israelites, the reason of this Law being the same in all, to wit, that God would bring into disgrace those heathenish practices of making Eunuchs, and getting Bastards, which doubtless he would especially do among his own people. b Which phrase cannot be understood, so that they might not come into the Church, or Holy Assemblies to worship God, to pray, or hear, &c. because Proselytes of any Nation being admitted to common Church-privileges, no less than the Jews, (as is evident from Exod. 12. 48. Levit. 22. 18. Numb. 9. 14. and 15. 15.) it were absurd to think that any of the Israelites, for such a natural or involuntary defect, should be shut out from all Gods ordinances; nor so that they were to be cast out of the musser-roll of Gods people, or to lose the Priviledges common to all Israelites, to wit, the benefit of the year of release or Jubile; which it is not probable the Israelites were to forfeit meerly for this unculpable imperfection; but either, 1. That they should not be incorporated into the Body of Israel by marriage; for so this phrase may seem to have been understood by the whole Congregation of Israel, Nehem. 13. 1, 2, 3, 23, 24, 25. Although at that time the Government was in part in the hands of such persons as are here mentioned, v. 3. or of their children, seeing it is apparent from Ezra 10. that many Priests and Levites and other Officers and Rulers of Israel were married to strange Women, whose issue are by this Law excluded from all share in the Government, and for that, among other reasons, Kimchi separated them from Israel by vertue of the Law here following. Or 2. That they should not be admitted to Honours and Offices either in the Church or Commonwealth of Israel, and so the congregation of the Lord doth not here signifie, as commonly it doth, the body of the people, but the society of the Elders or Rulers of the people, who, as they represent the whole Congregation, and act in their name, and for their service and good, so they are sometimes called by the name of the Congregation, as Num. 35. 12, 25. 25. Jos. 20. 6, 9. 1 King. 8. 5. compared with v. 1, 2, 3. and 1 Chron. 13. 1, 2, 4. and 29. 1, 10, 20. compared with 1 Chron. 28. 1. and 29. 6. and of the congregation of God, as it is in the Hebrew of Psal. 82. 1. Howsoever, seeing they are oft called the congregation, they may very well be called in a special manner the congregation of the Lord, because they were appointed by God, and act in his name and stead, and for his work and service, and did also ofte assemble near the Tabernacle where God was eminently present. Add to this, that the Hebrew word, Kahal, generally signifies a Congregation or Company of men met together, and therefore is cannot so conveniently be meant of all the body of the people, which could never meet in one place, but of the chief Rulers, which frequently did so. Nor is it strange that Eunuchs are excluded from government, partly because such persons are commonly observed to want that that courage which is necessary for a Governour, Exod. 18. 21. and partly because as such persons ordinarily were despiteable, so the Office and Authority in their hands was likely to be exposed to the same contempt.

2 A bastard c shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD: even to his tenth generation d shall he not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

c So the word is commonly rendred, and so it notes a person base-born, or born in Fornication or Adultery, or by incestuous or any prohibited mixtures of man and woman. Obj. 1. This Law seems harsh, and too severe for the innocent Bastard. Anſ. 1. It was only an exclusion from Government, which was a tolerable burden. 2. It was a necessary caution to prevent and brand the sin of uncleanness, to which the Jews were more than ordinarily prone. Obj. 2. Pharez and Jephthe were both Bastards, yet advanced to great Honour and Authority. Anſ. God gives laws to us, and not to himself; and therefore he might, when he saw fit, confer what favour or power he pleased upon any such person, as he did to these. But some add, that the Hebrew word mamzer signifies not every Bastard, but a Bastard born of any strange woman, as the word may seem to intimate; and as such persons generally seem to have been, because of that special provision, that there should be no where of the daughters of Israel, as it is here below, v. 17. d Or, his tenth generation, as it is in the Hebrew, and so in the following verses.

3 * An Ammonite, or Moabite e shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to their tenth generation shall they not enter into the congregation of the LORD for ever f. * Neh. 13.

e This may be understood either 1. Of the Males only, or the children of such fathers, as Interpreters commonly take it. Or rather 2. Of Females also, or of all that were born either of such Fathers or Mothers, as may be gathered from Ezra 10. and Neh. 13. where the Children of strange Wives were seperated from Israel no less than the Children of strange Fathers. And it is an allowed maxim, that the birth follows the belly. And whereas the Children of Rahab and Ruth are produced to the contrary, it may be said as it was before, that these were extraordinary instances, and that God when he pleased might exempt any particular person of them from this curse, though the Israelites might not do so. f So it seems to note the immutability and perpetuity of this Law, that it should be invilably observed in all succeeding ages, and not dispensed with for any merit in the persons, or any pretence whatsoever. But why then should this clause be added only here, seeing the foregoing Laws are as inviolable as this? It seems therefore to extend the duration of this exclusion of them from the Congregation of the Lord beyond what was said at first, and to be added by way of aggravation, even to their tenth generation shall they not enter——yea, even for ever; i. e. they shall never enter, as it is expressed, without any mention of the tenth generation, Neh. 13. 1. that they shall not come into the Congregation of God for ever.

g As the manner of those times was to wait and provide for strangers and travellers, see Gen. 14. 18. and 18. 2, 3. and 19. 1, 2. Judg. 19. 18, 19, 20, 21. which was the more necessary, because in those times and countries there were no such publick houses of entertainment, as now there are among us. Their fault then was unmercifulness to strangers and pilgrims, and afflicted persons, which was aggravated both by their relation to the Israelites, as being the children of Lot, and by the special kindness of God, and of the Israelites to them, in not fighting against them, as they had just occasion to do, and as they did by others, Deut. 2. Obj. 1. How doth this agree with Deut. 2. 28. 29. where the Moabites which dwelt in Ar are said to have sold them meat and drink? Anſ. 1. It is one thing voluntarily to meet them, and kindly to relieve them with bread and water, which they are here denied to have done, and a quite differing thing to sell them bread and water when they are upon their very borders, and their own interest forced them to do so. 2. It may seem that it was only those Moabites that dwelt in Ar did so, as is said Deut. 2. 29. and that all the rest of the people neglected or refused to do it; and therefore the sin being so general and national, no wonder if the punishment be so too. 3. These and the following words, both here and Nehem. 13. 1. are to be taken distributively, and this first member of the verse belongs to the Ammonites, who did not meet them with bread, &c. and the later part to the Moabites, who, together with the Midianites, but not with the Ammonites, hired Balaam, &c.

5 Nevertheless the LORD thy God would not hearken unto Balaam; but the LORD thy God turned the curse into a blessing unto thee h because the LORD thy God loved thee.

h (i.e.) Forced Balaam to bless thee, who was hired and inclined to curse thee, if possibly he could.

6 Thou shalt not seek their peace i, nor their † prosperity all thy days for ever. † Heb. good.

i (i.e.) Make no Contracts either by Marriages or Leagues, or commerce with them, but rather shalt constantly keep a jealous eye over them, as enemies who will watch every opportunity to enfnare or disturb thee. This counsel was now the more necessary, because a great part of the Israelites lived beyond Jordan in the borders of those people, and therefore God sets up this wall of partition betwixt them, as well knowing the mischief of bad Neighbours, and Israel's proneness to receive infection from them. Each particular Israelite is not hereby forbidden to perform any Office of humanity to them, but the body of the Nation are forbidden all friendly and familiar converſation with them.

7 Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite k, for he is thy brother l: thou shalt not abhor an Egyptian, because thou wast a stranger in his land m.

k The children of Esau, only the Amalekites are excepted by 19. 1 By Esau, Jacob's Brother. m And distst receive habitation, protection and provision from them a long time, which kindness they must not forget for their following persecution. It is ordinary with great men and others, that one injury or offence blots out the remembrance of twenty courtesies; but God doth not deal so with us, nor will he have us to deal so with others, but commands us to overlook and forget injuries, and to remember kindnesses.

8 The children that are begotten of them, shall enter into the congregation of the LORD in their third generation n.

n Supposing their Grand-father, or great Grand-father turned Proselyte, and the children continue in that faith received by such ancestors.

9 When the host goeth forth against thine enemies then keep thee from every wicked thing o.

o Then especially take heed, because that it a time and state of confusion and licentiousness; when, as one said, the Laws of God and Man cannot be heard for the noise of Arms; and because the success of thy Arms and Enterprizes depends upon God's blessing, which wicked men have no reason to expect; and because thou dost then carry thy life in thy hand, and therefore shalt need to be well prepared for Death and Judgment.

p Of which see, Levit. 15. 4. 16, 17. or by uncleanness of any like kind, one kind being here, as oft, put for all. q Why doth this uncleanness oblige a man to go out of the Camp, when it did not oblige him to such a removal, Levit. 15? Anſ. 1. It is not unreasonable if they were obliged to greater strictness and purity when they were undertaking so difficult and dangerous a work. 2. There is a manifest reason of the difference, because in their houses they had private Chambers, where they could in such cases keep themselves from converse with others, which was in the Camp their convenience were so small, and their occasions of action so many, that it was very hard for his fellow-Soldiers that continued with him in the same Tent, or part of the Camp, to avoid the touching of him, which yet was infectious, Levit. 15. 7, 22.

11 But it shall be, when evening † cometh on, he shall † Heb. washeth himself with water: and when the sun is down, he shall come into the camp again. washed.

12 Thou shalt have a place also without the camp, whither thou shalt go forth abroad r.

r To wit, to ease thy self, as it follows, v. 13.

13 And thou shalt have a paddle r upon thy weapon: and it shall be when thou † wilt ease thy self abroad, thou † Heb. shalt dig therewith, and shalt turn back, and cover that that is fallen down. which cometh from thee s.

r The nature of which may be known from the use, which here follows. s Partly to prevent the annoyance of our selves or others; partly to prudence and exercise Modesty and natural Honesty; and principally that by such outward rites they might be inured to the greater reverence of the Divine Majesty, and the greater caution to avoid all real and moral uncleanness, especially now when it was most necessary so to do.

14 For the LORD thy God walketh in the midst of thy camp t to deliver thee, and to give up thine enemies before thee: therefore shall thy camp be holy, that he see no † unclean thing in thee, and turn away from thee. † Heb. nakedness of.

t Either because the Ark was commonly present with them, or any thing at least some of the holy Instruments, which were pledges of God's presence: or, because God had promised to go forth with them, when they engaged in a just and necessary war.

15 * Thou shalt not deliver unto his master the servant which is escaped from his master unto thee u. * 1 Sam. 30. 15.

u This is not to be underflood universally, as if all servants that flee from their masters, though without any sufficient cause or colour of justice, might be detained from them by any person to whom they fled for refuge, for this is apparently contrary to all the Laws of Religion and Justice and Charity, and would open a door to infinite disorders and mischiefs; but it is to be underflood, 1. Of the Servants of Strangers, because it follows, v. 16. to dwell with thee, even among you, which shows that he had dwelt with and belonged to another people. 2. Of such as belonged to the Canaanites, or other neighbouring Nations, because if he had lived in remote Countries, it is not probable that he would flee so far to avoid his Master, or that his Master would follow him so far to recover him. And for the Canaanites this sentence was most just, because both they and their seats were all forfeited to God and to Israel, and whatsoever they enjoyed was by special indulgence. And for the other Neighbours it may seem just also, partly, because some of them were within the larger limits of the land belonging to Israel by God's grant or deed of gift, Gen. 15. 18. Jos. 1. 4. partly because by their hostile carriages they had given Israel a just pretence to much more of theirs, than a few Servants that might possibly run away from their Masters; and especially because such Masters and Servants of theirs and other Nations are unquestionably at the disposal of the Lord their Maker and Sovereign Ruler. 3 Of such as upon enquiry appear to have been unjustly oppressed by their Masters, as is implied by that phrase of his, making an escape, which supposeth a deliverance from danger or vexation. Now it is not strange nor unjust, if the great God, who hates all Tyranny, and stiles himself the refuge of the oppressed, doth interpose his authority and help to rescue such persons from their cruel Masters, who otherwise would be too strong for them. 4. Of such as came to them out of a desire to embrace the true Religion, which possibly his Master perceiving, endeavoured by force to restrain him from, as it may be probably thought from his chusing and liking to live among the Israelites, expressed v. 16. Now if this great and supreme Master, to whom all other Masters are but Servants, and they and their state are absolutely in his power, shall receive and protect one that gives up himself to his Service against the Will of the under-Master, who in this case rebels against his Sovereign Lord, what shadow is there of injustice in the case?

16 He shall dwell with you, even among you in that place which he shall chuse, in one of thy gates where it † liketh him best: thou shalt not oppress him e.

e Taking advantage from his low and afflicted condition to be unreasonable or injurious to him.

17 There shall be no ‖ whore f of the daughters of Israel g, nor a Sodomite h of the sons of Israel.

f No common prostitute, such as were tolerated and encouraged by the Gentiles, and used even in their religious worship. g Nor that such practices were allowed to the strangers among them, as is evident from many Scriptures and Reasons, but that it was in a peculiar manner, and upon special reasons, forbidden to them, as being much more odious in them than in strangers. Though the words may be rendred among the daughters, and so in the following clause, among the sons, for the Hebrew bem is sometimes used in that sense, as Numb. 32. 22. Psal. 31. 12. and so it notes that none of that sort should be permitted among them, whether Jews or Strangers. h Or buggerer, who defileth or sufferth himself to be defiled with mankind. See Gen. 19. 5. Levit. 18. 22. 1 Kings. 14. 24. and 22. 47. Rom. 1. 27.

18 Thou shalt not bring the hire of a whore g, or the price of a dog h into the house of the LORD thy God for any vow i: for even both these k are abomination unto the LORD thy God.

g This is oppoſed to the practice of the Gentiles, who allowed both such persons and their oblations; they made out of their wicked and infamous gains; and some of them kept lewd Women, who prostituted themselves in the Temples, and to the honour of their false Gods, and offered part of their profit to them. See Mich. 1. 7. Baruch 6. 43. Herod. in the end of his first book, and Strabo in his eighth book. h Either 1. Properly; the dog being a vile and contemptible creature in itself. Eastern parts, 1 Sam. 17. 43. and 24. 15. and 2 Sam. 3. 8. Ecclus. 9. 4. and unclean by God's dedignation, which yet should have been redeemed by virtue of that Law, Num. 18. 15. had it not been for this prohibition. And this may be here prohibited, either 1. That by this one instance, out for all others of the like kind, they might be taught not to offer to God what cost them nothing, or was worth nothing: or 2. to bring contempt upon the Creature, which divers of the Gentiles offered up to their Gods, and the Egyptians worshipped as Gods. Or, 3. That by comparing Whores and Dogs together, and equalling the prices of them, he might expose Whores to the highest disgrace and infamy. Or, II. Metaphorically, as that word is oft used in Scripture, as 1 Sam. 24. 14. Psal. 22. 16, 20. Isa. 56. 10, 11. Mat. 7. 6. Phil. 3. 2. and particularly it is used for unclean or filthy persons, 2 Pet. 2. 22. Revel. 22. 15. as Horace also calls Whores Bitches. Which name doth most properly agree to them in respect of that impudence and filthiness, and insatiableness, for which both of them are branded. And this sense may seem most proper in this place, because it agrees with all the other expressions, and as the price of a dog answers to the whore, v. 17. so the price of a dog may seem to answer to the Sodomite, v. 17. and so all concern the same thing, whereas the price of a dog, properly so called, may seem to be quite incongruous and foreign to the place. It is true which is objected, that Law-givers use to deliver their Laws in proper and not in metaphorical terms, to prevent mistake and ambiguity: But there seems to be no great danger of mistake here, where the Metaphor is so clearly explained and determined by so many words joyned with it. i And much less in other sacrifices, which being of an higher Nature, and prescribed by God, muſt needs require more exactness than those which depended much upon a mans Will and choice, as vows and free-will-offerings did. k (i. e.) The Whore and the Dog, and therefore the price of either of them cannot be acceptable. And this may seem to favour the latter opinion, that the Dog is here taken metaphorically rather than properly, because there is no mention in the Law (save in this place which is in question) of any abominableneſs of a dog unto God, more than of an ass, or any other unclean creature; but how abominable Sodomites are to God is sufficiently evident from other Scriptures, and from undeniable Reasons.

Ex. 22. 25. Lev. 25. 36. 19 *Thou shalt not lend upon usury l to thy brother, usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of any thing that is lent upon usury. Psal. 15. 5.

l (i. e.) So as to receive thy principal mony or thing lent with such encrease or improvement of it, as was usual and allowed among the Gentiles. But whether all usury be unlawful to Christians is too great a queſtion to be determined in a work of this nature. See Exod. 22. 25. Deut. 15. 3. Psal. 15. 5. Mat. 5. 42. Luke 6. 34.

20 Unto a stranger m thou mayest lend upon usury, but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury: that the LORD thy God may bleſs thee in all that thou settest thine hand to, in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

m (i. e.) To a person of any other Nation, for so that word is generally used, and therefore they who restrain it to the cursed Canaanitish Nations seem to do so without any solid or sufficient grounds. And though the word brother is oftimes used in a general sense for every man, yet I think I may affirm that wheresoever the words brother and stranger are oppoſed in the Jewish Law, the brother signifies the Israelites only, and the stranger signifies any person of what Nation or Religion soever, whether proselyted to the Jewish Religion or not, and so it seems to be meant here. And the reason why usury is permitted to a stranger, not to an Israelite, may seem to be this, because the Israelites generally employed themselves in the management of land and Cattle, and therefore could not make any advantage of borrowed money to ballance the use they should pay for it, and consequently it may be presumed that they would not borrow money upon use but for want and poverty, and in that case, and principally for that reason, usury seems to be forbidden to them, as may be thought from Levit. 25. 35, 36. But the strangers made use of their money in way of Trade and Traffick with the Israelites, which was more gainful, and could much better bear the burden of usury, and reap advantage from money so borrowed, and these strangers here spoken of are supposed to be competently rich, and not poor, as may plainly appear by comparing this place with Levit. 25. 35, 36. where they are no less forbidden to take usury of a stranger than of a brother, in case of poverty.

21 * When thou shalt vow a vow unto the LORD thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it n: for the LORD thy God will surely require it of thee: and it would be sin in thee o. Eccl. 5. 4.

n To wit, if the matter of it be lawful and in thy own power See Numb. 30. 2. Nor stack or delay, because delays may make thee both unable to pay it, and unwilling too, the sense of ones obligation growing every day weaker than other, &c. o (i. e.) It would be laid to thy charge as a sin, and bring judgment upon thee.

22 But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee.

23 That which is gone out of thy lips, thou shalt keep and perform; even a free-will-offering p, according as thou hast vowed unto the LORD thy God, which thou hast promised with thy mouth.

p Which though thou didſt freely make, yet being made, thou art no longer free, but obliged to perform it.

24 When thou comest into thy neighbours vineyard, then thou mayest eat grapes thy fill, at thine own pleasure q: but thou shalt not put any in thy vessel.

q Which was allowed in those parts, because of the great plenty and fruitfulneſs of Vines there.

25 When thou comest into the standing corn of thy neighbours, * then thou mayest pluck the ears with thine hand: but thou shalt not move a sickle unto thy neighbours standing corn. Matt. 12. 1. Mark 2. 23. Luke 6. 1.

CHAP. XXIV.

Of the Woman that was dismiſſed by her Husband with a Bill of Divorcement, 1. The Liberty of the new married Man, 5. Pawns and Pledges, 6. Man-stealers, 7. Leproſie, 8. And again of Pawns or Pledges, 10. Of Day-wages, 14. None to be punished for another's Offence, 19. Of Juſtice and Love towards Widows, Fatherleſs, and Strangers, 17.

1 WHen * a man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favour in his eyes a, because he hath found some † uncleanneſs b in her: then let him write her a bill of divorcement, and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house c. Matt. 5. 31. Mark 10. 4. †Heb. nakedneſs, or shamefulneſs, or filthiness of a thing, i. e. some filthy or hateful thing, some loathsome distemper of body or quality of mind not observed before Marriage: Or some light and unchaſt carriage, as this or the like phrase commonly signifies, but not amounting to adultery, which was not punished with divorce, but with death. c Which is not a command to divorce them, as some of the Jews understood it, nor an allowance and approbation, as plainly appears, not only from the New Testament, Matth. 5. 31, 32. and 19. 8, 9. but also from the Old Testament, Gen. 2. 24. Mal. 2. 16. but merely a permiſſion or toleration of that practice for prevention of greater mischiefs and cruelties of that hard hearted people towards their Wives, and this only for a season, even until the time of reformation, as it is called Heb. 9. 10. i. e. till the coming of the Meſſias, when things were to return to their first institution and pureſt condition. The husband is not here commanded to put her away, but if he do put her away, he is commanded to write and give her a bill of divorcement, before he send her out of his house. And though it be true, as our Saviour obſerves, that Moſes did suffer these divorces, to wit, without punishing them, which also is here implyed, yet it muſt be acknowledged, that if we consult the Hebrew words, those three first verses may seem to be only a supposition, and the words rendred, shall take him write her, in the Hebrew run thus, and hath written her, and so it follows; ver. 2. And she be departed out of his house, and be gone and become another mans wife; then follows ver. 3. which even according to our translation carries on the supposition, And if the later husband hate her, &c. Then follows the position or prohibition, ver. 4.

2 And when she is departed out of his house she may go and be another mans wife d.

d For although he could not causelesly put her away without sin, yet she being put away, and forsaken by her husband, might marry another without sin, as is determined in the same or a like case, 1 Cor. 7. 15.

3 And if the later husband hate her, and write her a bill of divorcement, and giveth it her in her hand, and fendeth fendeth her out of his house: or if the later husband die, which took her to be his wife:

Jer. 3. 1.

4 * Her former Husband, which sent her away, may not take her again e to be his wife after that she is defiled f: for that is abomination before the LORD, and thou shalt not cause the land to sin g, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

Or, polluted, Gr.

e This is the Punishment of his levity and injustice in putting her away without sufficient cause, which by this offer he now acknowledgeth. f Not simply and absolutely, as if her second Marriage were a sin, but respectively, or as to her first Husband, to whom she is as a defiled or unclean Woman, that is, forbidden; for things forbidden are accounted and called unclean, Judg. 13. 7. because they may no more be touched or used than an unclean thing. g (i. e.) Thou shalt not suffer such abominable lightneſs and lewdneſs to be practised, left the people be polluted, and the land defiled and accursed by that means.

Heb. not bring sinning. Gr. pass Lat. Ecclus. 20. 7.

5 * When a man hath taken a new wife, he shall not go out to war, † neither shall he be charged with any business h: but he shall be free at home one year i, and shall chear up his wife which he hath taken.

h (i. e.) Any publick Office or Employment, which may cause an absence from or neglect of his Wife. i That their affections newly engaged may be firmly settled, so as there may be no occasions for the divorces last mentioned.

6 No man shall take the nether or the upper millstone i to pledge: for he taketh a man's † life k to pledge. Deut. 11. 5. Numb. 11. 28. Jer. 25. 10.

i Used in their hand-mills, of which see Exod. 11. 5. Numb. 11. 28. Jer. 25. 10. Under this one kind, he understands all other things necessary to get a livelihood, the taking away whereof is against the Laws both of Charity and Prudence, seeing by those things alone he can be enabled both to subsiſt and to pay his debts. k (i. e.) His livelihood, or the necessary supports of his life.

7 If a man be found stealing any of his brethren l of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or selleth him, then that thief shall die, and thou shalt put evil away from among you. Exod. 21. 16.

l See on Exod. 21. 16.

8 Take heed in * the plague of leproſie, that thou obſerve diligently, and do according to all that the priests the Levites shall teach you: as I commanded them m, so ye shall obſerve to do. Levit. 13. 14.

m By which words he plainly intimates, that they were not only to have an eye to the Levites Instructions, but also and especially unto the Word and command of God, and that if the Levites sentence were manifeſtly contrary to the Command of God, it were not to be obeyed. As now if a Levite or Prieſt should, for fear, or favour, or gain, pronounce a perſon to be clean, who were really and manifeſtly unclean, and had the unqueſtionable marks of leproſie upon him, I suppoſe no man in his wits will queſtion, but every man that saw and knew this were bound to avoid the touching of him, and that if he did touch him he should be defiled by it.

9 Remember what the LORD thy God did * unto Miriam n by the way after that we were come forth out of Egypt. Numb. 12. 10.

n Whom God smote with leproſie for her contempt of Moſes, and therefore thou mayst expect the same or like punishment, if thou doſt despiſe the counsel and direction of the Levites, which I have set over thee, and commanded thee to obſerve in this and the like matters.

10 When thou doſt † lend thy brother any thing, thou shalt not go into his house to fetch his pledge o.

o To prevent both the poor man's Reproach by having his wants exposed to view, and the Creditor's Insolence and greediness which might be occasioned by the sight of something which he desired, and the Debtor could not spare.

11 Thou shalt stand abroad, and the man to whom thou doſt lend shall bring out the pledge p abroad unto thee.

Exod. 22. 26.

p He shall chuse what Pledge he pleaſe, provided only it be sufficient for the purpoſe.

12 And if the man be poor, thou shalt not sleep with his pledge q:

q But restore it before night, which intimates that he should take no such thing for pledge, without which a man cannot sleep, since it were an idle thing to fetch it and carry it every day. See on Exod. 22. 26, 27.

Exod. 22. 26. Psal. 112. 5.

13 * In any case thou shalt deliver him the pledge again when the sun goeth down, that he may sleep in his own raiment, and * bleſs thee r: and it shall be righteouſneſs unto thee before the LORD thy God s. Ezek. 18. 7. Jam. 2. 23.

r Instrumentally, as Miniſters are said to convert and save sinners, to wit, bring down the bleſſing of God upon thee by his prayers: for though his prayers, if he be not a good man, shall not avail for his own behalf, yet they shall avail for thy benefit. s (i. e.) Eſteemed and accepted by God as a Work of Righteouſneſs, or Holineſs, or Goodneſs and Mercy, which oft is called righteouſneſs, as Pſal. 112. 9. Prov. 10. 2. Dan. 4. 27.

14 Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant t that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates. Jam. 5. 4.

t Either by laying too grievous Burdens of Work upon him, or by with-holding his Wages from him, as it follows.

15 At his day u * thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it x, for he is poor, and † setteth his heart upon it y, leſt he cry againſt thee unto the LORD, and it be sin unto thee. Levit. 19. 13. Deut. 23. 19. Matt. 20. 8. †Heb. lifteth up his soul to it.

u At the time appointed, weekly or daily. x To wit, if the day upon which it is due, and desired or demanded by him; for Juſtice muſt not be denied or delayed. y Heb. lifteth up his soul to it, which notes his great desire and hope of it, and his dependance upon it: See Pſal. 24. 4. Jer. 22. 27.

16 * The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers z: every man shall be put to death for his own sin a. 2 Kings 14. 6. 2 Chron. 25. 4. Jer. 31. 29, 30. Ezek. 18. 20.

z Understand it thus, if the one be free from the guilt of the other, and Death, before whom none is innocent, hath commanded it, as Deut. 13. Joſ. 7. 24. For this Law is given to men, not to God, and though God do visit the fathers sins upon the children, Exod. 20. yet he will not suffer men to do so. a Understand only, and not for any other man's sin.

17 Thou shalt not pervert the judgment of the stranger, nor of the fatherleſs b, * nor take a widows raiment c to pledge. Exod. 22. 21, 22. Prov. 22. 22. Jer. 22. 3. Ezek. 22. 7. Ex. 22. 26

b Nor of the widow, which is to be supplied out of the laſt member; nor indeed of any other perſon, but he particularly mentions these, partly because men are moſt apt to wrong such helpleſs persons, and partly because God is pleased especially to charge himself, and so to charge others, with the care of those who have no other refuge. See Iſa. 1. 23. Jer. 5. 28. c To wit, such an one as the hath daily and neceſſary uſe of, as being poor, as may appear by comparing this with ver. 12, 13. and with other places. But this concerns not rich persons, nor superfluous raiment.

18 But thou shalt remember d that thou wast a bondman in Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee thence: therefore I command thee to do this thing e.

d To wit, affectionately and practically, and by the compaſſionate sense of others miſeries, thou shalt make it evident that thou hast not forgotten thy own distreſſes and deliverances. e I having thereby authority to command thee, and thou having obligations on that account, both to obey me, and to pity others in the same calamities which thou hast felt.

19 * When thou curtest down thine harveſt in thy field, and hast forgot a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go again to fetch it: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherleſs, and for the widow: that the LORD thy God may bleſs thee in all the work of thine hands. Lev. 19. 9. & 23. 22.

20 When thou beatest thine olive-tree f, † thou shalt not go over the boughs again; it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherleſs, and for the widow. †Heb. thou shalt not beat it again. Isa. 17. 6. & 24. 13.

f With staves, as they used to do to fetch down the olives.

21 When thou gatherest the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not glean † it afterward: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherleſs, and for the widow. †Heb. after thee.

22 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

Judges muſt do juſtly, 1, 2. Stripes not to exceed forty, 3. The threshing Ox not to be muzzled, 4. The Duty of raiſing Seed unto a Brother, 5. 10. The Punishment of an immodeſt Woman, 11, 12. A juſt weight and meaſure, 13—16. The memory of Amalek is to be blotted out, 17—19.

1 IF there be a controverſie between men a, and they come unto judgment, that the judges may judge them, then they shall juſtify b the righteous, and condemn c the wicked.

a About criminal matters, as it follows. b (i. e.) Acquit him from guilt and false accuſations, and free him from punishment. c Declare him guilty, and paſs Sentence of Condemnation to suitable Punishments upon him.

2 And it shall be, if the wicked man be † worthy to be beaten d, that the judge shall cauſe him to lie down, and to be beaten before his face e, according to his faulty, by a certain number. †Heb. son of stripes. 1 Sam. 26. 16

d Which the Jews say was the case of all those crimes which the law commands to be punished, without expreſſing the kind or degree of the punishment. e That the punishment may be duly inflicted, without excess or defect, which otherwise might eaſily happen through the Executioner's Paſſion or partiality.

3 * Forty stripes he may give him, and not exceed f: leſt if he should exceed, and beat him above these, with many stripes, then thy brother g should seem vile unto thee h. 2 Cor. 11. 24.

f It seems not superſtition, but prudent caution, when the Jews would not exceed 39 stripes, 2 Cor. 11. 24. leſt through miſtake or forgetfulneſs or eagerneſs they should go beyond their bounds, which they were commanded to keep, but they were not obliged to go to the utmoſt extent of them. g Who though faulty and chaſtised, yet ſtill is thy brother by nation, and probably by religion too. h (i. e.) Should be made contemptible to his brethren, either by this cruel usage of him, as if he were a slave or brute beaſt: or by the deformity or infirmity of body which excessive beating might produce.

4 * Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he † treadeth out the corn i. 1 Cor. 9. 9. 1 Tim. 5. 18.

parts and times by oxen, Hos. 10. 11. either immediately by their hoofs, Isa. 28. 28. Mich. 4. 13. or by drawing Carts or other Instruments over the corn, Isa. 25. 10. and 28. 27. and 41. 15. Amos 1. 3. ‖ Or, next kinſman.

5 * If brethren k dwell together l, and one of them m die, and have no child n, the wife of the dead ſhall not marry without, unto a ſtranger o: her ‖ husbands brother ſhall go in unto her p, and take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of an husbands brother unto her.

k Strictly ſo called, as is evident from ver. 7. Gen. 38. 8. Ruth 1. 15. Mat. 22. 24, 25. l Either 1. ſtrictly, in the ſame houſe or family: which is not probable, becauſe the married brother may be preſumed to have left his fathers houſe and ſet up a family of his own. Or, 2. more largely, in the ſame Town or City, or, at leaſt, Country. This is added for a Relief of their Conſciences, that if the next brother had removed his Habitation into remote parts, or were carried thither into Captivity, which God foreſaw would be their caſe, then the Wife of the dead had her liberty to marry to the next kinſman that lived in the ſame place with her. m Either 1. the firſt and eldeſt of them, as it was practiſed, Gen. 38. 6. &c. and expounded, Matt. 22. 25. one being oft put for the firſt, as Gen. 1. 5. and 2. 11. Hag. 1. 1. Mark 16. 2. And the chief care was about the firſt-born, who were inveſted with ſingular Privileges, and were Types of Chriſt. Or 2. any of them, for the words are general, and ſo the practice may ſeem to have been, Ruth 3. and the reaſon of the Law may ſeem to be in a great meaſure the ſame, which was to keep up the diſtinction as of Tribes and Families, that ſo the Meſſias might be diſcovered by the Family from which he was appointed to proceed, ſo alſo of Inheritances, which were divided among all the Brethren, the firſt-born having only a double Portion. n Heb. no ſon. But ſon is oft put for any child, Male or Female, both in Scripture and other Authors; and therefore the Hebrew no ſon is rendred no child here, as it is in effect, Mat. 22. 24. Mark 12. 19. Luke 20. 28. And indeed this Caution was not neceſſary, when there was a daughter, whoſe child might be adopted into the Name and Family of its Grandfather. o (i.e.) To one of another Family, as that word is oft uſed. p Except he was married himſelf, as may appear by other Scriptures, and by the reaſon of the thing, and, as ſome add, from the Phraſe of dwelling together, to wit, in their Fathers Family.

6 And it ſhall be that the firſt-born which ſhe beareth, ſhall ſucceed in the name of his brother q which is dead, that his name be not put out of Iſrael r.

q Shall be called and reputed his ſon. See Ruth 4. 17. r That a Family be not loſt. So this was a proviſion that the number of their Families might not be diminiſhed.

7 And if the man like not to take his ‖ brothers wife, then let his brothers wife go up to the gate, unto the elders, and ſay, * My husbands brother refuſeth to raiſe up unto his brother a name ſ in Iſrael: he will not perform the duty of my husbands brother.

* Ruth 4. 7.

ſ To revive his Brother's Name and memory.

8 Then the elders of his city ſhall call him, and ſpeak unto him t; and if he ſtand to it u, and ſay, I like not to take her:

t To convince him of the duty, and perſwade him to it. u If he obſtinately refuſe it.

9 Then ſhall his brother's wife come unto him in the preſence of the elders, and looſe his Shoe from off his foot x, and ſpit in his face y, and ſhall anſwer, and ſay, So ſhall it be done unto that man, that will not build up the houſe of his brother.

x Partly, as a ſign of his reſignation of all his Right to the Woman, and to her husband's Inheritance; for as the Shoe was a ſign of ones Power and Right, Pſal. 60. 8. and 108. 9. ſo the parting with the Shoe was a token of the Alienation of ſuch Right, and that he would not and henceforth might not enter upon his brothers land; and partly as a note of Infamy, to ſignifie that by this unnatural and diſingenuous action he was unworthy to be amongſt Free-men, and ſit to be reduced to the condition of the meaneſt Servants or Captives, who uſed to go barefoot, Iſa. 20. 2, 4. y As a return of his contempt upon himſelf. See Numb. 12. 14. Iſa. 50. 6. Mat. 26. 67. and 27. 30. This was not done, Ruth 4. either becauſe he was not a Brother, but a remoter Kinſman, and ſo deſerved leſs ſhame; or becauſe Ruth did not proſecute him to the utmoſt, but freely conſented to this exchange. z A Phraſe oft uſed for the Procreation of Children and the encreaſe of a Family. 10 And his name ſhall a be called in Iſrael, The houſe of him that hath his ſhoe looſed.

a (i. e.) His perſon, name being oft put for perſon, and his poſterity alſo. So it was a laſting title.

11 When men ſtrive together one with another, and the wife of the one draweth near for to deliver her husband out of the hand of him that ſmiteth him, and putteth forth her hand, and taketh him by the ſecrets:

12 Then thou ſhalt cut off her hand b; thine eye ſhall not pity her.

b Partly becauſe of the great miſchief ſhe did to him, both to his Perſon and Poſterity, and partly to deter all Women from all immodeſt and impudent carriages, and to ſecure that modeſty, which is indeed the guardian of all the Virtues, as immodeſty is an inlet to all Vices, as the ſad experience of this degenerate age ſhews; and therefore it is not ſtrange that it is ſo ſeverely reſtrained and punished. c Which ſhem wilt be very apt to do, becauſe of the infirmity of her Sex and the urgency of the occaſion, this being done for the neceſſary preſervation of her Husband.

13 * Thou ſhalt not have in thy bag † divers weights, a great and a ſmall d.

d The great, either to buy with, or openly to make ſhew of; the ſmall, for their private uſe in ſelling.

14 Thou ſhalt not have in thine houſe † divers meaſures, a great and a ſmall.

15 But thou ſhalt have a perfect and juſt weight, a perfect and juſt meaſure ſhalt thou have: that thy days may be lengthned in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

16 For * all that do ſuch things, and all that do unrighteouſly, are an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

17 * Remember what Amalek did unto thee by the way, when ye were come forth out of Egypt e.

e Which circumſtance greatly aggravates their ſin, that they ſhould do thus to a people, who had been long exerciſed with ſore afflictions, to whom pity and help was due by the Laws of Nature and Humanity, and for whoſe Reſcue God had in ſo glorious a manner appeared, which they could not be ignorant of. So this was barbarouſneſs to Iſrael, and ſetting the great Jehovah at defiance.

18 How he met thee by the way, and ſmote the hindmoſt of thee f, even all that were feeble behind thee, when thou waſt faint and weary: and he feared not God.

f Which God permitted, both for the puniſhment of Iſraels ſins, and to harden and prepare them for the difficulties of their Expedition.

19 Therefore it ſhall be, * when the LORD thy God hath given thee reſt from all thine enemies round about, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to poſſeſs it; that thou ſhalt blot out the remembrance of Amalek g from under heaven, thou ſhalt not forget it.

g Which was in great meaſure done afterward. See 1 Sam. 15. and 27. 8. and 30. 1, 17. 1 Chron. 4. 43. Eſth. 9. 12, 13.

2 * That thou ſhalt take a of the firſt of all the fruit of the earth b, which thou ſhalt bring of thy land that the LORD thy God giveth thee, and thou ſhalt put it in a basket, and ſhalt go unto the place which the LORD thy God ſhall chuſe to place his Name there.

a This ſeems to be required of each particular Maſter of a Family, either upon his firſt Settlement, or once every year at one of their three feaſts, when they were obliged to go up to Jeruſalem, as here they are. b Either of their Corn. or of the Fruit of Trees.

3 And thou ſhalt go unto the prieſt c that ſhall be in thoſe days, and ſay unto him, I profeſs this day unto the LORD thy God, that I am come unto the country which the LORD ſware unto our fathers for to give us.

c (i.e.) To any of the Prieſts, who ſhall be appointed in God's ſtead to receive theſe oblations and acknowledgements.

4 And the prieſt ſhall take the basket out of thine hand, and ſet it down before the altar of the LORD thy God.

5 And thou ſhalt ſpeak, and ſay before the LORD thy God, A Syrian d ready to periſh e was my father, and * he went down into Egypt, and ſojourned there with a few, and became there a nation, great, mighty, and populous.

d So Jacob was, partly by his original, as being born of Syrian Parents, as were Abraham and Rebecca, both of Chaldea or Meſopotamia, which was a part of Syria largely ſo called, as is confeſſed by Strabo, l. 16. and by Pliny, l. 5. c. 12. partly by his education and converſation, for which reaſon Chriſt is called a Nazarite, and a Capernaite; and partly by his relations, his wives being ſuch, and his children too by their Mothers. e Either through want and poverty; ſee Gen. 28. 11, 20. and 32. 10. or through the rage of his brother Eſau, and the treachery and cruelty of his father in law Laban.

6 And * the Egyptians evil intreated us, and afflicted us, and laid upon us hard bondage.

7 And * when we cried unto the LORD God of our fathers, the LORD heard our voice, and looked on our affliction, and our labour, and our oppreſſion.

9 And he hath brought us into this place, and hath given us this land, even a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 And now, behold, I have brought the firſt-fruits of the land, which thou, O LORD, haſt given me: and thou thou ſhalt ſet it ſ before the LORD thy God, and worſhip before the LORD thy God.

f To wit, mediately, by the Prieſt who was to ſet it there, v. 4. ſ (i.e.) the basket of firſt-fruits, v. 2.

11 And thou ſhalt rejoyce g in every good thing which the LORD thy God haſh given unto thee, and unto thine houſe, thou, and the Levite, and the ſtranger that is among you.

g (i.e.) Either 1. thou ſhalt hereby be enabled to rejoyce and take comfort in all thy enjoyments, when thou haſt ſanctified them by giving God his portion. Or 2. thou ſhalt feaſt, (which is oft expreſſed by rejoycing) with the Levites and ſtrangers upon the oblations which at theſe ſolemn times were offered. Which expoſition is confirmed by comparing Deut. 16. 10, 11, 14, 15.

12 When thou haſt made an end of tithing all the tithes h of thine increaſe, the third year, which is * the year of tithing i, and haſt given it unto the Levite, the ſtranger, the fatherleſs, and the widow, that they may eat within thy gates, and be filled:

h Of which ſee on Deut. 14. 28. i Heb. the year of that tithe, ſo called, either 1. becauſe theſe tithes were gathered only in that year. Or rather, 2. becauſe then only they were ſo beſtowed or uſed; and whereas theſe ſecond tithes for two years together were eaten only by the owners and Levites, and that in Jeruſalem, in the third year they were eaten alſo by the ſtrangers, fatherleſs, and widows, and that in their own dwellings. The ſeventy joyn theſe words with the following, and for Shemath, the year, read Shemith, the ſecond, and take Pau for redundant, as ſometimes it is, and read the place thus, The ſecond tithe thou ſhalt give to the Levite, &c.

13 Then thou ſhalt ſay before the LORD thy God k, I have brought away l the hallowed things m out of mine houſe, and alſo have given them unto the Levite, and unto the ſtranger, to the fatherleſs, and to the widow, according to all thy commandments which thou haſt commanded me: I have not tranſgreſſed thy commandments, neither have I forgotten them.

k (i.e.) Either before the Tabernacle or Temple: or rather, in thy private and domeſtick Addreſſes to God; for this is to be ſaid preſently upon the diſtribution of theſe tithes, which was not done at Jeruſalem, but in their own private gates or dwellings; except we will ſuppoſe that after he had given away theſe tithes at home he ſhould go up to Jeruſalem meerly to make this acknowledgment, which ſeems improbable. And this is to be ſpoken before the Lord, i. e. ſolemnly, ſeriouſly, and in a religious manner, with due reverence to God's preſence and will and glory, which is a ſufficient ground for that Phraſe. l Or, ſeparated, or removed, to wit, from my own proper and private Fruits. m (i.e.) The tithes which have been ſanctified and ſet apart for theſe uſes.

14 I have not eaten thereof in my mourning n, neither have I taken away ought thereof for any unclean uſe o, nor given ought thereof for the dead p: but I have hearkened to the voice of the LORD my God, and have done according to all that thou haſt commanded me.

n (i. e.) Either 1. in my funeral ſolemnities for the dead But this falls in with the laſt branch. Or 2. in my diſtreſs or poverty, or upon pretence of my own want, in which caſe men are tempted and inclined to fall upon ſacred or forbidden things. Or 3. in ſorrow, or grieving that I was to give away ſo much of my profits to the poor, but I have chearfully eaten and feaſted with them, as I was obliged to do. For though it be taken for granted by ſome learned Expoſitors, from Deut. 14. 28, 29. that the owner was not to eat any part of the third years tithe, but to give it all away to the ſtranger and fatherleſs, &c. the contrary ſeems to me more probable from that very place, where it is ſaid, thou ſhalt lay it up within thy gates, and then it follows, that the Levite, ſtranger, &c. ſhall come, to wit, to thy gates, and ſhall eat, to wit, there, as is expreſſed v. 12. that they may eat within thy gates, and be filled; which implies, that theſe tithes, or ſome part of them, were eaten in the owners gates or dwelling, with holy rejoycing and feaſting, wherein it is moſt probable the owner had his ſhare, though it be not there expreſſed, becauſe it was evident in it ſelf from the foregoing paſſage, Deut. 14. 23. &c. where the owner is allowed and commanded to eat thoſe tithes together with the Levites. And howſoever ſome think the third years tithes, v. 28. were not the ſame with thoſe v. 23. yet it cannot with any colour of reaſon be thought that thoſe tithes which were to be eaten, nor only by the Levites, but alſo by the ſtrangers, v. 29. were more ſacred than thoſe that were to be eaten by none but the Levites and the owners, v. 23. 27. or than the owner might eat of the one, and not of the other. o (i.e.) For any common uſe; the words common and unclean being oft indifferently uſed one for the other, or for any other uſe than that which had been appointed, which would have been a pollution of them. p (i.e.) For any funeral pomp or ſervice or feaſt; for the Jews uſed to ſend in proviſions to feaſt with the neareſt relations of the Party deceaſed, of which ſee Jer. 16 7. Ezek. 24. 17. Hoſ. 9. 4. and in that caſe both the gueſts and food were legally polluted, Numb. 19. 11, 14. and therefore the uſe of theſe tithes in ſuch caſes had been a double ſin, both the defiling of ſacred food, and the imploying of thoſe proviſions upon ſorrowful occaſions, which by God's expreſs command were to be eaten with rejoycing, Deut. 14. 26. and 26. 11.

15 * Look down q from thy holy habitation, from heaven, and bleſs thy people Iſrael, and the land which thou haſt given us, as thou ſwareſt unto our fathers, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

q After that ſolemn profeſſion of their obedience to God's commands, they are taught to pray for God's bleſſing upon their land, whereby they are inſtructed how vain and ineffectual the prayers of unrighteous or diſobedient perſons are.

16 This day the LORD thy God hath commanded thee to do theſe ſtatutes and judgments: thou ſhalt therefore keep and do them with all thine heart, and with all thy ſoul.

17 Thou haſt avouched r the LORD this day ſ to be thy God, and to walk in his ways, and to keep his ſtatutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and to hearken unto his voice.

r Or declared, or, profeſſed, or, owned. ſ (i.e.) At this time, in this wilderneſs, where thou haſt accepted and ratified God's covenant.

18 And * the LORD hath avouched thee t this day to be his peculiar people, as he hath promiſed thee, and that thou ſhouldeſt keep all his commandments.

t Hath owned thee for ſuch before all the world by eminent and glorious communications and manifeſtations of his power and grace and favour in thee and for thee, by a ſolemn entring into covenant with thee, and giving peculiar laws, promiſes, and privileges to thee above all mankind. u Which is here mentioned as an act of God's, becauſe though this be Man's duty, yet it is the work of his grace that he will vouchſafe to give us ſuch commands, that he doth require and will accept of our obedience to them, and that we have any power or will to obey them, Ezek. 36. 26, 27.

19 And to make thee high above all nations which he hath made, in praiſe, and in name, and in honour, and that thou mayeſt be an holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath ſpoken.

CHAP. XXVII.

A Command to ſet up ſtones for a Remembrance, and to write the Law upon them: They muſt build the Altar of the Lord with whole ſtones, 1—8 To pronounce the Bleſſing on Gerizzim, and the Curſe on Ebal, 9—26.

1 AND Moſes with the elders of Iſrael commanded the people, ſaying, Keep all the commandments which I command you this day.

2 And it ſhall be on that day a * when ye ſhall paſs over Jordan, unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, that * thou ſhalt ſet thee up great ſtones, and plaiſter them with plaiſter b.

* Jof. 4. 1.

* Jof. 8. 32.

a (i. e.) About that time, for it was not done till ſome days after their paſſing over. Day is oft put for time, as hath been noted before. b For conveniency of writing upon them.

3 And thou ſhalt write upon them all the words of this law c when thou art paſſed over that thou mayeſt go in into the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, a land that floweth with milk and honey, as the LORD God of thy Fathers hath promiſed thee.

c Either 1. all the words of this book of Deuteronomy. But that ſeems too large for this place. Or 2. the bleſſings and curſes here following. But they are mentioned as a different thing. Or 3. the law properly ſo called, i. e. the ſum and ſubſtance of the precepts or laws of Moſes, eſpecially ſuch as were moral and general, as may be gueſſed from the following part of the chapter, where the curſes pronounced againſt all that confirm not all the words of this law to do them are particularly applied unto the tranſgreſſours of moral laws only, v. 15, 16, &c. And eſpecially the Decalogue, which oft goes under that name. Compare Joſ. 8. 32. &c.

4 Therefore it ſhall be when ye are gone over Jordan, that ye ſhall ſet up theſe ſtones, which I command you this day, in mount Ebal ‖ and thou ſhalt plaiſter them with plaiſter.

‖ The mount of curſing. Here the law is written, to ſignifie that a curſe was due to the violatours of it, and that no man could expect juſtification or bleſſing from the works of the law, by the ſentence whereof all men are juſtly accurſed, as being all guilty of the tranſgreſſion of it in one kind and degree or other. Here the ſacrifices are to be offered, to ſhew that there is no way to be delivered from this curſe, but by the blood of Chriſt, which all theſe ſacrifices did typifie, and by Chriſt's being made a curſe for us, Gal. 3. 13.

5 And there thou ſhalt build an altar unto the LORD thy God, an altar of ſtones: * thou ſhalt not lift up any iron tool upon them.

* Ex. 20. 25 Joſh. 8. 31.

6 Thou ſhalt build the altar of the LORD thy God of whole ſtones d: and thou ſhalt offer burnt-offerings thereon unto the LORD thy God.

d (i.e.) Rough, not hewed nor poliſhed.

7 And thou ſhalt offer peace-offerings, and ſhalt eat there, and rejoyce before the LORD thy God.

8 And thou ſhalt write upon the ſtones all the words of this law very plainly e.

e So as to be eaſily read by all.

9 And Moſes, and the Prieſts the Levites, ſpake to all Iſrael, ſaying, Take heed, and hearken, O Iſrael; this day thou art become the people of the LORD ſ thy God.

ſ By thy ſolemn renewing of thy Covenant with him.

10 Thou ſhalt therefore obey the voice of the LORD thy God, and do his commandments, and his ſtatutes which I command thee this day.

11 And Moſes charged the people the ſame day, ſaying,

12 These shall stand upon mount Gerizzim g, to bless the people h, when ye are come over Jordan; Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Joseph, and Benjamin i.

g Obj. In. Jos. 8. 33. they stood over against Mount Gerizzim. Ans. 1. Both are true: they who stood upon the one mount, stood over against the other. 2. These words may be rendred by side or more to (as the Hebrew al oft signifies) mount Gerizzim, which might be over against it. h Whence it appears that the Blessings also were pronounced as well as the Curses, though they be not here mentioned. See Jos. 8. 33. i All these were the children of the free-women, Leah and Rachel, to shew both the Dignity of the Blessings above the Curses, and that the Blessings belong only to those as are Evangelically such, as this is expounded and applied, Gal. 4. 22, &c. even to those that receive the Spirit of Adoption and Liberty. Joseph is here put for both his Sons and Tribes Manasseh and Ephraim, which are here reckoned as one tribe. because Levi is here numbred; but when Levi is omitted, as it is where the division of the Land is made, there Manasseh and Ephraim pass for two tribes.

13 And these shall stand upon mount Ebal † to curse k: ch 11 29. † Heb. for a curfing. tali l:

k He saith, to bless the people, ver. 12. but here only to curse, not expressing whom, either because he was loath to mention the people as Objects of the Curse; or because he presumed and hoped that though some particular persons might deserve the Curse, yet the generality of the people would keep out of the reach of it: or to intimate, that though the Blessing was peculiar to the people of Israel, yet the Curse was indefinite and common to all Nations, as may appear from the particular sins here numbred, which are such as made the Gentiles guilty and abominable to God, as is elsewhere affirmed. See Lev. 18. 28. l Four of these are the children of the Bondwomen, to shew that the Curse belongs to those of servile and distingenuous spirits and carriages to God. With these are joyned Reuben, who by his shamefull sin fell from his Dignity, Gen. 49. 4. and Zabulon, as the youngest of Leah's Children, who was necessary to be joyned with those, that the numbers might be equal.

*Dan 9.11. 14 And * the Levites m shall speak, and say unto all the men of Israel with a loud voice n:

m (i.e.) Some of the Levites, to wit, the Priests, which bore the Ark, as it is expressed Jos. 8. 33. for the body of the Levites stood upon Mount Gerizim, v. 12. But these stood in the Valley between Gerizim and Ebal, looking towards the one or the other Mountain as they pronounced either the Blessings or the Curses, as may be gathered from Jos. 8. 33. n So as they might be heard by a great number of the people, by whom the rest were informed and directed by some Signal when they should answer.

*Exod.20. 4. 23. and 34 17. Lev.19.4 *1 Cor.14. 16. 15 * Cursed be the man that maketh any graven or molten image o, an abomination unto the LORD, the work of the hands of the craftsmen, and p putteth it in a secret place q: and all the people shall answer and say, * Amen r.

o Under this particular he understands all the gross Violations of the first Table, as under the following Branches he comprehends all other Sins against the second Table, as is manifest from hence, that there are other Sins, nor here mentioned, which are as sinful as these, and will as certainly expose a man to the Curse as any of the rest. p Or, although, as that Particle sometimes signifies. q He takes special notice of such, partly to shew the folly of those mea who think to hide their Sins by this means; and partly to deter men from such Practices, which men could not see nor punish, by making them their own Condemners and Executioners. r (i. e.) So let it be: I with this Curse may befal me if I be guilty of this Crime. See Numb. 5. 22. Jer. 11. 5.

*Ex.20.12. & 21.17. 16 * Cursed be he that setteth light / by his father or his mother: and all the people shall say, Amen.

/ Or, disposeth in his heart: or reproacheth or curseth, to wit, secretly, as before: for if the fact was notorious, it was punished with death, Levit. 20. 9.

*ch.19.14. 17 * Cursed be he that removeth his neighbours landmark t: and all the people shall say, Amen.

t To wit, designedly, to defraud his Neighbour, or enlarge his own portion.

*Lev.19.14 18 * Cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of the way u: and all the people shall say, Amen.

u That misleadeth simple souls, giving them pernicious Counsel, either for this life, or for the next.

* Ex. 22. 21, 22. 19 * Cursed be he that perverteth the judgment of the stranger, fatherless, and widow: and all the people shall say, Amen.

ch 10.17. & 16. 19. & 20.22.12. 25 * Cursed be he that taketh reward to slay an innocent person: and all the people shall say, Amen.

26 * Cursed be he that confirmeth not z all the words of this law to do them: and all the people shall say, Amen.

Jer.11. 3. Gal.3. 10.

z (i.e.) Performeth not: for he that transgresseth doth in some sort destroy and make void the Law of God, as to the main end for which it was given, even to the Regulation of his life and actions, and as far as lies in him disanuls the authority and force of God's Law.

CHAP. XXVIII.

The Blessings of Obedience, 1——14. Curses for Disobedience, 15——38.

1 AND it shall come to pass, * If thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe, and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the LORD thy God will set thee on high a above all nations of the earth.

Lev.26.3.

a (i. e.) Advance and honour thee with divers Priviledges and Blessings, as it here follows.

2 And all these blessings shall come on thee, and overtake thee b, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God.

b Those blessings which others greedily follow after, and oftimes never overtake, they shall follow after thee, and shall be thrown into thy lap by my special kindness.

3 Blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be in the field.

4 Blessed shall be * the fruit of thy † body, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattel, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

7 The LORD shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee, to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way, and flee before thee seven ways e.

e (i. e.) Many ways, as is usual when an Army is totally overthrown and dissipated.

8 The LORD shall command f the blessing upon thee in thy ‖ store-houses, and in all that thou settest thine hand unto, and he shall bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

*Exod.19. 5, 6.

g (i. e.) Shall confirm and establish his Covenant with thee, by which he separated thee to himself as an holy and Peculiar people, and shall publickly own thee for such, as it follows, ver. 10.

10 And all the people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the Name of the LORD b, * and they shall be afraid of thee.

Gen.20. 22.

b (i. e.) That you are in deed and truth his People and Children: See Deut. 14. 1. and 26. 18. For to be called oft-times signifies to be, as Isa. 47. 1, 5. and 56. 7. Mat. 5. 9, 19. and 21. 13.

11 And * the LORD shall make thee plenteous ‖ in goods, in the fruit of thy † body, and in the fruit of thy cattel, and in the fruit of thy ground i, in the land which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, to give thee.

k To wit, the Heaven or the Air, as it here follows, which is God's Storehouse, where he treasures up Rain or Wind or other things for Man's use. See Job. 38. 22. Psal. 33. 7.

13 And the LORD shall make thee the head l, and not the tail, and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath: if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the LORD thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them:

l The chief of all People in Power, or at least in Dignity and Priviledges; so that even they that are not under thine Authority shall reverence thy Greatness and Excellency. So it was in David's and Solomon's time, and so it should have been much ofiner and much more, if they had performed the Conditions here required. For the Phrase see Isa. 9. 13, 14. and 19. 15.

32 Thy sons and thy daughters shall be given unto another people b, and thine eyes shall look, and fail e with longing for them all the day long: and there shall be no might d in thine hand.

b By those who have conquered them, and taken them captives, who shall give or sell them to other persons, as the manner was.

c Or, be consumed, partly with grief and plentiful tears shed for them; and partly with earnest desire, and vain and long expectation of their return. See Psal. 119. 82. d (i. e.) No power to rescue them, nor money to ransom them.

33 The fruit of thy land and all thy labours shall a nation which thou knowest not e eat up: and thou shalt be only oppressed and crushed alway f.

e Which shall come from a far country, which thou didst not at all expect or fear, and therefore will be the more dreadful when they come; a nation whose language thou understandest not, and therefore canst not plead with them for mercy, nor expect any favour from them. f Not sometimes conquered, and sometimes conquering, as the course of War commonly is, but in all times, and in all thy actions and attempts, foiled and worsted.

34 So that thou shalt be mad for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

35 The LORD shall smite thee in the knees, and in the legs, with a sore botch that cannot be healed, from the sole of thy foot unto the top of thy head.

36 The LORD shall bring thee, and * thy king g * 2 Kin.17. 3. & 24. 12. & 25. 7. 2 Chron. 36. 6. & 7. which thou shalt set over thee, unto a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, and * there shalt thou serve other gods h, wood and stone.

g The calamity shall be both universal, which even thy King shall not be able to avoid, much lesse the subjects, who have far less advantage and opportunity for escape; and irrecoverable, because he who should protect or rescue them is lost with them. See Lam. 4. 20. h Either being corrupted by their examples and counsels, or compelled to it by their tyranny. So what formerly was their choice and delight now becomes their plague and misery. And this doubtless was the condition of many Israelites under the Assyrian and Babylonish captivities, as we may gather from Jer. 44. 15, 19. and other places, tho' many of them kept themselves free from that infection.

i All other nations shall wonder to see such calamities befall such a people, and when they would express any dreadful affliction in a proverbial way, they shall make use of thy example: They shall also to sport themselves in thy miseries, and fly, these are the people of the Lord, the only Saints upon earth, &c.

38 * Thou shalt carry much seed out into the field, and shalt gather but little in: for the locust shall consume it.

45 Moreover, all these curses shall come upon thee, and shall pursue thee, and overtake thee, till thou be destroyed, because thou hearkenedst not unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments, and his statutes which he commanded thee,

46 And they l shall be upon thee for a sign, and for a wonder m, and upon thy seed for ever:

l (i. e.) These curses now mentioned. m (i. e.) Signal and wonderful to all that hear of them.

47 Because thou servedst not the LORD thy God with joyfulness, and with gladness of heart, * for the abundance of all things:

59 Then the LORD will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long continuance.

60 Moreover, he will bring upon thee all the * diseases of Egypt; which thou wast afraid of: and they shall cleave unto thee.

a Hebrew he hath now so gloriously delivered thee, as repenting of all his kindness to thee, and resolved to undo what he hath done for thee. And the remembrance of what they endured in Egypt could not but make the thoughts of returning thither again very terrible to them. c Which was literally fulfilled under Titus, when multitudes of them were carried thither in ships, and sold there for Slaves, as Josephus relates. And this expression seems to mind them of that time when they went over the Sea without ships, God miraculously drying up the Sea before them, &c. which now they would have occasion sadly to remember. d Or, to the way: the Hebrew Beth here signifying to, as it doth, Gen. 11. 4. Levit. 16. 22. Psal. 19. 5. and 91. 12. Isa. 9. 8. And the way seems not to be meant here of the usual road-way from Canaan to Egypt, which was wholly by land, but to be put for the end of the way or journey, even the land of Egypt, for to this, and not to the road-way between Canaan and Egypt, agree the words here following, whereof I spake unto thee, thou shalt see it, (i. e. Egypt) no more again. And so that way is put for to that land in a place parallel to this, where the very same words are used, Deut. 17. 16. to which this place palpably alludes. e Either because the number of you captives shall be so great, that the market shall be glutted with you; or because you shall be so loathsome and contemptible that men shall not be willing to have you for Slaves. And this was the condition of the Jews after the destruction of Jerusalem, as Josephus the Jew hath left upon record.

CHAP. XXIX.

The manifold Works and Mercies of God a Motive to Obedience, 1——9
Moses solemnly engageth them to keep covenant with God, 10——13
Unbelief, careless Contempt, and breach of Covenant, shall be severely punished, 18——28. The end and use of the revealed Will of God.

THese are the words of the covenant a, which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, * beside the covenant b which he made with them in Horeb.

a They are the terms or conditions upon which God hath made, i. e. renewed Covenant with you. b (i. e.) That entring into or striking of Covenant. The Covenant was but one in substance, but various in the time and manner of its dispensation.

2 And Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, * Ye have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, unto Pharaoh, and unto all his servants, and unto all his land:

* Egypt.

3 * The great temptations which thine eyes have seen, the signs, and those great miracles:

* Job 5. 19.

4 Yet the LORD hath not given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day c.

c This verse comes in by way of correction or exception to the foregoing clause in this manner, I said indeed, ye have seen, &c. v. 2. and thine eyes have seen, &c. but I must recall my words, for in truth you have not seen them; in seeing you have not seen, and perceiving you have not perceived them, you have perceived and seen them with the eyes of your body, but not with your minds and hearts; you have not seen them to any purpose: you have not yet learned rightly to understand the word and works of God, so as to know them for your good, and to make a right use of them, and to comply with them: which he expresseth thus, the Lord hath not given you, &c. not to exause their wickedness, but partly to direct them what course to take, and to whom they must have recourse for the amending of their former errours, and for a good understanding and improvement of God's works; and partly to aggravate their sin, and to intimate that although the hearing ear, and the seeing eye, and the understanding heart, be the workmanship of God, Prov. 20. 12. and the effects of his special grace, Deut. 30. 6. Jer. 31. 33. and 32. 39. &c. yet their want of this grace was their own fault, and the just punishment of their former sins; their present case being like theirs in Isaiah's time, who first shut their eyes and ears that they might not see and hear, and would not understand, and then by the tremendous but righteous Judgment of God, had their hearts made fat, and their eyes and ears closed that they

they should not be able to see and hear, and understand, as is manifest from the history of their carriage in the wilderness.

5 And I have led you forty years in the wilderness, your cloths are not waxen old upon you, and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot d.

d So far, that it was necessary for you to throw them away, and to get new ones. See on Deut. 8. 4.

6 Ye have not eaten bread e, neither have ye drunk wine or strong drink f, that ye might know that I am the LORD your God g.

e (i. e.) Common bread purchased by your own money, or made by your own hands, but Heavenly and Angelical bread, Deut. 8. 3. Psal. 78. 24, 25. You have subsisted without bread the staff of life. f But only water out of the rock. g The Lord Omnipotent and All-sufficient for your provision without the help of any Creatures, and your God in covenant with you who hath a true affection to you, and fatherly care of you, even when ordinary means fail.

7 And when ye came unto this place, * Sihon the King of Heshbon, and Og the King of Bashan came out against us unto battel, and we smote them,

* Num. 21. 24, 33. Josh. 12. 2. chap. 3. 1, and 3.

8 And we took their land, and * gave it for an inheritance unto the Reubenite, and to the Gadite, and to the half tribe of Manasseh.

* Num. 32. 33. chap. 4.

9 * Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may † prosper in all that ye do.

* Josh. 1. 7. 8 King. 2.

10 Ye stand this day all of you before the LORD your God h: your captains of your tribes, your elders, and your officers, with all the men of Israel.

† Heb. deal prudently. h In his presence, who sees your hearts and carriages, and before his Tabernacle, where it is probable they were now called together, and assembled for this work. See v. 2.

11 Your little ones, your wives, and thy stranger i that is in thy camp, from the hewer of thy wood, unto the drawer of thy water k:

i Such strangers as had embraced their Religion. k All sorts of persons, yea, even the meanest of them, such as these were, Jos. 9. 27. all sorts and ranks of servants.

12 That thou shouldest † enter into covenant l with the LORD thy God, and into his oath l, which the LORD thy God maketh with thee this day:

l (i. e.) Into covenant or agreement confirmed by a solemn oath.

13 That he may establish thee to day for a people unto himself, and that he may be unto thee a God, as he hath said unto thee, and as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

14 Neither with you only do I make this covenant, and this oath:

15 But with him that standeth here with us this day, before the LORD our God, * and also with him that is not here with us this day m:

* Act. 2. 39. 1 Cor. 7. 14.

m (i. e.) With your prosperity. For so the covenant was made at first with Abraham and his seed, by which as God engaged himself to continue the blessing of Abraham upon his posterity, so he also engaged them to the same duties and conditions which were required of Abraham. So it is even among men, where a King confers an estate upon a Subject and his Heirs for ever, upon such certain conditions, all his Heirs who enjoy that benefit are obliged to the same conditions. But whatsoever becomes of mans right, God the Creatour and Soveraign Lord of all men and things hath an unquestionable right and power to oblige all persons that are or shall be, to such conditions as he pleaseth, and especially to such conditions as are for their own benefit, which is the present case.

16 (For ye know how we have dwelt in the land of Egypt n, and how we came through the nations o which ye passed by.

n Where you have seen their Idolatries, and learned too much of them, as the Golden Calf shewed, and therefore need to renew your covenant with God; where also we were in dreadful bondage whence God alone hath delivered us, to whom therefore we are deeply obliged, and have all reason to renew our covenant with him. o (i. e.) With what hazards, if God had not appeared for us.

p What sorry tools they are, what senseless and ridiculous deities; so that you have great reason to value your God, and to cleave to him in covenant, and to take heed of such abominable Idolatries.

18 Lest there should be q among you, man or woman, or family, or tribe, whose heart turneth away r this day from the LORD our God, to go, and serve the gods of these nations: * lest there should be among you a root s that beareth ‖ gall and wormwood t:

* Heb. 12. 15. Or, a noisome. ‖ Heb. wormwood.

q Or take head or beware lest there be. For it seems to be an Elipsis, or defect of a verb which is usual in Scripture, and which we have in a case parallel to this, Gen. 3. 22. And now we must take care lest he put forth, &c. Or this particle, lest, may be joined with v. 14, 15. to this purpose, I now renew the covenant with you, and with your posterity, lest any of you or yours should be tempted to depart from God, &c. r (i. e.) Who turneth away from God to Idols nor by constraint, but by choice, and the inclination of his own heart. By this phrase he leads them to the spring of their sin and ruine, even their own hearts, which he admonisheth them hereby to look to above all things. s Either 1. An evil heart enclining you to such cursed Idolatry, and bringing forth bitter fruits. Or, rather 2. Some secret and subtle Apostate who lurks and works like a root under ground, and slily conveys his poison to the infection of others; for both the foregoing and following words speak of some particular person. t (i. e.) Which though for the present it may please your fancy, yet in the end, affright your selves, and produce bitter fruits, not only distasteful to God, but also poisonful and destructive to your selves.

19 And it come to pass when he * heareth the words of this curse x, that he bless himself in his heart y, saying, I shall have peace z, though I walk in the ‖ imagination of mine heart a, to add † drunkenness to thirst b:

* Heb. 12. 15. ‖ Heb. stubbornness. † Heb. that which is drunken.

u (i. e.) That root, or that man mentioned, v. 18. x (i. e.) Of that oath mentioned, v. 12. wherein he swore that he would keep covenant with God, and that with a curse pronounced against himself if he did not perform it. Now if when he reads this again, or hears of it from others, y (i. e.) Flatter himself in his own eyes, as Psal. 36. 2. with vain conceits and hopes, as if God did not mind such things, and either could not, or would not punish them. Compare Psal. 49. 18. Jer. 2. 20. Zech. 11. 5. z Safety and prosperity. a Though in my practices and worship I do not follow God's command, but my own devices, and whatsoever my fancy best liketh, minding nothing but the gratifying of mine own fancy and humour. b (i. e.) Not only to satisfie his thirst, i. e. his covetousness and inclination to wickedness, but even to exceed it, as Drunkards take oft times more than their appetite desires, and drink out of meer wantonness, or from a desire to be drunk; and as lively persons commit lewdness with others more than their natural inclinations desire, or their strength can well bear, merely from a wicked mind, and from contempt of God, and because they will do so. The words may be resolved, to add thirst to drunkenness, the particle ath, which is a note of the Accusative Case, being joined with thirst, and not with drunkenness, and so the sense may be this, that when he hath multiplied his sins, and made himself as it were drunk with them, yet he is not satisfied therewith, but still wheets his Appetite, and provokes his thirst after more, as Drunkards commonly will use means and temptations to make themselves thirst after more drink, that they may drink more abundantly. Or thus, to add the wrath &c. to the thirst, (i. e.) in stead of restraining and mortifying, as he ought to do, fully and greedily to satisfie his idolatrous or wicked inclinations, and resolved to give up himself to all the desires of his own heart. Compare Job 34. 7. Prov. 23. 35. Isa. 30. 1. and 56. 12. Eph. 4. 19.

20 * The LORD will not spare him, but then the anger of the LORD, and his jealousie shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him: and the LORD shall blot out his name from under heaven d.

* Ezek. 14. 7, 8.

c (i. e.) Shall, burn and break forth with flame and smoak as it were from a furnace. Compare Psal. 18. 8. d (i. e.) Destroy his person and memory from amongst men.

21 And the LORD shall separate him unto evil e, out of all the tribes of Israel, according to all the curses of the covenant f, that † are written in this book of the † Heb. law:

e (i. e.) Unto some peculiar and exemplary plague; he will make him a monument of his displeasure to the whole Land. This intimates that the covenant of grace, which God made with them, hath not only blessings belonging to it, as this foolish person imagined, but curses also to the transgressours of it.

22 So that the generation to come of your children that shall rise up after you, and the stranger that shall come from a far land, shall say g, when they see the plagues of that land, and the sicknesses † which the LORD hath laid upon it:

g The words following, v. 24, 25, &c.

23 And that the whole land thereof is brimstone, and hath made salt, and burning h, that it is not sowen, nor beareth, nor † sick. any grass groweth therein, * like the overthrow of Sodom * Gen. 19. and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboiim, which the LORD 24, 25. overthrew in his anger, and in his wrath:

h (i. e.) Is burnt up and made barren, as with brimstone and salt. See Judg. 9. 45. Psal. 107. 34. Jer. 17. 6. Ezek. 47. 11.

24 Even all nations shall say, * Wherefore hath the * 1 King. LORD done thus unto this land? what meaneth the heat 9. 8. of this great anger? Jer. 22. 8.

25 Then men shall say, Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD God of their fathers, which he made with them, when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt.

26 For they went and served other gods, and worshipped them; gods whom they knew not, and ‖ whom he had not † given unto them i.

i (i. e.) Whom God had not given or divided to them, as their proper portion, or for their worship, but hath divided them unto all Nations from any out, as it is said, Deut. 4. 19. not for their worship, but for their portion, use and service. So he speaks here of the Sun and Moon and Stars, which were the principal Gods worshipped by the neighbouring Nations. Or, to whom unto hath given them, i. e. that they should be worshipped, or, to whom no worship belongs. So this is an argument against Idolatry. Or, who had not given unto them, to wit, any thing: It is an Elliptis of the Accusative, which is very frequent: gods known to them by no benefits received from them, as they had from their God, whom therefore it was the greater folly and ingratitude to forsake.

red to an Eagle, Jer. 4. 13. Ezek. 17. 3. Dan. 7. 4. but also fiercely and greedily, as the Eagle to its prey; also strongly and irresistibly. Possibly this may be understood of the Romans, who did come from far, from the end of the earth, more truly and literally than the Chaldeans, whose Country was not far from Judea, and this may allude to the Eagle, which was in their Ensigns.

50 A nation † of fierce countenance p, which shall not regard the person of the old, nor shew favour to the young:

p Heb. strong of face or countenance, i. e. bold and impudent, hardy and undaunted, cruel and uncompassionate and inflexible, sparing no Age nor Sex, &c.

51 And he shall eat the fruit of thy cattel, and the fruit of thy land, until thou be destroyed; which also shall not leave thee either corn, wine, or oil, or the increase of thy kine, or flocks of thy sheep, until he have destroyed thee.

52 And he shall besiege thee in all thy gates, until thy high and fenced walls come down, wherein thou trustedst, throughout all thy land, and he shall besiege thee in all thy gates, throughout all thy land which the LORD thy God hath given thee.

*Lev. 26. 29. *King. 6. 28, 29. Jer. 19. 9. Lam. 2. 20 & 4. 10. † Heb belly.

53 And * thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own † body, the flesh of thy sons, and of thy daughters (which the LORD thy God hath given thee) in the siege, and in the straitness wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee.

54 So that the man that is tender among you, and very delicate, his eye shall be evil q toward his brother,

* ch. 13. 6. and toward * the wife of his bosom, and toward the remnant of his children, which he shall leave:

q (i. e.) Unkind, envious, covetous to monopolize these dainty bits to themselves, and grudging that their deareſt relations ſhould have any part of them.

55 So that he will not give to any of them, of the flesh of his children whom he shall eat: because he hath nothing left him in the siege, and in the straitness wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee in all thy gates.

56 The tender and delicate woman among you, which would not adventure to set the sole of her foot upon the ground, for delicateness and tenderness, her eye shall be evil r towards the husband of her bosom, and towards her son, and towards her daughter, r (i. e.) Unmerciful: she will desire or design their destruction for her food.

57 And towards her † young one s, that cometh out from between her feet, and towards her children which she shall bear t: for she shall eat them for want of all things secretly in the siege, and straitness wherewith thine enemy shall distress thee in thy gates.

s Heb. after-birth: that which was loathsome to behold, will now be pleasant to eat; and together with it she shall eat the child which was wrapt up in it, and may be included in this expression. t Or, which she shall have born, i. e. her more grown children.

58 If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law, that are written in this book, that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful Name u, THE LORD THY GOD:

u (i. e.) Thing or person, to wit, this glorious God. Names are oft put for things, as 1 King. 5. 3. Psal. 20. 1. and 115. 1. Act. 4. 12. Eph. 1. 21. and for persons, as Act. 1. 15. Revel. 3. 4.

59 Then the LORD will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long continuance.

60 Moreover, he will bring upon thee all the * diseases of Egypt; which thou wast afraid of: and they shall cleave unto thee.

61 Also every sickness, and every plague which is not written in the book of this law, them will the LORD ‖ He. cause † bring upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

‖ He. to ascend. *ch. 4. 27. *ch. 10. 22.

62 And ye * shall be left few in number, whereas ye were * as the stars of heaven for multitude: because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the LORD thy God.

63 And it shall come to pass, that as the LORD rejoyced over you to do you good, and to multiply you, so the LORD * will rejoyce over you to destroy you x, and to bring you to nought, and ye shall be plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it y.

*Pro. 1. 26 Isa. 1. 24.

x His just indignation against you will be so great, that it will be a pleasure to him to take vengeance on you. For though he doth not delight in the death of a Sinner in itself, yet he doth doubtless delight in the glorifying of his Justice upon incorrigible sinners, seeing the exercise of all his attributes must needs please him, else he were not perfectly happy. y Which was no ordinary land, but a most pleasant land, a land of promise, a token of God's favour, and a pledge of their eternal inheritance, which was a great aggravation of their loss of it.

*Lev. 26. 33 Neh. 1. 8. Jer. 16. 13.

64 And the LORD * shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth, even to the other end of the earth; and there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood, and stone.

65 And * among these nations shalt thou find no ease, * Amos 9. neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest z, but the LORD shall give thee there a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind.

z Ye shall have no settlement in the land whither you are banished, but there you shall be tossed about from place to place, and sold from person to person, or Cain-like, wander about like a vagabond.

66 And thy life shall hang in doubt before thee a, and thou shalt fear day and night: and shalt have none assurance of thy life.

a Either because thou art in the hands of thy enemies that have power, and want not will, to destroy thee: or because of the terrors of thy own mind, and the guilt of thy conscience making thee to fear, even where no great cause to fear is.

67 * In the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even: and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning: for the fear of thine heart wherewith thou shalt fear, and for the sight of thine eyes, which thou shalt see. * Job 7. 4.

68 And the LORD * shall bring thee into Egypt again b with ships c by the way d whereof I spake unto thee, * Thou shalt see it no more again: and there ye shall be sold unto your enemies for bond-men, and bond-women, and no man shall buy you e. * Exod. 14. 13. & 19. 4. ch. 17. 16.

b Whence he hath now so gloriously delivered thee, as repenting of all his kindness to thee, and resolved to undo what he hath done for thee. And the remembrance of what they endured in Egypt could not but make the thoughts of returning thither again very terrible to them. c Which was literally fulfilled under Titus, when multitudes of them were carried thither in ships, and sold there for Slaves, as Josephus relates. And this expression seems to mind them of that time when they went over the Sea without ships, God miraculously drying up the Sea before them, &c. which now they would have occasion sadly to remember. d Or, to the way: the Hebrew Beth here signifying to, as it doth, Gen. 11. 4. Levit. 16. 22. Psal. 19. 5. and 91. 12. Isa. 9. 8. And the way seems not to be meant here of the usual road-way from Canaan to Egypt, which was wholly by land, but to be put for the end of the way or journey, even the land of Egypt, for to this, and not to the road-way between Canaan and Egypt, agree the words here following, whereof I spake unto thee, thou shalt see it. (i. e. Egypt) no more again. And so that way is put for to that land in a place parallel to this, where the very same words are used, Deut. 17. 16. to which this place palpably alludes. e Either because the number of you captives shall be so great, that the market shall be glutted with you; or because you shall be so loathsome and contemptible that men shall not be willing to have you for Slaves. And this was the condition of the Jews after the destruction of Jerusalem, as Josephus the Jew hath left upon record.

CHAP. XXIX.

The manifold Works and Mercies of God a Motive to Obedience, 1—9 Moses solemnly engageth them to keep covenant with God, 10—17 Unbelief, careless Contempt, and breach of Covenant, shall be severely punished, 18—28. The end and use of the revealed Will of God.

THese are the words of the covenant a, which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, * beside the covenant b which he made with them in Horeb. 1 * ch. 5. 2.

a These are the terms or conditions upon which God hath made, i. e. renewed Covenant with you. b (i. e.) That preceding or striking of Covenant. The Covenant was but one in substance, but various in the time and manner of its dispensation.

2 And Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, * Ye have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, unto Pharaoh, and unto all his servants, and unto all his land: * Exod. 14. 31.

3 * The great temptations which thine eyes have seen, the signs, and those great miracles: * chap. 7. 19. & 34. 11.

4 Yet the LORD hath not given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day c.

c This verse comes in by way of correction or exception to the foregoing clause in this manner, I said indeed, ye have seen, &c. v. 2. and thine eyes have seen, &c. but I must recall my words, for in truth you have not seen them; in seeing you have not seen, and perceiving you have not perceived them: you have perceived and seen them with the eyes of your body, but not with your minds and hearts; you have not seen them to any purpose: you have not yet learned rightly to understand the word and works of God, so as to know them for your good, and to make a right use of them, and to comply with them: which he expresseth thus, the Lord hath not given you, &c. not to excuse their wickedness, but partly to direct them what course to take, and to whom they must have recourse for the amending of their former errours, and for a good understanding and improvement of God's works; and partly to aggravate their sin, and to intimate that although the hearing ear, and the seeing eye, and the understanding heart, be the workmanship of God, Prov. 20. 12. and the effects of his special grace, Deut. 30. 6. Jer. 31. 33. and 32. 39. &c. yet their want of this grace was their own fault, and the just punishment of their former sins; their present case being like theirs in Isaiah's time, who first shut their eyes and ears that they might not see and hear, and would not understand, and then by the tremendous but righteous Judgment of God, had their hearts made fat, and their eyes and ears closed that they

they should not be able to see and hear, and understand, as is manifest from the history of their carriage in the wilderness.

5 And I have led you forty years in the wilderness, your cloths are not waxen old upon you, and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot d.

d So far, that it was necessary for you to throw them away, and to get new ones. See on Deut. 8. 4.

6 Ye have not eaten bread e, neither have ye drunk wine or strong drink f, that ye might know that I am the LORD your God g.

e (i. e.) Common bread purchased by your own money, or made by your own hands, but Heavenly and Angelical bread, Deut. 8. 3. Psal. 78. 24, 25. You have subsisted without bread the staff of life. f But only water out of the rock. g The Lord Omnipotent and All-sufficient for your provision, without the help of any Creatures, and your God in covenant with you who hath a true affection to you, and fatherly care of you, even when ordinary means fail.

7 And when ye came unto this place, * Sihon the King of Heshbon, and Og the King of Bashan came out against us unto battel, and we smote them,

8 And we took their land, and * gave it for an inheritance unto the Reubenite, and to the Gadite, and to the half tribe of Manasseh.

* Num. 32. 33.

* chap. 4. 9. * Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may † prosper in all that ye do.

† Heb. act prudently. So Gr.

10 Ye stand this day all of you before the LORD your God h: your captains of your tribes, your elders, and your officers, with all the men of Israel.

h In his presence, who sees your hearts and carriages, and before his Tabernacle, where it is probable they were now called together, and assembled for this work. See v. 2.

11 Your little ones, your wives, and thy stranger i that is in thy camp, from the hewer of thy wood, unto the drawer of thy water k:

i Such strangers as had embraced their Religion. k All sorts of persons, yea, even the meanest of them, such as these were, Jos. 9. 27. all sorts and ranks of servants.

12 That thou shouldest † enter into covenant l with the LORD thy God, and into his oath l, which the LORD thy God maketh with thee this day:

l (i. e.) Into covenant or agreement confirmed by a solemn oath.

13 That he may establish thee to day for a people unto himself, and that he may be unto thee a God, as he hath said unto thee, and as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

14 Neither with you only do I make this covenant, and this oath:

15 But with him that standeth here with us this day, before the LORD our God, * and also with him that is not here with us this day m: * Act. 2. 39. 1 Cor. 7. 14.

m (i. e.) With your prosperity. For so the covenant was made at first with Abraham and his seed, by which as God engaged himself to continue the blessing of Abraham upon his posterity, so he also engaged them to the same duties and conditions which were required of Abraham. So it is even among men, where a King confers an estate upon a Subject and his Heirs for ever, upon some certain conditions, all his Heirs who enjoy that benefit, are obliged to the same conditions. But whatsoever becomes of mans right, God the Creatour and Soveraign Lord of all men and things hath an unquestionable right and power to oblige all persons that are or shall be, to such conditions as he pleaseth, and especially to such conditions as are for their own benefit, which is the present case.

16 (For ye know how we have dwelt in the land of Egypt n, and how we came through the nations o which ye passed by.

n Where you have seen their Idolatries, and learned too much of them, as the Golden Calf shewed, and therefore need to renew your covenant with God; where also we were in dreadful bondage whence God alone hath delivered us, to whom therefore we are deeply obliged, and have all reason to renew our covenant with him. o (i. e.) With what hazards, if God had not appeared for us.

p What sorry tools they are, what senseless and ridiculous deities; so that you have great reason to value your God, and to cleave to him in covenant, and to take heed of such abominable Idolatries.

18 Lest there should be g among you, man or woman, or family, or tribe, whose heart turneth away r this day from the LORD our God, to go, and serve the gods of these nations: * lest there should be among you a root s that beareth ‖ gall and wormwood t: * Heb. 12. 15. ‖ Or, a possessor. Heb. יֵשׁ

q Or take heed or beware lest there be. For it seems to be an Ellipsis, or defect of a verb which is usual in Scripture, and which we have in a case parallel to this, Gen. 3. 22. And now we must take care lest he put forth, &c. Or this particle, lest, may be joined with v. 14, 15. to this purpose, I now renew the covenant with you, and with your posterity, lest any of you or yours should be tempted to depart from God, &c. r (i. e.) Who turneth away from God to Idols not by constraint, but by choice, and the inclination of his own heart. By this phrase he leads them to the spring of their sin and ruine, even their own hearts, which he admonisheth them hereby to look to above all things. s Either 1. An evil heart enclining you to such cursed Idolatry, and bringing forth bitter fruits. Or, rather 2. Some secret and subtle Apostate who lurks and works like a root under ground, and likely conveys his poyson to the infection of others; for both the foregoing and following words speak of some particular person. t (i. e.) Which though for the present it may please your fancy, yet in the end, afford you selves, and produce bitter fruits, not only distasteful to God, but also poisonful and destructive to your selves.

19 And it come to pass when he ‖ heareth the words of this curse x, that he bless himself in his heart, saying, I shall have peace z, though I walk in the ‖ imagination of mine heart a, to add † drunkenness to thirst b: ‖ Heb. hardness. † Heb. thirst.

u (i. e.) That root, or that man mentioned, v. 18. x (i. e.) Of that oath mentioned, v. 12. wherein he swore that he would keep covenant with God, and that with a curse pronounced against himself if he did not perform it. Now if when he reads this again, or hears of it from others, y (i. e.) Flatter himself in his own eyes, as Psal. 36. 2. with vain conceits and hopes, as if God did not mind such things, and either could not, or would not punish them. Compare Psal. 49. 18. Jer. 2. 20. Zech. 11. 5. z (i. e.) Safety and prosperity. a Though in my practices and worship I do not follow God's command, but my own devices, and whatsoever my fancy best liketh, minding nothing but the gratifying of mine own fancy and humour. b (i. e.) Not only to satisfie his thirst, i. e. his covetousness and inclination to wickedness, but even to exceed it, as Drunkards take oft times more than th ir appetite desires, and drink out of meer wantonness, or from a desire to be drunk; and as likely persons commit lewdness with others more than their natural inclinations desire, or their strength can well bear, merely from a wicked mind, and from contempt of God; and because they will do so. The words may be rendred, to add thirst to drunkenness, i. e. particle eth, which is a note of the Accusative Case, being joined with thirst, and not with drunkenness, and so the sense may be this, that when he hath multiplied his sins, and made himself as it were drunk with them, yet he is not satisfied therewith, but still when his Appetite, and provokes his thirst after more, as Drunkards commonly will use means and temptations to make themselves thirst after more drink, that they may drink more abundantly. Or thus, to add the moist or moistening to the thirsty, (i. e.) in stead of restraining and mortifying, as he ought to do, fully and greedily to satisfie his idolatrous or wicked inclinations, and resolved to give up himself to all the desires of his own heart. Compare Psal. 23. 5. Prov. 23. 35. Isa. 50. 1. and 56. 12. Eph. 4. 19.

20 * The LORD will not spare him, but then the anger of the LORD, and his jealousie shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him: and the LORD shall blot out his name from under heaven d. * Exod. 24. 7, 8. Compare Psal. 18. 8. d (i. e.) Destroy his person and memory from amongst men.

21 And the LORD shall separate him unto evil e, out of all the tribes of Israel, according to all the curses of the covenant f, that † are written in this book of the law: † Heb. that are.

e (i. e.) Unto some peculiar and exemplary plague; he will make him a monument of his displeasure to the whole land. ‖ He intimates that the covenant of grace, which God made with them, hath not only blessings belonging to it, as this foolish person imagined, but curses also to the transgressours of it.

22 So that the generation to come of your children that shall rise up after you, and the stranger that shall come from a far land, shall say g, when they see the plagues of that land, and the sicknesses † which the LORD hath laid upon it: ‖ wherewith the LORD made it sick. † Heb.

g The words following, v. 24, 25, &c.

23 And that the whole land thereof is brimstone, and † salt, and burning h, that it is not sown, nor beareth, nor any grass groweth therein, * like the overthrow of Sodom, and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, which the LORD overthrew in his anger, and in his wrath: † Heb. burnt salt. * Gen. 19. 24, 25.

h (i. e.) Is burnt up and made barren, as with brimstone and salt. See Judg. 9. 45. Psal. 107. 34. Jer. 17. 6. Ezek. 47. 11.

24 Even all nations shall say, * Wherefore hath the LORD done thus unto this land? what meaneth the heat of this great anger? * 1 King 9. 8. Jer. 22. 8.

25 Then men shall say, Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD God of their fathers, which he made with them, when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt.

26 For they went and served other gods, and worshipped them; gods whom they knew not, and ‖ whom † he had not † given unto them i. ‖ Or, who. † have not. † Heb. apportioned.

i (i. e.) Whom God had not given or divided to them, as their portion, or for their worship, but hath divided them unto all Nations, from any one, as it is said, Deut. 4. 19. not for their worship, but for their service and service. So he speaks here of the Sun and Moon and Stars, which were the principal Gods worshipped by the neighbouring Nations. Or, to whom now he hath given this, i. e. that they should be worshipped, or, to whom no worship belongs. So this is an argument against Idolatry. Or, who he knows have given no such thing: to wit, any thing: It is an Ellipsis of the Accusative, which is very frequent: gods known to them by no benefits received from them, as they had from their God, whom therefore it was the greater folly and ingratitude to forsake.

f (i. e.) In the outside, in a little chest fixed to it, for nothing but the Tables of stone were contained in the Ark, 1 King. 8. 9. Here it was kept for greater security and reverence. g (i. e. Against thy people, to whom he turns his speech that they might be more affected with it.

27 For I know thy rebellion, and thy stiff-neck; behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, ye have been rebellious against the LORD, and how much more after my death?

28 Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, and call heaven and earth to record against them.

29 For I know that after my death ye will utterly corrupt your selves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you: and evil will befall you in the latter days, because ye will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.

30 And Moses spake in the ears of all the congregation of Israel the words of this song until they were ended.

CHAP. XXXII.

The Divine Song, in which God's Power, mercy to his people, and vengeance on his enemies is exalted, their ingratitude is rebuked, 1—18. God's wrath and future judgments, 19—26. Yet, the Idolatrous Nation not to be destroyed; and they at last to be enlarged, 27—43. He exhorts them to set their hearts on these words for their good, 44—47. God sendeth him up to Mount Nebo, there to see the promised Land and dye, 48—52.

1 Give * ear, O ye heavens a, and I will speak: and hear, O earth a, the words of my mouth.

* chap. 4. 26. & 30. 19. Psal. 50. 4. Isa. 1. 2. Jer. 2. 12. & 6. 19.

a Either 1. Angels and men. Or 2. You lifeless and senseless creatures, heaven and earth, which he calls upon partly to accuse the stupidity of Israel, that were more dull of hearing than these; and partly as witnesses of the truth of his sayings and the justice of Gods proceedings against them.

2 * My doctrine shall drop as the rain b, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass.

* Isa. 55. 10, 11. 1 Cor. 3. 6, 7, 8.

b Look what effect rain and dew have upon herbs and grass which they make fresh and fragrant and growing, the same effect I may justly expect and hope that my discourse will have upon your hearts, i. e. to make them soft and pliable and fruitful. Or this may be a prayer, Let my doctrine drop, &c. O that it might do so, that my discourse might not be lost upon you, but be profitable to you; the future tense of the indicative mood being put for the imperative mood, as is usual.

3 Because I will publish the Name of the LORD c, ascribe ye greatness unto our God d.

c (i. e.) His glorious excellencies and righteous and worthy actions, by which he hath made himself known as a man is known by his name, and by which it will appear both that there is no blame to be laid upon him whatsoever befalls you, and that it is gross madness to forsake such a God for dumb Idols and meer vanities. d As I am about to publish the great power and Majesty and glory of God, so do you also own and acknowledge it, as you have reason to do; or do you attend to the words which God hath commanded me to speak to you in his Name with that diligence, reverence and godly fear which the prefence of so great and glorious a Majesty calls for.

4 He is the rock e, his work is perfect f: for all his ways are judgment g: a God of truth h, and without iniquity, just and right i he.

e Or, a rock, as for the stability and everlastingness of his nature, and invincibleness of his power, so also for his sixedness and immutability in his counsels and promises and ways; so that if there shall be a sad change in your affairs from an high and prosperous, to a calamitous and deplorable, condition, as there will be, remember that this proceeds from your selves and from the change of your ways and carriages towards God, and not from God, in who in there is no variableness nor shadow of change, Jam. 1. 17. f All his works and actions are unblameable, as being perfect in and righteous, as it follows. g All his administrations in the world and particularly all his dealings with you are managed with judgment and justice. h Constant to his promises: you cannot accuse him of any levity or unfaithfulness towards you to this day.

5 † They * have corrupted themselves k, ‖ their spot is not the spot of his children: l they are a perverse and crooked generation m.

i (i. e.) The Israelites, as the following words manifest. k This phrase sometimes in Scripture notes sin, and sometimes destruction And so the sense may be either, 1. Their wickedness is not from God but from themselves, and their own choice; they have wilfully and industriously depraved themselves, and sold themselves to sin. Or rather 2. Their destruction is not from God, who is just and true, &c. as was now said, but wholly and solely from themselves, and from their own wickedness, as it here follows. l (i. e.) Their blemishes or sins are not committed through ignorance or frailty or surprizal, as good men sometimes sin, but they proceed from design and deliberation, are accompanied with malice and wilfulness and contempt, and followed with obstinacy, impenitency and incorrigibleness. So that they carry themselves not like my children and people as they seem to be and profess to be, but like mine enemies. m Not only some few of them but the whole body or generation of them are perverse, (i. e.) froward and untractable, and crooked, (i. e.) irregular and disorderly, not agreeing with the straight and righteous nature of God and of his law. Compare Isa. 42. 16.

6 Do ye thus requite the LORD, O foolish people and unwise? is not he thy father that hath bought thee? Hath he not made thee o and eſtablished thee? p.

n That hath redeemed and rescued thee from Egyptian bondage. o (i. e.) Advanced thee, as that word is used, 1 Sam. 12. 6. Eph. 6. 6. & Psal. 95. 6. & 149. 2. Isa. 43. 7. Made thee, not only in a general and common way by Creation or production, but in a peculiar manner by adoption or making thee his peculiar people and children. p (i. e.) Renewed and confirmed his grace and favour to thee, and not taken it away from thee, which thou hast oft provoked him to do.

7 Remember the days † of old q; consider the years † Heb. of † of many generations: ask thy father, and he will shew generation. thee, thy elders, and they will tell thee.

r When God by his providence did allot the several parts of the world to several people, which was done Gen. 10. and 11. See Deut. 2. 5. 9. Amos 9. 7. Act. 17. 26, 27. s (i. e.) Divided them in their languages and habitations according to their families. t (i. e.) He disposed of the several lands and limits of the people so as he did reserve a convenient and sufficient place for the great numbers of the people of Israel, whom he designed to make as numerous as the stars of heaven. And therefore he so guided the hearts of several people that the posterity of Canaan, which was accursed of God, Gen. 9. 25, 26, 27. and devoted to ruine, should be feared in that country which God intended for the children of Israel, that so when their iniquities were ripe and Gods time came, they might be rooted out, and the Israelites might come in their stead.

9 For the * LORDS portion is his people u: Jacob is the † lot of his inheritance.

* Exod. 19. 5. 1 Pet. 2. 9. † Heb. the cord.

u It is no wonder God had ſo great a regard to this people, for he chose them out of all mankind to be his peculiar portion and treasure.

10 He found him x * in a deſert land y, and in the waſt howling wilderneſs z: he ‖ led him about a, he inſtructed him, he * kept him as the apple of his eye b.

* chap. 8. 15. Jer. 2. 6. x Nor by chance, but as it were looking out and ſeeking for him, he met with him there. He did indeed manifeſt himſelf to him in Egypt, but it was in the wilderneſs at Sinai where he found God, and God found him in an eminent manner, and revealed his mind and will to him, and entred into covenant with him, and imparted himſelf and his grace and bleſſing to him, that being the 250. Zeckel pointed in Egypt for God and Israel to meet together, Exod. 3. 12. By this word he alſo ſignifies both their loſt condition in themſelves, and that their recovery was not from themſelves, but only from God who ſought and found them out by his grace. y In a place deſtitute of all the neceſſaries and comforts of life, which alſo was a type of that deſolate and comfortleſs condition in which all men are before the grace of God finds them out. See Cant. 3. 6. and 8. 5. Ezek. 16. 4. Hoſ. 9. 10. and 13. 5. z Where inſtead of the voices of men is nothing heard but the howlings and yellings and ſcreitches of ravenous birds and beaſts. See Iſa. 43. 20. Mich. 1. 8. a He conducted them from place to place by his cloudy pillar and providence. See Exod. 13. 18, &c. Or, he compaſſed him about, by his provident care over him, watching over him and preſerving him on every ſide. Compare Pſal. 32. 7. b As men uſe to keep the apple of their eye, i. e. with ſingular care and diligence, this being as a moſt tender ſo a moſt uſeful part. Compare Pſal. 17. 8. Prov. 7. 2. Zech. 2. 8.

11 * As an eagle ſtirreth up her neſt c, fluttereth over her young, ſpreadeth abroad her wings d, taketh them, beareth them on her wings e:

* Jer. 49. 4 chap. 4. 37. Iſa. 31. 5.

c (i. e.) Her young ones in the neſt, by a common Metonymy; which the by her cry and motion provoketh to flie by her example. d As preparing her ſelf to flie. e Or, as on her wings, i. e. gently and tenderly and ſafely too, as if ſhe carried them not in her claws for fear of hurting them, but upon her wings. So it is only an Ellipſis of the particle as, which is frequent, as hath been ſhewed. Though ſome ſay, the Eagle doth uſually carry her young ones upon her wings.

12 So the LORD alone did lead him f, and there was * no ſtrange God with him g.

* Iſa. 43. 12.

f (i. e.) When they were ſhut up in Egypt as in their neſt whence they durſt not venture to fly nor flie, he taught and incouraged and enabled them to fly out and free themſelves from that bondage, and brought them into a ſtate of liberty and life; he dealt tenderly with them, bearing with their infirmities, keeping them from all harms. g To wit, to aſſiſt him at that work or to deliver them. The more unworthy they in giving to Idols a ſhare in that worſhip and ſervice which they owe to God only.

To ride upon in Scripture phraſe is to ſubdue or conquer, as Pſal. 45. 4. and 66. 12. Rev. 6. 2. and 19. 11, 14. i This being a land flowing with honey, Exod. 3. 8. 17. where the bees made honey even in woods, as 1 Sam. 14. or in the holes of rocks, or in the trees that grew upon or among rocks. k The olive trees grow and fructifie moſt in rocky or hilly places.

14 Butter of kine, and milk of ſheep with fat of lambs l, and rams of the breed of Baſhan m, and goats, with the fat of kidneys of wheat n, and thou didſt drink the pure blood of the grape o.

l For though the fat wherewith the inward parts were covered was not to be eaten by them but offered to God, Lev. 3. 9, 10. yet that fat which was faſt joined to and mixed with the fleſh they might eat, as the Jewiſh Doctors note. m A place famous for excellent cattel, Numb. 32. 4, and 33. n (i. e.) With the fineſt of the grains or kernels of wheat; compared to kidneys for their ſhape and plumpneſs and largeneſs. 15 But * Jeſurun p waxed fat and kicked q: * thou art waxen fat, thou art grown thick, thou art covered with fatneſs r: then he forſook God which made him, and lightly eſteemed the Rock of his ſalvation.

p (i. e.) Iſrael, as is agreed by Chriſtian and Jewiſh Interpreters; whom he calls right or upright or righteous, (as the word ſignifies) not that they were ſo indeed, but partly by way of inſtruction to mind them what they profeſſed and promiſed and ought to be; and partly by way of exprobration, to ſhew them how unlike they were to the people of God which they pretended to be, and what a ſhame it was to them to degenerate ſo much from their name and profeſſion. q As well fed and wanton cattel uſed to do: he grew inſolent and rebellious againſt God and againſt his word and ſpirit. r Which is here rightly underſtood and ſupplied, by comparing this place with Job 15. 27. Pſal. 17. 10.

16 They provoked him to jealouſie † with ſtrange gods, with abominations provoked they him to anger.

r (i. e.) To anger and fury, for jealouſie is the rage of a man, Prov. 6. 34. And withall it implies the ground of his anger, to wit, their falſeneſs to God whom they had owned and accepted as their husband, and their ſpiritual whoredom with other Gods.

17 * They ſacrificed unto devils s, ‖ not to God u: to gods whom they knew not x, to new gods, that came newly up y, whom your fathers feared not z.

s (i. e.) Unto Idols, which the Devils brought into the World in oppoſition to God, in and by which the Devils oft-times manifeſted themſelves unto men, and gave them anſwers, and received their worſhip. Compare 1 Cor. 10. 20. The Gentiles pretended to worſhip God in their Idols, and the Devils which inſpired them deluded the nations with falſe pretences that they were a ſort of lower Gods. Moſes therefore takes off this maſk, and ſhews the Iſraelites that theſe pretended Gods were really Devils, thoſe great enemies of mankind, and therefore that it was the height of madneſs to honour or worſhip them. u This he ſaith, either becauſe though at firſt they joined God and Idols together in worſhip, yet at laſt they quite forſook God and adhered to Idols only: or becauſe God utterly rejected thoſe ſacrifices which they offered to him together with Idols, and took them for no ſacrifices. See 1 Cor. 10. 21. x Or, who never knew them, i. e. never ſhewed any kindneſs to them, or did them any good: for ſo words of knowledge are often uſed, as Pſal. 1. 6. Hoſ. 13. 5. y Not ſimply or abſolutely, for ſome of theſe Gods had been worſhipped for many generations and had a fair pretence of long antiquity, but comparatively to the true God, who is the antient of days, Dan. 7. 9. and who was worſhipped from the beginning of the world. To this original and firſt antiquity Moſes recalls them; as alſo our Saviour doth recall the Jews to the firſt inſtitution, Mat. 19. 8. And therefore we may ſafely follow both their patterns in deſpiſing all pretences of antiquity which are contrary to Gods firſt inſtitutions contained (as all conſeſs) in the holy Scriptures. z (i. e.) Served not, worſhipped not, but juſtly deſpiſed and abhorred them.

To Sea, in way of Traffick, becauſe their portion lay near the Sea. Or both may be joined, and in both reſpects his courſe is oppoſite to that of Iſſachar, who was a lover of peace and paſturage. See Gen. 49. 14, 15. n Who is here joined with Zebulun, both becauſe they were brethren by Father and Mother too, and becauſe their poſſeſſions lay near together. o (i.e.) Thou ſhalt give thy ſelf to the management of Land and Cattle, living quietly in thy own poſſeſſions, diſliking the troubles of war and of merchandiſe. So the phraſe is uſed, Gen. 25. 27. Joſ. 22. 4. Judg. 5. 24. and 7. 8.

19 They p ſhall call the people q unto the mountain r, there they ſhall offer ſacrifices of righteouſneſs s: for they ſhall ſuck of the abundance of the ſea t, and of treaſures hid in the ſand u.

p Either 1. Zebulun and Iſſachar. Or rather 2. Zebulun only, as the following matter ſhews, and it was Zebulun that Moſes takes more ſpecial notice of ver. 18. bringing in Iſſachar only by the by, in conjunction with him, or in oppoſition to him. And ſo having diſpatched Iſſachar in two words, he returns to Zebulun, a more active Tribe. q (i.e.) The Gentiles, either thoſe of Galilee, which was called Galilee of the Gentiles, who were their Neighbours; or people of other nations, with whom they had commerce, which they endeavoured to improve in perſwading them to the true God and his Worſhip and Service. r (i.e.) To the Temple, which Moſes knew was to be ſeated upon a mountain. s (i.e.) Such as God requires and Righteouſneſs obligeth them to offer. Their trafficking abroad with Heathen nations ſhall not make them forget or neglect their duty at home, nor ſhall their diſtance from the place of ſacrifice hinder them from coming to it to diſcharge that duty. t They ſhall grow rich by the traffick of the ſea, and their riches ſhall not make them the worſe as they do others, but they ſhall conſecrate themſelves and their riches to the ſervice of God. u Such precious things as either 1. Are contained in the ſand of the ſea and Rivers, in which ſometimes there is mixed a conſiderable quantity of Gold and Silver. Or 2. Such as grow in the Sea, or are fetched from the ſandy bottom of it, as pearls, coral, ambergreaſe, &c. Or 3. Such as being caſt into the Sea by ſhipwrack are caſt upon the ſhore by the workings of the Sea, and thence taken either by merchants, or by the people that live upon the Sea-Coaſt.

20 And of Gad he ſaid, Bleſſed be he that * enlar- * See Jer. 49. 28. &c. † Chet. 12. 6. geth Gad x: he dwelleth as a lion y, and teareth the arm with the crown of the head z.

x By praiſing God for enlarging Gad he ſuppoſeth the ground of theſe praiſes, that God would enlarge Gad, i. e. either 1. enlarge his Territories: which ſeems needleſs, becauſe they had a very large portion now when Moſes uttered theſe words. Or 2 bring him out of his ſtraits and troubles, which he was likely to be oft engaged in, becauſe he was encompaſſed with potent Enemies. And in this ſenſe the phraſe is uſed Pſ. 4. 2. compare Pſ. 31. 8. and 118. 5. One inſtance of the fulfilling hereof we have Judg. 11. y (i.e.) Safe and ſecure from his Enemies, and terrible to them when they rouſe and moleſt him. See 1 Chron. 5. 18, &c. and 12. 8. z (i.e.) Utterly deſtroys his Enemies, both the head, the ſeat of the crown, their dignity and principality, and the Arm, the ſubject of ſtrength and inſtrument of action; both chief Princes, and their inſtruments and ſubjects.

21 And * he provided the firſt part a for himſelf, becauſe there in a portion of the law-giver b was he † ſeated, and he came with the heads of the people c, he executed the juſtice of the LORD, and his judgments with Iſrael d.

* Num. 32. 29. † Heb. ſeated.

a The firſt-fruits of the Land of promiſe, the country of Sihon, which was firſt conquered, which he is ſaid to provide for himſelf, becauſe he deſired and ſo obtain'd it of Moſes, Numb. 32. b (i.e.) Of Moſes whoſe portion this is called, either becauſe this part of the Land beyond Jordan was the only part of the Land which Moſes was permitted to enter upon: or becauſe it was given to him by Moſes, whereas the portions beyond Jordan were given to the ſeveral Tribes by Joſhua according to the direction of the ſor. c Heb. head or protected: for their Wives and Children were ſecured in their Cities, whileſt many of their men went over to the War in Canaan. d (i.e.) He went, or he will go (the preter tenſe being put for the future after the manner of the Prophets) to wit, to the war in Canaan, with the Princes, or Captains, or Rulers of the people of Iſrael, i. e. under their command and conduct, as indeed they did; or with the firſt of the people; or, in the front of the people, as the Syriack renders it; for this tribe and their brethren whoſe lot fell beyond Jordan, were to march and did march into Canaan before their brethren, as it is expreſſed, Joſ. 1. 14. And the Hebrew word reſch oft ſignifies the beginning or firſt of a thing, (i. e.) He did or will execute the juſt judgment of God againſt the Canaanites, as the reſt of the Iſraelites did; he will joyn in the war againſt them, as he promiſed to do Numb. 32. 27, &c. and actually did, Joſ. 1. 14.

22 And of Dan he ſaid, Dan is a lions whelp f: he ſhall leap from Baſhan g.

f (i.e.) Courageous and generous and ſtrong and ſucceſsful againſt his Enemies. g Or, which leapeth from Baſhan: for this clauſe ſeems not to belong to the Tribe of Dan, which was at a great diſtance from Baſhan, even at the other end of the Land, and therefore this ſeems too great a leap for him, and if he did leap ſo far he ſhould rather be ſaid to take his leap from his own lot in the South of Canaan, and thence to leap not from Baſhan, but to Baſhan, to fall upon his Enemies there: but it rather is a continuation of the Metaphor, and belongs to the Lion, which is ſaid to leap from Baſhan, becauſe there were many and fierce Lions in thoſe parts, ſee Judg. 14. 5. whence they uſed to come forth to prey, and their manner was to leap upon the prey.

23 And of Naptali he ſaid, O Naptali ſatisfied with favour g, and full with the bleſſing of the LORD h: poſſeſs thou the weſt and the ſouth i.

g Either 1. With Gods favour, as it follows: Or 2. With mens favour or good-will, his carriage being peaceable, courteous and obliging, as is intimated, Gen. 49. 21. according to the common Tranſlation; ſee the notes there. h (i.e.) Seated in a pleaſant and fertile and happy ſoil; ſuch as Galilee, (in which their ſhare lay) eminently was, as Joſephus and others report. i Or, the Sea and the South. This is not to be underſtood of the places, that his lot ſhould fall there, for he was rather in the Eaſt and North of the Land; but of the pleaſures and commodities of the Weſt or of the Sea, which were conveyed to him from his neighbour Zebulun; and of the South, i. e. from the ſouthern tribes and parts of Canaan, which were brought to him down the Rivers Jordan, and both ſorts of commodities were given him in exchange for the fruits of his rich ſoil which he had in great abundance.

24 And of Aſher he ſaid, Let Aſher be bleſſed with children k; let him be acceptable to his brethren l, and let him dip his foot in oil m.

k He ſhall have numerous and thoſe ſtrong and healthful and comely Children. Or ſhall be bleſſed or praiſed of or above the ſons, i. e. the other Sons of Iſrael, or his brethren, as it here follows, i. e. His portion ſhall fall in an excellent part, where he may have the benefits both of his own fat ſoil, and of the Sea, by his neighbours, Tyre and Sidon. l By his ſweet diſpoſition and winning carriage and communication of his excellent commodities to his brethren he ſhall gain their affections. m He ſhall have ſuch plenty of Oil that he may not only waſh his face but his feet alſo in it. Or, the fatneſs and fertility of his Country may be expreſſed by Oil, as Job 29. 6. And ſo it agrees with Jacobs bleſſing of him, Gen. 49. 20.

Or, unto thy ſhoe ſhall be iron.

25 ‖ Thy ſhoes ſhall be iron and braſs n: and as thy days, ſo ſhall thy ſtrength be o.

n This may note, either 1. Their great ſtrength by which they ſhould be able to tread down and cruſh their enemies, as Chriſts feet for this very reaſon are ſaid to be of braſs, Revel. 1. 15. Or 2. The mines of Iron and Copper, which were in their portion, whence Sidon their neighbour was famous among the heathens for its plenty of braſs, and Sanypus is thought to have its name from the braſs and iron, which were melted there in great quantity. Compare Deut. 8. 9. Or 3. The firmneſs of its ſituation, and ſo ſome antients and moderns render the words, thy habitation or thy encloſure ſhall be iron and braſs, i. e. fortified as it were with walls and gates of iron and braſs, being defended by the Sea on one ſide, by their brethren on other ſides, as alſo by mountains and rivers. o (i.e.) Thy ſtrength ſhall not be diminiſhed with thine age, but thou ſhalt have the vigeur of youth even in thine old age: thy Tribe ſhall grow ſtronger and ſtronger.

26 There is none like unto the God of Jeſurun, who rideth upon the heaven p in thy help, and in his excellency q on the ſkie.

p (i.e.) Upon the clouds to ſuccour thee from thence, by ſending thunder and lightning upon thine enemies. See Pſal. 18. 7, &c. and 68. 34, &c. q Or, in his magnificence, i. e. magnificently, gloriouſly and with great Majeſty as well as power.

27 The eternal God is thy refuge r, and underneath are the everlaſting arms: and he ſhall thruſt out the enemy from before thee, and ſhall ſay, Deſtroy them s.

r Or, thy dwelling-place. Compare Pſal. 91. 1. s (i.e.) Under thy arms to hold thee up, as my hands were once held up by Aaron and Hur. He will ſupport and defend thee. Or the meaning is, Though he dwelleth on high, yet he comes down to the earth beneath to aſſiſt and deliver thee. t (i. e.) Shall give thee not only command and commiſſion, but alſo power to deſtroy them: for Gods ſaying is doing, his word comes with power.

28 t Iſrael then ſhall dwell in ſafety alone u; the fountain of Jacob ſhall be upon a land of corn and wine: alſo his heavens y ſhall drop down dew. * Jer. 23. 6

u Either 1. Though they be alone, and have no confederates to defend them, but have all the world againſt them, yet my ſingle protection ſhall be ſufficient for them. Or 2. Moſes from Mount Nebo vieweth the Land, 1—4. He dieth twice, 5. His Burial, 6. His age, 7. Thirty day mourning for him, 8. Joſhua ſucceedeth him, 9. The praiſes of Moſes, 10—12.

1 AND Moſes went up a from the plains of Moab, unto the mountain of Nebo b to the top of ‖ Piſgah, that is over againſt Jericho: and the LORD ſhewed him * all the land of Gilead c unto Dan d, ‖ Or, Zegah, chap. 3. 27.

a In compliance with Gods will that he ſhould then and there reſign up his ſoul to God. b Of which ſee Num. 27. 12. and 32. 38. & Deut. 32. 49 c Whereof Moſes had as yet ſeen and enjoyed but a ſmall part. Of this Land ſee Gen. 31. 21. Numb. 32. 1. 39. &c. d To that City which after Moſes his death was called Dan. Joſ. 19. 47. Judg. 18. 29. So that here is an anticipation. But it ſeems moſt probable, and is commonly believed, that this chapter was not written by Moſes but by Eleazar or Joſhua or Ezra, or ſome other man of God directed hereto by the Holy Ghoſt; this being no more impeachment to the divine authority of this chapter, that the penman is unknown, which alſo is the caſe of ſome other Books of Scripture, than it is to the authority of the Acts of the King or Parliament, that they are Written or Printed by ſome unknown perſon.

2 And all Naphtali e, and the land of Ephraim, and Manaſſeh, and all the land of Judah, unto the utmoſt ſea f, e (i.e.) The land of Naphtali, which together with Dan, was in the North of Canaan, as Ephraim and Manaſſeh were in the midland parts, and Judah on the South, and the Sea on the weſt. So theſe parts lying in the ſeveral quarters are put for all the reſt. He ſtood in the Eaſt and ſaw alſo Galilee, which was in the Eaſtern part of the land, and thence he ſaw the North and South and Weſt. f (i. e.) The midland Sea, which was the utmoſt bound of the land of promiſe on the weſt.

3 And the ſouth g, and the plain of the valley of Jericho h, the city of palm-trees i, unto Zoar.

g (i.e.) The ſouth quarter of the land of Judah, which is towards the ſalt ſea, which is deſcribed Num. 34. 3, 4, 5. Joſ. 15. 1, 2, 3, 4. as the weſtern quarter of Judah was deſcribed in the words next foregoing. h Or, in which lies Jericho: which was in the Tribe of Benjamin. i (i.e.) Jericho, ſo called both here and Judg. 1. 16. and 3. 13. 2 Chron. 28. 15. from the multitude of Palm-trees which were in thoſe parts, as Joſephus and Strabo write. From whence and the balm there growing it was called Jericho, which ſignifies, odoriferous or ſweet ſmelling.

4 And the LORD ſaid unto him, * This is the land which I ſware unto Abraham, unto Iſaac, and unto Jacob, ſaying, I will give it unto thy ſeed: I have cauſed thee to ſee it with thine eyes k, but thou ſhalt not go over thither. * Gen. 12. 7. & 13. 15. & 26. 3. & 28. 13.

k To wit, by a miraculous power ſtrengthning thy ſight or making a clear repreſentation of all theſe parts to thy view.

5 So Moses the servant of the LORD died there in the land of Moab l, according to the word of the LORD.

l (i.e.) in the land which Israel took from the Amorites, which anciently was the land of Moab.

6 And he m buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over-against Beth-Peor: but no man knoweth of his sepulchre n unto this day.

m (i.e.) The Lord, last mentioned, buried him either immediately, or by the ministery of Angels, whereof Michael was the Chief or Prince, Jude ver. 9. n (i.e.) Of the particular place of the Valley where he was buried: which God hid from the Israelites, to prevent their Superstition and Idolatry, to which he knew their great proneness. And for this very reason the Devil endeavoured to have it known and contended with Michael about it, Jude ver. 9. And seeing God would not endure the worship of the Relicks or Tomb of so eminent a person as Moses was, it is ridiculous to think God would permit this Honour to be given to any of the succeeding Saints who were so far inferior to him.

7 And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died: his eye was not dim, nor his † natural force † abated o.

† Heb. was not moist. † Heb. fled.

o By a miraculous work of God in mercy to his Church and People.

8 And the children of Israel wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days p: so the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended.

p Which was the usual time of mourning for persons of high place and eminency. See Gen. 50. 3, 10. Num. 20. 29. For others seven days sufficed.

9 And Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom q: for Moses had laid his hands upon him r, and the children of Israel hearkned unto him, and did as the LORD commanded Moses.

q And other gifts and graces too, as appears from the History, but Wisdom is mentioned as being most necessary for the Government to which he was now called. r Which God had appointed as a sign to Moses and Joshua and the Israelites that this was the person whom he had appointed and qualified for his great work. See Numb. 27. 18, &c. Compare Gen. 48. 10. Numb. 8. 10.

10 And there arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses s, whom the LORD knew face to face t:

s In the priviledges here following. t (i.e.) Whom God did so freely and familiarly and frequently converse with. See on Exod. 33. 11. Numb. 12. 8. Deut. 5. 4.

11 In all the signs u, and the wonders which the LORD sent him to do in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh, and to all his servants, and to all his land.

u This is to be joyned either 1. with the words immediately foregoing, as an eminent instance wherein God did know or acknowledge and own or converse so familiarly with Moses, namely in the working of all his signs and wonders in Egypt, where God spake to him so oft, and sometimes even in Pharaoh's presence, and answered his requests, so particularly and punctually whether he called for vengeance or for deliverance. Or 2. With the more remote words, there was none like unto Moses in regard of all the signs, &c. the words, whom the Lord knew face to face, coming in by way of parenthesis.

12 And in all that mighty hand, and in all the great terrour which Moses shewed in the sight of all Israel.

JOSHUA.

The ARGUMENT.

It is not material to know who was the Pen-man of this Book, whether Joshua, as seems most probable from Chap. 24. 26. or some other holy Prophet. It is sufficient, that this Book was a part of the Holy Scriptures or Oracles of God committed to, and carefully kept by the Jews, and by them faithfully delivered to us; as appears by the concurring Testimony of Christ and his Apostles, who owned and approved of the same Holy Scriptures which the Church of the Jews did. But this is certain, that divers Passages in this Book, were put into it after Joshua's death, as Josh. 10. 13. compared with 2 Sam. 1. 18. and Josh. 15. 47. compared with Judg. 18. 1. and Josh. 24. 29, 30. And such like Insertions have been observed in the five Books of Moses.

CHAP. I.

God commands Joshua to lead the people into the Land of Canaan, 1—3. Its Borders, 4. God promises to assist him, 5, 6. Commanding him to observe the Law, 7—9. He prepares the people to pass over Jordan, 10, 11. Reminds the Reubenites, Gadites, and half tribe of Manasseh of their promise to Moses, 12, 15. Which they are ready to do; and ask promise to obey, 16—18.

1 NOW after the death of Moses a, the servant of the LORD b, it came to pass, that the LORD spake unto Joshua the son of Nun, Moses * minister d, saying, a Either immediately after it, or when the days of mourning for Moses were expired. Joshua was appointed and declared Moses his Successor in the Government before this time; and therefore doubtless entred upon the Government instantly after his death; and here he receives confirmation from God therein. b This title is given to Moses here and v. 2. as also Deut. 34. 5. and is oft repeated not without cause, partly to reflect Honour upon him, partly to give Authority to his Laws and Writings, in publishing whereof he only acted as Gods Servant, in his name and stead: and partly that the Israelites might not think of Moses above what he was meet, remembring that he was not the Lord himself, but only the Lords Servant; and therefore not to be worshipped, nor yet to be too pertinaciously followed in all his Institutions, when the Lord himself should come and abolish part of the Mosaical Dispensation; it being but reasonable that he who was only a Servant in Gods house, should give place to him who was the Son, and Heir, and Lord of it, as Christ was. See Heb. 3. 3, 5, 6. c Either in a Dream or Vision, or by Urim, Numb. 27. 21. d (i.e.) Who had waited upon Moses in his great Employments, and thereby been privy to his Managery of the Government, and so fitted and prepared for it.

* Deut. 1. 38.

2 Moses my servant is dead: now therefore arise, go over this Jordan e, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give f to them, even to the children of Israel.

e This which is now near thee, which is the only obstacle in thy way to Canaan. f (i.e.) Am now about to give the actual Possession of it, as I formerly gave a right to it by promise.

3 * Every place g that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses.

* Deut. 11. 24.

g To wit, within the following bounds.

4 * From the wilderness, and this Lebanon h, even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites i, and unto the greater sea k, toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast l.

* Exod. 23. 31. Deut. 11. 24.

h This emphatically, as being the most eminent Mountain in Syria, and the Northern border of the Land: or this which is within thy view; as if the Lord appeared to him in the form of a man, and pointed to it. i (i.e.) Of the Canaanites, who elsewhere are all called Amorites; as Gen. 15. 16. and here Hittites by a Synecdoche: the Hittites being the most considerable and formidable of all, as may appear from Numb. 13. 33. and 14. 1. 2 King. 7. 6. and many of them being of the race of the Giants, dwelling about Hebron: See Gen. 25. 9, 10. and 26. 34. and 27. 46. k The Midland Sea, great in it self, and especially compared with those lesser Collections of waters, which the Jews called Seas. 1 Oth. The Israelites never possessed all this Land. Anf. 1. That was from their own sloth and cowardize, and disobedience to God, and breach of those Conditions upon which this Promise was suspended: See Judg. 2. 20. 2. This land was not all to be possessed by them at once, but by degrees, as their numbers and necessities increased; but Canaan being fully sufficient for them, and many of the Israelites being from time to time either cut off, or carried captive for their sins, there was never any need of enlarging their Possessions. 3. Though their Possessions extended not to Euphrates, yet their Dominion did, and all those Lands were tributary to them in David's and Solomon's time.

5 There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: as I was with Moses, so m I will be with thee; * I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee n.

Deut. 31. 6, 8. Heb. 13. 5.

m To assist him against all his enemies, and in all the difficulties of governing this stiff necked people, which Joshua might justly fear no less than the Canaanites. n I will not leave thee destitute neither of inward support, or of outward assistance.

6 * Be strong, and of a good courage o: for † unto this people shalt thou divide for an Inheritance, the land which I sware unto their fathers to give them.

o Joshua, though a person of great Courage and Resolution, whereof he had given sufficient Proof, yet needs these Exhortations, partly because his work was great, and difficult, and long, and in a great measure new; partly because he had a very mean opinion of himself, especially if compared with Moses; and remembring how perverse and ungovernable that people were, even under Moses, he might very well suspect the burden of ruling them would be too heavy for his shoulders. p Which supposeth the full Conquest of the land. That Honour and Assistance which I denied to Moses, I will give to thee.

7 Only be thou strong, and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the Law * which Moses my servant commanded thee q: * turn not from it to the right hand or to the left r, that thou mayest † prosper s whithersoever thou goest t.

* Deut. 31. 7. * Deut. 5. 32. and 28. 14. † Or, do wisely.

q Remember, that though thou art the Captain and Commander of my people, yet thou art my Subject, and obliged to observe all my commands. r (i.e.) In any kind, or upon any pretence. s Which plainly shews, That Gods affiftance promised to him and to the Israelites, was conditional, and might justly be withdrawn upon their breach of the Conditions. t Or, That thou mayest do wisely. Whereby he instructs him in the true Art of Government; and that his greatest Wisdom will lie in the observation of all Gods Commands, and not in that pretended reason of State which other Princes govern all their Affairs by. t (i.e.) Whatsoever thou doest. Mens actions are oft compared to ways, or journeys, or steps by which they come to the end they aim at.

8 * This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth u, but * thou shalt † meditate therein day and night x, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein y: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt † have good success.

* Deut. 17. 18, 19. * Ps. 1. 2. † Or, deal wisely. See Phil. 2. 22. † Or, do wisely.

u (i.e.) Thou shalt constantly read it, and upon occasion discourse of it, and the sentence which shall come out of thy mouth, shall in all things be given according to this Rule. x (i.e.) Diligently study, and frequently and upon all occasions consider what is God's Will and thy Duty. The greatness of thy place and employments shall not hinder thee from this Work, because this is the only Rule of all thy private Actions, and publick Administrations. y Whereby he teacheth him, that it is his Duty to see with his own eyes, and to understand the Mind and Law of God himself, and not blindly to follow what any other should advise him to.

9 * Have not I commanded thee z? Be strong, and of a good courage, be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the LORD thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

* Deut. 31. 7, 8.

z I whom thou art obliged to obey: I who can carry thee through every thing I put thee upon: I of whose Faithfulness and Almightiness thou hast had large experience?

10 Then Joshua commanded the Officers of the people, saying,

11 Pass through the host, and command the people, saying, Prepare you victuals a: for within three days b ye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land which the LORD your God giveth you to possess it.

Deut. 2. Chap. 1. 4, 5.

a For although Manna was given them to supply their want of ordinary Provisions in the Wilderness; yet they were allowed, when they had opportunity, to purchase other Provisions, and did so, Deut. 2. 6, 28. And now having been some time in the land of the Amorites, and together with Manna used themselves to other food which that Country plentifully supplied them with; they are warned to furnish themselves therewith for their approaching march. b Qu. How can this be, when the Spies, who were not yet sent away, continued three days hid in the Mountains, Josh. 2. 22. and the people passed not over till three days after the Spies returned? Josh. 3. 2. Anf. These words, though placed here, seem not to have been delivered by Joshua till after the return of the Spies; such Transpositions being so frequent in Scripture, that Interpreters have formed this general Rule, That there is no certain Order, to former nor latter in the Histories of the Scripture. And hence it comes, that these three days mentioned here below, after the History of the Spies, are again repeated, Josh. 3. 2. Besides, the Septuagint render the words, Yet three days; and the Chaldee, In the end of three days; others, After three days, as it is, Josh. 3. 2. Or, these three days may be the same with those, Josh. 2. 22. and the matter may be conceived thus, Joshua gives the people notice of their Passage over Jordan within three days, here, and at the same time sends away the Spies, who return ere those three days be ended. For the three days, Josh. 2. 22. may be understood of one whole day, and part of two other days, as it is in that famous instance, Matth. 27. 63, of which see more on that place, and on Matth. 12. 40. The Spies came to Jericho in the Evening of the first day, and intended to lie there, Josh. 2. 8. but being disturbed and affrighted by the search made after them, they go away that night into the Mountains, and there abide the time mentioned. Joshua having delivered this message from God to the Israelites, and sent away the Spies, removes from Shittim to Jordan, Josh. 3. 1. being the like Action, Deut. 1. where it was done with the greatest sufficiency assured of his safe passage over Jordan, whatsoever became of the Spies; and after those three days mentioned here were past, Josh. 3. 2. he sends the Officers to the people with a second message about the manner of their actual passing over.

12 And to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh, spake Joshua, saying, 13 Remember * the words which Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, saying, The LORD your God hath given you rest d, and hath given you this land.

* Numb. 32. 20. Deut. 3. 18.

d His charge to you, and your promise to him, which they were obliged to keep; and Joshua was to see that they did so. e (i.e.) A place of rest, as that word signifies; See on Gen. 49. 15.

14 Your wives, your little ones, and your cattel shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side Jordan: but ye shall pass e before your brethren f † armed, all the mighty men of valour h, and help them; e To wit, over Jordan. f Either, 1. in their presence. Or, because they had the advantage of their brethren, having already received their Portion, which their Brethren had only in hope, and therefore were obliged to more service, the rather to prevent the envy of the other Tribes; partly because they were freed from those Impediments which the rest were exposed to, their Wives, and Children, and Estates being safely lodged; and partly to prevent their retreat and withdrawing themselves from the present service, which they otherwise should have had opportunity and temptation to do, because of the nearness of their Habitations. g For by this time they were well furnished with Arms, which they had either from the Egyptians, or Amalekites, or Amorites, from whom they had taken them; or by purchase from those people by whose borders they passed. Or, in military order: See on Exod. 13. 18. h All such were obliged to go over if occasion required it, but Joshua took only some of them, partly because they were sufficient for his purpose, and partly because some were fit to be left, both to secure their own Wives, Children, and Possessions, and to prevent their enemies on that side from giving them disturbance or hindrance in their enterprize upon Canaan.

15 Until the LORD have given your brethren rest, as he hath given you, and they also have possessed the land which the LORD your God giveth them: then ye shall return unto the land of your possession, and enjoy it, which Moses the LORD's servant gave you on this side Jordan, toward the sun-rising.

16 And they answered i Joshua, saying, All that thou commandest us, we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us, we will go.

i (i.e.) The Reubenites, &c. mentioned v. 12. to whom Joshua Discourse is confined v. 13, 14, 15. No doubt the other Tribes expressed the same thing; but this is only recorded concerning these, because that might seem most doubtful, and the obedience of the rest was unquestionable.

17 According as we hearkned unto Moses in all things: so will we hearken unto thee k: only the LORD thy God be with thee, as he was with Moses l.

k The same obedience which we owed, and those of us who are now alive generally performed to Moses, we promise unto thee. k This is not a limitation of their obedience, as if they would not obey him any further or longer than he was a prosperous successful; but an additional Prayer for him. As we have hereby promised thee our obedience, so our Prayer shall be, That God would bless and prosper thee, as he did Moses.

18 Whosoever he be that doth rebel against thy commandment, and will not hearken unto thy words in all that thou commandest him l, he shall be put to death: only be strong, and of a good courage.

l Not repugnant to Gods commands; for none can be so foolish to think, that if he had commanded the people to blaspheme God, or worship Idols, the people were obliged to obey him therein.

CHAP. II.

Joshua sends two Spies to Jericho; they are taken shelter them; discourses the Messengers, 1—7. Is himself [illegible] kind promise to the Land; how it arose, 8—11. The Covenant between her and them, 12—21. Their Return and Relation, 22—24.

AND Joshua the son of Nun sent a out of Shittim b two men, to spy d † secretly e, saying, Go view the land, even Jericho f: and they went, and came into an harlots g house, named * Rahab, and † lodged h there.

Heb. by hiding.

a Or, he sent, as that Tense is often used. See on Gen. 11. 31. b Called also Abel-shittim, Numb. 33. 49. c Not resolved, as we did, partly because the people of Israel were now more numerous than in Moses his time, and more suspicious of all strangers, and partly because those were to view the whole land, that these were but a parcel of it. d (i.e.) To learn the state of the land and people, and what way and method they should proceed in. It is likely enough, That Joshua did not this out of distrust, as the people did Deut. 1. and it is most probable, he had God Command and Direction in it for the encouragement of Israel and his Army in their present Enterprize. e With reference not to his Enemies, which being the constant and necessary practice of all Spies, was needless to be mentioned; but to the Israelites, without the knowledge or desire. And this seems a likely way of opposition and privacy, and upon their motion; and that these in Acts not only to Moſes, but alſo to the Congregation; whereas here it was given to Joſhua only. o. 23. which was a good Caution to prevent the Inconveniency which poſſibly might have ariſen, if their Report had been doubtful or diſcouraging. f (i.e.) The land about Jericho, together with the City. Heb. The land and Jericho, i. e. eſpecially Jericho. So and is uſed, 2 Sam. 2. 30. 1 Kings. 11. 1. Pſal. 18. 1. * They obeyed Joſhua's Command, even with the hazard of their own lives, confiding that they were under the protection of divine Providence, which could very eaſily many ways ſecure them; or being willing to ſacrifice their lives in their Countreys ſervice. g So the Hebrew word is uſed, Judg. 11. 1. and 16. 1. 1 Kings. 3. 16. Ezek. 23. 44. and ſo it is rendred by two Apoſtles, Heb. 11. 31. Jam. 2. 25. ſuch ſhe either now was, or formerly had been; and ſuch a perſons houſe they might come to with leſs obſervation than to an Hoſtis, as ſome render it, or to a publick Victualling-Houſe. And ſuch a courſe of life was very common among the Gentiles, who eſteemed Fornication to be either no ſin, or a very ſmall and trivial one. h Or, lay down; as the ſame word is rendred, o. 8. ſattended and compoſed themſelves to reſt; but they were diſturbed and hindred from their Intentions upon the following Diſcovery.

2 And it was told the King of Jericho, ſaying, Behold, there came in men hither to night i, of the children of Iſrael, to ſearch out the Country.

i This evening, by comparing this with o. 5.

3 And the King of Jericho ſent unto Rahab, ſaying, Bring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entred into thine houſe: for they be come to ſearch out all the country.

4 And the woman took the two men, and hid them k, and ſaid thus, There came men unto me, but I wiſt not whence they were l:

k Or, But the Woman had taken—— and had hid them, to wit, before the Meſſengers came from the King; as ſoon as the underſtood from her Neighbours or common Rumor, that there was a ſuſpicion of the matter, and gueſſed that ſearch would be made. And this is juſtly mentioned as a great and generous act of Faith, Heb. 11. 31. for ſhe did apparently venture her life upon a ſtedfaſt perſwaſion of the Truth of Gods Word and Promiſe given to the Iſraelites. l Her Anſwer contained in theſe and the following words, was palpably falſe, and therefore unqueſtionably ſinful; howſoever, her intention was good therein: ſee Rom. 3. 8. But it is very probable, ſhe being an Heathen, might think, what ſome Chriſtians have thought and ſaid, That an officious Lie is not unlawful. Or at worſt, this was her Infirmity, which was graciouſly pardoned by God, and her Faith was amply rewarded.

5 And it came to paſs about the time of ſhutting of the gate m, when it was dark, that the men went out: whither the men went, I wot not: purſue after them quickly, for ye ſhall overtake them.

m Either of her houſe, or rather of the City which was ſhut at a certain time.

6 But * ſhe had brought them up to the roof n of the houſe, and hid them with the ſtalks of flax, which ſhe had laid in order upon the roof o.

n Which was plain after the manner: See Deut. 22. 8. Mat. 10. 27. Act. 10. 9. Mark 2. 4. o That they may be dried by the heat of the Sun.

7 And the men purſued after them the way to Jordan unto the fords p: and aſſoon as they which purſued after them were gone out, they ſhut the gate q.

p Or paſſages, i. e. The uſual places where people uſed to paſs over Jordan, whether by Boats or Bridges; or rather, becauſe of the ſhallowneſs of the River, which a little after this, ſwelled higher, as the Hiſtory will tell us; and as it is very uſual for Riverstodo. q Of this City, partly for their ſecurity againſt their approaching Enemies; and partly to prevent the eſcape of the Spies, if peradventure Rahab was miſtaken, and they yet lurked in the City.

8 And before they were laid down r, ſhe came up unto them upon the roof, r To reſt or ſleep, as they intended, being now, after the departure of the Searchers, come from their hiding-place to their reſting place.

c We pawn and will venture our lives for the ſecurity of yours. By which they ſhew both their Piety and Prudence in managing their Oath with ſo much Circumſpection and Caution, that neither their own Conſciences might be enfnared, nor the publick Juſtice obſtructed.

15 Then ſhe let them down by a cord through the window: for her houſe was upon the Town-wall e, and ſhe dwelt upon the wall f.

e Which gave her the opportunity of diſmiſſing them when the gates were ſhut. f Her particular dwelling was there: which may poſſibly be added, becauſe the other part of her Houſe was referred for the entertainment of Strangers.

16 And ſhe ſaid unto them, Get ye to the mountain g, leſt the Purſuers meet you: and hide your ſelves there three days h, until the Purſuers be returned, and afterward may ye go your way.

17 And the men ſaid i unto her, We will be blameleſs k of this thine oath, which thou haſt made us ſwear:

i Or, had ſaid; namely, before ſhe let them down; it being very improbable, either that ſhe would diſmiſs them before the Condition was expreſſed and agreed; or that ſhe would diſcourſe with them, or they with her, about ſuch ſecret and weighty things after they were let down, when others might over-hear them; or that ſhe ſhould begin her diſcourſe in her Chamber, and not finiſh it till they were gone out of her Houſe. Obj. They ſpoke this after they were let down; for it follows, v. 18. thou ſhalt bind this line of ſcarlet thread in the window. Anſ. Thoſe words, which were ſpoken, before they were let down, v. 15. are added to tell: it being frequent for the Preter Tenſe to be uſed of a thing about to be done, by an Enallage of Tenſes, as Joſh. 10. 15. k (i.e.) Free from guilt or reproach if it be violated, namely, if the following Condition be not obſerved.

18 Behold, when we come into the land l, thou ſhalt bind this line of ſcarlet thread in the window m, which thou didſt let us down by: and thou ſhalt † bring thy Father, and thy Mother, and thy Brethren, and all thy Fathers Houſhold home unto thee. † Heb. gather.

20 And if thou utter this our buſineſs, then we will be quit of thine oath, which thou haſt made us to ſwear.

21 And ſhe ſaid, According unto your words, ſo be it. And ſhe ſent them away, and they departed: and ſhe bound the ſcarlet line in the window q.

q Forthwith, partly that the Spies might ſee it hung out before their departure, and ſo the better know it at ſome diſtance; partly leſt ſome accident might occaſion a miſtake or neglect about it; and partly for her own comfort, it being pleaſant and encouraging to her to have in her eye the pledge of her deliverance.

CHAP. III.

Joſhua comes with the Iſraelites to Jordan, 1. The officers inſtruct the people and prieſts for the paſſage, 2—6. God encourages Joſhua, and he encourageth the people, giving them for a ſign, the dividing the waters of Jordan, till the ark and people ſhould paſs over, 7—13. The people paſſover; the prieſts ſtanding all the time in the midſt of Jordan, 14—17.

1 AND Joſhua roſe early in the morning a, and they removed from Shittim, and came to Jordan, he, and all the children of Iſrael, and lodged there b before they paſſed over.

a Not after the return of the Spies, as may ſeem at firſt view; but after the three days, as it follows, v. 2. b That night, that they might go over in the day time, partly that the Miracle might be more evident and unqueſtionable; and partly to ſtrike the greater terror into their Enemies.

2 And it came to paſs after three days c, that the officers went through the hoſt d; c Either, 1. at the end of the three days mentioned, Joſh. 1. 11. or upon the laſt of them, as this Phraſe is uſed. See on Deut. 15. 1. Or, 2. after thoſe days were expired: See on Joſh. 1. 11. d The ſecond time to give them more particular Directions, as they had given them a general notice, Joſh. 1. 10, 11.

3 And they commanded the people e, ſaying, When ye ſee the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, and the prieſts the Levites f bearing it, then ye ſhall remove from your place, and go after it g.

e In Joſhua's name, and by his Authority. f Who were not only Levites, but Prieſts alſo. For although the Levites were to carry the Ark, Numb. 4. yet the Prieſts might perform that Office, and did ſo upon ſome ſolemn occaſions, as here, and Joſh. 6. 6. ch. 3. 3. g Towards Jordan, to go over it in ſuch manner as I am about to deſcribe. Till this time the Ark went in the middle of the cloudy Pillar, probably being now vaniſhed; now it goes in the Front.

4 Yet there ſhall be a ſpace between you and it, about two thouſand cubits h by meaſure: come not near unto it i, that ye may know the way by which ye muſt go k: for ye have not paſſed this way † heretofore. † Heb. yeſterday.

h Which make 1 thouſand yards, and at which diſtance from it Joſephus and the Iſraelites ſeem to have been encamped in the Wilderneſs. And Kimchi ſay, becauſe they generally went from their Tents to the Ark to worſhip God, eſpecially on the Sabbath-days; hence it hath been conceived, that a Sabbath-days journey reached only to 2000 Cubits. But that may be doubted; for thoſe who encamped neareſt the Ark, were at that diſtance from it, and came to far; but the moſt were further from it, and their Sabbath-days journey was conſiderably longer. i Partly from the reverent reſpect they ſhould bear to the Ark; and partly for the following reaſon. k That the Ark marching ſo far before you into the River, and ſtanding ſtill there till you paſs over, may give you the greater aſſurance of your ſafe paſſage.

* Exod. 19. 15. Lev. 20. 7. among you. Num. 11. 18 ch. 7. 13. 1 Sam. 21. 5. † Heb. ſanctifie.

† And Joſhua ſaid l unto the people, * Sanctifie your ſelves m: for to morrow the LORD will do wonders

l Or rather, had ſaid, to wit, the day before their paſſage; for it follows, to morrow. m Both in Soul and Body, that you may be fit to receive ſuch a favour, and with more Attention and Reverence obſerved and ponder this great Work, and fix it in your Hearts and Memories: See on Exod. 19. 10. Lev. 20. 7.

6 And Joſhua ſpake unto the prieſts, ſaying, Take up n the ark of the covenant, and paſs over before the people o. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people.

n To wit, upon your ſhoulders; for ſo they were to carry it, Numb. 7. 9. * Not in the middle of them, as you uſed to do.

7 And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua, This day will I begin to magnifie thee in the ſight of all Iſrael p, that they may know that * as I was with Moſes, ſo I will be with thee. * Ch. 1. 5.

p i. e. To gain thee Authority and Reputation among them, as the perſon whom I have ſet in Moſes his ſtead, and by whom I will conduct them to the Poſſeſſion of the promiſed Land.

8 And thou ſhalt command the prieſts that bear the Ark of the Covenant, ſaying, When ye are come to the brink q of the water of Jordan, ye ſhall ſtand ſtill in Jordan r.

q Heb. to the extremity, ſo far as the River then ſpread it ſelf, which was now more than ordinary, v. 15. r Within the waters of Jordan, in the firſt entrance into the River; which they ſtood for a ſeaſon, till the River was divided, and then they went into the midſt of it, as it is implied, v. 17. and there abode till all the people were paſſed over, as it follows in the Hiſtory.

9 And Joſhua ſaid unto the children of Iſrael, Come hither, and hear the words of the LORD your God s.

s To the Ark or Tabernacle, the place of publick Addreſs. Which is now about to give a ſpecial teſtimony of his Omnipotent Government of Heaven and Earth, and of the living God, in Covenant with you, having a tender care and affection for you.

10 And Joſhua ſaid, Hereby ye ſhall know that the living God is among you t, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Hivite, and the Perizzite, and the Girgaſhite, and the Amorite, and the Jebuſite.

t To wit, by experience and ſenſible evidence. * Not a dull, dead, ſenſleſs and inactive God, ſuch as the gods of the Nations are; but a God of life, and power, and activity to work over and work for you. † Is preſent with you to ſtrengthen and help you, as the Phraſe ſignifies, Exod. 17. 7. Deut. 31. 17. Joſh. 22. 31.

11 Behold, the ark of the covenant, of the LORD of all the earth, paſſeth over before you into Jordan u.

u Into part of the River.

12 Now therefore take ye twelve men x out of the Tribes of Iſrael, out of every Tribe a man.

x For the work deſcribed, Joſh. 4. 2, 3.

13 And it ſhall come to paſs aſſoon as the ſoles of the feet of the prieſts that bear the ark of the LORD, the Lord of all the earth y, ſhall reſt in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan ſhall be cut off from the waters that come down from above z: and they ſhall ſtand upon an heap e.

y That ſo it may appear that this is the Lords doing, and that in purſuance, and for the accompliſhment of his Covenant made with Iſrael. e The Lord of all this terreſtrial Globe made of Earth and Water, who therefore can diſpoſe of this Element and the adjoyning Land as he pleaſeth. z The Waters which now are united ſhall be divided, and part ſhall flow down the Channel towards the Dead-ſea, and the other part that is nearer the Spring or Riſe of the River, and flows down from it, ſhall ſtand ſtill. e Being as it were congealed, as the Red-ſea was, Exod. 15. 8. and ſo kept from overflowing all the Country.

14 And it came to paſs when the people removed from their tents, to paſs over Jordan, and the prieſts bearing the * ark of the covenant before the people;

15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the prieſts that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for * Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harveſt) f.

f Which is alſo noted, 1 Chron. 12. 15. Ecclus. 24. 36. and by Joſephus in the Hiſtory of the LXX Interpreters. This is meant not of the Wheat-harveſt, but of the Barley-harveſt, which was before it, Ruth 1. 22. 2 Sam. 21. 9.) as is manifeſt from that keeping of the Paſſover at their firſt entrance, Joſh. 5. 10. which Feaſt was kept on the fourteenth day of their firſt Month, when they were to bring a Sheaf of their firſt-fruits, Lev. 23. 10. Deut. 16. 9. 10. which were of Barley, as Joſephus affirms, and is evident from conſulting it ſelf. So that this Harveſt in thoſe hot Countries fell very early in the Spring, when Rivers are to freſh and full, partly becauſe of the rains which have fallen all the Winter, and partly becauſe of the Snows which then melt into Water and come into the Rivers; for which Reaſons the fame overflowing of Water which is there aſcribed to Jordan, is by other Authors aſcribed to Euphrates, and Tigris, and the Nile, and Meander, &c. And this time God chooſe for this Work, partly that the Miracle might be more glorious to it ſelf, more obliging to the Iſraelites, and more amazing and terrible to the Canaanites; and partly that the Iſraelites might be ascertained at their firſt entrance with more plentiful and comfortable Proviſions.

16 That the waters which came down from above, ſtood and roſe up upon an heap g very far from the city Adam that is beſide Zaretan a; and thoſe that came down toward the ſea of the plain, even the ſalt ſea failed, and were cut off: and the people paſſed over right againſt Jericho i.

g Which having been affirmed by Heathen Writers to have been done by Magicians, it is great impudence to diſbelieve or diſcredit God's power to do it. h The City Adama being more obſcure, is deſcribed by its nearneſs to a more known place, Zaretan, or Zarthan, which ſome think is the ſame place mentioned, 1 King. 4. 12. and 7. 46. but it rather ſeems to have been another place then eminent, but now unknown, as many thouſands are. The meaning is, That the Waters were ſtopped in their courſe at the place, and ſo kept at a due diſtance from the Iſraelites, whilſt they paſſed over. i Here God carried them over, becauſe this part was in the Territories of the Gergeſh, as having in its Neighbourhood an eminent City, a great King, and a ſtout and warlike people. k Too moſt pleaſant and fruitful, and therefore moſt convenient both for the Refreſhment of the Iſraelites after their long and tedious Marches, and for their Encouragement to their preſent Expedition.

17 And the prieſts that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, ſtood firm k on dry ground in the midſt of Jordan l, and all the Iſraelites paſſed over on dry ground, until all the people were paſſed clean over Jordan.

k i. e. In one and the ſame place and poſture, that for no time moved by any Waters flowing in upon them, nor ſinking under

9 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day have
* That is telling. I rolled away the reproach of Egypt f from off you:
wherefore the name of the place is called * Gilgal, unto this day.

f (i. e.) Uncircumcision, which was both in Truth, and in the opinion of the Jews, a matter of great reproach, Gen. 34. 14. 1 Sam. 14. 6. and 17. 26. And although this was a reproach common to most Nations of the World, yet it is particularly called the reproach of Egypt, either, 1. because the other neighbouring Nations, being the children of Abraham by the Concubines, are supposed to have been Circumcised, which the Egyptians at this time were not, as may be gathered from Exod. 2. 6. where they knew the Child to be an Hebrew by this mark. Or 2. because they came out of Egypt, and were esteemed to be a sort of Egyptians, Numb. 22. 5. which they justly thought a great reproach; but by their Circumcision they were now distinguished from them, and manifested to be another kind of people. Or 3. Because many of them lay under this reproach in Egypt, having wickedly neglected this Duty there for worldly reasons; and others of them continued in the same shameful condition for many years in the Wilderness.

10 And the children of Israel incamped in Gilgal, * Exod. 12. 6. and kept the Passover, on the fourteenth * day of the month at even, in the plains of Jericho.

t Which was their third Passover: the first was in Egypt, Exod. 12. the second at Mount Sinai, Numb. 9. the third here; for in their Wilderness-Travels, these and all other Sacrifices were neglected, Amos 5. 25.

11 And they did eat of the old corn u of the land, on the morrow after the Passover x; unleavened cakes, and parched corn y, in the self-same day z.

u The Corn of the last year, which the Inhabitants of those parts had left in their Barns, being doubtless fled for fear of the Israelites into their strong Cities, or other remoter and safer parts.

x (i. e.) On the fifteenth day; for the Passover was killed between the two Evenings of the fourteenth day, and was eaten in that evening or night, which, according to the Jewish computation, whereby they begin their days at the evening, was a part of the fifteenth day, all which was the feast of the Passover; and so the morrow of the fifteenth day, was the morrow after the Passover, when they were obliged to offer unto God the first sheaf, and then were allowed to eat of the rest. y Of that years Corn, which was most proper and customary for that use. z Having an eager desire to enjoy the Fruits of the Land.

12 And the * Manna ceased a on the morrow after
* Exod. 16. 35 they had eaten of the old corn of the land, b neither had the children of Israel Manna any more, but they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

a Which God now withheld, 1. To shew that Manna was not an ordinary production of Nature, as by the long and constant enjoyment of it, they might be prone to think; but an extraordinary and special gift of God to supply their necessity. 2. Because God would not be prodigal of his favours, nor expose them to contempt by giving them superfluously, or by working Miracles where ordinary means were sufficient. b (i. e.) On the seventeenth day.

13 And it came to pass when Joshua was by Jericho c, * Exod. 23. 23. Zech. 1. 8. that he lift up his eyes, and looked, and behold, there stood * a man d over against him with his sword drawn e in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Are thou for us, or for our Adversaries?

c Heb. In Jericho, i. e. in the Country or Territory adjoining to Jericho; whither he went to view those parts, and discern the fittest places for his attempt upon Jericho, as Generals usually do. d One in the appearance of man. e In readiness to fight, not, as Joshua thought, against him, but for him and his people.

14 And he said, Nay f, but as † Captain of the host † Or, Prince. of the LORD g am I now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith my Lord unto his servant h?

f I am neither Israelite, nor Canaanite. g Either, 1. of all Creatures in Heaven and Earth, which are Gods Hosts. Or, 2. of the Angels, who are called the Host of Heaven, 1 King. 22. 19. 2 Chron. 18. 18. Luke 2. 13. Or, 3. of the host or people of Israel, which are called the Lords Host, Exod. 12. 41. The sense is, I am the chief Captain of this people, and will conduct and assist thee and them in this great undertaking. Now this person is none other than Michael the Prince, Dan. 10. 21. and 12. 1. not a created Angel but the Son of God, who went along with the Israelites in this Expedition, 1 Cor. 10. 4. not surely as an underling, but as their Chief and Captain. And this appears, 1. by his acceptance of Adoration here, which a created Angel durst not admit of, Rev. 22. 8, 9. 2. Because the place was made holy by his presence, v. 15. which was Gods Prerogative, Exod. 3. 5. 3. Because he is called the Lord, Heb. Jehovah, Josh. 6. 2. h I acknowledge thee for my Lord and Captain, and therefore wait for thy Commands, which I am ready to obey.

15 And the Captain of the LORD's host said unto * Exod. 3. 5. Acts 7. 33 Joshua, * Loose thy shoe from off thy foot i, for the place whereon thou standest is holy k: and Joshua did so.

i In token of reverence and subjection: See on Exod. 3. 5. k Consecrated by my presence; which when it was withdrawn, it was no more holy than any other place, the reason of its holiness being removed.

CHAP. VI.

Jericho is shut up by the Israelites, 1. The People and 7 Priests with the Ark, go round it 7 days, 2—14. On the 7th day they go round 7 times; the Priests blow the Trumpets; the People shout; the City Accursed; nothing to be taken, but all consecrated; the Walls fall down; Men, Women, and Cattel destroyed, 15—21. Rahab and her kindred are saved, 22—25. Joshua curseth the Man who should rebuild Jericho, 26.

1 NOW Jericho † was straitly shut up a, because † Heb. of the children of Israel, none went out, and did shut up, and as none came in.

a Not only by night, as before, Josh. 2. 5. but constantly and diligently. shut v.

2 And the LORD said unto Joshua, See, I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the king thereof, and the mighty men of valour b.

b Who are in it, resolved and ready to defend it with their utmost strength.

3 And ye shall compass the City, all ye men of war, and go round about the City once c: thus shalt thou do six days d.

c At convenient distance, out of the reach of their Arrows. d Every day once. This and the following course might seem ridiculous and absurd, and is therefore prescribed and used by God, that they might learn to take new measures of things, and to expect success not from their own valour, or skill, or probable means, but merely from Gods appointment and blessing; and in general, not to judge of any of Gods Institutions by meer carnal reason, to which divers of their Ceremonies would seem no less foolish than this action; and that they might have a full Demonstration of the All-sufficiency of that God who can do what he pleaseth, even by the most contemptible means.

4 And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven trumpets of rams horns e: and the seventh day ye shall compass the City seven times, and the Priests shall blow with the trumpets.

e Or, of the Jubilees; i. e. such Trumpets wherewith they were to found in the years of Jubile, Lev. 25. 9. Either this, or one of the other six was certainly a Sabbath-day; and it is not material which was it, for the Command of the Lord of the Sabbath was sufficient to legitimate any Action.

5 And it shall come to pass, that when they make a long blast f with the rams horns, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all the people shall shout with a great shout: and the wall of the City g shall fall down † flat, h and the people shall ascend up every man straight † Heb. under it. before him.

f As is usual in the close of musical sounds. g Not all of it; which was not only unnecessary, but inconvenient, and might have given the people better opportunity of escaping, but only a considerable part of it where the Israelites might fitly enter: for Rahabs house was not overthrown, v. 20. h Heb. under it; i. e. below the place they stood in: Or, in its place: it was not battered down with Engines, which would have made part of it fall out of its place; but it fell out without any force, and of its own accord, and therefore in the place it did formerly stand in.

6 And Joshua the son of Nun called the priests, and said unto them, Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams horns before the ark of the LORD.

7 And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him that is armed i pass on before the ark of the LORD.

i God would have them armed both for the defence of themselves and the Ark, in case the Enemies should make a sally upon them, and for the Execution of the Lords vengeance upon that City.

8 And it came to pass when Joshua had spoken unto the people, that the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams horns passed on before the LORD, and blew with the trumpets: and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them.

9 And the armed men went before the Priests that blew with the trumpets: and the † rereward came k after the ark, the priests I going on, and blowing with the Trumpets.

k Which being opposed to the armed men, may seem to note the unarmed people, who were desirous to be Spectators of this wonderful work. † Which is rightly supplied here from v. 4.

10 And Joshua commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout m, nor † make any noise with your voice, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout, then shall ye shout.

m Because shouting before the time appointed, would be ineffectual, and so might give them some Discouragement, and their Enemies matter of insulting.

11 So the Ark of the LORD compassed the city, going about it once: and they came into the camp, and lodged in the camp.

12 And Joshua rose early in the morning, and the priests took up the ark of the LORD.

13 And

13 And seven priests bearing seven trumpets of rams horns before the ark of the LORD, went on continually, and blew with the trumpets: and the armed men went before them, but the rereward came after the ark of the LORD the priests going on, and blowing with the Trumpets.

14 And the second day they compassed the City once, and returned into the camp: so they did six days.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they rose early about the dawning of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner, seven times: only on that day they compassed the city seven times.

16 And it came to pass at the seventh time, when the priests blew with the trumpets, Joshua said unto the people, Shout n, for the LORD hath given you the city.

n To reffisie your faith in Gods promise, and thankfulness for this glorious mercy, and to encourage your selves and Brethren, and to strike a terrour into your Enemies.

17 And the City shall be † accursed o, even it, and † Or, devoted. all that are therein, to the LORD p: only Rahab the harlot shall live, she, and all that are with her in the house, because * she hid the messengers that we sent.
* Chap. 2. 4.

o (i. e.) Devoted to utter Destruction, Levit. 27. 21, 29. Deut. 12. 3. Deut. 13. 16. 34. p Partly because the first-fruits were appropriated to God; partly left the soldiers being glutted with the spoil of this rich City, should grow sensual and sluggish in their work; and partly to strike the greater terrour into the rest of their Enemies.

18 And ye, * in any wise keep your selves from the ac-
* Deut. 7. 26 & 13. 17. cursed thing, lest ye make your selves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and make the camp of Israel a curse q, and trouble it.

q By provoking God to punish them for your sin, in which they may be one way or other involved; or at least upon the occasion of your sin: for to speak properly, God will not (the case of Adams sin only excepted) punish one man for the sin of another, as he hath oft declared; but the whole Camp having sins of their own, God might take what occasion he saw fit to inflict this Punishment.

19 But all the silver, and gold, and vessels of brass and † Heb. holiness. iron r, are † consecrated unto the LORD s: they shall come into the treasury of the LORD t.

r Except that of which Images were made, which were to be utterly destroyed, Exod. 32. 20. Deut. 7. 25. s Being first made to pass through the fire, Numb. 31. 22, 23. t To be employed wholly for the service or uses of the Tabernacle, not to be applied to the use of any private person or Priest.

20 So the people shouted when the Priests blew with the Trumpets: and it came to pass when the people heard the sound of the Trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that * the wall fell down † flat, so † Heb. under it. that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the City.

21 And they utterly destroyed all that was in the City, both man and woman, young and old u, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword.

u Being commanded to do so by the Sovereign Lord of every mans life; and being informed by God before that the Canaanites were abominably wicked, and deserved the severest Punishments. As for the Infants, they were guilty of Original sin, and otherwise at the disposal of their Creator, as the clay is in the hands of the Potter; but if they had been wholly innocent, it was a great favour to them to take them away in infancy, rather than reserve them to those dreadful Calamities which those who survived them, were liable to.

22 But Joshua had said unto the two men that had spied out the country, Go into the harlots house x, and Chap. 2. bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, * as Heb. 11. ye have unto her.

x Which together with the wall upon which it leaned, was left standing, either by a special favour of God to her, or for the reason alledged upon, v. 5.

23 And the young men that were spies, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she had: and they brought Heb. out all her † kindred, and left them without the camp of † Or, families. Israel y.

7 Till they were cleansed from the impurities of their Gentile state, and instructed in the Jewish Religion, and solemnly admitted into that Church in the usual way, to which Rahabs good Counsel and Example had doubtless very much prepared them; and this stupendious work of God confirmed their purposes.

24 And they burnt the city with fire, and all that was therein: only the silver, and the gold, and the vessels of brass, and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD.

25 And Joshua saved Rahab the harlot alive z, and her fathers household, and all that she had: and she dwelleth in Israel even unto this day, because she hid the messengers which Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.

z For that general command of rooting out the Canaanites seems to have had some exception, in case any of them had sincerely and seasonably cast off their Idolatry and Wickedness, and submitted themselves to the Israelites, as we shall see hereafter.

26 ¶ And Joshua adjured them a at that time, saying, * Cursed be the man before the LORD b, that riseth
* 1 King. 16. 34. up and buildeth c this city Jericho, he shall lay the foundation thereof in his first-born, and in his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it d.

a Or, made them to swear; caused the people, or some in the name of all, to swear for the present and succeeding Generations, and to confirm their Oath by a Curse. b (i. e.) From Gods presence, and by his sentence, as they are said to cast lots before the Lord, Josh. 18. 8, 10. c i. e. expecting the Decision from God. He intimates, that he doth not utter this in a Passion, or upon a particular dislike of that place, but by divine Inspiration, as appears from 1 King. 16. 34. God would have the Ruines of this City remain as a standing Monument of Gods Justice against this wicked and idolatrous People, and of his Almighty Power in destroying so great and strong a City by such contemptible means. c (i. e.) That shall attempt or endeavour to build it. So this Curse is restrained to the Builder, but no way belongs to those who should inhabit it after it was built, as is evident from 2 King. 4. 18. Luke 19. 1. 5. d (i. e.) He shall lose all his Children in the work, the first at the beginning, others in the progress of it by degrees, and the youngest in the close of it, when the Gates are to be set up. This was fulfilled, 1 King. 16. 34.

27 So the Lord was with Joshua, and his fame was noised throughout all the country.

CHAP. VII.

Achan takes of the accursed and devoted thing: God is angry with Israel, 1. Joshua sends 3000 men against Ai: they flee and 36 are slain, 2—5. Joshua complains to God: who disswades the cavils, and enjoins a lot, 6—15. Achan is found guilty: Joshua's Advice and his Confession, 16—21. He and his are stoned and burnt: They are buried in the valley of Achor, 22—26.

1 BUT the children of Israel a committed a trespass in the accursed thing b: for * Achan the son of Chap. 22. 20. Carmi, the son of Zabdi, c the son of Zerah d of the tribe of Judah, took of the accursed thing: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against the children of a (i. e.) One of them, by a very usual Synecdoche or Enallage as Gen. 8. 4. and 19. 29. and Mat. 26. 8. where that is ascribed to the Disciples, which belonged to Judas only, John 12. 4. b (i. e.) In taking some of the forbidden and accursed goods. c Called, also Zimri, 1 Chron. 2. 6. d Or, Zarah, who was Tamars immediate Son, Gen. 38. 30. who went with Judah into Egypt: and so for the filling up the 236 years that are supposed to come between that and this time, we must allow Achan to be now an Old-man, and his three Ancestors to have begotten each his Son at about 60 years of Age; which at that time was not incredible nor unusual. e Why did God punish the whole Society for this one mans sin? Ans. All of them were punished for their own sins, whereof each had a sufficient proportion; but God took this occasion to inflict the punishment upon the Society, partly because divers of them might be guilty of this sin, either by coveting what he actually did, or by concealing of his fault, which it is probable could not be unknown to others; or by not sorrowing for it, and endeavouring to purge themselves from it: partly to make his the more hateful; as being the cause of such dreadful and publick Judgments: and partly to oblige all the members of every Society to be both more circumspect in the ordering of their own actions, and more diligent to watch over one another, and to prevent the miscarriages of their Brethren, which is a great benefit and likelihood by a sharp affliction upon the Society.

2 And Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai f, which a beside g Beth-aven h, on the east-side of Beth-el i, and spake unto them, saying, Go up and view the country And the men went up and viewed Ai.

f Called Hai, Gen. 12. 8. and Aijah, Neh. 11. 31. They were not to go into the City of Ai, but into the Country bordering and belonging to it, and there to understand the state and quality of the place and people. g So the Hebrew tim is used, Gen. 25. 11. and 35. 4. Judg. 9. 6. and 18. 3. and 19. 11. h A City or Town distinct from, but nigh unto Bethel, though Bethel was afterwards by allusion called Bethaven, Hos. 4. 15. and 10. 5. Compare Jos. 18. 12. i Compare Gen. 12. 8 Jos. 8. 9, 12.

3 And they returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up: but let † about two or k Heb. three thousand men go up k, and smite Ai, and make about two not all the people to labour thither, for they are but a few few. men, or

k Which was done by the Wise contrivance of Divine Providence, that their Sin might be punished, and they awakened and reformed with as little hazard, and mischief, and reproach, as might be: For if the Defeat of these caused to great a consternation in Joshua, it is easie to guess what dread, and confusion, and despair, it would have caused in the People, if a great Host had been defeated. Great Men

4 So there went up thither of the people, about three thousand men, and they fled l before the men of Ai.

l Not having their usual Courage to strike a stroke, which was a plain Evidence that God had forsaken them; and an useful instruction, to shew them what weak and inconsiderable Creatures they were when God left them; and that it was God, not their own valour, that gave the Canaanites and their Land into their hands.

5 And the men of Ai smote of them about thirty and six men: for they chased them from before the gate, even unto Shebarim, and smote them in the † going down: wherefore the heart of the people melted, and became as water.

6 ¶ And Joshua rent his Clothes p, and fell to the earth upon his face q before the Ark of the LORD, until the eventide, he, and the Elders of Israel, and put dust upon their heads r.

p In Testimony of great Sorrow, as Gen. 37. 34. and 44. 13. for this was the contingent mischief feared, and the sin which he bewailed. q To deep humiliation and fervent supplication: spending the whole day in Fasting and Prayer. † As was usual in cases of great and affectionate, 1 Sam. 4. 12. 2 Sam. 1. 2. and 15. 32. Neh. 8. 6. Mich. 1. 10.

7 And Joshua said, Alas, O LORD GOD; where-fore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan s, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorite to destroy us? would to God we had been content, and dwet on the other side Jordan.

s This and the following Clause, though well intended, and offered to God only by way of Expostulation and Argument, yet savour of Humane Infirmity, and fall short of that reverence, zeal, modesty, and submission, which he owed to God; and are rebuked as influenced that too Holy men of God were subject to the passions and infirmities with other men.

8 O LORD, what shall I say t, when Israel u turneth their backs before their Enemies?

t In answer to the reproaches cast by our insulting Enemies upon us, and upon thy name. u God's own people, which he hath taught Terror of all Nations for his own peculiar.

9 For the Canaanite, and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and cut off our name from the earth: and what wilt thou do unto thy great Name?

10 ¶ And the Lord said unto Joshua, Get thee up; wherefore † liest thou thus upon thy face?

† This bespeaks it not to be done by unactive Supplication, but by vigorous endeavours for reformation.

11 Israel x hath sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant a which I commanded them: for they have even taken of the accursed thing c, and have also stolen d, and dissembled e also, and they have put it even among their own stuff f.

x Some or one of them, as before on v. 1. a (i.e.) Broken the Condition of my Covenant which I have commanded them, and they have promised to perform, viz. Obedience to all my Commands, Exod. 19. 8. and 24. 7. when of this was one, not to meddle with the accursed thing. c Which I charged them not to meddle with. d (i.e.) Taken my portion which I had reserved, v. 19. e Covered the fact with deep dissimulation, and a real, tho' not verbal profession of their innocency. Possibly Achan might see it spoken of, and being accused, had denied it, or was resolved to deny it. f Converted it to their own use, and added oh timey sin to the crime; thus to loads this Sin with divers aggravations.

12 Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because they were accursed g, neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed person from among you.

g As I warned and threatened them, Jos. 6. 18. they have put themselves even in my Protestational Basting, and therefore are liable to the same destruction which belongs to this accursed People.

13 Up, sanctifie the people, and say, Sanctifie your selves h against to morrow: for thus saith the LORD God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you.

h Purifie your selves from that defilement which you have all in some sort contracted by this accursed fact, and prepare your selves to appear before the Lord, as it is most probable they were required to do; as imploring and expecting the Sentence of God for the Discovery and Punishment of the Sin, and that the guilty person might hereby be awakened and terrified, and brought to a free and ingenuous confession of his fault. And it is a marvellous thing that Achan did not on this occasion acknowledge his Crime; but this is to be imputed to the heart-hardening power of Sin, which makes men grow worse and worse; partly to his Pride, being loath to take to himself the shame of such a mischievous and infamous action; partly to his self-flattering and vain conceit, whereby he might think many others were guilty as well as he, and some of them might be taken, and he escape: and I partly to the just judgment of God, whereby he blinds and hardens Sinners to their own ruine. See a like instance Num. 16. 14, 22, 25.

14 In the morning therefore ye shall be brought according to your tribes: and it shall be that the tribe which the LORD taketh i, shall come according to the families thereof: and the family which the LORD shall take, shall come by houſholds: and the houſholds which the LORD shall take, shall come man by man i Which shall be discovered or declared guilty by the Lot, which is disposed by the Lord, Prov. 16. 33. and which was to be cast in the Lords Presence before the Ark. Of such use of Lots, see 1 Sam. 14. 41, 42. Jon. 1. 7. Act. 1. 26.

15 And it shall be, that he that is taken with the accursed thing, shall be burnt with fire k, he and all that he hath l: because he hath transgressed the covenant of the LORD, and because he hath wrought † folly m in Israel n.

k As persons and things accursed were to be. See Numb. 15. 35. Deut. 13. 16. l His Children and Goods, as is noted, v. 24. according to the Law, Deut. 13. 16. m So Sin is oft called in Scripture, as Gen. 34. 7. Judg. 20. 6. &c. in opposition to the ille opinion of sinners, who commonly esteem it to be their wisdom and interest. n (i.e.) Among the Church and people of God who had such excellent Laws to direct them, and such an Al-Sufficient and gracious God to provide for them, without any such indirect and unworthy practices.

16 ¶ So Joshua rose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by their tribes, and the tribe of Judah was taken.

17 And he brought the family o of Judah, and he took the family of the Zarhites: and he brought the family of the Zarhites, man by man p, and Zabdi was taken.

o Either, 1. the Tribe or people, as the word Family sometimes signifies, as Judg. 13. 2. Zech. 12. 13. Amos 3. 1. Act. 3. 25. compared with Revel. 1. 7. Or, 2. the Families, as v. 14. the singular Number for the plural, the chief of each of the five Families, Numb. 26. 20, 21. p Not every individual person: for by this from v. 18. but every Head of the several Houses: for this is of that greater Family of the Zarhites, of which Zabdi was v. 16.

18 And he q brought his houſhold man by man, and Achan the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah was taken.

q Either Joshua, or Zabdi by Joshua's appointment.

19 And Joshua said unto Achan, My son r, give, I pray thee, glory to the LORD God of Israel s, and † make confession unto him, and tell me now what thou hast done t: hide it not from me.

r So he calls him, to shew, that this severe Inquisition and Sentence did not proceed from any hatred to his person, which he loved as a Father doth his Son, and as a Prince ought to do each of his Subjects. s As thou hast highly dishonoured him, now take the shame and blame to thy self, and ascribe unto God the Glory of his Omnificence in knowing thy sin, of his Justice in punishing it in thee, and others for thy sake; of his Omnipotency, which was obstructed by thee; and of his Kindness and Faithfulness to his people, which was eclipsed by thy Wickedness; all which will now be evident by thy sin confessed and punished.

20 And Achan answered Joshua, and said, Indeed, I have sinned u against the LORD u God of Israel x, and thus and thus have I done.

t He seems to make a sincere and ingenuous Confession, and loads his sin with all just Aggravations. u Against his express Command, and just Rights, and glorious Attributes. x The true God, who hath chosen me and all Israel to be the people of his peculiar love and care.

21 When I saw y among the spoil a goodly Babylonish garment z, and two hundred shekels a of silver, and a † wedge of gold, of fifty shekels weight; then I coveted them, and took them, and behold, they are hidden in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver under it.

y He accurately describes the progress of his sin, which began at his eye, which he permitted to gaze and fix upon them, which inflamed his desire, and made him crave them; and that desire to him upon Action, and made him take them; and having taken, resolve to keep them; and to that end hide them in his Tent. z Which were compoſed with great art with divers Colours, and of great price, as appears both from Scripture, Ezek. 23. 15. and from divers Heathen Authors. [See my Latin Synopſis] a To wit, in Weight, not in Coin; for as yet they received and payed Money by weight. b (i.e.) Under the Babylonish Garment; covered with it, or wrapt up in it.

22 So Joshua sent messengers c, and they ran d unto the tent, and behold, it was hid in his tent, and the silver under it.

c That the truth of his Confeſſion might be evident and unquestionable, which some, peradventure might think was forced from him. d Partly longing to free themselves and all the people from the Curſe under which they lay: and partly that none of Achan's Relations or others might get thither before them, and take away those things. e (i.e.) The parcel of things mentioned, v. 21. and 24.

23 And they took them out of the midst of the tent, and brought them unto Joshua, and unto all the children of Israel, and † laid them out before the LORD f.

f Where Joshua and the Elders continued yet in their Assembly waiting for the issue of this business.

24 And Joshua, and all Israel with him, took Achan the son of Zereh, and the silver, and the garment, and the wedge of gold, and his sons, and his daughters g, and his oxen, and his asses, and his sheep h, and his tent, and all that he had: and they brought them unto the valley of Achor.

g But this seems hard and unjuſt, and therefore forbidden by God himself, Deut 24. 16. Jer. 31. That Law was given to men, not to God, who certainly hath a more absolute Right and Sovereignty over men, than one man hath over another. 2. Their Death was a Debt they owed to nature and to their own sin, which Debt God may require when he pleaſeth; and he could not take it in more honourable and excellent Circumstances than these, That the death of a very few in the beginning of a new Empire, and of their settlement in the land, might be useful to prevent the death of many thousands who took warning by this dreadful Example, whom, if the fear of God did not, yet the love of their own, and of their dear Children lives would restrain from such dangerous and pernicious practices. 3. It is very probable they were conscious of the fact, as the Jewish Doctors affirm. If it be pretended that some of them were Infants; the Text doth not say so, but only calls them Sons and Daughters. And considering that Achan was an old man, as is most probable, because he was the fifth person from Judah, (of which see on v. 1.) it seems most likely, that the Children were grown up, and so capable of knowing, and concealing, or discovering this Fact. Nor doth it follow, that they were not guilty, because it is not said so; for it is apparent, that many Circumstances are omitted in divers historical Relations in Scripture, which sometimes are supplied in other places. h Which, though not capable of sin, nor of punishment properly so called, yet as they were made for mans use, so they are rightly destroyed for mans good; and being daily killed for our bodily food, it cannot seem strange to kill them for the instruction of our minds, that hereby we might learn the detestable and contagious nature of sin, which involves innocent Creatures in its Plagues; and how much more Punishments are reserved for man, who having a Law given to him, and that excellent gift of Reason and Will to restrain him from the Transgressions of it, his guilt must needs be unspeakably greater, and therefore his sufferings more severe and terrible. Further, by this enumeration it appears, that he had no colour of necessity to induce him to this Fact, but was wholly inexcusable.

25 And Joshua said, Why hast thou troubled us? the LORD shall trouble thee this day. And all Israel stoned him with stones i, and burned them with fire, after they had stoned them with stones k.

i And burned him with fire; which is easily understood both out of the following words, and from Gods Command to do so, v. 15. which doubtleſs was here executed. k Qu. How could both these Deaths be inflicted upon them? Ans. It seems they were stoned to death, which was the Punishment of such Offenders, Lev. 24. 14. Numb. 15. 35. and then burned to death; and there fore the stoning only of Achan is mentioned here, and not his burning: and God would have their dead Carkaſſes burned to shew his utmoſt Deteſtation of such persons as break forth into sins of such a publick Scandal and Miſchief. And for the burning of Achan commanded v. 15. it seems not likely to be meant of his burning alive, because that burning is common to him, and all that he hath, as is there expreſſed; but of the burning of his dead Carcaſs, and other lifeleſs things, as the manner was with accursed things, Deut. 13. 16.

26 And they raiſed over him a great heap of stones l unto this day: so the LORD turned from the fierceness of his anger: wherefore the name of that place was called, * the valley of † Achor m unto this day.

l As a Monument of the sin and Judgment here mentioned, that others might be inſtructed and warned by the Example; and as a Brand of Infamy, as Josh. 8. 29. 2 Sam. 18. 17. m Or, the valley of trouble, from the double trouble expreſſed v. 25.

* Heb. 65. ten. † That is, trouble.

CHAP. VIII.

God puts new courage into Joshua: commands him to go and beſiege Ai, promiſing he ſhould take it, 1, 2. The Stratagem whereby it is taken, 3. It is burnt, 5—22. The King is taken priſoner: The inhabitants are put to the ſword: The cattel and goods ſpoiled: The King is hanged, 23—29. Joshua builds an Altar, 30. Offers Sacrifice, 31. Writes the Law on Stones, 32. It and it's Bleſſings and Curſes are read before the people, 33—35.

* Deut. 1. 21. & 7. 18.

AND the LORD said unto Joshua, * Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee a, and arise, and go up to Ai: see, I have given into thine hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land.

a Partly, to ſtrengthen them against those fears which their late Defeat had wrought in them; and partly that all of them might be partakers of this firſt ſpoil, and thereby be encouraged to proceed in their work. The weak multitude were not to go, because they might have hindred them in the following Strategem; and it was but fit that the Military Men who run the greateſt hazards, ſhould have the Precedency and Priviledge in the ſpoils.

2 And thou ſhalt do to Ai b and her King, as thou didſt unto * Jericho and her King c: * only the ſpoil thereof, and the cattel thereof, ſhall ye take for a prey unto your ſelves: lay thee an ambuſh for the city behind it.

* Chap. 6. 21. * Deut. 20. 14.

b (i.e.) The City and people of Ai. c (i.e.) Overcome and deſtroy them. This was enjoyned partly to chaſtiſe their Inſolence, and the Triumphs and Bloſphemies which doubtleſs they had been inſpired upon the Canaanites by former victories, and had been much abated by the late ſucceſs of Ai; and partly to revive the Zeal and Confidence and expectation of further and greater ſucceſs much raiſed.

3 So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai c: And Joshua chose out thirty thousand mighty men of valour, and sent them away by night.

c (i.e.) To conſider and conclude about this Expedition, or going against Ai; not as if all the people of war did actually go up, which was both unneceſſary and burdenſom, and might hinder their following deſigns; but it ſeems to be reſolved by Joſhua and all the Council of War, That the 30000 now mentioned ſhould be ſelected for the Enterprize. Either, 1. the 30000 now mentioned; Or, 2. part of them; to wit, ſuch as were fit to lie in wait, to thoſe who were to lie in wait, and from v. 9. where what is here mentioned only by anticipation, is actually put in execution; and it is ſaid of them that were ſent forth, that they went to lie in ambuſh. And the only inconvenience of this Expoſition is, That the Pronoun Relative them, is put without, or before its Antecedent, which is left to be gathered out of the following words, which is not unuſual in the Hebrew Tongue, as plainly appears from Exod. 19. 19. Numb. 18. 9. and 24. 17. Pſal. 8. 1. and 105. 19. and 114. 2. Prov. 7. 8. and 14. 26.

4 And he commanded them d, saying, Behold, ye shall lie in wait against the city, even behind the city: go not very far from the city, but be ye all ready:

d The ſame party laſt ſpoken of v. 3. even the 30000 mentioned v. 12. This hiſtorical Narration ſeems obſcure and intricate, and at firſt view to make three parties, one of 30000, v. 3. one of five, of all the people, v. 5. 11. But if it be more narrowly and conſiderately obſerved, it will appear, that there are only two parties engaged in the taking of Ai, and but one Ambuſh, as plainly appears by comparing v. 9. (which manifeſtly ſpeaks of their party which is mentioned v. 3.) with v. 12. which ſpeaks only of part, which is juſtly ſuppoſed to be a part of thoſe 30000 named, and that part which was to lie in ambuſh; unleſs we will ſuppoſe that there were two Ambuſhes, one of 5000, and the other of 5000, both lying in wait in the ſame quarter on between Bethel and Ai, as the moſt likely of all, the only place where the Ambuſh lay, as is ſaid both v. 9 and 12. 13. which ſeems abſurd and incredible. And beſides, in the execution of this Command, there is mention but of one Ambuſh v. 12. 13. 14. 19. and they are ſaid to conſiſt only of 5000, v. 12. and they only take and burn the City, v. 19. ſo that the other ſuppoſed Ambuſh of 5000 is perfectly vaniſhed and loſt, and did nothing in this work; which alſo is very improbable. And therefore, that 30000 v. 3 are the ſame who are called the people, and the people of war that were with him, v. 5, 11. which is pitched on the North-ſide of Ai, v. 11. as the Ambuſh did on the weſt-ſide; but for any other ſide of the City, or a third party placed elſewhere about Ai, we read not one word; and therefore it may well be preſumed there were no more imployed to take it.

5 And I, and all the people that are e with me, will approach unto the city: and it shall come to pass, when they come out against us, as at the first, that we f will flee before them.

e Or, that ſhall be: for at preſent he ſent them away. v. 9. but the next morning followed them, and joyned himſelf with them, v. 10, 11. f I and the 25000 with me.

6 (For they will come out after us) till we † have drawn them from the city; for they will say, They flee before us, as at the first: therefore we will flee before them.

† Heb. have drawn

7 Then ye shall rise up from the ambuſh g, and seize upon the city: for the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand.

g To wit, upon the ſignal given, of which v. 18.

8 And it shall be when ye have taken the city, that ye shall set the city on fire g: according to the commandment of the LORD shall ye do. See, I have commanded you.

g To wit, part of it, as a ſign to their Brethren of their ſucceſs; for the whole City was not burnt now, but afterwards; as is ſaid v. 28.

9 Joshua therefore sent them h forth, and they went to lie in ambuſh, and abode between Bethel and Ai, on the weſt-ſide of Ai: but Joshua lodged that night among the people i.

h The ſame party deſigned by the Pronoun them, v. 5. of which ſee the Notes there. i Heb. that people, to wit, the people of war, as they are called, v. 11. to wit, the main body of that ſtrong conſiting of 30000.

10 And Joshua rose up early in the morning, and numbred the people k, and went up; he, and the elders of Israel l, before the people to Ai.

k Heb. that people, not all the people of Iſrael; which was needleſs, and required more time than could now be ſpared; but the reſt of that hoſt of 30000, whereof 5000 were ſent away; and now the remainder are numbred, partly to ſee whether ſome of them had not withdrawn themſelves, taking the advantage of the night, and of the deſign of laying an Ambuſh, and weighty and doubtful occasions. So they are accused of rashness and neglect of their Duty. For though it is probable, if God had been consulted, he would have consented to the sparing of the Gibeonites; yet it should have been done with more caution, and an obligation left upon them to embrace the true Religion which here was omitted.

15 And Joshua made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live q: and the princes of the congregation sware unto them.

q (i. e.) That they would not destroy them. Some question whether this League was lawful and obliging, because it is contrary to a positive and precedent Law of God, by which they were enjoyned to make no peace with them, but utterly to destroy them, Exod. 23. 32. and 34. 12, &c. But this law seems to admit of some exception and favourable interpretation, and that taken from the reason and soul of that Law; which was this, that the Israelites might not be trained with their Idolatry and other Abominations by cohabitation with them; and therefore when that reason ceased, (i. e.) if they were willing to relinquish their Possessions and Idolatry, and other wickedness, and to embrace the true Religion, they might be spared. And also this Law was delivered in general terms, because God foresaw that the Israelites would be most prone to err on that hand, by sparing those whom they should destroy; yet that it was to be understood with an exception of Penitents, and true Converts, might easily be gathered both from the example of Rahab, and from the Tenor of Divine Threatnings, which though absolutely delivered, allow of this exception; as appears from Jer. 18. 7, 8. Jonah 3. 4. and from the great kindness and favour which God hath manifested unto all true Penitents, in delivering them from evils threatned to them, and inflicted upon others; which kindness of God we also are obliged to imitate by virtue of that natural and moral Law of God implanted in us, and revealed to us, to which such positive Commands as this of killing the Canaanites must give place. And that this League was lawful and obliging, may seem probable, 1. Because Joshua and all the Princes upon the review concluded it so to be, and spared them accordingly, v. 19, 20, 22, 23. 2. Because God punished the violation of it long after, 2 Sam. 21. 1. 3. Because God is said to have hardened the hearts of all other Cities, not to seek Peace with Israel, that so he might utterly destroy them, Jos. 11. 19, 20. which seems to imply that their utter Destruction did not necessarily come upon them by vertue of any absolute and peremptory Command of God to destroy them, but by their own obstinate hardneſs, whereby they neglected and refused to make peace with the Israelites. Obj. This League was grounded upon a Deceit and Error of the Perſons, which alſo they had entred a caution againſt, v. 7. Anſ. Their ſuppoſition that they were Canaanites, was indeed a part of the foregoing Diſcourſe, v. 7. and the Iſraelites reſted ſatisfied with their Anſwer, and believed they were not, and ſo entered into the League; but that League was abſolute, not ſuſpended upon that or any other condition; and the error was not about the perſons, but about the country and People to which they belonged, which was not material to this Contract, no more than it is to a Contract of Marriage, that the one perſon believed the other to be of another Country or Family than indeed they were.

16 ¶ And it came to paſs at the end of three days r, after they had made a league with them, that they heard that they were their neighbours, and that they dwelt among them.

r (i. e.) At the laſt of them, or upon the third day, as it is ſaid, v. 17. for this phraſe is elſewhere uſed, as Deut. 14. 28. and 31. 10. Or it may be properly underſtood, that after three days they heard this, and on the day after they heard this, they came to their Cities, as is ſaid, v. 17.

17 And the children of Iſrael journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day: now their cities were Gibeon, and Chephirah, and Beeroth and Kirjath-jearim s.

s Which Cities were ſubject to Gibeon, which was the Royal City, Joſ. 10. 2.

18 And the children of Iſrael ſmote them not, becauſe the princes of the congregation had ſworn unto them by the LORD God of Iſrael: and all the congregation murmured againſt the Princes t.

t Partly from that proneneſs which is in people to cenſure the actions of their Rulers; partly becauſe they might think the Princes by their raſhneſs had brought them into a ſnare, that they could neither kill them for fear of the Oath, nor ſpare them for fear of God's Command to the contrary; and partly from their deſire of the poſſeſſion and ſpoil of theſe Cities, of which they thought themſelves hereby deprived.

19 But all the Princes ſaid unto all the congregation, We have ſworn unto them by the LORD u God of Iſrael: now therefore we may not touch them x.

u They plead not the lawfulneſs, or the prudence of the action, but only the Obligation of an Oath; of which, though it was procured by Fraud, they perceived the people ſufficiciently ſenſible. x (i. e.) Not hurt them, as that word is oft uſed, as Gen. 26. 11. Pſal. 105. 15. and 144. 5. or not ſuite them, as is ſaid v. 18.

20 This y we will do to them: we will even let them live, leſt wrath be upon us, becauſe of the breach of the Oath which we ſware unto them.

y Which follows, v. 21.

21 And the princes ſaid unto them, Let them live (that let them be hewers of wood, and drawers of water unto all the congregation z) as the princes had * promiſed them a. * Heb. as

z i.e. Let them be publick Servants, and employed in the meaneſt Offices and Drudgeries (ſuch as this was, this one kind being put for all the reſt, as it is Deut. 29. 11.) for the uſe and benefit of the Congregation; to do this partly for the Sacrifices and Services of the Houſe of God, as it is expreſſed v. 23. which otherwiſe the Iſraelites themſelves muſt have done; partly for the Service of the Camp or body of the people; and ſometimes upon occaſion, even to particular Iſraelites: whence they are made Bond-men, which is mentioned as a thing diſtinct from their ſervice in the Houſe of God, v. 23. And ſo they are in effect ſtripped of all their Poſſeſſions, whereby the main ground of the Peoples Quarrel was taken away. a Or, becauſe or ſeeing that (as the Hebrew word ſometimes ſignifies) the Princes (i. e. we our ſelves, they ſpeak of themſelves in the third perſon, which is very frequent in the Hebrew Language) had promiſed it to them, to wit, that they ſhould live; and confirmed their promiſe by an Oath. So the Princes ſpeaking here to the People, alledge the Promiſe or Oath of the Princes, whom they met among themſelves, and apart from the People. And this change of perſons may poſſibly ariſe from hence, becauſe ſome of the Princes who were preſent in the Aſſembly of the Princes, might now be abſent upon ſome occaſion. And this clauſe relates not to the next words, which are fitly incloſed within a Parentheſis, but to the foregoing clauſe, let them live, becauſe the Princes have promiſed them their Lives.

22 And Joſhua called for them, and he ſpake unto them, ſaying, Wherefore have ye beguiled us, ſaying, We are very far from you: when ye dwell among us?

23 Now therefore ye are curſed b, and there ſhall † Heb. we none of you be freed from being bondmen c, and hew- from us ers of wood, and drawers of water for the houſe of my God d.

b You ſhall not eſcape the Curſe of God which by Divine Sentence belongs to all the Canaanites, who are a People devoted by God to ruine; but only change the quality of it, you ſhall feel that Curſe of Bondage and Servitude, which is proper to your race by vertue of that ancient decree, Gen. 9. 25. you ſhall live indeed, but in a poor, vile and miſerable condition. c The Slavery which is upon you ſhall be entailed to your poſterity. d This only Service they mention here, becauſe it was their principal and moſt durable ſervitude, being fixt in the Tabernacle, and then in the Temple, whence they were called Nethinims, 1 Chron. 9. 2. Ezra 2. 43. whereas their ſervitude to the whole congregation would in a great meaſure ceaſe when the Iſraelites were diſperſed to their ſeveral habitations.

24 And they anſwered Joſhua and ſaid, Becauſe it was certainly told thy ſervants, how that the LORD thy God * commanded his ſervant Moſes, to give you all the land, and to deſtroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you, therefore we were ſore afraid of our lives, becauſe of you, and have done this thing. * Deut. 7. 1.

25 And now behold, we are in thine hand e: as it ſeemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do f.

e i. e. In thy power to uſe as as thou wilt. f We refer our ſelves to thee and thy own Piety, and Probity, and Faithfulneſs to thy Word and Oath; If thou wilt deſtroy thy humble Suppliants, we ſubmit.

26 And ſo did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Iſrael, that they ſlew them not.

g So as was ſaid, v. 23. and ſo as here follows.

27 And Joſhua made them that day hewers of wood, and drawers of water for the congregation, and for the altar of the LORD h, even unto this day, in the place which he ſhould chuſe.

h By which it appears, that they were not only to do this Service in Gods Houſe, but upon all other occaſions, as the Congregation needed or required their help.

Five of the Kings of Canaan afraid of Joſhua, are angry with the Gibeonites and wage war againſt them, they ſend to Joſhua *for Succours 1—6. He Reſcues them, 7—10. But this fear is mentioned, v. 2. as the cauſe why he leat to thoſe Kings. c Either 1. really a Royal City, the Hebrew particle Caph oft ſignifying the truth of a thing, as Heb. 4. 4. and 5. 10. and oft elſewhere. Or, 2. equal to one of the Royal cities, though it had no king, but ſeems to be governed Ariſtocratically by their Elders, Joſ. 9. 11.

3 Wherefore Adoni-zedec king of Jeruſalem ſent d unto Hoham king of Hebron, and unto Piram king of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia king of Lachiſh, and unto Debir king of Eglon, ſaying, d Either becauſe he was Superior to them in Power or Dignity, or becauſe he was neareſt the danger, and moſt forward in the work.

4 Come up unto me, and help me, that we may ſmite Gibeon: for it hath made peace with Joſhua, and with the children of Iſrael.

5 Therefore the five kings of the Amorites e, the king of Jeruſalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachiſh, the king of Eglon gathered themſelves together and went up, they, and all their hoſts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war againſt it.

e This name being here taken largely or generally for any of the Canaanites, as is frequent; for to ſpeak ſtrictly, the Citizens of Hebron here mentioned, v. 3. were Hittites; thus the Gibeonites, who were Hevites, Joſ. 11. 19. are called Amorites, 2 Sam. 21. 2. It is reaſonably ſuppoſed, that the Amorites being numerous and victorious beyond Jordan, did pour forth Colonies or Forces into the land of Canaan, and there ſubdued divers places, and ſo communicated their name to all the reſt.

6 ¶ And the men of Gibeon ſent f unto Joſhua to the camp to Gilgal, ſaying, Slack not thy hand g from thy ſervants h, come up to us quickly, and ſave us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites, that dwell in the mountains i, are gathered together againſt us.

f Or, have ſent, when their Enemies were drawn towards them, which they could eaſily learn. g Do not neglect nor delay to help us. h Whom thou art obliged to protect both in Duty as thou art our Maſter and Ruler; and by thy own Intereſt, we being part of thy Poſſeſſions; and in ingenuity, becauſe we have given our ſelves to thee, and put our ſelves under thy Protection. i In the mountainous Country.

7 So Joſhua aſcended k from Gilgal, he, and all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour. Having, no doubt, aſked advice of God firſt, which is implied by the Anſwer God gives to him, v. 8. / Or, even, or that is, as this particle is oft uſed. hath been noted before. So it ſeems put here by way of Explication and Reſtriction; having ſaid all the people of war, he now adds, even all the mighty men, &c. i. e. an Army of the moſt valiant men picked out from the reſt; for it is not probable either that he would take ſo many hundred thouſands with him, which would have hindred one another, or that he would leave the Camp without an Army to defend it.

8 ¶ And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua, Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; there ſhall not a man of them ſtand before thee.

9 Joſhua therefore came unto them ſuddenly m, and went up from Gilgal all night n.

m Though aſſured by God of the Victory, yet he uſeth all prudent means, and ſurprizeth them. n It is not ſaid, that he went from Gilgal to Gibeon in a nights ſpace; but only that he travelled all night: unto which you may add part either of the foregoing, or of the following day.

10 And the LORD * † diſcomfited them before Iſrael, and ſlew them o with a great ſlaughter at Gibeon p, and chaſed them along the way that goeth up to Bethoron, and ſmote them to Azekah, and unto Makkedah. * Ch. 8. 28. † Heb. in Gibeon, not in the City, but in the Territory belonging to it, as Syria is ſaid to be in Jericho, Joſh. 5. 13. o Or, he ſlew them; either God, or Iſrael; for Gods work is deſcribed v. 11. p Heb. in Gibeon, not in the City, but in the Territory belonging to it, as Syria is ſaid to be in Jericho, Joſh. 5. 13.

11 And it came to paſs as they fled from before Iſrael, and were in the going down to Bethoron, that the LORD caſt down great ſtones q from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died; They were moe which died with haillſtones, than they whom the children of Iſrael ſlew with the ſword.

q i. e. Haillſtones of extraordinary greatneſs and hardneſs, caſt down with that certainty, as to hit the Canaanites, and not their Purſuers the Iſraelites; and with that force as to kill them. Joſephus affirms, That Thunder and Lightning were mixed with the Hail, which may ſeem probable from Pſal. 3. 11.

12 ¶ Then ſpake Joſhua to the LORD r in the day when the LORD delivered up the Amorites before the children of Iſrael, and he ſaid in the ſight of Iſrael s, * Sun † ſtand thou ſtill upon Gibeon t, and thou moon in the valley u of Ajalon x.

r To wit, in way of Petition for this Miracle: being moved to beg it out of zeal to deſtroy Gods Enemies, and directed to it by the motion of Gods Spirit, and receiving a gracious Anſwer, and being filled with holy Confidence of the ſucceſs, he ſpeaks the following words before the people, that they might be Witneſſes of it. s (i. e.) In the preſence and audience of Iſrael; ſeeing being ſometimes put for hearing, as Gen. 42. 1. compare with Act. 7. 12. 16 But these five kings i fled, and hid themselves in a cave k at Makkedah l.

i Named above, v. 5. k As a place of most secrecy or security; but there is no escaping the eye or hand of God, who here brought them into a net of their own making. l Heb. in Makkedah, not in the city, for that was not yet taken; but in the Territory of it; as in Gibeah, Judg. 20.

17 And it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hid in a cave at Makkedah.

18 And Joshua said, Roll great Stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by it, for to keep them.

19 And stay ye not m, but pursue after your enemies, and † smite the hindmost of them n; suffer them not to enter into their cities o; for the LORD your God hath delivered them into your hand p.

m Lose not your opportunity by your sloth or negligence. n Their rereward, all whom you can overtake. o Whereby they will recover their strength, and renew the War. p Your work will be safe, God hath already done the work to your hands.

20 And it came to pass when Joshua and the children of Israel q had made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, till they were consumed that the rest which remained of them, entred into fenced cities.

q i. e. Joshua by the Children of Israel; or the Children of Israel, i. e. a Party of them by the Command, Direction and Encouragement of Joshua; for Joshua himself went not with them, but abode in the Siege before Makkedah, v. 21.

21 And all the people returned to the camp r to Joshua at Makkedah in peace: * none moved his tongue against any of the children of Israel.

*Exod. 11. 7.

r To the body of the Army which were encamped there with Joshua to besiege that place. s Not so much as a Dog, as it is expressed Exod. 11. 7. Not only their men of war could not find their hands, but they were all so confounded, that they could not move their tongues in way of Insultation and Reproach, as doubtless they did when the Israelites were repulsed and smitten at Ai; but now they were silenced as well as conquered: they durst no more provoke nor injure the Israelites.

22 Then said Joshua, Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave.

23 And they did so, and brought forth those five kings unto him out of the cave, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon.

24 And it came to pass when they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war which went with him, Come near, put your feet upon the necks of these kings t. And they came near, and put their feet upon the necks of them.

t This he did not from Pride and Contempt of their Dignity in it self; but partly as a punishment of their impious Rebellion against their Sovereign Lord; partly in pursuance of that Curse of servility due to all this people, Gen. 9. 25. partly as a token to assure his Captains, that God would subdue the proudest of them all under their feet; and partly to oblige and teach his people severely to execute the Judgment of God upon them, and not to spare any of them, either out of a foolish Pity, or out of respect to their Dignity, as Saul afterwards spared Agag to his own ruine.

25 And Joshua said unto them, Fear not, nor be dismayed, be strong, and of good courage: for thus shall the LORD do to all your enemies against whom ye fight.

26 And afterward Joshua smote them, and slew them, and hanged them u on five trees: and they were hanging upon the trees * until the evening.

* Chap. 8. 29.

u After they were dead as a brand of Infamy, and for the Terror and Instruction of others.

27 And it came to pass at the time of the going down of the sun, that Joshua commanded, and they * took them down off the trees, and cast them into the cave, wherein they had been hid, and laid great stones in the caves mouth x, which remain unto this very day.

* Deut. 21. 22. chap. 8. 29.

x That neither wild beasts could come at them to devour them, nor any of their people to give them honourable Burial.

28 ¶ And that day y Joshua took Makkedah, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof he utterly destroyed; them, and all the souls that were therein, he let none remain: and he did to the king of Makkedah, * as he did unto the king of Jericho z.

y On which the Sun stood still, or on which the five Kings were hanged. Nor is it strange that so much work was done, and places so far distant, taken in one day, when the day was so long, and the Canaanites struck with such a terror. z Who was hanged, or otherwise killed, as appears from Josh. 6. 2.

29 Then Joshua passed down from Makkedah, and all Israel a with him, unto Libnah b, and fought against Libnah.

a To wit, who were with him in this Expedition. b A City of Judah, Josh. 15. 42.

30 And the LORD delivered it also, and the king thereof, into the hand of Israel, and he smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls c that were therein; he let none remain in it, but did unto the king thereof, as he did unto the king of Jericho.

c i. e. The human Souls; for all the Cattel they had for a prey.

31 ¶ And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, unto Lachish, and encamped against it, and fought against it.

32 And the LORD delivered Lachish into the hand of Israel, which took it on the second day d, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein, according to all he had done to Libnah.

d Either the day after his first laying of the Siege; or, after the taking of Makkedah and Libnah.

33 ¶ Then Horam king of Gezer e came up to help Lachish. and Joshua smote him and his people, until he had left him none remaining.

e Either that in Ephraim, of which Josh. 16. 3. Judg. 1. 29. But that seems too remote from the other places; or rather, that in Judah, which was near Lachish, 1 Chron. 14 16. whose King therefore was more capable, and more obliged to help them for his own sake.

34 ¶ And from Lachish Joshua passed unto Eglon f, and all Israel with him, and they encamped against it, and fought against it.

f A City of Judah, Josh. 15. 39.

35 And they took it on that day g, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein, he utterly destroyed that day, according to all he had done to Lachish.

g On which they first attempted it.

36 And Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him unto Hebron h, and they fought against it.

h Which though they took and killed all its inhabitants, yet they did not keep it; and therefore when Joshua and his Army had forsaken it, and were returned to Gilgal, it seems the Giants and other Canaanites being burnt out, or driven away from their former seats, planned and fortified themselves there; which made it necessary for Caleb to take it a second time, as is recorded Josh. 15. 14. Judg. 1. 10. Or this is the same Story, and the same Conquest of Hebron which is here generally related, and afterwards repeated, and more particularly described, Josh. 15. 13, 14.

37 And they took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof i, and all the cities thereof k, and all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining, according to all he had done to Eglon: but † destroyed it utterly, and all the souls that were therein.

† Heb. vau, and.

Or, reduced.

38 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him to Debir l, and fought against it, l He is said to return thither, not as if he had been there before, but because having gone as far Westward and Southward as he thought fit, even as far as Gaza, v. 41. he now returned towards Gilgal, which lay Northward and Eastward from him, and in his return fell upon Debir, see on Josh. 15. 15.

39 And he took it, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and utterly destroyed all the souls that were therein, he left none remaining: as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir, and to the king thereof, as he had done also to Libnah, and to her king.

40 ¶ So Joshua smote all the country of the hills, and of the south, and of the vale, and of the springs, and all their kings, he left none remaining, but utterly destroyed † all that breathed m, as the LORD God of Israel * commanded n.

† Heb. all the breath of life.

m i. e. All mankind, by a Synecdoche: for they reserved the Cattel for their own uses. n This is added for the Vindication of the Israelites, whom God would not have to suffer in their Reputation for executing his Commands; and therefore he acquits them of that implacable hatred and heinous cruelty, which they might be thought guilty of, and ascribes it to himself and his own just Indignation against this most wicked people.

41 And Joshua smote them from Kadesh-barnea o, even unto Gaza p, and all the country of * Goshen q, even unto Gibeon.

* chap. 11. 16. 10. Gen. 20. 1. Josh. 13. 3.

o Which lay in the South of Canaan, Numb. 34. 4. Deut. 1. 19. 21. Josh. 15. 3. p Which was in the South-west of Canaan. So he here signifies, that Joshua did in this expedition subdue all those parts which lay South and West from Gilgal. q Not that Goshen in Egypt, but another in Judah, Josh. 11. 16. and 15. 51.

42 And all these kings and their land did Joshua take at one time, because the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel.

43 And

43 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

CHAP. XI.

The other Kings and Cities of Canaan gather themselves together to fight against Israel, 1—5. God encourages Joshua, promising him Victory, 6. The Canaanites destroyed, their Cities taken and burnt: Hazor: the Anakims, 7—20. those in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod excepted, 21—23.

1 AND it came to pass when Jabin king of Hazor a had heard those things b, that he sent to Jobab king of Madon, and to the king of Shimron c, and to the king of Achshaph d, a The chief City of all those parts, v. 10. b This was a remarkable instance of the Wisdom and Goodness of Divine Providence, which so governed the minds and hearts of the Canaanites, that they were not at all united under one King, but divided amongst many petty Kings; and next, that these did not all unanimously join their Counsels and Forces together to oppose the Israelites at their first entrance, which their own Wisdom and Interest obliged them to do, but quietly suffered the destruction of their Brethren, thereby preparing the way for their own. c Called Shimronmeron, Josh. 12. 20. d A place in the Tribe of Asher, the furthest part of the land toward the North and West.

2 And to the kings that were on the north of the mountains e, and of the plains, south of Cinneroth f, and in the vale, and in the borders of Dor g, on the west, e Heb. on the North, (which may be the general designation of all the particular places following, that they were in the Northern parts of Canaan, as those mentioned Josh. 12. were in the Southern parts) in the mountain, either in or near the famous mountain of Libanus, called the Mountain by way of eminency; or in the mountainous Country. f Heb. in the plain lying Southward from Cinneroth, or the Lake of Genesareth; See Deut. 3. 17. Luke 5. 1. g A place upon the coast of the Midland-sea.

3 And to the Canaanite on the east, and on the west h, and to the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Jebusite in the mountains, and to the Hivite under Hermon i, in the land of Mizpeh k.

h The Canaanites properly so called, lived part of them on the East near Jordan, and part on the West near the Sea, and both are here united. i That dwelt under Mount Hermon in the North of Canaan, whereby they are differenced from those Hivites who lived in Gibeon, of which before. k That Mizpeh which was in the Northern part of Gilead, of which Gen. 31. 49. Judg. 11. 29. But there were other Cities called by that name, which signifying a Watching-place, might be easily applied to several places of good prospect. Besides this, there is one Mizpeh of Judah, Josh. 15. 38. another of Benjamin, Josh. 18. 26. a third in Moab, 1 Sam. 22. 3.

4 And they went out, they, and all their hosts with them, much people, even as the sand that is upon the sea shore in multitude, with horses and charets very many.

5 And when all these kings were † met together, they came and pitched together at the Waters of Merom l, to fight against Israel.

l A lake made by the River Jordan in the Northern part of it, which was in the Territory of the King of Schimron, or Schimronmeron, and near Hazor, Jabins royal City, and almost in the middle of these confederate Kings.

6 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Be not afraid because of them: for to morrow about this time will I deliver them up all slain before Israel: thou shalt hough their horses m, and burn their charets with fire.

m (i. e.) Cut their Hamstrings that they may be unfit for War. For God forbad them to have, or keep many Horses, Deut. 17. 16. now especially, that they might not trust to their Horses, as men are apt to do, nor distrust God for want of so necessary an help in Battel; nor ascribe the Conquest of the land to their own strength, but wholly to God, by whose power alone a company of raw and unexperienced Footmen were able to subdue so potent a people, which besides their great Numbers, and Giants, and walled Cities, had the advantage of many thousands of Horses and Chariots.

7 So Joshua came, and all the people of war with him, against them by the waters of Merom suddenly n, and they fell upon them.

n When they least expected them, intending there to refresh, and prepare, and order themselves for the offensive War which they designed.

8 And the LORD delivered them into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto † great Zidon o, and unto † * Misrephoth-maim p, and unto the valley of Mispeh q eastward, and they smote them, until they left them none remaining.

† Heb. Zidon the great.

* Heb. burnings of waters.

o A great and famous City in the Northwest part of Canaan, and upon the Sea. p A place not far from Zidon, supposed to be so called from the Salt or Glass which they made there. q Under Mount Hermon, as appears by comparing this with v. 3. and 17. where it seems to be called the valley of Lebanon. This lay on the East, as Sidon did on the West; and so it seems they fled several ways, and the Israelites also divided themselves into two Bodies, one pursuing East, and the other West.

9 And Joshua did unto them as the LORD bade him: he houghed their horses, and burnt their charets with fire.

10 ¶ And Joshua at that time turned back, and took Hazor, and smote the king thereof with the sword: for Hazor before time was the head of all those kingdoms s.

r Either in the former Battel, though it be mentioned here: or rather, in his Royal City, to which he fled out of the Battel. s Not of all Canaan, but of all those who were confederate with him in this Expedition.

11 And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them: there was not * any t left to breathe, and he burnt Hazor with fire.

* Heb. any breathing.

t (i. e.) No Humane Person.

12 And all the cities of those kings, and all the kings of them did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and he utterly destroyed them, * as Moses the servant of the LORD commanded.

* Numb. 33. 52. Deut. 7. 2. 20. 16. 17.

13 But as for the cities that stood still † in their strength u, Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only x, that did Joshua burn y.

† Heb. upon their Fence or Rampire. Walls or Bulwarks, i. e. which were not utterly ruined together with their Walls in the taking of them. x Which though taken by the Israelites, was not so much destroyed as other places were. Because this City began the War, and being the chief and Royal City, might renew the War if the Canaanites should ever lose upon it.

u Heb. with (for to this Preposition is often used, as Exod. 35. 22. Levit. 2. 2. Ezek. 16. 37. &c.) their Fence or Rampire. Walls or Bulwarks, i. e. which were not utterly ruined together with their Walls in the taking of them. x Which though taken by the Israelites, was not so much destroyed as other places were. Because this City began the War, and being the chief and Royal City, might renew the War if the Canaanites should ever lose upon it.

y Heb. burned Hazor only.

14 And all the spoil of these cities, and the cattel, the children of Israel took for a prey unto themselves: but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them, neither left they any to breathe.

15 ¶ * As the LORD commanded Moses his servant, so * did Moses command Joshua, and so did Joshua, † he left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.

* Exod. 34. 11. Deut. 7. 2.

16 So Joshua took all that land z, the hill a, and all the south countrey b, and all the land of Goshen c, and the vale d, and the plain e, and the mountain of Israel f and the vale of the same g:

z Of Canaan, whose parts here follow. a Or, the Mountain, i. e. the Mountainous Country, to wit, of Judea, as may seem, 1. Because in the following enumeration he begins in the South parts, where there was an eminent Mountain, Numb. 13. 17. 2. Because a considerable part of Judea was called the Hill or the Mountainous Country, Luke 1. 39, 65. which is not likely to be omitted in this particular description of the Land; the rather because Hebron, one of the places taken by Joshua, chap. 10. 36, 37. was in the mountain of Judah, Jos. 20. 7. 3. Because this is here distinguished from the Mountain of Israel, and therefore most likely to be the Mountain of Judah, especially if you compare this with v. 21. where having mentioned the Mountain in general, from which Joshua cut off the Anakims, he comes to particularize, and names only two, all the Mountain of Judah, and all the Mountain of Israel. b (i. e.) Not only the Mountainous part, but all the Country of Judea, which lay in the Southern part of Canaan, and often comes under the name of the South, as Numb. 13. 22, 29. and 21. 1. Jos. 10. 40. and 18. 5. &c. c Of which see Jos. 10. 41. d The low Countries. e The Fields or Champion grounds. f Either 1. Some one particular and eminent Mountain, possibly the Hill of Samaria, mentioned 1 Kings 16. 24. or rather 2. The Mountains or Mountainous Country of Israel. See the second note on this verse g (i. e.) Of Israel.

17 Even from the mount Halak, that goeth up to Seir h, unto Baal-Gad i, in the valley of Lebanon under mount Hermon k: and all their kings he took, and smote them, and slew them.

h (i. e.) To the country of Seir or Edom; to wit, that part of it which was South from Judea, not that which was Eastward from it, as appears from hence, that here, as also Jos. 12. 7. is mention of the two extream bounds of the Land conquered by Joshua; whereof the other which follows being in the North, this must needs be in the South of the Land. i A part of Mount Libanus.

k For divers years together, as is evident by the following History, and by comparing Deut. 2. 14. with Jos. 14. 7, &c. And this is here expressed, b if it should be thought that as all these Wars are here recorded in a short Narration, so they were dispatched in a short time. And God would have the Land to be Conquered gradually, for many weighty reasons; 1. Left the sudden extirpation of those Nations should have made a great part of the Land desert; and thereby have encreased the Numbers of Wild Beasts, Deut. 7. 22. 2. Left being done suddenly and easily, it should soon be forgotten and despised, as the nature of man is apt to do in those cases. 3. That by long exercise the Israelites might grow skilful in the Art of War, which was very useful and needful for them in that Land. 4. For the trial and exercise of their Patience and Courage, and Truth in God. 5. To oblige them to the greater care to please and obey God, whom they yet needed for their help against their Enemies.

18 And Jahazah, and Kedemoth, and Mephaath,

It is probable, that when Sihon deſtroyed thoſe Moabites which dwelt in theſe parts, he frighted the reſt of them, and with them their Neighbours and Confederates, the Midianites, into ſome kind of Homage or Tribute, whichthey were willing to pay to him. m Heb. in Midiny their Land, namely Midian, laſt mentioned; whereby he ſignifies, that though they were ſubject to Sihon, yet they did not dwell in his Land, but in another.

29 And Moſes gave inheritance unto the half tribe of Manaſſeh z: and this was the poſſeſſion of the half tribe of the children of Manaſſeh by their families.

z Not that they deſired it, as Reuben and Gad did, Numb. 32. 1. but partly as a recompence to Machir the Manaſſite, for his valiant acts againſt Og; and partly for the better Security and Defence of the other two Tribes, by ſo conſiderable an acceſſion to them, which alſo was without any inconvenience to them, becauſe the Country was too large for the two Tribes of Reuben and Gad.

30 And their coaſt was from Mahanaim, all Baſhan, all the kingdom of Og king of Baſhan, and all the Towns of Jair a, which are in Baſhan, threeſcore cities:

a Who, though of the Tribe of Judah, by the Father, 1 Chr. 2. 21, 22. yet is called the Son of Manaſſeh, Numb. 32. 41. becauſe he married a Daughter of Manaſſeh, and wholly aſſociated himſelf with thoſe valiant Manaſſites; and with their help took Sixty Cities or great Towns, Deut. 3. 4, 14. which thence were called the Towns of Jair.

31 And half Gilead, and Aſhtaroth, and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Baſhan, were pertaining unto the children of Machir the ſon of Manaſſeh, even to the one half of the * children of Machir b, by their Num. families. 32

b Whom before he called the children of Manaſſeh, he now calls the children of Machir, becauſe Machir was the moſt eminent, and as it may ſeem, the only ſurviving Son of Manaſſeh, Numb. 26. 29. 1 Chron. 7. 14, 15, 16. 32 Theſe are the countreys which Moſes did diſtribute for inheritance in the Plains of Moab, on the other ſide Jordan by Jericho eaſtward.

CHAP. XIV.

The Land and its Inheritances to be divided by Lot, 1—5. Caleb, having in his Return from ſpying the Land encouraged the People, Moſes then promiſed him the Land of Hebron; which he now claims of Joſhua, 6—12. Who grants his Requeſt, 13—15.

1 AND theſe are the countreys which the children of Iſrael inherited in the land of Canaan, * which Num. Eleazer the Prieſt b, and Joſhua the ſon of Nun, and 34. the heads of the fathers of the tribes c of the children of Iſrael diſtributed for inheritance to them.

a Mentioned, Chap. 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19. b See on Joſh. 8. 33. and 9. 15, 18. and 19. 51. He beſt underſtood the Laws of God by which this Diviſion was to be regulated; and he was to conſult God upon any difficult Occurrence. c Twelve perſons, each the head of his Tribe, which were appointed and named by God, Numb. 34. 19. and if any of them were now dead, no doubt Joſhua and Eleazer, by God's Direction, put others in their ſtead.

2 * By Lot was their inheritance d, as the LORD Num. commanded by the hand of Moſes, for the nine tribes, 26. 55. and for the half tribe.

d This courſe God ordained, partly to prevent Diſcontents, Enmities, Animoſities and Quarrels among the Tribes, about the quality of their ſeveral Portions; and partly to demonſtrate the Truth and Wiſdom of his Providence, by which alone their Parts fell to each of them, which Jacob long ſince, and Moſes lately, foretold; ſo that as a learned Man ſaith, He muſt be more ſtupid than Stupidity, and more impudent than Impudence it ſelf, that doth not acknowledge and confeſs a Divine Hand and Providence in this matter. The Lot did only determine the ſeveral Parts or Provinces to the ſeveral Tribes, but did not preciſely fix all the Bounds of it, but theſe might be either enlarged or diminiſhed according to the greater or ſmaller number of the Tribes, Numb. 26. 53, 56. and 33. 54. and that by the direction of thoſe perſons mentioned v. 1. and Joſh. 17. 14—18.

3 For Moſes had given the inheritance of two tribes, and a half tribe, on the other ſide Jordan: but unto the Levites he gave none inheritance among them.

4 For the children of Joſeph were two tribes e, Manaſſeh and Ephraim: therefore they gave no part unto the Levites in the land, ſave cities to dwell in with their ſuburbs, for their cattel, and for their ſubſtance.

e i. e. Had the double Portion, or the Portion of two Tribes, 1 Chron. 5. 1, 2. and therefore though Levi was excluded, there remained nine Tribes and a half, as was ſaid v. 2. to be provided for in Canaan.

5 * As the LORD commanded Moſes, ſo the chil- Num. dren of Iſrael did, and they divided the land f. 26. 54.

f They, i. e. the perſons named, ver. 5. who repreſented and acted in the name of the Children of Iſrael, divided it, either now, or preſently after; which is here ſpoken by Anticipation.

6 ¶ Then g the children of Judah came h unto Joſhua in Gilgal i: and Caleb the ſon of Jephunneh k the Kenezite l, ſaid unto him, Thou knoweſt the thing that the LORD ſaid unto Moſes m the man of God n concerning me and thee in Kadeſh-barnea.

g Either 1. at that time when Joſhua and the reſt were conſulting about the diviſion of the Land, though they did not yet actually and fully divide it. Or, 2. when Joſhua, and himſelf, and the Iſraelites, were proceeding in their Conqueſts, and were going againſt Hebron, Joſh. 10. 36. which Expedition there mentioned in a general manner, may be particularly deſcribed in this Chapter, and Joſh. 15. 13, 14. But the former ſeems more probable, becauſe this was done when Joſhua was in Gilgal, and not when he was purſuing his Enemies. h Not ſo much to intercede for Caleb, which was not needful with Joſhua, eſpecially in a thing already promiſed by God, but only to juſtifie and countenance him in his deſire. i Where the diviſion of the Land was deſigned and begun, though it it was executed and finiſhed at Shiloh, Joſh. 18. 1. &c. k So he is called here, and 1 Chron. 4. 15. to difference him from Caleb the Son of Hezron, 1 Chron. 2. 18. l Of the Poſterity of Kenaz, of whom ſee Judg. 1. 13. 1 Chron. 4. 13. 15. m In general, the gracious and comfortable promiſe he made us of poſſeſſing this Land; and in particular, for my part, that which is expreſſed here, v. 9. n Whoſe words therefore thou are obliged to make good.

12 Now therefore give me this mountain x, whereof the LORD ſpake in that day; (for thou heardeſt y in Num. 13. that day, how the * Anakims were there, and that the 22, 33. cities were great and fenced) if ſo be the LORD will be with me z, then I ſhall be able to drive them out a as the LORD ſaid.

He names the Countrey rather than the Cities, either 1. becauſe the Giants here following were already driven out of their Cities, but yet abode in their Caves or Holds in the mountains, whence they much moleſted the Iſraelites. CHAP. XV.

The Borders of the Lot of Judah, 1—12. Among them Kirjath-Arba Caleb's Inheritance: He drives thence the three ſons of Anak; promiſes to give his daughter in marriage to him who ſhould ſmite Kirjath-Sepher; which Othniel does, and obtains her: She requeſts of her Father ſome Land for a Dowry; which he grants, 13—19. The Cities of Judah, 20—62. The Jebuſites could not be conquered by them, 63

THis then was the lot a of the tribe of the children of Judah b by their Families, * even to the border of Num. 33. 36. Edom c; the * wilderneſs of Zin ſouthward was the ut- termoſt part of the ſouth-coaſt.

a For the general underſtanding of this buſineſs, it muſt be known 1. That this work of caſting Lots was tranſacted with great ſeriouſneſs and ſolemnity, in God's preſence, with Prayer and Appeal to him for the decilion of the matter. 2. That although an exact Survey of this Land was not taken till Joſh. 18. 4, 5. yet there was, and muſt needs be a general deſcription of it, and a diviſion there- of into nine parts and a half; which, as far as they could gueſs, were equal either in Quantity or in Quality. 3. That the Lot did not at this time ſo peremptorily and unchangeably determine each Tribe, that their portion could neither be encreaſed nor diminiſhed; as is manifeſt, becauſe after Judah's Lot was fixed, Simeon's Lot was taken out of it, Joſh. 19. 9. though after the Land was more diſtinctly known and ſurveyed, Joſhua 18. it is likely the Bounds were more certain and fixed. 4. That the Lot determined only in general what part or quarter of the Land belonged to each Tribe, but left the particulars to be determined by Joſhua and Eleazar, &c. For the manner of this Lottery, it is probably conceived, that there were two Urns or Pots, into one of which were put the Names of all the Tribes, each in a diſtinct Paper, and into the other the Names of each Portion deſcribed; then Eleazar, or ſome other Perſon, drew out firſt the Name of one of the Tribes out of one Pot, and then the Name of one Portion out of the other Pot, and that Portion was appropriated to that Tribe; and ſo in the reſt. And with reſpect to theſe Pots, in the bottom of which the Papers lay, theſe Lots are oft ſaid to come up, or come forth. b Whoſe Lot came out firſt by God's diſpoſition, as a note of his Preeminency above his Brethren. c Which lay South-eaſt from Judah's Portion.

3 And it went out to the ſouth-ſide e to † Maaleh-a-† Or, the crabbim, and paſſed along to Zin, and aſcended up on going up to the ſouth-ſide unto Kadeſh-barnea: and paſſed along to Acrabbim. Hezron, and went up to Adar, and fetched a compaſs to • Karkaa. • Heb. turned.

e Concerning this deſcription of the Southern-Coaſt of Judah ſee Numb. 34. 3, 4, 5.

4 From thence it paſſed toward Azmon, and went out unto the River of Egypt, and the goings out of that coaſt were at the ſea: this ſhall be your ſouth-coaſt,

5 And the eaſt-border was the ſalt ſea, even unto the end of Jordan ſ: and their border in the north quarter was from the bay of the ſea, at the uttermoſt part of Jordan.

ſ i. e. The place where Jordan runs into the Salt-ſea.

6 And the border went up to Beth-hogla, and paſſed along by the North of Beth-arabah g, and the border went up to the ſtone of Bohan the ſon of Reuben h.

g Or, on the North, or Northward to Beth-arabah. Which place is attributed to Judah here, ver. 61. and to Benjamin, Joſh. 18. 22. becauſe it was a Frontier Town to the borders of Judah and Benjamin, and therefore promiſcuouſly belonging to both; which alſo was the Caſe of ſome other Places: And this Cohabitation was convenient to maintain brotherly Love and Union between ſeveral Tribes, eſpecially in the borders, where differences oft ariſe. h A place ſo called, not from Bohan's dwelling there, (for the Redeemer had no Portion on this ſide Jordan) but from ſome noble Exploit which he did there, though it be not recorded in Scripture.

7 And the border went up toward Debir i from the valley of Achor, and ſo northward, looking toward Gilgal k, that is before the going up to Adummim, which is on the ſouth ſide of the river l: and the border paſſed towards the waters of En-ſhemeſh, and the goings out thereof were * at Enrogel. * Kiſſ. 1. 9.

i A differing place from that Debir, ver. 15. which was near Hebron, and remote from Judah's border; as alſo from that Debir, Joſh. 13. 26. which was beyond Jordan. k Either that Gilgal nigh Jordan, Joſh. 4. 19. or another place of that name. l Or, brook, or valley.

8 And the border went up m by the valley of the ſon of Hinnom n, unto the ſouth ſide of the * Jebuſite o, the ſame is Jeruſalem p: and the border went up to the top of the mountain, that lieth before the valley of Hinnom, weſtward, which is at the end of the valley of the giants, northward.

m Properly, for the Line went from Jordan and the ſalt Sea, to the higher grounds nigh Jeruſalem; and therefore the Line is ſaid to go down, Joſh. 18. 16. becauſe there it takes a contrary courſe, and goes downwards to Jordan and the Sea. n A very pleaſant place, but afterward made infamous, 2 King. 23. 10. o (i. e.) Of the City of the Jebuſites, which was anciently called Jebuſi, Joſh. 18. laſt, Judg. 19. 10. p It may ſeem hence, and from Deut. 33. 12. Joſh. 18. laſt, Judg. 1. 21. that Jeruſalem properly, or at leaſt principally, belonged to Benjamin; and yet it is aſcribed to Judah alſo here, verſe 63. and elſewhere, either becauſe a part of the City was allotted to Judah; or becauſe the Benjamites needed or deſired the Help and Conjunction of this powerful Tribe of Judah, for the getting and keeping of this moſt important place.

And

And when the Benjamites had in vain attempted to drive out the Jebusites, this work was at last done by the Tribe of Judah, who therefore had an interest in it by the Right of War; as Zigleg which belonged to the Tribe of Simeon, being gotten from the Philistines by David, was adjoyned by him to his Tribe of Judah, 1 Sam. 27. 6.

9 And the border was drawn from the top of the hill, unto the fountain of the water of Nephtoah, and went out to the cities of mount Ephron g, and the border was drawn to Baalah, which is Kirjath-jearim r.

g (i. e.) belonging to, or bordering upon Mount Ephron. r Called Kirjath-baal, v. 60. and Josh. 18. 14.

10 And the border compassed from Baalah westward unto mount Seir s, and passed along unto the side of mount Jearim, (which is Chesalon) on the north side, and went down to Beth-shemesh t, and passed on to Timnah.

s Not that of Edom, but another so called from some resemblance it had with that in quality. t There were divers Cities of this Name; this in Judah here, and Josh. 21. 16. 2 Kings, 14. 11. another in Dan, and a third in Naphtali, Josh. 19. 22, 38.

11 And the border went out unto the side of Ekron northward, and the border was drawn to Shicron, and passed along to mount Baalah, and went out unto Jabneel: and the goings out of the border were at the sea.

12 And the west border was to the great sea, and the coast thereof: this is the coast of the children of Judah round about, according to their families.

13 ¶ And unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh he u gave a part among the children of Judah, according to the commandment of the LORD to Joshua, even the city of Arba x the father of Anak, which city is Hebron.

u i. e. Joshua, as appears by comparing this with Josh. 14. 6. 12. 12. x Or, Kirjath-arba. Not the City which was the Levites, but the Territory of it, Josh. 21. 13.

14 And Caleb drove thence y the three sons of Anak, Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai z, the children of Anak.

y (i. e.) From the said Territory, from their Caves and Forts in it; compare Josh. 14. 12. This and the following work was done either in Joshua's life-time, as may seem from Josh. 11. 21. or after his death, as is related Judg. 1. 10. These Giants having either recovered their Cities, or defended themselves in the mountains. z Either the same who are mentioned, Numb. 13. 33. and so they were long-liv'd men, such as many were in those times and places: or their Sons, called by their Fathers names, which is very usual.

15 And he went up thence to the inhabitants of Debir a, and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher b.

a The same mentioned above, v. 7. b This clause seems to be added to distinguish this from the other Debir subdued by Joshua, Josh. 10. 38, 39.

16 ¶ And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife c.

c Which is to be understood with some Conditions, as, if he were one who could marry her by God's Law; for every promise contrary to that, is void; and if the were willing; for though Parents had a great Power over their Children, they could not force them to marry any person against their own Wills. He might otherwise be an unfit and unworthy person; but this was no ordinary motion propounded to the imitation of others, but a divine impulse, that Othniel's valour might be more manifest, and so the way prepared for his future Government of the People, Judg. 3. 9.

17 And * Othniel the son of Kenaz, the brother of Caleb d took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

d Obj. This Marriage was unlawful. Answ. No, for it was not Othniel, but Kenaz, who was Caleb's Brother; and besides, the word Brother is commonly used for any Kinsman; And that Caleb was not properly Othniel's Brother, sufficiently appears, because Caleb is constantly called the Son of Jephunneh; and Othniel, the Son of Kenaz here, and 1 Chron. 4. 13.

18 And it came to pass as she came unto him e, that she moved him to ask f of her father a field; and she lighted off her ass g, and Caleb said unto her, What wouldest thou?

e Or, as she went, to wit, from her Father's house to her Husband's, as the manner was: See on Matth. 1. 18. f She perfuaded her Husband, either, 1. That he would ask: or rather, 2. That he would suffer her to ask, as she did. g That she might address her self to her Father in an humble posture, and as a Suppliant, which he understood by her gesture.

19 Who answered, Give me a blessing h: for thou hast given me a south land i, give me also springs of water k. And he gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs l.

h (i. e.) A gift, as that word signifies, Gen. 33. 11. i (i. e.) A dry land, which was much exposed to the south-wind, which in those parts was very hot and drying, as coming from the Desarts of Arabia. k (i. e.) A Field, as the desired, v. 18. wherein are Springs of Water, which in that Countrey were of great Price; for it is not probable, that he would give her the Springs, and give to another the grounds in which the Springs were; who could thereby at their pleasure deprive her of the use and benefit of her Springs: So she begs a well moistened Field, which also might give some relief to that which was dry and barren. l (i. e.) Springs both in the higher and in the lower grounds; or two Fields, one in high, another in low grounds; or rather, one above, and the other below that South and dry ground which she complained of, that by this means it might be watered on both sides.

20 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah, according to their families.

21 And the uttermost cities m of the tribe of the children of Judah toward the coast of Edom, southward, were Kabzeel n, and Eder, and Jagur;

m Those which were on the borders of the Land, not the midland cities. It is apparent, that all the Cities belonging to this Tribe, are not mentioned in this Catalogue. n Called Jekabzeel, Neh. 11. 25.

22 And Kinah, and Dimonah, and Adadah,

23 And Kedesh, and Hazor, and Ithnan.

24 Ziph, and Telem, and Bealoth,

25 And Hazor, Haddattah o, and Kerioth, and Hezron, which is Hazor p, o Possibly it should be read as one word, Hazor-haddattah, as there is Hazar-ge'idah, v. 27. and Hasar-shual, v. 28. such compounded proper names being usual; and this may seem the more probable, because if Hazor and Haddattah were two different Cities the Conjunction and would have been put between them, as it is generally in the rest. p Or, which also is called Hazor; but to distinguish it from the other Hazor, v. 23. this was called also Hezron.

26 Aman, and Shema q, and Moladah, q Called also Sebu, Jos. 19. 2.

27 And Hazar-gaddah, and Heshmon, and Beth-palet.

28 And Hazar-shual, and Beersheba, and Biz-jothjah,

29 Baalah, and Iim, and Azem,

30 And Eltolad, and Chesil, and Hormah,

31 And Ziklag, and Madmannah, and Sansannah,

32 And Lebaoth, and Shilhim, and Ain, and Rimmon: all the cities are twenty and nine r, with their villages.

r Obj. Here are 37 or 38 Cities named before; how then are they only reckoned 29? Answ. There were only 29 of them, which either, 1. properly belonged to Judah; the rest fell to Simeon's Lot; or 2. Were Cities properly so called, (i.e.) walled Cities, or such as had Villages under them, as it here follows, the rest being great, but unwalled Towns, or such as had no Villages under them.

33 And in the vale, Eshtaol, and Zoreah, and Ashnah, 34 And Zanoah, and Engannim, Tappuah, and Enam.

35 Jarmuth, and Adullam, Socoh, and Azekah,

36 And Sharaim, and Adithaim, and Gederah, * and r, s Gederothaim; fourteen cities s with their villages.

s Obj. There are 15 numbred. Answ. Either one of them was no city strictly called; or, Gederah, and Gederothaim is put for Gederah, or Gederothaim, so called; possibly because the City was double, as there want not instances of one City divided into two parts, called the old and the new City. So the conjunction and is put for the disjunctive or, whereof examples have been given before.

37 Zenan, and Hadashah, and Migdal-gad,

38 And Dilean, and Mizpeh, and Joktheel,

39 Lachish, and Bozkath, and Eglon,

40 And Cabbon, and Lahmas, and Kithlish,

41 And Gederoth, Beth-dagon, and Naamah, and Makkedah: sixteen cities with their villages.

42 Libnah t, and Ether, and Ashan, t Heb. Libnah. See Josh. 10. 29.

43 And Jiphtah, and Ashnah, and Nezib,

44 And Keilah, and Achzib, and Mareshah: nine cities with their villages.

45 Ekron u with her † towns x, and her villages y.

u Here and in the following Verses are contained all the Cities of the Philistines, among which are Gath and Ashdon, which perad-venture are here omitted, because they were not at this time places of such power and eminency, as afterwards they were, but were the Daughters of some of these following Cities, though afterwards the Daughter might overtop the Mother, as is usual. x Heb. Her Daughters, i. e. lesser Cities, or great Towns, subject to Ekron's Jurisdiction. y i. e. Lesser Towns or Hamlets.

46 From Ekron even unto the sea, all that lay † near Ashdod with their villages.

47 Ashdod with her † towns and her villages; Gaza with her * towns and her villages, unto the river of Egypt, and the great sea, and the border thereof z.

z i.e. The Sea-coast and all other cities, towns and villages upon it.

48 ¶ And in the mountains a, Shamir, and Jattir, and Socoh, a i.e. In the higher grounds called mountains or hills, in compar-ison of the Sea-coast.

49 And

49 And Dannah, and Kirjath-sannah, which is Debir b.

b Which also is called Kirjath-sepher, above v. 15. So this City had three Names

50 And Anab, and Eshtemoh, and Anim,

51 And Goshen c, and Holon, and Giloh: eleven cities with their villages.

c See Jos. 10. 41.

52 Arab, and Dumah, and Eshean,

53 And * Janum, and Beth-tappuah, and Aphekah,

54 And Humtah, and * Kirjath-arba, (which is Hebron) and Zior: nine cities with their villages.

55 Maon d, Carmel e, and Ziph f, and Juttah, d Of which see 1 Sam. 23. 25. and 25. 2. e Nabals Country, 1 Sam. 25. f Which gave its name to the Neighbouring Mountain, 1 Sam. 26. 1.

56 And Jezreel, and Jokdeam, and Zanoah,

57 Cain, Gibeah, and Timnah: ten cities with their villages.

58 Halhul, Bethzur, and Gedor,

59 And Maarath, and Beth-anoth, and Eltekon: six cities with their villages.

60 Kirjath-baal (which is Kirjath jearim) and Rabbah: two cities with their villages.

61 ¶ In the wilderness g, Beth-arabah, Meddin, and Secacah, g So the Hebrews call places either uninhabited by men, or having but few Inhabitants.

62 And Nibshan, and the city of salt h, and Engedi: six cities with their villages.

h So called either from the Salt Sea, which was near it; or from the Salt which was made in it, or about it.

63 As for the Jebusites the Inhabitants of Jerusalem i, the children of Judah could not drive them out k: but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Judah at Jerusalem l unto this day d.

i For though Jerusalem was in part taken by Joshua before this; yet the upper and stronger part of it, called Zion, was still kept by the Jebusites, even until Davids time; and it seems from thence they descended to the lower Town called Jerusalem, and took it: so that the Israelites were forced to win it a second time; yea, and a third time also: for afterwards it was possessed by the Jebusites, Judg. 19. 11. 1 Sam. 5. 6, 7. k Namely, because of their unbelief, as Christ could do no mighty work——because of the people unbelief, Matth. 6. 5, 6. Mar. 13. 58. and because of their Sloth, and Cowardice, and Wickedness, whereby they forfeited Gods help, and then they must needs be impotent; but this inability was wilful, and brought upon them by themselves. l The same things which are here said of the children of Judah, are said of the Benjamites, Judg. 1. 21. Hence ariseth a question, To which of the Tribes Jerusalem belonged? whether to Benjamin, as is gathered from Gen. 49. 27. Deut. 33. 12. Jer. 6. 1. or to Judah, as is implied here, and Psal. 78. 68, 69. Some think, that being in the Borders of both, it was common to both, and promiscuously inhabited by both; and it is certain, that after the Captivity it was possessed by both. Neh. 11. 4. But for the present, though it did belong to Benjamin, yet the Children of Judah being possibly very active in the first taking of it by Joshua, as they certainly were after his Death, Judg. 1. 8. they might thereby get some right share with the Benjamites in the Possession of it. It seems most probable, that part of it, and indeed the greatest part, and main body of it, stood in the Tribe of Benjamin; and hence this is mentioned in the List of their Cities, and not in Judah's List; and part of it stood in Judah's share, even Mount Moriah, on which the Temple was built; and Mount Sion, when it was taken from the Jebusites. m When this Book was written, whether in Joshua's Life and Old Age, which continued many years after the taking of Jerusalem; or after his Death, when this Clause was added here and elsewhere in this Book by some other man of God, which must needs be done before David's time, when the Jebusites were quite expelled, and their Fort taken.

CHAP. XVI.

The general Borders of the sons of Joseph, 1—4. The Borders of Ephraim, 5—9. Some of the Canaanites not expell'd, but made tributaries, 10.

1 AND the lot of the children of Joseph a * fell from Jordan by Jericho, unto the † water of Jericho b on the east, to the wilderness that goeth up from Jericho throughout mount Beth-el;

a (i.e.) Of Ephraim, and the half Tribe of Manasseh, which are here put together in one; not because they had but one Lot, for Ephraim had one here, v. 5. and Manasseh another, Jos. 17. 1. but because in these first Verses he speaks of them in common, and of the South border, which seems to be the same, either wholly or in a great part: and then he comes to the particular description of their several portions. It is here farther remarkable, that God so disposed of these Lots, that they came forth in decent and due order; Joseph's first, to whom the Soveraignty was promised; and then Joseph's, who succeeded Reuben in the other Privilege of the Birth-right, the double-portion, 1 Chron. 5. 1, 2. b Of which see 2 Kings. 2. 19, 20, 21, 22. c The Wilderness of Beth-aven, as appears by comparing Jos. 18. 12. which speaks of the very same border which was on the South of Ephraim, and on the North of Benjamin.

2 And goeth out from Beth-el to * Luz d, and passeth along unto the borders of Archi, to Ataroth, d Or, from Bethel-Luz, as the LXX. here join the words; for Bethel was anciently called Luz, Gen 28 19. and 35. 6. Though some think this was another Luz, spoken of Judg. 1. 26. Others make Bethel and Luz two neighbouring Towns, which afterwards being more built and inhabited, became one, as oft hath happened.

3 And goeth down westward to the coast of Japhleti, unto the coast of Beth-horon the nether e, and to Gezer: and the goings out thereof are at the sea.

e Of the two Beth-horons, see Jos. 10. 10, 11.

4 So the children of Joseph, Manasseh f, and Ephraim, took their inheritance g.

f (i. e.) Half Manasseh, by a Synecdoche. g (i.e.) Their several Portions which here follow. Some think that they had but one Lot between them, and therefore they are now said to take their Inheritance, to wit, by dividing it between them according to the direction of Joshua and Eleazar, &c. For that Parale being used of them, and not, to my remembrance, of any other Tribe, may seem to have some peculiar signification, which doth not agree to the other Tribes. But there being mention of a peculiar Lot taken out for Manasseh, Josh. 17. 1. shews that their several inheritances fell to them, as the rest did to the other Tribes, even by several Lots; and it is said of them, that they took their inheritance, which also Judah had done before them, because the Tribes of Judah and Joseph did take their Inheritances before the rest; and it was fit they should do so, for the security of the main Camp, and the body of the people which were at Gilgal. See Jos. 18. 5.

5 ¶ And the border of the children of Ephraim, according to their families, was thus: even the border of their inheritance on the east-side h, was from Ataroth-addar unto Beth-horon the upper.

g (i.e.) The North-east side. It is no wonder, if some of these Descriptions are dark and doubtful to us at this distance of time and place; there having been so many alterations made in places, and so many circumstances, being now altogether unknown or little. But this is evident to every man of common sense, that this and all the descriptions here mentioned, were then certain and evident to the Israelites, because those were the foundation of their present practice, and of all the possessions which then they took, and peaceably possessed in succeeding Ages.

6 And the border went out toward the sea i, to Michmethah on the north-side, and the border went about eastward unto Taanath-shiloh, and passed by it on the east to Janohah:

i The Mid-land Sea, towards the West.

7 And it went down from Janohah to Ataroth, and to Naarath, and came to Jericho k, and went out at Jordan.

k Not to the City of Jericho, which belonged to Benjamin's Lot, Jos. 18. 21. but to its Territory.

8 The border went up from Tappuah westward unto the river Kanah; and the goings out thereof were at the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Ephraim by their families.

9 And the * separate cities l for the children of Ephraim were among the inheritance of the children of Manasseh, all the cities with their villages.

l (i.e.) Besides those Cities which were within Ephraim's bounds, he had some other Cities, to which all their Territories were annexed out of Manasseh's Portion, because his Tribe was all here, and was larger than Manasseh's.

10 And they * drave out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer m: but the Canaanites dwell among the Ephraimites unto this day, and serve under tribute n.

m Nor were they driven out till Solomon's time, 1 Kings. 9. 16. n As Jos. 17. 13. 1 Kings. 9. 16.

CHAP. XVII.

The Inheritance of Manasseh: and its Borders, 1—11. They complain, but are not the Canaanites, but made tributaries, 12, 13. Children of Joseph complain, that their Borders are narrow, and promises them the subduing of the Canaanites, 14—18.

1 THere was also a lot for the tribe of Manasseh, (for he was the * first born of Joseph) to wit, for Machir † Machir b, the first-born of e Manasseh, the father of Gilead d: because he was a man of war e, therefore he had Gilead and Bashan f.

a The sense is, though Ephraim was to be more potent and numerous, yet Manasseh was the First-born, and had the privileges of the First-born, which was transferred to Joseph, 1 Chron. 5. 1. and therefore though this were but half the Tribe of Joseph, yet they are not made Inmates to Ephraim, but have a distinct Lot of their own, as their Brethren, or other half Tribe had beyond Jordan. b The only Son of Manasseh, who therefore is here, and Judg. 5. 14. put for the whole Tribe. c So Manasseh is sometimes called, as Mat. 1. 10. See Rev. 7. 12. d Or, the Father, or who was also the Father or Founder of Gilead; not of the Land of Gilead, but of the man Gilead, who was Machir's Son, Num. 26. 29. e Heb. i. e. Machir, had given great proof of his Valour in his Generation, (though the particular History has not been recorded) and his Posterity were no degenerate Sons, but had his valiant Blood still running in their Veins. f (i.e.) Part of their Countreys; for part of them was also given to the Reubenites, and part to the Gadites, as appears from Jos. 13. 30, 31. This may be added as a reason, either 1. Why he got those places from the Amorites; or 2. Why they were allotted to him or his Posterity, because this was a Frontier Countrey, and the Out-works to the Land of Canaan, and therefore required such valiant persons to defend it.

Numb. 26. 29.

2 There was also a lot g for * the reſt of the children of Manaſſeh h by their families: for the children of Abiezer, and for the children of Helek, and for the children of Aſriel, and for the children of Shechem, and for the children of Hepher, and for the children of Shemida: theſe were the male-children i of Manaſſeh the Son of Joſeph by their families.

g Or, a Portion, or diſtinct Inheritance. h To wit, thoſe of them which had not received their Poſſeſſions beyond Jordan, Numb. 26. 30, &c. i This expreſſion is uſed to bring in what follows, concerning his Female Children.

Numb. 26. 33. 27. 1. 36. 11. Josh. 17. 3. 1 Chron. 7. 15.

3 But * Zelophehad the ſon of Hephir, the ſon of Gilead, the ſon of Machir, the ſon of Manaſſeh, had no ſons but daughters k: and theſe are the names of his daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

k Of whom ſee on Numb. 26. 33. and 27. 1.

4 And they came near before Eleazar the prieſt, and before Joſhua the ſon of Nun, and before the princes, ſaying, The LORD commanded Moſes to give us an inheritance among our brethren: therefore according to the commandment of the LORD he l gave them an inheritance among the brethren of their father.

l (i. e.) Eleazar, or Joſhua, with the conſent of the Princes appointed for that work.

5 And there fell ten portions m to Manaſſeh, beſide the land of Gilead, and Bashan, which were on the other ſide Jordan:

m Either 1. Six portions for the ſix Sons, whereof one was Hepher; and becauſe he had no Sons, his part was ſubdivided into five equal parts, for each of the Daughters: Or 2. Ten Portions, five for the Sons, and five for the Daughters; for as for Hepher, both he and his Son Zelophehad was dead, and that without Sons, and therefore he had no Portion; but his Daughters had ſeveral Portions allotted to them.

6 Becauſe the daughters of Manaſſeh had an inheritance among his ſons n: and the reſt of Manaſſehs ſons had the land of Gilead.

n (i. e.) No leſs than the Sons, ſo their Sex was no bar to their Inheritance.

7 ¶ And the coaſt of Manaſſeh was from Aſher to Michmethah, that lieth before Shechem, and the border went along on the right hand, unto the inhabitants of En-tappuah.

8 Now Manaſſeh had the land of Tappuah: but the city of Tappuah on the border of Manaſſeh belonged to the children of Ephraim.

Or, Reed or Rush. Chap. 19. 35.

9 And the coaſt deſcended unto the ‖ river Kanah ſouthward of the river: * theſe cities of Ephraim o are among the cities of Manaſſeh p; the coaſt of Manaſſeh alſo was on the north-ſide of the river, and the outgoings of it were at the ſea.

o Towards, and the cities upon the Coaſt deſcending to the River, &c. laſt mentioned. p (i. e.) Are intermixed with their Cities, which was not ſtrange nor unfit, theſe two being linked together by a nearer Alliance than the reſt.

10 Southward it was Ephraims, and northward it was Manaſſehs, and the ſea is his border q, and they met together in Aſher r on the north, and in Iſſachar on the eaſt.

q Either 1. Manaſſeh's, whoſe portion is here deſcribed, and whoſe Name was laſt mentioned. Or 2. Ephraim's and Manaſſeh's both expreſſed in the foregoing words, and implied in the following, they. r (i. e.) Upon the Tribe of Aſher; for though Zebulun came between Aſher and them for the greateſt part of their Land; yet it ſeems there were ſome Necks or Parcels of Land, both of Ephraim's and of Manaſſeh's, which jutted out farther than the reſt, and touched the borders of Aſher. And it is certain there were many ſuch incurſions of the Land of one Tribe upon ſome parcels of another, although they were otherwiſe conſiderably diſtant one from the other. See Joſ. 19. 34. And you muſt not judge of theſe things by the preſent Maps, which are drawn according to the Opinions of late Authors, which many times are falſe; and they are to be judged by the Scripture, and not the Scripture by them: But, that part of Manaſſeh did reach to Aſher, appears from hence, that Dor, a City of Manaſſeh, v. 11. was, as is there witneſſeth, near Carmel, which belonged to Aſher, Joſ. 19. 26.

11 And Manaſſeh had in Iſſachar, and in Aſher s, Beth-ſhean and her towns, and Ibleam and her towns, and the inhabitants of Dor u and her towns, and the inhabitants of Endor and her towns, and the inhabitants of Taanach and her towns, and the inhabitants of Megiddo and her towns, even three Countreys x.

s Either 1. Bordering upon them, as in Aſher is taken v. 10. and as Aarons Rod is ſaid to be in the Ark, i. e. cloſe by it, Heb. 9. 4. or 2. Properly in them, as Ephraim had ſome Cities in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, Joſ. 16. 9. and as it was not unuſual, when the place allotted to any Tribe was too narrow for it, and the next too large, to give away part from the larger to the leſs portion; nay ſometimes one whole Tribe was taken into another; as Simeon was into Judah's Portion, when it was found too large for Judah, Joſ. 19. 9.

t Not the places only, but the people; whom, contrary to Gods Command, they ſpared and uſed for Servants, whom therefore they are ſaid to have or poſſeſs. x This may be referred either to ſome, to wit, the three laſt places, or to all the places named in this verſe, which are here ſaid, either to have three Countreys or Tracts of Land belonging to them, or to be in three ſeveral Countreys or Portions, as they ſeem to have been, ſome in Iſſachar, and ſome in Aſher, and yet both belonging to Manaſſeh. Or, the words may be rendred, the third part of that Countrey; for the Hebrew word is of the Singular Number, and the Article ſeems emphatical; and ſo the meaning may be, That the Cities and Towns here mentioned are a third part of that Countrey, i. e. of that part of Iſſachars and Aſhers Portion, in which thoſe places lay.

12 Yet * the children of Manaſſeh could not y drive * Judg. 1. out the inhabitants of thoſe cities, but the Canaanites would dwell z in that land.

y See on Joſ. 15. 63. z Were reſolved to Fight, rather than be turned out of their ancient habitations.

13 Yet it came to paſs when the children of Iſrael were waxen ſtrong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute: but did not utterly drive them out a.

a Which they were obliged to, now they were ſtrong and numerous enough to poſſeſs thoſe places.

14 And the children of Joſeph b ſpake unto Joſhua c, ſaying, Why haſt thou given me but one lot, and one portion d to inherit, ſeeing I am a great e people, foraſmuch as the LORD hath bleſſed me hitherto?

b (i. e.) Of Ephraim and Manaſſeh, as is manifeſt, partly from v. 17. where it is ſo explained; and partly, becauſe they mention it as an unreaſonable thing, that they being two, ſhould have but one Lot. c (i. e.) Expoſtulated with him, when they went and ſaw that Portion which was allotted to them, and found it much ſhort of their expectation. d Either 1. Becauſe they really had but one Lot, which was afterwards divided by the Arbitrators between them. Or 2. Becauſe the Land ſeverally allotted to them, was no more than was little enough for one of them. e Or, numerous, for ſo the Hebrew word oft ſignifies.

15 And Joſhua anſwered them, If thou be a great people f, then get thee up to the wood-country g, and cut down h for thy ſelf there in the land of the Perizzites i, and of the ‖ giants k, if mount Ephraim be too narrow for thee l.

‖ Or, Rephaim.

f He retorts their own Argument; Seeing thou art a great and numerous People, turn thy Complaints into Actions and valiant Exploits, and enlarge thy Borders by thy own hand, to which thou muſt confidently expect Gods aſſiſtance. g To the Mountain, as it is called v. 17. where among ſome Towns there is much Wood-land, which thou muſt without much difficulty poſſeſs, and ſo get the more room. h Either the Wood, v. 18. for thy own advantage and uſe; partly in building more Cities and Towns; and partly for preparing the Land for the uſe of Paſture and Tillage. i Suppoſed to be a ſavage and brutiſh kind of People, that lived in Woods and Mountains. k Who lived in Caves and Mountains, now eſpecially when they were driven out of their Cities. l Or, ſeeing Mount Ephraim is too narrow for thee, as thou complaineſt; take to thy ſelf the reſt of that Hilly and Wood Countrey. Mount Ephraim was a particular and eminent portion of the Land, belonging to the Tribe of Ephraim, as appears from Joſh. 19. 50. and 20. 7 and 21. 21. Judg. 4. 5. And this ſeems to be here mentioned Synecdochically, for all the Portion allotted to Ephraim and Manaſſeh, as appears from their complaint, which was not, that this part, but that their whole Portion was too ſtrait for them.

16 And the children of Joſeph ſaid, The hill is not enough for us m: and all the Canaanites that dwell in the land of the valley n, have * charets of iron o, both they who are of Beth-ſhean, and her towns, and they who are of the valley of Jezreel p.

* Judg. 1. 19.

m If we ſhould Invade and Conquer it, and cut down both Wood and Men, yet it would not be ſufficient for us. Heb. Too Hill will not be found, i. e. obtained by us; thoſe fierce and ſtrong people the Perizzites and the Giants will eaſily defend themſelves, and fruſtrate our attempts, having the advantage of the Woods and Mountains. n (i. e.) And if thou ſayeſt, as we know thou thou wilt reply, That if the Hill either cannot be Conquered, or be not ſufficient for us, we may go down and take more Land out of the pleaſant and fruitful Valleys, we ſhall meet with no leſs difficulty there than in the Mountains. Or thus, in going to the Hills to which thou directeſt us, we muſt paſs through Valleys, where we ſhall be way-laid by powerful and armed Enemies. o Not all made of Iron, but armed with Iron, not only for Defence, but for Offence alſo, having as it were Sithes and Swords faſtned to them, to cut down all that ſtood in their way. p Which was either in the Tribe of Iſſachar, or upon the Borders of it, Joſ. 19. 18.

17 And Joſhua ſpake unto the houſe of Joſeph, even to Ephraim, and to Manaſſeh, ſaying, Thou art a great people, and haſt great power: thou ſhalt not have one lot only q.

q Thou needeſt and deſerveſt more than that Lot, of which thou art actually poſſeſſed, and thou haſt Power to get more; which if thou endeavourеſt to do, God will bleſs thee, and give thee more.

18 But the mountain ſhall be thine: for it is a wood, and thou ſhalt cut it down: and the outgoings of it r ſhall be thine: for thou ſhalt drive out the Canaanites, nites, though they have iron chariots, and though they be ſtrong.

r Either 1. The Productions or Fruits of that Land, when it is cleared from the Wood, and purged: or rather, 2. The Valleys and Fields belonging or adjoining to it, for there the Canaanites were, v. 16.

CHAP. XVIII.

The Tabernacle is ſet up in Shiloh, 1. The remainder of the Land deſcribed and divided into ſeven parts, for the ſeven Tribes which as yet had no Inheritance, 2——9. Joſhua caſts the Lot at Shiloh: The firſt comes out for Benjamin, 10. Whoſe Borders and Cities are deſcribed, 11——28.

AND the whole congregation of the children of Iſrael aſſembled together at Shiloh, and ſet up the tabernacle of the congregation there a; and b the land was ſubdued before them.

a By God's appointment, as is manifeſt from Deut. 12. 5, &c. Jer. 7. 12. Hither it was removed from Gilgal, partly for the honour and conveniency of Joſhua, that he being of the Tribe of Ephraim, and ſeating himſelf there, might have the opportunity of conſulting with God as oft as he deſired and needed; and partly for the conveniency of all the Tribes, that being in the heart and center of them, they might more eaſily reſort to it from all places. Here the Tabernacle continued for above 300 Years, even till Samuels dayes, 1 Sam. 1. 3. b Or, for, becauſe theſe words contain a reaſon of the former action: the Particle and is oft uſed for for, as hath been ſhewed.

2 And there remained among the children of Iſrael ſeven tribes, which had not yet received their inheritance.

3 And Joſhua ſaid unto the children of Iſrael, How long are ye ſlack to go to poſſeſs the land c which the LORD God of your fathers hath given you?

c This ſlackneſs is ſuppoſed to ariſe, partly from their diſſatisfaction in the portions already allotted, Judah's being too large, as it ſeemed; and Joſeph's too narrow, as they complained; partly from an opinion of the impoſſibility of making any regular and equal diſtribution of the Parts, till the whole were better known, and more exactly ſurveyed, which accordingly is here done; and partly, becauſe being weary of War, and having ſufficient plenty of all things in their preſent condition, they grew ſlothful and ſecure, and were unwilling to run into new Hazards and Wars, as they perceived by Joſhua's anſwer to the Tribe of Joſeph, Joſ. 17. 15, &c. they were likely to do when they entred upon their ſeveral Poſſeſſions.

4 Give out from among you three men d of each tribe e: and I will ſend them, and they ſhall riſe, and go thorow the land f, and deſcribe it according to the inheritance of them, and they ſhall come again to me.

d Three, not One, for more exact obſervation both of the meaſure and quality of the ſeveral Portions, and for greater aſſurance and evidence of their care and faithfulneſs in giving in their Account. e Either One of each of theſe Tribes, who were yet unprovided for; or rather Two of all the Tribes, even of them who had already received their Portions; which was highly expedient, that in caſe it ſhould appear that there was not a ſufficiency for each of theſe Tribes who wanted their Portions, their Brethren might be more ready either to aſſiſt them in procuring more Land, or to part with ſome of their own Portion to them. f Which they might now ſafely do, becauſe the Terror of the late War was yet upon the Canaanites, who were loath to rouſe ſo near and potent an Enemy.

5 And they ſhall divide it into ſeven parts f: Judah ſhall abide in their coaſt on the ſouth g, and the houſe of Joſeph ſhall abide in their coaſt on the north h.

f Which were of equal extent or worth: for no Tribe was ſo great, but one of theſe parts in its full extent would abundantly ſuffice them; and there was no reaſon why the Portions ſhould be greater or leſs according as the Tribes at preſent were more or fewer in number, becauſe of the various changes which happened therein ſucceſſively; it being uſual for one Tribe to be more numerous than another in one Age, which was fewer in the next. And if the ſeveral Tribes had increaſed more, and not diminiſhed their Numbers by their Sins, they might have ſent forth Colonies, and taken any part of the Land, even as far as Euphrates, all which the Lord of the whole Earth had given them a Right to, which when they pleaſed they might take Poſſeſſion of. g They ſhall not be diſturbed in their Poſſeſſion, but ſhall keep it, except ſome part of it ſhall be adjudged to another Tribe. h In reſpect of Judah, not of the whole Land; for divers other Tribes were more Northern than they.

6 Ye ſhall therefore deſcribe the land into ſeven parts, and bring the deſcription hither to me: that I may caſt lots for you here before the LORD i your God.

i i. e. Before the Ark or Tabernacle, that God may be Witneſs, and Judge, and Author of the Diviſion, that each may be contented with his Lot, and that your ſeveral Poſſeſſions may be ſecured to you as things Sacred, and not to be alienated.

7 But the Levites have no part among you k, for the prieſthood of the LORD is their inheritance: and Gad and Reuben, and half the tribe of Manaſſeh have received their inheritance beyond Jordan on the eaſt, which Moſes the ſervant of the LORD gave them.

8 ¶ And the men roſe, and went away: and Joſhua charged them that went to deſcribe the land, ſaying, Go and walk through the land, and deſcribe it, and come again to me, that I may here caſt lots for you before the LORD in Shiloh.

k Therefore it ſhall be divided only into ſeven parts, as I have ſaid.

9 And the men went and paſſed through the land, and deſcribed it by cities l, into ſeven parts in a book, and came again to Joſhua to the hoſt at Shiloh.

l Or, according to the Cities, to which the ſeveral Parts or Territories belonged.

10 ¶ And Joſhua caſt lots for them in Shiloh, before the LORD: and there Joſhua divided the land unto the children of Iſrael, according to their diviſions.

11 ¶ And the lot of the tribe of the children of Benjamin came up according to their families: and the coaſt of their lot came forth between the children of Judah, and the children of Joſeph m.

m Wherein we ſee the wiſdom of Divine Providence, this being the only place in which that Prophecy, Deut. 33. 12. could have been accompliſhed.

12 And their border on the north-ſide was from Jordan, and the border went up to the ſide of Jericho, on the North-ſide, and went up through the mountains weſtward, and the goings out thereof were at the wilderneſs of Beth-aven n.

n A place diſtinct from, but near unto Bethel, as may be gathered from Joſ. 16. 1.

13 And the border went over from thence toward * Luz, to the ſide of Luz, (* which is Beth-el) ſouthward, and the border deſcended to Ataroth-adar, near the hill that lieth on the ſouth-ſide of the nether Beth-horon.

* Gen. 28. 19.

14 And the border was drawn thence, and compaſſed the corner of the ſea ſouthward: from the hill that lieth before Beth-horon ſouthward: and the goings out thereof were at Kirjath-baal (which is Kirjath-jearim o) a city of the children of Judah: this was the weſt quarter.

o The Iſraelites changed the name, to blot out the remembrance of Baal. Compare Joſ. 15. 9. Numb. 32. 38.

15 And the ſouth quarter p, was from the end of Kirjath-jearim, and the border went out on the weſt, and went out to the well of waters of Nephtoah.

p The ſame with the North-quarter of Judah. See Joſ. 15. 5, 6, 11.

16 And the border came down to the end of the mountain q, that lieth before the valley of the ſon of Hinnom r, and which is in the valley of the giants on the north s, and deſcended to the valley of Hinnom * to the ſide of Jebuſi t on the ſouth, and deſcended to * Enrogel, q i. e. The place where the Mountain ends, and the Valley begins. r i. e. In the proſpect of that Valley; or, that reacheth to that Valley on the South. s Which extends to this other Valley on the North-ſide of it. t To that part where the Jebuſites lived, which was in and near Jeruſalem.

* ch. 15. 7.

17 And was drawn from the north, and went forth to En-ſhemeſh, and went forth toward Gelliloth u, which is over againſt the going up of Adummim, and deſcended to * the ſtone of Bohan the ſon of Reuben,

* ch. 15. 6.

u Called alſo Gilgal, as appears from Joſ. 15. 7. Judg. 3. 19. but differing from that Gilgal by Jordan.

18 And paſſed along toward the ſide over againſt ‖ Arabah x northward, and went down unto Arabah.

‖ Or, the plain x Called Beth-arabah, Joſ. 15. 6.

19 And the border paſſed along to the ſide of Beth-hoglah northward: and the outgoings of the border were at the north † bay of the ſalt ſea y, at the ſouth end of Jordan: this was the ſouth coaſt.

† Heb. tongue.

20 And Jordan was the border of it on the eaſt-ſide: This was the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, by the coaſts thereof round about, according to their families.

y Where an Arm of that Sea runs into the Land, which is oppoſed to the South-bay that was in the South-border of the Tribe of Judah, Joſ. 15. 2. z Where it enters into the ſalt Sea, which is here oppoſed to the North-end of it, or the Spring-head, which was in the North.

21 Now the cities of the tribe of the children of Benjamin, according to their families, were Jericho a, and Beth-hoglah, and the valley of Keziz b, a For tho' the City was deſtroyed, the Territory remained, and ſome Houſes probably were built and inhabited there, though it was not made a City with Walls and Gates, which was the only thing forbidden, Joſ. 6. 26. b Or, Emek-keziz, the proper name of a City or great Town.

22 And † Beth-arabah, and Zemaraim c, and Bethel, † Gr. Bethabara.

23 And Avim, and Parah, and Ophrah,

24 And Chephar-haammonai, and Ophni, and Gaba: twelve cities with their villages.

Jeb. 2. 23.

25 Gibeon, and Ramah, and Beeroth, c Which either gave name to, or took name from that Mountain, 2 Chron. 13. 4.

26 And Mizpeh d, and Chephirah, and Mozah,

27 And Rekem, and Irpeel, and Taralah, d Near Ramah, in the ſame Mountain where Silo was. There were divers other Cities of that name.

28 And Zelah, Eleph, and Jebusi (which is Jerusalem) e Gibeath, and Kir-jath: fourteen cities f with their villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, according to their families.

a So it seems this City did properly and primarily belong to Benjamin, altho' the Tribe of Judah had also an Interest in it, either because some part of it was allotted to them, or because the Benjamites gave them a share in it, for the Assistance which either they had received, or did expect from that Potent Tribe, for the getting or defending of that very important place. See more on Jos. 15. 63.

f It is more than probable that all the Cities belonging to this Tribe are not here named, because Anathoth and Almon are omitted here, but expressed Jos. 21. 18.

CHAP. XIX.

The second Lot falls to Simeon: his Borders among the Tribe of Judah: whose Inheritance was too great for them, 1——9. The third Lot falls to Zebulun, 10——16. The fourth to Issachar, 17——23. The fifth to Asher, 24——31. The sixth to Naphtali, 32——46. The seventh to Dan, 47, 48. The Children of Israel give an Inheritance to Joshua, 49, 50. The division of the Land finished, 51.

AND the second lot came forth to Simeon, even for the Tribe of the Children of Simeon, according to their families: and their inheritance was within the inheritance of the children of Judah a.

a This was so order'd by God's Providence, partly to fulfil that threatning that he would divide and scatter this Tribe in Jacob, Gen. 49. 7. which was hereby done in part, because they had no distinct part of their own, but were as Inmates to Judah: partly, because now upon the more exact survey of the Land, it appeared to Joshua and Eleazar, and all the Princes and People, even to the Tribe of Judah themselves, that the Part given to Judah did far exceed the Proportion which either they needed, and could occupy, or which the other Tribes could expect: and partly, because this was the best of the Tribes, as is evident from Numb. 26. 14. and therefore fittest to be put within another Tribe.

2 And they had in their inheritance Beersheba, and b Sheba, and Moladah, b Or, or, i. e. otherwise called: for that Beersheba and Sheba were one and the same City, as is manifest both from v. 6. where all the Cities are reckoned to be but Thirteen: and from 1 Chron. 4. 28. where Simeons City are enumerated, and Sheba omitted as superfluous.

3 And Hazar-shual, and Balah c, and Azem, c Called also Bilhah, 1 Chron. 4. 29. and Baalath, Jos. 15. 29. For let this be observed once for all, that the names of Persons or Places are frequently changed through length of Time, or difference of Dialect, or fancy of brevity and elegancy in Pronunciation, or new Accidents, or other Causes. Thus Eltolad and Bethul, v. 4. are called Tolad and Betimel, 1 Chron. 4. 29, 30. and for Beth-lebaoth, v. 6. is Beth-biri, 1 Chron. 4. 31.

4 And Eltolad, and Bethul, and Hormah,

5 And Ziklag, and Beth-marcaboth, and Hazar-susah,

6 And Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuhen: thirteen cities d, and d Or, Towns, as some of them are called, 1 Chron. 4. 32. Nor are all Simeons Cities here numbred, for Ether is added, 1 Chron. 4. 32. unless that were built afterward.

7 Ain, Remmon, and Ether, and Ashan: four cities and their villages.

8 And all the villages that were round about these cities, to Baalathbeer, Ramath of the south: This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon, according to their families.

9 Out of the portion of the children of Judah was the inheritance of the children of Simeon: for the part of the children of Judah was too much for them: therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them.

10 ¶ And the third lot came up for the children of Zebulun e, according to their families, and the border of their inheritance was unto Sarid.

e Who is here put before Issachar his elder Brother, as he is also Gen. 49. 13, 14. Deut. 33. 18.

11 And their border went up toward the Sea f, and Maralah, and reached to Dabbasheth, and reached to the river that is before Jokneam g.

f i. e. The Midland Sea, as on the other side it reached to the Sea of Galilee, and so those Prophecies concerning him, Gen. 49. 3. Deut. 33. 18. were abundantly fulfilled. g Supposed to be Kishon, Judg. 4. 7. or Bebor, or Pagit.

12 And turned from Sarid eastward, toward the sunrising, unto the border of Chisloth-tabor, and then goeth out to Daberath h, and goeth up to Japhia, h A City in Issachar, as appears from Jos. 21. 28.

13 And from thence passeth on along on the east to Gittah-hephir, to Itah-kazin, and goeth out to Remmon i Methoar to Neah.

i Or, which is drawn.

14 And the border compasseth it on the north-side to Hannathon: and the out-goings thereof are in the valley of Jiphthah-el.

15 And Kattath, and Nahallal, and Shimron, and Idalah, and Beth-lehem k: twelve cities k with their villages.

i Not that where Christ was born, which was in Judah, thence called Bethlehem Judah, Matt. but another. k There are more numbred here, but the rest either were not Cities properly so called, having Villages under their jurisdiction; or were not within this Tribe, but only bordering upon it, and belonging to other Tribes, which is evident of some of them, and may well be presumed of others.

16 This is the inheritance of the children of Zebulun, according to their families, these cities with their villages.

17 ¶ And the fourth lot came out to Issachar, for the children of Issachar, according to their families.

18 And their border was toward Jezreel l, and Chesulloth, and Shunem m.

l The Royal City, 1 King. 21. 1. This Tribe, because it lay between Benjamin on the South, and Zebulun on the North, is not here described by its borders, which were the same with theirs; but by some of its Cities. m The Birth-place of Abishag, 1 King. 1. 3.

19 And Hapharaim, and Shion, and Anaharath,

20 And Rabbith, and Kishion, and Abez,

21 And Remeth, and En-gannim n, and En-haddah, and Beth-pazzez.

n A different place from that Engannim in the Tribe of Judah, Jos. 15. 34.

22 And the coast reacheth to Tabor, and Shahazimah, and Beth-shemesh, and the out-goings of their border were at Jordan: Sixteen cities with their villages.

23 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Issachar, according to their families, the cities and their villages.

24 ¶ And the fifth lot came out of the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families.

25 And their border o was Helkath, and Hali, and Beten, and Achshaph, o On the North-west-side.

26 And Alammelech, and Amad, and Misheal, and reacheth to Carmel westward p, and to Shihor-libnath; p Or, Carmel by the sea, to distinguish it from that Carmel in the Tribe of Judah, 1 Sam. 25. 2. This was a place of eminent fruitfulness, Isa. 33. 9. and 35. 2. and 37. 24. agreeable to the Prophecy concerning Asher, Gen. 49. 20. Deut. 33. 24.

27 And turneth toward the sun-rising, to Beth-dagon, and reacheth to Zebulun, and to the valley of Jiphthah-el toward the northside of Bethemek, and Neiel, and goeth out to Cabul q on the left hand r, q Either 1. That Country called Cabul, wherein were 20 Cities, or which 1 King. 9. 13. But this is not probable, because that was not within, nor belonging to any particular Tribe; for then Solomon could not have alienated it from them, and given it unto Hiram, whereas this did belong to Asher; or 2. A certain City so called. r. i. e. On the North, which, when men look towards the East, as is usual, is on their left hand.

28 And Hebron, and Rehob, and Hammon, and Kanah s, even unto great Zidon t.

s To wit, Kanah the greater, in the upper Galilee; not Kanah the less, which was in the lower Galilee. t Called great for its Antiquity, and Riches, and Glory. This City either was not given to the Israelites, but is only mentioned as their border; or at least was never possessed by them; not without a singular Providence of God, that they might not by the opportunity of so good a Port, be engaged in much Commerce with other Nations; from which, together with Wealth, that great corrupter of Mankind, they might contract their Errors and Vices.

29 And then the coast turneth s to Ramah, and to the strong city † Tyre t, and the coast turneth to Hosah; and the outgoings thereof are at the sea, from the coast to * Achzib.

s From the North Southward. t Exclusively, for this City was no part of the Land given them.

30 Umma also, and Aphek, and Rehob: twenty and two cities u with their villages.

u Here are more named, but some of them were not within this Tribe, but only bordering places.

31 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Asher, according to their families, these cities with their villages.

32 ¶ The sixth lot came out to the children of Naphtali: even for the children of Naphtali, according to their families.

33 And their coast y was from Heleph, from Allon to Zaanannim, and Adami, Nekeb, and Jabneel unto Lakum: and the out-goings z thereof were at Jordan.

y Their Northern Border drawn from West to East, as appears, because when this Coast is described and brought to its end, the Coast is said to turn from the East Westward, v. 34. z i.e. The end of that Coast.

34 And then the coast turneth westward a to Aznoth-tabor, and goeth out from thence to Hukkok, and reacheth to Zebulun on the south-side, and reacheth to Asher on the west-side, and to Judah upon Jordan b toward the sun-rising.

a This is unquestionably the Southern Border described from East to West. b Jos. How can this be, when there were divers Tribes between this and Judah, all which reached to Jordan? Ans. He doth not say of Judah, as he doth of Zebulun and Asher, that it it reached to it; but as it seems, purposely leaves out that word which he had used in both the former branches, left it should be understood of a Local Reaching to it, or being Contiguous with it, which was not true; and that he might signifie, that he meant this Clause in another sense; to wit, that it did in some sort go or reach to, or converse with Judah by Jordan. And so this may be here added, to shew the accomplishment of that famous and obscure Prophecy, That Naphtali, though he should be planted in the utmost border of the Land, on the North-east, yet he should possess the riches of the West and South, Deut. 33. 23. i. e. of those Tribes which were at great distance from him Westward and Southward; and this he should do by way of Commerce with them by their famous River Jordan, which he did not only touch in a small part, as some of the other Tribes did, but lay all along it for a good space together, even from the very Fountain unto the Sea of Genesareth. Some think that this is verified by that Royalty of this River, which they suppose God gave to the Tribe of Judah, which extended as far as Naphtali.

35 And the fenced cities are Ziddim, Zer, and Hammath c, Rakkath and Cinnereth d, c Or, Hamath, of which see Numb. 34. 8. 1 King. 8. 65. 2 King. 23. 33. d Whence the Lake of Cinnereth or Genesareth received its Name.

36 And Adamah, and Ramah, and Hazor,

37 And Kedesh, and Edrei, and En-hazor,

38 And Iron, and Migdal-el, Horem, and Beth-anath, and Beth-shemesh: nineteen cities e with their villages.

e See on v. 15, 22, 30.

39 This is the Inheritance of the Tribe of the children of Naphtali, according to their families; the cities and their villages.

40 ¶ And the seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan, according to their families.

41 And the coast of their inheritance f was Zorah, and Eshtaol, and Ir-shemesh.

f Which is here described onely by its Cities, not by its Borders, which are in part the same with Judah's, and their Inheritance is in good part taken out of Judah's too large portion; as appears from divers of the Cities here mentioned, which are also reckoned as in Judah's Portion.

42 And Shaalabbin, and Ajalon, and Jethlah,

43 And Elon, and Thimnathah, and Ekron,

44 And Eltekeh, and Gibbethon, and Baalath,

45 And Jehud, and Bene-berak, and Gath-rimmon,

46 And Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, with the border || (or, over against) before † Japho.

47 And the coast of the children of Dan went out too little for them g, therefore the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshem h, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt therein, and called Leshem † Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

† Judg. 18. 29.

g Heb. Went out from them, to wit, out of their hands or Possession; for to this Hebrew Word is used concerning those Lands, which in the year of the Jubilee are said to go out, Levit. 25. 28, 30, 31, 33. i. e. out of the hands of the present Possessor, to the first and ancient Owner. And for a greater venture may signifie, that many of the Danites were forced by their powerful Neighbours the Philistines to relinquish their Coast, and their allotted Habitations: which put them upon the following course. h This was done after Joshuah's death, as appears from Judg. 18. and seems to be here inserted, partly that all the chief places where the Danites (dwelt) tho' far distant, might be mentioned together; and partly, to give an account of this strange accident, why they removed from their appointed Portion to so remote a place; which may be this, That being much molested and terrified by their bad Neighbors, they thought fit to go to some place remote from them, which also they were in a manner constrained to do, because otherwise they must have taken some part of the Portions of other Tribes, whereas now going to the very utmost Northern Point of the Land, they took that which did not belong to, or at least, was not in the possession of any other Tribe. See more on Judg. 18.

48 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan, according to their families; these cities with their villages.

49 ¶ When they had made an end of dividing the land for inheritance by their coasts, the children of Israel gave i an inheritance to Joshua the son of Nun among them.

i i. e. They are said to give it, because the whole Land was given to Joshua, and Eleazar and the Princes, as joint Trustees, acting in the name, and for the good of the People: so that even Joshua could take nothing without their gift.

50 According to the word of the LORD k, they gave him the city which he asked, even * Timnath-Serah l in mount Ephraim, and he built m the city, and dwelt therein.

* chap. 24. 30.

k As God promised, or commanded; either, first, formerly, as may be gathered from Jos. 14. 6. Where we read, That the Lord said something unto Moses concerning me Caleb, and since Joshua; tho' only what is said to Caleb be there expressed, the other not being to his purpose there: for Joshua having shewed the same courage and faithfulness which Caleb did, did doubtless receive equal encouragement and comfort from God at that time. Or, Secondly, now at this time by Eleazar. l Called Timnath-heres, Judg. 2. 9. m i. e. Repaired, and enlarged it, in which sense Nebuchadnezzar is said to have built Babylon, Dan. 4. 30.

* Numb. 34. 17.

51 * These are the inheritances which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot, in Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: so they made an end of dividing the country.

CHAP. XX.

God commands six Cities of Refuge for those, who unawares should slay many, 1——4. The right use of them, 5, 6. The Israelites appoint thereunto three Cities on this, and three on the other side of Jordan, 7——9.

THE LORD also spake unto Joshua, saying,

2 Speak to the children of Israel, saying, * Appoint out a for you cities of refuge, whereof I spake unto you by the hand of Moses.

* Exod. 21. 13. Num. 35. 6, 11, 14. Deut. 19. 2, 9.

a The Possessions being now divided among you, do you reserve some of them for the use which I have commanded.

3 That the slayer that killeth any person unawares, and unwittingly b, may flee thither: and they shall be your refuge from the avenger of blood c.

b Heb. Through Ignorance, or Error, or Mistake, and without Knowledge. The same thing twice repeated to cut off all the claims and expectations that wilful Murderers might have of Protection here; and God having declared, That such should be taken even from his Altar, that they might be killed, Exod. 21. 14. and accordingly Joab was by Solomon's Order killed even at the Altar, 1 King. 2. 28, 29, 30, 31, 34. it is the more strange and impudent, that any Christians should make their Sanctuaries give Protection to such persons whom God hath so expressly excepted from it, which the Papists do; and c The Kinsman, who had right or power to demand, or take vengeance of the slaughter.

4 And when he that doth flee unto one of those cities, shall stand at the entring of the gate d of that city, and shall declare his cause e in the ears of the elders of that city; they shall take him into the city f unto them, and give him a place g that he may dwell among them.

d Where the Judges used to sit. e Or, his matters or business, what he hath done, and why, and how, he shall give them a true relation of the Fact, and all its circumstances. f Understand, if they are satisfied in the relation he makes, concerning the Fact, otherwise it had been a vain thing to examine his Cause. g Which they might well allow him, because God gave them the City with a reservation for such persons.

5 And if the avenger of blood pursue after him, then they shall not deliver the slayer up into his hand: because he smote his neighbour unwittingly, and hated him not before time.

6 And he shall dwell in that city, until he stand h before the congregation i for judgment and * until the death of the high priest k that shall be in those days: then shall the slayer return and come unto his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city from whence he fled.

* Numb. 35. 12, 25.

h Which was the posture of the Accused and Accusers, Exod. 18. 13. Isa. 50. 8. Zech. 3. 1. i Or, Company, or Assembly; to wit, the Council appointed to judge of these matters, not the Council of the City of Refuge, for they had examined him before, v. 4. but of the City to which he belonged, or in or nigh which the Fact committed, as appears from Numb. 35. 25. k Of which see on Numb. 35. 25.

7 ¶ And they † appointed Kedesh in Galilee in mount Naphtali, and Shechem in mount Ephraim, and Kirjath-arba (which is Hebron) in the mountain of Judah l.

† Heb. Sanctified.

l Concerning these Cities note, 1. That they were all upon Mountains, that they might be seen at a great distance, and so direct those who fled thither. 2. That they were seated at convenient distance one from another, for the benefit of the several Tribes; for Kedesh was in the North, Hebron in the South, and Shechem between them. 3. That they all belonged to the Levites; partly that these Causes might be more impartially examined, and justly determined by them who are presumed best able to understand the Law of God, and most obliged and likely to follow it in their Judgment, and not to be biass'd by any affection or corrupt interest, and partly, that their just reputation with the people, and their good Counsels, might lay some restraint upon revengeful persons, who might be inclined or tempted to follow the Man-slayer thither, and endeavour to kill him there.

8 And on the other side Jordan by Jericho eastward, they assigned m * Bezer in the wilderness upon the plain, out of the tribe of Reuben, and Ramoth in Gilead, out of the tribe of Gad, and Golan in Bashan, out of the tribe of Manasseh.

* Deut. 4. 43. Chron. 6. 78

m Or, gave, or had assigned or given; for they were given by Moses, Deut. 4. 41, &c. or, they confirmed Moses his Grant, and applied them to that use to which Moses designed and separated them.

9 These were the cities appointed for all the children of Israel, and for the stranger n that sojourneth among them, that whosoever killeth any person at unawares, might flee thither, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood, until he stood before the congregation.

n Not only Proselites, but others also; because this was a matter of common right, that a distinction might be made between carnal Man-slayers, and wilful Murderers.

CHAP. XXI.

Cities given out of the other Tribes by lot to the Levites, 1—8. Particularly to the Priests, the children of Aaron, 9—19. To the Levites; the Kohathites, 20—26. The Gershonites, 27—33. and Merarites, 34—40. in all 48 cities; with their suburbs, 41. The Israelites quietly enjoy the promised Land, 41—45.

1 THen a came near the heads of the fathers of the Levites b unto Eleazar the priest, and unto Joshua the son of Nun, and unto the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel.

a When the whole Land was distributed unto the several Tribes, but not actually possessed by them; which was the proper season for them to put in their claim. b The Fathers of the Levites were Kohath, Gershon, and Merari, and the heads of these were the chief persons now alive of these several Families.

2 And they spake unto them * at Shiloh in the land of Canaan, saying, † The LORD commanded by the hand of Moses, to give us cities to dwell in, with the suburbs thereof for our cattel.

* Chap. 18. 1. † Numb. 35. 2.

3 And the children of Israel gave unto the Levites c out of their inheritance d, at the commandment of the LORD, these cities and their suburbs e.

c It seems most probable, that they gave to the Levites promiscuously such Cities as God commanded, and that the Lot appropriated them to their several Houses or Families. d (i.e.) Out of their several Possessions; partly, that the burden and loss might be equally divided; and principally, that the Levites being dispersed among the several Tribes, according to Jacobs Prediction, Gen. 49. 7. might more easily, and frequently, and effectually Teach the Ordinances Gods Law and Statutes unto Israel, which they were engaged to do, Deut. 33. 10. and that the People might upon all occasions resort to them, and require the meaning of the Law at their mouths. Mal. 2. 7. e Not only the use, but the absolute Dominion of them, as is manifest both from v. 11. 12. where a distinction is made between the City and Suburbs of Hebron, and the Fields and Villages thereof, and the former are given to the Levites, the latter to Caleb; and from the return of these Cities in the Jubilee, unto the Levites as to their proper owners, Levit. 25. 33, 34.

4 And the lot came out for the families of the Kohathites, and the children of Aaron the priest, which were of the Levites, had * by lot out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the tribe of Benjamin f, thirteen cities g.

* See Ch 24. 33.

f Which three tribes were nearest to the Temple, where their business lay. g For though the Priests were now few enough for one City, yet respect was to be had to their succeeding numbers; this division being made for all future Generations. And seeing the Levites might sell their Houses until the Jubilee, Levit. 25. 33. much more might they Let them; and therefore it is probable their Cities were not very long uninhabited, many being inclined to dwell with them by vertue of relations contracted with them, or dependance upon, or expectation from them; or out of respect to the Service of God, and the good of their Souls.

5 And the rest of the children of Kohath h had by lot, out of the families of the tribe of Ephraim; and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh i, ten cities k.

h Who were of Aarons Family, or Priests, but Levites only. i Which Tribes are nearest to the three former, and so the Kohathites are placed next to their Brethren the Aaronites. k Fewer than they gave out of the three former Tribes, because their inheritance was less than the former. See Numb. 35. 8.

6 And the children of Gershon had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

7 The children of Merari by their families, had out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.

8 And the children of Israel gave by lot unto the Levites these cities with their Suburbs k, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

k Of which, see on Numb. 35. 2.

9 ¶ And they gave out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon l, these cities which are here † mentioned by name.

† Heb. called.

l These are mentioned together, because the Cities of Simeon lay within Judah's Portion.

10 Which the children of Aaron being of the families m of the Kohathites, who were of the children of Levi, had; (for theirs was the First lot.)

m (i.e.) Of the family, the Plural Number for the Singular, which is not unusual.

11 And they gave them ‖ the city of Arbah, the father of Anak, (which city is Hebron) in the hill country of Judah, with the suburbs thereof round about it.

‖ Or, Kiriatharba.

Gen. 23. 2.

12 But † the fields n of the city, and the villages thereof gave they to Caleb the son of Jephunneh, for his possession.

† Chap. 14. 14.

n (i.e.) All beyond the 2000 Cubits expressed, Numb. 35. 5. This is here mentioned, not as his peculiar case, but as one eminent instance, to shew, that it was so in all the rest of the Cities here named; that the Fields and Villages thereof still belonged to the several tribes from whom the Cities and their Suburbs were taken; and to make the rest of the Israelites more contentedly and chearfully resign so great a part of their Possessions to the Levites, because even Caleb did so, though his Possession had been long before promised, and now actually given to him by Gods special command, as a mark of honour and compensation for his long and faithful Service.

1 Chron. 6. 56.

13 ¶ Thus they * gave to the children of Aaron the priest, Hebron with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer, and Libnah with her suburbs,

* Chap. 20. 7.

14 ¶ And Jattir with her suburbs, and Eshtemoa with her suburbs,

15 And * Holon o with her suburbs, and Debir with her suburbs,

* Chap. 15. 51.

o Called Hilen, 1 Chron. 6. 58. as Juttah here is called, Ashan, 1 Chron. 6. 59. and Rehoboth called Jeshuram, 1 Chron. 6. 68. and so some others, the names of the places being changed by length of time, and upon special occasions, as was frequent among the Jews. Though their Doctors add, that some of these places here mentioned being now in the Canaanites Possession, and not speedily recovered from them, there were others put in their stead.

16 And * Ain with her suburbs, and Juttah with her suburbs, and Bethshemesh with her suburbs, nine cities out of those two tribes.

* Chap. 15. 59. Alias.

p Ain here, and Gibeon, v. 17. and some others here named are not named, 1 Chron. 6. either because they were destroyed in some of those Hostile Invasions and Wars wherewith their Land was grievously harassed and wasted before that time; or they appear there under other Names, as was said.

17 And out of the tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon with her suburbs, Geba with her suburbs, 18 Anathoth with her suburbs, and * Almon with her suburbs: four cities.

* Chap. 6. 6. Alias.

19 All the cities of the children of Aaron the priest, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

20 ¶ And the families of the children of Kohath, the Levites, which remained of the children of Kohath q, even they had the cities of their lot out of the tribe of Ephraim.

q Over and above those of them who were Priests.

21 For they gave them Shechem with her suburbs, in mount Ephraim, to be a city of refuge for the slayer, and Gezer with her suburbs, 22 And Kibzaim with her suburbs, and Beth-horon with her suburbs, four cities.

23 And out of the tribe of Dan, Eltekeh with her suburbs, Gibbethon with her suburbs,

25 And out of the half tribe of Manasseh r, Tanach with her suburbs, and Gath-rimmon with her suburbs: two cities.

r To wit, that half which dwelt in Canaan, by comparing this with v. 27.

26 All the cities were ten with their suburbs, for the families of the children of Kohath that remained.

27 ¶ And unto the children of Gershon of the families of Levites, out of the other half tribe of Manasseh, they gave Golan in Bashan with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer: and Beeshterah with her suburbs: two cities.

28 And out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishon with her suburbs, Dabareh with her suburbs, 29 Jarmuth with her suburbs, En-gannim with her suburbs, four cities.

30 And out of the tribe of Asher, Mishal with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs, 31 Helkath with her suburbs, and Rehob with her suburbs: four cities.

32 And out of the tribe of Naphtali, Kedesh in Galilee with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer, and Hammoth-dor with her suburbs, and Kartan with her suburbs: three cities.

33 All the cities of the Gershonites, according to their families, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

34 ¶ And unto the families of the children of Merari, the rest of the Levites, out of the tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam with her suburbs, and Kartah with her suburbs, 35 Dimnah with her suburbs, Nahalal with her suburbs: four cities.

36 And out of the tribe of Reuben, Bezer s with her suburbs, and Jahazah with her suburbs;

s A City of Refuge, as it is called Jos. 20. 8. and therefore needless to be here repeated.

37 Kedemoth with her suburbs, and Mephaath with her suburbs: four cities.

38 And out of the tribe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer, and Mahanaim with her suburbs, 39 Heshbon with her suburbs, Jazer with her suburbs, four cities in all.

40 So

40 So all the cities for the children of Merari by their families which were remaining of the families of the Levites, were by their lot, twelve cities.

41 All the cities of the Levites, within the possession of the children of Israel were forty and eight cities t, with their suburbs.

t Qu. Why hath this Tribe, which was the least of all, more Cities than any of them? Answ. First, It doth not appear that they had more: for though all the cities of the Levites be expressed, it is not so with the other Tribes, but divers of their cities are omitted, as is evident. Secondly, The Levites were confined to their Cities and Suburbs; the rest had large Territories belonging to their Cities, which also they were in a capacity of improving, which the Levites were not; so that one of their Cities might be more considerable than divers of the Levites. Thirdly, God was pleased to deal liberally with his Ministers, partly to put honour upon those whom he foresaw many would be prone to despise; and partly, that being free from all outward diffractions, they might more entirely and fervently devote themselves to the service of God, and the instruction of Souls.

42 These cities were every one with their suburbs round about them: thus were all these cities.

43 ¶ And the LORD gave unto Israel all the land u which he sware to give unto their fathers; and they possessed it, and dwelt therein.

u He gave them the right to All, and the actual Possession of the greatest part of it, and power to Possess the rest as soon as it was needful and convenient for them, which was by degrees, when their numbers were increased, See Exod. 23. 29, 30. and the absolute dominion of all the people remaining in it.

44 And the LORD gave them rest round about, according to all that he sware unto their fathers, and there stood not a man of all their enemies before them x: the LORD delivered all their enemies into their hand.

x To wit, all the days of Joshua, by comparing Jos. 1. 5. for afterwards it was otherwise with them.

45 † There failed not ought of any good thing, which the LORD had spoken unto the house of Israel: all came to pass.

† Chap. 23. 14, 15.

CHAP. XXII.

The two tribes and half are sent home with a blessing; strict charge to serve the Lord; and great booty, 1—9. they build an Altar of Testimony at the brink of Jordan, 10. the Israelites are offended; and assemble to wage war against them, 11. 12. the first send Phinehas and ten Princes. Ambassadors to reprove them, 13—20. they clear themselves; their brethren rest satisfied, 21—34.

THen Joshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh,

2 And said unto them, Ye have kept * all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you

* Num. 32. 20. Deut. 3. 18.

3 Ye have not left your brethren these many days a unto this day, but have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God.

a (i.e.) For divers years together, so long as the War lasted. See Jos. 11. 18. and 14. 10.

4 And now the LORD your God hath given rest unto your brethren, as he promised them: therefore now return ye, and get ye unto your tents b, and unto the land of your possession, † which Moses the servant of the LORD gave you on the other side Jordan.

† Numb. 32. 33. Chap. 13. 8.

b (i.e.) To your settled habitations, as appears from v. 8. which are oft called Tents, as Judg. 19. 9. 2 Sam. 18. 17. Isa. 9. 6. Mal. 2. 12.

5 But take diligent heed c to do the commandment, and the law d which Moses the servant of the LORD charged you, * to love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to cleave unto him, and to serve him with all your heart, and with all your soul e.

* Deut. 10. 12.

c Watch over your selves and all your actions. d Two words expressing the same thing, the Law of Commandments delivered by Moses. e With the whole strength of your Minds, and Wills, and Affections.

6 So Joshua blessed them, and sent them away: and they went unto their tents.

7 ¶ Now to the one half of the Tribe of Manasseh Moses had given possession in Bashan: but unto the other half thereof gave Joshua among their brethren on this side Jordan westward. And when Joshua sent them away also unto their tents, then he blessed them:

8 And he spake unto them, saying, Return with much riches unto your tents, and with very much cattel, with silver, and with gold, and with brass, and with iron, and with very much raiment: divide the spoil of your enemies with your brethren f.

f (i.e.) With them who stayed beyond Jordan for the defence of their land, and Wives, and Children, who therefore were to have a share, though not an equal share with these. See Numb. 31. 27. But for them, 1 Sam. 30. 24. their share was equal, because their danger was equal.

9 ¶ And the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go into the country of Gilead to the land of their possession, whereof they were possessed, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

10 ¶ And when they came unto the borders of Jordan, that are in the land of Canaan, the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, built there g an altar by Jordan, a great altar to see to.

g Or, then, as this Particle is elsewhere used; and so Learned Interpreters understand it, Psal. 14. 5. and 36. 12. Eccles. 3. 17. Hos. 2. 15. And in the Latin Tongue Adverbs of Place are sometimes put for Adverbs of Time: So I take it here. First, Because this best answers to me to clear a great difficulty as to the place where the Altar was built, which though according to our Translation it seems and is generally thought by Interpreters to have been in the Land of Canaan; yet if things be more narrowly examined, it may be thought to have been on the other side Jordan in Gilead, and that both, first, from v. 11. where it is said to have been built over against, or, on the right of the Land of Canaan, therefore not in it. And Secondly, From the reason they give of the building of this Altar, for fear left the Israelites within Jordan, and in Canaan, should say unto their Children dwelling beyond Jordan, The Lord hath made Jordan a border between us and you, &c. Which jealousie would have been much confirmed by building the Altar in Canaan, but would be satisfied and confuted by having on the other side of Jordan, and in their own Land, a pattern of that Altar at which God was served in the Land of Canaan, as a Witness that they owned the same God, and the same way of Worship with their Brethren that lived in Canaan. But whether the Hebrew Particle be rendred then or there, it is not to be taken too strictly; if then, the meaning is not, that they did this so soon as ever they came to the borders of Jordan, that are in the Land of Canaan; but about that time when they came to them, that they thought and designed it, and as soon as ever they were got over Jordan, which was in a very little time, they effected and perfected it: if it be rendred there, it is not to be limited to the very same spot of ground mentioned before, as if it was built at that border of Jordan that was in the Land of Canaan; but to a little more largely understood; to be built at one or other of the borders of Jordan; or in general, by Jordan; which is here purposely added, for the Explication of the Word there, and to prevent the refraining of it to the border of Jordan, without Canaan.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel heard say, Behold, the children of Reuben and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, have built an Altar over against the land of Canaan, in the borders of Jordan, at the passage of the children of Israel h.

h Where they passed over Jordan, either at their first entrance into Canaan, or afterwards, and usually.

12 And when the children of Israel i heard of it, the whole congregation of the children of Israel gather themselves together at Shiloh, to go up to war against them k.

i Not in their own persons, but by their Elders, who used to transact all Affairs of this kind in the name and stead of all the People. k As Apostates from God, according to Gods command in that case, Deut. 13. 13, &c.

13 And the children of Israel sent unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh into the land of Gilead, * Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest,

* Exod. 6. 25. Numb. 25. 7. 1 Chr. 6. 4.

14 And with him ten Princes, of each † chief house a prince, throughout all the tribes of Israel, and each one was an head of the house of their fathers among the thousands of Israel.

† Numb. 1. 4. Heb. of the father.

15 ¶ And they came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, saying,

16 Thus saith the whole congregation of the LORD, What trespass is this m, that ye have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away this day n from following the LORD, in that ye have builded you an altar, that ye might rebel o this day against the LORD?

m Who do and are resolved to cleave unto that God from whom you have revolted, and who speak this to you in the name of the Lord. n How heinous a crime is this! n (i.e.) So soon after God hath obliged you by such wonderful favours, and when God is now conducting you home to reap the fruits of all your pains and hazards. o With a design to revolt from, and rebel against God, and against his express command of worshipping him at one only Altar, Exod. 20. 24. Levit. 17. 8, 9. Deut. 12. 5, 11, 13.

17 Is the iniquity † of Peor p too little for us, from which we are not cleansed until this day q, although there was a plague in the congregation of the LORD)

† Numb. 25. 4

p (i.e.) Of our worshipping of Baal-Peor, Numb. 25. o For though God had pardoned it, as to the National Punishment of it, Numb. 25. 11. Yet they were not yet thoroughly purged from it; partly because the shame and blot of that filthy and odious practice was not yet wiped off: and partly, because some of that corrupt leaven still remained among them, and though smothered for a time, yet was ready to break forth upon all occasions. See Jos. 24. 23. And God also took notice of these Idolatrous inclinations in particular persons, and found out ways to punish them one time or other.

18 But that ye must turn away this day from following the LORD? and it will be, seeing ye rebel to day against the LORD, that to morrow r he will be wroth with the whole congregation of Israel s.

r (i.e.) Suddenly, as that word is often used, as Matt. 6. 30. 1 Cor. 15. 32. s With you for doing so, and with us for suffering, or not punishing it.

19 Not-

19 Notwithstanding, if the land of your possession be unclean t, then pass ye over unto the land of the possession of the LORD, wherein the LORD's tabernacle dwelleth, and take possession among us u: but rebel not against the LORD, nor rebel against us w, in building you an altar, beside the altar of the LORD our God.

t If you apprehend it to be so for want of the Tabernacle and Altar there; or the following words imply: if you now repent of your former choice in preferring the worldly commodities of that Country before the advantage of Gods presence and favour, and more frequent opportunities of his Service. u We will readily resign part of our possessions to you for the prevention of this sin and mischief, wherein they shew great zeal for Gods honour, and great pity and charity to their Brethren. w For all the tribes were united in one Body Politick, and made one Commonwealth, and one Church; and each Tribe was subject to the Laws and Commands of the whole Society, and of the Chief Ruler or Rulers thereof; for its disobedience to their just commands was properly Rebellion against them.

† Chap. 7. 1, 5. 20 † Did not Achan the son of Zerah x commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Israel, and that man perished not alone y in his iniquity?

x (i.e.) One of his Posterity, Jos. 7. 17, 18. y But brought destruction upon his whole Family, and part of our Forces sent against Ai. z Or, for his sin; of which see Jos. 7. 24.

21 Then the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, answered and said unto the heads of the thousands of Israel a, a Either First properly, each was a Governor of a thousand: for there were among them divers Rulers, some of Tens, some of Hundreds, and some of Thousands; or rather, Secondly, improperly, and indefinitely, i. e. of the People of Israel, which consist of so many Thousands more than you, whole Authority therefore you owe a reverence to. For by comparing v. 14. these seem to be greater Persons than those that were Rulers of thousands.

22 The LORD God of gods b, the Lord God of gods, he knoweth c, and Israel he shall know †; if it be d in rebellion, or if in transgression against the LORD (save us not this day e).

b That Jehovah, whom we no less than you acknowledge and adore as the God of gods, infinitely superiour to all that are called Gods. The multiplying of his Titles, and the repetition of these words, shew their zeal and earnestness in this matter, and their abhorrency of the very thoughts of it. c To him we appeal who knoweth all things, and the truth of what we are now saying. † Not only our present words, but our future and constant course shall falsifie all Israel of our perseverance in the true Religion. d If this have been done by us with such design, or in such a manner. e Thou, O Lord, to whom we have appealed, and without whom we cannot be saved or preserved, save us not from any of our Enemies, nor from the Sword of our Brethren. It is a sudden Apostrophe to God, usual in such vehement speeches.

23 That we have built us an altar to turn from following the LORD; or if to offer thereon burnt-offering, or meat-offering, or if to offer peace-offerings thereon, let the LORD himself require it f.

f (i.e.) Call us to an account and punish us for it; as that Phrase is oft used, as Deut. 18. 19. 1 Sam. 20. 16. Job 10. 6. Psal. 10. 13.

24 And if we have not rather done it for fear of this † Heb. to thing, saying, † In time to come your children might morrow. speak unto our children, saying, What have ye to do with the LORD g God of Israel?

g You have no relation to him, nor interest in him, or his Worship.

25 For the LORD hath made Jordan a border between us and you h; ye children of Reuben, and Children of Gad, ye have no part in the LORD i: so shall your children make our children cease from fearing the LORD.

h To shut you out of the Land of Promise, and consequently from the Covenant made between God and our fathers. i Nothing to do with him; no right to serve him or expect favour from him. See the like Phrase. 2 Sam. 20. 1. Ezra 4. 8. Job. 13. 3.

26 Therefore we said, Let us now prepare to build an altar, nor for burnt-offering, nor for sacrifice:

* Gen. 31. 48. Chap. 24. 27. Isa. 34. 27 But that it may be * a witness between us and you, and our generations after us, that we might do the service of the LORD before him k with our burnt-offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our peace-offerings, that your children may not say to our children in time to come, Ye have no part in the LORD.

k That we and ours may have and hold our Priviledge of serving and worshipping God, not upon this Altar, but in the place of Gods presence, in your Tabernacle, and upon your Altar.

28 Therefore said we, That it shall be, when they should so say to us, or to our generations in time to come, that we may say again, Behold the pattern l of the Altar of the LORD, which our fathers made, not for burnt-offerings, nor for sacrifices, but it is a witness between us and you m.

l An exact representation and resemblance. m That we both serve one God, and approve and make use of one and the same Altar.

29 God forbid that we should rebel against the LORD, and turn this day from following the LORD, to build an altar for burnt-offerings, for meat-offerings, or for sacrifices, besides the altar of the LORD our God that n before his tabernacle.

30 And when Phinehas the priest, and the princes of the congregation, and heads of the thousands of Israel which were with him, heard the words that the Children of Reuben, and the children of Gad and the children of Manasseh spake, † it pleased them o. † Heb. it was good in their eyes.

o They were fully satisfied with this answer.

31 And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest said unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the children of Manasseh, This day we perceive that the LORD is among us o, because ye have not committed this trespass against the LORD: † now † Heb. them. ye have delivered the children of Israel out of the hand of the LORD p.

o By his gracious presence, and preventing goodness, in keeping you from so great an offence, and all of us from those dismal calamities that would have followed upon it. p (i. e.) From the Wrath and dreadful Judgments of God, by avoiding that Sin which would have involved both you and us in a most Bloody War; you have delivered us from the evils we feared. He that prevents an unexpected or approaching Disease or Mischief, doth as truly deliver a man from it, as he that cures or removes it after it hath been inflicted.

32 ¶ And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the princes, returned from the children of Reuben, and from the children of Gad, out of the land of Gilead, unto the land of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought them word again.

33 And the thing pleased the children of Israel, and the children of Israel blessed God, and did not intend to go up against them in battel, to destroy the land p wherein the children of Reuben and Gad dwelt.

p As they were by the Law of God obliged to do, if they had been guilty and persisted therein; as afterwards they did the Tribe of Benjamin for the same reason.

CHAP. XXIII.

Joshua being old, assembles the people: declares the wonders God had wrought for them: and would work in expelling the Canaanites, 1—5. Exhorts them to be courageous: to observe the Law: and beware of Idolatry, 6—8. which he enforces by former Benefits: and promises, 9—11. By threatnings, 12—16.

1 AND it came to pass, a long time a after that the LORD had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua waxed old, and † stricken † Heb. come into in age. days.

a About 14 years after it.

2 And Joshua called b for all Israel c, and for d their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old and stricken in age.

b Either to his own City, or rather to Shiloh, the usual place of such Assemblies, where his words being uttered before the Lord, were likely to have the more effect upon them. c Not all the people in their own persons, who could not either come thither, or hear him there; but in their Representatives, by their Elders, Heads, Judges and Officers, which are here added for the restriction and explication of that general expression. d Or, even for, &c.

3 And ye have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto all these Nations, because of you e: for the * LORD your God is he that hath fought for you. * Exod. 14. 14.

e For your sake and good, that you might gain by their losses.

4 Behold, I have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain f, to be an inheritance for your tribes g, from Jordan with all the Nations that I have cut off h, even unto the great sea † westward i. † Heb. the sea.

f Not yet Conquered. g You shall certainly subdue them, and therein inherit their Land, as you have done the rest, if you be not wanting to your selves. h (i.e.) With the Land of those Nations; the People put for their Land, as we have seen before; and as sometimes on the contrary, the Land is put for the People. i Where the Philistines, your most formidable Adversaries yet survive; but them also and their Land I have given to you, and you shall undoubtedly destroy them, if you will proceed vigorously in your work.

5 And the LORD your God, he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your sight, and ye shall possess their land, as the LORD your God hath promised unto you.

6 Be ye therefore very couragious k, to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, * that ye turn not aside therefrom, to the right hand or * Deut. to the left l. 5. 32. 28. 14.

k For it will require great Courage and Resolution to execute all the Commands of Moses, and particularly, that of expelling and destroying the residue of the Canaanites. l (i.e.) In one kind or other, by adding to the Law, or diminishing from it, as Moses speaks.

7 That

7 That ye come not among these nations m, these that † Psal. 16. remain amongst you, neither * make mention of the name of their gods n, nor cause to swear by them o, neither † Jer. 5. 7. Zeph. 1. 5. serve them, nor bow your selves unto them p.

m (i.e.) Avoid all familiar converse and contracts, but especially Marriages with them, as it is explained, v. 12. and as the Hebrew Verb intimates; being oft used of coming or going in to a Woman. n To wit, unnecessarily and familiarly, left the mention of them breed disesteem about them, and so by degrees bring a man to the approbation and worship of them. Compare Exod. 23. 13. Deut. 12. 3. Psal. 16. 4. Eph. 5. 3. o Nor require nor compel the Gentiles to swear by them, as they used to do; especially in Leagues and Contracts, which therefore the Israelites are here implicitely forbidden to make with them. p Neither give them any inward reverence, or outward adoration. Here is an observable gradation, whereby he shews what notable Progress Sin usually makes, and what need there is to look to the beginnings of it, forasmuch as a civil and common conversation with their persons was likely to bring them, and indeed did actually bring them, by insensible steps, to the Worship of their gods. So it is no wonder, if some things not simply and in themselves evil, be forbidden by God, as here the naming of their gods is, because they are occasions and introductions to evil.

8 ‖ But * cleave unto the LORD q your God, as ye ‖ Or, for [you will have done unto this day r. cleave, &c. * Deut. 11. 22.

q By firm Affiance, constant Obedience, intire Affection, faithful Service and Worship of him alone. r To wit, since you came into Canaan; since which time the body of the people (for of them he speaks, not of every particular person) had behaved themselves much better than they did in the Wilderness, and had not been guilty of any gross and general Apostacy from God, or Rebellion against him.

9 ‖ For the LORD hath driven out from before you, ‖ Or, then the great nations and strong; but as for you, no man s hath LORD will been able to stand before you unto this day. drive.

s To wit, whom you have invaded; otherwise some of those people did yet remain unconquered.

* Lev. 26. 8. Deut. 32. 30. * Exod. 14. 14. and 23. 27. † Heb. Souls. 10 * One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the LORD your God, he it is that fighteth for you t, * as he hath promised you.

t Impute not this therefore to your own valour, as you will be apt to do, but to Gods gracious and powerful affistance.

11 Take good heed therefore unto your † selves u, that ye love the LORD your God.

u Now it requires more watchfulness and diligence than it did in the Wilderness, because your Temptations are now more and stronger; partly, from the examples and insinuations of your bad Neighbours, the remainders of this wicked people; and partly from your own Peace and Prosperity; and the Pride, Security, Forgetfulness of God, and Luxury, which usually attend upon that condition, as God had warned them, Deut. 6, 10, 11, 12.

12 Else, if ye do in any wise go back x, and cleave unto the remnant of these nations, even these that remain among you, and shall make marriages with them, and go in unto them y, and they to you;

x From God, and from his Worship and Service. y The Phrase notes the Matrimonial act.

13 Know for a certainty, that the LORD your God will no more drive out any of these nations from before * Exod. 23. 33. Numb. 33. 55. Deut. 7. 16. you; * but they shall be snares and traps unto you z, and scourges in your sides, and thorns in your eyes a; until ye perish from off this good land b which the LORD your God hath given you.

z By your indulgence to them, and converse with them, you will be inticed and drawn by degrees into their Errors, and Impieties, and brutish Lusts. a When they have inveagled, and seduced, and thereby weakned you, then they will molest and vex you, no less than a severe Scourge doth a mans Sides which are lasht by it, or than a small Thorn doth the Eye when it is got within it. b They shall so Persecute you, and Fight against you with such Success, that you shall be forced to quit your own Land, and wander you know not whither; which must needs be very Terrible to them to think of, when they compared this present Ease, and Plenty and Safety, with the Pains, and Weariness, and Hazards, and Wants of their former Wandrings.

* Chap. 21. 45. 14 And behold, this day I am going the way of all the earth c, and ye know in all your hearts, and in all your souls d, that * not one thing hath failed e of all the good things which the LORD your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.

c (i.e.) Of all flesh, or of all men; the way which all men go; I am about to Die, as all men must, Heb. 9. 27. The same Phrase is 1 King. 2. 2. d (i.e.) You know assuredly; your own experience puts it out of all question. e So. How is this true, when so great a part of the Promised Land and People yet remain unconquered? Ans. God promised them to destroy all their Enemies, and to give them the whole Land, not at once, but by degrees, by little and little, as is expressed, Deut. 7. 22. and as was most convenient for them.

* Lev. 26. 16. Deut. 28. 15, 16, &c. 15 Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all good things are come upon you, which the LORD your God promised you; so shall the LORD bring upon you * all evil things f, until he have destroyed you from off this good land, which the LORD your God hath given you.

f The accomplishment of Gods Promises is a Pledge or Assurance, that he will also fulfil his Threatnings; both of them depending upon the same ground, the faithfulness of God.

16 When ye have transgressed the covenant of the LORD your God, which he commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed your selves to them; then shall the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given you.

CHAP. XXIV.

Joshua assembles all the tribes of Shechem, 1. A brief History of God's Benefits from Terah; exhorts them faithfully to serve God, 2—13. Renewech a Covenant between them and God; promising to serve him his Houſe; the people joyn for several times promising to do so, 14—25. He writes this in the Book of the Law; and sets up a Stone for a witness, 26—28. His age, death, and burial, 29—31. The bringing of Joseph's Bones, 32. The death and burial of Eleazar, 33.

1 AND Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel a to Shechem b, and called for the elders of Israel, and for the heads, and for the judges, and for their officers, and they presented themselves before God.

a To wit, by their Representatives, as Jud. 20. 2. Elders

1. To Shiloh, where the Ark and Tabernacle was; [illegible] are here said to present themselves before God, and [illegible] set up here is said to be set up in or by the Tabernacle of God, [illegible] which I shall speak in their proper places. And [illegible] is here called Shechem, because it was in the Territory of [illegible] but that may be doubted, seeing Shiloh was Two Miles [illegible] Shechem, as S. Jerom affirms. And had he meant [illegible] he not expresst it in its own and proper name, he [illegible] in all other places, rather than by another [illegible] given to it? Or rather, 2. To th. City of [illegible] nient for the present purpose, not only becaus[illegible] City, and a City of Refuge, and a place near to [illegible] especially for the two main ends for which he [illegible] ther. 1. For the solemn Burial of the Bones of Joseph, [illegible] here v. 32. and of the reſt of the Patriarchs, as is noted Act. 7. 16. for which this place was designed. 2. For the [illegible] ing of their Covenant with God; which is this place [illegible] made between God and Abraham, Gen. 12. 6, 7. and afterwards was there renewed by the Israelites at their first entrance into the Land of Canaan, between the two mountains of [illegible] Josh. 8. 30, &c. which were very near Shechem, as appears from Judg. 9. 6, 7 and therefore this place was most proper, both to remind them of their former obligations to God, and to engage them to a further ratification of them. c Either 1. Before the Ark or Tabernacle, as that Phrase is commonly us[illegible] either in Shiloh, where they were fixed; or in [illegible] the Ark was brought upon this great occasion, as it was [illegible] removed upon such occasions, as 1 Sam. 4. 3. 2 sam. 15. 24. Or 2. In that Publick, and Venerable, and Sacred Assembly [illegible] ther for Religious Exercises; for in such God is [illegible] Psal. 82. 1. Mat. 18. 20. Or 3. As in Gods Presence, to hear what Joshua was to speak to them in Gods Name, and to receive Gods Commands from his mouth. Thus I am said to [illegible] cob before the Lord, i. e. in his Name and Presence, [illegible] and Jephtha is said to utter all his words before the Lord in Mizpah, i. e. as in Gods Presence, calling him [illegible] to be Witness of them.

2 And Joshua said unto all the people, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, * your fathers dwelt on the [illegible] other side of the flood d of old time, even Terah the [illegible] ther of Abraham, and the father of Nachor: and they [illegible] f served other gods.

d (i.e.) That people which were present, to wit, to the [illegible] derers, &c. by whom it was to be imparted to all the rest, and to as [illegible] many of the people as came thither. e Or, the River, to wit, [illegible] phrates, as all agree, so called by way of Eminency. [illegible] Abraham and Nahor were no less Idolaters than the rest of Mankind. This is said to prevent their vain boasting in their worthy Ancestors, and to affure them that whatsoever good was in, or had been done by their Progenitors, was wholly from Gods free Grace, and not for their own merit or righteousness, as the Jews were very apt to conceit.

3 And I took g your father Abraham from the other side of the flood, and led him throughout all the land of Canaan h, and multiplied his seed i, and * gave him * Gen. 21. 2. Isaac k.

g I apprehended him by my grace, and snatched him out of that Idolatrous and Wicked place, and took him into Acquaintance and Covenant with my self, which was the highest Honour and Happiness he was capable of. h (i.e.) I brought him after his Fathers Death into Canaan, Gen. 12. 1. and I conducted and preserved him in safety in all his Travels through the several parts of Canaan. i (i.e.) Gave him a numerous Posterity, not only by [illegible] Keturah, but even by Sarah and by Isaac, as it follows. k By my special Power and Grace to be the Heir of my Covenant, and of my Promises, and the Seed in or by which all Nations were to be Blessed, Gen. 12. 1. and 21. 2.

4 And I gave unto Isaac, * Jacob and Esau, and I [illegible] * Gen. gave unto * Esau mount Seir to possess it: [illegible] 25. 24. but Jacob and his children went down into Egypt [illegible]

l That he might leave Canaan intire to his Brother [illegible] and his Posterity, Gen. 36. 7, 8. m Where they long [illegible] in cruel Bondage; which God having determined us from, I shall [illegible] it over.

* Exod. 3. 10.

5 * I sent Moses also and Aaron, and I plagued Egypt according to that which I did n amongst them: and afterwards I brought you out.

n (i.e.) In such manner, and with such Plagues as I inflicted, and are recorded.

* Exod. 12. 37.
* Exod. 14. 9.

6 And I * brought your fathers out of Egypt, and ye came unto the sea, and the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with charets and horsemen unto * the Red-sea.

7 And when they cried unto the LORD, he put darkness between you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and covered them, and your eyes have seen what I have done in Egypt o; and ye dwelt in the wilderness a long season.

o He speaketh this to the Elders, v. 1. who were so, not only by Power and Dignity, but many of them by Age; and there being now not fixty years past since those Egyptian Plagues, it is very probable that a considerable number of those here present, had seen those things in Egypt, and being not twenty years old, were exempted from that dreadful Sentence of Destruction, passed upon all who were then of more years standing, Numb. 14.

* Numb. 21. 34. Deut. 2. 32.

8 And I brought you into the land of the Amorite, which dwelt on the other side Jordan: * and they fought with you, and I gave them into your hand, that ye might possess their land, and I destroyed them from before you.

* Numb. 22. 5. Deut. 23. 4.

9 Then Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose and warred against Israel p, and * sent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you.

p Qu. How is this true, when Balak did never fight against Israel, Judg. 11. 25? Ans. One Prince may commence a War against another, though he never come to a Battel, nor strike one stroke; So Balak warred, though not by open force, yet by Crafty Counsel and Warlike Stratagems, by Magical Arts, by Wicked Devices, by making base betwixt them and God their Confederate; or by Warlike preparations, in case Balaams Charme had succeeded, as may be gathered from Numb. 22. 11. or at least by design or intention; things being oft said to be done both in Scripture and other Authors, which were only designed or intended, as here v. 11. Gen. 37. 21. Ex. 6. 24. 13. Mat. 5. 28. Joh. 10. 32, 33. And the old Lawyers note, That he is rightly called a Thief or an Adulterer, &c. who wanted nothing but occasion to be so.

10 But I would not hearken unto Balaam q, therefore he blessed you still: so I delivered you out of his hand r.

q Who hereby appears to have desired of God leave to Curse Israel; and therefore it is not strange, that God who permitted him simply to go, was highly angry with him for going with so wicked an intent, Numb. 22. 20, 22, 32. r (i. e.) From Balaks malicious Design against you.

* Chap. 3. 14.
* Chap. 6. 1. and 10. 1. and 11. 1.

11 And * ye went over Jordan, and came unto Jericho: and * the men of Jericho fought against you s, the Amorite, and the Perizzite, and the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Girgashite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite t, and I delivered them into your hand.

s Made opposition against you by shutting their Gates, by endeavouring to cut off your Spies, &c. they Warred against you, if not by an Offensive, yet by a Defensive War. t To wit, successively; for in these few words he seems to comprise all their Wars, which being so fresh in their Memory, he thought it needless particularly to mention.

* Exod. 23. 28. Deut. 7. 20.
* Psal. 44. 3. 6.

12 And * I sent the hornet u before you, which drave them out from before you, even the two kings of the Amorites: but * not with thy sword, nor with thy bow x.

u Either figuratively, i. e. Terrors and Plagues, or other destroying Judgments. Or 2. Properly so called. See on Exod. 23. 28. And this being done before Joshua's entrance into Canaan, it is not strange if it be not mentioned in this Book or Record of Joshua's actions. x For though thou didst fight with them, and prevail against them in Battel, yet this was not because thou hadst more force or courage than they; but because by my Hornet which I sent like an Harbinger before them, I had both broken their spirits, and greatly diminished their numbers, and particularly cut off those Giants or others who were like to give thee most trouble and difficulty; whence it comes to pass that we read of so few Giants in that Land which was called the Land of Giants, Deut. 3. 13.

* Deut. 6. 10, 11.

13 And I have given you a land for which ye did not labour, and * cities which ye built not y, and ye dwell in them: of the vineyards and oliveyards which ye planted not, do ye eat.

y See on Jos. 10. 12, 13.

* Lev. 17. 7. Ezek. 20. 8.

14 ¶ Now therefore fear the LORD, and serve him in sincerity and in truth z, and put away the gods a which your fathers b served on the other side of the flood, and * in Egypt c; and serve ye the LORD.

z Either these two expressions note the same thing; or sincerity is opposed to the mixture of false gods with the true, as it here follows; or of a false and corrupt worship of God, with that which God appointed; and Truth is opposed to diffimulation and falseness, and instability of heart. a Whereby it appears, That although Joshua had doubtless prevented and purged out all publick and manifest Idolatry, yet there were some of them who practised it in their private houses and retirements. See below v. 23. Amos 5. 25, 26. Acts 7. 42, 43. b Terah, and Nahor, and Abraham, &c. v. 2. and others of your Ancestors. c See Ezek. 23. 3, 8, 19, 21, 27. Under these particulars, no doubt he comprehends all other false gods, which were served by the Nations amongst whom they were, as appears from v. 15. but only mentions these, as the Idols which they were in more danger of worshipping than those in Canaan; partly because those of Canaan had been now lately and palpably disgraced by their inability to preserve their Worshippers from total ruine; and partly, because the other Idols came recommended unto them by the venerable name of Antiquity, and the custom of their forefathers. See Jer. 44. 17. Ezek. 20. 18.

Josh. 6. 25.

15 And if it seem evil d unto you to serve the LORD, * choose ye this day whom ye will serve e, whether the gods which your fathers served, that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorite, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD f.

d Unjust, unreasonable or inconvenient. e Not that he leaves them to their liberty, whether they would serve God or Idols; for Joshua had no such power or liberty himself, nor could give it to any other; and both he and they were obliged by the Law of Moses, to give their Worship to God only, and to forbear all Idolatry in themselves, and severely to punish it in others; but it is a Rhetorical and powerful insinuation, whereby he both implies, That the Worship of God is so highly reasonable, so necessary and beneficial; and the service of Idols is so absurd, and vain, and pernicious, that if it were left free to all men to make their choice, every man in his right Wits must needs chuse the Service of God, before that of Idols; and provokes them to bind themselves faster to God by their own choice. See such manner of speeches in Ruth 1. 8, 15. 1 King. 18. 21. f But know this, if you should all be so base and brutish, as to prefer senseless and impotent Idols before the True and Living God, it is my firm purpose, That I will, and my Children and Servants (as far as I can influence them) shall be constant and faithful to the Lord.

16 And the people answered and said, God forbid that we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods.

17 For the LORD our God he it is that brought us up, and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed.

18 And the LORD drave out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwelt in the land: therefore will we also serve the LORD, for he is our God.

19 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye cannot serve the LORD g: for he is an holy God: he is a jealous God h; he * will not forgive your transgressions i, nor your sins.

* Exod. 23. 21.

g He speaks not of an absolute impossibility, (for then both his resolution to serve God himself, and his exhortation to them to do so, had been vain and ridiculous) but of a moral impossibility, or a very great difficulty, which he alledgeth not to discourage them from Gods Service, which is his great design to engage them in; but only to make them more considerate and cautious in obliging themselves; and more circumspect and resolved in answering their obligations. The meaning is, Gods Service is not, as you seem to fancy, a slight and easie thing, as soon done as said; but it is a work of great difficulty, and requires great care, and courage and resolution; and when I consider the infinite purity of God, that he will not be mocked or abused; and withall your great and often manifested proneness to Superstition and Idolatry, even during the Life of Moses, and in some of you, whilst I live, and whilst the obligations which God hath laid upon you in this land, are fresh in remembrance e; I cannot but fear that after my Decease you will think the Service of God too hard and burdensom for you, and therefore will cast it off, and revolt from him, if you do not double your Watch, and carefully avoid all occasions of Idolatry, which I fear you will not do, but I do hereby exhort you to do. h He will not endure a corrival, or partner in his Worship; you cannot serve him and Idols together, as you will be inclined and tempted v. do. i If you who own your selves for his People and Servants, shall wickedly and wilfully transgress his Laws by Idolatry or other Crimes. he will not let this go unpunished in you, as he doth in other Nations; Therefore consider what you do when you take the Lord for your God; weigh your advantages and inconveniencies together; for as if you be sincere and faithful in Gods service, you will have admirable benefits by it; so if you be false to your Professions, and forsake him whom you have so solemnly avouched to be your God, he will deal more severely with you, than with any people in the World.

* Chap. 23. 16.

20 If ye forsake the LORD, and serve strange gods, * then he will turn k, and do you hurt, and consume you after that he hath done you good l.

k (i. e.) He will alter his course and the manner of his dealing with you, and will be as severe as ever he was kind and gracious. l He will repent of all his former kindness, and his goodness abused will be turned into fury.

21 And the people said unto Joshua, Nay, but we will serve the LORD m.

m To wit, him only, and not strange gods, as was supposed by Joshua, v. 20.

22 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye are witnesses against your selves n, that ye have chosen the LORD, to serve him. And they said, We are witnesses.

n This

n This Solemn Profession will be a swift Witness against you, if hereafter you Apostatize from God.

23 Now therefore put away, said he, the strange gods which are among you o, and encline your heart unto the LORD God of Israel.

o Those Idols which you either brought out of Egypt, or have taken in Canaan, which I have too much reason to believe that some of you contrary to God's Command do keep, whether for the preciousness of the matter, or rather for some secret inclination to Superstition and Idolatry, as the following words imply. See v. 14.

24 And the people said unto Joshua, The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

25 So Joshua made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute, and an ordinance p in Shechem.

p Either, 1. He set, or propounded, or declared unto them the Statute and Ordinance, i. e. the sum of the Statutes and Ordinances of God which their Covenant obliged them to. Or, 2. He set or established it, to wit, that Covenant with them, i. e. the People, for a Statute or an Ordinance, to bind themselves and their Posterity unto God for ever as a Statute and Ordinance of God doth.

26 And Joshua wrote these words q in the book of the law of God r, and * took a great stone, and set it up there, under * an oak that was by the sanctuary of the LORD s.

Judg. 9. 37.

q i. e. This Covenant or Agreement of the people with the Lord. r i. e. In that Volume which was kept in the Ark, Deut. 31. 9, 26. whence it was taken and put into this Book of Joshua. This he did partly for the perpetual remembrance of this great and solemn Action, partly to lay the greater obligation upon the people to be true to their engagement; and partly as a Witness for God, and against the people, if afterwards he severely punished them for their defection from God, to whom they had so solemnly and freely obliged themselves. s As a witness and monument of this great transaction, according to the custom of those ancient times, as Gen. 28. 18. and 31. 45. and 35. 14. Exod. 24. 4. Deut. 27. 2. Jof. 4. 3. and 8. 32. Peradventure this agreement was written upon this Stone, as was then usual. t i. e. Near to the place where the Ark and Tabernacle then were; for tho' they were forbidden to plant a Grove of Trees near unto the Altar, Deut. 16. 21. as the Gentiles did, yet they might set a tree up an Altar, or the Ark, near a great Tree which had been planted there before.

27 And Joshua said unto all the people, Behold, this stone shall be a witness unto us; for it hath heard u all the words of the LORD which he spake unto us; it shall be there for a witness unto you, lest ye deny your God.

u It shall be as sure a Witness against you, as if it had heard. This is a common Figure, called Prosopopœia, whereby the sense of hearing is oft ascribed to the Heavens and the Earth, and other senseless creatures; as Deut. 32. 1. Isa. 1. 2. Jer. 2. 12.

28 So * Joshua let the people depart, every man unto his inheritance.

* Judg 2. 6.

29 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD died, being an hundred and ten years old.

30 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in * Timnath-serah, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north-side of the hill of Gaash.

* Chap. 19. 50.

31 And * Israel served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that † over-lived Joshua, and which had known all the works of the LORD, that he had done for Israel.

Judg. 2. 7.
† Heb. prolonged their days

32 ¶ And * the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought up out of Egypt, buried they in Shechem x, in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought of the sons of Hamor the father of Shechem, for an hundred ‖ pieces of silver, and it became the inheritance of the children of Israel.

* Gen. 50. 25. Exod. 13. 19. Gen. 33. 19.

x Not in the city of Shechem, but in a Field near, and belonging to it, as appears from the following words, and from Gen. 33. 18. and from the ancient custom of the Israelites to have their Burying places without Cities, in Fields or Gardens.

33 And Eleazar the son of Aaron died, and they buried him in a hill that pertained to Phinehas his son, which was given him y in mount Ephraim.

y By special favour, and for his better conveniency in attending upon the Ark, which then was, and for a long time was to be in Shiloh, which was near to this place; whereas the Cities which were given to the Priests, were in Judah, Benjamin and Simeon, which were remote from Shiloh, tho' near to the place where the Ark was to have its settled abode, to wit, to Jerusalem.

JUDGES.

The ARGUMENT.

THE Author of this Book is not certainly known; whether it was Samuel, or Ezra, or some other Prophet: nor is it material to know. 1. It matters not who was the Kings Secretary, or with what Pen it was written, if it be once known that it was the King who made the Order or Decree: It is sufficient, that unto the Jews were committed the Oracles of God, Rom. 3. 2. i. e. the Holy Scriptures of the Old Testament, one part of which this was, by confession of all; and that the Jews did not falsify their trust therein, but kept those Holy Books themselves, and delivered them to the World entire, without addition or diminution: for neither Christ nor his Apostles, who severely rebuke them for their mistakes and misunderstandings of some passages of Scripture, ever charge them with any perfidiousness about the Canon or Books of the Scripture. This Book is called the Book of Judges, because it treats of the Judges, or of the state of the Commonwealth of Israel under all the Judges, except Eli and Samuel, who being the last of the Judges, and the occasions or instruments of the change of this Government, are omitted in this Book. The Judges were a sort of Magistrates inferior to Kings, and could neither make new Laws, nor impose any Tributes, but were the supreme Executors of Gods Laws and Commands, and the Generals of their Armies.

CHAP. I.

The Tribe of Judah by God's Command begin to make War against the Canaanites, 1——4. Adonibezek justly requited, 5——7. They take Jerusalem, 8. And Hebron. Enak's Sons slain, 9, 10. Othniel subducth Debir, and so obtained Caleb's Daughter to Wife, 11——15. The Kenites dwell in Judah, 16. Simeon subdueth Zephath, 17. And Judah divers Cities of the Philistines, 18——20. The Jebusites dwell with Benjamin, 21. Tbey of the House of Joseph subdue Bethel, 22——26. Manasseh, Ephraim, Zebulun, Asher, Naphtali, Dan, drive not out the Canaanites; for which they are vexed by them, and are left to dwell mo among another, 27——36.

NOW after the death of Joshua a, it came to pass, that the children of Israel asked the LORD b, saying, Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites first c, to fight against them?

a Not long after it, because Othniel, the first Judge, lived in Joshua's time. b Being assembled together at Shiloh, they enquired of the High priest by the Urim and Thummim. See Numb. 27. and Judg. 20. 18. 1 Sam. 23. 9. c Being sensible that the Canaanites are troublesom to them, and expected great advantage against them by their heedless condition, and finding their People to encrease and multiply exceedingly, and consequently the necessity of enlarging their Quarters, they renew the War. They do not enquire who shall be the Captain General to all the Tribes; but (as appears by the answer) What Tribe shall first undertake the Expedition, that by their success the other Tribes may be encouraged to make the like attempt upon the Canaanites in their several Lots.

2 And the LORD said, Judah d shall go up: behold, I have delivered the land into his hand.

d Not a person so called, but the Tribe of Judah, as is manifest from v. 3, 4, 8, 9. which is chosen for the first enterprise, because they were both most populous, and so most needing enlargement; and with al most Valiant, and therefore most likely to succeed: for God chuseth fit means for the work which he designs; and because the Canaanites were numerous and strong in those parts, and therefore were in time to be suppressed, before they grew too strong for them.

3 And Judah said unto Simeon his brother e, Come up with me into my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites f, and I likewise will go with thee into thy lot. So Simeon went with him.

e As nearest to him both by relation, being his Brother by both Parents, which few of them were; and by habitation, as appears from Jof. 19. 1, 2. f Specially so called, because they are distinguished from the Perizzites, v. 4.

4 And Judah went up, and the LORD delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand, and they slew of them in Bezek g ten thousand men.

g Not in the City, for that was not yet taken, v. 5. but in the Territory of it, or near to it; as in Hor is taken, Numb. 33. 37. And in Jericho, Jof. 5. 13.

5 And they found Adoni-bezek h in Bezek i; and they fought against him k, and they slew the Canaanites, and the Perizzites.

h The Lord or King of Bezek; as his Name signifies i. Whither he fled, when he had lost the Field. k i. e. Against the City wherein he had Encamped himself, and the rest of his Army.

† Heb. The thumbs of their

6 But Adoni-bezek fled, and they pursued after him, and caught him, and cut off his thumbs, and his great toes l.

l That he might be disenabled to fight with his Hands, or to run hands, and away upon his Feet. And this they did, either by the secret instinct feet. and direction of God, or upon notice of his former Tyranny and Cruelty expressed upon others, in this manner, as it follows: either ed. way it was a just requital.

7 And Adoni-bezek said, Threescore and ten kings m, having † their thumbs * and their great toes cut off, ‖ gathered their meat under my table n: as I have done, so God hath requited me o: and they brought him p to Jerusalem q, and there he died.

m Which is not strange in those times and places; for these might be either, First, Kings successively, and so there might be divers of those Kings in one place, and so in others: Or, Secondly, Contemporary Kings. For it is well known, that anciently each Ruler of a City, or great Town, was called a King, and had King's Power in that place; and many such Kings we meet with in Canaan, and it is pro- bable.

bable, that some years before, Kings were more numerous there, till the greater devoured many of the less. *That to their hands might be unable to manage weapons of War. u An Act of Barbarous Inhumanity thus to insult over the miserable, joined with abominable Luxury. v He acknowledgeth the Providence and vindictive Justice of God, which also Pharaoh did, and others too, without any true sense of Piety. p They carried him in Triumph as a monument of God's righteous Vengeance. q It being the Metropolis of the nation.

8 (Now the children of Judah had fought against Jerusalem, and had taken it r, and smitten it with the edge of the sword, and set the city on fire.)

q To wit, in Joshua's time; which tho' done before, may be here repeated, to shew why they brought Adoni-bezek to Jerusalem, because that City was in their hands, having been taken before, as may be gathered from Jos. 15. 63. And the taking of this City may be ascribed to the children of Judah, rather than to Joshua, because the City was not taken by Joshua, and the whole Body of the Army in that time when so many Kings were destroyed, Jos. 10. and 12. (for there is mention made of the destroying of the King of Jerusalem, Jos. 10. 23. and 12. 10. But not a word of the taking of Jerusalem, as there is of the taking of Makkedah, and Libnah, and other Cities belonging to the Kings there mentioned, Jos. 10. 28, &c.) but by the Children of Judah after they had received their Lot, when at the desire, and with the consent of the Benjamites, in whole Lot Jerusalem fell, Jos. 18. 28. they assaulted and took it, and thereby, as it seems, acquired the right of Copartnership with the Benjamites in the possession of that City: Tho some think Jerusalem was twice taken, once in Joshua's Life-time; and being afterwards recovered by the Canaanites, was now retaken by the Children of Judah.

[Josh. 10. 36. and 11. 21. and 15. 13.] 9 † And afterward the children of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites, that dwelt in the mountain, and in the south, and in the ‖ valley.

[Or, low Country-] 10 And Judah went against the Canaanites r that dwelt in Hebron, (now the name of Hebron before was * Kirjath-arba) and they slew Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai.

[Josh. 15. 13.]

r Under the Conduct of Caleb, as it is recorded, Jos. 15. 14, &c. for that relation, and this here following, are doubtless one and the same Expedition and War, as appears by all the circumstances; and it is mentioned either there by anticipation, or here by repetition. Of this and the following Verses, see the Notes there.

11 And from thence he went against the inhabitants of Debir, and then name of Debir before was Kirjath sepher.)

12 And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.

[*Chap. 3. 9.] 13 And Othniel the son of Kenaz, *Calebs younger brother, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

14 And it came to pass when she came to him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and she lighted from off her ass, and Caleb said unto her, What wilt thou?

15 And she said unto him, Give me a blessing, for thou hast given me a south land, give me also springs of water. And Caleb gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs.

16 ¶ And the children of the Kenite, Moses father in law t, went up out of the city of palm-trees t, with the children of Judah, into the wilderness of Judah, which lieth in the south of Arad u, and they x went and dwelt among the people y.

t i. e. Of Hobab, so called from the peop'e from whom he descended, Numb. 24. 21, 22. And, whatsoever he did, it is evident, that his Posterity came into Canaan with the Israelites, and were there seated with them. See Judg. 4. 11. 1 Sam. 15. 6. 1 Chron. 2. 55. u i. e. From Jericho so called, Deut. 34. 3. not the City, which was utterly destroyed; but the Territory belonging to it, where it seems they were seated as in a most pleasant, and fruitful, and safe place, according to the promise made by Moses to their Father, Numb. 10. 31, 32. and whence they might remove, either to avoid the Society or Molestation of the Neighboring Canaanites; or out of love to the children of Judah, whom they went to; or to avoid temptations to Luxury, and exercise themselves in self-denial, and contempt of the present evil World, and the Lusts thereof; as may be thought from Jer. 35. 6, &c. Or for some other cause unknown to us at this distance. x In the Southern part of the Land of Canaan, where Arad was, Numb. 21. 1. x i. e. Some of them, for others of them dwelt in the contrary quarter, in the most Northern part of the Land. y Heb. that people, to wit, those children of Judah that lived there.

17 And Judah went with Simeon his brother y, and they slew the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath, and utterly destroyed it (and the name of the city was called Hormah) z.

1 According to his Promise, v. 3. and the Laws of Justice and Gratitude. z Either, 1. The first place so destroyed and called, Num. 21. 3. and for that was there vowed, is here Executed: Or, 2. Some other place called by the same Name upon the like occasion, which was frequent among the Hebrews. This seems more probable, because this was but one City; that, divers Cities, Numb. 21. 2, 3. 2. Because that seems to have been done in Moses his time, tho' Interpreters generally think otherwise; of which see my Notes there.

18 Also Judah took Gaza with the coast thereof, and Askelon with the coast thereof, and Ekron with the coast thereof a.

a The principal Cities of the Philistines. Qu. How could this be, when among the people left to try Israel, are the five Lords of the Philistines, Judg. 3. 3. Jos. 13. It is only said that they took the Cities, and probably contented themselves with making them Tributary; but it is not said that they slew the people, as they ought to have done; and as it is said of the other Cities here, v. 8, 17, 25. And the people being thus spared, did by God's just Judgment, recover their Strength, and expel the Jews out of their Cities, as we find afterwards: It is further observable, that Ekron here taken, was one of Dan's Cities, Jos. 19. 43. and it was attempted and taken here by Judah and Simeon, partly out of love to their Brother Dan, and partly to secure their new conquests, and other adjoining territories, from such potent neighbors.

19 And the LORD was with Judah, and ‖ he drave out the b inhabitants of the mountain, but could not b drive out the inhabitants of the valley, because they had chariots of iron.

[‖ Heb. he possessed not.] [Or, the mountain.]

b Because of their unbelief, whereby they doubted and distrusted God's power to destroy those who had Chariots of Iron, and so gave way to their own fear and sloth, whereby God was provoked to withdraw his helping hand from them, and so they were really made impotent, as they were unwilling. See Jos. 17. 16.

20 * And they gave Hebron unto Caleb, as Moses said: c and he expelled thence the three sons of Anak c.

[*Numb. 14. 24. Josh. 14. 13. & 15. 13.]

c Abovementioned, v. 10.

21 And the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites that inhabited Jerusalem: but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Benjamin d in Jerusalem unto this day.

[Josh. 15. 63.]

d See on Jos. 15. 36.

22 ¶ And the house of Joseph e, they also went up against Bethel: and the LORD was with them.

e i. e. The Tribe of Ephraim, as appears from their opposition to the Tribe of Manasseh, v. 27.

23 ¶ And the house of Joseph sent to descry Bethel, (now the name of the city before was * Luz.)

[*Gen. 28. 19.]

24 And the spies saw a man come forth out of the city, and they said unto him, Shew us, we pray thee, the entrance into the city f, and * we will shew thee mercy.

[*Josh. 2. 14.]

f On which side it is weakest, that we may best invade and take it.

25 And when he shewed them the entrance into the city, they smote the city with the edge of the sword: but they let go the man and all his family g.

g Together with his Estate, as the following Verse manifests.

26 And the man went into the land of the Hittites h, and built a city, and called the name thereof Luz: which is the name thereof unto this day.

h Where the Hittites seated themselves after they were driven out of Canaan, which seems to be Northward from Canaan, and near unto it. See 1 Kings 11. 1. 1 Chron. 1. 17.

27 ¶ * Neither did Manasseh i drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shean k, and her † towns, nor Taanach l, and her † towns, nor the inhabitants of Dor m, and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam, and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo n, and her towns: but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.

i i. e. That half of this Tribe which dwelt in Canaan. k A place near Jordan, Jos. 17. 11. l Of which see Jos. 12. 21. & 17. 11. m A great City with large Territories, See Jos. 11. 2. & 12. 23. & 17. 11. n A Royal City. See Jos. 12. 21. & 17. 11.

28 And it came to pass when Israel was strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute, and did not utterly drive them out.

[That is tributaries.] [Heb. they.]

29 ¶ * Neither did Ephraim drive out the Canaanites, o that dwelt in Gezer: but the Canaanites dwelt in Gezer o among them.

[*Josh. 16. 10.]

o Which they possessed till Solomons time, 1 King. 9. 16.

30 ¶ Neither did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, nor the inhabitants of Nahalol: but the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became tributaries.

31 ¶ Neither did Asher drive out the inhabitants of Accho, nor the inhabitants of Zidon, nor of Ahlab, nor Achzib, nor Helbah, nor Aphik, nor of Rehob:

32 But the Asherites dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: for they did not drive them out.

33 ¶ Neither did Naphtali drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh, nor the inhabitants of Beth-anath, but he dwelt among the Canaanites the inhabitants of the land: nevertheless, the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh p, and of Beth-anath, became tributaries unto them.

p A place differing from that Bethshemesh, Jos. 15. 10.

34 And the Amorites forced the children of Dan into the mountain: for they would not suffer them to come down to the valley q.

q i. e. Into the Plain Country; which was the occasion of that Expedition for the getting of new quarters: of which we read Jos. 19. and Judg. 18.

35 But the Amorites would dwell in mount Heres in Ajalon and in Shaalbim: yet the hand of the house of Joseph r † prevailed, so that they became tributaries.

r i. e. Of the Ephraimites, who helped their Brethren the Danites here against the Amorites, and that with good Success.

36 And the coast of the Amorites was from ‖ the going up to Akrabbim s, from the rock and upward.

[‖ Heb. the ascent of Akrabbim.]

s Which was in the Southern part of Canaan, Jos. 15. 2, 3. from whence it went up towards the North. This is added to shew the great power and large extent of this people.

CHAP. II.

An Angel reproveth Israel at Bochim: They bewail their Sins, 1—5. The wickedness of the new Generation after Joshua: Their frequent Idolatry, 6—13. For which they are often punished of God by the Enemy: and being delivered by the Judges, grow worse, 14—19. Wherefore God will leave the Canaanite to prove and vex them, 20—23.

AND an ‖ angel of the LORD a came up from Gilgal to Bochim b, and said, I made you to go up out of Egypt, and have brought you unto the land which I sware unto your fathers, and I said c, I will never break my covenant with you.

[‖ Either, First, a Created Angel. Or, Secondly, a Prophet or man of God, for such are sometimes called Angels, which signifies only Messengers of God; and then the following words are spoken by him in the Name of God, as may easily be understood. Or, Thirdly, Christ the Angel of the Covenant, who is oft called the Angel of the Lord, as we have formerly seen, to whom the conduct of Israel out of Egypt, and thorough the Wilderness, and into Canaan, here spoken of is frequently ascribed, as Exod 14. 19. & 23. 20. & 33. 14. Jos. 5. 13, 14. Isa. 63. 12. & 13. 3. Who alone of all the Angels could speak the following words in his own Name and Person; whereas created Angels and Prophets do universally usher in their Divine Messages with, Thus saith the Lord, or some equivalent Expression. And this Angel having assumed the outward shape of a Man, it is not strange that he imitates the local motion of a Man, and comes as it were from Gilgal to the place where now they were: by which motion he signified, that he was the person that brought them to Gilgal, the first place where they rested in Canaan, and there renewed Covenant with them, and protested them there so long, and from thence went out with them to Bartel, and gave them success. b A place so called here by Anticipation, for the reason expressed here, v. 5. And it seems to be no other than Shiloh, where it seems probable, that the people were met together upon some solemn Festival. And this was the proper and usual place of Sacrificing. c. 5. c i. e. I promised, upon condition of your keeping Covenant with me.

2 And * ye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land, * you shall throw down their altars: but ye have not obeyed my voice: Why have ye done this d?

[*Deut. 7. 5. Deut. 12.]

d i. e. Disobeyed these express Commands of mine?

3 Wherefore I also said e, I will not drive them out from before you: but they shall be a * thorns in your sides f, and their gods shall be a * snare unto you.

[*Exod. 23. 33. & 34. 12.]

e With my self, I have now taken up this peremptory resolution. f See on Numb. 33. 55. Jos. 23. 13.

4 And it came to pass, when the angel of the LORD spake these words unto all the children of Israel, that the people lift up their voice, and wept g:

g Some of them from a true sense of their sins; but most of them from a just apprehension of their danger and approaching misery from the Canaanites growing Power, and God's forsaking of them; as the following History makes most probable.

5 And they called the name of that place ‖ Bochim: and they sacrificed h there unto the LORD.

h For the expiation of their sins, by which they had provoked God to this resolution; and for the regaining of God's favour.

6 ¶ And when * Joshua had let the people go i, the children of Israel went every man unto his inheritance to possess the land.

[*Josh. 24. 28.]

i When he had distributed their Inheritances, and dismissed them severally to take Possession of them. This was done before this time, whilst Joshua lived; but is now repeated in order to the discovery of the time, and cause, or occasion of the Peoples defection from God, and of God's desertion of them.

7 And the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that † out-lived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD that he did for Israel.

[† Heb. prolonged days after Joshua.]

8 And * Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD died, being an hundred and ten years old.

[*Josh. 24. 29.]

9 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-heres k, in the mount of Ephraim, on the north-side of the hill Gaash.

k Called Timnath-Sera, Jos. 19. 50. and 24. 30.

10 And also all that generation were gathered unto their fathers: and there arose another generation after them, which knew not l the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel.

l Which had no experimental, nor serious and affectionate knowledge of God, nor of his works.

11 And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD m, and served Baalim n.

m Which notes the heinousness and the impudence of their sins, above other people, les sins; because God's prefence was with them, and his eye upon them in a peculiar manner, and he did narrowly observe all their actions, which also they were not ignorant of, and therefore were guilty of more contempt of God than other People. n i. e. False Gods. He useth the Plural Number, because the Gods of the Canaanites, and adjoining Nations, which Israel worshipped, were divers, and most of them called by the name of Baal.

12 And they forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed other gods, of the gods of the people that were round about them, and bowed themselves unto them, and provoked the LORD to anger.

13 And they forsook the LORD, and served Baal and Ashtaroth o.

o i. e. The Sun and the Moon, whom many Heathens Worshipped tho' under divers names; and so they ran into that Error which God had so expressly warned them against, Deut. 4. 19.

14 ¶ And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he delivered them into the hand of spoilers, that spoiled them, and † sold them e into the hand of their enemies round about, so that they could not any longer stand before their Enemies

e i. e. Delivered them up, as the seller doth his Commodities, unto the buyer. Thus the same Phrase is used, Judg. 3. 8. and 4. 9.

15 Whithersoever they went out, the hand of the LORD was against them for evil; as the LORD had † Lev. 26. said, and † as the LORD had sworn unto them: and Deut. 28. they were greatly distressed.

p i. e. Whatsoever expedition or business they undertook; which is usually signified by going out, and coming in.

16 Nevertheless, the LORD raised up q judges r, which † delivered them out of the hand of those that † Heb. saved. spoiled them.

q By inward Inspiration and Excitation of their Minds and Hearts, and by outward Designation testified by some heroical and extraordinary Action. r Supreme Magistrates, whose office it was, under God, and by his particular direction, to govern the Commonwealth of Israel by God's Laws, and to protect and save them from their Enemies; to preserve and purge Religion; to maintain the Liberties of the People against all Oppressors. See Judg. 3. 9, 10, 15, &c. and 4. 4. and 6. 25, 26. and 8. 23.

17 And yet they would not hearken unto their Judges s, but they went a whoring after other gods, and bowed themselves unto them: they turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked in, obeying the commandments of the LORD: but they did not so.

s Who admonished them of their sin and folly, and of the danger and misery which would certainly befall them.

18 And when the LORD raised them up judges, then the LORD was with the judge, and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge: (for it repented the LORD t, because of their groanings, by reason of them that vexed them, and oppressed them:)

t i.e. The Lord changed his course and dealings with them, as penitent Men use to do; removed his Judgments, and returned to them in mercy, Gen. 6. 6.

19 And it came to pass † when the judge was dead, that they returned u, and ‖ corrupted themselves more than their fathers x, in following other gods, to serve them, and to bow down unto them; † they ceased not from their own doings y, nor from their stubborn way z.

[† Chap. 2. 18. ‖ Or, were corrupt. † Heb. they let nothing fall.]

u To their former, and usual, and natural, tho' interrupted course. x In Egypt, or in the Wilderness. y i. e. From their evil practices, which he calls their own, partly because they were agreeable to their own natures, which in all mankind are deeply and universally corrupted, Gen. 6. 5. and 8. 21. and partly, because they were familiar and customary to them. Compare Jos. 24. 14. and 66. 3. Ezek. 36. 32. Acts 14. 16. Jude, v. 16. 2 Heb. hard way: so he calls their way of wickedness, either because it proceeded from an hard heart, and was managed with an hard and stiff neck: or to signifie, that altho' it seemed at first very soft, and easie, and pleasant yet they would certainly, and did constantly find, that it was hard, and difficult, and troublesome to them, as an hard way is to the Traveller.

20 ¶ And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he said, Because that this people hath transgressed my Covenant, which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened unto my voice:

21 * I also will not henceforth drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died: [*Josh. 23. 13.]

22 That through them I may prove Israel, ‖ whether they will keep the way of the LORD, to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not.

‖ Either, First, that I may try, and see whether Israel will be true and faithful to me, or whether they will suffer themselves to be corrupted by the evil counsels and examples of their bad neighbours, whom I will leave among them for their Tryal and Exercise. Or, Secondly, That by them I may affict and punish Israel; for afflictions are commonly and justly called trials. But the former sense suits better with the following words.

23 Therefore the LORD ‖ left those nations, without driving them out hastily †, neither delivered he them into the hand of Joshua.

[‖ Or, suffered.] [† Or, speedily, when the Israelites desired it, and needed it.]

CHAP. III.

The Nations left to prove Israel withall, 1—4. The Israelites marrying their Daughters, and serving their Gods, they are delivered up to the K. of Mesopotamia: are Released by Othniel, 5—11. Continuing to do Evil, they are again punished and oppressed by the K. of the Moabites: are Released by Ehud: Ten thousand Moabites are slain, 12—30. They are afterwards delivered from the Philistines by Samgar, 31.

NOW these are the nations which the LORD left to prove Israel by them, (even as many of Israel as had not known all the wars of Canaan a:

a i.e. Such who had no experience of those Wars, nor of God's extraordinary Power and Providence manifested in them.

2 Only that the generations of the children of Israel might know to teach them war b, at the least such as before knew nothing thereof)

b That by the Neighbourhood of such Warlike and Potent Enemies, they might be purged from Sloth and Security, and obliged to inure themselves to Martial Exercises, and to stand continually upon their guard, and consequently to keep close to that God whose Assistance they had so great and constant need of.

Josh. 13. 3. c Namely, * five LORDS of the Philistines c, and all the Canaanites d and the Zidonians e, and the Hivites that dwelt in Mount Lebanon, from Mount Baal-hermon f, unto the entring in of Hamath.

c Whereof three had been in some fort subdued, Judg. 1. 18. But afterwards refused themselves, and recovered their former Strength. See on Josh. 11. 18. d Properly so called, who were very numerous, and dispersed through several parts of the Land, whence they gave denomination to all the rest of the People. e The people living near Zidon, and subject to its jurisdiction. f Which was the Eastern part of mount Lebanon: See Deut. 3. 8, 9.

4 And they were to prove Israel by them, to know g whether they would hearken unto the commandments of the LORD, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

g i. e. That they and others might know by experience.

5 ¶ And the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, Hittites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites

Ex. 34. 16. Deut. 7. 3. 6 And they * took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods h.

h Were drawn to Idolatry by the perswations and examples of their Yoke-fellows, through the just judgment of God, punishing their sinful Marriages by giving them up to Idolatry.

7 And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and forgat the LORD their God, and served Baalim and the groves i.

i i. e. In the Groves, in which the Heathens usually Worshipped their Baalims or Idols. Or, the Groves are here put Metonymically for the Idols of the Groves, which are distinguished here from their Baal-m, which seem to have been Worshipped in other places, as the Prophets of Baal are distinguished from the Prophets of the Groves, 1 Kings. 18. 19.

8 ¶ Therefore the anger of the LORD was hot * Heb. 7. against Israel, and he sold them into the hand of † Chushan-rishathaim king of † Mesopotamia: and the children of Israel served Chushan-rishathaim k eight years.

† Heb. Aramnaharaim. k i. e. Were made subject and tributary to him.

9 And when the children of Israel cried l unto the LORD, the LORD raised up a † deliverer to the children of Israel, even * Othniel the son of Kenaz, Calebs younger brother m.

* Heb. Saviour. † ch. 1. 13. l i. e. Prayed fervently for deliverance. m Of which see on Judg. 1. 13.

10 And * the spirit of the LORD † came upon him n, and he judged Israel o, and went out to war, and the LORD delivered Chushan-rishathaim king of † Mesopotamia into his hand; and his hand prevailed against Chushan-rishathaim.

* See Num. 27. 18. † Heb. was. † Heb. Aram.

n With extraordinary influences, indowing him with singular wisdom, and courage, and resolution; and stirring him up to this great undertaking. Compare Judg. 6. 34. and 11. 29. o i. e. Pleaded and avenged the cause of Israel against their oppressors; as that Phrase is oft used, as Deut. 32. 36. Psal. 10. 18. and 43. 1.

11 And the land had rest forty years p, and Othniel the son of Kenaz died.

p Either First, it rested about Forty Years, or the greatest part of Forty Years: it being most frequent in Scripture to use Numbers in such a Latitude. Thus the Israelites are said to bear their iniquities forty years in the wilderness, Numb. 14. 33. when there wanted near two years of that number; and to dwell in Egypt 430 years, when there wanted many years of that number. Thus Joseph's kindred sent for, and called by him into Egypt, are numbred Seventy five Souls. Act. 7. 14. although they were but Seventy, as is affirmed, Gen. 46. 27. Exod. 1. 5. So here the land is said to rest forty years, although they were in servitude Eight of those Years, v. 8. And in like manner the land is said to have rest eighty years, though Eighteen of them they served the King of Moab, v. 18. And so in some other instances. Nor is it strange and unusual either in Scripture, or in other Authors, for things to be denominated from the greater part, as here it was; especially, when they did enjoy some degrees of rest and peace even in their times of misery, which here they did. Or, Secondly, it rested, i. e. began to rest, or recovered its interrupted rest, in the fortieth year, either after Joshua's Death, or after that first and famous Rest procured for them by Joshua, as is noted, Heb. 4. 9. when he destroyed and first dead the Canaanites, and gave them quiet possession of the Land; and the land had rest from war, as is said, Josh. 11. 23. and 14. 15. So there is this difference between the years of Servitude and Oppression, and those of Rest, that in the former he tells us how long it lasted; in the latter, when it began; by which, compared with the other years, it was easie also to know how long the Rest lasted. To strengthen this Interpretation, two things must be noted: 1. That resting is here put for beginning to Rest, as to beget is put for beginning to beget, Gen 5. 32. and 11. 26. and to Reign, for to begin to Reign, 2 Sam. 2. 10. and to build, 1 King. 6. 1. 36. for to begin to build, 2 Chron. 3. 1. 2. That forty years is put for the fortieth year: the Cardinal Number for the Ordinal, which is common both in the holy Scripture, as Gen. 1. 5. and 2. 11. Exod. 12. 2. Lev. 1. 1. Mark 16. 1. and in other Authors

12 ¶ And the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD, and the LORD strengthned * Eglon the king of Moab against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of the LORD. * See 13. 1.

p By giving him Courage, and Power, and Success against them.

13 And he gathered unto him the Children of Ammon, and Amalek, and went and smote Israel, and possessed the city of Palm trees q.

q i. e. Jericho, as may be gathered from Deut. 34. 3. Josh. 1. 16. 2 Chron. 28. 15. Not the City which was Demolished, but the Territory belonging to it. Here he fixed his Camp, partly for the admirable Fertility of that Soil; and partly, because of its nearness to the passage over Jordan, which was most commodious both for the conjunction of his own Forces which lay on both sides of Jordan; and to prevent the conjunction of the Israelites in Canaan with their Brethren beyond Jordan; and to secure his Retreat into his own Country, which therefore the Israelites prevented, v. 28.

14 So the children of Israel served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years.

15 But when the children of Israel cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised them up a † deliverer, Ehud † Heb. a Saviour. the son of Gera ‖, a Benjamite r, a man * left handed s, and by him the children of Israel sent a present unto Eglon the king of Moab. * Or, restrained in his right hand. Jonath.

r Heb. the son of Jemini, who was of the Tribe of Benjamin, † 1 Chr. 2 Sam. 16. 11. and 19. 17. 1 Kings. 2. 8. This Tribe was next to of his him, and doubtless most affected by him; and hence God raiseth right a Deliverer. s Which is here noted, partly, as a mark of his Courage, and Strength, and Activity: See Judg. 20. 16. and privately, as a considerable circumstance in the following Story, where by he might more advantagiously and unsuspectedly give the deadly blow.

16 But Ehud made him a dagger (which had two edges) of a cubit length t, and he did gird it under his raiment, upon his right thigh u.

t Long enough for his design, and not too long for carriage and concealment. u Which was most convenient both for the use of his left hand, and for the avoiding of suspicion.

17 And he brought the present x unto Eglon king of Moab: and Eglon was a very fat man y.

x Which was to be paid to him as a part of his Tribute. y And therefore more unweildy and unable to ward off Ehud's blow.

18 And when he had made an end to offer the present, he sent away the people that bare the present z.

z He accompanied them part of the way, and then dismissed them, and returned to Eglon alone, that so he might have more easie access to him, and privacy with him; and that he might the better make his escape.

19 But he himself turned again a from the ‖ quarries Or, graven that were by Gilgal, and said, I have a secret errand unto thee, O king: who said, Keep silence c. And all that stood by him went out from him. ven a As if he had forgot and neglected some important business. b Either, First, Whence they hewed stones: Or, Secondly, The Twelve Stones which Joshua set up there; by the sight whereof he was animated to his Work. Or, Thirdly, The Idols, as the Word also signifies, which that Heathen King might place there, either in spight and contempt to the Israelites who had that place in great Veneration: or, that he might ascribe his Conquest of the Land to his Idols, as the Israelites did to the true God, by setting up this Monument in the entrance or beginning of it. c Till my Servants be gone: whom he would not have acquainted with a business which he supposed to be of great and close importance.

20 And Ehud came unto him, and he was sitting in † a summer parlour d, which he had for himself alone. And Ehud said, I have a message f from God g, unto thee. And he arose out of his seat h.

d They had divers Houses and Chambers, some for Winter, others for Summer. See Jer. 36. 22. Amos 3. 15. e Into which he used to retire himself from company: which is mentioned as the reason why his Servants waited so long ere they went in to him, v. 25. f To be delivered not in Words, but by Actions: Heb. a Word, or Thing, or Business. So that there is no need to change Ehud with a Lye, as some do. g This he saith to Amuse him, by raising his expectation and wonder, to divert him from any apprehension of his Danger, and to oblige him to rise out of his Seat, which he knew he would do from the common practice of the Heathens in their intercourses with God. And he designedly useth the name Elohim, which was common to the true God, and false ones; and not Jehovah, which was peculiar to the true God; because Ehud not knowing whether the Message came not from his own false god, he would more certainly rise, and thereby give Ehud more advantage for his blow; whereas he would possibly shew his Contempt of the God of Israel by sitting still to hear his Message. h In token of humble subjection and reverence to God. See Numb. 25. 18. 2 Kings. 23. 3. which condemns those Christians that behave themselves irreverently in the Presence and Service of the true God.

22 And the haft went in after the † blade: and the fat closed upon the blade, † so that he could not draw the dagger out of his belly, and ‖ the dirt came out i.

i (i. e.) His Excrements came forth, not at the Wound, which closed up, but at the Fundament, as is usual when Persons die either a natural or violent Death.

23 Then Ehud went forth k through the porch, and shut the doors of the parlour upon him l, and locked them m.

k With a composed Countenance and Gate, without any fear; being well assured, that God who by his extraordinary Call had put him upon that enterprise, would by his special Providence preserve him, and carry him through it. l Either upon the King, or upon or after himself. m Either by pulling it close after him, as we do when Doors have Spring-locks; or by taking the Key with him for more caution; and this he did, that they supposing the King to be retired, might wait till he was gone.

24 When he was gone out, his servants came, and when they saw, that behold the doors of the Parlour were locked, they said, Surely he ‖ covereth his feet n in his Summer-chamber. † Heb. were shut. Jonath.

n This Phrase is used only here, and 1 Sam. 24. 3. It is commonly understood in both places, of eating Nature; because the Men not then wearing Breeches as we do, but long Coats, they did in that act cover their feet, as Women do: But a late judicious Interpreter expounds it, of composing himself to take a little Sleep or Rest, as was very usual to do in the day-time in those hot Countreys, 2 Sam. 4. 5. and 11. 12. And when they did so in cool places, such as this Summer-parlour unquestionably was, they used to cover their feet, as appears from Ruth 3. 7. And this may seem to be the more probable, both because the Summer-Parlour was more proper for this use than for the former; and because this was a more likely reason of their long waiting at his Door, lest they should disturb his Repose. And this sense best agrees with Saul's case in the Cave, when being asleep David could more securely cut off the lap of his Garment, 1 Sam. 24. 3. where see my Annotations.

25 And they tarried till they were ashamed o: and behold he opened not the doors of the Parlour, therefore they took a key p, and opened them: and behold, their lord was fallen down dead on the earth.

o Or, confounded, not knowing what to say or think; lest they should either disturb him, or be guilty of neglect towards him. p Another Key, it being usual in Princes Courts to have divers keys for the same door.

26 And Ehud escaped while they tarried: and passed beyond the quarries, and escaped unto Seirath.

27 And it came to pass when he was come, that he blew a trumpet in the Mountain of Ephraim; and the children of Israel q went down with him from the mount, and he before them.

q Whom doubtless he had prepared, and by his Emissaries gathered together in considerable numbers.

28 And he said unto them, Follow after me, for the LORD hath delivered your enemies the Moabites into your hand. And they went down after him, and took the foords of Jordan r, toward Moab, and suffered not a man to pass over r Where they passed over Jordan, that neither the Moabites that were got into Canaan, might escape, nor any more Moabites come over Jordan to their succour.

29 And they slew of Moab at that time about ten thousand men, all † lusty, and all men of valour, and there escaped not one man. † Heb. fat.

30 So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel, and the land had rest fourscore years s.

s How those are to be understood, see on v. 11. instead of eighty, some Copies read eight years.

31 ¶ And after him was Shamgar the Son of Anath, which slew of the Philistines six hundred men with an † ox-goad t, and he also † delivered Israel. † Heb. a ox-goad

t Strongly did a thousand with the Jaw-bone of an Ass; both being miraculous actions, and not at all incredible to him that believes a God, who could easily give strength both to the persons and to their weapons to effect this.

CHAP. IV.

K. Jabin oppresses Israel: his Captain General was Sisera, 1—3. The Prophetess Deborah sends for Barak, and commands Barak to go out against him: promises him Victory: she her self marcheth with him, 4—14. Sisera's Host is beaten: he flies: and Jael kills him in her Tent, and while he sleeps, for his King, 15—23. K. Jabin is destroyed.

AND the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the LORD, when Ehud was dead.

2 And the LORD sold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan a, that reigned in Hazor b, the captain of whose host was * Sisera, which dwelt in Harosheth of the Gentiles c. * 1 Sam. 12. 9.

a i. e. Of the Land where the most of the Canaanites, strictly so called, now dwelt, which seems to be in the Northern part of Canaan. This seems to be of the Posterity of that Jabin, whom Joshua slew, Jos. 11. 11. who watched all opportunities to recover his antient Possessions, and to revenge his own and Fathers Quarrel upon the Israelites. b Either 1. In the City of Hazor, which though taken and burnt by Joshua, Chap. 11. 11. yet might be retaken and rebuilt by the Canaanites: Or 2. In the Territory or Kingdom of Hazor, which might now be restored to its former largeness and power, Jos. 11. 10. the names of Cities being oft put for their Territories, as Zoar, a City, Gen. 19. 23. is put for the Fields belonging to it, Judg. 13. 2. in which Manoah's Parents lived, Judg. 13. 25. and 16. 31. and 18. 2. c So called, because it was much frequented and inhabited by the Gentiles, either by the Canaanites who being beaten out of their former Possessions, betook themselves in those Northern parts; or by other Nations coming there for Traffick, or upon other occasions, as Strabo notes of those parts, whence Galilee, where this was, is called Galilee of the Gentiles.

3 And the children of Israel cried unto the LORD: for he had nine hundred chariots of Iron; and twenty years he mightily oppressed d the children of Israel.

d More than the former Tyrants; partly from his malice and hatred against the Israelites; and principally from God's just judgment, the growing punishment being most suitable to their aggravated wickedness.

4 ¶ And Deborah † a prophetess e, the wife of Lapidoth f, she judged Israel g at that time. † Heb. Prophetess

e As there were Men-Prophets, so there were also Women-Prophetesses, as Miriam, Exod. 15. 20. Huldah, 2 Kings. 22. 14. and divers others; but the word Prophet, or Prophetess is very ambiguous in both Testaments; sometimes being used of persons extraordinarily inspired by God, and endowed with a power of working miracles, and foretelling things to come; and sometimes of persons endowed with special, though not miraculous gifts or graces, the better understanding of, and discoursing about the Word, Mind of God, for the praising of God, or the like; of which see 1 Chron. 25. 1. 1 Cor. 11. 5. and 14. 1, 3, 4, 5. &c. And of the first were the Sons of the Prophets, or such who were trained up in the Schools of the Prophets, who are oft called Prophets, as 1 Sam. 10. 5. 10, 11, 12. See also 1 Kings. 18. 4. and 19. 10. And because we read of nothing of Deborah's miraculous actions, peradventure she was only a Woman of eminent Holiness and Prudence, and Knowledge in the holy Scriptures, by which she was singularly qualified to the Judging of the People according to the Laws of God. Or, she acknowledged, that the Song was and foretold the following Victory; for all the Sons of the Prophets foretel and foretel. So Isaiah's translation, 2 Kings. 20. 5. which yet were not extraordinary Prophets. Or, a Woman of Lapidoth; and so Lyra, who turns the name of a man, but of the place of her Birth or Abode. f (i. e.) Determined Causes and Controversies arising among the Israelites, as is implied. And this Judgeship might suffer to be done, especially by a Woman; and the frequent discharge of this part of the Judges Office, which by the gained great Power and Authority with the People, did readily (though not observed by the Tyrant) prepare the way for her filling into the other part of her Office, which was to defend and rescue the people from their Enemies.

5 And she dwelt under the palm-tree of Deborah, between Ramah and Beth-el in mount Ephraim: and the children of Israel came up to her for Judgment h.

h To have their Suits and Causes determined by her Sentence

6 And she sent and called † Barak the son of Abinoam out of Kedesh Naphtali i, and said unto him, Hath not the LORD God of Israel commanded k, *y*ou, Go, and draw m toward mount Tabor n, and take with thee ten thousand men of the children of Naphtali, and of the children of Zebulun o. † Heb. he.

i By vertue of that power which God had given her, and the people owned in her. k So called, to distinguish it from other places of that name, one in Issachar, Josh. 19. 22. and another in Naphtali, 1 Chron. 6. 72. l (i. e.) Affirmedly God hath commanded thee; this is not the fancy of a weak Woman, in which peradventure she might delude; but the Command of the great God by my Mouth. Which Command of God, and the following assurance of Success, she might either gather from the general rules of Scripture, and the common course of God's gracious Providence, which was always ready to succour them when they cryed to God; or by some instinct or direction from God. m Or, go; for so this word is often used, as Gen. 37. 28. Judg. 20. 37. Neh. 2. 13. He marched, or thy feet, or thy foot. n A place most fit for his purpose, being in the borders of divers Tribes, and having a large Plain under top of it, where he might conveniently muster and draw up his Army. o These five names, partly because they were most remote, and best known to Barak, and therefore could be most forward to come together, partly because they were nearest to the Enemy, and therefore could speedily be assembled, or else they were likely to be hindred in their Design, whilst the other Tribes, being at more distance, had better opportunity of gathering Forces to their succour; and partly, because their Land most flourished under this Oppression, which was in the heart of their Countrey, and therefore was most forward in the publick Service; but their not coming is not excusable, as appears by the concurrence of those other Tribes, as is related, Judg. 5.

7 And I will draw unto thee to the † river Kishon, Heb. 25. Sisera the captain of Jabins army, with his chariots, and his multitude, and I will deliver him into thine hand. 20.

p By my Power and powerful Providence, ordering and overruling his inclinations that way.

8 And Barak said unto her, If thou wilt go with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go q.

q His offer to go with her, shews the truth of his Faith, for which he is praised, Heb. 11. 32. but his refusal to go without her, shews the weakness of his Faith, that he could not fully credit God's bare word, as he ought to have done, without the Pledge of the Presence of his Prophetess, whom he thought God would preserve and deliver, and himself for her sake.

9 And she said, I will surely go with thee: notwithstanding the journey r that thou takest shall not be for thine the LORD shall fell Sisera into the hand of a woman? And Deborah arose and went with Barak to Kedesh.

10 And Barak called Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh, and he went up with ten thousand men at his feet: and Deborah went up with him.

11 Now Heber the Kenite, which was of the children of Hobab the father in law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent at the plain of Zaanaim, which is by Kedesh.

12 And they shewed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to mount Tabor.

13 And Sisera gathered together all his chariots, even nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles, unto the river of Kishon.

14 And Deborah said unto Barak, Up; for this is the day in which the LORD hath delivered Sisera into thine hand: Is not the LORD gone out before thee? So Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him.

15 And the LORD discomfited Sisera and all his chariots, and all his host with the edge of the sword before Barak; so that Sisera lighted down off his chariot, and fled away on his feet.

16 But Barak pursued after the chariots, and after the host unto Harosheth of the Gentiles, and all the host of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword, and there was not a man left.

17 Howbeit Sisera fled away on his feet to the tent of Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: for there was peace between Jabin the king of Hazor, and the house of Heber the Kenite.

18 And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me, fear not. And when he had turned in unto her, into the tent, she covered him with a mantle.

19 And he said unto her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink, for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottle of milk, and gave him drink, and covered him.

Either because she had not water in her Tent, and pretended fear of Discovery or some inconvenience if she went out to fetch it; or, as a signification of greater respect; or as a likely mean to call him into a Sleep, which she desired and designed; to which end, possibly she might mix something with it to cause Sleep, which she could not so conveniently have done with water.

Upon pretence of hiding him, but really to dispose him to sleep.

20 Again he said unto her, Stand in the door of the tent, and it shall be when any man doth come, and enquire of thee, and say, Is there any man here? that thou shalt say, No.

He speaks imperiously to her; but it is observable, that she gives him no promise to do so, nor makes him any Answer; possibly because though she knew her design upon him was warrantable, yet she had proceeded too far in using Dissimulation therein.

21 Then Jael, Hebers wife, took a nail of the tent, and took an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground: (for he was fast asleep, and weary) so he died.

Wherewith they used to fasten the Tent, which consequently was long and sharp, being headed with Iron; These Weapons she chuseth, either, 1. Because she had no better Weapons at hand, this being only the Womans Tent, where Arms use not to be kept, and these people being wholly given to Peace, and negligent of War; or Sisera having disarmed them before this time. Or, 2. Because she had more skill in the handling these, than other Weapons, being probably accustomed to fasten the Tents herewith. Or, 3. Because this was very proper for his present posture, and which she knew would be effectual. Which is the fittest part of the Skull, and fooneſt pierced. This might seem a very bold attempt; but it must be considered, that she was encouraged to it, partly by observing that the Heavens and all the Elements conspired against him, as against one devoted to Destruction; partly, by the fair opportunity which God's Providence put into her hands; and principally, by the secret instinct of God inciting her to it, and assuring her of success in it. Or, What shall we judge of this fact of Jaels? It is a difficult question, and necessary to be determined, because on the one hand there seems to be great perfidiousness, and an horrid violation of all the Laws of Hospitality and Friendship, and of the Peace which was established between Sisera and her; and on the other side, this fact of hers is applauded and commended in Deborah's Song, Judg. 5. 24, &c. And some who make it their business to pick quarrels with the Holy Scriptures, from hence take occasion to question and reject their Divine Authority, for this very passage, because it commends an act so contrary to all Humanity, and to great a breach of Faith: And whereas all the pretence of their Infidelity is taken from the following Song, and not from this History, wherein the Fact is barely related, without any reflection upon it; there are many Answers given to that Argument, as, 1. That there was no League of Friendship between Jael and Sisera, but only a Cessation of Acts of Hostility; of which see the Notes on v. 17. 2. That Deborah doth not commend Jaels words, v. 18. Turn in my Lord, fear not; in which the great strength of this Objection lies; but only her action, and that Artifice, that he asked water, and she gave him milk; which if impartially examined, will be found to differ but little from that of warlike Stratagems, wherein a man lays a Snare for his Enemy, and deceives him with pretences of doing something which he never intends. And Sisera, though for the time he pretended to be a Friend, yet was in truth a bitter and implacable Enemy unto God and all his people, and consequently to Jael her self. But these and other Answers may be omitted, and this one consideration following may abundantly suffice to stop the mouths of these men: It cannot be denied, that every word, or passage, or discourse which is recorded in Scripture, is not Divinely inspired, because some of them were uttered by the Devil, and others by Holy Men of God, but mistaken, (the Prophets themselves not always speaking by Inspiration) such as the Discourse of Nathan to David, 2 Sam. 7. 3. which God presently contradicted, v. 4, 5, &c. and several Discourses of Job's three Friends, which were so far from being Divinely inspired, that they were in a great degree unsound, as God himself tells them, Job 42. 7. Ye have not spoken of me the thing that is right, as my Servant Job hath; this being so, the worst that any malicious mind can infer from this place is, That this Song, though indited by a good man or woman, was not Divinely inspired, but only composed by a person piously minded, and transported with Joy for the Deliverance of God's People, but subject to mistake; who therefore, out of zeal to commend the happy Instrument of so great a Deliverance, might easily overlook the indirectnesses of the means by which it was accomplished, and commend that which should have been disliked. And if they further object, that it was composed by a Prophetess, Deborah, and therefore must be Divinely inspired; it may be replied, 1. That it is not certain what kind of Prophetess Deborah was, whether extraordinary and infallible, or ordinary, and so liable to mistakes; for there were Prophets of both kinds, as hath been proved above on ver. 4. 2. That every expression of a true and extraordinary Prophet was not Divinely Inspired; as is evident from Nathan's mistake above-mentioned, and from Samuel's mistake concerning Eliab, whom he thought to be the Lords Anointed, 1 Sam. 16. 6.

22 And behold, as Barak pursued Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said unto him, Come, and I will shew thee the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tent, behold Sisera lay dead, and the nail was in his temples.

23 So God subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan, before the children of Israel.

24 And

24 And the hand of the children of Israel prospered, and prevailed against Jabin the king of Canaan, until they had destroyed Jabin king of Canaan.

CHAP. V.

Deborah exhorts to Praise: The begins: recounts the former Wonders and Mercies of God to his people, 1——5. From the Miseries of former times glories in their present state, 6——9. Excites the Governours, &c. to praise the Lord, 10——13. Commends the Chief of the Tribes who went forth willingly to this Battle, and checks the unwilling who tarried at home, 14——18. Describes the Victory in all its Circumstances, 19——22. Curseth Meroz for not coming to their assistance, 23. Extols Jael and her Act, 24——27. Derideth Sisera's Court Ladies, 38——30. Prays for like Judgment on their Enemies, and Prosperity to God's People, 31.

1 THen sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day, saying,

2 Praise ye the LORD for the avenging of Israel, when the people willingly offered themselves.

3 Hear, O ye kings, give ear, O ye princes: I, even I will sing unto the LORD, I will sing praise to the LORD God of Israel.

4 LORD, when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou marchedst out of the field of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heavens dropped; the clouds also dropped water.

5 The mountains melted before the LORD, even that Sinai, from before the LORD God of Israel.

6 In the days of Shamgar the son of Anath, in the days of Jael, the high ways were unoccupied, and travellers walked through by-ways.

7 The inhabitants of the villages ceased, they ceased in Israel, until that I Deborah arose, that I arose a mother in Israel.

8 They chose new gods; then was war in the gates: was there a shield or spear seen among forty thousand in Israel?

9 My heart is toward the governours of Israel, that offered themselves willingly among the people: Bless ye the LORD.

10 Speak, ye that ride on white asses, ye that sit in judgment, and ye that walk by the way.

11 They that are delivered from the noise of archers in the places of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the righteous acts of the LORD, even the righteous acts towards the inhabitants of his villages in Israel: then shall the people of the LORD go down to the gates.

12 Awake, awake Deborah: awake, awake, utter a song: arise Barak, and lead thy captivity captive, thou son of Abinoam.

13 Then he made him that remaineth have dominion over the nobles among the people: the LORD made me have Dominion over the mighty.

From the noise or sound, and consequently the force of those Arrows which are shot at them; but these seems the more, because this Epithete is frequently given to Bows and Arrows in Poetical Writings: Or, 2. From the Triumphant Noise and Shout of Archers, rejoycing when they meet with their Prey. At those Pits or Springs of Water, which were scarce and precious in those hot Countreys, to which the Peoples Necessities forced them oft to resort, and nigh unto which the Archers did usually lurk in Woods or, Thickets, or Hedges, that from thence they might shoot at them, and kill and spoil them. When they come to those places with freedom and safety, which before they could not, they shall with thankfulness rehearse this Righteous, and Faithful, and Gracious Work of God, in rescuing his People, and punishing his Enemies. Whom he mentions, because as their Danger was greater, v. 7, so was their Deliverance, and their Obligation to praise God. To wit, of their Cities, which were the chief places to which both City and Countrey resorted for publick Business and matters of Justice, from which they had been debarred by their Oppressors; but now they had free access and passage, either in or out of the Gates, as their occasions required; and they who had been driven from their Cities, now returned to them in Peace and Triumph; so the Citizens Deliverance is celebrated here, as the Countrey-mens is in the foregoing words.

Or, After thee, O Benjamin: and thus the Pre-eminence is here given to Benjamin in two respects; First, that he was first in this Expedition, as indeed he lay nearer the Amalekites, and by his Example encouraged the Ephraimites. Secondly, That the whole Tribe of Benjamin, though now but finall, came forth to this War, when the numerous Tribe of Ephraim sent only an handful to it. r Either First, among the People of Benjamin, with whom those few Ephraimites united themselves in this Expedition. They were loth to run the hazard of so great a Loss, by taking up Arms against so potent an Enemy as Jabin was: and the bleatings of their Sheep were so loud in their ears, that they could not hear the Call of Deborah and Barak to this Expedition.

d Gilead is sometimes taken more largely, for all the Land of the Israelites beyond Jordan, as Numb. 32. 1. 26, 29. 7 ¶ And it came to paſs when the children of Iſrael cried unto the LORD, becauſe of the Midianites,

8 That the LORD ſent † a prophet unto the children of Iſrael, which ſaid unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, I brought you up from Egypt, and brought you forth from the houſe of bondage:

9 And I delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all that oppreſſed you, and drave them out from before you, and gave you their land:

* 2 King. 17. 35, 38. Jer. 10. 2.

10 And I ſaid unto you, I am the LORD your God, * fear not f the gods of the Amorites, in whoſe land ye dwell: but ye have not obeyed my voice.

f i.e. Do not ſerve or worſhip them.

† Heb. called Gideon.

11 ¶ And there came an angel of the LORD, and ſate under an oak which was in Ophrah g, that pertained unto Joaſh the Abi-ezrite h: and his ſon * Gideon † threſhed wheat i by the wine-preſs k, † to hide it from the Midianites.

g To wit, in Manaſſeh: for there was another Ophrah in Benjamin, cauſe it to Joſ. 18. 23. h Of the Poſterity of Abi ezer, of whom, ſee Joſ. 17. 2. Jeſee. 1 Chron. 7. 18. See Judg. 8. 27, 32. i Not with Oxen, as the manner was, Deut. 25. 4. but with a Staff to prevent diſcovery. Or, in the place where the Wine-preſs ſtood, not in the common Floor.

12 And the angel of the LORD appeared unto him, and ſaid unto him, The LORD is with thee l, thou mighty man of valour m.

l i.e. Will aſſiſt thee againſt thine and mine Enemies. m To whom I have given Strength and Courage for this end.

13 And Gideon ſaid unto him, Oh my lord, if the LORD be with us, why then is all this befaln us? and where be all his miracles which our fathers told us of, ſaying, Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt? but now the LORD hath forſaken us, and delivered us into the hand of the Midianites.

14 And the LORD looked upon him n, and ſaid, * Go in this thy might o: and thou ſhalt ſave Iſrael from the hand of the Midianites: have not I ſent thee p?

* 1 Sam. 12. 11. Heb. 11. 32.

n With a ſetled and pleaſant Countenance, as a teſtimony of his favour to him, and of his readineſs to help him. o Or, in this, or in thin time in thy might: the ſtrength which thou haſt already received, and doſt now further receive from me, is ſufficient with my help, p I do hereby give thee Command and Commiſſion for this Work, and therefore am able and in Honour to aſſiſt thee in it.

15 And he ſaid unto him, Oh my lord, wherewith ſhall I ſave Iſrael? behold † my family q is poor r in Manaſſeh, and I am the leaſt s in my fathers houſe.

† Heb. my thousand is the meanest.

q Heb. my thouſand: for the Tribes were diſtributed into ſeveral thouſands, whereof each thouſand had his peculiar Governour. r i.e. Weak and contemptible. s Either for Age, or for Wiſdom, and fitneſs for ſo great a Work.

16 And the LORD ſaid unto him, Surely I will be with thee, and thou ſhalt ſmite the Midianites as one man t.

t As eaſily, as if they were all but one Man; or, thou ſhalt deſtroy them to a Man, as he did, Judges 8.

17 And he ſaid unto him, If now I have found grace in thy ſight, then ſhew me a ſign, that thou talkeſt with me u.

u That it is thou, to wit, an Angel or Meſſenger ſent from God, that appears to me, and diſcourſeth with me; and not a Phancy or Deluſion; that thou art in truth what thou ſeemeſt and pretendeſt to be, v. 12. Or, a ſign of that which thou talkeſt with me; i.e. That thou wilt ſtil be my mate the Midianites.

‖ Or, meat-offering.

18 Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come unto thee, and bring forth my ‖ preſent x, and ſet it before thee y. And he ſaid, I will tarry until thou come again.

z Not a Sacrifice, because neither was Gideon a Priest, nor was this the place of Sacrifice, nor was any Altar here, nor was there any such Sacrifice as here follows, appointed by God; but a repast, or some food for the Angel, which he thought to be a man, as appears by v. 22. Compare Judg. 13. 15. and Gen. 18. 5. y That thou must eat and refresh thy self.

† Heb. a kid of the goats.

19 ¶ And Gideon went in, and made ready † a kid, and unleavened cakes of an Ephah of flour z: the flesh he put in a basket, and he put the broth in a pot, and brought it out unto him under the oak, and presented it.

20 To wit, out of the choicest part of a whole Ephah; as also he brought to him the best part of a kid dressed; for a whole Ephah, and a whole kid had been very superfluous, and improper to provide for, and set before one Man.

20 And the angel of God said unto him, Take the flesh, and the unleavened cakes, and lay them upon this rock, and pour out the broth. And he did so.

21 ¶ Then the angel of the LORD put forth the end of the staff that was in his hand, and touched the flesh and the unleavened cakes, and there rose up fire out of the rock, and consumed the flesh, and the unleavened cakes a; then the angel of the LORD departed out of his sight.

a By which he shewed himself to be no Man that needed such Provisions, but a true Angel of God, or the Son of God; and by this influence of his Omnipotency, gave him assurance, that he both could, and would confume the Midianites.

Levit. 9. 24.

22 And when Gideon perceived that he was an angel of the LORD, Gideon said, Alas b, O LORD God! for because c I have seen an angel of the LORD face to face.

b Unusual words, Exod. 15. 17. Chap. 13. 22.

b I am an undone Man; I must die, and that speedily; for that he feared, v. 23. according to the common opinion in that case; of which see Gen. 16. 13. and 32. 30. Exod. 33. 20. Deut. 5. 25. 26. c Or, for therefore, &c. i.e. Therefore God hath shewed me this sight as a pledge of my death.

23 And the LORD said unto him d, Peace be unto thee; fear not, thou shalt not die.

d By inward suggestion, rather than in a visible Apparition. e That shall receive no hurt by this Vision, as thou fearest; but only peace, i.e. all the blessings needful for thy own happiness, and for the present work; for this is a very comprehensive Phrase among the Hebrews.

24 Then Gideon built an altar there e unto the LORD, and called it ‖ Jehovah-shalom f: unto this day it is yet in Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites.

‖ That is, the Lord send peace.

f To wit, on the top of the Rock, as is evident from v. 20. and especially from v. 26. where that which is here expressed only in general, and by anticipation, is more particularly described, according to the usage of the Scripture. g i.e. The Lords peace; the sign or witness of God's speaking Peace to me, and to his People: or the place where he spake Peace to me, when I expected nothing but Destruction.

25 ¶ And it came to pass the same night, that the LORD said unto him, Take thy fathers young bullock, even the second bullock of seven years old, and throw down the altar of Baal that thy father hath it, and cut down the grove that is by it h:

† Or, and.

† Exod. 34. 13. Deut. 7. 5.

b Thus there was but one Bullock, which was young, to wit, comparatively, but not simply, for it was seven years old; and of such this Hebrew word is used, Job 21. 10. For these Creatures are fruitful above seven years. Or thus, thy Fathers young Bullock, and thy second Bullock; for there were two Bullocks. But because there is but one of them mentioned both in the next verse, and in the execution of this Command, v. 28. it is probable it was but one; and the Hebrew Particle, vau, and, is put exegetically for even, or, to wit, as in every where. And this he calls his Fathers young Bullock, both because his Father was the owner of it, and because his Father kept and fed it for a Sacrifice to Baal. For because it is likely his Father kept divers of these Cattel or fattening Pigs and Statures for that use, either to bless on, or at the Peoples charge; therefore he adds by way of limitation, that he should not take the eldest and the greatest, but the second; to wit, in Age, or Stature, or Goodliness, or in the order of Sacrifice, that which was to have been sacrificed to Baal in the Second place. And this he singled out because of its age; for being seven years old, it began with the Midianitish Calamity, and being as it were fortified, did fitly signifie, that the Period of that Misery was now come. i Which the Father built in his own Ground, though for the common use of the whole City, v. 28, 29, 30. k Planted by the Altar for Idolatrous or impure uses, as the manner of Idolaters was. See Judg. 3. 7. This Action might seem to be due to his Fathers Rights and Authority; but God's Command was to destroy whatever, and Gideon was now called to be the Supreme Magistrate, whereby he was made his Father's Superiour, and was impowered, and authorized, and enjoyned to root out all Idolatry and Superstition, and the Instruments thereof.

† Heb. upon the top of this ſtrong place.

26 And build an altar unto the LORD thy God, upon the top of this † rock h, ‖ in the ordered place m, and take the second bullock, and offer a burnt-sacrifice with the wood of the grove which thou shalt cut down.

‖ Or, in an orderly manner.

g Heb. the ſtrength of this ſtrong hold: for in that Consideration the Israelites retreated to thoſe Rocks, and hid and fortified themſelves in them. h i.e. In a plain and ſmooth part of the Rock, where an Altar may be conveniently built. Or, in order, i.e. in ſuch manner as I have appointed; for God had given Rules about the building of Altars. n Gideon was no Prieſt, nor was this the appointed place of Sacrifice; but God can diſpenſe with his own Inſtitutions, though we may not; and his Call gave Gideon ſufficient Authority.

27 Then Gideon took ten men of his ſervants o, and did as the LORD had ſaid unto him: and ſo it was, becauſe he feared p his fathers houſhold, and the men of the city, that he could not do it by day, that he did it by night.

o Whom doubtleſs he had acquainted with his deſign, and the aſſurance of ſucceſs in it, whereby they were eaſily induced to aſſiſt him, if not ſincerely, yet for the expectation of advantage to themſelves by it. p Not ſo much, leſt he ſhould ſuffer for it, for he knew very well the doing it by night with ſo many hands could not hinder the diſcovery, and conſequently the puniſhment of it; but leſt he ſhould be prevented from doing it.

28 ¶ And when the men of the city aroſe early in the morning, behold, the altar of Baal was caſt down, and the grove was cut down that was by it, and the ſecond bullock was offered upon the altar that was built q.

q Not upon Baal's Altar, for which it was deſigned; but upon an Altar erected in contempt of Baal.

29 And they ſaid one to another, Who hath done this thing? And when they enquired, and aſked, they ſaid, Gideon the ſon of Joaſh hath done this thing r.

30 Then the men of the city ſaid unto Joaſh, Bring out thy ſon, that he may die: becauſe he hath caſt down the altar of Baal, and becauſe he hath cut down the grove that was by it.

r Which they might eaſily conjecture, partly by his known averſion from the worſhip of Baal, and partly becauſe no other Perſon durſt preſume to do ſuch a thing; but they might more certainly learn it from ſome of the Perſons imployed in it, who through fear or favour might inform them.

31 And Joaſh ſaid unto all that ſtood againſt him, Will ye plead for Baal s? will ye ſave him? he that will plead for him, let him be put to death t, whilſt it is yet morning u: if he be a god, let him plead for himſelf x, becauſe one hath caſt down his altar.

s Why are you ſo zealous in pleading for that Baal, for the worſhip whereof you ſuffer ſuch grievous Calamities at this day, and from whom you have no help? It is plain, that Joaſh had been a worſhipper of Baal: either therefore he was now convinced by Gideon's Information and Action, or he makes uſe of this Pretence to preſerve his Son, being indeed indifferent in matters of Religion; and therefore as he did worſhip Baal to comply with his Neighbours, ſo now he deſerts him, to reſcue his Son. t He that ſhall further plead for ſuch a god as this, deſerves to die for his folly and impiety. This not probable, that this was all which he ſaid for his Son's deference: or that he would neglect to mention the Call his Son had from God to it, the Apparition of an Angel, the Promiſe of Deliverance: but it is uſual in Scripture to give only ſome ſhort hints of thoſe Things which were more largely diſcourſed. u i.e. Inſtantly, without delay; for it was now Morning-time, as appears from v. 28. &c. x As the God of Iſrael hath often done when any Indignity or Injury hath been done to him. But Baal hath now ſhewed, that he is neither able to help you, nor himſelf; and therefore is not worthy to be ſerved any longer. This courageous and reſolute Anſwer was neceſſary to ſtop the torrent of the Peoples Fury; and it was drawn from him, partly by the Senſe of his Son's extreme Danger, and partly by the Confidence he had, that God would plead his own Cauſe, and uſe him for the Reſcue of his People.

32 Therefore on that day he called him y Jerub-baal, ſaying, Let Baal plead againſt him, becauſe he hath thrown down his altar.

y i.e. Joaſh called Gideon ſo, Judg. 7. 1. in remembrance of this noble Exploit, and to put a ſtrand upon Baal.

33 ¶ Then all the Midianites, and the Amalekites, and the children of the eaſt were gathered together, and went over, and pitched in the valley of Jezreel z.

z Not that Jezreel in Judah, of which Joſ. 15. 56. but another in the Borders of Manaſſeh and Iſſachar, Joſ. 17. 16. and 19. 18. which was not far diſtant from Ophrah, where Gideon dwelt, and near.

Compare 1 Chron. 12. 18. and 2 Chr. 20. b i.e. The Abiezrites, his Kindred and their Servants, and others; who finding no harm comming to him for the deſtroying of Baal, but rather a bleſſing from God, in giving him Strength and Courage for ſo great and dangerous an Attempt, changed their Minds, and followed him as the Perſon by whom the God would deliver them.

35 And he ſent Meſſengers throughout all Manaſſeh c, who alſo was gathered after him; and he ſent Meſſengers unto Aſher, and unto Zebulun, and unto Naphtali d, and they came up to meet them.

mity, and would in all reaſon be moſt forward to reſcue themſelves from it.

36 ¶ And Gideon ſaid unto God e, If thou wilt ſave Iſrael by mine hand, as thou haſt ſaid, e In way of humble Supplication, partly for the ſtrengthning of his own Faith, and partly for the greater encouragement of his Soldiers in this great and ſtrange Attempt.

37 Behold, I will put a fleece of wool in the floor: and if the dew be on the fleece only, and it be dry upon all the earth beſide f; then ſhall I know that thou wilt ſave Iſrael by mine hand, as thou haſt ſaid.

f i.e. Upon all that ſpot of ground which adjoyneth to, and encompaſſeth the Fleece.

38. And it was ſo: for he roſe up early on the morrow, and thruſt the fleece together, and wringed the dew out of the fleece, a bowl full of Water.

Gen. 18. 32.

39. And Gideon ſaid unto God, * Let not thine anger be hot againſt me, and I will ſpeak but this once: Let me prove, I pray thee, but this once with the fleece. Let it now be dry only upon the fleece, and upon all the ground let there be dew g.

g Which was more difficult and preternatural than the former inſtance, becauſe if there be any moiſture, ſuch bodies as fleeces of Wool are moſt likely to drink it up.

40. And God did ſo that night: for it was dry upon the fleece only, and there was dew on all the ground.

CHAP. VII.

Gideon with two and thirty thouſand Men encamps againſt the Midianites: theſe, by God's Command and Token are leſſened to 300. 1—8. He is encouraged by a Dream, and its Interpretation, 9—14. diviideth his Army into 3 Companies: who all with one accord blow the Trumpets: and break the Pitchers, wherein the Lamps were, in pieces, 16—20. The Midianites are terrified, fly and deſtroy one another, 21, 22. The next adjoyning Iſraelites purſue them to ſtop their Paſſage over Jordan Two Princes of the Midianites are taken by the Ephraimites, 23—25.

THen Jerubbaal (who is Gideon) and all the People that were with him, roſe up early, and pitched beſide the well of Harod: ſo that the hoſt of the Midianites were on the north-ſide of them, by the hill of Moreh, in the valley.

2 And the LORD ſaid unto Gideon, The people that are with thee are too many for me b to give the Midianites into their hand, leſt Iſrael vaunt themſelves againſt me, ſaying, Mine own hand hath ſaved me.

b i.e. For my purpoſe; which is, ſo to deliver Iſrael, that it may appear to be my own miraculous act, that ſo I may have all the Glory of it, and they may be more ſtrongly obliged to love and ſerve me.

3 Now therefore go to, proclaim in the ears of the People, ſaying, * Whoſoever is fearful and afraid, let him return and depart early from mount Gilead c: and there returned of the People twenty and two thouſand d, and there remained ten thouſand.

* Deut. 20. 8.

c Not that famous Mount Gilead which was beyond Jordan; for it is apparent that both the Camps of the Iſraelites and of the Midianites were on this ſide Jordan: but another Mount Gilead in the Tribe of Manaſſeh; which might be ſo called, either for ſome reſemblance it had with the other Mount Gilead, or in remembrance of their Father Gilead; or, that this might be a memorial of their near relation to their Brethren, notwithſtanding their being divided one from another by Jordan; or, for ſome other reaſon now unknown at this diſtance of Time and Place. Or, the words may be rendred towards Mount Gilead; for the Hebrew Particle min, or men, is ſometimes rendred towards, of which ſee Gen. 11. 2. and 13. 11. Deut. 32. 2. 2 Sam. 6. 2. And ſo it may be underſtood of the famous Mount Gilead, beyond Jordan, which he may mention here, either, 1. Becauſe many of his Soldiers were of that half Tribe of Manaſſeh which dwelt there, and ſo it was moſt proper for them to return thither; Or, 2. Becauſe that was their fartheſt courſe, to get fartheſt from the danger which they feared; Or, 3. Becauſe though he would remove them from danger, yet he would not have them diſperſed, but kept together in a Body about Mount Gilead; knowing that they who had not Courage enough to fight their Enemies, might have Valour enough to purſue them, when they were beaten by others; and ſuſpecting, That the Midianites, if beaten, would probably flee that way. d Who finding their whole Army to be very ſmall, in compariſon of their Enemies, who were a Hundred Thirty Five Thouſand, Judg. 8. 10. and they, no doubt well Armed and Diſciplined, and encouraged by long Succeſs; whereas the Iſraelites were diſ-ſpirited with long Servitude, and many of them unfurniſhed with Arms and Proviſions; loſt the Courage which in the beginning they ſeemed to have.

4 And the LORD ſaid unto Gideon, The People are yet too many: bring them down unto the water e, and I will try them for thee f there, and it ſhall be, that of whom I ſay unto thee, This ſhall go with thee, the ſame ſhall go with thee: and of whomſoever I ſay unto thee, This ſhall not go with thee, the ſame ſhall not go up.

e Either that which ran from the Well of Harod, mentioned v. 1. or ſome other Brook. f Becauſe thy Proclamation hath not ſufficiently tried them; for many who are fearful indeed, will put on the face, and deſire the opinion of being Valiant Perſons; I will take another courſe.

5 So he brought down the people unto the water: and the LORD ſaid unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue as a dog lappeth, him ſhalt thou ſet by himſelf; likewiſe every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink g.

g It is true, there may be natural reaſon given, why ſome did only Lap of the Water, when others bowed themſelves; from the Temperance, or Fortitude, or Patience, or Conſcience, or Diligence of the one; and the Intemperance or Cowardiſe, or Impatience, or Weakneſs, or Sluggiſhneſs of the others: but there is room to be meer conjectures: The true reaſon and cauſe of all ſeems to be only this, That God would reduce them to a very ſmall number, which was likely to be done by this means: for the Soldiers of the Year being hot, and the generality of the Soldiers weary, and thirſty, and faint, they would moſt probably bow down upon their Knees, that they might more fully refreſh themſelves by a liberal draught, as indeed they did; and it could be expected that there would be but few, who either could or would ſtand to refreſh themſelves in this manner; eſpecially, when God conſpired in the work, and ſo diſpoſed of the Minds and Bodies of them, that all, except Three Hundred, ſhould lie down to drink.

6 And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth h, were three hundred Men: but all the reſt of the People bowed down upon their knees to drink water.

h Taking up a little water in the Palm of their hands to put into their mouths.

7 And the LORD ſaid unto Gideon, By the three hundred men that lapped, will I ſave you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand: and let all the other people go every man unto his place i.

i i.e. To his own home, as Numb. 22. 11.

8 So the people took victuals in their hand, and their trumpets k: and he ſent all the reſt of Iſrael, every man unto his tent, and retained thoſe three hundred men: and the hoſt of Midian was beneath him in the valley.

k i.e. The Trumpets belonging to the whole Army, even to thoſe who were gone away, which he retained for the uſe here following. See v. 16.

9 ¶ And it came to paſs the ſame night l that the LORD ſaid unto him m, Ariſe, get thee down unto the hoſt, for I have delivered it into thine hand.

l After he had diſmiſſed all but the Three Hundred. m In a Dream or Viſion of the Night.

10 But if thou fear to go down n, go thou with Phurah thy ſervant down to the hoſt.

n To wit, without ſome farther aſſurance of thy Succeſs, I will condeſcend ſo far to thee, as to give thee another Sign.

11 And thou ſhalt hear what they ſay, and afterward ſhall thine hands be ſtrengthned o to go down unto the hoſt. Then went he down with Phurah his ſervant unto the out-ſide ‖ of the armed men that were in the hoſt.

o Thou wilt be encouraged to proceed, notwithſtanding the ſmallneſs of thy number, which may deterr thee.

‖ Or, by the ſide.

12 And the Midianites, and the Amalekites, and all the children of the eaſt, lay along in the Valley * like graſhoppers for multitude, and their Camels were without number, as the ſand by the ſea-ſide for multitude.

* Chap. 6. 5. & 7. 12.

13 And when Gideon was come, behold, there was a man that told a dream unto his fellow, and ſaid, Behold, I dreamed a dream, and lo, a cake of barley bread p tumbled into the hoſt of Midian, and came unto a tent, and ſmote it that it fell, and overturned it, that the tent lay all along.

p A weak and contemptible thing; and in it ſelf as unable to overthrow a Tent, as to remove a Mountain: but being driven by a Divine hand, bore down all before it; which is fitly reſembled Gideon's caſe, which was mean and deſpicable, as Barley bread, Judg. 6. 15. yet he was Mighty, through God, to deſtroy the Midianites.

14 And his fellow anſwered and ſaid, This is nothing elſe ſave the ſword of Gideon the ſon of Joaſh, a man of Iſrael q: for into his hand hath God delivered Midian and all his hoſt.

q As there are many examples of ſignificant Dreams, given by God to Heathens, as Gen. 41. Dan. 2. and 4. ſo ſome of them had the gift of interpreting Dreams; which they ſometimes did by Study and Art, and ſometimes by Divine direction or aſſiſtance in ſome caſes.

15 And it was ſo, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream r, and † the interpretation thereof, that † Heb. the breaking of it. he worſhipped ſ, and returned into the hoſt of Iſrael, and ſaid, Ariſe, for the LORD hath delivered into your hand the hoſt of Midian.

r Which he underſtood, though unſeen in the Midianitiſh Languages either, becauſe it was near akin to the Hebrew, being only a differing Dialect of it; or, becauſe the Israelites had now been acculſomed to the Midianites Company and Converſe for ſeven years. ſ He praiſed God for this miraculous Work and ſpecial encouragement, whereby he was confirmed in his enterprize.

16 And he divided the three hundred men into three companies t, and he put a trumpet in every man's hand with empty pitchers, and ‖ lamps u within the pitchers.

t To make a shew of a vast Army encompassing them. u Or, Other stuff of such materials as would quickly take fire, and keep it for some time. x Partly to preserve the Flame from the violence of Wind and Weather; and partly to conceal it, and surprise their Enemy with sudden and unexpected Flashes of Light.

17 And he said unto them, Look on me, and do likewise y: and behold, when I come to the outside of the camp, it shall be, that as I do, so shall ye do.

y For though 100 of his men were placed on other sides of the Camp; yet they were so disposed, that some person or persons, set as Watch-men, might see what was done, and give notice to the rest to follow the Example.

18 When I blow with a trumpet, I, and all that are with me, then blow ye the trumpets also on every side of all the camp, and say, The sword of the LORD, and of Gideon z.

* Heb. for the LORD and for Gideon.

z He mentions his own Name, together with God's, not out of vain ostentation or arrogance, as if he would equal himself with God; but he mentions God in the first and chief place, and himself only as his Minister; but from prudent Policy, because his Name was grown formidable to them, and so was likely to further his Design, and their Flight, as it did.

19 ¶ So Gideon, and the hundred men that were with him, came unto the outside of the camp, in the beginning of the middle watch a, and they had but newly set the watch, and they blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers that were in their hands.

a i. e. Of the second Watch; for though afterwards the night was divided into four Watches by the Romans, Mat. 14. 25. yet in more ancient times, and in the Eastern parts, it was divided into three: He chose the dark and dead of the night, to increase their Terror by the Trumpets, whose sound would then be loudest and best heard, and the Lamps, whose light would then shine most brightly, and seem biggest, to surprise them at disadvantage, and to conceal the smallness of their numbers.

20 And the three companies blew the trumpets and brake the pitchers, and held their lamps in their left hands b, and their trumpets in their right hands to blow withal, and they cried, The sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.

b That they might be thought to be a mighty Host, having as many Troops or Companies, as there were Trumpets and Lights.

21 And they stood every man in his place c, round about the camp; and all the host ran, and cried and fled.

c As if they had only been Torch-bearers to the several Companies.

22 And the three hundred blew the trumpets, and ‖ Or, to-wards. † Heb. lip. Isa. 5. 25. the LORD set every man's sword against his fellow d, even throughout all the host: and the host fled to Beth-shittah ‖ in Zererath, and to the † border of Abel-meholah e, unto Tabbath.

d They slew one another, either because they suspected Treachery, and so fell upon those they first met with; which they might more easily do, because they consisted of several Nations, as may be gathered from Judg. 6. 3. and Josephus affirms; or because the darkness of the night made them unable to distinguish Friends from Foes; or, because the suddenness of the thing struck them with Horror and Amazement; or, because God infatuated them, as he hath done many others. Compare 1 Sam. 14. 20. 2 Chron. 20. 23. e Of which see 1 Kings 4. 12. and 19. 16.

23 And the men of Israel gathered themselves together out of Naphtali, and out of Asher, and out of all Manasseh, and pursued after the Midianites.

24 ¶ And Gideon sent messengers throughout all mount Ephraim, saying, Come down against the Midianites, and take before them the waters unto Beth-barah f, and Jordan g. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered themselves together, and took the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan.

f i. e. The Passes over those Waters to which they are like to come. g The Foords of Jordan, which River they must pass over into their own Country.

† Psal. 83. 11. Isa. 10. 26. 25 And they took † two princes of the Midianites, Oreb and Zeeb: and they slew Oreb upon the rock Oreb, and Zeeb they slew at the wine-press of Zeeb, and pursued Midian, and brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon on the other side Jordan h.

h For Gideon in the pursuit had passed over Jordan, as we read, Judg. 8. 4. which though mentioned after this, may seem to have been done before it, such transpositions being frequent in Sacred Story. Or, on this side Jordan, for the Hebrew word is indifferent to both sides, see Gen. 50. 10. And so this is opposed to what follows of his passing over Jordan, Judg. 8. 4. And then there is no anticipation here.

CHAP. VIII.

The Ephraimites are displeased with Gideon: He satisfies them, 1—3. He pursueth two Kings of the Midianites beyond Jordan: Where Succoth and Penuel refuse to relieve Gideon's Army: The King being taken by Him: In his Return he punisheth those of Succoth and Penuel, 4. 17. He revengeth his Brethrens Death on the two Kings, 18—21. His refused Government, 22, 23. Demandeth a present of the Spoil, and thereof makes an Ephod: Places it in Ophrah: It is a cause of Idolatry, 24—27. Gideon's Children, Wives, Death, and Burial, 30—32. Israel revolts to Idolatry: Is ungrateful to Gideon's Family, 33—35.

AND the men of Ephraim said unto him, Why † hast thou served us thus, that thou calledst us not a when thou wentest to fight with the Midianites? † Heb. is this to us. And they did chide with him † sharply.

a Why hast thou neglected and despised us, in not calling us in time to help, as thou didst other Tribes? These were a proud People, Isaiah. Isa. 11. 13. puffed up with a conceit of their Number and Strength, and the preference which Jacob by Divine direction gave them above Manasseh, Gen. 48. 19, 20. of which Tribe Gideon was, who by this act had seemed to advance his own Tribe, and to depress theirs.

2 And he said unto them, What have I done now in comparison of you b? is not the gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim c better than the vintage of Abiezer d?

b What was done, was done by God's immediate hand, making them one to kill another; what I have done in cutting off some of the Fugitive common Soldiers, is not to be compared with your Exploit in destroying their Princes; I began the War, but you have finished. c What you have gleaned or done after me. d i. e. Of the Abiezrites, to whom he modestly communicateth the honour of the Victory, and doth not arrogate it to himself, as Generals commonly do.

3 God hath delivered into your hand the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb: and what was I able to do in comparison of you? then their † anger was abated toward him, when he had said that e. † Heb. his anger.

e His soft and humble Answer allayed their Rage and Envy; see Prov 15. 1. and 25. 15.

4 ¶ And Gideon came to Jordan, and passed over f, he, and the three hundred men that were with him, faint, yet pursuing them.

f Or, had passed over. When he passed over; see on Judg. 7. 25.

5 And he sent unto the men of Succoth g, Give, I pray you, loaves of bread unto the people that follow me, for they be faint, and I am pursuing after Zeba and Zalmunna, kings of Midian h.

g A place beyond Jordan, Gen. 33. 17. Jos. 13. 27. Psal. Lx. 8. h Where before this time were five Kings at once, Numb. 31. 8. who either reigned separately in divers parts of the Land; or governed by common counsel and consent; as sometimes there were two or three Roman Emperors together.

6 ¶ And the princes of Succoth said, Are the hands of Zeba and Zalmunna now in thine hand i, that we should give bread unto thine army? † Or, Are.

i Art thou so foolish, to think with thy 300 faint and weary Soldiers, to conquer and destroy an Host of 15000 Men? 1 Sam. 13. 15.

7 And Gideon said, Therefore when the LORD hath delivered Zeba and Zalmunna into mine hand, I will † tear your flesh with the thorns of the Wilderness k, and with briers. † Heb. thresh.

k Which grow abundantly in the neighbouring Wilderness; I will chastise or beat your naked Bodies with Thorny Rods, even unto Death: Or, I will lay you down upon Thorns, on the ground, and bring the Cart-wheel upon you, which will both tear your flesh, and bruise you to death.

8 ¶ And he went up thence to Penuel l, and spake unto them likewise: and the men of Penuel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered him.

l Another City beyond Jordan; of which see Gen. 32. 30. 1 Kings 12. 25.

9 And he spake also unto the men of Penuel, saying, When I come again in peace, I will break down this tower m.

m Your confidence in which, makes you thus Proud and Presumptuous. He implies that he would afterwards destroy their Persons, as is expressed, v. 17.

10 ¶ Now Zeba and Zalmunna were in Karkor, and their hosts with them, about fifteen thousand men, all that were left of all the hosts of the children of the east: for there fell ‖ an hundred and twenty thousand men that drew sword n. ‖ Or, there fell.

n i. e. Persons expert and exercised in War, besides the retainers to them, Judg. 6. 5.

11 ¶ And Gideon went up by the way of them that dwelt in tents o, on the east of Nobah and Jogbehah p, and smote the host: for the host was secure q.

o i. e. Of the Arabians, so fetching a compass, and falling upon them where they least expected it. p Of which Cities see Numb. 32. 35.

32. 35, 42. q Being now got safe over Jordan, and a great way from the place of Battel; and probably, supposing Gideon's Men to be so tired with their hard Service, and the great Slaughter which they had made, that they would have neither Strength nor Will to pursue them so far.

12 And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he pursued after them, and † took the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and † discomfited them. † Psal. 83. 11. † Heb. terrified.

13 ¶ And Gideon the son of Joash returned from battel before the sun was up r.

r By which it may be gathered, that he came upon them in the Night, which was most convenient for him who had so small a number with him; and most likely both to surprise and terrify them by the remembrance of the last Nights sad work, and the expectation of another like it.

14 And caught a young man of the men of Succoth, and enquired of him: and he † described unto him the princes of Succoth s, and the elders thereof, even threescore and seventeen men. † Heb. wrote.

s He told him their Names and Qualities.

15 And he came unto the men of Succoth, and said, Behold Zebah and Zalmunna, with whom ye did upbraid me, saying, Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thy men that are weary?

16 And he took the elders of the city, and thorns of the wilderness, and briers, and with them he † taught the men of Succoth t. † Heb. made to know.

t By that severe punishment, (of which v. 7.) he made the men, i. e. the Elders of Succoth, to know their Sin and Folly, though it was too late for their good, but not for the instruction and warning of others.

17 ¶ And he beat down the tower of ‖ Penuel, and slew the men of the city. ‖ 1 Kings 12. 25.

18 Then said he unto Zeba and Zalmunna, What manner of men were they whom ye slew at Tabor u? And they answered, As thou art, so were they; each † resembled the children of a king y. † Heb. one resembled as the children.

u i. e. For outward shape and quality. x Whether he understood they fled for shelter, upon the approach of the Midianites; and where he learnt that some were slain, which he suspected might be they. y Not for their Garb, or outward Splendor, for the Family was but mean; but for the Majesty of their looks: By which commendation they thought to ingratiate themselves with their Conquerer.

19 And he said, They were my brethren, even the sons of my mother: as the LORD liveth, if ye had saved them alive, I would not slay you z.

z For being not Canaanites, he was not obliged to kill them; but they having killed his Brethren, and that in cool blood, he was by Law the avenger of their Blood.

20 And he said unto Jether his first-born, Up, and slay them a: but the youth drew not his sword: for he feared, because he was yet a youth.

a Partly, that he might animate him to the use of Arms for his God and Country, against their Enemies, and to the Exercise of Justice; partly, that the Death of those mischievous persons might be more shameful and painful; and partly, that he might have some share in the honour of the Victory.

21 Then Zeba and Zalmunna said, Rise thou and fall upon us: for as the man is, so is his strength b. And Gideon arose, and slew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took away the ‖ ornaments that were on their camels necks. ‖ Or, crescents like the moon.

b Thou excellest him, as in Age and Stature, so in Strength; and it is more honourable, as well as easie, to die by the hands of a valiant man.

22 ¶ Then the men of Israel said unto Gideon, Rule thou over us c, both thou, and thy son, and thy sons also d: for thou hast delivered us from the hand of Midian e.

c Not as a Judge, for that he was already made by God; but as a King. d Let the Kingdom be Hereditary to thee, and to thy Family. e This miraculous and glorious deliverance by thy hands deserves no less from us.

23 And Gideon said unto them, I will not rule over you f, neither shall my son rule over you: the LORD shall rule over you g.

f To wit, as a King, which you desire. g In a special manner, as he hath hitherto done, by Judges, whom God did particularly appoint and direct, even by Urim and Tummim, and assist upon all occasions; whereas Kings had a greater Power, and only a general dependence upon God, as other Kings had. Compare 1 Sam. 8. 6, 7.

24 ¶ And Gideon said unto them, I would desire a request of you, That ye would give me every man the ear-rings of his prey, (for they had golden ear-rings, because they were Ishmaelites h.)

h Obj. They are called Midianites before. Ans. Here seems to have been a mixture of People, Judg. 6. 3. which are all called by one general name, Ishmaelites, or Arabians, who used to wear Earrings, Gen. 35. 4. but the greatest, and the ruling part of them were Midianites.

25 And they answered, We will willingly give them. And they spread a garment, and did cast there- in, every man the ear-rings of his prey.

26 And the weight of the golden ear-rings that he requested, was a thousand and seven hundred shekels of gold, beside ornaments, and ‖ collars, and purple raiment that was on the kings of Midian, and beside the chains that were about their camels necks. ‖ Or, sweet jewels.

27 And Gideon made an ephod thereof i, and put it in his city k, even in Ophrah: and all Israel went thither a whoring after it l; which thing became a snare m unto Gideon, and to his house.

i Not of all of it; for then it would have been too heavy for use; but of part of it, the rest being probably employed to other things agreeable and appertaining to it; which elsewhere are comprehended under the name of the Ephod, as Judg. 17. 5. and 18. 14, 17. Hos. 3. 4. k Not as a Monument of the Victory, for such Monuments were neither proper nor usual; but for Religious use, for which alone the Ephod was appointed. The case seems to be this, Gideon having by God's Command erected an Altar in his own City, Ophrah, Judg. 6. 25. for an extraordinary time and occasion, thought it might be continued for ordinary use; and therefore as he intended to procure Priests, to be designed to make Priestly Garments, and especially an Ephod, which was the chief and most costly; which besides its use in sacred ministrations, was also the instrument by which the Mind of God was required and discovered, 1 Sam. 23. 6, 9. and 30. 7. which might seem necessary for the Judge to have at hand, that he might consult with God upon all occasions. l Committing Superstition or Idolatry with it; or going thither to enquire the Will of God; whereby they were drawn from the true Ephod, instituted by God for this end, which was to be worn by the high-Priest only, to an occasion of Sin and Ruine to him and his, as the next Chapter sheweth. Though Gideon was a good man, and did this with an honest mind, and a desire to set up Religion in his own City and Family; yet here seems to be many Sins in it; 1 Superstition and Will-worship, Worshipping God by a device of his own, which was frequently and expressly forbidden. 2. Presumption, in wearing, or causing other Priests to wear this kind of Ephod, which was peculiar to the High-Priest. 3. Transgression of a plain Command, of Worshipping God ordinarily but at one place, and one Altar, Deut. 12. 5, 11, 13. and withdrawing people from that place, to his. 4. Making a fearful Schism or Division among the People. 5. Laying a Stumbling-Block, or an occasion of Superstition or Idolatry before that people, whom he knew to be too prone to it.

28 ¶ Thus was Midian subdued before the children of Israel, so that they lifted up their head no more n: and the country was in quietness forty years o in the days of Gideon p.

n i. e. Recovered not their former Strength or Courage, so as to Conquer or Oppress others, as they had done. o i. e. To the fortieth year, from the beginning of the Midianitish Oppression; see on Judg. 3. 11. p i. e. As long as Gideon lived.

29 ¶ And Jerubbaal the son of Joash went and dwelt in his own house q.

q Not in his Father's House, as he did before; nor yet in a Court like a King, as the People desired; but in a middle state, as a Judger for the preservation and maintenance of their Religion and Liberties.

30 And Gideon had threescore and ten sons † of his ‖ body begotten: for he had many wives. † Heb. go- ‖ out of his thigh.

31 And his Concubine that was in Shechem r, she also bare him a son, whose name he † called Abimelech s. † Heb. set.

r She dwelt there, and he oft came thither, either to execute Judgment, or upon other occasions. s i. e. My Father the King; so he called him, probably, to gratifie his Concubine, who desired it either out of Pride, or Design.

32 And Gideon the son of Joash died in a good old age t, and was buried in the sepulchre of Joash his father, in Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites.

t His long Life being Crowned with the continuance of his Honour, Tranquillity and Happiness.

33 And it came to pass, as soon as Gideon was dead, that the children of Israel turned again u, and went a whoring after Baalim x, and made Baal-berith y their god.

u Whereby we see the wicked Temper of this people, who did no longer cleave to God, than they were in a manner constrained to it, by the Presence and Authority of their Judges. x This was the general name incuding all their Idols, whereof one here follows. y i. e. The Lord of the Covenant, so called, either from the Covenant wherewith the Worshippers of this God bound themselves to maintain his Worship, or to defend one another therein; or rather, because he was reputed the God and Judge of all Covenants, and Promises, and Contracts, to whom it belonged to maintain them, and to punish the violaters of them; and such a God both the Grecians and the Romans had.

34 And the children of Israel remembred not the LORD their God, who had delivered them out of the hand of all their enemies on every side:

35 Neither shewed they kindness to the house of Jerubbaal, namely Gideon, according to all the goodness which he had shewed unto Israel.

CHAP. IX.

Abimelech Gideon's ſon by conſpiracy with the Shechemites; and the murther of his brethren, Jotamitis youngeſt eſcaping, is made king, 1.—6. Jotham by a parable rebuketh them and foretelleth their ruine: He flees and dwells at Beer, 7,—21. The Shechemites conſpire againſt Abimelech, 22. Gaal joyns himſelf to the Shechemites, 29. Zebul reveals it, 30—34. Beareth Gaal, 35,—38. Abimelech overcometh them: And ſmiteth the city with ſalt, 39,——45. Sets the tower on fire: Aſſaults hold of the God Berith, 46,——49. He ſlayeth Thebez: Giving near to the tower to burn it: A woman caſts down a piece of a milſtone on his head, breaks his ſkull, 50,—53. He commands his armour-bearer to thruſt him through, 54. Jotham's curſe is fulfilled, 56, 57.

AND Abimelech the ſon of Jerubbaal went to Shechem, unto his * mothers brethren, and communed with them, and with all the family of the houſe of his mothers father, ſaying,

* Chap. 8. 31.

2 Speak, I pray you, in the ears of all the men of Shechem, † Whether is better for you, either that all the ſons of Jerubbaal (which are threeſcore and ten perſons) reign over you a, or that one reign over you? Remember alſo, that I am your bone and your fleſh b?

† What is good? whether, &c.

a He ſuppoſeth that they would take that Government which their Father modeſtly refuſed; and that the multitude of his Sons would occaſion horrible Diviſions, and Conſultions, and Contests about the Soveraign Power; all which they might avoid, by chuſing him King: and ſo they might enjoy the Monarchy which they had long and oft deſired. b Your Kinſman, of the ſame Tribe and City with you; which will be no ſmall Honour and Advantage to you.

3 And his mothers brethren c ſpake of him in the ears of all the men of Shechem all theſe words, and their hearts inclined † to follow Abimelech: for they ſaid, He is our brother d.

c I.e. Kinſmen, as that word is oft uſed, as Gen. 14. 16. and 29. 12. d They were eaſily perſuaded to believe and follow what ſerved their own Intereſt.

4 And they gave him threeſcore and ten e pieces of ſilver f out of the houſe of Baal-berith g, wherewith Abimelech hired * vain and light perſons h which followed him.

* Chap. 11. 3.

e Agreeably to the number of his Enemies, Gideon's 70 Sons. f Not Shekels, as ſome fanſie, which were too ſmall a Summ for this purpoſe; but for larger Pieces, the exact worth whereof it is neither poſſible nor needful for us now to know. g Out of his ſacred Treaſury; for even they who were very parcimonious and baſe in their Expences about Gods Service, were liberal in their Contributions to Idols; having ſince Gideon's death, built this Temple (which he would never have ſuffered whilſt he lived) and endowed it with conſiderable Revenues. h Unſerried, idle and neceſſious Perſons, the moſt proper Inſtruments for Tyranny and Cruelty.

5 And he went unto his fathers houſe at Ophrah, and ſlew his brethren the ſons of Jerubbaal i, being threeſcore and ten perſons k, upon one ſtone l: notwithſtanding, yet Jotham the youngeſt ſon of Jerubbaal was left, for he hid himſelf.

i The only Perſons who were likely to hinder him in eſtabliſhing his Tyranny. k Wanting one, who is here expreſſed; and thefe Synecdochical Expreſſions are frequent in Scripture; ſee Gen. 35. 26. and 42. 13. Numb. 11. 32, 33. Joh. 20. 24. 1 Cor. 15. 5. l Whereby he would ſignifie, that this was either, 1. And act of Juſtice, in curing them all off in an orderly manner, for ſome ſuppoſed Crime, probably, as defigning Sedition and Rebellion: Or, 2. An act of Religion in avenging the Diſhonour and Injury done to Baal by Gideon, Judg. 6. 27, 28. upon his Children, whom he offered up as ſo many Sacrifices to Baal upon this Stone, which ſerved for an Altar; and for this reaſon it ſeems the Money was taken out of Baal's Houſe, becauſe it was to be laid out in his Service.

6 And all the men of Shechem gathered together, and all the houſe of Millo m, and went and made Abimelech king n, ‖ by the plain of the pillar o that was in Shechem.

‖ Or, by the oak of the pillar. See Joſh. 24. 26.

m Of a Place or Perſon ſo called; ſome eminent and potent Family living in Shechem, or near to it, either the Family of Abimelech's Mother, or ſome other; or, and all Beth-millo; ſo Beth is not an Houſe, but a part of the name of the place. n To wit, over all Iſrael, v. 22. which was a ſtrange Preſumption for the Inhabitants of one City to undertake; but they had many advantages and encouragements Iſraelites to Kingly Government; Abimelech's being the Son of Gideon, to whom, and to his Sons, they offered the Kingdom, Judg. 8. 22. And though the Father could, and did refuſe it for himſelf; yet they might imagine, that he could not give away his Son's right conveyed to them by the Iſraelites, in their offer; the univerſal deſection of the Iſraelites from God to Baal, whoſe great Patron and Champion Abimelech pretended to be; the power and prevalency of the Tribe of Ephraim, in which Shechem was, Joſ. 20. 7. whoſe proud and imperious Spirit, manifeſted Judg. 8. 1. and 12. 1. would make them readily cloſe with a King of their own Brethren; and Abimelech's getting the ſtart of all others, having the Crown actually put upon his Head, and an Army already raiſed to maintain his Tyranny. o Or, by the Oak of the Pillar, i. e. By the Oak, where Joſhua erected a Pillar as a Witneſs of the Covenant renewed between God and Iſrael, Joſ. 24. 26. This Place they choſe, to ſignifie that they ſtill owned God, and their Covenant with him; and did not worſhip Baal in oppoſition to God, but in conjunction with him, or in ſubordination to him.

7 ¶ And when they told it to Jotham, he went and ſtood in the top of mount Gerizim p, and lift up his voice, and cried q, and ſaid unto them, Hearken unto me, ye men of Shechem r, that God may hearken unto you ſ.

p Which lay near Shechem, and near Mount Ebal. The Valley between theſe two Mountains of Gerizim and Ebal, was a famous Place, employed for a religious Uſe, even for the ſolemn reading of the Law, and its Bleſſings and Curſes, Deut. 11. 29. and 27. 12. Joſ. 8. 33. and therefore it is probable it was ſtill uſed, even by the Superſtitious and Idolatrous Iſraelites for ſuch like occaſions, who delighted to uſe the ſame Places which their religious Anceſtors had conſecrated and uſed. q So as they that ſtood in the Valley might hear him, though not ſuddenly come at him to take him. r Who are here met together upon a ſolemn occaſion, as Joſephus notes, Abimelech being abſent. ſ When you cry unto him for Mercy; ſo he conjures and perſuades to give him patient Audience, as they did.

8 The trees went forth on a time t to anoint a king u over them, and they ſaid unto the olive-tree x, Reign thou over us.

t A Parabolical Diſcourſe, uſual among the Ancients, eſpecially in the Eaſtern parts; wherein, under the names of Trees, Men are repreſented. u I.e. To make a King, which was oft done among the Iſraelites, and ſome others, with the Ceremony of Anointing. x By which he underſtands Gideon.

9 But the olive-tree ſaid unto them, Should I leave my fatneſs * wherewith by me they honour God y and man z, and ‖ go to be promoted a over the trees?

* Heb. my fatneſs. ‖ Or, am y In whoſe Worſhip and Service Oil was uſed for divers things; as, about the Lamps, Exod. 25. 14. and Offerings, Levit. 2. 5, 7. and eſpecially for the anointing of Sacred Perſons and Things. z For Oil was uſed in the Conſtitution of Kings, and Priefts, and Prophets, and for a Preſent to great Perſons, and to anoint the Head and Face, &c. a Heb. to move hither and thither, to wander to and fro, to exchange my ſweet Tranquillity, for uncertain Cares and Travels for the good of others, as a King ought to do.

10 And the trees ſaid unto the fig-tree b, Come thou, and reign over us.

b This, as alſo the Vine, v. 12. ſignifies the ſame thing with the Olive-Tree, but here are various Expreſſions uſed, either for the decency of the Parable; or, becauſe Gideon refuſed this Honour, both for himſelf, and for his Sons; or, to ſignifie that the Sons of Gideon, whom Abimelech had ſo cruelly ſlain, upon pretence of their affecting the Kingdom, were as far from ſuch Thoughts as their Father; and therefore were unjuſtly and wickedly murdered.

11 But the fig-tree ſaid unto them, Should I forſake my ſweetneſs c, and my good fruit, and go to be promoted over the trees?

c For which that Fruit is particularly commended.

12 Then ſaid the trees unto the vine, Come thou, and reign over us.

13 And the vine ſaid unto them, Should I leave my wine, which cheereth God d and man e, and go to be promoted over the trees?

d Wherewith God is well pleaſed, becauſe it was offered to God, Numb 15. 5, 7, 10. e See Pſal. 104. 15. Prov. 31. 6.

14 Then ſaid all the trees unto the ‖ bramble f, Come thou, and reign over us.

‖ Or, Thorn

f Or, Thorn, a mean, and barren, and hurtful Tree, fitly reverſeting Abimelech, the Son of a Concubine, and a Perſon of ſmall Uſe, and great Cruelty.

15 And the bramble ſaid unto the trees, If in truth ye anoint me king over you g, then come, and put your truſt in my ſhadow h: and if not, † let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the cedars of Lebanon i.

† Exod. 22. 6.

g If you deal truly and juſtly in making me King. h Then you may expect Protection, you ſhall receive Deſtruction by me; eſpecially you Cedars, i. e. Nobles, ſuch as the Houſe of Millo, who have been moſt forward in this work.

16 Now therefore, if ye have done truly and ſincerely, in that ye have made Abimelech king, and if ye have dealt well with Jerubbaal and his houſe, and have done unto him according to the deſerving of his hands:

17 (For my father fought for you, and † adventured his life far k, and delivered you out of the hand of Midian:

† Heb. caſt away his Soul or Life far off

k Heb. caſt away his Soul or Life far off, out of his reach or power to recover it, i. e. Expoſed himſelf to utmoſt hazard for your ſakes.

18 And ye are riſen up againſt my fathers houſe this day, and have ſlain l his ſons, threeſcore and ten perſons, upon one ſtone, and have made Abimelech the ſon of his maid-ſervant m king over the men of Shechem n, becauſe he is your brother.)

l Abimelech's Fact is juſtly charged upon them, as done by their conſent, approbation and aſſiſtance. m His Concubine, whom he ſo calls by way of reproach, becauſe Maid-ſervants were oft made Concubines, Exod. 21. 7, 8, 9, 10. n By which limitation of their Power, and his Kingdom, he reflects Contempe upon him, and chargeth them them with Preſumption, That having only power over their own City, they durſt impoſe a King upon all Iſrael.

19 If ye then have dealt truly and ſincerely with Jerubbaal, and with his houſe this day, then rejoice ye in Abimelech, and let him alſo rejoice in you.

20 But if not, let fire come out from Abimelech, and devour the men of Shechem, and the houſe of Millo: and let fire come out from the men of Shechem, and from the houſe of Millo, and devour Abimelech o.

o This is not a Prediction, but an Imprecation or Curſe, as it is called, v. 57. which, being grounded upon juſt cauſe, and being the only way by which Jotham could perform the Duty of the avenger of his Brethren Blood, which was incumbent upon him; had its effect, as others in like caſe had, as Joſ. 6. 26. compared with 1 King. 16. 34. and 2 King. 2. 24.

21 And Jotham ran away, and fled p, and went to Beer q, and dwelt there, for fear of Abimelech his brother.

p Which he might eaſily do, having the advantage of the Hill, and other accommodations for flight, and becauſe the People were not forward to purſue a Man whom they knew to have ſuch juſt cauſe, and great Provocation to ſpeak, and ſo little Power to do them no hurt. q A Place remote from Shechem, and out of Abimelech's reach: There were divers Places of that name.

22 ¶ When Abimelech had reigned three years over Iſrael r, r For though the Men of Shechem were the firſt Authors of Abimelech's advancement, it's more than probable, that the reſt of the People eaſily conſented to that form of Government which they ſo much deſired; or, at leaſt, made no reſiſtance againſt it.

23 Then God ſent an evil ſpirit ſ between Abimelech, and the men of Shechem: and the men of Shechem dealt treacherouſly with Abimelech.

ſ God gave the Devil Commiſſion to enter into, or work upon their minds and hearts; knowing, that he of himſelf, and by his own inclination, would fill them with miſtakes, and jealouſies, and diſtentions, and heart-burnings, which would end in civil Wars, and mutual Ruine.

24 That the cruelty t done to the threeſcore and ten ſons of Jerubbaal might come, and their blood be laid upon Abimelech their brother, which ſlew them, and upon the men of Shechem, which † aided him in the killing of his brethren.

† Or, were

t I.e. The puniſhment of the Cruelty.

25 And the men of Shechem ſet liers in wait for him u in the tops of the mountains, and they robbed all that came along that way by them x: and it was told Abimelech y.

u To ſurprize his Perſon. x To wit, ſuch as favoured or ſerved Abimelech; for to ſuch only their Commiſſion reached, though it may be they went beyond their Bounds, and by Military Licence robbed all Paſſengers promiſcuouſly. y Who, as it is here implied, exerciſed Hoſtility towards the Men of Shechem.

26 And Gaal the ſon of Ebed z came with his brethren, and went over to Shechem a: and the men of Shechem put their confidence in him.

z It is not known who, or of what Tribe he was; but it is evident, that he was a Man very conſiderable for Wealth, and Strength, and Counſel, and Intereſt; and ill pleaſed with Abimelech's Power. a By his Preſence and Counſel to animate and aſſiſt them againſt Abimelech.

27 And they went out into the fields b, and gathered their vineyards, and trod the grapes, and made ‖ merry c, and went into the houſe of their gods d, and did eat and drink e, and curſed Abimelech f.

b Which, till his coming they durſt not do, for fear of Abimelech; but now took confidence to do ſo, in contempt of Him. c Partly, in the Cuſtom of rejoicing, and ſinging Songs in Vintage-times, Lam. 10. 14. Iſa. 16. 10. Jer. 25. 30. and partly, for the hopes of their Deliverance from Abimelech's Tyranny. d Baal berith, either to ſee his Help againſt Abimelech, or to give him thanks, either for the Fruits of the Earth now received, or for the Hopes of recovering their former, and full Liberty. e To the honour of their Idols, and out of the Oblations made to them, as they uſed to do to the honour of Jehovah, and out of his Sacrifices. f Heaping reaſtleſs and reproachful him after their manner; or, rather in a more ſolemn and religious manner, curſing him by their god, as Rab ſhakeh did Iſrael, 1 Sam. 17. 43. Or, calling upon their god to ratify their Curſes pronounced againſt him.

‖ Or, by the houſe

28 And Gaal the ſon of Ebed ſaid, Who is Abimelech g, and who is Shechem h that we ſhould ſerve him? is not he the ſon of Jerubbaal? and Zebul his officer i? ſerve the men of Hamor the father of Shechem: for why ſhould we ſerve him?

g What is he but a baſe-born Perſon, an ambitious, impudent, and cruel Tyrant, and one every way unfit and unworthy to rule over us? h Shechem is here the name, Gideon, 1. Of the City of Shechem; and ſo the Hebrew Particle ets, which is here uſed, often ſignifies, as it is Judg. 19. 17. and therefore here it is put for this Conſtitute how odious and unworthy a Perſon Abimelech was to be to that ſuch a City ſhould be ſubject to ſuch a Tyrant: Or, rather, 2. Of a Perſon, even of Shechem, of Fighting with him, and overthrowing him. y For in the Morning, as this was, and in the Evening, the shadows are longest; and move most quickly. He insinuates, that he was afraid of shadows.

37 And Gaal spake again, and said, See, there come people down by the † middle of the land z, and another company come along by the plain of ‖ Meonenim.

† Heb. navel. ‖ Or, the regarders of times.

z Heb by the navel of the Land. So he calls, either First, the middle of it, as the middle part of Greece and of Sicily are called the navel of them, by the Roman Writers, because the Navel is in the midst of Man's Body: Or, Secondly, The higher part of it, called the Mountains, v. 36. and here the navel, because it was raised above the other ground, as the Navel is above the reft of the Body.

38 Then said Zebul unto him, Where is now thy mouth a wherewith thou saidst, Who is Abimelech that we should serve him? is not this the people that thou hast despised? Go out, I pray now, and fight with them.

a i. e. Thy brags. Now thou betrayest thy fears, and therefore now shew thy self a man, and fight valiantly for thy self and people.

39 And Gaal went out before the men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech.

40 And Abimelech chased him, and he fled before him b, and many were overthrown and wounded c, even unto the entring of the gate.

b Being surprized by the unexpected coming of Abimelech, and possibly not fully prepared for the encounter. c Being pushed and overtaken by Abimelech.

41 And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah d; and Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren e, that they should not dwell in Shechem.

d He did not prosecute his Victory, but recreated to Arumah, partly to see the effect of this Fight, and whether the Shechemites would not of themselves return to his Government, being either perswaded by Zebul upon this occasion, or terrified by his strength and valour, or now by his clemency in proceeding no further against them: and partly, that being hereby grown more secure, he might have the greater advantage against them, which accordingly he here makes use of. e Which he was inabled to do, because the Multitude, which is generally light and unstable, and judgeth of all things by Events, were now enraged against Gaal, suspecting him guilty either of Treachery or Cowardize, or ill Conduct: and besides, they thought the expulsion of Gaal would sweeten and satisfie Abimelech, and make him give over the War against them. But though they were offended with Gaal, yet Zebul's interest was not so considerable with them, that he could prevail with them either to kill Gaal and his Brethren, or to yield themselves to Abimelech; and therefore he still complies with the People, and waits for a fairer opportunity, though in vain.

42 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people went out into the field f, and they told Abimelech.

f Either, First, to renew the Fight, and avenge themselves for their last loss, the great God hardening their hearts to their Destruction, and the accomplishment of his Word delivered to them by Jotham. But here is not one word about the People's Arming, or Refisting, or Fighting, as there was before, v. 39. but only of their Slaughter, v. 45, 44. Or, Secondly, to their usual, and then proper Imployments about their Lands: for though their Vintage was past, the Seed-time was now come, and other things were to be done in the Fields. Or, Thirdly, upon some solemn occasion, not here expressed; possibly to make a solemn Procession, or perform some other Rites in the Fields, to the honour of their god Baal-berith, as the manner of the Heathen was, to make supplication to him for his help, and for better success; or only to go for that end to the house of their god Baal-berith, which is thought to have been in the Fields; as may seem from v. 27, 46. on a Mountain upon the East side of the City.

43 And he took the people, and divided them into three companies g, and laid wait in the field, and looked, and behold, the people were come forth out of the city, and he rose up against them and smote them.

g Whereof he kept one with himself, v. 43. and put the reft under other Commanders.

44 And Abimelech, and the company that was with him, rushed forward, and stood in the entring of the gate of the city h, and the two other companies ran upon all the people that were in the fields, and slew them.

h To prevent their Retreat into the City, and give the other two Companies opportunity to cut them off.

45 And Abimelech fought against the city all that day, and he took the city, and slew the people that was therein, and beat down the city, and sowed it with salt i.

i Not to make the place barren, as salt will do, for then he would have sowed the Fields, not the City; but in token of his detestation and desire of their utter and irrecoverable Destruction: for Salt is the symbole or sign of Perpetuity; Compare Numb. 18. 19. Deut 29. 23. 2 Chron. 13. 5. Zeph. 2. 9.

46 ¶ And when all the men of the tower of Shechem k heard that, they entred into an hold of the house of the god of Berith l.

k A strong place belonging to the City of Shechem, and made for its defence or security, but without the City. It is thought, this was that Millo which was confederate with Shechem in their design against Abimelech, v. 6. which also Jotham Cursed with Shechem, v 20. and that Curse is noted to have its Effect, v. 57. And this place may be called the Tower of Shechem; either because those who possessed and defended it, were sent from Shechem: Or, because it was built and kept for the safe guard of Shechem. l Or, Baal-berith, v. 4. Hither they fled out of the Town belonging to it, fearing the same event with Shechem; and here they thought to be secure; partly by the strength of the place, as the Temples of Idols were oft-times built in the highest and strongest Places, as the Capitol at Rome, and the Temple at Jerusalem; and such this place seems to have been, because they laid their Treasure here, v. 4. Partly by the Religion of it, thinking that either their god would Protect them there, or that Abimelech would spare them there, if not out of piety to that god, yet out of thankfulness for the benefit which he received thence, v. 4.

47 And it was told Abimelech, that all the men of the tower of Shechem were gathered together, 48 And Abimelech gat him up to mount Zalmon m, he, and all the people that were with him, and Abimelech took an ax in his hand, and cut down a bough from the trees, and took it, and laid it on his shoulder, and said unto the people that were with him, What ye have seen † me do, make haste, and do as † Heb. I have done.

m A place so called from its shadiness, because there were many Trees there.

49 And all the people likewise cut down every man his bough, and followed Abimelech, and put them to the hold, and set the hold on fire upon them: so that all the men of the tower of Shechem died also, about a thousand men and women.

50 ¶ Then went Abimelech to Thebez n, and encamped against Thebez, and took it.

n Another Town near to Shechem; and, as it seems, within its Territory.

51 But there was a strong tower within the city, and thither fled all the men, and women o, and all they of the city, and shut it to them, and gat them up to the top of the tower p.

o All that were not slain in the taking of the Town: or they all forsook the Town, and retired to their strong hold. p Which was flat and plain, after their manner of Building.

52 And Abimelech came unto the tower, and fought against it, and went hard unto the door of the tower, to burn it with fire.

53 And a certain woman * cast a piece of a mill-stone q upon Abimelech's head, and all to brake his skull.

* 2 Sam. 11. 21.

q Such great stones no doubt they carried up with them, whereby they might defend themselves, or offend those who Assaulted them. Here the Justice of God is remarkable in suiting the Punishment to his Sin. He flew his Brethren upon a stone, v. 5. and he loseth his own life by a stone.

54 Then * he called hastily unto the young man his armour-bearer, and said unto him, Draw thy sword, and slay me, that men say not of me, A woman slew him r: and his young man thrust him through, and he died.

* So 1 Sam. 31. 4.

r Which was esteemed a matter of disgrace.

55 And when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every man unto his place.

56 ¶ Thus God rendred the wickedness of Abimelech which he did unto * his father s, in slaying his seventy brethren.

* Judg. 8. 35. Heb. his.

s In rooting out, as far as he could, the name, and memory, and remainders of his Father.

57 And all the evil of the men of Shechem did God render upon their heads: and upon them came the curse of Jotham, the son of Jerubbaal.

Tola judgeth Israel: and Jair: Whose 30 Sons had 30 Cities, v. 5. The Peoples Idolatry, 6. The Philistines and Ammonite. oppress them, 7—9 They cry to God who foreseth them to their false gods: But upon their Repentance pitieth them, 10—16. AND after Abimelech, there arose a to ‖ † defend Israel b, Tola the son of Puah, the son of Dodo, a man of Ifachar, and he dwelt in Shamir in mount Ephraim c.

‖ Or, to save. † Heb. to save.

a Not of himself, but either chosen by the People; or rather, raised by God, as the other Judges were. b Or, to save, which he did not by fighting against, and overthrowing their Enemies, but but by a prudent and pious Government of them, whereby he kept them from Sedition, and Oppression, and Tyranny, as also from Idolatry; as may be gathered from v. 6. which if not restrained and purged out, would have brought certain Ruine upon them. c Which was in the very heart and midst of the Land.

2 And he judged Israel twenty and three years, and dyed, and was buried in Shamir.

3 ¶ And after him arose Jair a Gileadite d, and judged Israel twenty and two years.

d Of Gilead beyond Jordan.

4 And he had thirty sons that rode on thirty asscolts e, and they had thirty cities, which are called ‖ Havoth-jair f, unto this day, which are in the land of Gilead.

Or, the dwellers of Gilead.

e Because Horses were scarce there, and were not to be multiplied by the King himself, Deut. 17. 16. Hence their Kings and Kings children used to ride upon Mules, 2 Sam. 13. 29. and 18. 9. 1 Kings 1, 33, 38, 44. Compare Judg. 5. 10. and 12. 14. f Obj. These Villages were called so before this time from another Jair: And Numb. 32. 41. Deut. 3. 14. Answ. They are not said to be now first called by that Name; but to be still so called, because the old name was revived and confirmed upon this occasion. As Sheba is said to be called Beersheba, upon an occasion mentioned Gen. 26. 33. though it was so called before upon a more ancient occasion, Gen. 21. 33. Possibly this Jair had enlarged or fortified these Towns, and so they were justly denominated from him, no less than from the former.

5 And Jair died, and was buried in Camon.

6 ¶ And * the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD, and served Baalim, and † Ashtaroth, and the gods of Syria, and the gods of Zidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the children of Ammon, and the gods of the Philistines, and forsook the LORD, and served not him g.

* Judg. 2. 11. & 3. 7. & 4. 1. & 6. 1. & 13. 1. † Heb. Ashtaroths.

g He shews how they grew worse and worse, and so ripened themselves for the Ruine which afterward came upon them. Before they Worshipped God and Idols together: now they utterly forsake God, and wholly cleave to Idols.

7 And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he * sold them into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hands of the children of Ammon h.

h The one on the West, the other on the East; so they were molested on both sides.

8 And that year they vexed and † oppressed the children of Israel eighteen years i, all the children of Israel that were on the other side Jordan, in the land of the Amorite which is in Gilead.

i Or, That year they had vexed and oppressed the children of Israel eighteen years. Or, They vexed them in that year, that was the eighteenth year; to wit, of that Vexation. This was the eighteenth year from the beginning of that Oppression. And these eighteen years are not to be reckoned from Jair's Death, because that would enlarge the time of the Judges beyond the just bounds; as may appear from 1 Kings 6. 1. Nor from Jephthah's beginning to Reign, because he Reigned but six years, and in the beginning thereof put an end to this Persecution, but from the fourth year of Jair's Reign: so that the greatest part of Jair's Reign was contemporary with this Affliction. And although this Oppression of the Ammonites and Philistines, and the cause of it, the Idolatry of the Israelites, be not mentioned till after Jair's death, because the Sacred Pen-man would deliver the whole history of this Calamity entirely and together; yet they both happened before it: and Jair's death is mentioned before that, only by a Prolepsis or Anticipation, than which, nothing is more frequent in Scripture. The case of Jair and Samson seem to be much alike. For as it is said of Samson, that he judged Israel in the days of the Tyranny of the Philistines, twenty years, Judg. 15. 20. by which it is evident, that his Judicature, and their Dominion, were Contemporary; the like is to be conceived of Jair, that he began to judge Israel, and endeavoured to reform Religion, and purge out all abuses; but being unable to effect this through the backwardness and baseness of the People, God would not inable him to deliver the People, but gave them up to this sad Oppression; so that Jair could only perform one half of his Office, which was to determine Differences amongst the Israelites, but could not deliver them from their Enemies.

9 Moreover, the children of Ammon passed over Jordan, to fight also against Judah, and against Benjamin, and against the house of Ephraim: so that Israel was sore distressed.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel cried unto the LORD, saying, We have sinned against thee, both because we have forsaken our God, and also served Baalim k.

k Because not contented to add Idols to thee, we have preferred them before thee, and rejected thee to receive and worship them.

11 And the LORD said l unto the children of Israel, Did not I deliver you from the Egyptians, and from the Amorites m, from the children of Ammon n, and from the Philistines o?

l Either by himself, the Son of God appearing in a visible shape, which then was usual: or by some Prophet whom he raised and sent to this purpose: or by the High Priest, who was consulted in the case. m Both Sihon and Og, and their People, Numb. 21. and other Kings of the Amorites within Jordan, Josh. 10. 5. n Who were confederate with the Moabites, Judg. 3. 13, 14. o See Judg. 3. 31.

12 The Zidonians p also, and the Amalekites q, and Maonites r did oppress you, and ye cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand.

p For though we do not read of any oppression of Israel, particularly, by the Sidonians; yet there might be such a thing: as many things were said and done, both in the Old and New Testament, which are not Recorded there: Or, they might have their Forces with the King of Mesopotamia, Judg. 3. 8. Or with some other of their Oppressors: for it is certain, there were left among others to prove Israel, Judg. 3. 1, 2, 3. q Of whom, see Judg. 3. 13. and 6. 3. r Either First, those who lived in, or near the Wilderness of Maon, in the South of Judah, 1 Sam. 23. 24. and 25. 2. whether Edomites or others. Or, Secondly, the Minæans, a People living near the Arabians, of whom, 2 Chron. 26. 7. For in the Hebrew, the Letters of both Names are the same, only the one is in the Singular, the other the Plural Number. Or, Thirdly, The Midianites, whose Oppression he would not omit: it being usual to one and the same Person or Person: to have two Names: although the Midianites may be comprehended under the Amalekites, with whom they were joyned, Judg. 6. 3. 33. Or Fourthly, Some other People now unknown, and not expressed elsewhere in Scripture.

13 † Yet ye have forsaken me, and served other † Deut 28. gods: wherefore I will deliver you no more s. 20.

s To wit, except you Repent in another manner than you yet Jer. 2. 13. have done; which when they performed, God suspended the execution of this Threatning. Compare Jon. 3. 5.

14 Go and † cry unto the gods which ye have † Deut. 32. chosen t, let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation. Jer. 2. 28.

t You have not been forced to worship these gods by your Oppressors and Tyrants; but you have freely chosen these gods before me.

15 ¶ And the children of Israel said unto the LORD, We have sinned, do thou unto us whatsoever † seemeth good unto thee u; deliver us only, we † Heb. pray thee, this day. it is good in thine eyes.

u Do not give us up into the hands of these cruel Ye, but do to us as thou thinkest is with thine own hand as much as those plagues to wit, if we be not more faithful and constant to thee, than we have hitherto been.

16 And they put away the † strange gods from among them, and served the LORD: and † his soul was grieved y for the misery of Israel. † Heb. the gods of the stranger.

x This was an evidence of the sincerity of their Sorrow, that they did not only confess and bewail their Sins, but also forsake them, and loath themselves for them. y Not properly, or as to inward affection, for God being infinitely happy, is not capable of grieving: but figuratively, and as to outward expression. He acted towards them, like one that felt their Sufferings; he had pity upon them, repented of his severe Proceedings against them, and quite changed his carriage towards them, and punished their Enemies as freely as if they had grieved and mourned his own person.

17 Then the children of Ammon were gathered together, and encamped in Gilead: and the children of Israel assembled themselves together, and encamped in Mizpeh z.

z That Mizpeh which was beyond Jordan in Gilead or Manasseh; of which see Gen. 31. 49. Jos. 13. 26. Judg. 11. 29. and 12. 7. and 1 Sam. 7. 5, 6. 34. There were other Cities of that name in Scripture.

18 And the people and princes of Gilead said one to another, What man is he that will begin to fight against the children of Ammon? he shall be head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

CHAP. XI.

Or, after the Iſraelites aſſembled together, as is ſaid, Judg. 10. 8.

5 And it was ſo, that when the children of Ammon made war againſt Iſrael, the elders of Gilead went to fetch Jephthah h out of the land of Tob.

h By direction or inſtinct from God, who both qualified him for, and called him to the office of a Judge. See Judg. 12. 7. Heb. 11. 32. Otherwiſe they might not have choſen a Baſtard, Deut. 32. 2. Unleſs we will ſay, that there being no other perſon among them fit for, and willing to this Work, neceſſity diſpenſed with this Law, as it did with other political Laws, as thoſe of the Sabbath and Sacrifices.

6 And they ſaid unto Jephthah, Come and be our Captain i, that we may fight with the children of Ammon.

i They ſay not, our King; for the experience of Abimelech's kingſhip had cooled their Appetite in that particular; but our Captain.

7 And Jephthah ſaid unto the elders of Gilead, Did not ye hate me, and expel me out of my father's houſe k? and why are ye come unto me now, when ye are in diſtreſs?

* Gen. 25. 5. 27.

k And deprive me of all ſhare in my Father's Goods, which, though a Baſtard, was due to me. This Expulſion of him was the act of his Brethren; but he here aſcribes it to the Elders of Gilead; either becauſe ſome of them were among theſe Elders, as is very probable from the dignity of this Family; or becauſe this act, though deſired and promoted by his Brethren, was executed by the decree of the Elders, to whom the determination of all Controverſies about Inheritances belonged; and therefore it was their fault that they did not protect him from the Injuries of his Brethren, as their duty was.

8 And the Elders of Gilead ſaid unto Jephthah, Therefore we turn again to thee now l, that thou mayeſt go with us, and fight againſt the children of Ammon, and be our head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

l Being ſenſible that we have done thee Injury, we come now to make thee full Reparations.

9 ¶ And Jephthah ſaid unto the elders of Gilead, If ye bring me home again m to fight againſt the children of Ammon, and the LORD deliver them before me, ſhall I be you head n?

m If you recall me from this place where I am now ſettled, to the place whence I was Expelled. n Will you really make good this Promiſe? Jephthah was ſo ſolicitous in this caſe, either from his Zeal for the publick Good, which required that he ſhould be ſo; or from the Law of Self-Preſervation, that he might ſecure himſelf from his Brethren; whoſe ill-will he had experienced, and whoſe injuries he could not prevent, if, after he had ſerved their ends, he had been reduced to his private capacity; or, there might be ſome Tincture of Ambition in him; for which God therefore ſeverely, though paternally, chaſtiſeth him, as we ſee afterwards.

10 ¶ And the elders of Gilead ſaid unto Jephthah, The LORD † be witneſs between us o, if we do not according to thy words.

† Heb. be the hearer between us.

o They confirm their Promiſe by a Solemn and Sacred Oath.

11 Then Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead, and the people made him head and captain over them: and Jephthah uttered all his words p before the LORD q in Mizpeh.

p Objectively ſo called, i.e. All that was ſpoken, not only by him, but alſo by the Elders of Gilead, concerning him, and concerning this whole Tranſaction, and the conditions of it; or, all his matters, the whole buſineſs. q i.e. Before the Publick Congregation, wherewith God was uſually, and then eſpecially preſent; ſee Exod. 20. 22. Deut. 6. 25. Mat. 18. 10. Or, before the Altar, which poſſibly they did erect upon this ſpecial occaſion, by God's permiſſion: Or, in God's Preſence, calling him to be preſent, as a Witneſs and Judge between them.

12 ¶ And Jephthah ſent meſſengers r unto the king of the children of Ammon, ſaying, What hath thou to do with me ſ, that thou art come againſt me, to fight in my land?

r i.e. Ambaſſadors, to prevent Blood-ſhed, and make Peace; as far as in him lay; that ſo the Iſraelites might be acquitted before God and men, from all the ſad conſequences of this War; Herein he ſhewed great Prudence, and no leſs Piety. ſ What pretence, or reaſonable cauſe hath thou for this Invaſion? t He ſpeaks this in the Name of all the People, whoſe the Land was.

13 And the king of the children of Ammon anſwered unto the meſſengers of Jephthah, * Becauſe Iſrael took away my land u, when they came up out of Egypt, from Arnon even unto Jabbok, and unto Jordan: now therefore reſtore thoſe lands again peaceably.

* Numb. 21. 13.

u i.e. This Land of Gilead, which was mine, but unjuſtly taken from me, by Sihon and Og, the Kings of the Ammorites; and the injury perpetuated by Iſrael's detaining it from me. This Land, before the Conqueſts of Sihon and Og, belonged partly to the Ammonites, as is affirmed, Joſ. 13. 25. and partly, and principally, to the Moabites, as appears from Numb. 21. 24, 26. Deut. 3. 11. And indeed, Moab and Ammon did for the moſt part join their Intereſts and their Forces, as appears from Scripture-Story; and as Balak, the King of the Moabites aſted for the Ammonites, ſo now the King of Ammon ſeems to act for the Moabites, either as being now his Subjects; or, as his Confederates; whence it comes to paſs that Moab and Ammon are here promiſcuouſly mentioned, as v. 15. 17, 18, 25. and Chemoſh the known god of the Moabites, Numb. 21. 29. 1 Kings 11. 33. 2 Kings 23. 13. Jer. 48. 13, 46. is here called the god of the Ammonites, v. 24. though to ſpeak ſtrictly, Molech or Milchom was their god, 1 Kings 11. 5, 7, 33. and 2 Kings 23. 13.

14 And Jephthah ſent meſſengers again unto the king of the children of Ammon.

15 And ſaid unto him, Thus ſaith Jephthah, * Iſrael took not away the land of Moab, nor the land of the children of Ammon.

* Deut. 2.

16 But when Iſrael came up from Egypt, and * walked through the wilderneſs unto the red-ſea x, and * came to Kadeſh:

* Numb. 20. 1.

x Unto which they came three times; once, Exod. 13. 18. again, a little after their paſſage over it, Exod. 15. 22. and a third time, long after, when they came to Ezion-Gaber. Numb. 33. 35. Deut. 2. 8. which was upon the Shoar of the Red-Sea, 1 Kings 9. 26. 2 Chron. 8. 17. from whence they went to Kadeſh, Numb. 20. of this time he ſpeaks here.

17 Then * Iſrael ſent meſſengers unto the king of Edom, ſaying, Let me, I pray thee, paſs through thy land: but the king of Edom would not hearken thereto: and in like manner they ſent unto the king of Moab: but he would not conſent: and Iſrael abode in Kadeſh y.

* Num. 20. 14.

y Peaceably, and did not revenge their unkindneſs and inhumanity, as they could have done.

18 Then they went along through the wilderneſs, and * compaſſed the land of Edom, and the land of Moab, and came by the eaſt-ſide of the land of Moab, and pitched on the other ſide of Arnon, * but came not within the border of Moab: for Arnon was the border of Moab.

* Num. 21. 4.
* Num. 21. 13. and 22. 36.

19 And * Iſrael ſent meſſengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, the king of Heſhbon, and Iſrael ſaid unto him, Let us paſs, we pray thee, through thy land unto my place z.

* Deut. 2. 26.

z i.e. Unto the Land of Canaan, which God hath given to me.

20 But Sihon truſted not Iſrael to paſs through his coaſt: but Sihon gathered all his people together, and pitched in Jahaz, and fought with Iſrael a.

a So Sihon was the aggreſſor or beginner of the War; and the Iſraelites were forced to it for their own Defence.

21 And the LORD God of Iſrael delivered Sihon, and all his people into the hand of Iſrael, and they ſmote them: ſo Iſrael poſſeſſed all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of that country.

22 And they poſſeſſed * all the coaſts b of the Amorites, from Arnon even unto Jabbok, and from the wilderneſs c even unto Jordan.

* Gen. 14. 7.

b Or Borders; together with all the Land included within theſe Borders; for ſo that word is oft uſed, as Exod. 8. 2. Pſal. 147. 14. Jer. 15. 13. and 17. 3. c To wit, the Deſart of Arabia.

23 So now the LORD God of Iſrael hath diſpoſſeſſed the Amorites d from before his people Iſrael, and ſhouldeſt thou poſſeſs it?

d God, the Sovereign Lord of all Lands, hath given us this Land; This he adds, as a further and a convincing reaſon; becauſe otherwiſe it might have been alledged againſt the former Argument, that they could gain no more Right to that Land from Sihon, than Sihon himſelf had; and he had but an unjuſt Claim to it.

24 Wilt not thou poſſeſs that which Chemoſh thy god giveth thee to poſſeſs e? ſo whomſoever the LORD our God ſhall drive out from before us, them will we poſſeſs.

e He ſpeaks according to their fond and abſurd Opinion: The Ammonites and Moabites got their Land by right of War, and Conqueſt of the old Inhabitants, whom they caſt out; and this Succeſs, though given them by the true God, for Lot's ſake, Deut. 2. 9, 19. they impiouſly and ridiculouſly aſcribe to their god Chemoſh, whoſe Gift they owned to be a firm and ſufficient Title.

* Numb. 22. 2. Josh. 24. 9.

25 * And now art thou any thing better than Balak f, the ſon of Zippor king of Moab? Did he ever ſtrive againſt Iſrael, or did he ever fight againſt them?

f Art thou wiſer than he? or haſt thou more right than he had? Balak, though he plotted againſt Iſrael, in defence of his own Land, which he feared they would Invade and Conquer, Numb. 22. 4. yet he never contended with them about the reſtitution of thoſe Lands which Sihon took from him or his Predeceſſors, after the Iſraelites had Conquered them.

† Heb. daughters. † Heb. daughters.

26 While Iſrael dwelt in Heſhbon, and her † towns, and in Aroer, and her † towns, and in all the cities that be along by the coaſts of Arnon, three hundred years g? why therefore did ye not recover them within that time?

g Not preciſely, but about that time, either from their coming out of Egypt; or, from their firſt Conqueſt of thoſe Lands; and thus numbers are oft expreſſed, ſee Numb. 1. 46. and 2. 32. and 11. 21. Judg. 20. 46. He urgeth Preſcripion, which is by all men reckoned a juſt Title, and it is fit it ſhould be ſo for the good of the World, becauſe otherwiſe the Door would be opened both to Kings, and to private Perſons, for infinite Contentions and Confuſions.

27 Wherefore I have not ſinned againſt thee h; but thou doeſt me wrong to war againſt me: the LORD the judge, be judge this day i between the children of Iſrael, and the children of Ammon.

h I have done thee no wrong. i Let him determine this Controverſie by the ſucceſs of this day and War.

28 Howbeit the king of the children of Ammon hearkened not unto the words of Jephthah which he ſent him.

29 ¶ Then the * Spirit of the LORD came upon Jephthah k, and he paſſed over Gilead and Manaſſeh l, and paſſed over Mizpeh of Gilead m, and from Mizpeh of Gilead he paſſed over unto the children of Ammon.

30 And Jephthah vowed a vow n unto the LORD, and ſaid, If thou ſhalt without fail deliver the children of Ammon into mine hand:

a Qu. What was it which Jephthah vowed and Performed concerning his Daughter? Anſ. Many, eſpecially of Modern Writers, conceive, that Jephthah's Daughter was not Sacrificed, but only devoted to perpetual Virginity, which then was eſteemed a great Curſe and Reproach: This they gather, 1. From v. 37, 38. where we read, that ſhe bewailed not her Death, which had been the chief Curſe of Lamentation, if that had been Vowed, but her Virginity: 2. From this, v. 39. where, after he had ſaid, that he did with her according to his Vow; he adds, by way of declaration of the matter of that Vow, and ſhe knew no Man. But for the firſt, there may be a fair reaſon given, That ſhe could not with Honour bewail her Death, which ſhe had ſo generouſly and chearfully accepted of; becauſe it was attended with, and occaſioned by the Publick Good, and her Father's Honour and Happineſs, v. 30. and was a kind of Martyrdom; and moreover, an act of Religion, the payment of a Vow, which ought to be done chearfully; but only bewailed the circumſtance of her Death, that it was in ſome ſort accuſed and opprobrious; ſhe having had no Husband to take away her reproach, as they ſpeak, Iſa. 4. 1. and leaving no Poſterity to her Father's Comfort, and the Increaſe of God's People: And for the ſecond, that Clauſe, and ſhe knew no man, is plainly diſtinguiſhed from the Execution of his Vow, which is here mentioned before; and this is added, not as an Explication of the Vow, but as an aggravating Circumſtance, that this was executed when ſhe had not yet known any man. Beſides, this Opinion ſeems liable to weighty Objections; 1. There is no Example in all the Scripture, of any Woman that was obliged to perpetual Virginity by any Vow of her own, much leſs by the Vow of her Parents; nor have Parents any ſuch Power over their Children, either by the Law of Nature, or by the Holy Scripture. 2. The expreſs words of the Vow, v. 31. mention nothing of her Virginity, but only, that ſhe ſhould ſurely be the Lords; i.e. Devoted to the Service of the Lord, which might be without any obligation to perpetual Virginity; for, even Samuel, who was as fully devoted to the Lord by his Parents, as the could be, 1 Sam. 1. 11. and Samſon, who was Devoted not only by his Parents, but by God himſelf, and that in the higheſt degree, even to be a perpetual Nazarite, Judg. 13. 5, 7. yet were not prohibited Marriage; nor were any of the moſt Sacred Perſons, Levites, or Prieſts, or High Prieſts, though they were the Lords in a ſingular manner, obliged to perpetual Virginity; and therefore if ſhe was not Offered up for a Burnt-Offering, as the Authors of this Opinion ſay, but only was Conſecrated to God, there was no occaſion to bewail her Virginity, which, for any thing that appears, ſhe was not tied to. 3. If this were all, here was no ſufficient cauſe, why ſo wiſe and valiant a man as Jephthah ſhould ſo bitterly and paſſionately lament over himſelf or his Daughter. And therefore it may ſeem moſt probable, that Jephthah did indeed Sacrifice his Daughter, as he had Vowed to do; which was the Opinion of Joſephus the Jew, and of the Chaldee Paraphraſt, and of divers of the Jewiſh Doctors, and almoſt all the Ancient Fathers, and many eminent Writers; and this beſt agrees with the words of the Vow, delivered v. 31. Whatſoever cometh forth of the doors of my houſe to meet me—— ſhall ſurely be the Lords, and I will offer it for a Burnt-Offering. Nor is there one word in all the following Verſes, which denies that ſhe was thus offered; only the execution of the Vow is delivered in more ambiguous and general terms, v. 39. which in all reaſon, and by the Laws of good Interpretation, ought to be limited and explained by the more plain and particular deſcription of it: It is true, thoſe words may ſeem capable of another Interpretation; the conjunctive Particle, and, may be here put for the diſjunctive, or, as it often is, as Pſa. 12. 5. 17. Levit. 6. 3, 5. 2 Sam. 2. 19, &c. and ſo the meaning is, that what I firſt meet ſhall ſurely be the Lords, or, I will offer it up for a Burnt-Offering; to wit, if it be a Creature fit to be offered; otherwiſe, ſay they, if a Dog or an Aſs ſhould have met him firſt, he ſhould have been obliged to offer them, which was againſt the Law: But it is ſufficiently evident, that he ſpeaks of an Humane Perſon, from the very Phraſe et coming forth to meet him at his return; which plainly argues a deſign to meet him, purpoſely to Congratulate his Return; this phraſe et going to meet a perſon coming, being very often uſed in Scripture, and conſtantly of one perſon meeting another, as Gen 14. 17. and 18. 2. and 24. 17, &c. and never of any brute Creature: And although and is ſometimes put for or, yet it is not to be ſo uſed without neceſſity, which ſeems not to be in this place; for it is very proper to diſtinguiſh two Sentences in this matter, where the one is more general, and the other being more ſpecial, is comprehended within it, which is the caſe here; for it ſhall ſurely be the Lords, is the general; and his being offered up for a burnt-offering, is the particular way or manner how it was to be the Lord's; as it were very improper to say, how it was to be the Lord's, as it were very improper to say, that he offered his son Isaac for a burnt-offering, because the latter branch is contained in the former: and therefore in all the allegued instances where and is put for or, they are two distinct persons or things, and not one comprehended within another, as Exod. 21. 17. Father or Mother, 2 Sam. 2. 19. right hand or left, 2 Kings 21. 17. Father or Mother, 2 Sam. 2. 19. right hand or left, 2 Kings 21. 17. But the great Objection against this Opinion is this, That it seems a most horrid Act, directly contrary to the Law of Nature, and to plain Scripture, thus to Sacrifice his own Daughter; and that it seems altogether incredible, either that such a man as Jephthah, so much famed for Piety, and Wisdom, and Zeal, and Faith, should either be ignorant of, or dare to violate so plain a Law, or pursue it for above two Months space; or that none of the Priests of that time should inform him of the unlawfulness of executing so wicked a Vow, and of the liberty he had to redeem such a Vow, by virtue of Levit. 27. 2, 3, &c. or that Jephthah would not willingly receive information, especially where it was so agreeable to his own inclination and natural affection; or, that the Priests and People themselves had not taken care to prevent his own Daughter, and not rather himself for many years, as they afterwards did Saul, when he had sworn rashly to the Death of Jonathan. These and other such difficulties I confess there are in the case; but something may be truly and fairly said to allay the seeming Monstrousness of this fact. 1. These were times of great and general ignorance and corruption of Religion, wherein the Israelites had Apostatized from God, and learnt and followed the practices and worships of the Heathen Nations, Judg. 10. 6. whereof this was one, to offer up Humane Sacrifices to Moloch; and although they seem now to have repented and forsaken their Idols, Judg. 10. 16. yet they seem still to have retained part of the old Leaven, and this among the rest, That they might offer humane Sacrifices, not to Moloch, as they had done, but unto the true God: And whereas some of the Jewish Writers pretend that Phinehas was alive at this time; and tell a fine Story concerning him and Jephthah, That both stood upon their Terms, and neither would go to the other to advise about the matter; yet it is more than probable that Phinehas was dead long before this time; and whosoever was the High-Priest then, he seems to be guilty either of gross ignorance or negligence; so that a late Learned Writer conceives, that this was the reason why the Priesthood was taken from him, and from that line, and translated to the line of Ithamar, which was done in the time of the Judges, as may be gathered from 1 Sam. 2. 35, 36. Moreover Jephthah, though now a good Man, may seem to have had but a rude and barbarous Education, having been banished from his Father's House, and forced to wander and dispose himself in the utmost Borders of the Land of Gilead, beyond Jordan, at a great distance from the place of Worship and Instruction; Nor is it strange, That the Priests and People did not resist Jephthah in this Enterprise; partly, because many of them might lie under the same ignorance and mistake that Jephthah did; and partly because they knew Jephthah to be a stout, and resolute, and boisterous Man, and were afraid to oppose him in a matter wherein he he seemed to be so peremptory, and their Persons and Families were not much concerned. 2. This mistake of Jephthah's, and of the rest of that Age, was not without some plausible appearance of Warrant from the Holy Text, even from Levit. 27. 28, 29. wherein it is expressly provided, That no Devoted thing, whether Man or Beast, should be redeemed, but should surely be put to Death; a place, which it is not strange that a Soldier in so ignorant an Age should mistake, seeing even some Learned Divines, in this knowing Age, and Cajetan, amongst the rest, have fallen into the same error, and justified Jephthah's action from that place; and though I doubt not they run into the other extream, as Men commonly do, those words being to be otherwise understood than they take them (of which fee my Notes on that place) yet it must be granted that place gave Jephthah a very colourable pretext for the Action; and being pushed on by Zeal for God, and the Conscience of his Vow, he might easily be induced to it; and though this was a Sin in him, yet it was but a Sin of Ignorance; which therefore was overlooked by a gracious God, and not reproved by any Holy men of God. It is probably conceived, that the Greeks, who used to steal sacred Histories, and turn them into Fables, had from this History their relation of Iphigenia (which may be put for Jephtigenia) Sacrificed by her Father Agamemnon, which is described by many of the same circumstances wherewith this is accompanied. b To wit, carnally; She died a Virgin.

21 (But the angel of the LORD did no more appear to Manoah and to his wife): then Manoah knew that he was an angel of the LORD.

22 And Manoah said unto his wife, [a] We shall surely die, because we have seen God.

[a] Exod. 33. 20. Deut. 5. 26, 26. Chap. 6. 22.

23 But his wife said unto him, If the LORD were pleased to kill us, he would not have received a burnt-offering, and a meat-offering at our hands, neither would he have shewed us all these things, nor would as at this time e have told us such things as these.

e Or, at this time: The Particle, at, noting here, not likeness, but the truth and reality of the thing, as it doth Numb. 11. 1. Deut. 9. 10. and elsewhere. This Expression seems to have some Emphasis in it, to enhance God's Mercy to them, as being afforded them in a time of such publick and grievous Calamity; and in a time when the Word of the Lord was precious; and there was no open Vision, as it was afterwards, 1 Sam. 3. 1.

24 ¶ And the woman bare a son, and called his name [a] Samson: and the child grew, and the LORD blessed him f.

[a] Heb. 11. 32.

f i.e. Endowed him with all those Graces and Gifts of Mind and Body which were necessary for the Work he was designed for.

25 And the Spirit of the LORD began to move him at times g, in the camp of Dan h, between Zorah and Eshtaol.

g i.e. To stir him up to Heroical Designs; to shew forth its Power in him in the frame of his Mind, and in the strength of his Body, discovered to his Neighbours in extraordinary Actions; to encline his Heart to great Attempts to the help and deliverance of God's People, and to give some Essays of it to his Brethren, and to seek all Opportunities for it, as he did in the next Chapter. h A Place so called, either from the Expedition of the Danites, Judg. 18. 11, 12. which though placed after this History, was done before it: or from some other Camp which the Danites had formed there at this time, to give some check to the Incursions of the Philistines.

CHAP. XIV.

Samson desires to wife a daughter of the Philistines of Timnath: and this of the Lord for an occasion against them, 1,—4. His parents go down with him to Timnath: a young lion meets him: he kills it, 5,—7. In his return he findeth honey in the carcase, 8, 9. Keepeth a marriage feast: hath thirty companions assigned to him: to whom he propoundeth a riddle: with promise of a present, 10, 11. His wife extorts from him the explication: and discovereth it, 16,——18. He slayeth thirty Philistines of Ashelon: and therewith payeth his present, 19. His wife is given to another, 20.

AND Samson went down a to Timnath b, and saw a woman in Timnath, of the daughters of the Philistines.

a After he was come to mature Age. b A Place not far from the Sea; of which see Gen. 38. 12. Josh. 15. 57. and 19. 43.

2 And he came up, and told his father and his mother, and said, I have seen a woman in Timnath, of the daughters of the Philistines: now therefore get her for me to wife.

3 Then his father and his mother said unto him, Is there never a woman among the daughters of thy brethren, or among all my people, that thou goest to take a wife of the uncircumcised Philistines c? and Samson said unto his Father, Get her for me d; for † she pleaseth me well e.

† Heb. she is right in mine eyes.

c With whom the Israelites were forbidden to Marry, Exod. 34. 12, &c. And although the Philistines were not Canaanites in their Original, Gen. 10. 14. Deut. 2. 23. yet they were so in their habitation, and concurrence with them in Wickedness, and therefore were liable to the same Censures and Judgments with them. d This action of Samson's, though against common Rules, seems to be warranted, partly by the greatness and goodness of his Design in it; and principally by the instinct and direction of God, which is mentioned in the following words, which was known to Samson, but not to his Parents. e Not so much for her Beauty, as for the Design mentioned in the next Verse.

[a] 1 King. 12. 15. 2 Chron. 10. 15. and 22. 7. and 25. 20.

4 But his father and his mother [a] knew not that it was of the LORD, that he sought an occasion against the Philistines f: for at that time the Philistines had dominion over Israel.

f Which he knew by very probable Conjecture, if not by particular Inspiration, that Marriage would give him many ways.

5 Then went Samson down, and his father and his mother g to Timnath, and came to the vineyards of Timnath h: and behold, a young lion roared † against him.

† Heb. to meet him.

g Who accompanied him, either because they were now acquainted with his Design; or, to order the Circumstances of that Action which they saw he was set upon: or, to watch if they could find any occasion to take him off from his Intention. h Whither he had turned aside either by a Divine Impulse, or upon some real or pretended Occasion.

6 And the spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him i, and he rent him as he would have rent a kid k, and he had nothing in his hand: but he told not his father or his mother what he had done l.

i Stirred up and increased his Courage and bodily Strength. k As soon and as safely. l Left by their means it should be publickly known; for he wisely considered, that it was not yet a fit time to awaken the Jealousies and Fears of the Philistines concerning him, as this would have done.

7 And he went down, and talked with the woman, and she pleased Samson well.

8 ¶ And after a time m he returned to take her: and he turned aside to see the carcase of the lion, and behold, there was a swarm of bees n, and honey in the carcase of the lion.

m Heb. after days; i.e. Either after some days: or, rather, after a year, as that word oft signifies; as Exod. 13. 10. Levit. 25. 29. Numb. 9. 22. Judg. 17. 10. 1 Sam. 1. 3. and 27. 7. when the Flesh of the Lion, which by its strong smell is offensive to, and avoided by Bees, was wholly consumed, and nothing was left but the Bones. n Not generated of the dead Lion's Body, but elsewhere, and settling themselves there, as they have sometimes done in a Man's Skull, and in a Sepulchre, and such like Places.

9 And he took thereof in his hands o, and went on eating, and came to his father and mother p, and he gave them, and they did eat: but he told not them that he had taken the honey out of the carcase of the lion.

o Out of the Lion's Carcase. Quest. Did not Samson transgress in touching a Carcase? Answ. It was in it self a legal Pollution: but some such Pollutions were involuntary and unavoidable, as in one that hath an Issue running in his sleep; and some were necessary Duties, as in those who were to attend upon a Woman in her Month, or upon the burial of a dead Body. And such was this Pollution, being contracted by Divine Instinct and Direction, and in order to God's Honour, and therefore dispensed with by the Author of that Law, and required by him for his Service. p From whom he had turned aside for a season, v. 8. upon some pretence or other.

10 ¶ So his father went down unto the woman, and Samson made there a feast: for so used the young men to do.

11 And it came to pass when they saw him q, that they brought thirty companions to be with him r.

q Or, observed or considered him, his Stature, and Strength, and Countenance, and Carriage, which were extraordinary. r Partly in compliance with the Custom of having Bride-men; of which see Matth. 9. 15. Mark 2. 19. Joh. 3. 29. though they were not so numerous; and principally by way of Caution, and as a Guard put upon him under a pretence of Respect and Affection.

12 ¶ And Samson said unto them, I will now put forth a riddle s unto you: if ye can certainly declare it me within the seven days of the feast t, and find it out, then I will give you thirty ‖ sheets u, and thirty ‖ Or, linen change of garments x.

s i.e. An obscure Sentence for you to resolve and explain. t For so long Marriage-Feasts lasted. See Gen. 29. 27. u Fine Linen-Cloathes, which were used for many purposes in those Parts. See Matth. 27. 59. Mark 14. 51. x i.e. Changeable Suits of Apparel, as below, v. 19. and Gen. 45. 22.

13 But if ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye give me thirty sheets, and thirty change of garments. And they said unto him, Put forth thy riddle that we may hear it.

14 And he said unto them, Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness y. And they could not in three days expound the riddle.

y i.e. Out of that strong and devouring Creature, the Lion, came forth sweet Meat; to wit, Honey: withal it is covertly implied, that the Philistines, though now they had Strength on their side, and Dominion over Israel, whom they did devour upon all occasions, yet at last they should become Meat to the Israelites.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day z, that they said unto Samsons wife, Entice thy husband, that he may declare unto us the riddle, lest we burn thee and thy fathers house with fire: Have ye called us † to take that we have a? is it not so?

† Heb. to impoverish us, or, to dispossess us.

z They had doubtless spoken to her before this time, but with some remissness, supposing that they should find it out; but now their their time being nigh slipped, they press her with more vehemency, and put her under a necessity of searching it out. a i.e. To strip us of our Garments: and so your Civility will end in gross Unkindness and Injustice.

16 And Samsons wife wept before him, and said Thou doest but hate me, and loves me not: thou hast put forth a riddle unto the children of my people, and hast not told it me. And he said unto her, Behold, I have not told it my father, nor my mother b, and shall I tell it thee?

b Though I have had much more Experience of their Fidelity and Taciturnity, than of thine.

17 And she wept before him ‖ the seven days, while the feast lasted c: and it came to pass on the seventh day, that he told her, because she lay sore upon him: and she told the riddle to the children of her people.

‖ Or, the residue of the seven days, &c.

c i.e. On the residue of the seven days; to wit, after the third day. It is a familiar Synecdoche. Or, on the seventh of the days, on which the Feast was: And then the following Clause, on the seventh day, is only the Noun repeated for the Pronoun, on that day: as is most frequent, as 1 King. 8. 1. Solomon assembled——unto Solomon, i.e. unto himself.

18 And the men of the city said unto him on the seventh day before the sun went down, What is sweeter than honey, and what is stronger than a lion? And he said unto them, If ye had not plowed with my heifer d, ye had not found out my riddle.

d If you had not employed my Wife to find it out, as Men Plough up the Ground with an Heifer, thereby discovering its hidden parts; he calls her Heifer, either, because he now suspected her wantonness and too much familiarity with that Friend which she afterwards married; or, because she was joined with him in the same Yoak; or, rather, because they used such in Ploughing.

19 ¶ And the spirit of the LORD came upon him e, and he went down to Ashkelon f, and slew thirty men of them, and took their ‖ spoil, and gave change of garments g unto them which expounded the riddle, and his anger was kindled h, and he went up i to his fathers house.

‖ Or, prey, spoil.

e Though he had a constant habit of eminent Strength and Courage; yet that was exceedingly increased upon special occasions, by the extraordinary influences of God's Spirit. f Either to the Territory, which oft comes under the name of the City; or to the City it self, where he had both Strength and Courage enough to attempt what here follows; and upon the doing hereof they were doubtless struck with such a Terrour, that every one sought only to preserve himself, and none durst oppose or pursue him. g Together with their Sheets or Shirts, which is sufficed to imply here, being expressed above, v. 13. h For the Treachery of his Wife and Companions. i To wit, alone, or without his Wife.

20 But Samsons wife was given k to his companion, whom he had used as his friend l.

k By her Father. l i.e. To the chief of the Bride-men, to whom he had shewed most Respect and Kindness.

CHAP. XV.

Samson displeased to visit his wife: is denied her: wherefore he tieth firebrands to three hundred foxes tails, and setteth the corn on fire, 1, —— 5. For which they burn his wife and her father, 6. Samson's revenge, 7, 8. The Philistines pitch in Judah and demand Samson: the men of Judah bind and deliver him, 9, ——13. He breaketh his bonds and slayeth one thousand Philistines with the jaw bone of an ass, 14, ——17. He is athirst: prays: obtains water out of it, 18, ——20.

BUT it came to pass within a while after, in the time of wheat harvest a, that Samson visited his wife with a kid: and he said, I will go in to my wife into the chamber b. But her father would not suffer him to go in.

a Which Circumstance is noted as the proper season for the following Exploit. b Into her proper Chamber, which Women had distinct and separate from the Mens.

2 And her father said, I verily thought that thou hadst utterly hated her c, therefore I gave her to thy companion: is not her younger sister fairer than she? † take her, I pray thee, instead of her.

† Heb. Is not her younger sister fairer than she? take her, I pray thee, instead of her.

c Because thou didst defer her in great Wrath: But this was not sufficient cause; for he should have endeavoured a reconciliation, or waited for it; and not have disposed of another Man's Wife without his consent; which is not only against the Law of God, but of Nature also.

3 ¶ And Samson said concerning them, ‖ Now shall I be more blameless that the Philistines, though I do them a displeasure d.

‖ Or, Now shall I be free from blame, though I do them a displeasure, &c.

d Because they have first provoked me by an irreparable Injury: But although this may look like an act of private Revenge; yet it is plain enough, that Samson acted as a Judge (for to he was) and as an Avenger of the Publick Injuries and Oppressions of his People; as plainly appears from hence, that Samson designed this very thing before he had received any personal Injury, Judg. 14. 4.

4 And Samson went and caught three hundred foxes e, and took ‖ fire-brands f, and turned tail to tail, and put a fire-brand in the midst between two tails g.

e Of which there were great numbers in Canaan, as appears from Neh. 4. 3. Psal. 63. 11. Cant. 2. 15. Lam. 5. 18. Ezek. 13. 4. So that divers Places there have their Names from the Foxes which abounded there: as, Jos. 15. 28. and 19. 42. 1 Sam 13. 17. And Schual is more general, and contains not only the Foxes, but another sort of Creature very like to them, called Tzeer, whereof there were so many there, that sometimes [illegible] of them have been met together in one Company; as some who have lived in those Parts have left upon Record: But Infidels are much scandalized at this History, and pretend it incredible that Samson should catch so many Foxes together; so nice and delicate is the Faith of these Men in things concerning God and Scripture, that can devour things ten times more difficult and absurd, concerning the production of the World, and of Men, &c. But there is no cause of wonder here, for any Man that is tollerably wise; for it is not like that Samson caught them all, either at one time, or by his own hands; for being so eminent a Person, and the Judge of Israel, he might require assistance of as many Persons as he pleased, and all his People would readily assist him; nor can it at all perplex any Man's Reason or Faith, if it be allowed, that the God who made the World, and by his singular Providence watched over Israel, and intended them deliverance at this time, could easily dispose things so that they might be taken. He chose to do this Exploit, not by his Brethren, whom he would preserve from the Envy, and Hatred, and Mischief which that might have occasioned to them, but by brute Creatures, thereby to add Scorn and contempt to their Calamity, and particularly by Foxes; partly, because they were fittest for the purpose, being Creatures very fearful of Fire; and having such Tails as the Firebrands might most conveniently be tied to; and the nature of directly forward, but crookedly and involvedly, whereby the fire was likely to be dispersed in more places. f Made of such matter as would quickly take Fire, and keep it for a long time; which was easie to procure. g That the Foxes might not make too much haste, nor run into their holes, but one of them might delay and stop another in his course, and so continue longer in the places where they were to do Execution.

5 And when he had set the brands on fire, he let them go h into the standing corn of the Philistines, and burnt up both the shocks, and also the standing corn, with the vineyards and olives.

h To wit, successively at several times; and in divers places, with great care and discretion, so as they might not hinder one another, nor all run into the same Field; but being dispersed in all parts, might spread the Plague farthest; and withal might be kept at a distance from the Fields and Vineyards of the Israelites. It is not worthy of our enquiry what became of these Foxes afterward, whether they were burnt by the Fire-brands, or run into Holes, or were taken and killed by the Philistines. The truth of this History is notably attested by a Custom of the Romans, which it is very probable they had from the Phenicians, upon this occasion; for every year they had a Solemnity in April, the very time of Samson's Wheat-Harvest, wherein Foxes were let loose with burning Torches fastned to their Back-sides, &c.

6 ¶ Then the Philistines said, Who hath done this? and they answered, Samson the son in law of the Timnite, because he had taken his wife, and given her to his companion. And the Philistines came up and burnt her i and her father with fire.

i Partly, for her Adultery, which divers Heathens punished with Death; and partly, for that mischief which she had occasioned to them; thus She brought upon her self that mischief which she studied to avoid, Judg. 14. 15. as wicked Persons oft do, Prov. 10. 24.

7 ¶ And Samson said unto them, Though ye have done this, yet will I be avenged of you k, and after that I will cease.

k Whereby it appears, that it was not his private Injuries, but the Publick, which he did revenge.

8 And he smote them hip and thigh l with a great slaughter m; and he went down and dwelt in the top of the rock Etam n.

l Upon their Hips and Thighs, peradventure not designing to kill them, but to make them uncapable of Military employments, or of doing hurt to the Israelites. Or, He smote them with his Leg upon their Thigh; i.e. without any other Weapon but his Leg and Foot he kicked them, and made them lame and useless for War. which with a great stroke; for to it was, even to them it did not kill. m Partly, because there he could better defend himself from his Enemies; and partly, because he would not involve his Brethren in the same danger with himself, but like a worthy Magistrate would secure them even with his own greater hazard.

9 ¶ Then the Philistines went up, and pitched in Judah o, and spread themselves † in Lehi p.

† Heb. went down.

o Where the Rock Etam was, see 1 Chron. 4. 32. 2 Chron. 11. 5, 6. p As coming in great Numbers with a powerful Host. q A Place so called by anticipation, v. 17.

10 And the men of Judah said, Why are ye come up against us? And they answered, To bind Samson are we come up, to do to him as he hath done to us.

11 Then three thousand men of Judah † went to the top of the rock Etam, and said to Samson, [illegible] left thou not that the Philistines are rulers over us?

† Heb. went down.

what is this that thou haſt done unto us? And he ſaid unto them, As they did unto me, ſo have I done unto them.

r Thou haſt by theſe Actions puniſhed not them, as thou intendeſt; but us, who being under their Dominion, are ſure to ſmart for it.

12 And they ſaid unto him, We are come down to bind thee, that we may deliver thee into the hand of the Philiſtines. And Samſon ſaid unto them, Swear unto me, that ye will not fall upon me your ſelves ſ.

ſ Not that he feared them, or could not as eaſily have conquered them, as he did the whole Hoſt of the Philiſtines; but, becauſe he would be free from all Obligation or Temptation of doing them any harm, though it were in his own juſt and neceſſary defence.

13 And they ſpake unto him, ſaying, No, but we will bind thee faſt, and deliver thee into their hand: but ſurely we will not kill thee. And they bound him with two new cords, and brought him up from the rock t.

t i.e. From the Cave or Hole in the Rock, in which he had ſecured himſelf, out of which he was firſt brought up, and then carried down from the Rock to the Plain.

14 ¶ And when he came unto Lehi, the Philiſtines ſhouted againſt him u, and the ſpirit of the LORD came mightily upon him, and the cords that were upon his arms became as flax that was burnt with fire, and his bands † looſed x from off his hands.

† Heb. were melted.

u For Joy and Triumph, becauſe they had now their great Enemy, as they ſuppoſed, in their hands. x Heb. were melted; i.e. were diſſolved, as things are which are melted in the Fire.

15 And he found a † new y jaw-bone of an aſs, and put forth his hand, and took it, and ſlew a thouſand men therewith.

y And therefore more rough and ſtrong.

16 And Samſon ſaid, With the jaw-bone of an aſs, † heaps upon heaps, with the jaw-bone of an aſs have I ſlain a thouſand men z.

† Heb. an heap two heaps.

z This, though it might ſeem difficult, yet is not at all impoſſible or incredible; eſpecially, ſeeing the Learned affirm of the Aſſes of Syria, that they were larger and ſtronger than ours, and ſo conſequently were their Bones. And withal, it muſt be acknowledged, that there was ſomething extraordinary and miraculous in this, as there was unqueſtionably in Samſon's Strength, and ſo all the difficulty vaniſheth.

17 And it came to paſs, when he had made an end of ſpeaking, that he caſt away the jaw-bone out of his hand, and called that place ‖ Ramath-Lehi a.

‖ That is, the iſſuing up of the jaw-bone, or, caſting away of the jaw-bone.

a And by contraction, Lehi v. 14. it being uſual ſo to contract Proper Names; as Salem is put for Jeruſalem, Pſal. 76. 3. Sheba for Beer-ſheba, Jer. 19. 2. and many other.

18 ¶ And he was ſore athirſt b, and called on the LORD, and ſaid, Thou haſt given this great deliverance into the hand of thy ſervant: and now ſhall I die for thirſt, and fall into the hand of the uncircumciſed c?

b So as he was ready to faint and die with Thirſt; which was partly natural, from his exceſſive toil and heat; partly, ſent by God, that by the experience of his own Impotency, he might be forced to aſcribe the Victory to God only, and not to himſelf. c Will not thou put finiſh what thou haſt begun? Will thou undo what thou haſt done.

19 But God clave an hollow place d that was in ‖ the Jaw e, and there came water thereout, and when he had drunk, his ſpirit came again, and he revived: wherefore he called the name thereof † En-hakkore f, which is in Lehi unto this day g.

‖ Or, Lehi.

† That is, the well of him that called, or, cried.

d i.e. By cleaving a place, made it hollow; an expreſſion like that Iſa. 47. 2. grind Meal, i.e. Grind Corn into Meal; and that, Pſal. 74. 15 thou didſt cleave the fountain; i.e. cleave the Rock ſo as to make a Fountain in it. e In the Jaw-bone which he had uſed, which God could eaſily effect, either by cauſing the Jaw-bone to ſend forth Water, as the Rock formerly did, the Miracle being in effect the ſame, though in a differing ſubject, cauſing a Spring to break forth in Lehi; or, in that Lehi mentioned before, v. 14. for Lehi is both the name of a Place, and ſignifies a Jaw-bone. f i.e. The Fountain of him that cried for Thirſt; or, that called upon God for Deliverance; i.e. the Fountain or Well which was given in anſwer to my Prayer. g According to this Tranſlation, Lehi is the name of a Place, and not a Jaw-bone, becauſe it ſeems improbable that a Jaw-bone ſhould continue there ſo long, which every Traveller might take away, and would be forward enough to carry a Fountain with them in thoſe hot Countries; although it is not incredible that Paſſengers would generally forbear to meddle with, or remove ſo great a Monument of God's Power and Goodneſs; or, that the ſame God who made it inſtrumental to ſo great a wonder, ſhould add one Circumſtance more; to wit, fix it in the Earth, as a Teſtimony to poſterity of the Truth of this glorious work: But theſe words may be otherwiſe rendred thus, which Fountain was in that Jaw-bone; and for the following words, unto this day, they may not be joined with the words next and immediately foregoing, as if the Fountain was there to this day; but with the former words, he called, &c. and ſo the Senſe may be this, That it was ſo called unto this day; and the Place may be thus read, he called the name thereof; or, the name thereof was called (ſuch active Verbs being frequently put paſſively and imperſonally,) The Well or Fountain of him that called or cried (which was in Lehi) unto this day.

20 And he judged Iſrael h in the days of the Philiſtines i twenty years.

h i.e. He pleaded their Cauſe, and avenged them againſt the Philiſtines. i i.e. Whilſt the Philiſtines had the Power and Dominion, from which he was not fully to deliver, but only to begin to deliver them, as it was foretold, Judg. 13. 5. From this place it is manifeſt, that in the computation of the times of the Judges, the years of Servitude or Oppreſſion are not to be ſeparated from the years of the Judges, and added to them, but are comprehended within them; which Propoſition is of great importance for clearing this difficult part of Scripture Chronology, and for juſtifying that account of times given 1 King. 6. 1.

CHAP. XVI.

Samſon goeth in to an harlot: is hem'd in: riſeth at midnight: taketh the city-gates, poſts and barrs on his ſhoulders: and carrieth them up into a mountain, 1—3. Is in love with Delilah: ſhe enticeth him to diſcover wherein his ſtrength lay: is thrice deceived: at laſt ſhe overcomes him, 4,—20. They put out his eyes and caſt him into priſon, 21. His hair grows again, 22. The lords of the Philiſtines and the people gather together to make ſport with him to the honour of their idols: and ſacrifice, 23,—25. Samſon getteth them to place his hands on the two pillars of the houſe: he prays to God: pulls down the houſe: and dieth: but more ſlain at his death than in his life, 26,—30. He is buried, 31.

† Heb. a woman an harlot.

a A chief City, to make ſome new attempt upon the Philiſtines, on whom he feared not either in his ſtrength or in their Camps, having had ſuch large experience of his own Strength, and of God's aſſiſtance; peſſibly he came in thither by Night, unknown and unobſerved till afterwards. b Going into an Houſe of Publick Entertainment to refreſh himſelf, as the manner was, Jer. 20. 1. He there ſaw this Harlot; which implies, that he did not go thither upon ſo evil a Deſign, but accidentally ſaw her there, and by giving way to luſtful Looks upon her, was enſnared by her.

2 And it was told the Gazites, ſaying, Samſon is come hither. And they compaſſed him in, and laid wait for him all night in the gate of the city, and were † quiet all night, ſaying, In the morning, when it is day, we ſhall kill him c.

3 And Samſon lay till midnight, and aroſe at midnight d, and took the doors of the gate of the city e, and the two poſts, and went away with them f, † bar and all, and put them upon his ſhoulders, and carried them up to the top of an hill that is before Hebron g.

† Heb. with the bar.

d Being either ſmitten in Conſcience for his Sin, when he firſt awaked, and thence fearing Danger, as he had juſt cauſe to do; or, being ſecretly warned by God in a Dream; or, by an inward impulſe, for the prevention of his deſigned Deſtruction. e Not the great Gates, but leſſer Doors made in them, and ſtrengthned with diſtinct Poſts and Bars. f The Watch-men not expecting him till morning, and therefore being now retired into the ſides, or upper part of the Gate-Houſe, as they were wont to do, to get ſome reſt, whereby to fit themſelves for their hard Service, travelled in the morning; or, if ſome of them were in his way, he could eaſily and ſpeedily ſtrike them dead, and break the Door, whilſt the reſt were partly aſtoniſhed with the ſurpriſe; and partly, preparing themſelves for reſiſtance: Nor durſt they purſue him, whom they now again perceived to have ſuch prodigious Strength and Courage; and to be ſo much above the fear of them, that he did not run away with all ſpeed, but went leiſurely, having ſo great a weight on his Shoulders, wherewith they knew he could both defend himſelf and offend them. g Either, 1. To an Hill near Hebron, which was above twenty miles from Gaza; or, 2. To the top of an high hill not far from Gaza, which looked towards Hebron, which alſo ſtood upon another high Hill, and might be ſeen from this Place, though it was at a great diſtance from it. And Samſon did this not out of vain Oſtentation, but as an Evidence of his great Strength, for the Encouragement of his People to join with him more vigorouſly for their own Deliverance, than yet they had done, or durſt do; and for the greater terror and contempt of the Philiſtines. It may ſeem ſtrange that Samſon immediately after ſo foul a Sin ſhould have the courage in himſelf, and the Strength from God, for ſo great a work. But firſt, it is probable, that Samſon had in ſome meaſure repented of his Sin, and begged of God Pardon and Aſſiſtance, which alſo he perceived by Inſtinct, that God would aſſiſt him. 2. This ſingular Strength and Courage was not in it ſelf a Grace, but a Gift, which might have been in a graceleſs Perſon, and therefore might continue in a good Man, notwithſtanding an heinous act of Sin; and it was ſuch a Gift as did not depend upon the diſpoſition of his Mind, but upon the right ordering of his Body, by the Rule given to him, and others of that Order.

4 ¶ And it came to paſs afterward, that he loved a woman h ‖ in the valley of Sorek, whoſe name was Delilah.

‖ Or, the brook.

h Either, Firſt, with Conjugal Love, ſo as to Marry her, as divers both Jews and Chriſtians have thought. Or, Secondly, with Luſtful Love, as an Harlot: which, though not certain, becauſe the Phraſe is here ambiguous, the being neither called an Harlot, as the of Gaza was, v. 1. nor yet his Wife, as the of Timnath was, Judg. 14. 2, 3, 20. yet it may ſeem more probable; partly, becauſe the dreadful puniſhment now inflicted upon Samſon for this Sin, whom God ſpared for the firſt Offence, is an intimation, that this Sin was not inferior to the former; partly, becauſe the Confidence which the Philiſtine Lords had in her, and their bold and frequent Treating with her, and the whole courſe of her Carriage towards Samſon, ſhew her to be a mercenary and perfidious Harlot, and not a Wife; whoſe Affection and Intereſt would have obliged her to better things; and partly, becauſe Samſon did not carry her home to his Houſe, as Husbands uſe to do their Wives; but lodged in her Houſe: as appears from the whole Story.

5 And the Lords of the Philiſtines i came up unto her, and ſaid unto her, Entice him, and ſee wherein his great ſtrength lieth, and by what means we may prevail againſt him, that we may bind him to ‖ afflict him k: and we will give thee every one of us eleven hundred pieces of ſilver l.

i The Lords of their five Principal Cities, who ſeem to have been united together at this time in one Ariſtocratical Government; or at leaſt were leagued together againſt him as their common Enemy. k To chaſtiſe him for his injuries done to us. They mean to puniſh him ſeverely, as they did; but they expreſs it in mild words, leſt the horror of it might move her to pity him. l i.e. Shekels, as that Phraſe is commonly uſed, as Numb. 7. 13, 85. 2 Sam. 18. 12. 2 King. 6. 25.

6 ¶ And Delilah ſaid to Samſon, Tell me, I pray thee, wherein thy great ſtrength lieth m, and wherewith thou mighteſt be bound, to afflict thee?

m What is the cauſe of this prodigious Strength, or wherein doth it conſiſt? She ſeems to aſk merely out of curioſity, to underſtand the ſtate of a Perſon whom ſhe ſo highly values.

7 And Samſon ſaid unto her, If they bind me with ‖ † green withs, that were never dried n, then ſhall I be weak, and be as † another man.

n Samſon is guilty both of the Sin of Lying, though he dreſs up the Lye in ſuch Circumſtances as might make it moſt probable; and of great Folly in encouraging her Enquiries, which he ſhould at firſt have check'd: But as he had forſaken God, ſo God had now forſaken him, and deprived him of common Prudence; otherwiſe the frequent repetition and vehement urging of this Queſtion might eaſily have raiſed Suſpicion in him.

8 Then the lords of the Philiſtines brought up to her ſeven green withs, which had not been dried, and ſhe bound him with them.

9 (Now there were men lying in wait, abiding with her in the chamber o) and ſhe ſaid unto him, The Philiſtines be upon thee, Samſon. And he brake the withs as a thread of tow is broken, when it † toucheth the fire: ſo his ſtrength was not known.

o With her; i.e. in the ſame Houſe, in a Chamber; i.e. in a ſecret Chamber within her call. Nor is it ſtrange that they did not fall upon him in his ſleep; partly, becauſe they feared to awake a ſleeping Lion; and partly, becauſe they expected an opportunity for doing their work more certainly, and with leſs danger.

10 And Delilah ſaid unto Samſon, Behold, thou haſt mocked me, and told me lyes: now tell me, I pray thee, wherewith thou mighteſt be bound?

11 And he ſaid unto her, If they bind me faſt with new ropes † that never were occupied, then ſhall I be weak, and be as † another man.

12 Delilah therefore took new ropes, and bound him therewith, and ſaid unto him, The Philiſtines be upon thee, Samſon. (And there were liers in wait abiding in the chamber.) And he brake them from off his arms like a thread.

13 And Delilah ſaid unto Samſon, Hitherto thou haſt mocked me, and told me lyes: tell me wherewith thou mighteſt be bound. And he ſaid unto her, If thou weaveſt the ſeven locks of my head with the web p.

p Or, thread which is woven about a Weavers Loom: or, with a Weavers beam. If my Hair, which is all divided into ſeven Locks, be faſtned about a Weavers Beam; or interwoven with Weavers Threads: Underſtand out of the foregoing Verſes; then I ſhall be weak as another Man.

14 And ſhe faſtened it with the pin q, and ſaid unto him, The Philiſtines be upon thee, Samſon. And he awaked out of his ſleep, and went away with the pin of the beam, and with the web.

q Having done what Samſon directed, ſhe adds this for ſureneſs ſake, ſhe faſtned the Hair thus woven with a Pin.

15 ¶ And ſhe ſaid unto him, How canſt thou ſay, I love thee, when thine heart is not with me? thou haſt mocked me theſe three times, and haſt not told me wherein thy great ſtrength lieth?

r When thy Love conſiſts only in outward Expreſſion, not in Affection, and thou wilt not open thy Heart to me, as one true Friend doth to another.

16 And it came paſs, when ſhe preſſed him daily with her words, and urged him, ſo that his ſoul was † vexed unto death s, s Being tormented by two contrary and violent Paſſions, deſire to gratifie her whom he ſo much doted upon, and fear of betraying himſelf to utmoſt hazard. But being deſerted by God, it is no wonder that he choſein the worſe part.

17 That he told her all his heart, and ſaid unto her, † There hath not come a razor upon mine head: for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb: If I be ſhaven, then my ſtrength will go from me t, and I ſhall become weak, and be like any other man.

† Numb. 6. 5.

t Not that his Hair was in it ſelf the Seat or Cauſe of his Strength, but becauſe it was the chief Condition of that Vow or Covenant, whereby as he ſtood obliged to him, ſo God was pleaſed graciouſly to engage himſelf to ſtrengthen him, and aſſiſt him in that great work to which he called him: but upon his violation of his Condition, God juſtly withdraws his help, and leaves him to himſelf.

18 And when Delilah ſaw that he had told her all his heart u, ſhe ſent and called for the lords of the Philiſtines, ſaying, Come up this once, for he hath ſhewed me all his heart. Then the lords of the Philiſtines came up to her, and brought money in their hand.

u Which it was not hard for her to diſcover, by the change of his Countenance, and the matter of his Diſcourſe, and the whole carriage of the buſineſs.

19 And ſhe made him ſleep x upon her knees y, and ſhe called for a man, and ſhe cauſed him to ſhave off the ſeven locks of his head, and ſhe began to afflict him z, and his ſtrength went from him a.

x By ſome ſleepy Potion, which it is like ſhe gave him upon other Pretences, agreeable enough to his preſent and violated Inclination. y Reſting his Head upon her Knees. z With a gentle Hand, as if ſhe her ſelf had but been ſparing with him. She did this more ſeldom partly, becauſe ſhe had caſt him into a deep ſleep; and partly, becauſe if he had diſcovered it before it was finiſhed, he would have fled. it was only an innocent Intention to try the ſincerity of his Affection to her, and the truth of this laſt relation, which ſhe had ſo juſt reaſon to doubt of, from his frequent diſſimulation and lyes. a i.e. To diſturb, and awaken, and affright him, as by other ways, ſo particularly by crying out in a terrible manner, The Philiſtines are upon thee, as ſhe had done before, and as it follows v. 20. b Which, as it is here implied, ſhe perceived, becauſe he could not now ſhake himſelf as he did before; i.e. with equal vigour and might, as is intimated in the next Verſe: or, becauſe ſhe had bound him, though it be not here expreſſed, and found him unable to break his Bonds.

20 And ſhe ſaid, The Philiſtines be upon thee, Samſon. And he awoke out of his ſleep, and ſaid, I will go out as at other times before, and ſhake my ſelf b. And he wiſt not c that the LORD was departed from him f.

c Within himſelf; i.e. he purpoſed and attempted it. d i.e. put forth my Strength to cruſh them, and to deliver my ſelf. e Being not yet well awake, and not diſtinctly feeling the loſs of his Hair, or not duly conſidering what would follow upon it. f In reſpect of the ſtrength and help he had formerly given him.

21 ¶ But the Philiſtines took him g, and † put out his eyes h, and brought him down to Gaza i, and bound him with fetters of braſs, and he did grind in the Priſon-houſe k.

† Heb. bored out.

g Who now durſt apprehend him, becauſe they reſted in the aſſurance which Delilah had given them, that now all was diſcovered and done. h Which was done by them out of Revenge and Policy, to diſenable him from doing them much harm, in caſe he ſhould recover his Strength; but not without God's Providence, puniſhing him in that part which had been greatly inſtrumental to his ſinful Luſts. i Becauſe this was a great and ſtrong City, where he would be kept ſafely; and upon the Sea-coaſt, at ſufficient diſtance from Samſon's People; and to repair the Honour of that Place, upon which he had faſtned ſo great a ſcorn, Judg. 16. 3. God alſo ordering things thus, that where he firſt ſinned, Judg. 16. 1. there he ſhould receive his Puniſhment. k As Captives and Slaves uſe to do: See Exod. 11. 5. Iſa. 47. 2. Matth. 24. 41. He made himſelf a Slave to vile Luſts and Harlots, and now God ſuffers Men to uſe him like a Slave.

22 Howbeit, the hair of his head began to grow again ‖ † after he was ſhaven.

‖ Or, as when he was ſhaven.

l This Circumſtance, though in it ſelf inconſiderable, is noted as a ſign of the recovery of God's Favour, and his former Strength, in ſome good degree, upon his bitter Repentance, and his renewing of his Vow with God, which was allowed for Nazarites to do, Numb. 6. 9, &c. and which it is here ſuppoſed he did, and by the Effects proved.

23 Then the lords of the Philiſtines gathered them together m, for to offer a great ſacrifice unto Dagon n their god, and to rejoyce: for they ſaid, Our God hath delivered Samſon our enemy into our hand.

m Either upon ſome annual or cuſtomary Solemnity: or, rather, upon this ſpecial occaſion, to praiſe Dagon for this ſingular Favour.

And they did not appoint this solemn Service as soon as Samson was taken, but some considerable time after, as appears by the growth of Samson's Hair in the mean time, because they would give sufficient time and warning for all their Friends and Allies to come thither, and for the making of all necessary Preparations for so great an Occasion. n Which is by most supposed to be an Idol, whole upper part was like a Man, and whole lower part was like a Fish; whence there is mention of Dagon's hands, but not of his Feet, in 1 Sam. 5. 4. And this Place being near Ægypt, where some of their gods were worshipped in the form of Fishes; and being near the Sea, it seems most probable, that it was one of the Sea-gods of the Heathens; and that it had in some part the resemblance of a Fish.

24 And when the people saw him, they praised their god: for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy, and the destroyer of our country, † which slew many of us.

† Heb. and who multiplied our slain.

25 And it came to pass when their hearts were merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison-house, and he made † them sport n, and they set him between the pillars.

† Heb. before them.

n Either, First, Passively, being made by them the matter of their Sport and Derision, and of many bitter Scoffs, and other Indignities or Injuries: Or, Secondly, Actively, by some ridiculous Actions, or some Proofs of more than ordinary Strength yet remaining in him, like the ruines of a great and goodly Building: whereby he lull'd them asleep in security, until by this seeming Complaisance he prepared the way for that which he design'd; otherwise his generous Soul would never have been forced to make them Sport, save in order to their Destruction.

26 And Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me, that I may feel the pillars whereupon the house standeth, that I may lean upon them.

27 Now the house was full of men and women, and all the lords of the Philistines were there: and there were upon the roof o about three thousand men and women, that beheld while Samson made sport.

o Which after the manner was flat, and had Windows through which they might see what was done in the lower parts of the House.

28 And Samson called unto the LORD, and said, O LORD God, remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I may be at once avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes p.

p This Prayer was not an act of Malice and Revenge, but of Faith and Zeal for God, who was there publickly dishonoured; and Justice, in punishing their Insolences, and vindicating the whole Common-wealth of Israel, which was his Duty, as he was Judge, to do. And this is manifest from hence, because God, who heareth not Sinners, and would never use his Omnipotence to gratifie any Mans imporent Malice, did manifeft by the Effect, that he accepted and owned his Prayer as the dictate of his own Spirit. And that in this Prayer he mentions only his Personal Injury, the loss of his Eyes, and not their Indignities to God and his People, must be ascribed to that prudent Care which he had, and declared upon former occasions, of deriving the Rage and Hatred of the Philistines upon himself alone, and diverting it from the People. For which end I conceive this Prayer was made with an audible Voice, though he knew they would entertain it only with Scorn and Laughter, which also he knew would quickly be turned into Mourning.

29 And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars, upon which the house stood, and ‖ on which it was born up, of the one with his right hand, and of the other with his left q.

‖ Or, he leaned on them.

30 And Samson said, Let † me die with the Philistines r: and he bowed himself with all his might: and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were therein: so the dead which he slew at his death, were more than they which he slew in his life.

† Heb. my soul.

q Qu. How could so great a Building, containing so many thousands of People, rest upon two Pillars so near placed together? Here Infidels triumph, as if they had got an unanswerable Argument against the truth of the Scriptures. But it is a far more incredible and ridiculous thing to imagine, that the Pen-man of this Book should feign such a Circumstance as this is, if it had been false, whereby he would have utterly overthrown the Credit of the whole Book; and that he should do this before a People that could eafily have confuted him; and that People should have so high a Veneration for that Book in which they knew so notorious a falshood to be: these things, I say, are far more absurd to believe, than the truth of this Relation. But to this I shall add two Answers. First, It is no sufficient Argument to prove, that this was not true, because we do not at this day understand how it was done. There were many great Works, and excellent pieces of Art, some footsteps whereof are left in ancient Writers; but the exact way and particular manner of them, is wholly, or in a great measure unknown and lost: so that Pancirollus hath written a whole Book of such things. Particularly, the old way of Architecture is much in the dark, as is confessed by the Learned. It may be pretended, That though there might be curious Arts of Building in the Learned and Ingenious part of the World, it is not probable they were among such a rude and barbarous People as the Philistines. But this is certainly a very great mistake; for these People were either a part of, or very near Neighbours to the Phœnicians, from whom it is confessed the Arts came to the Grecians. And forasmuch as many things which were concluded by the Ancients to be impossible, are by the wit and industry of later Ages found to be possible, and certainly true; it cannot be strange if some things now seem impossible to some Men, which were then known to be practicable. And he that will venture his Faith and Salvation upon this Proposition, That such a Building as this was simply impossible, because he doth not see the possibility of it; or, which is all one, That no Man understands more than he doth; will find few admirers of his Wisdom. And to question the Truth and Divinity of the Holy Scriptures, which is so fully and clearly proved by sundry Arguments, upon such a nicety as this, is but a more learned kind of Doting. Answ. 2. Instances are not wanting of far more large and capacious Buildings than this, that have been supported only by one Pillar. Particularly, Pliny in the 15th. Chapter of the 36th. Book of his Natural History, mentions two Theaters built by one C. Curio, who lived in Julius Cæsar's time; each of which was supported only by one Pillar, or Pin, or Hinge, though very many thousands of People did sit in it together. And much more might two Pillars suffice to uphold a Building large enough to contain Three thousand Persons, which is the number mentioned, v. 27. Or, the Pillars might be made Two in the lower part meerly for Ornament-sake, which might eafily be ordered as to support a Third and Main Pillar in the Middle, which upheld the whole Fabrick. r i.e. I am contented to die, so I can but therewith contribute any thing to the Vindication of God's Glory, here trampled upon, and to the Deliverance of God's People. This is no Example nor Encouragement to those that wickedly Murder themselves: for Samson did not desire, nor procure his own death voluntarily, but only by meer force and necessity; because he did desire, and by his Office was obliged to seek the destruction of these Enemies and Blasphemers of God, and Oppressors of his People: which in these Circumstances he could not effect without his own death: and his Case was not much unlike theirs, that in the heat of Battel run upon the very mouth of the Cannon, or other evident and certain danger of Death, to execute a Design upon the Enemy; or theirs, who go in a Fire-ship to destroy the Enemies best Ships, though they are sure to perish in the Enterprize. Moreover, Samson did this by Divine Inspiration and Approbation, as God's Answer to his Prayer manifests, and that he might be a Type of Christ, who by voluntarily undergoing death, destroyed the Enemies of God, and of his People.

31 Then his brethren s, and all the house of his father came down, and took him, and brought him up, and buried him t between Zorah and Eshtaol, in the burying-place of Manoah his father: and he judged Israel twenty years u.

s Either, First, Largely so called, his Kinsmen. Or, Secondly, strictly so called; Samson's Parents having had other Children after him; as it was usual with God when he gave an extraordinary and unexpected Power of procreating a Child, to continue that strength for the Generation or Conception of more Children, as in the case of Abraham, Gen. 25. 1, 2. and Anna, 1 Sam. 2. 21. t Which they advanced to do; partly, because the most barbarous Nations allowed Burial even to their Enemies, and would permit this ofe-times to be done by their Friends: partly, because Samson had taken the blame of this Action wholly to himself, for which his innocent Relations could not upon any pretence be punished: and principally, because they were under such grief, and perplexity, and consternation for the common Calamity, that they had neither heart, nor leisure to revenge themselves of the Israelites, but for their own sakes were willing not to disquiet or offend them; at least, till they were in a better posture to resist them. u This was faid before, Judg. 15. 20. and is here repeated, partly to confirm the Relation of it, and partly to explain it; and to shew when these Twenty Years ended, even at his death, as is here noted.

CHAP. XVII.

Micah stealeth money of his mother: then confesseth and restoreth it. She dedicates it to the Lord: maketh images: he sets them up in the house of his gods: and consecrates one of his sons for his priest: there being then no magistrates in Israel, 1,—6. a Levite traveling that way he hireth and consecrateth him to be his priest, 7,—12. Is confident that God would therefore favour and bless him, 13.

AND there was a man a of mount Ephraim, whose name was † Micah.

a The things mentioned here, and in the following Chapters, did not happen in the order in which they are put; but much sooner, even presently after the death of the Elders that over-lived Joshua, Judg. 2. 7. as appears by divers Passages; as first, because the Place called Mahaneh-Dan, or the camp of Dan, Judg. 18. 12. was so called from that which was done, Judg. 18. 12. Secondly, Because the Danites had not yet got all their Inheritance, Judg. 18. 1. which is not credible of them, above 300 Years after Joshua's death. Thirdly, because Phinehas the Son of Eleazar was Priest at this time, Judg. 20. 28. who must have been about 350 years old, if this had been done after Samson's death, which is more than improbable.

2 And he said unto his mother, The eleven hundred shekels of silver that were taken from thee, about which thou curseds't b, and spakest of also in mine ears, behold, the silver is with me, I took it c. And his mother said, Blessed be thou of the LORD d, my son.

b i.e. Didst Curse the Person who had taken them away, and that in my hearing, as it follows. c The fear of thy Curse makes me acknowledge mine Offence, and beg thy Pardon. d I willingly consent to, and beg from God the removal of the Curse, and a Blessing instead of it. Be thou free from my Curse, because thou hast so honestly restored it.

3 And when he had restored the eleven hundred shekels

shekels of silver to his mother, his mother said, I had wholly † dedicated the silver unto the LORD e, from my hand, for my son f to make a graven image, and a molten image g: now therefore I will restore it unto thee h.

e In the Hebrew it is, Jehovah, the incommunicable Name of God. whereby it is apparent, that neither the, nor her Son, intended to forsake the True God or his Worship; as appears from his rejoycing when he had got a Priest of the Lord's appointment, of the Tribe of Levi, Judg. 17. 13. but only to worship God by an Image; which also it is apparent, that both the Israelites, Exod. 32. 5, &c. and Jeroboam afterwards, designed to do. f Either, First, for the honour and benefit of thy self, and Family; that you need not be continually going to Shiloh to Worship, but may do it as well at home by these Images. Or, Secondly, that thou maist cause these things to be made; to which end, the restored all the Money to him, as it here follows. g Many think this was but one Image, partly Graven, and partly Molten. But it seems more probable, that they were two distinct Images, because they are so plainly distinguished, Judg. 18. 17, 18. where also some other words come between them. It is true, the graven image alone is mentioned, Judg. 18. 20, 30, 31. not exclusively to the other, as appears from what is faid just before; but by a common Synecdoche, whereby one is put for all; especially, where that one is chiefest the chief. h To dispose of, as I say.

4 Yet he restored the money unto his mother i, and his mother took two hundred shekels of silver k, and gave them to the founder, who made thereof l a graven image, and a molten image, and they were in the house of Micah.

i Though his Mother allowed him to keep it, yet he perfisted in his resolution to restore it, that she might dispose of it as she pleased; and did actually restore it, as was faid before; and now confirms the former Restitution, and therefore is twice faid to restore it. k Referring 900 Shekels, either for the Ephod and Teraphim, or for other things relating to this Worship: or for her own private use; being, it seems, cooled in her first Zeal, and willing to have as cheap a Religion as she could, as also her Son Micah was, Judg. 17. 10. l Made them, either, First, of that Matter: Or, Secondly, for that money.

5 And the man Micah had an house of gods m, and made an † ephod n and * teraphim o, and † consecrated one of his sons, who became his priest p.

* Gen. 31. 19. 34. 2. 35. 2. Michaiah his God.

m i.e. An House or Place consecrated for the Service of God in this manner. n An eminent part of the Priestly Garments, Exod. 28. 4. which, some think, is here put for all of them. o Some sort of Images so called, of which see Gen. 31. 19. Hos. 3. 4. p Because the Levites in that corrupt Estate of the Church, neglected the Exercise of their Office, and therefore were neglected by the People, and others put into their Employment. But this kind of Priesthood was condemned, Numb. 16. 40. and 18. 2, 7.

6 ¶ In those days there was no King q in Israel, but every man did that which was right in his own eyes r.

* Chap. 18. 1. & 21. 25.

q i.e. No Judge to Govern and Controul them. The word King being here used largely for a Supreme Magistrate; as Gen. 36. 31. Deut. 33. 5. God raised up Judges to Rule and Deliver the People, when he saw fit; and at other times for their Sins he suffered them to be without them, and such a time this was; and therefore they ran into that Idolatry, from which the Judges usually kept them; as appears by that solemn and oft-repeated passage in this Book, that after the death of each or such a Judge, the People forsook the Lord, and turned to Idols. r i.e. Not what pleased God, but what best suited his own Fancy or Lusts.

7 ¶ And there was a young man out of Bethlehem-Judah s, of the family of Judah t, who was a Levite, and he sojourned there u.

s Or, of Bethlehem-Judah; so called here, as Matth. 2. 1, 5. to difference it from Bethlehem in Zebulun, Josh. 19. 15. There he was born and bred. t i.e. Of, or belonging to the Tribe of Judah; not by Birth, for he was a Levite; nor by his Mother, for though that might be true, the Mothers-side is not regarded in Genealogies; but by his Habitation and Miniftration. For the Levites, especially in times of Confusion and Irreligion, were disperfed among all the Tribes; and this Man's Lot fell into the Tribe of Judah: which seems to be here noted by way of reflection upon that Tribe, and as an evidence of the general Defection, that a Levite could not find entertainment in that great and famous Tribe, which God had put so much Honour upon, Gen. 49. 8, 9, 10, 11. and therefore was forced to wander and seek for subsistence elsewhere. u So he expresseth it, because this was not the proper, nor usual Place of his abode, this being no Levitical City.

† Heb. Micah.

Heb. sojourning as a.

8 And the man departed out of the city from Bethlehem-Judah, to sojourn where he could find a place w, and he came to mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah † as he journeyed.

w For employment and a livelihood; for the Tithes and Offerings, which were their maintenance, nor being brought in to the House of God, the Levites and Priests muft needs be reduced to great ftreights.

9 And Micah said unto him, Whence comest thou? and he said unto him, I am a Levite of Bethlehem-Judah, and I go to sojourn where I may find a place.

Or, habitation. Heb. to sojourn as a sojourner.

10 And Micah said unto him, Dwell with me, and be unto me a father and a priest y, and I will give thee ten shekels of silver by the year, and ‖ a suit of apparel, and thy victuals. So the Levite went in.

‖ Or, a change of raiment.

y For, a Father; that is, a Priest, a Spiritual Father, a Teacher or Instructor, for such are called Fathers; see 2 Kings. 6. 21. and 8, 9. and 13. 14. Isa. 22. 21. He pretends Reverence and Submission to him; and what is wanting in his Wages, he pays him in empty Titles.

11 And the Levite was content z to dwell with the man, and the young man was unto him as one of his sons a.

z Being constrained by necessity, and infected with the common Contagion of the Superstition and Idolatry of the Times. a i.e. Treated with the same degree of Kindness and Affection.

12 And Micah consecrated the Levite b, and the young man became his priest c, and was in the house of Micah.

b To be a Priest, for which he thought a Consecration necessary, as knowing that the Levites were no less excluded from the Priests Office than the People. c Instead of his Son, whom he had consecrated for want of a sirter, v. 5. but now seems to restrain him from the exercise of that Office, and to devolve it wholly upon the Levite, who was nearer akin to it.

13 Then said Micah, Now know I that the LORD will do me good d, seeing I have a Levite to my priest.

d I am assured God will bless me. So blind and grossly partial he was in his Judgment, to think that one right Circumstance would answer for all his substantial Errors, in making and worshipping Images against God's express Command, in worshipping God in a forbidden Place; and in that he being an Ephraimite presumed to make a Priest, &c.

CHAP. XVIII.

Those of the tribe of Dan, having not sufficient inheritance, send forth five men to spy out a place: they come to the house of Micah, and desire the Levite to ask counsel of God touching their journey, 1,—5. Encouraging them: they spy out the city Laish: and at their return instigate their brethren to set upon the city, 6,—10. Goo go forth armed: in their march they seize upon Micah's priests and idols: which he in vain demandeth again, 11,—25. They pass down Laish: build it again: inhabit it: and call it Dan, 26,—29. Consecrate their priest and set up Micah's images, 30, 31.

IN * those days there was no king in Israel a: and in * Chap. those days the * tribe of the Danites b fought them 17. 6. an inheritance to dwell in, for unto that day all their in- & 21. 25. heritance had not fallen unto them c among the tribes Josh. 19. 47. of Israel.

a Not long after Joshua's death, of which see in Judg. 17. 6. b i.e. A part or branch of that Tribe, consisting only of 600 Men of War, v. 16. with their Families, v. 21. or, a Family of the Danites: for the word, Schebet, which properly signifies a Tribe, is sometimes taken for a Family, as Judg. 20. 12. as elsewhere Family is put for a Tribe, as Zech. 12. 13. c The Lot had fallen to them before this time, Jos. 19. 40, &c. but not the actual possession of their Lot, because them in the Philistines and Amorites opposed them, nor without success. See Jos. 19. 40. Judg. 1. 34.

2 And the children of Dan sent of their family d five men from their coasts, † men of valour, from Zo- † Heb. rah, and from Eshtaol e, to spy out the land, and to sons. search it, and they said unto them, Go, search the land: who when they came to mount Ephraim to the house of Micah, they lodged there f.

d Which shews that it was but one, though a large Family, which was engaged in this Expedition. e Of which see Jos. 19. 41. Judg. 13. 2. 25. f Not in the same House, but near it, as appears from the next Verse, in a neighbouring place.

3 When they were by the house of Micah, they knew the voice of the young man the Levite g: and they turned in thither, and said unto him, Who brought thee hither? and what makest thou in this place? and what hast thou here?

g Either, 1. By his manner of pronunciation, which was differing and distinguishable in several Tribes, as appears from Judg. 12. 6. Mark 14. 70. Or 2. By the celebration of some part of his Office, which they then lodging in the neighbourhood, might be invited to. Or rather, 3. By some quaintness which some of them formerly had with him, which they might have upon many occasions. h This being not thy usual Place, nor proper for thy Employment.

4 And he said unto them, Thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath hired me, and I am his priest.

5 And they said unto him, Ask counsel, we pray thee, of God i, that we may know whether our way which we go shall be prosperous.

i To wit, by some Ephod, or Teraphim, or Images, which they knew he had, v. 14.

6 And the priest said unto them, Go in peace: before the LORD is your way k wherein ye go.

k i.e. Your Journey or Design is under the care of God: I do undertake Care, and Direction, which the ese f. 6. d being upon a possim, commonly notes in Scripture, as Phil. 2. 2. and 3. 15. Compare Jer. 49. 12. and 25. 28. So the Phrase is here taken in a restrained sense, which is elsewhere taken more largely, as Prov. 5. 21. This Answer he either learns to gratifie their Humours; or, did indeed receive from God, who transformed himself into an Angel or Light, and in God's Name gave them Answers, and those not seldom very true, which God ordered for the trial of his People: See Deut. 13. 1, 2, 3. But it is observable, that his Answer was, as the Devil's Oracles usually were, ambiguous, and such as might have been interpreted either way, as they had success or disappointment.

7 ¶ Then the five men departed, and came to Laish l, and saw the people that were therein, how they dwelt careless, after the manner of the Zidonians m, quiet, and secure, and there was no † magistrate in the land that might put them to shame in any thing n, and they were far from the Zidonians o, and had no business with any man p.

† Heb. possessor, or, heir of re-straint, 1 Sam. 9. 17.

l Called also Leshem, Jos. 19. 47. m Who living in a very strong Place, and abounding in Wealth, and understanding that they were not a part of that Land which God gave to his People; and perceiving that the Israelites never attempted any thing against them, were grown secure and careless. n Or, that might rebuke or punish any thing; i.e. any crime; Heb. that might put any thing to shame, or, make any thing shamefol. Putting to shame seems to be used Metonymically for inflicting Civil Punishment, because shame is generally the adjunct or effect of it. o Who otherwise could have succoured them, and would have been ready to do it. p No League or Confederacy, nor much Converse with other Cities, it being in a pleasant and plentiful Soil, between the two Rivolets of Jor and Dan, not needing Supplies from others, and therefore minding only their own Ease and Pleasure.

8 And they came unto their brethren to Zorah, and Eshtaol, and their brethren said unto them, What say ye?

9 And they said, Arise, that we may go up against them: for we have seen the land, and behold, it is very good: and are ye still q? Be not slothful to go, and to enter to possess the land.

q Heb. silent? Silence is oft put for stillness or cessation from action or motion, as Exod. 15. 16. Isa 62. 1. Lament. 2. 18. For they do not accuse them for want of speaking, for that they did; but for wanting of doing, and putting their words and resolves into execution.

10 When ye go, ye shall come unto a people secure, and to a large land: for God hath given it into your hand r: a place where there is no want of any thing, that is in the earth.

r This they gather partly from God's Word or Promise, which they supposed they had from the Levites Mouth; and partly from his Providence, which hath so disposed them, that they will be an easie Prey to you.

11 ¶ And there went from thence of the family † of the Danites out of Zorah, and out of Eshtaol six hundred men, † appointed with weapons of war.

† Heb. girded.

s By which it again appears, That the Tribe, v. 1. is put for Family.

12 And they went up and pitched in Kirjath-jearim t in Judah: wherefore they called that place Mahaneh-dan, unto this day: behold it is behind Kirjath-jearim u.

t Called Kiriath-baal, Jos. 15. 60. a City lying in the Northern parts of Judah, in the Road to Laish; yet not in the City, but in the Fields belonging to it, as the following words evince. u i.e. Westward from it, as the Western Sea is called the hindermost Sea, Deut. 11. 24. and as on the contrary, the East is called Kedem, which signifies the fore-part.

13 And they passed thence unto mount Ephraim, and they came unto the house of Micah x.

x i.e. To the Town in which his House was, for they were not yet entred into it.

14 ¶ Then answered y the five men that went to spy out the country of Laish, and said unto their brethren, Do ye know that there is in those houses z an ephod, and teraphim, and a graven image, and a molten image? Now therefore consider what ye have to do a.

y i.e. Spake, the word answering being oft used in Scripture of the first speaker, as 1 King. 1. 28. and 12. 7. Ezra 10. 2. Isa. 14. 10. z i.e. In one of their Houses, the Plural Number for the Singular, as Judg. 12. 7. a Whether it be not expedience; either, 1. To consult them again for your own satisfaction; or, rather, 2. To take them away for your further use, as you shall have occasion; for their Action is the best Comment upon their words.

15 And they turned thitherward, and came to the house of the young man the Levite, even unto the house of Micah, and † saluted him b.

† Heb. asked him of peace.

b Heb. asked him of Peace; i.e. if he were in Peace, Peace being commonly put for Health and Prosperity.

16 And the six hundred men appointed with their weapons of war, which were of the children of Dan, stood by the entring of the gate.

17 And the five men that went to spy out the land went up, and came in thither c, and took the graven image, and the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image, and the priest stood in the entring of the gate d with the six hundred men that were appointed with weapons of war.

c To wit, into the House, and that part of it, where those things were. d Whether they had drawn him forth, that they might without noise or hindrance take them away.

18 And these e went into Micahs house: and fetched the carved image, the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image; then said the priest unto them, What do ye f?

e To wit, the five mentioned, v. 17. f What do you mean to do? I hope you will not do so Impious and Injurious an Action.

19 And they said unto him, Hold thy peace, lay thy hand upon thy mouth g, and go with us, and be to us a father, and a priest h: Is it better for thee to be a priest unto the house of one man, or that thou be a priest unto a tribe, and a family i in Israel?

g i.e. Be silent, as this Phrase is used, Job 21. 5. and 29. 9. and 40. 4. Prov. 30. 32. The same thing repeated in other words. h See on Judg. 17. 10. i To wit, a tribe, that is, Canal being oft put for that is) a family. For it is certain this was not an Expedition of the whole Tribe, which numbred 64000 Men, Numb. 26. 43. but only of one Family, which it seems were more vexed with the Philistines or Amorites, and therefore resolved to seek new Habitations at a great distance from them. And after this time we find the Body of the Danites in their old and proper Portions in Samson's time, which, though placed before this, was long after it.

20 And the priest's heart was glad k, and he took the ephod, and the teraphim, and the graven image, and went in the midst of the people l.

k Being wholly governed by his own Interest, and making all his Obligations of Justice and Gratitude give place to it. But it is not strange, if he who was before perfidious to God, should prove so to Men. l i.e. Among the People: or properly in the midst, both for the greater security of such precious things, and that Micah might not be able to come at him, either to injure or upbraid him; and, it may be, because that was the place where the Ark used to be carried.

21 So they turned and departed, and put the little ones, and the cattel, and the carriage before them m.

m For their greater security, if Micah should pursue them.

22 ¶ And when they were a good way from the house of Micah, the men that were in the houses near to Micahs house, were gathered together, and overtook the children of Dan.

23 And they cried unto the children of Dan: and they turned their faces, and said unto Micah, What ails thee, † that thou comest with such a company?

† Heb. that is to say, to what end.

24 And he said, Ye have taken away my gods which I made n, and the priest, and ye are gone away: and what have I more o? and what is this that ye say unto me, What aileth thee?

n So far was he besotted with Superstition and Idolatry, that he esteemed those gods, which were Man's work. But he could not be so stupid, as to think these were indeed the great Jehovah that made Heaven and Earth; but only a lower sort of gods, by whom, as Mediators, he offered up his worship unto the true God, as it is manifest divers of the Heathens did. o I value nothing I have in comparison of what you have taken away. Which zeal for Idolatrous trash may shame multitudes that call themselves Christians, and yet apparently value their worldly Conveniences more than all the Concerns even of the true Religion, and of their own Salvation.

25 ¶ And the children of Dan said unto him, Let not thy voice p be heard among us: lest † angry fellows q run upon thee, and thou lose thy life r, with the lives of thy houshold.

† Heb. bitter of soul.

p Thy Complaints and Reproaches. q The Soldiers, who are in themselves sharp and fierce, and will soon be enflamed by thy provoking words. r Which, notwithstanding all thy Preferences, thou dost value more than thy Images, as indeed appeared from his following practice.

26 And the children of Dan went their way: and when Micah saw that they were too strong for him, he turned, and went back unto his house.

27 And they took the things which Micah had made, and the priest which he had, and came unto Laish, unto a people that were at quiet, and secure, and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and burnt the city with fire s.

s Not wholly, but in great measure, to strike the greater terror into the Inhabitants, and to make their Conquest of the Place more easie.

28 And there was no deliverer, because it was far from Zidon, and they had no business with any man: and it was in the valley that lieth by Beth-rehob t, and they built a city, and dwelt therein.

t A Place near Libanus and Hamath: of which see Numb. 13. 21. Jos. 19. 28. and 21. 31. Judg. 1. 31.

29 And they called the name of the † city Dan, after the name of Dan their father u, who was born unto Israel: howbeit, the name of the city was Laish at the first.

u That it might be manifest, that they belonged to the Tribe of Dan, though they were seated at a great distance from them, even in the most Northerly Part of the Land: whereas the Lot of their Tribe was in the Southern Part of Canaan.

30 ¶ And

30 ¶ And the children of Dan set them up the graven image x: and Jonathan the son of Gershom, the son of Manasseh, he, and his sons were priests to the tribe of Dan, until the day of the captivity of the land y.

x Having succeeded in their expedition according to the prediction which, as they supposed, they had from this Image, they had a great veneration for it. y Either 1. When the Ark and the Israelites were taken captives by the Philistines, 1 Sam. 4. 10, 11. Though there is no mention of any who were then taken captives, or that the Philistines did pursue the Victory, and Conquer the Land at that time, for their Victory was quickly damped, and turned to Mourning, 1 Sam. 5. Or, 2. After that time, when the Philistines slew Saul and Jonathan, and discomfited the whole Host of Israel, and made the rest of the People flee out of their Cities, and took possession of their Cities and Land. Or, 3. When the whole Land of the ten Tribes, whereof Dan was one, was Conquered, and the People carried Captive by the Assyrian, 2 Kings 17. 6, 22. which is called by way of Eminency, the Captivity, 1 Chron. 5. 22. But against this it is objected, That it is not probable, that this Idolatry should continue so long in such a publick place and manner: or that David and Solomon would suffer it. Anf. It is not said, that the graven Image was there so long, for that is restrained to a shorter date, even to the continuance of the Ark in Shiloh, v. 31. which was removed thence, 1 Sam. 4. But only that Jonathan's Posterity were Priests to this Tribe or Family of Dan, which they might be under all the changes, even till the Assyrian Captivity, sometimes more openly and allowedly, sometimes more cunningly, sometimes more secretly, sometimes in one way of Superstition or Idolatry, and sometimes in another; and, in and after Jeroboam's time, in the Worship of the Calves, for which service, though he did make Priests of the meanest of the People, 1 Kings 12. 31. yet that was not by choice, but out of necessity, because the Priests and Levites generally forsook him, 2 Chron. 11. 13, 14. and therefore when he could engage any of the Priests or Levites in that service, he was doubtless very glad of them to gain reputation to his impious and absurd device.

31 And they set them up Micah's graven image, which he made, all the time that the house of God was in Shiloh.

CHAP. XIX.

a Of which see on Judg. 17. 1. b Heb. in the sides, i.e. in one of the sides, as Verse 18. c Heb. a Wife, a Concubine, i.e. such a Concubine as was also his Wife, as appears from v. 3, 4, 5, 7, 9, 26, 27. and Judg. 20. 4. See of these Gen. 22. 24. and 25. 1.

2 And his concubine played the whore against him d, and went away from him e unto her father's house to Bethlehem-Judah, and was there ‖ † four whole months f.

d i.e. Against her Faith given to him, or to his wrong; or, with him, i.e. in his House; or whilest he lived with him, which is opposed to her going away, which here follows. e Either for fear of his severe rebukes or punishment; or, because her heart was alienated from him. f Heb. some days, to wit, four months; or, a year (so days commonly signifie) and four months; wherein not only the kindled, but her Father by some indulgence and connivance at her Sin and neglect of just endeavours for her reconciliation to her Husband, the ill effects whereof he speedily felt, in the loss of his Daughter in so dreadful a manner.

3 And her husband arose, and went after her to † speak friendly unto her g, and to bring her again h, having his servant with him, and a couple of asses i: and she brought him into her father's house: and when the father of the damsel saw him, he rejoiced to meet him k.

g i.e. Or, to speak to her heart, i.e. kindly and comfortably, as that Phrase is taken, Gen. 50. 21. Hos. 2. 14. to offer her pardon, and reconciliation, and restitution to her former state. h To wit, to his own House. i Partly, for himself or his Wife to ride upon, as there was occasion; and partly, for carrying their Provision, as appears from v. 19. k Hoping the breachwould be made up by this means.

4 And his father in law, the damsels father, retained him, and he abode with him three days: so they did eat and drink, and lodged there.

5 ¶ And it came to pass on the fourth day, when they arose early in the morning, that he rose up to depart: and the damsels father said unto his son in law, † Comfort thy heart with a morsel of bread, and afterward go your way.

6 And they sate down and did eat and drink both of them together: for the damsels father had said unto the man, Be content, I pray thee, and tarry all night, and let thine heart † be merry.

† Heb. be good.

7 And when the man rose up to depart, his father in law urged him: therefore he lodged there again.

8 And he arose early in the morning on the fifth day to depart, and the damsels father said, Comfort thine heart, I pray thee. And they tarried † until afternoon, and they did eat both of them.

† Heb. till the day declined.

9 And when the man rose up to depart, he, and his concubine, and his servant, his father in law, the damsels father said unto him, Behold, now the day † draweth towards evening, I pray you tarry all night: behold, † the day groweth to an end l, lodg here that thine heart may be merry, and to morrow get ye early on your way, that thou mayest go † home.

† Heb. it is weak. † Heb. it is declining the day.

l Heb. It is the encamping time of the day, i.e. the Evening, when Armies having marched in the day, begin to pitch their Camp; or, when the Sun that makes the day, begins to encamp himself, and go toward rest; so it is a Poetical expression taken from hence, That the Sun when he sets, seems to vulgar eyes to go to rest.

† Heb. to go to thy tents.

10 But the man would not tarry that night, but he rose up, and departed, and came † over against Jebus (which is Jerusalem) and there were with him two asses saddled, his concubine also was with him.

† Heb. over against Jebus.

11 And when they were by Jebus, the day was far spent, and the servant said unto his master, Come, I pray thee, and let us turn in unto this city of the Jebusites, and lodg in it.

12 And his master said unto him, We will not turn aside hither into the city of a stranger m that is not of the children of Israel: we will pass over to Gibeah.

m i.e. Of a strange Nation: which the Canaanites possess; for though the City Jerusalem had been taken by Caleb, Judg. 1. yet the strong Fort of Zion was still in their hands, 2 Sam. 5. 6, 7. whence it is likely they did much molest, and afterwards by God's permission, and for the punishment of their Sin, drive out the Israelites who dwelt there.

13 And he said unto his servant, Come, and let us draw near to one of these places to lodg all night, in Gibeah, or in Ramah n.

n Both which places lay in Benjamin's Portion, a little Northward from Jerusalem, and in the Road from Bethlehem-Judah to Gibeah.

14 And they passed on, and went their way, and the sun went down upon them when they were by Gibeah, which belongeth to Benjamin o.

o This is added to difference it from another Gibeah in Judah, Jos. 15. 57. Possibly this is that which was called Gibeah of Saul, 1 Sam. 11. 4.

15 And they turned aside thither to go in, and to lodg in Gibeah: and when he went in, he sate him down in a street of the city: for there was no man that took them into his house to lodging p.

p Though they were soft and effeminate in other respects, yet they were hard-hearted towards Strangers or indigent persons. Either there were no publick Houses to receive and entertain Travellers, as may be gathered from Gen. 28. and 42. and 43. and Jos. 2. &c. or, if there were such an one here, they might perceive it to be a very wicked House, as being in so lewd a place, and therefore might decline it, and expect that some private person would exercise Hospitality to them, as persons of any worth used to do, as Gen. 18. 1, 2, 3, 4. and 19. 1, 2. Heb. 13. 2.

16 ¶ And behold, there came an old man from his work, out of the field at even, which was also of mount Ephraim q; and he sojourned in Gibeah, but the men of the place were † Benjamites r.

q Whence also the Levite was, which obliged and enclined him v. 18. to shew the more kindness to his Country-man. r This was indeed one of the Cities belonging to the Priests, Jos. 21. 1 Chron. 6. Chap. 15 but you consider that the Cities which were given to the Priests, and whereof they were Possessors and Owners, were not inhabited by the Priests or Levites only, especially at this time when they were but few in number, but by many other persons of differing Professions and Callings, which was necessary for their convenience.

17 And when he had lift up his eyes, he saw a wayfaring man in the street of the city: and the old man said, Whither goest thou? and whence comest thou?

18 And he said unto him, We are passing from Bethlehem-Judah, toward the † side of mount Ephraim, from thence am I: and I went to Bethlehem-Judah, but I am now going to the house of the LORD s, and there is no man that receiveth me to house.

s Which was in Shiloh, Jos. 18. 1. and 22. 12. Thither he went, either because he lived there, or that with the Tribe of Ephraim; or, rather, because he would visit their Prayers and Profession of Obedience unto God, for his Safety in travelling him and his together, together, and for his Blessing upon them again, and to make atonement for his Wife.

19 Yet there is both straw and provender for our asses, and there is bread and wine also for me, and for thy handmaid, and for the young man which is with thy servants: there is no want of any thing.

20 And the old man said, Peace be with thee: how- * Gen. 19. 2. soever let all thy wants lie upon me t, * only lodge not in the street.

t It matters not whether thou wantest nothing or every thing, I will take care to supply all thy Wants.

21 So he brought him into his house, and gave provender unto the asses: and they washed their feet u, and did eat and drink.

u As they used to do to Travellers in those hot Countries, Gen. 18. 4. and 19. 2. and 24. 32, &c.

22 ¶ Now as they were making their hearts merry * Hos. 9. 9. and 10. 9. x, behold, the men of the city, certain * sons of Belial y, beset the house round about, and beat at the door, and spake to the master of the house, the old man, saying, Bring forth the man that came into thine house, that we may know him z.

x i.e. Refreshing themselves with the Provisions set before them. y Wicked and Licentious Men; see Deut. 13. 13. z An ambiguous expression; whereby they pretended only a desire to know and see what Person he had brought among them, and yet carry on their wicked design of knowing him Carnally. Compare Gen. 19. 5. where the same Phrase is used in that sense upon a like occasion. But though they came only the Man; yet it is plain from the following relation, that their Design was principally upon the Woman, and therefore under the name of the Man, they comprehend those that belong to him.

† Gen. 19. c. 23 And † the man, the master of the house, went out unto them, and said unto them, Nay, my brethren, nay, I pray you do not so wickedly, seeing that this man is come into mine house a, do not this folly.

a And therefore I am obliged to protect him by the Laws of Hospitality. Compare Gen. 19. 7, 8.

24 Behold, here is my daughter a maiden, and his concubine, them I will bring out now b, and humble ye them, and do with them what seemeth good unto you: but unto this man do not † so vile a thing.

† Heb. the matter of this sort. b He offers this to avoid a greater and more unnatural Sin, which he thought they designed; but it seems they did not, their abuse being confined to the Woman, and not extended to the Man, who also was in their power, if they had lusted after him. But this offer was sinful, because he offered that which was not in his, nor in the Man's power to dispose of, even the Chastity of his Daughter, and the Man's Wife; and because no Man must do any evil, though never so small, for the prevention of any evil of Sin or Misery, or for the procuring of the greatest good, Rom. 3. 8. though his Sin was much mitigated by his Ignorance, by his honest and generous Intention of protecting a Stranger; by the force which was in some sort put upon him, and by the suddenness and violence of the Temptation.

25 But the men would not hearken to him: so the man took his concubine c, and brought her forth unto them, and they knew her, and abused her all the night, until the morning: and when the day began to spring, they let her go.

c Being willing to expose her, rather than the Daughter of his Host, who had expressed such a singular care and affection for him.

26 Then came the woman in the dawning of the day, and fell down d at the door of the man's house, where her lord e was, till it was light.

d To wit, dead, as the following words show, and as that word is oft used, as Exod. 19. 21. Psal. 22. 7. and 91. 7. Hos. 5. 5. killed, partly with grief of heart, and partly with excessive abuse of her Body, of which there have been divers instance. Thus the Sin the formerly chose, v. 2. is now her Destruction; and though her husband pardoned her, God would punish her, at least as to this life. e So he is called, either because he was her husband; for which cause Sarah called Abraham Lord, 1 Pet. 3. 6. or because she had been his maid-servant, as Concubines oftentimes were; as Gen. 30. 3, 9.

27 And her lord rose up in the morning, and opened the doors of the house, and went out to go his way: and behold, the woman his concubine was fallen down at the door of the house, and her hands were upon the threshold f.

f The posture either of one that had fallen down; or of one that was laid down to sleep, her hands or arms (for the Hebrew word signifies both) leaning upon the threshold, and being put under her head: and therefore he thought to awake her, and raise her up.

28 And he said unto her, Up, and and let us be going. But none answered g: then the man took her up upon an ass, and the man rose up, and gat him into his place.

g For she was dead, as is said, Judg. 20. 5.

29 ¶ And when he was come into his house, he took a knife, and laid hold on his concubine, and divided her, together with her bones h, into twelve pieces i, and sent her into all the coasts of Israel k.

h Or, according to her bones, according to the joints of her Body, for there he made the division. This might seem to be a barbarous and inhuman act in it self; but may seem excusable, if it be considered, that the fadness of the Spectacle did highly contribute to stir up the zeal of all the Israelites to avenge his Concubines death, and to execute Justice upon such profligate Offenders; and was necessary, especially in this time of Anarchy and general Corruption, Judg. 17. 6. to awaken them out of that Lethargy, in which all the Tribes lay. i That one piece might be sent to every Tribe; whereof none to Levi, because they would meet with it in every Tribe, being dispersed among them; but one to Benjamin; for he might well presume, that they would as much abhor so villanous an Action, though done by some of their own Tribe, as any of the rest. k By several messengers, by whom also he sent a particular Relation of the Fact.

30 And it was so, that all that saw it, said, There was no such deed l done nor seen from the day that the children of Israel came up out of the land of Egypt, unto this day: consider of it, take advice, and speak your minds m.

l So wicked and abominable. m Let us meet together, and seriously consider, and every one freely speak what is to be done in this case.

CHAP. XX.

The Israelites assemble at Mizpeh: The Levite declares his wrong, 1,—8. Their decree, 9,—12. They require the Delinquents of the Benjamites to do justice on them: They are denied 13.—— 18. Whereupon having consulted God, they march to fight against them: Are twice foiled: And lose forty thousand men, 19,——26. Being humbled, and receiving clearer Revelation from God, they, by a Stratagem, destroy the whole Tribe, 600 Men excepted (who fled away,) and burnt their Cities, 27,——48.

THEN all the children of Israel a went out b, and the congregation was gathered together as one man c, from Dan even to Beersheba d, with the land of Gilead e, unto the LORD f, in Mizpeh g.

a i.e. A great number, and especially the Rulers of all the Tribes, except Benjamin, v. 3, 12. b From their several Habitations. c i.e. With one consent. d Dan was the Northern border of the Land, near Lebanon; and Beersheba the Southern border, Gen. 21. 33. Compare 1 Kings 4. 25. e Beyond Jordan, where Reuben, Gad, and half Manasseh were. f As to the Lord's Tribunal: for God was not only present in the place where the Ark and Tabernacle was, but also in the Assemblies of the Gods, or Judges, Psal. 82. 1. and in all the places where God's name is recorded, Exod. 20. 24. and where two or three are met together in his name, Matth. 18. 20. for his service, and to seek for Counsel and Mercy from him: compare Judg. 11. 11. g A place in the borders of Judah and Benjamin, and therefore ascribed to both of them, Jos. 15. 38. and 18. 26. This they chose, as a place most fit and proper in many respects: First, as a place they used to meet in upon solemn Occasions, See Judg. 10. 17. and 11. 11. 1 Sam. 7. 5, 16. and 10. 17. Secondly, For its convenient Situation for all the the Tribes within and without Jordan. Thirdly, As being near the place where the Fact was done, that it might be more throughly examined; and not far from Shiloh, where the Tabernacle was, whither they might go or send, if need were.

2 And † the chief h of all the people, even of all the tribes of Israel, presented themselves in the assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand foot-men k, that drew sword. † Heb. the corner.

h Heb. the corners, i.e. the Nobles and Rulers, which are often so called, because like corner-stones, they both unite, and support, and adorn the whole Building. i Or, and four hundred thousand, for it is an Ellipsis of the Particle ו and ו of which Examples have been given before: for the chief of the People were not so many; but the common Soldiers, and these were all Foot-men; whereas many of the Rulers rid upon Horses, or Asses, Judg. 5. 10. and 10. 4. and 12. 14. The number is here set down, to shew both their zeal and forwardness in punishing such a Villany; and the strange blindness of the Benjamites that durst oppose so great and united Body; and that the success of Battels depends not upon great numbers, seeing this great Host was twice defeated by the Benjamites, but wholly upon God's blessing. k For Horse-men they had few or none in their Armies.

3 (Now the children of Benjamin heard that the children of Israel were gone up to Mizpeh.) Then said the children of Israel, Tell us m, how was this wickedness?

l Like Persons unconcerned and resolved, they neither went nor sent thither: partly from their own pride, and flabbiness, and self-confidence: partly because as they were 1. to give up any of their Brethren to Justice, so they presumed the other Tribes would never proceed to a War against them; and partly, from a Divine infatuation hardening that wicked Tribe to their own Destruction. m The Verb is of the Plural Number, because they speak to the Levite, and his Servant, and his Host, who doubtless were present upon this occasion.

4 And † the Levite n, the husband of the woman that was slain, answered and said, I came into Gi- † Heb. he. beah beah that belongeth to Benjamin, I and my concubine, to lodge.

n To whose Relation the other two gave their consent.

5 And the men of Gibeah rose up against me, and beset the house round about upon me by night, and thought to have slain me o: and my concubine have they † forced that she is dead. † Heb. humbled.

o Except I would either submit to their unnatural Lust, which I was resolved to withstand even unto death: or deliver up my concubine to them, which I was forced to do.

6 And I took my concubine, and cut her in pieces, and sent her throughout all the country of the inheritance of Israel: for they have committed lewdness and folly p in Israel.

p i.e. A lewd folly; most ignominious and impudent Wickedness.

7 Behold, ye are all children of Israel q, give here your advice and counsel.

q The Sons of that Holy Man, who for one filthy action left an eternal brand upon one of his own Sons: a People in Covenant with the holy God, whose Honour you are obliged to vindicate, and who hath expresly commanded you to punish all such notorious Enormities.

8 ¶ And all the people arose as one man, saying, We will not any of us go to his tent r, neither will we any of us turn into his house:

r i.e. His habitation, to wit, until we have revenged this Injury.

9 But now this shall be the thing which we will do to Gibeah, we will go up by lot against it:

10 And we will take ten men of an hundred throughout all the tribes of Israel, and an hundred of a thousand, and a thousand out of ten thousand, to fetch victual for the people, that they may do, when they come to Gibeah of Benjamin, according to all the folly that they have wrought s in Israel t.

s That we may punish them as such a wickedness deserves t This is added as an aggravation, that they should do that in Israel, or among God's peculiar People, which was esteemed abominable even among the Heathen.

11 So all the men of Israel were gathered against the city, † knit together as one man. † Heb. fellows.

12 ¶ And the tribes of Israel sent men through all the tribe u of Benjamin, saying, What wickedness is this that is done among you?

u Heb. tribes: Either the Plural Number for the Singular: or rather tribe is put for family, as was noted before, as families are elsewhere put for tribes. They take a wise and a just course, in sending to all the parts and families of the tribe, to separate the Innocent from the Guilty, and to give them a fair opportunity of preventing their ruine, by doing nothing but what their Duty, Honour, and Interest obliged them to; even by delivering up those vile Malefactors, whom they could not keep without horrid guilt and shame; and bringing the Curse of God upon themselves.

13 Now therefore deliver us the men, the children of Belial which are in Gibeah, that we may put them to death, and put away evil x from Israel: but the children of Benjamin would not hearken y to the voice of the brethren the children of Israel.

x Both the Guilt and the Punishment, wherein all Israel will be involved, if they do not punish it. y Partly from the pride of their hearts, which made them scorn to submit to their Brethren, or to suffer them to meddle in their Territory; partly from a conceit of their own Valour and Military skill; and partly from God's just judgment.

14 But the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together out of the cities, unto Gibeah, to go out to battel against the children of Israel.

15 And the children of Benjamin were numbred at that time out of the city, twenty and six thousand men that drew sword; beside the inhabitants of Gibeah, which were numbred seven hundred chosen men z.

z Object. This agrees not with the following numbers: for all that were slain of Benjamin were 25100 men, v. 35. and there were only 600 that survived, v. 47. which make only 25700. Ans. The other thousand men were either left in some of their cities, where they were slain, v. 48. or were cut off in the two first Battels, wherein it is unreasonable to think they had an unbloody Victory: and as for these 25100 men, they were all slain in that day, i.e. the day of the third Battel, as is affirmed v. 35.

16 Among all this people, there were seven hundred chosen men * left-handed a, every one could sling stones at an hairs breadth, and not miss b. * Chap. 3. 15.

a Heb. shut up as their right hand, i.e. using their left hand instead of their right. b An Hyperbolical expression, signifying, that they could do this with great exactness. There are many parallel Instances in Historians, of Persons that could throw Stones, or those Arrows with great certainty, so as seldom or never to miss. Of which see my Latin Synopsis. And this was very considerable, and one ground of the Benjamites confidence, because in those times they had no Guns.

17 And the men of Israel c, beside Benjamin, were numbred four hundred thousand men that drew sword, all these were men of war.

c To wit, such as were here present, v. 2. for otherwise it is most probable they had a far greater number of men, being drawn before their entrance into Canaan, Num. 1. 2.

18 ¶ And the children of Israel d arose, and went up to the house of God e, and * asked counsel of God, * Chap. 1. and said, Which of us shall go up first to the battel f? against the children of Benjamin? And the LORD said, Judah shall go up first.

d i.e. Some sent in the name of all. e To wit, to Shiloh, which was not far from Mizpeh, where they were. f This they ask to prevent Emulations and Contentions: for they do not ask whether they should go against them, or no, for that they knew they ought to do by the will of God already revealed: Nor yet do they seek to God for his help by Prayer, and Fasting, and Sacrifice, as in all reason they ought to have done; but were confident of Success, because of their great Numbers, and Righteous Cause.

19 And the children of Israel rose up in the morning, and encamped against Gibeah.

20 And the men of Israel went out to battel against Benjamin, and the men of Israel put themselves in array to fight against them at Gibeah.

21 And the children of Benjamin came forth out of Gibeah, and destroyed down to the ground of the Israelites that day, twenty and two thousand men g.

g Quest. Why would God suffer them to have to great a loss in so good a Cause? Ans. Because they had many and great Sins reigning amongst themselves, and they should not have come to so great a Work of God as this, with polluted hands, but should have pulled the Beam out of their own Eye, before they attempted to take that out of their Brother Benjamin's Eye: which because they did not, God doth it for them, making them by this loss more clearly to see their own Sins, and their need of God's help, without which their great Numbers were insignificant; and bringing them through the Fire, that they might be purged from their Dross; it being probable that the great God who governs every stroke in Battels, did so order things, that their worst and rotten Members should be cut off, which was a great blessing to the whole Common-wealth.

22 And the people, the men of Israel incouraged themselves h, and set their battel again in aray, in the place where they put themselves in aray the first day i.

h Heb. strengthned themselves, partly by supporting themselves with the Confidence of the Justice of their Cause, and the hopes of success: and partly, by putting themselves in better order for defending themselves, and annoying their Enemies. i Hereby shewing their freedom from that Heathenish Superstition, whereby they might have been apt to have rejected that as an unlucky place. Compare 1 Kings 20. 23, 28.

23 (And the children of Israel went up and wept k before the LORD until even, and asked counsel of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up to battel against the children of Benjamin my brother? And the LORD said, Go up against him.)

k Not so much for their Sins, as for their Defeat and Loss, as appears by the Sequel. l They impute their ill Success, not to their own Sins, as they had great reason to do, but to their taking up Arms against their Brethren, the Lawfulness whereof they now began to doubt of. But still they persist in their former neglect of seeking God's assistance in the way which he had appointed, as they themselves acknowledge presently, by doing those very things which now they sinfully neglected, v. 26. and therefore are again justly punished. m God answers to their question; but as they did not desire his assistance and success, so he doth not promise it.

24 And the children of Israel came near against the children of Benjamin, the second day.

25 And Benjamin went forth against them out of Gibeah the second day, and destroyed down to the ground of the children of Israel again, eighteen thousand men, all these drew the sword.

26 ¶ Then all the children of Israel, and all the people went up, and came unto the house of God, and wept, and sat there before the LORD, and fasted m that day until even, and offered burnt-offerings n, and peace-offerings o before the LORD.

m Being now sensible of their former slightness, and not being truly humbled for their Sins, which now they discover to be the true Cause of their ill success. n To make atonement to God for their own Sins. o Partly to bless God for sparing so many of them, whereas he might justly have cut off all of them when their Brethren were slain: and partly to implore his assistance for the future, and to give him Thanks for the Victory, which now they were confident he would give them.

27 And the children of Israel enquired of the LORD p, (for the ark of the covenant of God was there q in those days.

p To wit, by Urim and Thummim, Num. 27. 21. q In Shiloh where they were now assembled.

28 And

28 And Phineas the son of Eleazar r the son of Aaron stood f before it r in those days) saying, Shall I yet again go out to battel against the children of Benjamin my brother, or shall I cease u? And the LORD said, Go up, for to morrow I will deliver them into thine hand x.

r This is added to give us some light about the time of this History, and to shew it was not done in the order in which it is here placed, after Samson's Death, but long before. f i.e. Ministred, as the word stand oft signifies, as Deut. 10. 8. and 18. 7. Prov. 22. 29. Jer. 52. 12. compare with 2 Kings 25. 8. because standing is the usual posture of Servants. r i.e. Before the Ark: or, before him, i.e. the Lord's face, or presence: which shews that he was the High-Priest, for none else might appear there. u Which, if thou requirest, we are willing to do, notwithstanding the provocation they have given us, and our own Inclination to Revenge. x Now when they had fought God after the due order, and truly humbled themselves for their Sins, he gives them a full and satisfactory Answer to their Desires.

29 And Israel set liers in wait ∴ round about Gibeah y.

∴ Though they were assured of the Success, by a particular and absolute promise, yet they do not neglect the use of means: as well knowing that the certainty of God's Purposes or Promises doth not excuse, but rather require Man's diligent use of all fit means for the accomplishment of them. y i.e. On several sides of it, as may be gathered from the following Verses.

30 And the children of Israel z went up against the children of Benjamin on the third day a, and put themselves in array against Gibeah, as at other times.

z i.e. A considerable part of them, who were ordered to give the first onset, and then to counterfeit flight, to draw the Benjamites forth of their strong hold. See v. 32. a To wit, after the second Battel; for the first day after it, they spent in perplexing thoughts, and going up to the House of the Lord: the second, in Fasting and Prayer there: and this third, in the Fight. Or, this is so called with respect unto the two several foregoing days of Battel, and so this was the third day of Battel.

31 And the children of Benjamin went out against the people, and were drawn away from the city b, and they began † to smite of the people, and kill as at other times c, in the high-ways, of which one goeth up to ‖ the house of God, and the other to Gibeah in the field d, about thirty men of Israel.

† Heb. to smite of the people wounded as at, &c. ‖ Or, Bethel.

b By the dissembled Flight of the Israelites. c With the same kind, though not the same degree of Success. d So called, to difference it from this Gibeah, which was upon an Hill; whereforе they are constantly said, to ascend or go up against it, as v. 23, 30. See Jos. 18. 24, 28.

32 And the children of Benjamin said, They are smitten down before us, as at the first: But the children of Israel said, Let us flee, and draw them from the city unto the high-ways.

33 And all the men of Israel rose up out of their place e, and put themselves in array at Baal-Tamar: and the liers in wait of Israel came forth out of their places f, even out of the meadows of Gibeah.

e Where they had disposed themselves, that they might fall upon the Benjamites, when they were drawn forth to a sufficient distance from their City, and when they were pursuing that Party mentioned, v. 30. f To execute what was agreed upon, even to take Gibeah, and burn it, as they actually did, v. 37.

34 And there came against Gibeah ten thousand chosen men out of all Israel g, and the battel was sore: but they knew not that evil was near them h.

g Selected out of the main Body, which was at Baal-Tamar; and these were to march directly to Gibeah on the one side, whilst the liers in wait stormed it on the other side, and whilst the great Body of the Army laboured to intercept these Benjamites, who having escaped the Israelites that pretended to flee, now endeavoured to retreat to Gibeah. h They were so pushed up with their former Successes, that they were insensible of their danger.

35 And the LORD smote Benjamin before Israel, and the children of Israel destroyed of the Benjamites that day twenty and five thousand, and an hundred men i: all these drew the sword.

i This is the total Summ, whereof the particulars are related, v. 44, 45. and for the odd hundred not there mentioned, they were killed in other places not there expressed.

36 So the children of Benjamin saw that they were smitten: for the men of Israel gave place to the Benjamites, because they trusted unto the liers in wait, which they had set beside Gibeah.

37 And the liers in wait hasted, and rushed upon Gibeah, and the liers in wait ‖ drew themselves along k, and smote all the city with the edge of the sword.

‖ Or, made a long found with the trumpet.

k Or, extended themselves; i.e. whereas before they lay close and contracted into a narrow compass, now they spread themselves, and Marched in Rank and File as Armies do. Or, marched, or went: Heb. drew their Feet. So this Verb is oft used, as Gen. 37 28. Exod. 12. 21. Judg. 4. 6. Job 21. 33.

38 Now there was an appointed ‖ sign between the men of Israel † and the liers in wait, that they should make a great † flame with smoke to rise up out of the city.

‖ Or, time. † Heb. mark. † Heb. elevation.

39 And when the men of Israel retired in the battel, Benjamin began † to smite and kill of the men of Israel about thirty persons; for they said, Surely they are smitten down before us, as in the first battel.

† Heb. to wound.

40 But when the flame began to rise up out of the city, with a pillar of smoke, the Benjamites looked behind them, and behold, the † flame of the city ascended up to heaven.

† Heb. its whole substance.

41 And when the men of Israel turned again, the men of Benjamin were amazed l; for they saw that evil † was come upon them.

† Heb. touched them.

l Because of their great disappointment, and the present danger wherewith they were surrounded on every side.

42 Therefore they turned their backs before the men of Israel, unto the way of the wilderness, but the battel overtook them: and them which came out of the cities, they destroyed in the midst of them m.

m i.e. The men of Battel or War. The abstract for the concrete, as Poverty, 2 Kings 24. 14. Pride, Psal. 36. 11. Deceit, Prov. 12. 25. Dreams, Jer. 23. 9. Rebellion, Rom. 11. 7. are put for Persons that are Poor, Proud, Deceitful, Dreamers, Rebels. n So the sence may seem to be this, That the Israelites did not only kill the Inhabitants of Gibeah, and all the Benjamites that came into the Field against them, Ceo excepted; but in the midst of them, or together with them, they killed also the rest of the Benjamites, who, when they saw their Army was wholly destroyed, made haste to flee out of their several Cities or Towns, that so they might escape the Sword, which was coming towards them. But the words may be rendred thus: And them who were of the other cities, to wit, of Benjamin, i.e. who abode in their own Cities, and did not go up to Gibeah, they destroyed in the midst of them, i.e. in their several Cities, or, in the midst of it, i.e. of every City: for so it is said, v. 48. where it is said, That they smote the men of every City. But this I submit to the Learned.

43 Thus they enclosed the Benjamites round about, and chased them, and trode them down ‖ with ease o, † over against Gibeah towards the sun-rising.

‖ Or, from Manuah. † Heb. over against.

o Without great difficulty. Now that God gave them his presence and assistance, they easily did that which before they found too hard for them. Or, unto Menuchah, or, as far as Menuchah, a place so called. See 1 Chron. 9. 52. Jer. 31. 39.

44 And there fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand men p; all these were men of valour.

p To wit, in the Field, or Battel.

45 And they turned and fled toward the wilderness, unto the rock of Rimmon: and they gleaned q of them in the high-ways five thousand men; and pursued hard after them unto Gidom, and slew two thousand men of them.

q i.e. They cut off the remainders in the pursuit, and spared none. A Metaphor from those who gather Grapes or Corn so clearly and fully, that they leave no relicks for those who come after them.

46 So that all which fell that day of Benjamin, were twenty and five thousand r men that drew the sword: all these were men of valour.

r Besides the odd hundred expressed ver. 35. but here only the great number is expressed, the less being omitted, as inconsiderable; which way of numbring is frequent in Scripture, as Judg. 11. 26. 2 Sam. 5. 5. and in other Authors, and in vulgar use; as when they are called, the 70 Interpreters, who in truth and exactness were 72. Here are also a thousand more omitted, because here he speaks only of them who fell in that third day of Battel. See on v. 15.

47 * But six hundred men turned and fled to the wilderness, unto the rock Rimmon, and abode in the rock s Rimmon four months.

* Ch. 21. 13.

s In a Cave within that Rock, where they Fortified themselves, and feeched in Provision as they had opportunity; which they could easily do, when the heat of the Battel was over, and the Israelites were not solicitous to pursue them further.

48 And the men of Israel turned again upon the children of Benjamin t, and smote them with the edge of the sword, as well the men u of every city, as the beast, and all that † came to hand: also they set ‖ fire on fire all the cities that * they came to.

† Heb. found. ‖ Heb. upon fire. * Or, together.

t Having destroyed those that came to Gibeah, and into the field, now they follow them home to their several habitations. u Comprehensively taken, so as to include Women and Children. If this seem harsh and bloody, either it may be ascribed to Military Fury; or rather, it may be justified; partly, from that high guilt brought upon the whole Tribe, in which it is no wonder if their Infants suffered, which was not unusual in such cases, as Numb. 31. 17. 1 Sam. 15. 3. Jos. 7. 15. partly, from that Command of God in a Parallel case, Deut. 13. 15. and partly from that solemn Oath by which they had Anathematised or devoted to Death all that came not up to Mizpeh, Judg. 21. 5. which none of the Benjamites did; for which cause also they destroyed all the Men, Women, and Children of Jabesh Gilead, Judg. 21. 10.

CHAP. XXI.

The People bewail the Desolation of Benjamin, 1,—7. The Inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead, for not coming up to this Battel, are all destroyed: Excepting 40 Damsels: Whom the Israelites bestow for Wives on the remaining Benjamites, 8,—14. They advise the rest to force on the dancing Maidens at the feast in Shiloh: And to carry away as many as they had need of, 15,—21. the manner whereunto they obtain a passage their Relations, 22,—24.

NOw the men of Israel had sworn a in Mizpeh, saying, There shall not any of us give his daughter unto Benjamin to wife b.

a In the beginning of this War, after the whole Tribe had espoused the quarrel of the Men of Gibeah, Judg. 20. 13, 14. b They do not (as some suppose) here swear the utter extirpation of the Tribe, which fell out beyond their expectation, Judg. 21. but only not to give their Daughters to those Men who should survive; justly esteeming them for their barbarous Villany, to be as bad as the worst of Heathens, with whom they were forbidden to Marry. In this Case the Benjamites might have married among themselves, if any of their Men and Women were left alive.

2 And the people came to the house of God c, and abode there till even before God, and lift up their voices and wept sore.

c Partly to mourn for the common loss; and partly, to ask counsel from God about the repairing of it.

3 And said, O LORD God of Israel, Why is this come to pass in Israel, that there should be to day one tribe lacking in Israel d?

d Why hath thou given them up to such wickedness, and us to such rage, that the whole Tribe should be in a manner lost? Hence it appears, that they did not swear to root them all out, as is further manifest from the different matter and words of this Oath, ver. 1. which only denied them their Daughters in Marriage; and that concerning the people of other Tribes who joyned not with them in this business, which was, that they should be put to death, v. 5. And their sparing of those 600 Men in the Rock Rimmon, v. 13, 14. plainly shew, that they were not obliged by any Oath or Vow to extirpate them.

4 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people rose early, and built there an altar e, and offered burnt-offerings, and peace-offerings.

e Not for a Monument of the Victory, as some say, but for Sacrifices, as the next word shew. Qu. What need was there of this, when the ordinary Altar was there, to which also they seem to be restrained, Deut. 12. 2? Answ. They are not there restrained to one Altar, but to one place of Worship, as is expressed; and therefore there might be in that place more Altars than one, when the multitude of Sacrifices so required, which was the case, 1 Kings 8. 64. and probably at this time, when all the Tribes being met, they had many Sacrifices to offer, some in common for all, and some peculiar to every Tribe. Nay, other Altars might be, and oft-times were erected in other places, by Divine Direction or Dispensation; as Judg. 6. 24, 26. 1 Sam. 7. 5, 17. and 11. 15. and 16. 2, 5.

5 And the children of Israel said, Who is there among all the tribes of Israel, that came not up with the congregation unto the LORD? for they had made a great oath f concerning him that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeh, saying, He shall surely be put to death g.

f i.e. A solemn Oath joyned with some terrible Execration against the Offenders herein. g Because by refusing to execute the Vengeance due to such Malefactors, they were justly proclaimed guilty of the Crime, and therefore liable to the same Punishment, as was the case of that City that would not deliver up an Idolater dwelling among them, to Justice.

6 And the children of Israel repented them for Benjamin their brother h, and said, There is one tribe cut off from Israel this day:

h Not for the War which was just, and necessary, and good; but for their immoderate Severity in the Execution of it, and for the dreadful consequences of it.

7 How shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing we have sworn by the LORD that we will not give them of our daughters to wives?

8 And they said, What one is there of the tribes of Israel, that came not up to Mizpeh to the LORD? And behold, there came none to the camp from Jabesh-gilead i to the assembly.

i A City in Gilead, and in the Tribe of Manasseh; of which see 1 Sam. 11. 1, 3, 9, &c. and 31. 11, &c.

9 For the people were numbred, and behold, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead there.

10 And the congregation sent thither twelve thousand men of the valiantest, and commanded them, saying, Go, and smite the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead with the edge of the sword, with the women and the children k.

k Who in such publick and scandalous Crimes were for the greater Terror of such Transgressors, and prevention of the like Sins, oft involved in the same Punishment with the rest, as Deut. 13. 15. Jos. 7. 24, &c.

11 And this is the thing that ye shall do, Ye shall utterly destroy every male, and every woman that hath lien by man l.

l But not the Virgins, as appears from the next Verses. It is questionable, whether they were not obliged to destroy these also by vertue of their Oath, and of God's express Command concerning Devoted Things, such as these certainly were, that should surely be put to death, Levit. 27. 29. which was always particularly expressed and practised in such Cases, as Deut. 13. 15. But the natural and necessary duty of preserving a Tribe from utter Ruine, might seem to render the case difficult and doubtful, and incline them Opinions, as well as their affections, to the more favourable side. And it may be, the Lord, whom they were then consulting with upon all their occasions, gave them a Dispensation thus to do, though that be not expressed, which is the case of many other things which were done, though not Recorded as Precepts: Oath was omitted in its proper place, and had not been Recorded in this extraordinary occasion had not been exacted.

12 And they found among the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead, four hundred * young virgins m that had not known no man by lying with any male: and they brought them unto the camp to Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

m Not Married, yet marriageable: it is probable, there were other and younger Virgins; but whether there were fewer or greater, Scripture determines not, and the Learned do not agree, but they could not have the present and urgent occasion, and therefore he takes notice only of these 400 which were of ripe Age.

13 And the whole congregation sent some † to speak † Heb. and to the children of Benjamin that were in the rock called Rimmon, and to call ‖ peaceably unto them.

‖ Or, to proclaim peace.

14 And Benjamin n came again at that time, and they gave them wives which they had saved alive of the women of Jabesh-gilead: and yet so they sufficed them not.

n The poor remainders of the Tribe of Benjamin.

15 And the people repented them for Benjamin o, because that the LORD had made a breach p in the tribes of Israel.

o Were ver more grieved upon this unhappy disappointment, for they supposed here would have been Wives sufficient for them. p The Benjamites were the only Authors of the Sin, but God was the chief Author of the Punishment, and the Israelites were but his Executioners.

16 ¶ Then the elders of the congregation said, How shall we do for wives for them that remain? seeing the women are destroyed out of Benjamin?

q For the rest who are yet unprovided of Wives.

17 And they said, There must be an inheritance for them that be escaped out of Benjamin r, that a tribe be not destroyed out of Israel.

r The Inheritance promised by Jacob and Moses, and given by Joshua to the Tribe of Benjamin, doth all of it belong to the few which remain of that Tribe, and cannot be Possessed by any other Tribes; and therefore we are obliged to procure Wives for them all, that they may make up this breach, and be capable of possessing and managing all their Land: that this Tribe, and their Inheritance may not be confounded with, or swall'wed up by any of the rest. Heb. the inheritance (to wit, belonging to the whole Tribe of Benjamin) is, or belongs to them that be escaped of Benjamin.

18 Howbeit we may not give them wives of our daughters; for the children of Israel have sworn, saying, Cursed be he that giveth a wife to Benjamin s.

s i.e. To this Generation of Benjamites who have made themselves guilty of this foul Wickedness: but this Oath did not extend to their Posterity. And some think it had another exception, to wit, unless the surviving Benjamites could not otherwise be supplied with Wives.

19 Then they said, Behold, there is a feast of the LORD in Shiloh † yearly, in a place which is on the north side of Beth-el, ‖ on the east side of the high-way that goeth from Beth-el to Sychem, and on the south of Lebonah.

† Heb. from days to days. ‖ Or, as the sun ariseth.

t On the three Solemn Feasts, in which they used to go, to sacrifice, and holy Rejoycings among which, Passing-over, Exod. 12. 20. Or, 23. 1 Sam. 1. 3. &c. and 2 Sam. 15. 11. and promises it was the Feast of Tabernacles, which they did Celebrate with more than ordinary joy, Deut. 16. 14, 15. Isa. 30. 29. Heb. to us the month of Bethel, which doth not refer to Shiloh, which is not known a place, that it was frivolous to describe it by such circumstances, even by places much less known than it felt; but to the Feast, which as to that part or exercise of the Feast here especially concerned and mentioned, to wit, the Dancing of the Virgins, was not celebrated in Shiloh, but in a Neighbouring place more convenient for that purpose.

20 Therefore they commanded the children of Benjamin, saying, Go, and lie in wait in the vineyards:

21 And see, and behold, if the daughters of Shiloh x come out to dance in dances, then come ye out of the vineyards y, and catch ye every man his wife of the daughters of Shiloh z, and go to the land of Benjamin.

x By whom he may possibly understand not those only who were born or settled Inhabitants there, (as many conceive) but all those who were come thither upon this occasion, and for a time sojourned there: For although only the Males were obliged to go up the Three solemn Feasts; yet it is apparent, that the Women had liberty to go, and those who were most devout did usually go, and others, upon special reasons or occasions: See 1 Sam. 1. 7, 21, 22, 24. Luk. 2. 22. 23, 41, 42, 43. And it may be justly presumed, especially concerning those Women that lived at no great distance from the place of Publick Worship, that they came thither in great numbers. Moreover, the daughters of Shiloh, strictly so called, are not only they that lived in that Town or City, but in the Country belonging to it, which oft comes under the name of the City to which it belongs. And these may be here particularly named, because though others might come, yet they were under great obligations to come, because of their nearness to the place. y Which were near to their Dancing-place. z Take them away by force or violence. Which they might the better do, because mixed Dances were not used by the People of God in their Solemnities, but the Women danced by themselves, and therefore were more liable to this Rape.

22 And it shall be when their fathers, or their brethren come unto us to complain, that we will say unto them, ‖ Be favourable unto them a for our sakes: because we reserved not to each man his wife in the war b: for ye did not give unto them at this time, that ye should be guilty c.

‖ Or, Grant it us in them.

a Pass by their offence, if not for their sakes, whom necessity forced to this course; yet for our sakes, and indeed for your own sakes; for both you and we have done them a great injury in Prosecuting them with so much fury, as to endanger the utter extinction of the whole Tribe: and therefore this is the least we can do by way of reparation. b Either, First, in the War with Jabesh-Gilead, wherein they should have taken care to reserve a sufficient number, which they might have done, by sparing either so many of the Married Women as were necessary, who, their former Husbands being slain, might have been married to those Benjamites; or as many of the younger Virgins, who, within a little time, might have been Married to them; whom many suppose that they slew. Or, Secondly, in the War with the Benjamites, in which they acknowledge their cruelty in destroying the Women with such fury, as not to leave a competent number for the Men which were left. See Judg. 20. 48. c Qu. Whether this did really discharge them from their Oath? 1. Answ. It seems to excuse those Parents of these Virgins who were not acquainted with the Plot, and did neither directly nor indirectly give their Daughters to them, but they were taken away by force, without their knowledge and consent. If it taken away by force, without their knowledge and consent. If it be said, those Parents might and should have retaken their Daughters from them; it may be replied, that they could not do so before they were corrupted, and the Rulers of Israel would not assist them with their Power to recover them. And it is a Maxim, That many things which ought not to be done, when once they are done, should not be undone. And for those Parents who were conscious of the Design, it is probable they kept their Daughters at home to avoid this. Secondly, Either the Oath was made with an exception of the Case of the total Exirpation of a Tribe, or it was a rash Oath to do what was out of their Power, or what they could not lawfully do; to wit, utterly to destroy a Tribe out of Israel, which therefore they here speak of with horror, v. 3, 6. and if so, as they sinned in making it, so they were not obliged to keep it; it being an acknowledged truth, That rash and sinful Oaths are better broken than kept. Thirdly, Yet they cannot be wholly excused from Sin in this matter; for as it was folly to take such an Oath as it is expressed, so the manner of freeing themselves from their own Snare, is fraudulent and injurious to the Parents, in disposing of their Children without their consent.

23 And the children of Benjamin did so, and took them wives according to their number d, of them that danced, whom they caught: and they went and returned unto their inheritance e, and repaired the cities, and dwelt in them f.

d i.e. Each Man his Wife, as is said v. 22. By which we may see, they had no very favourable opinion of Polygamy, because they did not allow it in this case, when it might seem most necessary for the reparation of a loft Tribe. e Which being very near the place, they could speedily do before the Parents could obtain redress. f Not at that instant, which could not be; but by degrees, increasing their Buildings as their number increased.

24 And the children of Israel departed thence at that time, every man to his tribe, and to his family, and they went out from thence, every man to his inheritance.

25 * In those days there was no king in Israel; every man did that which was right in his own eyes. * Chap. 17. 6. & 18. 1. & 19. 1. & 21. 25.

The ARGUMENT.

THis little Book, by whomsoever Written, which is not material to know, is annexed to the Book of Judges, and by some of the Hebrew Doctors made a part of it. It is useful, as far many other points, so especially to shew the Genealogy of David; and consequently of Christ; and the Rise of Christ from a Moabitish Woman: which was an useful document, and a great encouragement to the Gentiles to believe in Christ.

CHAP. I.

A Famine in Canaan. Elimelech removes to Moab: With Naomi his Wife, and his two Sons, who marry Orpah and Ruth there: And dye, 1,—5. Naomi returns to Judah: Her Daughters in Law accompany her on her way, 6,—13. Orpah returns home to her People and Gods: Ruth remains being Converted, 14,——18. They come to Bethlehem, 19,—22.

NOw it came to pass in the days when the judges † ruled a, that there was a * famine in the land b: and a certain man of Bethlehem-Judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab c, he, and his wife, and his two sons.

† Heb. judged. * 2 Kings 8. 1.

a Which is noted as the cause of the following Famine, because in much of that time they were guilty of great defection from God. But under which of the Judges this happened, Scripture being silent, it seems presumptuous to determine; nor is it necessary to know. What is said about this matter from the Genealogy mentioned, Chap. 4. 18, &c. it will be most proper to consider it there. b Or, in that land; to wit, of Canaan. c A fruitful Land, beyond Jordan, Eastward.

2 And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife, Naomi, and the name of his two sons, Mahlon, and Chilion, Ephrathites d of Bethlehem-Judah e: and they came into the country of Moab, and † continued there f.

† Heb. were. Numb. 9. 21.

d So called, because this Bethlehem is otherwise called Ephrath or Ephratha, Gen. 35. 15. Mich. 5. 2. either from Caleb's Wife of that name, 1 Chron. 2. 19. and 4. 4. or from the fertility of the Soyl about it; which title may therefore be used here, to shew the greatness of the Famine, which affected even fertile parts. e See the Notes on Judg. 17. 7. 11. 5. f To wit, during the Famine.

3 And Elimelech Naomi's husband died, and she was left, and her two sons.

4 And they took them wives of the women of Moab g: the name of the one was Orpah, and the name of the other Ruth: and they dwelt there about ten years h.

g Either these were Proselytes when they Married them, which may well be doubted, from v. 15. or they sinned in marrying them, as appears from Deut. 7. 3. and 23. 3. Ezra 9. 1, 2. Nehem. 13. 23. and therefore were punished with short Life, and want of Issue, v. 5, 19, 21. h As long as the Famine lasted.

5 And Mahlon, and Chilion died also both of them, and the woman was left of her two sons, and her husband.

6 Then she arose with her daughters in law, that she might return from the country of Moab: for she had heard in the country of Moab, how that the LORD had visited his people in giving them bread i.

i i.e. Food; so she staid no longer there than necessity forced her.

7 Wherefore she went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters in law with her: and they went on the way to return unto the land of Judah.

8 And Naomi said unto her two daughters in law, * Go, return each to her mothers house k: the LORD deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead l, and with me.

* Set 1 Sam. 15. 33

k Not that they wanted Fathers, Ruth 2. 11. but because Daughters used to converse more frequently with their Mothers, and to be most endeared to them, and to dwell in the same Apartments with them, which then were distinct from those parts of the House where the Men dwelt. l With my Sons, your Husbands, whilest they lived.

9 The 9 The LORD grant you, that ye may find rest m, each of you in the house of her husband: Then she kissed them n, and they lift up their voice and wept.

m i.e. A quiet and happy life, free from those Cares, Vexations, Incumbrances, and Troubles which Widows are in a special manner exposed unto. n As the manner there was when friends parted.

10 And they said unto her, Surely we will return with thee unto thy people.

11 And Naomi said, Turn again my daughters: why will ye go with me? are there yet any more sons in my womb, that they may be your husbands o?

o According to the Ancient Custom, Gen. 38. and the express Law of God, Deut. 25. 5. which doubtless she had acquainted them with before, among other branches of the Jewish Religion, wherein she did instruct them.

12 Turn again my daughters, go your way p, for I am too old to have an husband: if I should say, I have hope, if I should have a husband also to night, and should also bear sons:

p Qu. Why doth she dissuade them from this journey, and not rather perswade them to go with her, and to embrace the Jewish Religion? Answ. 1. Possibly she thought such dissuasion might be the best way to perswade them, as it oft happens; especially in that Sex. 2. She would not have them rashly and inconsiderately to embrace the Jewish Religion, in hopes of some advantage from it, which she justly thought they would be disappointed of; and withal, exposed to many ftraits and troubles, and on that occasion, revolt from the True Religion, which would be far worse than never to have embraced it. And therefore she doth justly, and wisely, and piously in representing to them the truth of the business, and the outward inconveniences which would accompany the Change of their Place, and Religion; as also our blessed Lord Christ did, Mat. 8. 20.

13 Would ye † tarry for them till they were grown? would ye stay for them from having husbands o? nay, my daughters: for † it grieveth me much for your sakes p, that * the hand of the LORD is gone out against me.

† Heb. I have bitterness. * Job 19. 21.

o It is unreasonable for me to expect it, or for you to perform it. p That you are left without the comfort of Husbands or Children that I must part with such dear and affectionate Daughters; and that my circumstances are such, that I cannot invite, nor incourage you to go along with me. For her condition was so mean at this time, that Ruth, when she came to her Mother's City, was forced to Glean for a living, Chap. 2. 2.

14 And they lift up their voice, and wept again: and Orpah kissed her mother in law q, but Ruth clave unto her.

q i.e. Departed from her with a kiss, as the manner was, Gen. 31. 28. 1 Kings 19. 20.

15 And she said, Behold, thy sister in law is gone back unto her people, and unto her gods r: † return thou after thy sister in law.

† Heb. Or, is gone back.

r Which she saith, partly to try Ruth's sincerity and constancy; partly, that by upbraiding Orpah with her Idolatry, she might consequently turn her from it; and partly, that she might insinuate to her, that if she went with her, she must embrace the True God and Religion.

16 And Ruth said, ‖ Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee, for whither thou goest, I will go: and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God s:

‖ Or, Urge me not.

s I renounce those Idols which my Sister hath returned to, and I will Worship no other God but thine, who is indeed the only True God.

17 Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: the LORD do so to me and more also, if ought but death part thee and me.

† Heb. Strengthened herself.

18 When she saw that she † was stedfastly minded to go with her, then she left speaking unto her.

19 ¶ So they two went until they came to Bethlehem: and it came to pass when they were come to Bethlehem, that all the city was moved about them, and ‖ they said, Is this Naomi t?

‖ That is, the women. † Heb. Is this. ‖ Heb. Tirah.

t Is this she that formerly lived in so much Plenty and Honour? Oh how marvellously is her condition changed, that she is returned in this forlorn and desolate condition!

20 And she said unto them, Call me not ‖ Naomi u, call me ‖ Mara x: for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me.

u Which signifies pleasant, or chearful, or amiable. x Which signifies bitter or sorrowful.

21 I went out full y, and the LORD hath brought me home again empty: why then call ye me Naomi, seeing the LORD hath testified against me z, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?

y With my Husband and Sons, and a plentiful Estate for our support. z i.e. Hath born witness, as it were, in Judgment, and given Sentence against me, and declared my Sin by my Punishment.

22 So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess her daughter in law with her, which returned out of the country of Moab, and they came to Bethlehem in the beginning of barley harvest.

CHAP. II.

Ruth gleaning in the fields of Boaz her deceased Husband's near Kinsman, he taketh knowledge of her, 1,—7. He sheweth her great kindness, and blesseth her, 8,—16. That which she got she brings to Naomi: and telleth her what had befallen her: She giveth God thanks, and exhorteth Ruth to continue to the field, 17,—23.

AND Naomi had a kinsman of her husbands, a mighty man of wealth, of the family of Elimeleck, and his name was Boaz.

2 And Ruth the Moabitess said unto Naomi, Let me now go to the field and glean a ears of corn after him, in whose sight I shall find grace b. And she said unto her, Go, my daughter.

a Which was permitted to the Poor, and the Stranger, Deut. 24. 19. both which she was; nor was she ashamed to confess her Poverty, nor would she eat the bread of idleness: whereby she freedom her self to be a prudent, and diligent, and vertuous Woman, as she is called, Ruth 3. 11. b For though it was their duty to permit this, Levit. 19. 9. and 23. 22. yet either she was ignorant thereof, or thought, that being a Stranger, it might be grudged, or denied to her; or, at least, that it became her modestly and humbly to acknowledge their kindness herein.

3 And she went, and came, and gleaned in the field after the reapers: and her † hap was c to light on † Heb. her part. a part of the field belonging unto ‖ Boaz, who was of the kindred of Elimelech. ‖ Called Mat. 1. 5.

c For it was indeed a chance in reference to Second Causes, but ordered and designed by God's Providence. Boaz.

4 ¶ And behold, Boaz came from Bethlehem, and said unto the reapers, The LORD be with you: and they answered him, The LORD bless thee d.

d They expressed and professed their Piety, even in their civil Conversation, and worldly Transactions; which now so many are ashamed of, and call it Hypocrisie or vain Ostentation to thus to do.

5 Then said Boaz unto his servant that was set over the reapers, Whose damsel is this?

6 And the servant that was set over the reapers answered and said, It is the Moabitish damsel, that came back with Naomi e out of the country of Moab.

e i.e. That came with Naomi when she came back: for otherwise, as Ruth did not go from thence, so she could not properly be said to come back.

7 And she said, I pray you, let me glean f, and gather after the reapers amongst the ‖ sheaves: so she came and hath continued even from the morning until now g, that she tarried a little in the house h. ‖ Or, handfuls.

f She did not boldly intrude her self, but modestly ask leave of us. g She is not rectified through idleness, for she hath been diligent and constant in her labours. h Not in Naomi's house, as many understand it, as may be gathered from v. 18, 19. but in the little House or Tent, which was set up in the Fields at these times, and was necessary in those hot Countries, where the Labourers or others might retire for a little repose or repast at fit times. Being weary with her continued labours, she comes hither to take a little rest.

8 Then said Boaz unto Ruth, Hearest thou not, my daughter? Go not to glean in another field, neither go from hence, but abide here fast by my maidens i.

i Not by the young Men, to avoid both occasion of sin, and matter of scandal. Herein he shews his Piety and Prudence.

9 Let thine eyes be on the field that they do reap, and go thou after them: have I not charged the young men that they shall not touch thee k? and when thou art athirst, go unto the vessels and drink of that which the young men have drawn.

k So as to offer any incivility or injury to thee. Touching is oft taken for hurting, Gen. 26. 11. Pfal. 105. 15.

10 Then she fell on her face l, and bowed her self to the ground, and said unto him, Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldest take knowledge of me m, seeing I am a stranger?

l This was the humblest Posture of Reverence, either Civil when performed to men, or Religious, when to God. See Gen. 18. 2. and 33. 3. and 42. 6. Matth. 2. 11. and 8. 2. m i.e. Shew any respect and kindness to me. For words of knowledge in Scripture commonly include affection.

11 And Boaz answered and said unto her, It hath fully been shewed me, all that thou hast done unto thy mother in law, since the death of thine husband: and how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and the land of thy nativity, and art come unto a people which thou knewest not n heretofore.

n Of whom thou hadſt no experience: for otherwiſe in general ſhe could not be ignorant of this People.

12 The LORD recompenſe thy work, and a full reward be given thee of the LORD God of Iſrael, under whoſe wings o thou art come to truſt.

o i.e. Protection and Care, as Deut. 32. 11. Pſal. 17. 8. and 36. 7. and 91. 3. An Alluſion either to Hens, which protect and cheriſh their Young ones under their Wings; or to the Wings of the Cherubims, between which God dwelt.

13 Then ſhe ſaid, ‖ Let me find favour in thy ſight p, my lord, for that thou haſt comforted me, and for that thou haſt ſpoken † friendly unto thine hand-maid, though I be not like unto one of thy hand-maidens q.

‖ Or, I find favour. † Heb. to the heart.

p I humbly implore the continuance of thy good Opinion of me, though I do not deſerve it. q A Perſon more mean, and neceſſitous, and obſcure, being a ſtranger, and one born of Heathenith Parents, and not of the Holy and Honourable People of Iſrael, as they are.

14 And Boaz ſaid unto her, At meal-time come thou hither, and eat of the bread r, and dip thy morſel in the vinegar ſ. And ſhe ſate beſide the reapers: and he reached her parched corn u, and ſhe did eat, and was ſufficed, and left.

r Which in thoſe ſimple and frugal times was the uſual Food of Servants and the meaneſt Sort, at leaſt when they were engaged in ſuch Works as this, which required ſpeed, and therefore muſt be quick in their Eating, as well as in their Work. Or, Bread may be here put for any Food, as it often is. ſ Either ſimple Vinegar, in which the Poorer ſort uſed to dip their Bread, and ſo Eat it in hot Countries, as they did not only in Canaan, but afterwards in Italy; it being very proper, eſpecially in thoſe Parts, for cooling them in thoſe hot Seaſons, for ſtrengthning their Sinews, &c. or Vinegar mixed with other things to make ſome kind of Sauce. t Not with or among them, but at ſome little diſtance from them, and as one inferiour to them, as ſhe had acknowledged before in Words, and now ſheweth it by her Actions. u A Food in frequent uſe, and ſome eſteem with them. See 2 Sam. 17. 28.

15 And when ſhe was riſen up to glean, Boaz commanded his young men, ſaying, Let her glean among the ſheaves, and † reproach her not x.

† Heb. blame her not.

x As if ſhe were rude or impudent in ſo doing, as otherwiſe they ſhould have thought. Queſt. Why did he not rather give her as much Corn as ſhe could carry, and ſend her away? Anſ. Becauſe he would not have her to Eat the Bread of Idleneſs, but howſoever to get it with the Sweat of her Brows, according to her Duty and preſent Condition.

16 And let fall alſo ſome of the handfuls, of purpoſe for her, and leave them, that ſhe may glean them, and rebuke her not.

17 So ſhe gleaned in the field until Even, and beat out that ſhe had gleaned: and it was about an ephah y of barley.

y Which is thought to contain about a Buſhel. See Exod. 16. 36. Levit. 5. 11.

18 ¶ And ſhe took it up, and went into the city: and her mother in law ſaw what ſhe had gleaned: and ſhe brought forth, and gave to her that ſhe had reſerved, and was ſufficed z.

z Or, that which ſhe had left of her faſneſs, or after ſhe was ſatisfied. She did Eat as much as ſhe deſired of what ſhe had Gleaned, and her Mother, as I ſuppoſe, with her, and the reſidue ſhe gave to her Mother, to lay up for future uſe.

19 And her mother in law ſaid unto her, Where haſt thou gleaned to day? and where wroughteſt thou? bleſſed be he that did take knowledge of thee. And ſhe ſhewed her mother in law with whom ſhe had wrought, and ſaid, The mans name with whom I wrought to day, is Boaz.

20 And Naomi ſaid unto her daughter in law, Bleſſed be he of the LORD, who hath not left off his kindneſs to the living * and to the dead a. And Naomi ſaid unto her, The man is near of kin unto us, ‖ one of our next kinſmen b.

* 2 Sam. 2. 5.

‖ Or, one that hath right to redeem.

a i.e. Which he formerly ſhewed to thoſe who are now dead, to wit, my Husband and his Sons whilſt they were living, and now continues to us, their Wives, who are now alive. b Heb. one of our Redeemers, or Avengers, to whom it belongs to Avenge our Perſons, and to Redeem our Lands, and to Marry thee, the Widow and Relict of his next Kinſman, as is expreſſed, Ruth 3. 9. She ſaith, one of them, not that there were many who were immediately ſuch, but that he was a very near Kinſman, and one to whom that Office belonged, in caſe of the refuſal of one Perſon, of whom ſhe rightly conjectured that he would refuſe, as he did.

21 And Ruth the Moabiteſs ſaid, He ſaid unto me alſo, Thou ſhalt keep faſt by my young men, until they have ended all my harveſt c.

c Both Barley-Harveſt, and Wheat-Harveſt, as is ſaid, v. 23.

22 And Naomi ſaid unto Ruth her daughter in law, It is good, my daughter, that thou go out with his maidens, that they ‖ meet thee not in any other field d.

‖ Or, fall upon thee.

d Whereby thou will eſt both expoſe thy ſelf to many inconveniences, which thou mayſt expect from Strangers; and incur his diſpleaſure, as if thou diddſt either deſpiſe his proffered kindneſs, or doubt of the ſincerity of his Affections and Offers.

23 So ſhe kept faſt by the maidens of Boaz to glean, unto the end of barley-harveſt, and of wheat-harveſt, and dwelt e with her mother in law.

e Heb. ſat, or continued at home, when ſhe had diſpatched her occaſions abroad, and did not wander or gad abroad, after the manner of Idle Perſons and Harlots, Prov. 7. 11, 12.

CHAP. III.

By Naomi's Advice, Ruth lieth at Boaz his feet, 1,——7. he awaking commendeth what ſhe had done, and acknowledgeth the Right of a Kinſman. Tells her there was a nearer Kinſman, to whom he would offer her, who refuſing, he would redeem her, 8, 13. Sends her away with 6 meaſures of Barley, 14, 18.

THEN Naomi her mother in law ſaid unto her, My daughter, ſhall I not ſeek reſt a for thee, that it may be well with thee?

a i.e. A life of Reſt, and Comfort, and Safety, under the Care of a good Husband. The Queſtion ſuppoſeth an Affirmative Anſwer: I will ſeek it, as my Duty binds me.

2 And now, is not Boaz of our Kinred, with whoſe maidens thou waſt? Behold, he winnoweth barley to night in the threſhing floor b.

b Which was in a place covered at the top, but open elſewhere, whither Ruth might eaſily come. And this work of winnowing Corn was uſually begun or ended with a Feaſt, as may be gathered both from v. 7. and from other Inſtances, wherein they uſed to do ſo upon like occaſions; and this work was to begin this Evening, and, as ſome think, was done only in the Evenings, when the heat grew leſs, and the wind began to blow. See Gen. 3. 8.

3 Waſh thy ſelf therefore, and anoint thee, and put thy raiment c upon thee, and get thee down to the floor: but make not thy ſelf known unto the man d, until he ſhall have done eating and drinking.

c To wit, thy beſt Raiment. All this was done to render her ſelf more Amiable in the Eyes of Boaz. Obj. But Boaz could not ſee her, the whole buſineſs being to be tranſacted by Night. Anſ. Firſt, It was begun in the beginning of the Night, as ſoon as Boaz had ſupped and compoſed himſelf to reſt; as appears from v. 4, 7. when there was ſo much Light left as might diſcover her to him. Secondly, There being a Solemn Feaſt this Evening, as is very probably thought, and the Maſter of the Feaſt having invited his Labouring People to it, and Ruth among the reſt, it is likely that both ſhe and the reſt did put themſelves into their beſt Dreſs upon that occaſion, as the manner is even at this day; and ſo he had opportunity enough to ſee her. d To wit, not in ſo familiar a way, as ſhe was appointed to do, ſo as he might know her, in the ſecret in which that word is ſometimes uſed.

e To reſt or ſleep, as upon ſuch occaſions they uſed to do in thoſe hot Countries. f Though Naomi and Ruth ſeem to be vertuous and modeſt Women, and their intent was Lawful and Honeſt; yet there ſeems to be a manifold Indecency in the manner of it. Firſt, It ſeems to be againſt that Modeſty, which ſhould be eminent in that Sex, and in unmarried Perſons. Secondly, Againſt Honeſty, both becauſe it was an injury to another Perſon, who was nearer akin, whoſe right this was; which Naomi could not be ignorant of: and becauſe it was a Prepoſterous and Precipitate Method, nor agreeable either to the Rules of Scripture, or the Uſage of well-mannered Women, as that Decency which even Nature requries. Thirdly, Againſt Prudence; for it might have proved the occaſion, as of many Sins, ſo of great ſhame to all of them; and a means to Alienate his Affection from her, which ſhe fought to engage. And though there be ſome Circumſtances which Alleviate the Fact, as the Experience which Naomi had of the Wiſdom and Sobriety both of Boaz and of Ruth, yet ſhe knew not what the event would be; and that there was ſomething of ſhamefulneſs in the thing, may be gathered both from Naomi's choice of the Night for it, as if it were a work of Darkneſs; and from Boaz his fear leaſt this ſhould be known, v. 14. And it is an aggravation of it, that this Courſe was unneceſſary, and ſhe had a plain and likely way, which was directly to Addreſs her ſelf to Boaz, or the next Kinſman, and to require the Duty which by God's Law he was bound to perform, and this before Witneſſes, as Boaz did. And her Clandeſtine proceeding ſeems to have ariſen from a diſtruſt of God's Providence, to bring about what ſhe deſired in the ordinary way. g Remove the Clothes which were upon his Feet; thereby to awaken him. h How thou ſhouldſt carry thy ſelf, or what courſe thou ſhalt take to obtain that Marriage which belongs unto thee. Only there were ſome Rites to be obſerved, and Circumſtances to be done, before they came to the concluſion of the Marriage, about which Boaz would inſtruct her.

5 And ſhe ſaid unto her, All that thou ſaiſt unto me, I will do i.

i The Confidence ſhe had in Naomi's Wiſdom and Piety, and true Love to her, made her ready to follow her Advice, wherein ſhe was the more excuſable, becauſe ſhe did not underſtand the Laws and Cuſtoms of the Country, as Naomi did.

6 ¶ And ſhe went down unto the floor, and did according to all that her mother in law bade her.

7 And

7 And when Boaz had eaten and drunk k, and his heart was merry, he went to lie down at the end of the heap of corn: and ſhe came ſoftly, and uncovered his feet, and laid her down.

k To wit, liberally, as the manner was upon thoſe occaſions. See Judg. 9. 27. Pſal. 4. 7. Iſa. 9. 3.

8 ¶ And it came to paſs at midnight l, that the man was afraid, and ‖ turned himſelf m, and behold, a woman lay at his feet n.

‖ Or, took heed to himſelf.

l He did not diſcover her ſooner, though ſhe did uncover his Feet, being it ſeems in a deep ſleep, as is uſual after Feaſts, and ſhe doing no more than her Mother commanded her, and uſing no words or geſtures which might provoke his Luſt: wherein ſhe ſhewed her Temperance and Modeſty, and that what ſhe did was only by her Mothers Inſtigation and Advice, which plainly appeared from her deſire expreſſed, v. 9. which he knew, ſhe being a Stranger, was unacquainted with. And this was the reaſon why Boaz was not in the leaſt offended with her, but only commends her Vertue, without any reflection upon her for this Fact. m From the place where he lay, he raiſed and turned himſelf towards the Feet, to learn who or what was there. Or, he was troubled, or affraid, or wondred. For the Hebrew word being but once uſed, is diverſly rendred. n Which he might underſtand, either by ſome glimmerings of Light which were after midnight, which diſcovered her; or rather, by her Voice, or out of her own Mouth, who being aſked, told him ſo much in general, before he made particular enquiry.

9 And he ſaid, Who art thou? And ſhe anſwered, I am Ruth thine hand-maid: ſpread therefore thy ſkirt over thine hand-maid o, for thou art ‖ a near kinſman.

‖ Or, one that hath right to redeem.

o i.e. Take me to be thy Wife, and perform the Duty of an Huſband to me. This Phraſe is uſed in this ſence, Deut. 22. 30. and 27. 20. Ezek. 16. 8. Either, Firſt, Becauſe the Wife is admitted into the ſame Bed with her Husband, and both are covered with one and the ſame Covering. Or, Secondly, From an ancient Ceremony of the Husbands throwing the Skirt of his Garment over her Head, in token both of her ſubjection, 1 Cor. 11. 5, 6, 10. and appropriation to him, being hereby as it were hid from the Eyes of others: See Gen. 20. 16. and alſo of that Protection which he oweth to her; ſee Ruth 2. 12.

10 And he ſaid, Bleſſed be thou of the LORD, my daughter: for thou haſt ſhewed more kindneſs p in the latter end, than at the beginning, in as much as thou followedſt not young men q, whether poor, or rich.

p Both to thy deceaſed Husband, the continuance of whoſe Name and Memory thou preferreſt before the ſatisfaction of thy own Luſt; and to thy Mother-in-law, whoſe Commands thou haſt punctually obeyed, even with thy own hazard in ſo doubtful an Enterprize. q To ſeek thy Marriage either here, or in thy own Country, as thou wouldſt have done if thou hadſt not preferred Obedience to God's Command, before the pleaſing of thy ſelf.

11 And now my daughter, fear not r, I will do to thee all that thou requireſt ſ: for all the † city of my people doth know, that thou art a vertuous woman.

r Think not that I Deſpiſe and Reject thee, becauſe I do not immediately comply with thy Deſire. ſ i.e. Marry thee, upon the Condition here following.

12 And now it is true, that I am thy near kinſman: howbeit, there is a kinſman nearer than I.

13 Tarry this night, and it ſhall be in the morning, that if he will perform unto thee the part of a kinſman t, well, let him do the kinſmans part: but if he will not do the part of a kinſman to thee, then will I do the part of a kinſman to thee, as the LORD liveth: lie down until the morning.

t i.e. Take thee to Wife, to raiſe up Seed to his Brother, as he ought to do.

14 ¶ And ſhe lay at his feet until the morning: and ſhe roſe up before one could know another u. And he ſaid, Let it not be known that a woman came into the floor x.

u i.e. While it was yet ſo dark that one Perſon could not diſcern another. Or, before one did know the other; i.e. before they were carnally known to one another. x He takes care to preſerve not only his Conſcience towards God, but his Reputation, and hers alſo, among Men.

Or, keep it.

15 Alſo he ſaid, Bring the ‖ veil y that thou haſt upon thee, and hold it. And when ſhe held it, he meaſured ſix meaſures z of barley, and laid it on her: and ſhe went into the city.

y Or, the apron, ſuch as Women ordinarily wear. z Known and uſual Meaſure: It is not determined how large thoſe Meaſures were, but this the Nature of the thing ſhews, that they were no larger than one Woman could carry in her Veil, or Apron.

16 And when ſhe came to her mother in law, ſhe ſaid, Who art thou, my daughter? And ſhe told her all that the man had done to her.

17 And ſhe ſaid, Theſe ſix meaſures of barley gave he me, for he ſaid to me, Go not empty to thy mother in law.

18 Then ſaid ſhe, Sit ſtill my daughter until thou know how the matter will fall: for the man will not be in reſt, until he have finiſhed the thing this day.

CHAP. IV.

Boaz goeth up to the gate, calleth his kinſman: enquires whether he would redeem and marry Ruth, 1,——5. He refuſeth, 6,——8. Boaz, the people witneſſing and congratulating, buyeth the inheritance and marrieth Ruth, 9,——12. She beareth Obed the grand-father of David, 13,——17. The Genealogie from Pharez unto David, 18,——22.

THEN went Boaz up to the gate a, and ſate him down there: and behold, the kinſman of whom Boaz ſpake, came by, unto whom he ſaid, Ho, ſuch an one b, turn aſide, ſit down here c. And he turned aſide, and ſate down.

a The place where Controverſies were decided, and the People aſſembled, and where they uſed to go out, and come in to the Town; where he was moſt likely to find his Kinſman. b Doubtleſs Boaz knew his Name, and called him by it, but it is omitted by the holy Writer; partly becauſe it was unneceſſary to know it; and principally in way of contempt, as is uſual, and as a juſt puniſhment upon him, that he who would not preſerve his Brother's Name, might loſe his own, and lie buried in the Grave of perpetual Oblivion. c I have ſome Buſineſs of Importance with you.

2 And he took ten men d, of the elders of the city, and ſaid, Sit ye down here. And they ſate down.

d To be Umpires or Witneſſes between them: for though two or three Witneſſes were ſufficient, yet in weightier Matters they uſed more. And ten was the uſual Number among the Jews, in Cauſes of Matrimony and Divorces, and tranſlation of Inheritances; who were both Judges of the Cauſes, and Witneſſes of the Fact. See 1 King. 21. 8.

3 And he ſaid unto the kinſman, Naomi e, that is come again out of the country of Moab, ſelleth a parcel of land f, which was our brother Elimelechs.

e Both Naomi and Ruth had an Intereſt in this Land during their Lives, but he mentions only Naomi, partly becauſe all was done by her direction, to which Ruth wholly ſubmitted her ſelf; and partly left the mention of Ruth ſhould raiſe a ſuſpicion of the neceſſity of his marrying Ruth, before he had given his Anſwer to the firſt Propoſition. f Which ſhe might do becauſe of her Poverty, Levit. 25. 25.

4 And † I thought to adverтiſe thee, ſaying, Buy † Heb. I ſaid before the inhabitants, and before the elders of my people g. If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it, but if thou will not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know: for there is none to redeem it beſides thee, and I am after thee. And he ſaid, I will redeem it.

I will uncover thine ear. Heb. gain.

g Before this Aſſembly, that it may be Legally, and Firmly made over to thee.

5 Then ſaid Boaz, What day thou buyeſt the field of the hand of Naomi, thou muſt buy it alſo of Ruth the Moabiteſs, the wife of the dead h, to raiſe up the name of the dead i upon his inheritance.

h According to the Law, Deut. 25. 5, &c. Matth 22. 24, &c. i To revive his Name, which was loſt and buried with his Body, by raiſing up a Seed to him, to be called by his Name.

6 ¶ And the kinſman ſaid, I cannot redeem it for my ſelf, leſt I mar mine own inheritance k: redeem thou my right l to thy ſelf, for I cannot redeem it.

k Either, Firſt, Becauſe having no Children of his own, he might have one, and but one Son by Ruth, who, though he ſhould carry away his Inheritance, yet ſhould not bear his Name, but the Name of Ruth's Husband; and ſo by preferring another Man's Name, he ſhould loſe his own. Or, Secondly, Becauſe as his Inheritance would be but very little increaſed by this Marriage, ſo it might be much diminiſhed by being divided amongſt his many Children, which he poſſibly had already, and might probably have more by Ruth. l Which I freely renounce and reſign to thee.

7 * Now this was the manner in former time in Iſrael, concerning redeeming, and concerning changing, for to confirm all things m: a man plucked off his ſhoe, and gave it to his neighbour n: and this was a teſtimony in Iſrael o.

* Deut. 25. 7, 9.

m i.e. In all Alienation of Lands. So that it is no wonder if this Ceremony differ a little from that Deut. 25. 6. becauſe that concerned only one Caſe, but this is more general. Beſides, he pleads not the Command or God, but only ancient Cuſtom, for this Tranſlation. n He who relinquiſhed his Right to another, pluckt off his own Shoe and gave it to him. This was Symbolical, and a ſignificant and convenient venient Ceremony, as if he said, Take this Shoe wherewith I used to go and tread upon my Land, and in that Shoe do thou enter upon go and tread upon my Land, and in that Shoe do thou enter upon and take possession of it. o This was admitted for sufficient Evidence in all such Cases.

8 Therefore the kinſman ſaid unto Boaz, Buy it for thee: ſo he drew off his ſhoe.

9 ¶ And Boaz ſaid unto the elders, and unto all the people, Ye are witneſſes this day, that I have bought all that was Elimelechs, and all that was Chilions, and Mahlons, of the hand of Naomi.

10 Moreover, Ruth the Moabiteſs, the wife of Mahlon have I purchaſed to be my wife, to raiſe up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, that the name of the dead be not cut off from among his brethren, and from the gate of his place p: ye are witneſſes this day.

p i.e. From among the Inhabitants dwelling within the Gate of this City, which was Bethlehem-Judah.

11 And all the people that were in the gate, and the elders ſaid, We are witneſſes: The LORD make the woman that is come into thine houſe, like Rachel, and like Leah q, which two did build the houſe of Iſrael: and ‖ do thou worthily in Ephratah ſ, and † be famous in Bethlehem r.

q Amiable and Fruitful. Thoſe two are ſingled out; partly because they were of a Foreign and Heathenish Original, and yet ingrafted into God's People, as Ruth alſo was: and partly, becauſe of that ſingular Fertility which God vouchſafed unto them above their Predeceſſors, Sarah and Rebecca. Rachel is placed before Leah, becauſe ſhe was his moſt lawful, and only intended, and chiefeſt, and beſt-beloved Wife. r i.e. Increaſe the Poſterity. See Gen. 16. 2. Exod. 1. 21. s Two Names of one and the ſame Place; of which ſee on Ruth 1. 2.

† Heb. do thou thy name.

12 And let thy houſe be like the houſe of Phares t, (whom Tamar bare unto Judah) of the ſeed which the LORD ſhall give thee of this young woman.

* Gen. 38. 27. 1 Chron. 2. 4. Matth. 1. 3.

t As honourable and numerous as his Family was; whom, though he alſo was born of a Stranger, God ſo far bleſſed, that his Family was one of the five Families to which all the Tribe of Judah belonged, and the Progenitor of the Inhabitants of this City.

13 ¶ So Boaz took Ruth u, and ſhe was his wife: and when he went in unto her x, the LORD gave her conception y, and in due time ſhe bare a ſon.

u Which he might do, though ſhe was a Moabite, becauſe the Prohibition againſt marrying ſuch, is to be reſtrained to thoſe who continue in the Heathenish eſtate, as is evident from the reaſon of it: Whereas Ruth was a ſincere Proſelite and Convert to the God and Faith of Iſrael. x i.e. Had Conjugal Converſe with her. See Gen. 6. 4. y i.e. Strength to conceive and retain Seed.

† Heb. caused to cease unto thee.

14 And the woman ſaid unto Naomi, Bleſſed be the LORD, which hath not † left thee this day without a ‖ kinſman z, that his name may be famous in Iſrael a.

z Which is underſtood, Either, Firſt, Of the ſon new born. Or, rather, Secondly, Of Boaz: For the Name of God, which is tranſlated Kinſman or Redeemer, is never, that I know of, given to the Child born, but always to the Perſon begetting him of his Brother's or near Kinſman's Wife. And whereas it is objected, That there was no Cauſe for this Congratulation at this time in reference to Boaz, becauſe that was done divers Months before this time: It may be replied, That the Memory of that generous Action was revived upon this occaſion, and therefore is fitly mentioned as the Foundation of this Child's birth: and this happy Effect juſtly leads them to the Cauſe and Original of it, which was this, That Boaz had ſhewed himſelf to be a Kinſman or Redeemer, not only in Name and Title, as the other Kinſman was, v. 6. but in Truth and Reality. The words may be rendred, Which hath not made, or ſuffered thy Kinſman to fail to thee; i.e. To neglect or refuſe the performance of his Duty to thee and thine, as the other Kinſman did. a Heb. and his Name ſhall be famous in Iſrael, for this Noble and Worthy Action, wherein he gave ſo great an Example of Piety, Charity, Humility, and Self-denial.

15 And he ſhall be unto thee a reſtorer of thy life b, and † a nouriſher of † thine old age: for thy daughter in law which loveth thee, which * is better to thee than ſeven ſons, hath born him c.

† Heb. to nourish. † Heb. thy gray hairs. * Cant. 8. 5.

b i.e. Of the comfort of thy Life, which was in a great meaſure dead and gone. c To wit, a Son: the Pronoun for the Noun, i.e. underſtood, which is frequent in the Hebrew Tongue. Or, Hath born to him; i.e. to thy Kinſman, to wit, a Son, which is eaſily underſtood: and ſo the Pronoun affix is put for the ſeparate; of which there are Inſtances; as Pſal. 15. 15. 1 King. 19. 21. Job 31. 37. Ezek. 29. 3.

16 And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her boſom, and became nurſe unto it.

17 And the women her neighbours gave it a name d, ſaying, There is a ſon born to Naomi, and they called his name Obed e: he is the father of Jeſſe, the father of David.

d i.e. They gave her Advice about the Name; for otherwiſe they had no Power or right to do ſo. e A ſervant, to wit, to thee, to nouriſh, and comfort, and aſſiſt thee; which Duty Children owe to their Progenitors.

18 ¶ Now theſe are the generations of Pharez:
* Pharez begat Hezron.

† 1 Chron. 2. 5. Matth. 1. 3.

19 And Hezron begat Ram, and Ram begat Amminadab, 20 And Amminadab begat Nahſhon, and Nahſhon begat ‖ Salmon,

‖ Or, Salma.

21 And Salmon begat Boaz, and Boaz begat Obed, 22 And Obed begat Jeſſe, and Jeſſe begat David f.

f How can this be a true Genealogy, ſeeing by this means four Perſons take up three hundred and eighty Years, which were between Salmon and David, and conſequently every one of them muſt beget a Son when he was very old? Anſw. 1. It is not certain, that each of theſe was the immediate Parent of him whom he is ſaid to beget: for ſometimes Grand-Fathers are ſaid in Scripture to beget their Grand-Children, to wit, by the Intervention of their immediate Sons; whereof Inſtances have been given. And ſometimes in Genealogies whole Generations are omitted, as may appear by Ezra 7. 2. compared with 1 Chron. 6. 3. and by Matth. 1. 8. which might be done here for divers reaſons now unknown. 2. There are many Examples even in prophane Writers, both Ancient and Modern, of Perſons that have not only lived 120, and 130 years and upwards, but have been vigorous, and have begotten Children above 100 years old; and of Women that have conceived and born Children at the Age of 50, 60, yea, 70 years. And therefore if it were ſo in theſe more ancient Times, when Men were longer-lived, and under the Law, when long Life was expreſly promiſed to the Obedient, and in Perſons of ſtrong Conſtitutions, and ſober Converſations, ſuch as ſome of theſe are known to have been, and the others may juſtly be preſumed to be ſuch, it is not ſtrange, nor in the leaſt incredible.

I. SAMUEL.

The ARGUMENT.

IT is not certainly known who was the Pen-man of this Book, or whether is was Written by one or more Hands; nor is it of any great Importance: For ſince there are ſufficient Evidences that God was the chief Author of it, it matters not who was the Inſtrument. As when it appears that ſuch a thing was really an Act of Parliament, or of the Council-Table, it is not conſiderable who was the Clerk, or which was the Pen that Wrote it. And this is the leſs material in ſuch Hiſtorical Books, wherein there is but little which concerns the Foundation of Faith and Good Life, and therefore it was not neceſſary to Name the Writer of them. It may abundantly ſuffice, that there were in theſe Times divers Prophets and Holy Men of God; as Samuel, and Nathan, and Gad, and David himſelf, who might each of them Write ſome part of this and the following Book. But if any Man will out of perverſeneſs doubt or deny that theſe Wrote it, yet thus I ſuppoſe no diſcreet and impartial Man will deny, that it is wholly Incredible that ſuch Books ſhould be Written in their Times, and recommended to the Church as a Part of the Holy Scriptures, and ſo received by the ſucceeding Generation, without their Approbation, who had ſo great a Power and Authority in the Church and Commonwealth of Iſrael.

CHAP. I.

Elkanah goeth yearly up to the feaſt at Shiloh with his two wives: Hannah is barren; Peninnah upbraideth her, 1—6. Hannah prayeth fervently to the Lord for a ſon: promiſing to ſeparate him a Nazarite unto God, 7—12. Eli thinking her drunk, rebuketh her: upon her anſwer, bleſſeth her, 13—18. She returneth home with Elkanah, and conceiveth; beareth Samuel: offereth her ſacrifice: performs her promiſe concerning him, 19—21.

NOW there was a certain man of Ramathaim Zophim a, of mount Ephraim, and his name was * Elkanah, the ſon of Jeroham, the ſon of Elihu, the ſon of Tohu, the ſon of Zuph, an Ephrathite b:

* 1 Chron. 6. 27, 34

a Called Ramah, v. 19. and here is the Dual Number Ramathaim; i.e. double Ramah, probably becauſe it conſiſted of two parts, whereof the one might be called the Old City, the other the New, both being being united into one; and the additional Title of Zophim, which ſignifies Watch-Towers, or Watch-Men, may note either the height of its ſituation, which made it fit for that uſe; or, that the Prophets, who are called Watch-Men, as Ezek. 3. 17. had a School or College there. b i.e. One of Bethlehem-Judah, Ruth. 1. 2. to wit, by his Birth and Habitation, though by his Original a Levite. Thus divers Jews by Nation are called Medes, Elamites, Cretians, &c. Act. 2. 9, 10, 11. becauſe they were born and bred there.

2 And he had two wives c, the name of the one was Hannah, and the name of the other Peninnah: and Peninnah had children, but Hannah had no children.

c As divers other good Men had in thoſe Ages. And it is probable that he took a ſecond Wife, to wit, Peninnah, becauſe Hannah, who being firſt named ſeems to have been his firſt Wife, was barren.

3 And this man went up out of his city * † yearly d, to worſhip, and to ſacrifice e unto the LORD of hoſts in Shiloh ſ, and the two ſons of Eli, Hophni, and Phinehas, the prieſts of the LORD, were there g.

* Deut. 16. 16. † Heb. from days to days. Exod. 23. 14, 17. Deut. 16. 16.

d To wit, at one of the ſolemn Feaſts, which probably was the Paſſover, when he not only went up himſelf, but carried his Wife and Children with him. Compare v. 7. Or, at the appointed days or times: Heb. from days to days; or, from time to time; i.e. at the three ſolemn Feaſts, when he, together with all other Males were obliged to go to worſhip God in the Place appointed; and at other times, when he as a Levite, was to go thither in his courſe. e Not in his own Perſon, which the Levites could not do, but by the Prieſts; in which ſence David, and Solomon, and Abſalom are ſaid to offer ſacrifices, 2 Sam. 15. 8. 1 King 8. 63. 1 Chron. 21. 26. f Where the Tabernacle had long been, and now was. See Joſ 18. 1. Judg 18. 31. and 21. 19. g Or, were the Prieſts of the Lord there, to wit, under their Father Eli, who is generally conceived to have been the High-Prieſt, but being very old and infirm, 1 Sam. 4. 15. and unfit for ſervice, his Sons miniſtred in his ſtead, being as it were ſecond Prieſts. See 2 King. 25. 18. And this Clauſe ſeems to be added, to ſhew that this good Man did not run into that vulgar Error, of neglecting his Duty of Offering to God for the wickedneſs of the Prieſts: Of which ſee Chap. 2. 17, 24.

4 ¶ And when the time was that Elkanah offered, he gave to Peninnah his wife, and to all her ſons and daughters, portions h.

h To wit, out of the Sacrifice of his Peace-Offerings, the greateſt part whereof fell to the Offerer, and was eaten by him, and his Friends or Gueſts, before the Lord, Levit. 3. and 7. Deut. 12. 12. and 16. 11. and out of this he gave them all Parts or Portions, as the Maſter of the Feaſt uſed to do to Gueſts.

Or, a double portion.

5 But unto Hannah he gave ‖ a worthy portion i: (for he loved Hannah k, but the LORD had ſhut up her womb.

‖ Or, Salma.

i Or, an honourable or ſelect Part, ſuch as the Maſter of the Feaſt uſually gave to the Perſon moſt reſpected or beloved. See Gen. 43. 34. 1 Sam. 9. 23, 24. k With a ſingular and eminent Love. Compare Gen. 29. 30.

Heb. ſhut her.

6 And her adverſary l alſo † provoked her ſore, for to make her fret m, becauſe the LORD had ſhut up her womb.

Or, her Heb. ſhut up.

l Or, her Troubler, or Vexer, or Enemy; for ſo her Envy or Jealouſy made her, though ſo nearly related. Compare Gen. 29. 30. Levit. 18. 18. m Againſt her Husband, or againſt God, or within her ſelf.

Or, ſtirred her up.

7 And as he did ſo year by year o, ‖ when ſhe went up to the houſe of the LORD p, ſo ſhe provoked her: therefore ſhe wept, and did not eat q.

‖ Heb. from year to year. Heb. from her going up.

n i.e. Either as oft as he went and carried them with him to worſhip: or, as Elkanah expreſſed peculiar kindneſs to Hannah, as was ſaid, v. 5. o i.e. Every year, at the days or times mentioned, v. 3. p This Circumſtance is noted, Firſt, As the occaſion of the Contention, becauſe at ſuch times they were forced to more Society with one another, by the Way, and in their Lodgings; whereas at Home they had diſtinct Appartments, where they might be aſunder; and then her Husband's extraordinary Love and Kindneſs was ſhewed to Hannah, whereby Peninnah was the more exaſperated; then alſo Hannah prayed earneſtly for a Child, which hitherto he had done in vain; and this paſſively ſhe reproached her with. Secondly, As the aggravation of her Sin, that when ſhe came to worſhip God, and to offer Sacrifices, when ſhe ſhould have been reconciled even to her Enemies, Matth. 5. 23, 24. ſhe did quarrel with ſo near a Relation. q Either little, or rather nothing at all, as being overwhelmed with Grief, and therefore unfit to eat of that Sacred Food, according to Deut. 12. 7.

Heb. Why is thy heart grieved?

8 Then ſaid Elkanah her husband to her, Hannah, why weepeſt thou? and why eateſt thou not? and why is thy heart grieved? am not I * better to thee than ten ſons r?

* 1 Sam. 1. 5.

r Oughteſt thou not to value my hearty Love to thee, more than the having of as many Sons as Peninnah hath? She would willingly change Conditions with thee.

9 ¶ So Hannah roſe up after they ſ had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk: (now Eli the prieſt ſat upon a ſeat t by a poſt of the temple u of the LORD.)

Or, She: for though at firſt ſhe eat nothing, yet upon her Husband's Invitation and Encouragement, ſhe might eat afterwards: though the former may ſeem more probable. t Or, Throne; for it is manifeſt it was raiſed higher than ordinary, chap. 4. 18. Here he might ſit, either as the Judge; or rather as High-Prieſt, to hear and anſwer ſuch as came to him for Advice, and to inſpect and direct the worſhip of God, as need was. u i.e. Of the Tabernacle, which is called the Temple here, and chap. 3. 3. and 2 Sam. 22. 7. Pſal. 27. 5. as on the contrary, the Temple is called the Tabernacle, Jer. 10. 20. Lament. 2. 6. And although this Tabernacle was but a Tent, yet it was ſupported by Boards and Poſts, and eſpecially at the Entrance, by which Eli ſate, even by the Entrance into the outward Court, otherwiſe he could not have ſeen Hannah. 10 And ſhe was † in bitterneſs x of ſoul, and prayed unto the LORD, and wept ſore.

12 And it came to paſs, as ſhe † continued praying e before the LORD, that Eli marked her mouth f.

† Heb. multiplied to pray.

e Heb. multiplied to pray. By which it appears that ſhe ſaid much more than is here expreſſed. And the like you are to judge of the Prayers and Sermons of other holy Perſons Recorded in Scripture, which gives us only the ſumm and ſubſtance of them. Which Conſideration may help us much in the underſtanding of ſome Paſſages of the Bible. f i.e. The motion of her Lips, as it follows.

13 Now Hannah, ſhe ſpake in her heart, only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard g: therefore Eli † thought ſhe had been drunken h.

† Heb. accounted her drunken.

g Partly, to avoid the ſuſpicion of vain-glory: partly, becauſe counted her ſhe would not have others acquainted with her Barrenneſs, which for drunken. was matter of reproach: and partly, becauſe ſhe would not diſturb So Gr. others, who at this ſolemn Feaſt were probably imployed there in the ſame work. h Becauſe of the multitude of her words, and thoſe uncouth Geſtures and Motions of her Face and Body, which the vehemency of her Paſſion, and her fervency in Prayer, cauſed in her, as it doth frequently in others; and becauſe ſhe was but newly come from a Feaſt, wherein the manner was to eat and drink liberally, (though not to exceſs) which he knew very well, both from the general Cuſtom of that Seaſon, and from the time of the day.

14 And Eli ſaid unto her, How long wilt thou be drunken? put away thy wine from thee i.

i Come not before the Lord in thy drunkenneſs, but go and ſleep it out, and repent of this thy Sin.

15 And Hannah anſwered and ſaid, No, my lord, I am a woman k † of a ſorrowful ſpirit l: I have drunk neither wine nor ſtrong drink m, but have poured out my ſoul n before the LORD.

† Heb. hard of ſpirit.

k In whom Drunkenneſs is moſt abominable; ſo that the Romans puniſhed it with death. Therefore judge me not ſo ſeverely. l And therefore not likely to give up my ſelf to Drink and Jollity, and far from that merry Temper which Drunkards have: I am drunk with Affliction, nor with Wine, as is ſaid Iſa. 51. 21. m To wit, this day: See above, v. 7, 8. n Have been breathing forth the Griefs, and Perplexities, and Deſires of my Soul. The like Phraſe is Job 30. 16. Pſal. 62. 8. and 142. 2.

16 Count not thine hand-maid for a daughter of Belial o: for out of the abundance of my ‖ complaint and grief, have I ſpoken hitherto p.

‖ Or, meditation.

o For ſuch a wicked Monſter, as a drunken Woman is. p The oppreſſion of my ſpirits hath forced me to ſpeak, and that ſo liberally at this time, for the eaſe of my ſinking Heart.

17 Then Eli anſwered and ſaid, Go in peace q: and the God of Iſrael grant r thee thy petition that thou haſt asked of him.

q I recal my Cenſure, and give thee my Bleſſing, and wiſh thee Peace; i.e. a quiet and compoſed Mind, free from whatſoever it is that grieves and oppreſſes thee; and withal, good Succeſs and Proſperity in what thou deſireſt; for Peace is a very comprehenſive word among the Hebrews. r Or, will grant: for it may be either a Prayer, or a Prediction, which he might deliver, either from the conſideration of God's known goodneſs and readineſs to hear Prayers: or he might be directed to ſay ſo by a ſpecial inſtinct of God's God's Spirit, which sometimes was given to the High-Priests, even when they were wicked Men, as John 11. 51. and much more when they were holy Men, as Eli was. And some add, that he was a Prophet.

18 And she said, Let thine hand-maid find grace in thy sight e. So the woman went her way, and did eat, and her † countenance was no more sad f.

† Or, countenance was no more. See Job 9. 27. Heb. faces.

e That favourable Opinion, and good Will, and gracious Prayer, which thou hast expected on my behalf, be pleased to continue towards me. f Her heart being cleared by the priest's comfortable words, and especially by God's Spirit setting them home upon her, and afterwards her thoughts and her Prayers should be heard, it quickly appeared in her Countenance. Heb. her malignant n, or vexation (as the word Zair is sometimes understood, as Gen. 32. 20. Psal. 21. 9. and 119. 139.) was no more, i.e. it vanished away.

19 ¶ And they rose up in the morning early m, and worshipped before the LORD, and returned, and came to their house to Ramah: and Elkanah knew Hannah his wife, and the LORD remembered her n.

m Partly for their Journey, and partly for Prayer, as it follows, for which it was a very fit and usual time, Psal. 5. 3. 119. 147. 88. 13. Manifested his remembrance of her by the effect.

† Heb. in the revolving of the year above. ‡ That is, asked of God.

20 Wherefore it came to pass † when the time was come about, after Hannah had conceived, that she bare a son o, and called ‡ his name ‖ Samuel, saying, Because I have asked him of the LORD.

n So the texts is. When the usual time from the Conception to the Birth was past, she brought forth her Son. Heb. In or after the Revolution, or Expiration of some Days, Hannah conceived, and in due time bare a Son. So the meaning is, That although her Husband knew her conjugally at his return, and God was mindful of her, and time added in his time to give her his Blessing, yet she did not Conceive at first, but after some days, or time afterwards. 5. i. e. She perceived, not doubting of her Husbands consent to the Name. The Names of Children were given to them sometimes by the Fathers, and sometimes by the Mothers. See Gen. 4. 1. 26. and 5. 29. and 21. 3. and 29. 32, 35, &c.

21 And the man Elkanah, and all his house, went up to offer unto the LORD the yearly sacrifice o, and his vow p.

o i. e. His Wife Peninnah, and his Children, which are oft-times called a Mans House in Scripture, Hannah only and her Child excepted, as it here follows. p That Solemn Sacrifice which was offered up once every Year: probably the Paschal Lamb, which is oft called a Sacrifice, as Exod. 12. 27. and 34. 25. b By which it appears, if ought it was not expressed before, that he heard and confirmed to her Vow, which was necessary to make it Obligatory, Numb. 30. and that he added a Vow of his own, of some singular Sacrifice to be offered, if God answered his Prayers.

22 But Hannah went not up q, for the said unto her husband, I will not go up until the child be weaned d, and then I will bring him, that he may appear before the LORD, and there abide for ever.

q To wit, at that sacred Anniversary-Feast, to which she went up before, but now did not, because she could not with satisfaction to her Mind and Conscience appear before the Lord Empty, or without paying her Vows; nor bring her Child thither to God, and then carry him away from God to her own House. Nor did she fin by not going up; for the Women were not obliged to go up at the solemn Feasts, but the Men only, Exod. 23. 17. d Not only from the birth and the Child, which was often within two or three Years at most, but also from the Mothers Breast and Care, and from Childish Food; till the Child be something grown up, and fit to do some Service in the Tabernacle: for it seems, that as soon as he was brought, he worshipped God, v. 28. and presently after ministred to Eli, 1 Sam. 2. 11. And this may further appear from the very Nature of the Vow, which must needs design a Service and an Advantage to the Tabernacle, and not a Burden and Encumbrance, as it would have been if a young Child had been brought up to it, and left upon it. e That when once he is presented to the Lord, he may continue in his Service as long as he liveth, as is said 2. 28.

23 And Elkanah her husband said unto her, Do what seemeth thee good; tarry until thou have weaned him, only the LORD establish his word r: so the woman abode, and gave her son suck until she had weaned him.

f Either, First, The word of God made known to them by Eli, above, v. 17. which being delivered by God's High-Priest, and that in answer to his and his Wives Prayers, he took to be a kind of Oracle sent from God. But that word was already fulfilled in the Birth of a Son. Or, Secondly, some other Word or Message from God to Elkanah or his Wife concerning Samuel; for such Revelations were frequent in those Ages of the Church, and were oft vouchsafed by God, concerning such Children as were extraordinary Persons, or in a special manner devoted to God; as concerning Isaac, Gen. 17. and Samson, Judg. 13. 3, 4. and John Baptist, Luke 1. 13, 15, &c. and others. And so it might be here, though it were not mentioned before, there being many such things in Scripture omitted in their proper places, which afterwards are expressed or implied upon other occasions. Or rather, Thirdly, It may be rendered, his matter or thing; i. e. the Business concerning the Child, that which thou hast Promised or Vowed concerning him, that he may grow up, and be accepted and employed by God in his Service; and that he, when he is fully grown, may not break thy Vow, but confirm it.

24 ¶ And when she had weaned him, she took him up with her, with three bullocks g, and one ephah of flour h, and a bottle of wine i, and brought him unto the house of the LORD in Shiloh: and the child was young.

g Either, First, One to be offered at that time: the other two prefenced to the Priest, whether for his own use, or to be offered afterwards, as he saw fit. Or, Secondly, One for a Burnt-offering, the Second for a Sin-offering, the Third for a Peace-offering; of which they might all feast together: for all these forts seem expected for this work and time. h For the Meat-offerings belonging to the principal Sacrifices, which to each Bullock were three tenth-deals, or three tenth parts of an Ephah, as appears from Numb. 15. 4. and 28. 12. and so nine Homers, or nine parts of the Ephah were spent, and the tenth part was either a separate Meat-offering, or given to the Priest. i For Drink-offerings, according to the manner.

25 And they slew a bullock k, and brought the child to Eli.

k Either, First, One of the three at the present, reserving the rest for the future. Or, Secondly, The three Bullocks mentioned v. 22. to which the Article here added, in the Hebrew, seems manifestly to relate; there being no one Bullock there, singled out, to which it can belong. And so it is only an Emallage of the Singular Number for the Plural, which is frequent.

26 And she said, O my lord l, as thy soul liveth m, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto the LORD.

l A Form of Speech to engage favourable Attention. m The usual Form of an Oath, as Gen. 42. 15. 1 Sam. 17. 55. and 20. 3. As surely as thou liveth. Which Asseverations seem necessary, because this was some Years after it, and was quite forgotten by him.

27 For this child I prayed, and the LORD hath given me my petition, which I asked of him:

28 Therefore also I have ‖ lent him to the LORD n as long as he liveth, ‖ he shall be lent to the LORD. And he p worshipped the LORD there.

‖ Or, lent him, &c. n Or, given him, &c. i. e. do now give or offer him: for the old Latin, Arabick, and Vulgar Interpreters, and many Modern, do not lend him for a time, with a purpose or right to require him again. But the Hebrew Verb Shaal is not lend, but asked him, or, made my self to ask him (an usual Hebraism) for the Lord; i. e. I prayed prayed for this Child, not only for my self, and to take away my Reproach, but especially that I might have a Child to serve and devote to the Lord. And so the following words, as long as he liveth, Heb. are not to be joyned with this foregoing Clause, but with those following, which come next after them; and that whole Clause may be thus rendered, as a consequent upon the former: And I also lended him, or therefore all the days in which he is, or, shall be, he is on shall be lent or given to the Lord; or, as one begged for the Lord, and for his Service, and therefore justly given to him. o Or, rendred, or acted as one given to my Prayer; for this was the condition of my Prayer, that he should be the Lords. p Not Eli, who is not mentioned, but v. 25. and then only passively, not as speaking or doing any thing: nor Elkanah, of whom here is no mention but young Samuel, who is the subject spoken of in this and the foregoing Verse. And who was capable of worshipping God in some fort, at least with External adorations; of which see on v. 22. And to the Particle there is Emphatick, fignifying that hereby he entred himself into the worship and service of God in that place, to which he was devoted by his Parents, and now did devote himself.

CHAP. II.

Hannah's song, 1—10. Samuel ministers before the Lord, 11. Eli's sons are wicked, 12—17. Hannah beareth more children, 2. 21. Eli reproves his sons but mildly, 22—25. God by a prophet foretelleth the destruction of Eli's house, 27—36.

Here he manifests her great Prudence, and Piety, and Modesty, that she doth not name Peninnah, but only her Enemies in the general. g Because the matter of my Joy is no trivial or worldly thing, but a strange and glorious Salvation or Deliverance which thou hast given me from my own oppreffing Care and Grief, and from the Reproaches and Reproaches of mine Enemies, in giving me a Son, who shall be to me a Son as this, who shall be serviceable to God, and to his People, in helping them against their Enemies, which she prefaged, as may be guessed from v. 10.

* Psal. 5. 10. Heb. cut.

3 Talk no more so exceeding proudly l: * let not arrogancy m come out of your mouth: for the LORD is a God of knowledge n, and by him actions are weighed o.

l Thou Peninnah, boast no more of thy numerous Off-spring, and speak no more insolently and scornfully of me, as thou hast done. She speaks of her in the Plural Number, because she would not expose her Name to Censure, but only instruct and reprove her for her good. m Heb. hard Speeches, as those are called, Jude v. 15. harsh, heavy, and not to be born. Or, the old Sayings, either the old Proverbs concerning barren Women, which thou applieds to me; or, the old Reproaches, to which for a long time thou hast accustomed thy self. n He knoweth thy Heart, and all that Pride, and Envy, and Contempt of me, which thy own Conscience knows; and all thy perverse Carriages towards me. o i. e. He pondereth, or trieth all Mens Thoughts and Actions, (for the Hebrew word fignifies both) as a just Judge, to give to every one according to their Works; and therefore he hath pitied my oppressed Innocency, and rebuked her Arrogancy. Or, by him Councels, or Affairs, or Events, are disposed or ordered, and not by our selves; and therefore he brings many things to pass contrary to Mens expectations, as now he hath done; he maketh one Barren, and another Fruitful, when, and how it pleaseth him. In the Hebrew Text it is Lo the Adverb; and so the words may be rendred thus, his actions are not, or cannot be disolved, or rectified, or corrected by any others; none can mend his Work; he doth every thing best, and in the best season, as now he hath done: Or weighed, or mandred, his ways are unreachable: Or thus, are not his ways right and streit? who can blame his Actions? So Lo is for halo, as it is 2 Sam. 13. 26. 2 King. 5. 26. Job 2. 10.

4 The bows p of the mighty men are broken, and they that stumbled q are girt with strength r.

p This notes, either, 1. The Strength of which they boasted: See Psal. 44. 6. and 46. 9. Or, 2. Their malicious or mischievous Designs. See Psal. 7. 12. and 11. 2. and 37. 14. Or, 3. Their virulent Tongues, which are compared to bows that shoot their Arrows, even bitter Words; as it is said, Psal. 64. 3. Compare Jer. 9. 3. Or, 4. Their procreating Vertues, which may well be compared to a bow, both because it is called a Man's strength, Gen. 49. 3. and because Children, which are the Effects of it, and are as it were shot from that bow, are compared to arrows, Psal. 127. 4, 5. And this seems best to agree with the following Verse. q Or, were weak, or feeble, in Body and Spirit, that had no strength to conceive, which was once Sarah's case, Heb. 11. 11. Or, to bring forth, which was Israel's condition under Hezekiah, 2 King. 19. 3. r Are enabled both to conceive and to bring forth, as the Church was, Isa. 66. 9.

* Psal. 34. 10. † Isa. 55.

5 * They that were full have hired themselves out for bread s: and they that were hungry, ceased t: so that the barren hath born seven u, and † she that hath many children x, is waxed feeble y.

s Through extreme Necessity, into which they are fallen from their greatest Plenty. It is the same thing which is expressed both in divers Metaphors in the foregoing, and following Verses, and properly in the latter branch of this Verse. t i. e. Ceased to be such, to wife, hungry; she hungry fed: there was none of them hungry or indigent. u i. e. Many; as seven is often used. She speaks in the Prophetick Style, the past time, for the future; for though she had actually born but one, yet she had a confident perfuasion that she should have more, which was grounded either upon some particular Assurance from God; or rather upon the Prayer or Prediction of Eli; which, though it be mentioned after this Song, v. 20. yet in all probability was spoken before it, even upon the Parents presentation of the Child to Eli, chap. 1. v. 25. it not being likely that the would sing this Song in Eli's presence, or before he had given his Answer to her Speech delivered, ch. 1. v. 25, 27, 28. there being nothing more frequent than such transpositions in Scripture. And the experience she had of the strange and speedy Accomplishment of his former Prophecy, made her confidently expect the same issue from the latter. 2 i. e. Peninnah. y Either because she was now past Child-bearing, and impotent for Procreation: or, because divers of her Children, which were her strength and her glory, were dead, as the Hebrew Doctors relate.

* Deut. 32. 39. Heb. kill.

6 * The LORD killeth, and maketh alive z, he bringeth down to † the grave, and bringeth up.

† Heb. hell.

7 Either, 1. Divers persons: he killeth one, and maketh another alive: Or, 2. The same person when he hath killeth, or bringeth very nigh unto death, he afterwards raiseth to life. Me, who was almost overwhelmed and consumed with Grief, he hath revived. The name of death both in sacred Scripture, and prophane Writers, is oft given to great Calamities; as Isa. 26. 19. Ezek. 37. 11. Rom. 8. 36.

* Psal. 75. 7.

7 The LORD maketh poor, and maketh rich: * he bringeth low, and lifteth up.

8 He * raiseth up the poor out of the dust b, and * Psal. lifteth up the beggar from the dunghil c, to * set 113. 7. them among princes, and to make them inherit * Job the throne of glory e: for the pillars f of the earth 36. 7. are the LORD'S, and he hath set the world upon them.

b i. e. Out of their low and miserable Condition; as this Phrase is used, 1 King. 16. 2. Psal. 113. 7. Compare Job 16. 15. Psal. 22. 16. c From the most fordid Place, and mean Estate. Compare 1 King. 16. 2. Job. 36. 11. Psal. 7. 5. c Which the poor are said to embrace, Lament. 4. 5. d Not only possess themselves, but transmit them to their Posterity, as hath oft happened in the World: or, possess. e i. e. A glorious Throne or Kingdom. f Either, 1. The Foundations of the Earth, which God created, and upholds, and wherewith he sustains the Earth, and all its Inhabitants; as a House is supported with Pillars; and therefore it is not strange if he disposeth of persons and things therein as he pleaseth. Or, 2. The Princes or Governours of the Earth, which are called, the covers, or corner-stones of a Land or People, Judg. 20. 2. 1 Sam. 14. 38. Zeph. 2. 6. and are oft called Pillars, because they uphold the World, and keep it from sinking into confusion: See Psal. 75. 3. Jer. 1. 18. Revel. 3. 12. And these are here said to be the Lords, by Creation and Constitution, because he advanceth them to their State, and preserves them in it, Prov. 8. 15, 16. and puts the world, or the Kingdoms of the World, upon them, as burden upon their shoulders: See Isa. 9. 6.

9 He * will keep the feet g of his Saints, and the * Psal. wicked shall be * silent h in darkness; for by strength 31. 11. shall no man prevail k. * Psal. 37. 17.

g i. e. The Steps or Paths, their Counsels and Actions; he will keep: i. e. both uphold, that they may not fall, at least, into Mischief or utter Ruine; and direct and preserve from wandring, and from those fatal Mistakes and Errors that wicked Men daily run into. h Shall be put to silence: they who used to open their Mouths wide against Heaven, and against the Saints, shall be so confounded with the unexpected disappointment of all their hopes, and with such glorious appearance and operations for his People, that they shall have their Mouths quite stopped, and sit down in silent Amazement and Confternation: See Isa. 15. 1. Jer. 8. 14. and 47. 5, 6. i Both inward, in their own Minds, which are wholly in the dark, perplexed by their own Choice and Counsels, not knowing what to say or do; and outward, in a state of deepest Distress and Misery. k To wit, against God, or against his Saints, as the wicked were confident they should do, because of their great Power, and Wealth, and Numbers: Whereas God's People were mean, and impotent, and helpless. And particularly, Peninnah shall not prevail against me by that strength which she hath, or thinks to have from her numerous Off-spring. But it is to be observed, that although Hannah takes the rise of this Song from her own Condition, yet she extends her Thoughts and Words further, even to the usual Methods of God's Providence in the Government of the World.

10 The adversaries of the LORD l shall be broken to pieces m: * out of heaven n shall he thunder upon them o: the LORD shall judge p the ends of the earth q, and he shall give strength unto his king r, and * exalt the horn s of his anointed t.

* Chap. 7. 10. * Psal. 89. 24.

l And of his People; especially the Philistines, who at this time were the chief Oppressors of Israel. m These and the following words are Prophetical of what God was about to do: They who are now our Lords, shall be subdued. n i. e. Out of the Clouds or Air, which is oft called Heaven. o As was done, 1 Sam. 7. 10. p i. e. Shall condemn and punish, as that Verb by a Synecdoche is often used. q Or, of the land, to wit, the Philistines who dwelt in the utmost Borders of Canaan, even upon the Sea-coast. r Either, 1. Unto the Judge or Ruler whom he shall set up for the Protection and Deliverance of his People; the word King being elsewhere so taken. Or, 2. The King properly so called: And so the Prophetech, That Israel should have a King, and that there should be a great difference between King and Kings between the Peoples Kings, Saul, whom they would obstinately and passionately desire; by whom therefore they should have but little relief; and God's King, David, whom God would chuse as a Man after his own heart, and from he would strengthen and assist to, as by his Hands to break all his Enemies to pieces. s i. e. Increase, or advance the strength. t i. e. Of his King. The same thing repeated in other words; although it may have a Mystical sense and respect to Christ, the singular anointed one of God, and the special King of his People, whom all their other Kings did Typifie and Represent, and from whom they received Authority and Power.

11 And Elkanah went to Ramah to his house, and the child did minister unto the LORD u before Eli the priest x.

u In some way agreeable to his tender Years, as in Singing, or playing upon Instruments of Musick, as they used then to do in God's Service; or lighting the Lamps, or some other way. For, I suppose, Samuel was not brought to the Tabernacle in such tender years as some think: of which, see on 1 Sam. 1. 22. x Under the Inspection, and by the Direction and Instruction of Eli.

12 ¶ Now the sons of Eli were sons of Belial, they knew not y the LORD.

y To wit, practically: i. e. they did not acknowledge, honour, regard, love, or serve God: for so words of knowledge are commonly used in Scripture; See Rom. 1. 28. 1 Cor. 15. 34. Tit. 1. 16.

13 And the priest's * custom with the people, was, * Chap. 8. that when any man offered a sacrifice, the priest's vant came, while the flesh was in seething a, with flesh-hook of three teeth in his hand, a i.e. Prefered it to the Lord, to be offered by the Priest. a For the Lord's part of the Peace-offerings was burnt upon the Altar, to the Priests and Officers parts were to be sodden.

14 And he ‖ strook it into the pan, or kettle, or cauldron, or pot: all that the flesh-hook brought up, the priest took for himself b: so they did in Shiloh unto all the Israelites that came thither.

b Not contented with the Breast and Shoulder which were allotted them by God, Exod. 29. 27, 28. Levit. 7. 31. they took also part of the Officers share; and besides, they snatched their part before it was heaved and waved; contrary to Levit. 7. 34.

15 Also before they burnt the fat c, the priests servant came, and said to the man that sacrificed, Give flesh to roll for the priest: for he will not have sodden flesh of thee, but raw.

c And the other parts to be burnt with it. See Levit. 3. 3, 4, 9. and 7. 31. So this was an additional Injury; for, left the Fork should misuse and injure them, they took such parts as they best liked whilst it was raw, when it might be better discerned.

† Heb. as on the day.

16 And if any man said unto him, Let them not fail to burn the fat † presently, and then take as much as thy soul desireth d: then he would answer him, Nay, but thou shalt give it me now: and if not, I will take it by force.

d We are content to relinquish our parts to thee, only let not God be wronged of his due.

17 Wherefore the sin of the young men was very great e before the LORD f: for men abhorred the offering of the LORD g.

e Because they violently took away both Man's and God's Dues, and this before their time, and that with manifest contempt of God and Men; and all this merely for the gratifying of their sensual Appetite. f i.e. Even in the place of God's special Presence, where he saw and observed all their Miscarriages: which argues the height of Impiety and Imprudence. g They neglected and abhorred the practise of carrying up Sacrifices to be offered, which they knew would be so grossly abused; and which, as they might think, would be rejected and abhorred by God himself; and therefore they would not contribute to the Priests Sin, and the corruption of God's Worship; but judged it better to neglect the thing, than to expose it to the Priests depravation; wherein yet they erred, as we see, v. 24.

18 ¶ But Samuel ministred h before the LORD i, being a child, * girded with a linen Ephod k.

* Exod. 28. 4.

h i.e. Performed his Ministration carefully and faithfully, not corrupting nor abusing it, as Eli's Sons did. i In God's Tabernacle: or as in God's presence, sincerely and regularly, with God's approbation. Compare Gen. 17. 1. 2 Chron. 26. 4. k A Garment used in God's Service, and allowed not only to the inferior Priests and Levites, but also to eminent persons of the People: as 2 Sam. 6. 14. and therefore to Samuel, who, though no Levite, was a Nazarite, and that from his birth.

19 Moreover, his mother made him a little coat l, and brought it to him from year to year, when she came up with her husband, to offer the yearly sacrifice.

l Suitable to his Age and Stature, to be worn ordinarily: for coats were their usual Garments. See Gen. 3. 21. and 37. 3. 2 Sam. 13. 32. Cant. 5. 3. Dan. 3. 21. Luke 3. 11. and 9. 3. Knowing that he could not yet do much service, the would not have him too burdensom to the Tabernacle, and therefore the yearly provided him with a Coat, which was the chief and upper Garment; and under that his other Garments possibly are comprehended.

20 ¶ And Eli blessed Elkanah, and his wife m, and said, The LORD give thee seed n of this woman, for the ‖ loan which is lent to the LORD o. And they went unto their own home.

‖ Or, petition which she asked, &c.

m As their Superiour, and God's High-Priest, he blessed them in God's Name, and they received his Blessing by Faith, which made it effectual, v. 21. n i.e. A Child, or children, as the Event shewed. o Or, for the petition; i.e. the thing desired, to wit, the Child; which she, thy Wife, asked of the Lord; or, for the Lord: as chap. 1. 28. to whom accordingly she hath given them. And therefore as she asked him not so much for her self, for she seldom sees him; as for the Lord, to whose service she hath wholly devoted him; so now I pray, that God would give you other Children for both your Comfort and Enjoyment.

21 And the LORD visited p Hannah, so that she conceived and bare three sons, and two daughters; and the child Samuel grew q before the LORD r.

p To wit, in Mercy, and with his Blessing, as that word is used Gen. 21. 1. Exod. 13. 19. Jer. 15. 15. not in anger, as it is taken Exod. 32. 34. Levit. 26. 16. q Not only in Age and Stature; but especially in Wisdom and Goodness, as Luke 1. 15. Or, was magnified: or grew great, famous and acceptable, as v. 26. r Not only before Men, who might be deceived, but in the preference and judgment of the All-seeing God.

‖ Or, assembled by troops, or marred. Ex. 38. 8. Num. 4. 23. and 8. 24.

22 ¶ Now Eli was very old s, and heard all that his sons did unto all Israel t, and how they lay with the women that ‖ assembled u at the door x of the tabernacle of the congregation.

s And therefore unfit either to manage his Office himself, or to make a diligent inspection into the Carriage of his Sons in holy Administrations; which gave them opportunity for their wicked ends. t Whom they injured in their offerings, and alienated from the Service of God. u Or warred: which expression is used of them, either because they came to the Service and Worship of God in the Tabernacle, which is often called a warfare; or, because they came in considerable numbers, and due order, like to an Army. x The place where all the People both Men and Women waited when they came up to the Service of God, 1 Sam. 1. 9, 12. Luke 1. 10. because they could not have admittance into the Tabernacle, and because the Altar on which their Sacrifices were offered, was by the Door. Hence it seems probable, that these Women were not such as devoted themselves to the Service of God and of his Tabernacle, either by Fasting and Prayer, &c. or by Sowing, Spinning, &c. which, if then there were any such, had their Stations not at the Door, but in divers places allotted to them round about the Tabernacle; but of such as came up to worship God at his Tabernacle; as Women often-times did, with their Husbands, as there Hannah did, and the blessed Virgin Mary, Luke 2. 41. or with their Parents. And this Exposition may receive strength from Exod. 38. 8. where the very same Phrase is used, and that when the great Tabernacle was not yet built, and so there was no occasion for any Women to come to the other less Tabernacle then used, save only to Pray or offer Sacrifices.

23 And he said unto them, Why do ye such things y? for ‖ I hear of your evil dealings by all this people z.

Or, How evil was it.

y As those above mentioned, v. 13. and v. 22. Eli's Sin in this matter was not only that he reproved them too gently, and generally, and sparingly; but especially, that he contented himself with a Verbal Rebuke, and did not restrain them, as is said chap. 3. 13. and inflict those punishments upon them, of putting them out of their Priests Office, and casting them off from God's People; which fault high Crimes deserved by God's Law, and which he as Judge and High-Priest ought to have done, without all respect of persons. z That dwell here, or come hither to worship.

24 Nay, my sons: for it is no good report a that I hear, ye make the LORD's people ‖ to transgress b.

Or, how so.

a Words too mild for such Diabolical Actions. b Either, 1. The Women that by your Instigation were drawn to Folly. Or, 2. Others who are easily brought to follow your pernicious Example. Or, 3. Other persons of pious and honest Minds, whom therefore he calls the Lord's people by way of distinction from the children of Belial, who were so highly offended with the great dishonour done to God, and to his Worship, and with the horrible wickedness of the Priests, that upon that occasion, they were hurried into the other Extreams, and lived in the neglect and contempt of their own indispensable Duty of offering Sacrifices, because they came through the Priests hands.

25 If one man sin against another c, † the judge shall judge him d: but if a man sin against the LORD e, † who shall intreat for him f? notwithstanding, they hearkened not unto the voice of their father, because the LORD would slay them f.

† Heb. God shall judge him. Or, entreat for him. Heb. shall not intreat for him? Or, shall stay them?

c By doing any Injury. d The Magistrate shall by his Sentence end the Difference, and both Parties shall acquiesce in his Determination, and so the Breach shall be made up. The sence is, If only Man be wronged, Man can right it, and reconcile the Persons. e To God's wit, in such manner as you have done, directly and immediately, in the matters of his Worship and Service, wilfully and presumptuously. f The Offence is of so high a Nature, that few or none will dare to intercede for him, but will leave him to the just Judgment of God. He speaks after the manner of Men, who do oft intercede with the Prince, for such as have injured any private person; but will not presume to do so when the Injury is committed against his own person. The words are, and may be thus rendred, Who shall judge for him? Who shall interpose himself as Umpire, or Arbitrator, between God and him? Who shall compound that Difference? None can or dare do it, and therefore he must be left to the dreadful, but righteous Judgment of God: which is your Case and Misery. f i.e. Because God hath determined to destroy them for their many and great Sins; and therefore would not, and did not give them Grace to hearken to Eli's Counsel, and to repent of their Wickedness, but hardned their Hearts to their destruction.

26 And the child Samuel grew on g, and was in † favour both with the LORD, and also with men.

† Prov. 3. 4. Luke 2. 52. Rom. 14. 18.

g He grew better in bad Times, which is remembred to his Commendation.

27 ¶ And there came a man of God h unto Eli, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, ‖ Did I plainly appear i unto the house of thy father k, when they were in Egypt l, in Pharaohs house m?

Or, Did I not plainly appear?

h i.e. A Prophet or Preacher sent from God: See 1 Tim. 6. 11. 2 Tim. 3. 17. 2 Pet. 1. 21. Who this was, is not revealed by God, and therefore it is vain to enquire, and impossible to determine. i Did I indeed shew such a favour, and appear so evidently and gloriously to thee, and for thee, and is this thy requital? k i.e. Unto Aaron the Chief of thy Father's House. l See Exod. 4. 27. m i.e. Either, 1. In Pharaoh's Land; the whole Kingdom being as it were one great Family, whereof Pharaoh was the Master. Or, 2. In Pharaoh's Court, where Aaron might probably be at the time of this Revelation, either to answer to some Accusation against him, or his Brethren, or to beg some Relaxation of the Rigour, or for some other occasion.

28 And

28 And did I chuse him n out of all the tribes of Israel, to be my priest, to offer upon mine altar, to burn incense, to wear an ephod o, before me? and * did I give unto the house of thy father all the offerings made by fire p of the children of Israel?

* Levit. 10. 12, 13. Deut. 18. 1.

n To wit, Aaron thy Father; whereby he shews what he meant by his Father's House. o That golden Ephod, which was peculiar to the High-Priest. p i.e. All the Priests part of the Offerings. He only had the Office, and he had the whole benefit.

29 Wherefore kick ye at my sacrifice q, and at mine offering, which I have commanded in my habitation, and honourest thy sons above me r, to make your selves fat s with the chiefest of all the offerings of Israel my people?

q Using them irreverently, contemptuously, and prophanely; both by abusing them to your own Luxury, and by causing the people to abhor and neglect them. He chargeth Eli with his Sons faults. r Permitting them to dishonour and injure me, by taking my part to themselves; chusing rather to offend me by thy connivence at their Sin, than to displease them by severe Rebukes, and effectual Restraints, and just Punishments; and so preferr their Will, and Pleasure, and Honour, before mine. s To pamper your selves. This you did not out of any Necessity, but out of mere Luxury. † Not contented with those Parts which I had allotted you, you invaded those choice Parts which I reserved for my self.

30 Wherefore the LORD God of Israel saith, I said indeed u, that thy house, and the house of thy father should walk before me x for ever y: but now the LORD saith, Be it far from me z: for them that honour me a, I will honour b; and * they that despised me c, shall be lightly esteemed d.

Deut. 33. 3.

u Q. Where, or when did God say this? Answ. Either, 1. When he made that Promise for the Perpetuation of the Priesthood in Aaron's Family, Exod. 28. 43. and 29. 9. Object. If Eli and all his Family had been cut off, yet that Promise had been made good in Ithamar's Family: how then was that promise recalled by this Sentence against Eli? Answ. It was recalled and made void, though not absolutely and universally to all Aaron's Family; yet respectively to Eli and his Family, which were wholly excluded from the benefit of it, wherein otherwise they should have shared. Even as God keeping of the Israelites out of Canaan, and in the Wilderness for forty Years, and destroying them there, is called his breach of promise, Numb. 14. 34. although the promise of Canaan was not simple made void to all the Israelites, but only to that evil Generation of them: Or, as God's Covenant with David, and with his Seed, of which God saith, that it should stand fast, Psal. 89. 28. and that he would not break, nor alter it, v. 34. yet is said to be made void, v. 39. to wit, in regard of some particular Branches, or Members of that Family. Or, 2. To Eli himself, or to his Father, when the Priesthood was transfered from Eleazar's to Ithamar's Family for some cause not mentioned in Scripture, but most probably for some great miscarriage of some of them. If it be said, That there is no such promise recorded in Scripture; it may be so replied, That there are many Sayings and Doings noted in Holy Scripture, which were not spoken of in their proper times and places, as Gen. 21. 31. and 42. 21. Hos. 12. 4. Luke 11. 49. Acts 20. 25. So the sence of the place may be this, That promise and privilege of the perpetuation of the Priesthood in Phinehas and his Family, made to them Numb. 25. 12. namely upon condition of his and their Faithfulness in their Office, which is plainly underfood, I now take away from that Family for their wickedness, and I transfer it to thee and thine, and will fix it there upon the same condition. x i.e. Minister unto me as High-Priest. Walking is oft put for Discharging ones Office; before me, may signifie that he was the High-Priest, whose Office peculiarly it was to minister before God, or before the Ark, in the most Holy Place. y As long as the Mosaical Law and Worship lasted, as that Phrase is oft used. z To wit, to fulfil my promise, which I repent of, and hereby retract. a That worship and serve me with Reverence and godly Fear, and according to my Will, which I esteem as an Honour done to me. b I will advance them to honour, and maintain them in it. c Not formally and directly; for to Eli's Sons did not so their office God; but indirectly and by consequence, by presumptuous Disobedience of my Commands; by deriding and disgracing my Worship and Ordinances, either by transgressing the Rules I have given them therein, or by their ungodly and shameful Conversation; and by making my Service contemptible and abominable to others through their Scandals; all which are manifest Arguments of contempt of God, and are so called, as Numb. 11. 20. 1 Sam. 12. 9, 10. Mal. 1. 8. and all which were eminently found in Eli's Sons. d Both by God and Men.

Heb. vile. Luke 22. 69. Or, despised. 1 Sam. 2. 29. Mal. 2. 9.

31 Behold, * the days come, that I will cut off thine arm e, and the arm of thy fathers house f, that there shall not be an old man in thine house g.

* Isa. 65. 15, 20. Jer. 6. 21. Ezek. 5. 16. Amos 3. 14. Zech. 8. 4.

e i.e. I will take away thy strength, which is oft signified by the arm, as Job 22. 8. Psal. 37. 17. or all that in which thou placest thy Confidence and Security: Either, 1. The Ark, which is called God's Strength, Psal. 78. 61. and was Eli's strength, who therefore was not able to bear the very tidings of the loss of it, chap. 4. 18. Or, 2. His Priestly Dignity or Employment, whence he had all his Honour and Substance. Or rather, 3. His Children, to whom the words following here, and in the succeeding Verses, seem to confine it, who are the strength of Parents: See Gen. 49. 3. Deut. 21. 17. Psal. 127. 4, 5. f i.e. Thy Children, Children, and all thy Family: which was in great measure accomplished, 1 Sam. 22. 17, &c. g They shall generally be cut off by an untimely death, before they be old.

32 And thou shalt see ‖ all enemy in my habitation, in all the wealth which God shall give Israel, to be my priest, to offer upon mine altar, to burn incense, to wear an ephod before me; and all the increase of thine house shall die in the flower of their age.

Or, the adversity of the Tabernacle, for all the wealth which God shall give Israel, &c.

h So the sence is, Thou shalt see, not in thy Person, but in thy Posterity; (it being most frequent in Scripture to attribute that to would have Parents, which properly belongs to their Posterity only; as Gen. given Is. 17. 8. and 27, 29, 40.) an enemy; i.e. thy Competitor, or him next, who shall possess that place of high Trust and Honour which now * See Zech. thou enjoyest; (such Persons being through Man's corrupt Nature 8. 4. esteemed as a Man's worst Enemy:) in my habitation; i.e. in the Sanctuary. And then he adds by way of aggravation, that this God Accident should happen, in all the wealth which God shall give Israel; i.e. in a time when God should eminently bless Israel, and make good all his promises to them, which was in Solomon's dayes, when Abiathar of Eli's Race was put out of the High-Priesthood, and Zadock was put in his place, 1 King. 2. 27, 35. when the Priesthood was most glorious, and most profitable, and comfortable; and therefore the loss of it more deplorable. But the words may be otherwise rendered, as is noted in the Margent of our English Bibles; Thou shalt see to woe, in thy own person, the affliction, or oppression, or calamity of my habitation; i.e. either of the Land of Israel, wherein I dwell; or of the Sanctuary, called the habitation by way of Eminency, whose greatest glory the Ark was, 1 Sam. 4. 21, 22. and consequently, whose greatest Calamity the loss of the Ark was; for, or instead of all that good wherewith God would have blessed Israel, or was about to bless Israel; having raised up a young Prophet Samuel, and thereby given good grounds of hope that he intended to bless Israel, if Thou and thy Sons had not hindred it by your Sins, which God was resolved severely to punish. So this Clause of the Threatning concerns Eli's person, as the following concerns his Posterity. And this best agrees with the most proper and usual signification of that Phrase, Thou shalt see. i i.e. As long as the Priesthood continues in thy Family; or as long as the Levitical Priesthood lasts.

33 And the man of thine k, whom I shall not cut off from mine altar l, shall be to consume thine eyes, and to grieve thine heart m: and all the increase of thine house † shall die in the flower of their age o.

k i.e. Those of thy Posterity. l i.e. From attendance upon mine Altar; whom I shall not destroy, but suffer to live, and wait at the Altar. m Shall be so forlorn and miserable, that if thou wast alive to see it, it would grieve thee at the very Heart, and thou wouldst consume thine Eyes with weeping for their Calamities. So the Phrase is like that of Rachel weeping for her children, Jer. 31. 15. which were slain long after her death. n i.e. Thy Children. o About the thirtieth year of their Age, when they were to be admitted to the plenary Administration of their Office, Numb. 4. 3. then they shall die.

34 And this shall be a sign unto thee p, that shall come upon thy two sons, on Hophni and Phinehas: in one day they shall die both of them q.

p To wit, of the certain truth of all those foregoing Predictions. q And so they did, chap. 4. 11.

35 And I will raise me up * a faithful priest r, that shall do according to that which is in my heart and in my mind, and I will build him a sure † house; and he shall walk s before mine anointed x for ever.

* Ezek. 44. 15.

† Heb. sure.

r To wit, of another Line, as is necessarily implied by the total removal of that Office from Eli's Line, before threatned. The person designed is Zadok, one eminent for his Faithfulness to God, and to the King, who, when Abiathar, the last of Eli's Line, was deposed by Solomon, was made High-Priest in his stead, 1 King. 2. 27, 35. 1 Chron. 29. 22. f And shall not dishonour or disobey me, to gratifie his Sons, as thou hast done. t i.e. Give him a numerous Posterity, as that Phrase is used, Exod. 1. 21. 2 Sam. 7. 11. 1 King. 11. 38. and confirm that fore Covenant of an everlasting Priesthood made to Phinehas, or Eleazar's Line, Numb. 25. 13. and interrupted for a little while by Eli, and his, of the Line of Ithamar, unto him and his Children for ever. And this was manifestly verified until the Babylonish Captivity, Ezek. 44. 15. and there is no reason to doubt of its continuance in the same Line till Christ Came. s Minister as High-Priest. x Either, First, before King Solomon, who was anointed King, 1 King. 1. 39. and before the succeeding Kings, who are commonly called anointed, or the Lord's anointed, as 1 Sam. 12. 3, 5. and 24. 6, 10. Psal. 89. 38, 51. Lam. 4. 20. Or rather, Secondly, Before Jesus Christ; First, Because this Title of Anointed, or Christ, or Messias, (both which words signifie only the Anointed) is most frequently and eminently ascribed to Christ, both in the Old and New Testament, and therefore it is most reasonable to understand it of him, when there is nothing in the Text or Context which determines it to any other. Secondly, Christ is the main Scope and Design, not only of the New, but of the Old Testament, which in all its Types and Ceremonies represented Christ; and particularly, the High-Priest was an eminent Type of Christ, and did represent his Person, and act in his Name and Stead, and did prefigurate, what John Baptist did immediately, go before the face of the Lord Christ; and when Christ did come, that Office and Officer was to cease. Thirdly, The High-Priest is seldom or never said to Walk or Minister before the Kings of Israel or Judah, but constantly before the Lord, and consequently, before Christ, who, as he was God Blessed for ever, Rom. 9. 5. was present with, and the Builder and Governour of the Ancient Church of Israel, as is manifest from Act. 7. 35. 1 Cor. 10. 4. Heb. 3. 3, 4. 5. 6. and many other places; and that a Temple is particularly called the Temple of the Lord, because all the Temple-worship was performed in his presence, and had a special respect unto him, and therefore the High-Priest is most properly said to walk before him.

36 And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left in thine house shall come † and crouch to him for a piece of silver, and a morsel of bread, a and shall say, † Put me, I pray thee, into ‖ one of the priests offices, that I may eat a piece of bread.

† Heb. to worship him. ‖ Heb. Join.

a Or, somewhat about the Priesthood.

a In way of humble Supplication. See 1 King. 2. 26. and 23. 9. Whereas before they were so nice and delicate, that my liberal Allowance could not satisfie them, but they must have their Meat raw and fat, &c. above, v. 13; 14, 15, 16. to the Punishment is suited to the nature of their Sin. ∴ Into the meanest Office belonging to it. See Ezek. 44. 10, 11, &c. Quest. How could they be reduced to so great straights, seeing, though they left the High-Priesthood, they still were inferior Priests, and had a right to those plentiful Provisions which belonged to that Order? Ans. First, They might be degraded not only from the Office of the High-Priest, but also from that of the inferior Priests, and consequently might forfeit and lose all the Privileges belonging to their Office. Secondly, This might be from the Tyranny and Violence of some of the succeeding Priests of Eleazar's Line, towards that other Line which had long stood in competition with them, and had for a season got away the Priesthood from them. For this Text only relates the matter of Fact, but doth not express an Approbation of it.

CHAP. III.

The Lord calleth Samuel three times: he knows not God's voice, but thinks it to be Eli who calls him: runs to him, who instructs him, 1,——9. At the fourth call he answers, 10. God acquainteth Samuel with the destruction of Eli's house, 11,——14. Samuel in the morning discovers it to Eli at his request: Eli's submission, 15,——18. All Israel acknowledgeth Samuel for a prophet, 19,——21.

AND the child Samuel ministred unto the LORD before Eli a: and the word of the LORD b was precious c in those days: there was no open vision d.

a i. e. Under his inspection and direction, which, being so young, he needed. b To wit, the word of Prophecy, or the Revelation of God's Will to and by the Prophets. c i. e. Rare or scarce, such things being most precious in Mens esteem, whereas common things are generally despised. d God did not impart his Mind by way of Vision or Revelation openly, or to any publick Person, to whom others might resort for satisfaction, though he might or did privately reveal himself to some pious Persons for their particular Direction. This is here premised, as a reason why Samuel understood not, when God called him once or twice.

2 And it came to pass at that time, when Eli was laid down in his place e, and his eyes began to wax dim, that he could not see f; e In the Court of the Tabernacle. f To wit, clearly and distinctly. This is added, as an Evidence of his Old Age, partly to shew God's Contempt of him, notwithstanding his venerable Age, and his preferring the Child Samuel before him in this Vision; and partly, as the reason why Samuel so readily ran to him upon the first call, because his great Age made him more to need his Servants help.

3 And ere the lamp of God went out g in the temple h of the LORD, where the ark of God was, and Samuel was laid down to sleep i:

g Before the Lights of the Golden Candlestick were put out; i. e. in the Night-season, or before the Morning, when they were put out, as they were lighted in the Evening, Exod. 27. 21. Levit. 24. 3. 2 Chron. 13. 11. h i. e. In the Tabernacle, which is sometimes called the Temple, as being of the same use and significancy. i Not that this happened when he first lay down, but whilst he was lying there.

4 That the LORD called Samuel, and he answered, Here am I.

5 And he ran k unto Eli, and said, Here am I, for thou calledst me. And he said, I called not; lie down again. And he went and lay down.

k Shewing his great Faithfulness and Diligence in the Service, either of the Lord, or of his Master Eli.

6 And the LORD called yet again, Samuel. And Samuel arose, and went to Eli, and said, Here am I, for thou didst call me. And he answered, I called not, my son; lie down again.

† Or, thou shalt Samuel before he know the LORD, and before the word of the LORD was revealed unto him.

7 ‖ Now Samuel did not yet know the LORD l, neither was the word of the LORD yet revealed unto him.

l Either, First, He was not acquainted with God in that Extraordinary or Prophetical way. Or, rather, Secondly, He did not yet understand, any more than before, that it was not Eli, but God, who spake to him. And this Ignorance of Samuel's served God's Design, that his simplicity might give Eli the better assurance of the truth of God's Call, and Message to Samuel.

8 And the LORD called Samuel again the third time. And he arose, and went to Eli m, and said, Here am I, for thou didst call me. And Eli perceived n that the LORD had called the child.

m He persists in the same readiness to obey and serve him, and was not discouraged or driven from his Duty by his double mistake and disappointment. n By the consideration of of Samuel's Piety, of the Sanctity of the Place adjoyning from whence God had oftimes spoken, and of the Solitude of the Place, where there was no humane Person besides himself, who could or would have called Samuel in that manner.

9 Therefore Eli said unto Samuel, Go, lie down: and it shall be, if he call thee, that thou shalt say, Speak LORD, for thy servant heareth o. So Samuel went, and lay down in his place.

o i. e. I am ready to hear what thou speakest, and to do what thou requirest.

10 And the LORD came p, and stood q, and called as at other times r, Samuel, Samuel s. Then Samuel answered, Speak, for thy servant heareth.

p Before, he spake to him at a distance, even from the Holy Oracle between the Cherubims; but now, to prevent all further mistakes, the Voice came near to him, as if the Person speaking had been present with him. q Before the Voice called by him, now the Speaker fixeth his abode with him for a time, till he had uttered his whole Mind to him. r As he had done before. s His Name is here doubled, to engage him to the more speedy and diligent attention.

11 ¶ And the LORD said to Samuel, Behold I will do a thing t in Israel, at which both the ears of † 2 King. 21. 12. every one that heareth it, shall tingle u.

t Those things which are related in the next Chapter, which though done by the Philistines, God here ascribes to himself, because he was the first and chief Cause of it, by withdrawing his helping Hand from Israel, and by delivering the Ark, and Eli's two Sons, and the rest of People, into his and their Enemies hands. u Which will be so terrible, that not only those that feel it shall groan under it, but those that only hear the report of it, shall be struck with such Amazement and Horror, which will make their Heads and Hearts ake. A Metaphor from him, who being surprized with some great and hideous Noise, such as Thunder or great Guns, his Head is much affected with it, and the Sound or Tingling of it abides in his Ears a good while after it. This Phrase is used also, 2 Kings. 21. 12. Jer. 19. 3.

12 In that day x I will † perform against Eli * all † Heb. things which I have spoken y concerning his house: † when I begin, I will also make an end z. * Chap. 2. 27, 30, 31, 33, 35, 36.

x In that time which I have appointed for this work, which was about Twenty or Thirty Years after this threatning. So long space of Repentance God allows to this wicked Generation to make their Peace with God, and prevent the Execution, as others did in like Cases. y By that Prophet, chap. 2. 27. z Though this Vengeance may and shall be delayed for a season, to manifest my Patience, and incite them to Repentance; yet when once I begin to Inflict, I shall certainly go on with it, and not desist till I have made a full end.

13 ‖ * For I have told him, that I will judge a his house b for ever c, for the iniquity which he knoweth d; because his sons made themselves ‖ vile e, and he † restrained them not f. * Chap. 2. 27, 29, 30, 33. † Heb. reproved them not.

a i. e. Condemn, and Punish or Destroy, as the word Judge is oft used, as Gen. 15. 14. Psal. 3. 18. and 16. 11. b His Children, and Posterity, as is manifest by the story; as the word House is frequently taken, as 2 Sam. 7. 11. 1 King. 21. 29. So the House of Jehoiakim, of Aaron, of David, are oft taken for their Posterity. And to Build an House in Scripture use, is to encrease their Posterity, as Exod. 1. 21. Deut. 25. 9. Ruth 4. 11. Compare Gen. 16. 2. and 30. 3. c Till they be utterly rooted out: or, for a long time, as that Phrase is oft used. d Either by the information of the Prophet, chap. 2. 27, &c. or by his own guilty and self-accusing Conscience. Eat theefe, and the foregoing and following words, may well be so and are rendred thus; for this iniquity, because he knew (both by common Fame, and by his own observation) that his sons, &c. He cannot pretend ignorance, or want of proof of their wickedness, which aggravates his Sin. e Not only hateful to God, but contemptible to all the People, whereby they also brought their sacred Office, and God's Holy Ordinances into contempt. Heb. Cursed themselves, or made themselves Execrable or Accursed, both to God and Men: by their lewd and cursed Practices, they put themselves under the Curse of God, by such a gross Violation of God's Commands: Compare Jos. 7. 12. and 7. 12, 13. This expression may be used by way of reflection upon their Father, because he did not denounce the Curse of God against them, nor put them out of the Priesthood, as accursed Persons, although they were so vile, that they had prevented their Father's Censure, and meritoriously cast themselves out, and cut themselves off from the Priesthood and Congregation of the Lord, which their Father should have done judicially. f He connived himself with a cold and gentle Reproof, and did not severely rebuke, and punish, and effectually restrain them from their abominable Courses, nor use that Authority which God had given him, as a Father, as a High-Priest, and as a Judge, or Chief Magistrate, against them, as by the Law of God he was obliged to do.

14 And therefore I have sworn g unto h the house of Eli, that the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be purged with sacrifice, nor offering for ever.

g Which might be done before, though it be mentioned here only. Or, I have sware: the past Tense being commonly put for the present in the Hebrew Tongue. h Or, concerning, as the particle unto is oft used, as Exod. 14. 3. and 18. 7. 2 Sam. 11. 7. Josh. 11. compare with Matth. 5. 6. i i. e. The Punishment threatned against Eli and his Family, shall not be prevented or hindred by all their Sacrifices, as they fondly imagine, but shall infallibly be executed.

15 And Samuel lay until morning, and opened the doors of the house of the LORD k: and Samuel feared to shew Eli the vision l.

k Although

k Although the Tabernacle, whilst it was to be removed from place to place in the Wilderness, had no Doors, but consisted only of Curtains, and had only Hangings before the entrance, instead of Doors; yet when it was settled in one place, as now it was in Shiloh, where it had been for a long time, it is more than probable, both from this place, and by comparing 1 Sam. 1. 9. and 2 Sam. 6. 17. and from the Nature and Reason of the thing, that it was inclosed within some solid Building, which had Doors, and Posts, and other Parts belonging to it. l i. e. The matter of the Vision or Revelation, partly from the Reverence and Respect he bore to his Person, to whom he was both to be a messenger of such sad tidings partly, lest if he had been hastly to utter it, Eli might think him guilty of Arrogancy or secret Complacency in his Calamity, which was like to tend to Samuel's advancement. And not being commanded by God to acquaint Eli therewith, he prudently suspended the publication of it till a fit occasion were offered, which he might reasonably expect in a very little time, knowing that Eli would be greedy to know the matter of that Revelation, the Preface whereof he was acquainted with; and that it would be less offensive, and therefore more useful to Eli, when he saw that Samuel was not puffed up with it, nor forward to vent it, until Eli forced it from him.

16 Then Eli called Samuel, and said, Samuel, my son. And he answered, Here am I.

17 And he said, What is the thing that the LORD hath said unto thee? I pray thee, hide it not from me: God do so to thee, and † more also m, if thou hide any ‖ thing from me of all the things that he said unto thee. † Heb. Add. ‖ Or, a word.

m God inflict the same Evils upon thee, which I suspect he hath pronounced against me, and greater Evils too. Or, God do so, i. e. let God deal with thee severely, as I cannot, or am loth to expect. So it is a kind of Apostrophe usual in Oaths, and in adjurations. The same Phrase is in Ruth, 1. 17. Thus he adjures him to utter the whole truth, as was usual among the Hebrews, as 1 King. 22. 16. Matth. 26. 63.

18 And Samuel told him † every whit, and hid nothing from him. And he said, It is the LORD n: Let him do what seemeth him good. † Heb. from a word to him.

n This severe Sentence is from the Sovereign Lord of the World, who hath an absolute Power and Right to dispose of me and all his Creatures as he pleaseth; to whose good pleasure I therefore freely submit: from Israel's God, who was known by this Name of Jehovah, who is in a special manner the Ruler of the People of Israel, to whom it properly belongs to punish all mine offences; whose Chastisement I therefore accept.

19 ¶ And Samuel grew o, and the LORD was with him, and did let none of his words * fall to the ground p. * 1 King. 8. 56.

o As in Stature, so in Wisdom and Piety, and God's Favour, and Reputation with the People. p i. e. Want its effect or success: God made good all his Predictions. A Metaphor from precious Liquors, which when they are spilt upon the Ground, are altogether useless and ineffectual. This Phrase is oft used, as Jos. 21. 45. Esth 6. 10, &c.

20 And all Israel, from Dan even to Beersheba q, knew r that Samuel was ‖ established to be a prophet of the LORD. ‖ Heb. faithful.

q Through the whole Land, from the Northern Bound Dan, to the Southern, Beersheba; which was the whole length, and largest extent of the Land. See Judg. 20. 1, 2. 2 Sam. 17. 11. r Both by Eli's Testimony, and particular relation of the foregoing History, to the People of the same from all Parts; and by succeeding Revelations made to him, whereof mention is made in the next Verse, which though placed after, might be done before.

21 And the LORD appeared again in Shiloh: for the LORD revealed himself to Samuel s in Shiloh, by the word of the LORD t.

s Or, did use to Reveal his mind to Samuel. t i. e. By his word. The Noun for the Pronoun, which is frequent, as Levit. 14. 15, &c. by his word of command, which he chose to deliver to Israel by his Mouth, as it here follows; or by his word of Prophesie concerning future events.

CHAP. IV.

The Israelites are smitten by the Philistines at Eben-ezer, 1, 2. They fetch the Ark from Shiloh: Receive it with a great Shout, to the Terror of the Philistines, 3,——7. Who yet take Courage, and a second time beat the Israelites: Two Arks taken: The two Sons of Eli are slain, 8,——11. Which Eli hearing, falleth backward from his seat, and breaketh his Neck, 12,——17. His Daughter in law falls in labour: Names her Son Ichabod: And dieth, 18,——22.

AND the word of Samuel a ‖ came to all Israel. Now Israel went out against the Philistines b to battel, and pitched beside Eben-ezer c: and the Philistines pitched in Aphek d. Or, came. ‖ Heb. was.

a i. e. The word of the Lord revealed to Samuel, and by him to the People; Either, First, The Prophetical Word mentioned before, chap. 3. 21, &c which is here said to come, or to come to pass, as it was foretold, to all Israel. But the subject of that Prophesie was not all Israel, but Eli and his House, as is evident. Or rather, Secondly, A Word of Command, that all Israel should go forth to fight with the Philistines, as the following words explain it, that so they might be first humbled and punished for their Sins, and so prepared by degrees for their future Deliverance. b Or, to meet the Philistines, who having by this time recruited themselves after their great loss by Samson, Judg. 16. 30. and perceiving an eminent Prophet arising among them, by whom they were likely to be United, Counselled, and Led, thought fit to Suppress them in the beginning of their Hopes and Designs of rebellion (Anticipation) from a following even, chap. 7. 12. And they so called in the Tribe of Judah, Jos. 15. 53. upon the borders of the Philistines Country: not that Aphek in Asher, Jos. 19. 30. Judg. 1. 31. which was very remote from them.

2 And the Philistines put themselves in array against Israel: and when † they joyned battle, Israel was smitten before the Philistines: and they slew of † the army in the field, about four thousand men. † Heb. the battel was spread. † Heb. the army.

c Heb. When the Battel was spread, i. e. when the two Armies had drawn forth themselves into Military Ord.r, and put themselves into the usual posture for Fighting, and began to fight in their several places.

3 ¶ And when the people were come into the camp, the elders of Israel said, Wherefore hath the LORD smitten us to day before the Philistines? Let us † fetch the ark of the covenant of the LORD e out of Shiloh unto us, that when it † Heb. take unto us. cometh among us, it may save us out of the hand of our enemies.

e Seeing our Cause is so just, our own just and necessary Defence from God's and our Enemies, and we came not forth to Battel by our own motion, but by God's command delivered by Samuel. This was strange blindness, that when there was so great a corruption in their Worship and Manners, chap. 2. and such a defection to Idolatry, chap. 7. 3. Psal. 78. 58. they could not see sufficient reason why God should suffer them to fall by their Enemies. g That great pledge of God's Presence and help, by whose Conduct our Ancestors obtained success, Numb. 10. 35. and 14. 42. Jos. 6. 6. Instead of the performance of Moral Duties, humbling themselves deeply for, and parting themselves speedily and throughly from all their Sins, for which God was displeased with them, and now had chastised them, they take an easier and cheaper Course, and put their trust in their Ceremonial observances, not doubting but the very presence of the Ark would give them the Victory. And therefore it is no wonder they meet with so sad a disappointment.

4 So the people sent to Shiloh, that they might bring from thence the ark f of the covenant of the LORD of hosts, which dwelleth between the † cherubims: and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas were there h with the ark i of the covenant of God. † Exod. 25. 18, 22.

f Which it may seem they should not have done without asking Counsel of God, which they might easily have done by Samuel, Eli either, First, In the Camp. Or rather, Secondly, In Shiloh. h Attending upon it, instead of their Aged Father.

5 And when the ark of the covenant of the LORD came into the camp, all Israel shouted with a great shout k, so that the earth rang again.

i Partly, from their great joy and confidence of success; and partly, in design to encourage themselves, and terrific their Enemies.

6 And when the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said, What meaneth the noise of this great shout in the camp of the Hebrews? And they understood m that the ark of the LORD was come into the camp.

m By information from the Israelites, who would readily tell them of it to affright them.

7 And the Philistines were afraid, for they said, God is come n into the camp. And they said, Woe unto us: for there hath not been such a thing † heretofore o. † Heb. yesterday, third day.

n To wit, to and with his Ark: or, they give the Name of God to the Ark, before which he was Worshipped, as they used to give it to the Images of their false gods. o Nor to our knowledge, or not in our times; for the forementioned removals of the Ark were before it came to Shiloh.

8 Woe unto us: who shall deliver us out of the hand of these mighty God? p these are the Gods that smote the Egyptians with all the plagues in the wilderness? q

p They secretly confess the Lord to be higher and greater than their gods, and yet against their knowledge presume to oppose him. q They mention the Wilderness, not as if all the Plagues of the Egyptians came upon them in the Wilderness, but some of the last and worst of all, which is therefore put for all, to wit, the Destruction of Pharaoh and all his Host, happened in the Wilderness, namely, in the Red Sea, which having the Wilderness on both sides of it, Exod. 14. 19, 20. and 15. 22. and 13. 17, 18. may well be said to be in the Wilderness. Although it is true in strictness of speech, that neither did the Israelites all the time of their Sojourning in the Wilderness, especially some hundreds of Years after they were cured of such mistakes being frequent in divers Heathen Authors, treating of those matters, as Justin, and Tacitus, and others.

9 Be strong, and quit your selves like men r, O ye Philistines, that ye be not servants unto the Hebrews, * as they have been to you: † quit your selves like men, and fight. * Heb. 13. 1. † Heb. be men.

r Since be men.

r Since you can expect no relief from your gods, who are not able to relieve others, it concerns you to put forth all your Strength able to relieve others, it concerns you to put forth all your Strength and Courage, and once for all to act like brave and valiant Men.

*Psa. 78. 9. 10 ¶ And the Philistines fought, * and Israel was smitten, and they fled every man into his tent s: and there was a very great slaughter, for there fell of Israel thirty thousand t footmen u.

s i.e. To his habitation, called by the Ancient Name of his Tent. t Before they lost but 4000, now in the presence of the Ark 30000, to teach them that the Ark and Ordinances of God, were never designed for Sanctuaries or Refuges to impenitent Sinners, but only for the Comfort and Relief of those that Repent. u Horsemen are not mentioned; Either First, Because they had few or none, God having forbidden the multiplication of their Horses, Deut. 17. 16. and the Philistines, their Lords and Oppressors, having taken away what they had. Or, Secondly, Because they fled away, as is usual in such Cases, whilst the Footmen were more easily overtaken.

*Psal. 78. 61. † Heb. died. 11 And * the ark of God was taken x, and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas † were slain.

x Which God justly and wisely permitted; partly, to punish the Israelites for their Profanation of it: partly, that by taking away the presences of their Foolish and Impious confidence, he might more deeply humble them, and bring them to true Repentance: partly, that the Philistines might by this means be more effectually convinced of God's Almighty Power, and of their own, and their gods Impotency, and so a stop might be put to their Triumphs and Insultations, and to their Rage against the poor Israelites, whom otherwise in human appearance they might easily have rooted out. Thus as God was no loser by this event, so the Philistines were no gainers by it; and Israel, all things considered, received more good than hurt by it, as we shall see.

*Job 2.12 12 ¶ And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the army, and came to Shiloh the same day, with his cloths rent, and with * earth upon his head y.

y The usual Rites in great sorrows; See Gen. 37. 29. Jos. 7. 6, &c. 2 Sam. 1. 2, 11.

*Ch. 1. 9. 13 And when he came, lo, Eli sate upon * a seat z by the way side, watching: for his heart trembled for the ark of God a. And when the man came into the city, and told it, all the city cried out.

z Placed there on purpose for him, that he might soon receive the Tidings, which he longed for. a Wherein he discovered a publick and generous spirit, and a fervent Zeal for God, and for his Honour and Service, which he preferred before all his natural Affections and worldly Interests, nor regarding his own Children in comparison of the Ark, though otherwise he was a most Indulgent Father, and had reason to believe that they were our like Sheep for the slaughter, according to Samuel's Prediction.

14 And when Eli heard the noise of the crying, he said, What meaneth the noise of this tumult? And the man came in hastily, and told Eli.

15 Now Eli was ninety and eight years old, and *Chap. 3. 2. * his eyes † were dim, that he could not see. † Heb. stood.

16 And the man said unto Eli, I am he that came out of the army b, and I fled to day out of the army. † Heb. is the thing. And he said, What † is there done, my son?

b I speak not what I have by uncertain Rumours, but what mine Eyes were witnesses of.

17 And the messenger answered and said, Israel is fled before the Philistines, and there hath been also a great slaughter among the people, and thy two sons also, Hophni and Phinehas are dead, and the ark of God is taken.

18 And it came to pass when he made mention of the ark of God, that he fell from off the seat backward c, by the side of the gate d, and his neck brake, and he died: for he was an old man, and heavy e, and he had judged Israel f forty years.

c Being so oppressed with Grief and Astonishment, that he had no Strength left to support him. d To wit, the Gate of the City, which was most convenient for the speedy understanding of all Occurrences. e Old, and therefore weak and apt to fall; Heavy, and therefore his fall more dangerous and pernicious. f He was their Supreme Governor, both in Civils and Spirituals.

¶ 19 And his daughter in law, Phinehas wife, was with child, near ‖ to be delivered: and when she heard ‖ Or, to cry out. the tidings that the ark of God was taken, and that her father in law, and her husband were dead, she bowed her self and travelled; for her pains † came upon her g. † Heb. were turned.

g To wit, before her time, which is oft the effect of great Terrors, both in Women, and in other Creatures, Psal. 29. 9.

20 And about the time of her death, the women that stood by her, said unto her, Fear not, for thou hast born a Son. But she answered not, † neither did she regard it h. † Heb. set not her heart.

h Being overwhelmed with Sorrow, and so uncapable of Comfort.

21 And she named the child ‖ Ichabod, saying, ‖ * The glory i is departed from Israel (because the ark of God was taken, and because of her father in law, and her husband.) Where is the glory?

i i.e. The glorious type and assurance of God's presence, the Ark, which is oft called God's Glory, as Psal 26. 8. and 78. 61. Isa. 64. 11. and which was the great safeguard and ornament of Israel, which they could glory in above all other Nations.

22 And she said, The glory is departed from Israel, for the ark of God is taken k.

k This is repeated to shew her Piety, and that the Publick and Spiritual loss lay heavier upon her spirit, than her Personal or Domestick Calamity.

CHAP. V.

The Philistines place the Ark of God at Ashdod in the House of Dagon: Which falls down: once and again, 1, ——— 5. They of Ashdod are smitten with Emerods: They send the Ark to Gath, 6,—8. They are also smitten with Emerods, and send the Ark to Ekron: They refuse to return it back to the Israelites, 9,—12.

AND the Philistines took the ark of God a, and brought it from Eben-Ezer b unto Ashdod c.

a Quest. Why were not they immediately killed, who touched the Ark, as afterwards Uzzah was? 2 Sam. 6. 7. Ans. First, Because the Sin of the Philistines was not so great, because the Law forbidding this, was not given, or at least was not known to them; whereas Uzzah's Fact was a transgression, and that of a known Law. Secondly, Because God designed to reserve the Philistines for a more publick and more shameful punishment, which had been prevented by this. b Where they found it in the Camp of the Israelites, chap. 4. 1. c Called also Azotus: whither they brought it, either because it was the first City in their way, or rather because it was a great and famous City, and most eminent for the worship of their great God Dagon.

2 When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon d.

d Either, First, Out of respect to it, that it might be worshipped together with Dagon. Or rather, Secondly, by way of reproach and contempt of it, as a Spoil and Trophy set there to the honour of Dagon, to whom doubtless they ascribed this Victory, as they did a former, Judg. 16. 23. And though they had some reverence for the Ark before, chap. 4. 7, &c. Yet that was certainly much diminished by their success against Israel, notwithstanding the presence and help of the Ark.

3 ¶ And when they of Ashdod e arose early on the morrow f, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the earth, before the ark of the LORD: and they took Dagon, and set him in his place again g.

e i.e. The Priests of Dagon. f Either to worship Dagon according to their manner: or being curious and greedy to know whether the Neighbourhood of the Ark to Dagon had made any alteration in either of them, that if Dagon had received any Damage, they might, if possibly they could, repair it, before it came to the Peoples knowledge, as indeed they did, to prevent their contempt of that Idol, by which the Priests had all their reputation and advantage. g Supposing or pretending that his fall was wholly casual.

4 And when they arose early on the morrow morning, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the ground, before the ark of the LORD, and the head of Dagon, and both the palms of his hands were cut off ‖ upon the threshold, only ‖ the stump of Dagon i was left to him k. Or, the flump of.

k The head is the Seat of Wisdom; the Hands, the Instruments of Action: both are cut off, to shew that he had neither Wisdom nor Strength to Defend himself, nor his worshippers. Thus the Priests by concealing Dagon's shame before, make it more evident and infamous. i Heb. Only Dagon, i.e. that part of it from which it was called Dagon, to wit, the Filthy part, for Dag in Hebrew signifies a Fish. And hence their Opinion seems most probable, that this Idol of Dagon had in its upper parts an human shape, and in its lower parts the form of a Fish; for such was the form of divers of the Heathen gods, and particularly of a god of the Phoenicians (under which Name the Philistines are comprehended) as Diodorus Siculus, and Lucian, both witness, though they call it by another Name. k Or, upon us, i.e. upon the Threshold, where the Trunk abode in the place where it fell, but the Head and Hands being violently cut off, were flung to distant and several places.

5 Therefore neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that come into Dagon's house, tread on the threshold † of l Dagon in Ashdod unto this day m. † Heb. Dagon.

l Out of a Religious reverence, supposing this place to be Sanctified by the touch of their god, who first fell here, and being broken here, touched it more thoroughly than he did other parts. This Superstition of theirs was noted and Censured long after, Zephan. 1. 9. Herein they manifested their stupendious Folly, both in making a perpetual Monument of their own and Idols shame, which in all reason they should rather have buried in eternal Oblivion; and in turning a plain and certain Argument of Contempt, into a occasion of further Veneration. m When this History was written, which if written by Samuel towards the end of his Life, was sufficient ground for this expression, this Superstitious usage having then continued for many Years,

6 But the hand of the LORD was heavy upon them of Ashdod n, and he destroyed them o, and smote them † with * emerods p, even Ashdod, and the coasts thereof. † Heb. with. * Deut. 28. 27. Psal. 78. 66.

n For their Incorrigibleness by the foregoing Documents. o Partly, by wasting their Land, chap. 6, 5. and partly, by killing many of their Persons, as is sufficiently implied here, v. 10. p A Disease mentioned only here, and Deut. 28. 27. it was in the hinder parts. It is needless to enquire into the Nature of it. It may suffice to know, that it was a very sore Disease, and not only very Vexatious and Tormenting, but also Pernicious and Mortal

7 And when the men of Ashdod saw that it was so, they said, The ark of the God of Israel shall not abide with us: for his hand is sore upon us, and upon Dagon our god.

8 They sent therefore, and gathered all the lords of the Philistines unto them, and said, What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And they answered, Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about unto Gath q. And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about thither.

q Supposing that this Plague was confined to Ashdod for some particular Reasons, or that it came upon them by Chance, or from some bad Influence of the Air, or of the Stars, or for putting it into Dagon's Temple, which they resolved they would not do.

9 And it was so, that after they had carried it about, the hand of the LORD was against the city with ‖ a very great destruction: and he smote the men of the city, both small and great, and they had emerods in their secret parts r. ‖ Heb. with a very great destruction.

r Or, in their hidden parts, to wit, in the inwards of their hinder parts. Which is the worst kind of Emerods, as all Physicians acknowledge, both because its Pains are far more sharp and keen than the other; and because the Malady is more out of the reach of Remedies.

10 ¶ Therefore they sent the ark of God to Ekron: and it came to pass, as the ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, saying, They have brought about the ark of the God of Israel to us, to slay us f and our people.

f Not that they intended this, but because this would be the event of it.

11 So they sent, and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said, Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go again to his own place, that it slay us not, and our people: for there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city t: the hand of God was heavy there.

t To wit, the City of Ekron, during its short stay there. Or, in every City, to wit, where the Ark of God came: for it came also to Gaza and Ashdon, and produced the same Effects there, as may be gathered from chap. 6. 4, 17. though for brevity sake it be here omitted.

12 And the men that died not u, were smitten with the emerods: and the cry of the city x went up to heaven.

u Either of some other Plague, or Ulcer, as may be thought from v. 6. or of the Emerods, which Infected and Tormented even those whom it did not kill. x Or, of that City where the Ark was; and the City is put for the People Inhabiting it.

CHAP. VI.

The Philistines consult with the Priests how they shall return the Ark: They advise to send with it for a Trespass-Offering, five golden Emerods and Mice. On a new Cart, which they do: The Kine tied to the Cart, go strait way to Beth-shemesh: Which was for a sign to the Philistines, 1,——12. They of Beth-shemesh rejoice: The Levites offer Sacrifice for it, 13,——15. The People are smitten for looking into the Ark: And request them of Kirjath-jearim to fetch it thence into their own City, 16,——21.

AND the ark of the LORD was in the country of the Philistines seven months a.

a So long they kept it, as loth to lose so great a Prize, and willing to try all ways to keep it, and yet free themselves from the Mischiefs accompanying its presence.

2 And the Philistines called for the priests, and the diviners b, saying, What shall we do to the ark of the LORD? Tell us wherewith c we shall send it to his place?

b Whose Art was in great esteem with Heathen Nations, and especially with the Philistines and their Neighbours, the Canaanites and Egyptians. c In what manner, and with what Gifts; for to send it, they had decreed before, chap. 5. 11.

3 And they said, If ye resolve to send away the ark of the God of Israel, send it not empty d: but in any wise return him a trespass-offering e: then ye shall be healed, and it shall be known to you f, why his hand * is not removed from you. Or, was

d i.e. Without a present; which they judged necessary, from the common Opinion and Practice both of Jews and Gentiles. e Thereby to acknowledge our Offence, and obtain his Pardon. f You shall understand, what is hitherto doubtful, whether he was the Author of these Calamities, and why they continued so long upon you. Compare verse 7, 8, 9.

4 Then said they, What shall be the trespass-offering g, which we shall return to him? They answered, Five golden emerods h, and five golden mice i, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines: for one kind of plague was on † you all, and on † Heb. them. your lords.

g They desire particular Information, because they were ignorant of the Nature and Manner of the Worship of Israel's God, and fearings which God would not accept. h i.e. Figures of that part of the Body which was the seat of the Disease, which by its swelling, or some other way, Represented also the Disease it self. Which they offered not in contempt of God, for they sought to gain his favour hereby; but in Testimony of their Humiliation, that by leaving this Monument of their own Shame and Misery, they might obtain pity from God, and freedom from their Disease. i Which marred their Land (as it is related v. 5.) by destroying the Fruits thereof; as the other Plague afflicted their Bodies.

5 Wherefore ye shall make images of your emerods, and images of your mice, that * mar the land, * Chap. 5. 6. and ye shall give glory unto the God of Israel k: peradventure he will lighten his hand from off you, and from off your gods l, and from off your land.

k The Glory of his Power in Conquering you, who seemed and pretended to have Conquered him; of his Justice in punishing you, and of his Goodness if he shall Believe you. l They so speak, either because not only Dagon, but their other gods also, were thrown down by the Ark, though that be not related; or because the Plural Number in that case, was commonly used for the Singular.

6 Wherefore then do ye harden m your hearts, * as * Exod. 7. the Egyptians, and Pharaoh hardened their hearts n? did he not, when he † had wrought ‖ wonderfully among them, 13. and 8. 15. and 14. 17. † Heb. did they not let † the people go, and they departed? ‖ Or, dealt strangely.

m Or, should ye harden, the Future Tense of the Indicative Mood being put potentially, as is not unusual. They express themselves thus, either because they perceived that some opposed the Decree of sending home the Ark, though the most had consented to it; or because they thought they would hardly send it away in the manner prescribed, by giving Glory to God, and taking Shame to themselves. n Which they might easily learn, either by Tradition from their Ancestors, or by the Reports of the Hebrews.

7 Now therefore make a new cart o, and take two milch-kine, on which there hath come no yoke p, and tie the kine to the cart, and bring their calves home from them q.

o As David did for the same use, 2 Sam. 6. 3. in Reverence to the Ark. p Partly, in respect to the Ark; and partly, for the better Discovery, because such untamed Heifers are wanton, and apt to wander, and keep no certain and constant paths, as Oxen accustomed to the Yoke do, and therefore were most unlikely to keep the direct Road to Israel's Land. q Which would stir up Natural affection in their Dams, and cause them rather to return Home, than to go to a strange Country.

8 And take the ark of the LORD, and lay it upon the cart r, and put the jewels of gold, which ye return him for a trespass-offering in a coffer by the side thereof s, and send it away, that it may go.

r Which God winked at in them, both because they were ignorant of God's Law to the contrary, and because they had no Levites to carry it upon their Shoulders. s For they durst not presume to open the Ark, to put them within it.

9 And see, if it goeth up by the way of his own coast t to Bethshemesh, then ‖ he hath done us this great Or, it. evil i: but if not, then we shall know that it is not his hand that smote us; it was a chance that happned to us u.

t Or, Border, i.e. the way that leadeth to his Coast, or Border, viz. the Country to which it belongs. i Which they might well conclude, if such Heifers should against their common use, and natural instinct, go into a strange path, and regularly and constantly proceed in it, without any man's Conduct. u This Evil came to us from some Influences of the Stars, or other unknown Causes. Which was a weak and foolish Inference, depending upon a meer Contingency, it being uncertain whether God would please to give them this Sign; and probable, that he would deny it, both to punish their Superstition, and to harden their hearts to their further and utter Destruction. But wicked Men will sooner believe the most uncertain and ridiculous things, than own the visible Demonstrations of God's Power and Providence.

10 ¶ And the men did so: and took two milch-kine, and tied them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home.

11 And they laid the ark of the LORD upon the cart, and the coffer with the mice of gold, and the images of their emerods.

12 And the kine took the straight way to the way of Bethshemesh x, and went along the high-way, lowing lowing as they went y, and turned not aside to the right hand, or to the left: and the lords of the Philistines went after them z unto the border of Bethshemesh.

x i.e. Leading to Bethshemesh, a City of the Priests, Jos. 21.16. who were by Office to take care of it. y Testifying at once both their natural and vehement Inclination to their Calves, and the supernatural and divine Power which over-ruled them to a contrary Course. z Under pretence of an honourable dismission of it; but in truth, to prevent all Imposture, and to get assurance of the truth of the Event. All which Circumstances tended to their greater Confusion, and Illustration of God's Glory.

13 And they of Bethshemesh were reaping their wheat-harvest in the valley: and they lifted up their eyes, and saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it.

14 And the cart came into the field of Joshua a Bethshemite, and stood there, where there was a great stone: and they a clave the wood of the cart, and offered the kine, a burnt-offering unto the LORD b.

a Not the Lords of the Philistines, but the Bethshemites, to wit, the Priests that dwelt there. b There may seem to be a double Error in this Act. First, That they offered Females for a Burnt-Offering, contrary to Levit. 1.3. and 22.19. Secondly, That they did it in a forbidden place, Deut. 12.5, 6. into which they might easily be led by excess of Joy, and eager desire of returning to their long-interrupted course of Offering Sacrifices. And some think these Irregularities were partial Causes of the following Punishment. But this cafe being very extraordinary, may in some fore excuse it, if they did not proceed by ordinary Rules. As for the first, though they might not chuse Females for that use, yet when God himself had chosen, and in a manner Consecrated them to his service, and employed them in so sacred and glorious a Work, it may seem tollerable to offer them to the Lord, as being his peculiar, and improper for any other use. And for the latter, we have many instances of Sacrifices offered to God by Prophets, and Holy Men, in other places, besides the Tabernacle, upon extraordinary occasions, such as this certainly was; it being fit, that the Ark should at its first return be received with Thanksgiving and Sacrifice; and this Place being Sanctified by the presence of the Ark, which was the very soul of the Tabernacle, and that by which the Tabernacle it self was Sanctified, and for whose sake the Sacrifices were offered at the door of the Tabernacle.

15 And the Levites took down c the ark of the LORD, and the coffer that was with it, wherein the jewels of gold were, and put them on the great stone: and the men of Bethshemesh offered burnt-offerings, and sacrificed sacrifices the same day unto the LORD.

c Or, For the Leviter had taken down: for this, though mentioned after, was done before the Sacrifices were offered.

16 And when the five lords of the Philistines had seen it d, they returned to Ekron the same day.

d To wit, that prodigious return of the Ark to its own Country, and the entertainment it found there.

17 And these are the golden emerods which the Philistines returned for a trespass-offering unto the LORD: for Ashdod one, for Gaza one, for Askelon one, for Gath one, for Ekron one.

18 And the golden mice according to the number of all the cities of the Philistines, belonging to the five lords: both of fenced cities, and of country villages e even unto the ‖ great stone of Abel f, whereon they set down the ark of the LORD, which stone remaineth unto this day in the field of Joshua the Bethshemite.

Or, great stone.

e This is added for explication of that foregoing Phrase, all the cities; either to shew, that under the Name of the five Cities were comprehended all the Villages and Territories belonging to them, in whole Name, and at whose Charge these Presents were made; or to express the difference between this and the former Present, the Emerods being only five, according to the five Cities mentioned, v. 17. because it may seem, the Cities only, or principally were pestered with that Disease; and the Mice being many more according to the number of all the Cities, as is here expressed: the Word city being taken generally for, as to include, not only Fenced Cities, but also the Country Villages, as is here added, and the Fields belonging to them, these being the parts where the Mice did most Mischief. f Which is mentioned as the utmost border of the Philistines Territory to which the Plague of Mice did extend. The word stone being eafily understood out of v. 14. where this great stone is expressly mentioned, as the place on which the Ark was set, which is also here repeated in the following words. And this place is here called Abel, by anticipation from the great Mourning mentioned in the following Verse.

19 ¶ And he smote the men of Bethshemesh, because they had looked into the ark of the LORD g, even he smote of the people h fifty thousand and threescore and ten men i: and the people lamented, because the LORD had smitten many of the people with a great slaughter.

g Having now an opportunity which they never yet had, nor were ever like to have, it is not strange they had a vehement curiosity and desire to see the contents of the Ark: or whether the Philistines had taken them away, and put other things in their place; and they thought they might now presume the more, because the Ark had been polluted by the Philistines, and was now exposed to open view, and not yet put into that most Holy Place, which they were forbidden to approach. h i.e. Of the People living in, and near Bethshemesh, or coming thither from all parts upon this great and glorious occasion. Heb. And, or Also he smote of the people; to wit, of or besides those other places, though here: So these are distinguished from the men of Bethshemesh, of whom he speaks only in general and indefinitely, he smote the men; i.e. Some, or many of them, and then sets down the number of the persons smitten, or slain, either excluding the Bethshemites, or including them. i This may seem an incredible Relation, both because that place could not afford so great a number, and because it seems an act of great rigour, that God should so severely punish those people who came with so much Zeal and Joy to Congratulate the return of the Ark, and that for so inconsiderable an Error. For the latter branch of the Objection, it may be said, 1. That God always used to be most severe in punishing his own People, as Sinning against more knowledge and warning than others; especially, for such sins as immediately concern his own Worship and Service. 2. That men are very incompetent Judges of their Matters, because they do not understand all the reasons and causes of God's Judgments. For although God took this just occasion to punish them for that Crime which was so severely forbidden even to the common Levites under pain of Death; of which see Numb. 4. 18, 15, 20. Yet it is apparent, that the People were at this time guilty of many other, and greater Miscarriages, for which God might justly inflict more prefent punishment upon them: and moreover there are many secret Sins which escape Man's Observation, but are seen by God, before whom, many Persons may be deeply guilty, whom men esteem innocent and vertuous. And therefore men should take heed of Censuring the Judgments of God, of which it is most truly said, that they are oft secrets, but never unrighteous. And for the former branch of the Objection, many things are, or may be said, 1. That Beth-shemesh was then a strangely populous, See 2 Sam. 24. 9. and 2 Chron. 13. 3. 2. That all these were not the setled Inhabitants of this place, but most of them such as did, and in all probability would refort thither in great numbers upon so illustrious an occasion. 3. That all these were not struck dead in the very Fact, and upon the place, which would have terrified others from following their example; but were secretly struck with some Disease or Plague, which killed them in a little time. 4. That divers Learned Men translate, and understand the place otherwise, and make the number much smaller. Josephus the Jew, and the Hebrew Doctors, and many others contend, that only seventy persons were slain. Which though it seem but a small number, yet might justly be called a great slaughter, either for the quality of the persons Slain, or for the greatness and extraordinariness of the Stroke; or because it was a great number, considering the smallness of the Place, and the fadness of the Occasion. The words in the Hebrew are these, and thus placed, he smote of or among the people seventy men, fifty thousand men; whereas, say they, The Words should have been otherwise placed, and the greater number put before the less, if this had been meant, that he smote 50 Thousand and 70 Men. And one very Learned Man renders the Words thus, he smote of the people seventy men, even fifty of a thousand, the Particle, Men of, being here understood, as it is very frequently. So the meaning is, That God smote every twentieth Man of the Transgressors, as the Romans used to cut off every tenth Man in case of the general guilt of an Army. Or the Words may be rendred thus, He smote of, or among the people, seventy men out of fifty thousand men; the Particle Men, of, or out of, being understood before the Word fifty, which Bochart puts before a thousand; and it may be thus expressed, to shew, that God did temper his Severity with great Clemency: And whereas there were many thousands of Transgressors, (every one following his Brother's Example, as is usual in such cases) God only singled out 70 of the Principal Offenders, who either sinned most against their Light or Office; or were the Ringleaders, or chief Encouragers of the rest. To which may be added, That the ancient Translators, the Syriack, and Arabick, read the place fifty thousand and seventy men, being supposed to have read in their Hebrew Copies, Chamesh, five, for Chamishim, fifty, which is no great alteration in the Word.

20 And the men of Bethshemesh said, Who is able to stand before † this holy LORD God k? and to whom shall he go up from us l?

† Heb. For the Lord, the holy God.

k i.e. To minister before the Ark where the Lord is present. Since God is so severe to mark whatsoever is amiss in his Servants, who is sufficient and worthy to serve him? who dare presume to come into his presence? It seems to be a Complaint, or Expostulation with God, concerning this last and great instance of his Severity. l Who will dare to receive the Ark with so much hazard to themselves?

21 ¶ And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim m, saying, The Philistines have brought again the ark of the LORD: come ye down and fetch it up to you.

m Whither they sent, either because the Place was not far off from them, and so it might soon be removed, which they mainly desired: or because it was a place of Eminency and Strength, and somewhat further distant from the Philistines, where therefore it was likely to be better preserved from any new attempts of the Philistines, and to be better attended by the Israelites, who would more freely and frequently come to it at such a place, than in Beth-shemesh, which was upon the border of their Enemies Land: or because they thought they would gladly receive it, being a pious and zealous People: or because it was in the way to Shiloh, its ancient cient Habitations; and whither they might suppose it was to be carried by degrees, and several Stages, whereof this was one.

CHAP. VII.

The Ark is placed in Kirjath-jearim: Eleazer his son is sanctified to keep it, 1, 2. Samuel exhorts them to Repent, and put away their Idols, they obey him. A Fast at Mitzpeh, 3.——6. The Philistines intend to set upon the Israelites, who are afraid, 7. Samuel offereth and prayeth for Israel. God heareth: Terrifieth the Philistines with Thunder, and they are smitten: Are subdued: And the Cities which they had taken from the Israelites are recovered, 8.——14. Samuel visiteth all the Cities of Israel, and returneth to Ramah: There builds an Altar to the Lord, 15.——17.

Psal. 132. 6.

AND the men of * Kirjath-jearim came a and fetcht up b the ark of the LORD, and brought it into the house of * Abinadab in the hill c, and sanctified d Eleazar his son e, to keep the ark of the LORD f.

a They gladly embrace the motion, as wisely considering, that their great Calamity was not to be charged upon the Ark, but upon themselves and their own carelesness, irreverence, and presumption, in looking into the Ark. This place is elsewhere called Baalah, and Kirjath-Baal, as is evident from Jos. 15. 9, &c. and 18. 14. and 1 Chron. 13. 6, 7. b i.e. Caused it to be brought up: to wit, by the Priests appointed to that work, whom they could easily procure, and undoubtedly would do it, especially having been so lately warned of the great danger of violating God's Commands in those matters. In Scripture-use, men are commonly said to do that which they order, or cause others to do. c This place they chose, because it was both a strong place, where it would be most safe; and an high Place, and therefore visible at some distance, and to many Persons, which was convenient for them, who were at that time to direct their Prayers and Faces towards the Ark, 1 Kings 8. 29, 30, 35. Psal. 28. 2. and 138. 2. Dan. 6. 10. And for the same reason David afterwards placed it in the Hill of Sion. Some translate the word, in Gibeah. But that was in the Tribe of Benjamin, Jos. 18. 27. Judg. 19. 14. whereas this Kirjath-jearim was in the Tribe of Judah, 1 Chron. 13. 6, 7. d Not that they made him either Levite or Priest, as some would have it; for in Israel Persons were not made, but born such; and since the Institution of Levites and Priests, none were made such, that were born of other Tribes, or Families; but that they devoted, or set him apart (as this Verb sometimes signifies) wholly to attend upon this Work. e Him they chose rather † as his Father, because he was younger and stronger, and probably freed from Domestick Cares, which might divert him from, or disturb him in this Work; or because he was more eminent for Prudence or Piety. f To keep the place where it was, clean and neat, and to guard it that none might approach or touch it, but such as God required, or allowed to do so.

† Heb. he

2 ¶ And it came to pass while the ark abode in Kirjath-jearim g, that the time was long: for it was twenty years h: and all the house of Israel lamented after the LORD i.

g Where it continued, and was not carried to Shiloh its former place, either because that place was destroyed by the Philistines when the Ark was taken, as may be gathered from this History, compared with Jer. 7. 12, 14. and 26. 6, 9. Or because God would hereby punish the wickedness either of that particular place of Shiloh, or of the People of Israel, by keeping it in a private and obscure place, and that near to the Philistines, whither the generality of the People neither durst, nor could safely come. h He saith not, That this 20 Years was all the time of the Arks abode there, for it continued there from Eli's time, till Davids Reign, 2 Sam. 6. 2. which was 40 years, Act. 13. 21. but that it was so long there e're the Israelites were sensible of their Sin and Misery, e're they lamented, &c. as it follows. i i.e. They followed after God with Lamentation for his departure, and so long estrangement from them, and with prayers for his return, and favour to them.

3 ¶ And Samuel spake unto all the house of Israel k, saying, If ye do return unto the LORD l with all your heart m, then * put away the strange gods n, and * Ashtaroth o from among you, and prepare your hearts p unto the LORD, and * serve him only; and q he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines.

* Heb. Turn.
* Judg. 2. 13. & 10. 6. 1 Sam. 7. 3. & 12. 10.
* Deut. 6. 13. Mat. 4. 10. Luk. 4. 8.

k To all the Rulers and People too, as he had occasion in his Circuit, described below, v. 16. mixing exhortations to Repentance, with his judicial Administrations. l If you do indeed what you profess, if you are resolved to go on in that which you seem to have begun. m Sincerely and in good earnest. n Out of your houses where some of you keep and worship them; and out of your Hearts and Affections, where they still have an Interest in many of you. o And particularly or especially, Ashtaroth, which he mentions as a god, whom they, together with the neighbouring Nations, did more eminently worship. See Judg. 2. 13. p By purging them from all Sin, and particularly from all inclinations to other gods. Or, direct your hearts, having alienated your hearts from your Idols, turn them to God, and not to other Idols or Vanities. q Or, then, upon these conditions you may confidently expect it.

4 Then the children of Israel did put away * Baalim and Ashtaroth, and served the LORD onely.

* Judg. 10. 6.

5 And Samuel said, Gather all Israel to Mizpeh, and I will pray for you unto the LORD.

6 And they gathered together to Mizpeh r, and drew water, and poured it out s before the LORD t, and fasted on that day, and said there, We have sinned against the LORD. And Samuel judged the children of Israel u in Mizpeh.

r Not that beyond Jordan, of which Judg. 11. 11, 20. but another in Canaan, where the Israelites used to assemble, Judg. 20. 1. 1 Sam. 10. 17. s Which they did either, 1. Figuratively, they drew tears out of their Hearts, and poured out of their Eyes as it were Rivers of Water; such descriptions of penitential Sorrow being not unusual: See Psal. 6. 6. and 119. 136. Jer. 9. 1. Lam. 2. 18, 49. Or, rather, 2. Properly, because they are said first to draw it, and then to pour it out. And this agrees well with the State of those Times, wherein such Rites as this were very customary. Now this course they seem to have used, either, 1. As a mean or Instrument of their Purification. So they washed themselves in this Water, thereby acknowledging their filthiness, and cleansing themselves as the Law prescribed. But this seems not probable; 1. Because here is only mention of drawing and pouring forth this Water before the Lord, but not of any washing themselves with it. 2. Because this was not a fit time and place to purifie themselves in this great and general Assembly. Or, 2. As an External Sign, whereby they testified and professed, both their own great filthiness and need of washing by the grace and spirit of God, and blood of the Covenant, which are oft signified by Water, and their fervent desire to pour out their very Hearts before the Lord, in true Repentance, and to cleanse themselves from all filthiness of flesh and spirit. t i.e. In the publick Assembly, where God is in a special manner present, as hath been noted before. u i.e. Governed them, reformed all Abuses against God or man, took care that the Laws of God should be observed and executed, and wilful Transgressors punished.

7 And when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went up x against Israel: and when the children of Israel heard it, they were afraid y of the Philistines.

x To war, with an Army, v. 12. suspecting the effects of their general Convention, and intending to nip them in the bud. y Being a company of unarmed Persons, and destitute of Leaders.

8 And the children of Israel said to Samuel, † Cease not to cry unto the LORD our God for us, that he will save us out of the hand of the Philistines.

† Heb. to cry to God for us ‖ or, from crying.

9 We are ashamed and afraid to look God in the face, because of our great wickedness this day remembred and acknowledged: do thou therefore intercede for us, as Moses did for his Generation.

9 ¶ And Samuel took a sucking lamb z, and offered it b for a burnt-offering wholly c unto the LORD: and * Samuel cried unto the LORD for Israel, and the LORD ‖ heard him d.

* Psal. 99. 6. Jer. 15. 1.

z Which it might be, though it was not more than Eight days old, Levit. 22. and so the Law, Exod. 23. 19. was not violated. b Either himself by Divine Instinct, which was a sufficient Warrant; or rather by a Priest, as Saul is afterwards said to have offered, 1 Sam. 13. 9. c Burning all the parts of it, according to the Law of the Burnt-Offerings; whereas in other Offerings some parts were reserved. d As appears by the Effects, the following Thunder, and the overthrow of the Philistines Host.

10 And as Samuel was offering up the burnt-offering, the Philistines drew near to battel against Israel: but the LORD thundred with a great † thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and discomfited them, and they were smitten e before Israel.

e Either by the Lightnings, or Thunderbolts, or other things which accompanied the cracks of Thunder: or by the Israelites, who perceiving them to be affrighted and flee away, pursued, and smote them, as the next Verse intimations.

11 And the men of Israel went out of Mizpeh, and pursued the Philistines, and smote them f, until they came under Beth-car.

f Or, Whence had they weapons wherewith to smite them? Answ. Divers of them probably brought them to the Assembly, others borrowed them at Mitzpeh, or the neighbouring places: And the rest might be the Arms of the Philistines, which they threw away to hasten their flight, as is usual in such cases.

12 Then Samuel took a stone g, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name thereof ‖ Eben-ezer h, saying, Hitherto hath the LORD helped us i.

‖ That is, the stone of help.

g A rude unpolished Stone, which was not prohibited by that Levit. 26. 1. there being no danger of Worshipping such a Stone, and this being set up only as a Monument of the Victory. h By which, compared with Chap. 4. 1. it appears, that this Victory was gained in, or near the very same place where the Israelites received their former fatal loss. i He hath begun to help us in some measure, though not compleatly to deliver us. By which wary Expression, he excited both their thankfulness for their Mercy received, and their holy fear and care to please and serve the Lord, that he might proceed to help and deliver them more effectually.

13 ¶ So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the coast of Israel k: and the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

k i.e. They came not with a great Host, as now they did, but only molested them with straglíng Parties, or Garisons; as 1 Sam. 7. 5. and they came not, to wit, all the days of Samuel, as it follows, i.e. while Samuel was their sole Judge, or Ruler; for in Saul's time they did come, 1 Sam. 13. 5, 17. and 14. 52. and 17. 1. &c.

† Heb. Hin-nachal.

14 And the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel, † were restored to Israel l, from Ekron even unto Gath, and the coasts thereof did Israel deliver out of the hand of the Philistines: and there was peace m between Israel and the Amorites n.

l By the Philistines, who, it seems, were frighted into this Restitution by their dread of Samuel, and of the Divine Vengeance. Object. The Philistines had Cities and Garisons in Israel's Land after this time; as 1 Sam. 10. 5. and 13. 3. Answ. Either therefore those places were not any of these here mentioned; for it is not said, That all their Cities were restored; but only indefinitely, the cities, and those limited to a certain compass, from Ekron to Gath; or some of the Cities now restored by the Philistines, were afterwards retaken by them. m An agreement for the Cessation of all acts of Hostility. n i.e. The Canaanites, oft called Amorites, because these were formerly the most Valiant and Terrible of all those Nations, and the first Enemies which the Israelites met with, when they went to take Possession of their Land. They made this Peace with the Canaanites, that they might be more at leisure to oppose the Philistines, now their most Potent Enemies.

15 And Samuel judged Israel all the days of his life o.

o For though Saul was King in Samuel's last days, yet Samuel did not then quite cease to be a Judge, being so made by God's extraordinary Call, which Saul could not destroy; And therefore Samuel did sometimes, upon great occasions, though not ordinarily, exercise the office of a Judge after the beginning of Saul's Reign; as Chap. 11. 7. and 15. 32, 33. And the years of the Rule of Saul and Samuel are joyned together, Act. 13. 21. Qu. How doth the Office of a Judge agree with Hannah's Vow, whereby she devoted him to a perpetual attendance upon the Lord's Service? Answ. This was not inconsistent with her Vow, which consisted of two Branches, the one more general, that he should be given, or lent to the Lord all his days, 1 Sam. 1. 11, 28. which the faithfully executed, leaving him wholly to the Service and disposal of the LORD, who thought fit to employ him in this way; and, if any thing therein was contrary to that Vow, could undoubtedly dispense with it, as being his own right only; the other more particular, that no Rasor should come upon his head; nor doth it appear that this part was violated; or if it was, it was done by Divine Dispensation.

† Heb. and he circuited

16 And he went from year to year † in circuit to Bethel p, and Gilgal q, and Mizpeh r, and judged Israel in all those places s.

p Either a place known by that name: or the house of God; to wit, Kirjath-jearim, where the Ark was. q In the Eastern Border. r Towards the West. s He went to those several places, partly in compliance with the People, whose convenience and benefit he was willing to conciliate with his own trouble, making himself an itinerant Judge and Preacher for their sakes; and partly, that by his presence in several parts, he might the better observe, and rectifie all sorts of miscarriages against God or Men.

17 And his return was to Ramah: for there was his house, and there he judged Israel, and there he built an altar unto the LORD t.

t That by joyning Sacrifices with his Prayers, he might the better obtain direction and assistance from God upon all emergencies. Object. It was unlawful to build another Altar for Sacrifice besides that before the Tabernacle, Deut. 12. 5, 13. Answ. This was in part excused by the confusion of those times, wherein the Tabernacle and its Altar were Destroyed; as is most probable; but most fully, because this was done by Prophetical Inspiration, and Divine Dispensation, as appears by God's approbation and acceptance of the Sacrifices offered upon it.

CHAP. VIII.

Samuel makes his sons Judges over Israel: Their Names: And ill Government, 1,—3. The People ask a King: Samuel is grieved: Prays: 4,—5. God is displeased with the People: But commands Samuel to hearken to them, 7,—9. And to represent to them the Tyrannical Government of Kings, which he doth, 10,——18. The People continue in their Request: God commandeth Samuel to yield to them, 19,—22.

AND it came to pass when Samuel was old a, that he made his sons Judges b over Israel.

a And so unable for his former Travels and Labours. b Not Supreme Judges, for such there was to be but one, and that of God's chusing; and Samuel still kept that Office in his own hands, Chap. 7. 15. but his Vicegerents or Deputies, who might go about and determine matters, but with reservation of a right of Appeals to himself. He advanced his Sons to this place, not to much out of Parental Indulgence, the fad effects whereof he had seen in Eli; but because he had doubtless instructed them in a singular manner, and fitted them for the highest Employments; and he hoped that the Example he had set them, and the Inspection and Authority he still had over them, would have obliged them to diligence and faithfulness in the execution of their Trust.

2 Now the name of the first-born was Joel, and the name of his second Abiah: they were judges in Beer-sheba c.

c In the Southern border of the Land of Canaan, where he placed his Sons, because these parts were very remote from his house at Ramah; where, and in the neighbouring places Samuel himself still executed the Office of the Judge; tending his Sons to reside and judge in distant places, for the ease and convenience of the People.

3 And his sons walked not in his ways, but turned aside after lucre, and * took bribes d, and perverted judgment.

* Deut. 16. 19.

d Opportunity and temptation drew forth and discovered that Corruption in them, which till now was hid from their Father, and, it may be, from themselves.

4 Then all the elders e of Israel gathered themselves together, and came to Samuel unto Ramah.

e Either for Age, or Dignity, and Power.

5 And said unto him, Behold, thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways f: now * make us a king to judge us g, like all the nations h.

* Heb. ſet us. Act. 13. 21.

f They feared, that Samuel would not live long; and that either through infirmity and indulgence might leave the Government in his Sons hands; or that they would invade and keep it, after their Father's Death; and therefore they joynly make their Complaints against them, and procure their removal from their places. Thus they are brought low, and crushed by those very wicked ways by which they designed to Advance and Establish themselves. So true is it, That Honesty is the best Policy, and Unrighteousness the greatest Folly. g Their conclusion out-run their Premises, and their Desires exceed their Reasons or Arguments, which extended no further than to the removal of Samuel's Sons from their places, and the procuring some other just and prudent assistance to Samuel's Age. Nor was the grant of their Desire a Remedy for their Disease, but rather an aggravation of it. For the Sons of their King might and were likely to be as corrupt as Samuel's Sons; and, if they were, would not be so easily removed as these were. h i.e. As most of the Nations about us have. But there was not the like reason; because God had separated them from all other Nations, and cautioned them against the imitation of their Examples, and had taken them into his own immediate Care and Government; which priviledge other Nations had not.

6 ¶ But the thing † displeased Samuel i, when they said, Give us a king to judge us: and Samuel prayed unto the LORD k.

† Heb. was evil in the eyes of Mal.

i Not their complaint of his Sons, but their desire of a King, as is apparent from the following Words, and from the whole course of the Story. Which was so grievous to him; partly, because of their Injustice and Ingratitude to himself, whose Government, though it had been so sweet and beneficial to them, they plainly threw themselves weary of; and principally, because God was hereby dishonoured and provoked, by that distrust of God, and that vain-glory and ambition, and that itch after Changes, which were the manifest causes of this Desire; and because of that great servitude and misery, which he wisely foresaw the People would hereby bring upon themselves, as he particularly informs them, v. 11, &c. k For the Pardon of their Sin, and desire of direction and help from God in this great affair.

7 And the LORD said unto Samuel, Hearken unto the voice of the people l in all that they say unto thee: for they have not rejected thee m, but * have rejected me n, that I should not reign over them o.

* Chap. 15. 23.

l God grants their desire in Anger, and for their Punishment, as is affirmed, Hoſ. 13. 11. Compare Numb. 22. 13, 20. Deut. 1. 22. Pſal. 77. 20. m i.e. Not thee only, nor principally. Compare Gen. 32. 28. Exod. 16. 7. Hoſ. 6. 6. Mat. 10. 20. n This injury and wit, by my immediate and peculiar Government, which was the great honour, safety, and happiness of this People, if they had had wit to know it, or hearts to prize it. And all the Infelicities of Israel, under this kind of Government, did not proceed from the Nature of the Government, but from the ungovernableness and wickedness of the People, which, they might be sure, would produce the same or greater Calamities under their kingly Government. Qu. First, Did not God Reign over them when they had Kings? Anſ. Yes, in a general way, but not in such a peculiar manner as he did by the Judges, who were generally raised and called by Gods particular Appointment, Endowed and Sanctified by his Spirit, directed and assisted by his special Providence upon all Emergencies; whereas all things were for the most part contrary in their Kings. Qu. Secondly, Was it simply unlawful for the People to desire a King? Anſ. No, as appears from Deut. 17. 14. but herein was their Sin, That they desired it upon sinful grounds, of which see on v. 7. and in an imperuous manner, and at an unseasonable time, and without asking Leave or Advice from God; which in so weighty and difficult a Case they could not neglect without great Sin.

8 According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even unto this day, wherewith they have forsaken me, and served other gods: so do they also unto thee p.

p Thou fareſt no worse than my self. This he speaks for Samuel's Comfort and Vindication.

9 Now

9 Now therefore hearken unto their voice: * howbeit, yet protest solemnly unto them q, and shew them the manner of the king r that shall reign over them.

* Heb. only.

q i.e. Of the Kings which they desire like the Kings of the Gentiles. He speaks not of the just Authority, or the right of a King, but of their Practices, as is evident from divers of the following particulars, which are expressly forbidden and condemned as injurious, as we shall see.

10 ¶ And Samuel told all the words of the LORD unto the people, that asked of him a king.

11 And he said, This will be † the manner of the king that shall reign over you: he * will take your sons s, and appoint them for himself, for his chariots, and to be his horsemen t, and some shall run before his chariots.

† Heb. The judgment of the king.

* Heb. will set. Act. 13. 21.

s To wit, Injuriously and by Violence, as this Hebrew word is oft us'd, 1 Sam. 22. 9. and 27. 56. Jer. 5. 5. and so it must be here; because otherwise the King would have no more privilege than any of his Subjects; for any Man might take a Son with his own or Parents consent. t Or, and for his Horſes, for so the Hebrew word Parash, sometimes signifies, as Iſa. 21. 7, 9. and 28. 28. to ride his Horse.

12 And he will appoint him u captains over thousands, and captains over fifties, and will set them to ear his ground, and to reap his harvest x, and to make his instruments of war, and instruments of his chariots y.

u Heb. To, or for himself; Emphatically, i.e. for his own fancy, or glory, or conveniency, or evil design, and not only when the necessities of the Kingdom or Commonwealth require it, as the Judges did. And though this might seem to be no incumbrance, as it is here expressed, but an honour and advantage to the Persons so advanced, yet even in them that Honour was accompanied with great Dangers, and pernicious Snares of many kinds, which those faint shadows of Glory could not recompence; and as to the publick, their Pomp and Power proved very Burthensome and Destructive to the People, whose Lands and Fruits were taken from them, and bestowed upon these, for the support of their State, as it follows below, v. 14, 15. x At is own pleasure, and without their consent, when possibly their own Fields required all their time and pains. y He will press them for all sorts of his work, and that upon his own terms.

13 And he will take your daughters z to be confectioners, and to be cooks, and to be bakers.

z Which would be more grievous to their Parents, and more dangerous to themselves, because of the tenderness of that Sex, and liableness to many injuries.

14 And † he will take your fields a, and your vineyards, and your oliveyards, even the best of them, and give them to his servants b.

† Heb. they will take.

a To wit, by fraud or force, as Ahab did from Naboth. b He will not only take the Fruits of your Lands for his own use, but will take away your Possessions to give to his Servants.

15 And he will take the tenth c of your seed, and of your vineyards, and give to his † officers d, and to his servants.

c Besides the several Tenths which God hath reserved for his Service and Servants, he will, when he pleaseth, impose another Tenth upon you. d Heb. to his Eunuchs, which may be properly understood, and may imply a further injury, that he should against the command of God, make some of his People Eunuchs; and take some into his Court and Favour, which God would have cast out of the Congregation.

16 And he will take your men servants, and your maid servants, and your goodliest young men, and your asses, and put them to his work e.

e By constraint, and without sufficient recompence.

17 He will take the tenth of your sheep, and ye shall be his servants f.

f i.e. He shall use you like Slaves, and deprive you of that liberty which you now enjoy.

18 And ye shall cry out in that day g, because of the king which ye shall have chosen you; and the LORD will not hear you in that day h.

g Ye shall bitterly mourn for the sad Effects of this horrid desire of a King. h Because you will not hear him, nor obey his Counsel in this Day. Compare Prov. 1. 24, &c. Zech. 7. 13.

19 ¶ Nevertheless, the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel: and they said, Nay i, but there shall be a king over us k:

i i.e. Those things shall never be, there are but vain Suppositions to affright us from our purpose. Thus they are not ashamed to give Samuel the lye, of whose Modesty, Integrity, and Prophetical Spirit, they had so great assurance, as if he had no good Oracle pretences merely to keep the power in his own and his Sons hands. k We will have a King, whatsoever it cost us, although all thy Predictions should be verified.

20 That we also may be like all the nations; and that our king may judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battels.

21 And Samuel heard all the words of the people, and he rehearsed them in the ears of the LORD.

m He repeated them privately between God and himself; partly, for his own Vindication and Comfort; and partly, for a Foundation for his Prayers to God, for direction and assistance in this difficult case.

22 And the LORD said to Samuel, Hearken unto their voice, and make them a king. And Samuel said unto the men of Israel, Go ye every man unto his city n.

n Retire your selves to your several dwellings, till you hear more from me in this Matter. For God hath heard your cries, and will give way to your Irregular and Obstinate desires: and consequently I shall take upon God for the determination of the Person, which he hath wholly reserved to himself, as for Judges, so for the King also, Deut. 17. 15. and for the Regulation of all the Circumstances.

CHAP. IX.

The Genealogy of Kish. 1. Saul's Person. 2. He is sent to seek the Father's Asses. 3. He Travels through the Country, and finds them not, 4, 5. By the Counsel of his Servant, is directed to the Prophet of Zuph, young Maidens, 11,——14. According to God's Declaration, 15,——17. He comes to Samuel, who treats him entertainedly him at the Feast: Tells him the Asses were found: he should be King, 18,—20. Saul's Amazement, 21. Samuel gives him the highest place: and a peculiar Dish: Entertains him at his House. After secret Communication leadeth him on the way: The servant goes before: Saul stands still with Samuel, 25,—27.

NOW there was a man of Benjamin, whose name was * Kish a, the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphiah, a Benjamite b, a mighty man of power c.

* Heb. and there was a man.

a Obj. His Name was Ner, 1 Chron. 8. 33. and 9. 39. Anſ. Either his Father had two Names, as was usual among the Hebrews; or Kish was really his Father that bore that Name, and Ner, the Brother of Kish, 1 Sam. 14. 51. 1 Chron. 9. 39. would be his Father, because upon the Death of Kish, he took the care of his Education, and brought him up as his own Son. b Heb. the Son of a man of Jemini, i.e. either of Benjamin: or of a Place, or of a Man called [illegible] c i.e. A man of great courage and strength: which tends to his commendation: Otherwise, a Man of great Wealth. But that seems confuted by Saul's words below, v. 21. and the Poverty consisting of him, cap. 10. 27.

2 And he had a son whose name was Saul, a * choice young man, and a goodly: he was [illegible] not a man of the children of Israel a goodlier [illegible] than he: from his shoulders and upward [illegible] than any of the people a.

* Heb. bachur, i.e. comely and serviceable, as this word is [illegible] Gen. 6. 2. as Eſth. 2. 2. pure for deformed, [illegible] was much valued in a King in Ancient Times, and in [illegible] Countries.

3 And the asses of Kish, Saul's father, were lost. And Kish said to Saul his son, Take now one of the servants with thee, and arise, go seek the asses.

f Which were there of great price and use, [illegible] because of the scarcity of Horses [illegible] held unworthy of Saul's feeding, as [illegible] when Simplicity, Humility, and Industry were in [illegible] Persons or Quality.

4 And he passed through mount Ephraim, and passed through the land of Shalisha, but they found them not: then they passed through the land of Shalim, and there they were not: and he passed through the land † of the Benjamites, but they found them not.

† Or, the Benjamites.

5 And when they were come to the land of Zuph, Saul said to his servant that was with him, Come, and let us return, lest my father leave caring for the asses, and take thought for us.

g A part of the Tribe of Ephraim, which bordered upon Benjamin; and therefore they could [illegible] other, and back again, as they [illegible]

h In which was Ramah, called also [illegible] Samuel, the place of Samuel's Birth and Residence, 1 Sam. 1. 19. and 7. 17.

6 And he said unto him, Behold now, there is in this city a man of God, and he is an honourable man; all that he saith * cometh surely to pass: now let us go thither; peradventure he can shew us our way that we should go.

* Heb. is coming.

confirmed by the Event. l The Course we should take to find the Asses. He saith, peradventure, because he doubted whether so great a Prophet would seek, or God would grant him a Revelation concerning such mean matters: Although sometimes God was pleased herein to condescend to his People, to cut off all pretence or occasion of seeking to Witches or Heathenish divination. See 1 Kings 14. 2. 2 Kings 1. 3.

7 Then said Saul to his servant, But behold, if we go, what shall we bring the man? for the †Heb. is gone out of, &c. bread † is spent in our vessels m, and there is not a present to bring to the man of God n: What † have we?

m This he saith, because Bread was not unusually given by way of present, as we see 1 Sam. 10. 3, 4. Or Bread is put for all manner of Provisions, as is frequent, and among these they might have something not unfit, in these plain Times, to make a Present of, as Clusters of Raisins, or Cakes of Figs, such as Abigail presented to David, 1 Sam. 25. 18. See also 1 Kings 14. 3. 2 Kings 4. 42. n Such Presents were then made to the Prophets, 1 Kings 14. 2, 3. 2 Kings 5. 15. and 8. 8. either as a Testimony of Respect to him as their Superiour; upon which account Subjects made Presents to their Kings, 1 Sam. 10. 27. And the Persians never came to their King, without some Gift: or, as a grateful acknowledgment of his Favour: or, for the support of the Prophets themselves: or, of the Sons of the Prophets: or, of other Persons in want, known to them.

8 And the servant answered Saul again, and said, †Heb. there is found in my hand. Behold, † I have here at hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver o, that will I give to the man of God to tell us our way.

o Which was near a Groat. Which, though now it may seem a contemptible Gift, yet in those Ancient Times it was certainly of far more worth, and better accepted than now it would be, when the Covetousness, and Pride, and Luxury of men, hath raised their expectations and desires to far greater things.

9 (Before time in Israel, when a man went to enquire of God p, thus he spake, Come, and let us go to the Seer: for he that is now called a Prophet, was before time called a Seer q.)

p Or, a Man of God, which signified the same thing. q Because he did discern, and could discover things secret and unknown to others. And these are the words, Either, First, of some later Sacred Writer, which, after Samuel's Death, inserted this Verse. Or, Secondly, Of Samuel, who, being probably 50 or 60 Years Old at the Writing of this Book, and speaking of the State of things in his first Days, might well call it before-time. Or rather, Thirdly, Of Saul's Servant, who might be now stricken in Years, and might speak this either by his knowledge of what was in his Juvenile Years, or upon the Information of his Father or Ancestors. And to it is a fit Argument to dissuade Saul to go to the Man of God, that he might shew this the rather, and where the Asses were, because he was likely to learn them for the Prophets were anciently called Seers, because they knew and could reveal hidden things. And the meaning is, that anciently they were not vulgar y called Prophets, but Seers only; whereas now, and afterwards, they were called Seers, yet they were more commonly called Prophets.

†Heb. thy word is good. 10 Then said Saul to his servant, † Well said, come let us go: so they went unto the city, where the man of God was.

†Heb. the ascent of the city. 11 ¶ And as they went up † the hill to the city, they found young maidens going out r to draw water, and said unto them, Is the Seer here?

r i.e. Out of the City, and down to the bottom of the Hill, where the Fountain or River was.

12 And they answered them, and said, He is: behold, he is before you, make haste now: for he †Or, feast. came to day to the city s; for there is a † sacrifice t of the people u to day in the high place x.

s She so speaks, though this was his own constant habitation, because he had been travelling abroad, possibly in his Circuit, described 1 Sam. 7. 16, 17. and was now returned to his own House in Ramah, as he used to do, and so the implies they come in a good and seasonable time to meet with him. t Otherwise, Feast: But it seems to be understood of a Sacrifice. First, Because so the Hebrew word signifies most properly, and most frequently. Secondly, Because this Eating was in the High place, which was the common place for Sacrifices, but not for private Feasts. Thirdly, The Prophets presence was not so necessary for a Feast, as for a Sacrifice. u So this Sacrifice is called, because this was a publick Solemnity, and possibly the New Moon, when the People brought several Sacrifices; to wit, Peace-offerings, whereof part fell to the Officer's share; and of these parts united together, they here made a common Feast; not without Samuel's direction, who being forewarned the day before, by God, of Saul's coming, made the Feast more solemn for his entertainment, v. 22, 23, 24. x Upon the Hill mentioned, v. 11. and near the Altar which Samuel built for this kind of use, 1 Sam. 7. 17. by Divine Dispensation, as was there Noted. Otherwise to Sacrifice in High places was forbidden by the Law, after the Building of the Tabernacle.

13 Assoon as ye be come into the city, ye shall straightway find him y, before he go up to the high place to eat z: for the people will not eat until he come, because he doth blefs the sacrifice a, and afterwards they eat that be bidden: Now there-†Heb. to day. fore get ye up b, for about † this time ye shall find him.

y At Home and at leisure. z The Relicks of the Sacrifices, according to the manner. a i.e. Either, First, The Meat left of the Sacrifice, which is the matter of the following Feast; as this is commonly understood. Or rather, Secondly, The Sacrifice it self: For what reason is there to depart from the proper signification of the Word? For that the Sacrifices under the Law were accompanied with Confession, or Petition, or Thanksgiving, may be gathered from divers places of Scripture, as Levit. 5. 5. and 16. 21. Numb. 5. 7. Luk. 1. 10. And who so proper to perform this work, as Samuel, an eminent Prophet? And the Blessing of this Sacrifice seems to have consisted both of Thanksgiving, this being a Thank-Offering, and of Prayer to God for his acceptance, Psal. 20. 3. b With speed, left he be far down before you come.

14 And they went up into the city: and when they were come into the city, behold, Samuel came out c against them, for to go up to the high place.

c Out of his own House, just as they passed by.

15 ¶ * Now the LORD had † told Samuel in †Heb. uncovered his ear. his ear d, a day before Saul came e, saying, d i.e. Secretly. e That he might prepare himself for Saul's reception.

16 To morrow about this time I will send thee a man f out of the land of Benjamin, and thou shalt anoint him to be captain over my people Israel, that he may save my people out of the hand of the Philistines g: for I have looked upon my people h, because their cry i is come unto me.

f I will by my secret Providence so dispose of matters, and of the Hearts of Saul and his Father, that Saul shall come to thee, though with another Design. g For though they were now most pressed with the Ammonites, as we read chap. 12. 12. yet they looked upon these as a Land-Flood, which they hoped would be soon up, and soon down again: but the Philistines, their constant, inveterate, and nearest Enemies, they most dreaded. And from these Saul did in some measure save them, and should have saved them much more, if his and the Peoples manifold Sins had not hindred it. h To wit, with Compassion and Resolution to help them. An usual Synecdoche. i i.e. Their earnest Prayers to me for help.

17 And when Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said unto him k, Behold the man whom I spake to thee of; this same shall † reign over my people.
†Heb. restrain, &c.

k In his Ear, as before, v. 15. by secret instinct, so as none but he could hear it.

18 Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the gate l, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, where the Seers house is.

l The Gate, either First, Of Samuel's House. But he was come out thence before, v. 14. Or rather, Secondly, Of the City, for the word Gate being put by it self, according to reason and common use, must be understood of the most eminent in its kind, which the Gate of the City is. And through this Gate Samuel seems now to have been passing to go to the High-Place, which probably was without the City: and there he makes a stand, to hear what these Persons now approaching to him, were about to speak.

19 And Samuel answered Saul, and said, I am the Seer: Go up before me unto the high place, for ye shall eat with me to day, and to morrow I will let thee go, and will tell thee all that is in thine heart m.

m Either all that thou desirest to know, as concerning the Asses: or rather, the secret thoughts of thy heart, or such actions as none know but God and thy own heart; that so thou mayst be assured of the truth and certainty of that which I am to acquaint thee with. And this might be done, though it be not here particularly related.

20 And as for thine asses that were lost † three †Heb. to day. days ago, set not thy mind on them n, for they are found: And † on whom is all the desire of Israel? is it not on thee, and on all thy fathers house?
†Or, for whom is it.

n Trouble not thy mind about them. o Who is he that shall be that Thing or Person which all Israel desire to have, to wit, a King? p That Honour is designed for thee, and, after thy Death, for thy Family or Posterity, if by thy Sin thou dost not cut off the Entail.

21 And Saul answered and said, Am not I a †Heb. the smallest of the tribes. * Benjamite, of the smallest of the tribes of Israel? and my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? wherefore then speakest thou †Heb. so to me. † so to me?

q For to indeed this was, having been all cut off except 600, Judg. 20. which Blow they never recovered, and therefore they were scarce reckoned as an inferr Tribe, but only as a Remnant or Fragment of a Tribe; and, being Ingrafted into Judah, in the division between the Ten Tribes and the Two, they in some sort lost their Name, and they, together with Judah, were accounted but one Tribe, as 1 Kings 11. 32, &c. r i.e. One of the least; obscure and inconsiderable, in comparition of divers others. Whence it may seem that Saul's Family was not so Noble and Wealthy, as some imagine. See on w. 1. s Why dost thou feed me with vain hopes of the Kingdom?

22 And Samuel took Saul and his servant t, and brought them into the parlour, and made them sit in the chiefest place u among them that were bidden, which were about thirty persons.

t Whom he honoured for Saul's sake: thereby both giving all the Guests occasion to think how great that person was, or should be, whose very Servant was advanced above the Chief persons of the City, who were doubtless present upon this occasion; and shewing how far himself was from envying Saul that Honour and Power, which was to be translated from him to Saul. u Thereby to raise all their expectation, and to prepare them for giving that Honour to Saul, which his approaching Dignity required.

23 And Samuel said unto the cook, Bring the portion which I gave thee x, of which I said unto thee, Set it by thee.

x Or, I appointed or disposed to thee; i.e. which I had thee reserve for this use.

24 And the cook took up the shoulder y, and that which was upon it z, and set it before Saul: and Samuel said, Behold, that which is ‖ left a, set it before thee, and eat: for unto this time b hath it been kept for thee, since I said c, I have invited the people d: so Saul did eat with Samuel that day.
‖ Or, reserved.

y To wit, the left Shoulder, for the right Shoulder was the Priests, Lev. 7. 32, 33. This he gives him, either, First, As the best and noblest part of the remainders of the Sacrifice: the best parts being usually given by the Master of the Feast to such Guests as were most honourable, or best beloved, as Gen. 43. 34. Or, Secondly, As a secret Symbol or Sign of that Burden which was to be laid upon Saul, and of that strength which was necessary for the bearing of it; the Shoulder being both the seat of burdens, and the subject of strength. z Something which the Cook by Samuel's order was to put upon it when it was dress'd, either for Ornament, or in the nature of a Sauce. a To wit, left of the Sacrifice: but fo all, or most of the rest of their Provisions were left: Or rather, reserved, or laid by, by my order, for thy eating; when the rest of the Meat was sent up, and disposed of as the Cook pleased. b Till thou shouldst come hither and fit down here: whereby thou maist know that thy coming hither was not unknown to me, and was designed by God for an higher purpose. c To wit, to the Cook, who was before mentioned, as the person to whose Care this was committed. d i.e. I have invited or designed fome persons, for whom I reserve this part. For since the word People is not here taken properly, but for some particular persons of the people, which were not in all above thirty, v. 22. why may not the same word be understood of two or three persons whom Samuel specially invited, to wit, Saul and his Servant? So some learned Men understand this word People, of three Men, 2 King. 18. 36. And they further note, That in the Arabick, and Æthiopick, and Persian Languages, (all which are near a kin, both to themselves, and to the Hebrew, and do oft-times communicate their signification each to other:) the word that signifies People, is oft used for some few particular Persons. Or, if the word People be meant of the Chief of the People, mentioned above, v. 22. then Samuel was the Principal Author of this Sacrifice and Feast, and it was not a Sacrifice of the People, as it is rendred v. 12. but a Sacrifice and Feast made by Samuel for the People, as it should be rendred there: and the sence is, When I first spake or sent word to the Cook, that I had invited the People, first to joyn with me in my Sacrifice, and then to partake with me of the Feast, I then had him reserve this part for thy use.
†Heb. to the time appointed, &c.

25 ¶ And when they were come down from the high place into the city, Samuel communed with Saul e upon the top of the house f.

e Concerning the Kingdom designed to him by God, and his Duty to expect it patiently, till God actually called him to it; and to administer it Prouly, and Justly, and Valiantly. f Which was that after the manner, Deut. 22. 8. and so fit for walking, and for secret Prayers, Dan. 6. 10. Acts 10. 9. or any private and familiar Discourses among Friends.

26 and they arose early: and it came to pass about the spring of the day, that Samuel called Saul to the top of the house g, saying †, Up, that I may send thee away h: and Saul arose, and they went out both of them, he and Samuel abroad i.
†After your ass, &c.

g A second time, to impart something more to him. h Prepare thy self for thy Departure and Journey. i Samuel accompanying Saul part of his way.

27 And as they were going down to the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul, Bid the servant pass on before us k, (and he passed on) but stand thou still † a while, that I may shew thee the word of God l.
†Heb. to-day.

k That thou and I may speak privately of the matter of the Kingdom. Which Samuel hitherto endeavoured to conceal, lest he should be thought now to impose a King upon them, as before he denied one to them; and that it might appear by the Lot stemmed in the next Chapter, that the Kingdom was given to Saul by God's Destination, and not by Samuel's Contrivance. l i.e. A Message delivered to me from God, which now I shall impart to thee.

CHAP. X.

Samuel anointeth Saul, 1. Confirms him by prediction of three Signs, 2—8. Saul prophesies, 9,—13. He cometh to his uncle: telleth him what Samuel had said concerning the asses, but concealeth the matter of the Kingdom, 14,—16. Samuel assembleth the people at Mizpeh, 17,—20. Saul is chosen king by lot; but hideth himself; is d'scovered by God. His stature, 21,—23. Samuel presents him to the people, who receive him with shouting, 24. Samuel writeth the manner of the kingdom in a Book, 25. God inspires the people with reverence towards Saul: but the children of Belial despise him, 26, 27.

THen Samuel took a vial of oil, and poured it upon his head a, and kissed him b, and said, Is it not because the LORD hath anointed thee to be captain over his inheritance c?

a Which was the usual Rite in the Designation, as of Priests and Prophets, so also of Kings, as 1 Sam. 16. 1, 13. 1 King. 1. 39. 2 King. 9. 1, 3, 6. whereby was signified the pouring forth of the Gifts of God's Spirit upon him, to enable him for the Administration of his Office, which he might expect, and should receive upon the discharge of his Duty. b Partly in token of that Reverence which he did owe, and that Subjection which he and all the People were shortly to perform to him, whereof Kissing was a sign, as Gen. 41. 40. 1 King. 19. 18. and partly, as a Testimony of his sincere Friendship and Affection to him, and how far he was from envying his Successor in the Supreme Dignity. c i.e. Over his own peculiar People. Whereby he admonisheth Saul, That this People were not so much his, as Gods; and that he was not to rule and manage them according to his own Will and Pleasure, but according to the Will and Mind of God.

2 When thou art departed from me to day, then thou shalt find two men by * Rachels sepulchre, in
* Gen. 35. 19. & 48. 7. the borders of Benjamin d, at Zelzah: and they will 1 Sam. 9. 4. say unto thee, The asses which thou wentest to seek, †Heb. the care of the asses. are found: and lo, thy father hath left † the care of †Heb. is sorrowful. the asses, and sorroweth for you, saying, What shall I do for my son?

d In the way to Bethlehem, Gen. 35. 19. which City was in Judah; and her Sepulchre might be either in Judah, or in Benjamin; for the possessions of those two Tribes were bordering one upon another, and oft intermixed together. See Jos. 15. 11.

3 Then shalt thou go on forward from thence, and thou shalt come to the plain of Tabor e, and there shall meet thee three men going up to God to Bethel f, one carrying three kids, and another carrying three loaves of bread g, and another carrying a bottle of wine h.

e Not that at the foot of Mount Tabor, which was far from these parts; but another belonging to some other Place, or Man, called Tabor. f Properly so called, which was in Ephraim, where there was a noted high Place, famous for Jacob's Vision there, Gen 28. 19. where it is probable they offered Sacrifices, in this confused State of things, when the Ark was in one place, and the Tabernacle, if not destroyed, in another. Or, to the House of God, i.e. to Kiriath-jearim, where the Ark, the habitation of God, now was, 1 Sam. 7. 1, 2, 16. g Which might be offered, either by themselves as Levit. 2. 4. or with other Sacrifices. h Which was poured forth in Drink-Offerings. See Lev. 23. 13. Numb. 15. 5.

4 And they will † salute thee, and give thee two †Heb. ask of the welfare. loaves of bread i, which thou shalt receive of their hand.

i Two of those three designed for Sacrifice, supposing they could easily procure a supply of other Loaves at Bethel. But the more strange the Present was, the more fit it was for a sign of God's extraordinary Providence in Saul's Affairs.

5 After that thou shalt come to the hill of God k, where is the garison of the Philistines: and it shall come to pass, when thou art come thither to the city l, that thou shalt meet a company of prophets m coming down from the high place, n, with a psaltery, and a tabret, and a pipe, and a harp before them o, and they shall prophesie p.

k An Hill near Geba, or Gibeah of Benjamin, where a Garison of Philistines was, 1 Sam. 13. 3. called here the Hill of God, because it was a place devoted to the Service of God; either for Sacrifice, this being an high place, as it here follows; or, for a School or College of Prophets. l Adjoyning to that Hill. m By Prophets here, and in such like places, he understands Persons that did wholly devote themselves to Religious Studies and Exercises, such as Preaching, Praying, Praising of God, &c. For the term of Prophesying is not only given to the most eminent act of it, viz. foretelling things to come; but also to Preaching, as Rom. 12. 6. 1 Cor. 14. 31, 32. 1 Thess. 5. 20. and to the making or singing of Psalms, or Songs of Praise to God, as 1 Chron. 25. 1, 2, 3. And they that wholly attended upon these things, are oft called Sons of the Prophets, which were commonly combined into Companies or Colledges, as 2 King. 2. 3, 5. that they might more conveniently edifie and assist one another in God's Work. Which Institution God was pleased so far to honour and bless, that sometimes he communicated unto those Persons the knowledge of future things, as 2 King. 2. 3, 5. n Where, either, their habitation was, or they had now been offering Sacrifice. And although they used to perform this following Exercise, either in their College, or in the place of their Sacrifices; yet now they did it in the descent of the Hill, which probably was beside their Custom, and therefore more proper for a sign to Saul of a more than ordinary hand of God towards him. o Such Instruments of Musick being then used by Prophets and other Persons, for the exhilaration and excitation of their Spirits in God's Service. See 2 King. 3. 15. p Either sing God's Praises, or speak of the things of God.

6 And the spirit of the LORD will come upon thee q, and thou shalt prophesie with them, and shalt be turned into another man.

q Heb.

[illegible] when thefe ſigns [illegible] come unto thee, that thou do occaſion ſhall ſerve thee, for [illegible]

7 And let it be, when theſe ſigns are come unto thee, that thou do occaſion ſhall ſerve thee, for [illegible]

8 And thou ſhalt go down before me to Gilgal, and behold, I will come down unto thee, to offer burnt-offerings, and to ſacrifice ſacrifices of peace-offerings: ſeven days ſhalt thou tarry till I come to thee n, and ſhew thee what thou ſhalt do.

n For, though it were mentioned and commanded, yet was not immediately to be performed: as is evident, partly from the whole courſe of this ſtory, which ſhews, That Saul and Samuel, and the People, v. 8. and at Mitzpeh, v. 17, &c. where Saul was choſen by God, and accepted by the People as King; and afterwards went to Gilgal there before the time here ſpoken of, chap. 11. 14, 15. and partly, by excepting that place with theſe, 13. 8, &c. where we find that Saul obeyed both the violation of this Command, two years after the giving of it, as appears from chap. 13. 1, 2. Queſt. How then is this to be underſtood? Anſw. 1. This may be given as a ſtanding Rule for Saul to obſerve while Samuel and he lived; That in caſe of any great future Difficulties, as the Invaſion of Enemies, Saul ſhould repair to Gilgal, and call the people thither, and tarry there ſeven days, which was but a reaſonable and neceſſary time for the aſſembling of the people, and for the coming of Samuel thither. For though this be related as but once done, chap. 13. yet Joſephus affirms, that it was to be conſtantly practiſed upon all ſuch occaſions. And Gilgal was choſen for this purpoſe as a very fit place; partly, becauſe that place was famous for the ſolemn renewing of the Covenant between God and Iſrael, Joſ. 4. and for other eminent Inſtances of God's Favour to them, the remembrance whereof was a notable Confirmation of their Faith; and partly, becauſe it was a very convenient place for the Tribes within and without Jordan to aſſemble, and conſult, and unite their Forces together upon ſuch occaſions. If you aſk, Why then Saul did not practiſe this Precept upon the firſt Invaſion of the Ammonites? It may be anſwered, That this was a Rule for Saul, when he and Samuel were together, whereas they were together in that Expedition, chap. 11. 12. and further, That neceſſity did excuſe the violation of this Precept then, becauſe Saul could not wait for Samuel, nor forbear fighting for ſeven days, as is evident from chap. 11. 3, 5, 10, 11. 2. Which I propoſe with ſubmiſſion to Learned and Judicious; That there is here added as another ſign to confirm his Faith, which is clear from the ſecond and three foregoing ſigns, he now forſakes it, and runs to God to give him ſigns to confirm their Faith from future [illegible] Iſa. 7. 13, 14. So the [illegible] Iſa. 39. 29. Iſa. 7. 13, 14. So the [illegible] Jeroboam, Ahaz, and the like. And the ſign I will add to ſtrengthen thy Faith, Thou ſhalt [illegible] and upon a great occaſion which [illegible] I will come to thee to Gilgal, and there I will [illegible] Sacrifices, &c. But when thou [illegible] before, that I tarry there ſeven days, and then I will [illegible] I have ſaid, and give thee neceſſary Inſtructions and Aſſiſtance in the manner ſhall require.

9 ¶ And it was ſo, that when he had turned his [illegible] to go from Samuel, God † gave him another heart: and all thoſe ſigns came to paſs that day.

10 And when they came thither to the hill, behold, a company of prophets met him, and the ſpirit of God † came upon him, and he propheſied among them.

a Here is an excerpt ſhewn of the two former ſigns is ſuppoſed, and that only of the third is expreſſed, becauſe this was more eminent and ſtriking than the former; the other were only tranſient Acts, which paſſed in private between two or three Perſons meeting together, and parting by one another; but this was a more permanent and more notorious ſign, done in a more ſolemn manner, and before many, and very conſiderable Witneſſes.

11 And it came to paſs, when all that knew him before-time, ſaw, that behold, he propheſied among the prophets, then the people ſaid † one to another, What is this that is come unto the ſon of of Kiſh? Is Saul alſo among the prophets?

a What means this ſtrange and prodigious Event? 2 A Man never inſtructed, nor exerciſed in, nor enclined to theſe matters; a Man ever thought either to look to his Father's Affes, than to bear a part in the Sacred Exerciſes of the Prophets.

12 And one † of the ſame place a anſwered, and ſaid, But who is their father b? Therefore it became a proverb, Is Saul alſo among the prophets?

a Heb. one from his [illegible] Or, of the company there preſent, or one of the Prophets there preſupoſing. b Who is the Father of all theſe Prophets of whom you ſpeak, and among whom Saul is one? Who is it that inſtructs and inſpires them with this Art, but God? They have it not from their Natural Parents, nor from their Civil Education, but by Inſpiration from God, who, when he pleaſeth, can inſpire Saul, or any other Man with the ſame skill. And therefore wonder not at this matter, but give God the glory of it. Father is here put for Teacher, or Inſtructor, as it is uſed, as Gen. 4. 20, 21. Matth. 23. 9. 1 Cor. 8. 15. And hence the Scholars are called ſons of the Prophets. c Often when any ſtrange, unlikely, or unexpected thing happened.

13 And when he had made an end of propheſying, he came to the high place d.

d Returning thither with the Prophets, there to praiſe God for theſe wonderful Favours, and to beg Counſel and Help from God in this high Buſineſs.

14 ¶ And Sauls uncle e ſaid unto him, and to his ſervant, Whither went ye? and he ſaid, To ſeek the aſſes: and when we ſaw that they were no where, we came to Samuel.

e Being there preſent, and obſerving this great alteration in his Nephew.

15 And Sauls uncle ſaid, Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel ſaid unto you.

16 And Saul ſaid unto his uncle, He told us plainly that the aſſes were found. But of the matter of the kingdom, whereof Samuel ſpake, he told him not f.

f Partly in obedience to Samuel, who obliged him to ſecrecy; partly, from an humble Modeſty which appeared in him, v. 22. and partly, in Prudence, leſt by an unſeaſonable publiſhing of it, he ſhould raiſe Envy in ſome, Diſbelief and Contempt in others, &c.

17 ¶ And Samuel called the people together unto the LORD g to Mizpeh h, g To appear, before the Lord. So he ſpeaks, either, 1. Becauſe the Ark was carried thither upon this occaſion. Or, 2. Becauſe God is preſent in all the aſſemblies of his People, whereof this was an eminent one: See 2 Chron. 19. 6. Pſal. 82. 1. Or, 3. Becauſe they did in a manner erect a Tribunal for God; and intreated, and conſequently obtained his Preſence there to ſuperviſe and direct the whole buſineſs by his Sentence, which alſo he did, v. 25, &c. Note this Phraſe Judg. 11. 11. and 20. 1. h A City of Benjamin, Joſ. 18. 26. where all Iſrael had met before upon a publick and ſolemn occaſion, 1 Sam. 7. 5.

18 And ſaid unto the children of Iſrael, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, I brought up Iſrael out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all kingdoms i, and of them that oppreſſed you.

i To wit, the neighbouring Kingdoms, which moleſted you from time to time.

19 And ye have this day rejected your God k, who himſelf ſaved you l out of all your adverſities, and your tribulations: and ye have ſaid unto him m, Nay, but ſet a king over us. Now therefore preſent yourſelves before the LORD by your tribes, and by your thouſands n.

k You this day declare, That you perſiſt in your former act of rejecting God's Government: See on chap. 8. 7. l Who by his own ſpecial Providence took Care to raiſe up Judges and Saviours for you, and to deliver you at all times, when you needed his help, and did not by your Sins diſtruſt it. m i.e. Unto me his Prieſt and Ambaſſador; and conſequently unto the Lord whom I repreſented, and in whoſe Name I ſpake and acted. n For each Tribe was divided into Thouſands, Numb. 10. 36. Deut. 33. 17. Joſh. 22. 14, 21. Mic. 5. 2. as in England, Counties are into Hundreds.

20 And when Samuel had cauſed all the tribes of Iſrael to come near, o the † tribe of Benjamin was taken p.

o Unto the place appointed for the caſting of Lots. Which Tribe was now preferred before Judah, becauſe the Kingdom was freely promiſed by God to Judah, and was to be given to him in leaſe; but now the Kingdom was in a manner forced from God, and given to them in anger, Hoſ. 13. 11. and therefore conferred upon an obſcure Tribe.

21 When he had cauſed the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was taken, and Saul the ſon of Kiſh was taken: and when they ſought him, he could not be found.

22 Therefore they enquired of the LORD further, if the man ſhould yet come thither: and the LORD anſwered, Behold, he hath hid himſelf among the ſtuff q.

This he might do, becauſe he either had, or at leaſt would be thought to have a peculiar Faculty of his own unworthineſs, which was likely way to commend him to the People.

23 And

23 And they ran and fetched him thence, and when he ſtood among the people, he was higher than any of the people, from his ſhoulders and upward.

24 And Samuel ſaid to all the people, See ye him whom the LORD hath choſen, that there is none like him among all the people r? and all the people ſhouted, and ſaid, † God ſave the king s.

Hereby they accept and own him for their King, and promiſe Subjection to him.

25 Then Samuel told the people the manner of the kingdom t, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the LORD u, and Samuel ſent all the people away, every man to his houſe.

t Not the manner of the King, of which he had ſpoken before, chap. 8. 11, &c. but of the Kingdom; to wit, the Laws and Rules by which the Kingly Government was to be managed; agreeable to thoſe mentioned Deut. 17. 16, &c. which peradventure Samuel did expound, and apply to their particular Caſe. u Before the Ark, or in the Sanctuary, where it was kept ſafe from depravation.

26 ¶ And Saul alſo went home to Gibeah w, and there went with him y a band of men, whoſe hearts God had touched z.

z Not being actually inaugurated into his Kingdom, he thought fit to retire to his former Habitation, and to live privately till he had an occaſion to ſhew himſelf in a more Publick and Illuſtrious manner, which he ſpeedily obtained. y To give him ſafe and honourable Conduct to his Houſe, though not to abide with him there, which did not ſuit with his preſent Circumſtances. z i.e. Either, 1. Theſe, though they did not deſire a King, as the generality of the People did; yet when God had given them a King, they were moſt forward to pay him that Reverence and Obedience which they owed him: both which proceeded from the ſame Principle, that they were in both caſes guided by God's Will; which was, that they ſhould not deſire a King in their Circumſtances; and yet, they ſhould obey him, when God had ſet a King over them.

27 But the children of Belial ſaid, How ſhall this man ſave us? and they deſpiſed him, and brought him no preſents b: but † he held his peace c.

CHAP. XI.

Nahaſh beſiegeth them of Jabeſh-Gilead: offereth them a reproachful condition: they have ſeven days granted them to conſult and ſeek relief: they ſend meſſengers to Saul, 1,—5. He is provoked: ſends meſſengers to all the Iſraelites to come in to their help: they come to the number of three hundred and thirty thouſand men, 6,—8. He ſends word to the beſieged, who deceive Nahaſh: who with his army is ſlain, 9,—11. The people are ready to ſlay Sauls enemies: in which he oppoſeth them: he is inveſted in the kingdom at Gilgal, 12,—15.

THen a Nahaſh the Ammonite b came up c, and encamped againſt Jabeſh-Gilead d: and all the men of Jabeſh ſaid unto Nahaſh, Make a covenant with us e, and we will ſerve thee f.

a i.e. About that time; this Particle being uſed in ſome Latitude, as is frequent: for that this happened before, and was the occaſion of their deſire of a King, may ſeem from chap. 12. 12. Although it is poſſible, that Nahaſh his preparation, and declared intention of Warring againſt them, might cauſe that deſire, and that Nahaſh did not actually come againſt them (which is here related) till their King was choſen. b Either the ſame with him, 2 Sam. 10. 2. or his Father and Predeceſſor. c To War, probably to revenge and to recover their former great loſs by Jephthah, Judg. 11. 33. d Which was beyond Jordan, and near the Ammonites, who dwelt in part of Arabia. e To wit, upon good Conditions, ſo as we ſhall enjoy our Religion and Properties. f In other things we will be thy Subjects and Tributaries. The occaſion of this offer was, that they ſaw no likelihood of relief from their Brethren the Iſraelites in Canaan, who were remote from them, and then weak and divided, and ſcarce able to defend themſelves from the Philiſtines.

2 And Nahaſh the Ammonite anſwered them, On this condition will I † make a covenant with you, that I may thruſt out all your right eyes g, and lay it for a reproach upon all Iſrael.

g Partly for a Reproach, as it here follows; and partly, to diſable them from managing offenſive Weapons in Battel; for their left Eye ſerved only, or chiefly for Defence, being covered by their large Shields which then they uſed, and held in their left Hand. He leaves them one Eye, that they might be fit to ſerve him in any mean and baſe Office.

3 And the elders of Jabeſh ſaid unto him, † Give us ſeven days reſpite h, that we may ſend meſſengers unto all the coaſts of Iſrael: and then, if there be no man to ſave us, we will come out to thee.

† Heb. Leave us.

h Which it is very probable, and Joſephus and others affirm, That Nahaſh granted, out of a fooliſh ſelf-confidence, and contempt of the broken Condition of the Iſraelites, which he thought utterly unable to give them any relief; at leaſt, in ſo ſhort a time.

4 ¶ Then came the meſſengers to Gibeah of Saul i, and told the tidings in the ears of the people: and all the people lift up their voices, and wept k.

i Partly, becauſe it was not far from them: and partly, becauſe it belonged to the Benjamites, who had a ſpecial Obligation to take more care of that Place from whence they had their Wives, Judg. 21. 15, &c. And partly, becauſe Saul, their new choſen King, was there. k Both in compaſſion towards them, and for fear of themſelves, leſt it ſhould ſhortly be their own Lot.

5 And behold, Saul came after the herd out of the field l, and Saul ſaid, What aileth the people that they weep? and they told him the tidings of the men of Jabeſh.

l For being only anointed King, and not publickly inaugurated, nor owned, nor preſented by the generality of the People, nor having yet had opportunity of doing any thing worthy of his Place, he thought fit to forbear all Royal State, and to retire to his former private, and Country Life, which, howſoever deſpiſed in theſe latter, vain, ambitious, and ſhothful Ages of the World, was anciently in great eſteem among the Greeks and Romans, whoſe Princes and Generals did frequently exerciſe themſelves in it. Though ſome conceive that he now lived in ſome State, and that he had been in the Fields only to recreate himſelf, and that his coming after the Herd was but accidental, and is mentioned only to uſher in what follows of the Yoke of Oxen.

6 And the ſpirit of God came upon Saul m, when he heard thoſe tidings, and his anger was kindled greatly n.

m Inſpiring him ſuddenly with more than ordinary Courage, and Zeal, and Reſolution, to engage himſelf and the People for their Reſcue. Compare Judg. 3. 10. and 6. 34. and 11. 29. n Againſt Nahaſh, for ſo inſolent and barbarous a Propoſition.

7 And he took a yoke of Oxen, and hewed them in pieces, and ſent them throughout all the coaſts of Iſrael o, by the hand of meſſengers, ſaying, Whoſoever cometh not forth after Saul, and after Samuel p, ſo ſhall it be done unto his oxen: and the fear of the LORD q fell on the people, and they came out † with one conſent.

† Heb. as one man.

o Wiſely conſidering, that the ſight of Mens Eyes do much more affect their Hearts, than what they only hear with their Ears. p Whom he joyns with himſelf, both becauſe he was preſent with him; as appears from v. 12. and that thereby he might gain the more Authority to his Command, and ſtrike the greater Terror into all Deſpiſers of it. q Either, 1. A great fear; great things being often thus expreſſed; as Cedars of God, Mountains of God, &c. Or, 2. A Fear ſent upon them by God, as Gen. 35. 5. that they ſhould not dare to deny their help.

8 And When he numbred them in Bezek, the children of Iſrael were three hundred thouſand r, and the men of Judah thirty thouſand s.

r This great Terror drew ſo many forth: which is not ſo ſtrange to him that knows what none deny, That the Land of Canaan contained vaſt Numbers of People in a little compaſs. s Who are numbred apart to their honour, to ſhew how readily they, to whom the Kingdom was promiſed, Gen. 49. 10. ſubmitted to their King, though of another and far meaner Tribe; and how willingly they were to hazard themſelves for their Brethrens Reſcue, although they might have excuſed themſelves from the neceſſity of defending their own Country from their dangerous Neighbours the Philiſtines.

9 And they ſaid unto the meſſengers that came, Thus ſhall ye ſay unto the men of Jabeſh-Gilead, To morrow t by that time the ſun be hot, ye ſhall have † help. And the meſſengers came, and ſhewed it, to the men of Jabeſh, and they were glad.

† Or, deliverance.

t To wit, the day after your departure hence, or return home: for it ſeems probable, that ſome few days had been ſpent in the gathering and diſpoſing of the Forces, and bringing them towards thoſe parts.

10 Therefore the men of Jabeſh ſaid, To morrow we will come out unto you, and ye ſhall do with us all that ſeemeth good unto you u.

u They did, and might reaſonably and juſtly underſtand their own Condition before propoſed, v. 2. if none came to ſave them; which they were not now obliged to repeat, although they conceived, that their Enemies would underſtand it ambitiouſly, where Error therein they were no more obliged to Correct, than to prevent their Deſtruction. Nor did they tell any lye herein, but only concealed part of their Intentions, to render their Enemy more ſecure and fit for Ruine; which kind of Stratagems are uſual, and allowed by all Perſons.

11 And it was ſo on the morrow, that Saul put the people into three companies w, and they came into the midſt of the hoſt in the morning watch x, and ſlew the Ammonites, until the heat of the day: and it came to paſs, that they which remained were ſcattered, ſo that two of them were not left together.

A The

z That so Invading them on several sides with a great Force, he might both strike them with the greater Terror, and prevent their escape. y Having marched all the Day and Night before it.

* Chap. 10. 27. * Luke 19. 27.

12 ¶ And the people said unto Samuel, * Who is he that said, Shall Saul reign over us? * bring the men, that we may put them to death a.

z They did not say so in terms, as we may see, chap. 10. 0. 27. but this was the Design and Consequence of their Speech, as they rightly construe it. a Which till this time they were not able to do, because that Infection was then almost universal.

* 2 Sam. 19. 22.

13 And Saul said, * There shall not a man be put to death this day: for to day the LORD hath wrought salvation in Israel b.

b I will not destroy any of those whom God hath so graciously preserved; nor fully the Mirth of this glorious and comfortable Day with the slaughter of any of my Subjects: and therefore I freely forgive them. Wherein Saul shewed his Policy as well as his Clemency, this being the most likely way to gain his Enemies, and secure his Friends, and stablish his Throne in the Hearts of his People.

14 Then c said Samuel to the people, Come, and let us go to Gilgal d, and renew the kingdom there e.

c Whilst the People were together by Jabesh-Gilead, wherein Samuel's great Prudence and Fidelity to Saul is evident. He suspended the Confirmation of Saul at first, whilst the generality of the People were dissatisfied and discontented at the meanness of his Person: and now when he had given such eminent proof of his Princely Vertues, and when the Peoples Hearts were unanimously and eagerly set upon him, he takes this as the fittest season for that work. d This place he chose, both because it was near, and, to most of them, in the way to their homes; and because thither the Israelites on this side, and beyond Jordan, might more easily repair; and because it was famous for publick Conventions there kept, and particularly, for the Covenant there renewed by Joshua between God and the People. e i. e. Confirm our former Choice, to prevent all such Seditious Expressions and Actions as we had experience of at the former Election.

15 And all the people went to Gilgal, and there they made Saul king f before the LORD g in Gilgal: and there they sacrificed sacrifices of peace-offerings h, before the LORD: and there Saul and all the men of Israel rejoyced greatly.

f i. e. they Recognized him, or owned and accepted him for their King by consent; for to speak properly, Saul was not made, or constituted King by the People, but by the Lord's immediate Act; see chap. 8. 5. and 10. 1. g Who was there present in a special manner; both because the People of the Lord were there Assembled, and because there was an Altar, as the following Sacrifices shew. The same Phrase is used chap. 10. 17. and 14. 18. h Partly to praise God for so glorious a Victory, and for the firm Settlement of the distracted Kingdom; and partly, to implore the Presence and Assistance of God to the King and Kingdom, in all their Affairs and Exigencies.

CHAP. XII.

Samuel having appointed a King unto the people: testifieth his own Integrity, to which they witness, 1—5. He setteth before them the sins of their ancestors: and their own sin in asking a King, 6—13. Comforts them if they will obey the Lord: threatneth the disobedient: terrifies them by thunder in harvest: they confess their sin, and desire to be reconciled to the Lord, 14.—19. He comforts and exhorts them to fear and serve the Lord: promising also to pray for them, 20.—25.

AND Samuel said unto all Israel a, Behold, I have hearkned unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have made a king over you.

a Whilst they were assembled together in Gilgal. And this is another instance of Samuel's great Wisdom and Integrity. He would not reprove the People for their Sin, in desiring a King, whilst Saul was raw, and weak, and unsettled in his Kingdom, and in the Peoples Hearts; left through their accustomed Levity, they should as hastily cast off their King, as they had passionately desired him, and so add one Sin to another; and therefore he chuseth this Season for it: partly, because Saul's Kingdom was now confirmed and illustrated by an eminent Victory, and so the danger of rejecting him was out of doors; which Circumstance was also considerable for Samuel's Vindication, that it might appear, that his following Reproof did not proceed from any selfish Respects or Desires, which he might be supposed to have of retaining the Power in his own Hands, but merely from the Conscience of his Duty, and a sincere Desire of all their Good; and partly, because the People rejoiced greatly, as is said in the next foregoing Verse; and upon this occasion applauded themselves for their desires of a King; and interpreted the Success which God had now given them, as a Divine Approbation of those Desires; whereby they were like to be hardened in their Impenitency, and might be drawn to many other Inconveniencies: Samuel therefore thinks fit to temper their excessive Joys, and to excite them to that Repentance and Holy Fear, which he saw wanting in them, and which he knew to be absolutely necessary, to prevent the Curse of God upon their new King, and the whole Kingdom.

2 And now, behold, the king walketh before you b: and I am old and gray-headed c, and behold, my sons are with you d: and I have walked before you e from my childhood unto this day.

b Goeth out and cometh in before you; i. e. Buleth over you, as that Phrase signifies, Numb. 27. 17. Deut. 31. 2. 2 Chron. 1. 10. To him I have fully resigned all my Power and Authority, and do hereby renounce it, and own my self for a private Person, and one of his Subjects. c And therefore unable to bear the burden of Government, and feel my self greatly at ease to see it cast upon other Shoulders; and therefore do not speak what I am about to say, from envy of Saul's Advancement, or from discontent at the Diminution of my own Power. d Or, among you, in the same State and Place, private Persons, as you are; if they have injured any of you in their Government, as you once complained, the Law is now open against them; any of you may accuse them, your King can punish them, I do not intercede for them, I have neither Power nor Will to keep them from receiving the just Fruits of their Misdemeanours. e i. e. Been your Guide and Governor; partly, as a Prophet; and partly, as a Judge.

3 Behold, here I am, witness against me f before the LORD, and before his anointed: * Whose ox have I taken? or whose asse have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed g? † or of whose hand have I received any † bribe h to blind mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you k.

* Numb. 16. 15. Acts 20. 33. † Heb. ransom. † Or, shall hide mine eyes from.

f I here present my self before the Lord, and before your King, being ready to give an account of all my Administrations, and to make satisfaction for any injuries that I have done. And this Protestation Samuel makes of his Integrity, not out of Ostentation or Vain-glory; but partly, for his own just Vindication, that the People might not hereafter for the Defence of their own Irregularities, reproach his Government; partly, that being publickly acquitted from all Faults in his Government, he might more freely and boldly reprove the sins of the People, and particularly, that sin of theirs in defiring a King, when they had so little reason for it, and they had so just a Governor, from whom they might have promised themselves an effectual Redress of his Sons male-administrations, if they had acquainted him therewith; and partly, that by his Example he might tacitly admonish Saul of his Duty, and prevent his misunderstanding of what he had formerly said, chap. 8. 11, &c. and mistake that for the Rule of his just Power, which was only a Prediction of his evil Practices. g Whom have I wronged, either by Fraud and false Accusation, or by Might and Violence? h Heb. Price of Redemption, given to Redeem an unjust and lost Cause or Person, from that Righteous Sentence which they deserved. i That I should not discern what was right and just, or dissemble it as if I did not see it. Or, that I should hide or cover mine eyes (i e. wilfully wink at the plain truth) for it; i. e. for the Bribe; or, for him; i. e. for his sake. k Or, and I will cover mine eyes for him; i. e. I will take Shame to my self, and cover my Face as one ashamed to look upon him.

4 And they said, Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any mans hand.

5 And he said unto them, The LORD is witness against you l, and his anointed is witness this day, that ye have not found ought m in my hand: And they answered n, He is witness.

l To wit, if you shall at any time hereafter reproach my Government or Memory. Or rather, against you, that I gave you no cause to be weary of God's Government of you by Judges, or no desire a change of the Government; and therefore the Guilt of it wholly rests upon your selves. But this was only insinuated, and therefore the People did not fully understand his drift in it. m i. e. Any thing which I have gotten by Bribery or Oppression. n Heb. he answered; i. e. the whole People, who are here spoken of as one Person, because they answered thus with one Consent.

8 * When Jacob was come into Egypt, and your fathers † cried unto the LORD, then the LORD * sent Moses and Aaron, which brought forth your fathers out of Egypt, and made them dwell in this place r.

* Gen. 46. 5, 6. † Exod. 2. 23. * Exod. 3. 10.

r In this Land: in which Moses and Aaron are said to settle them; partly, because they brought them into, and feated them in part of it, to wit, that without Jordan; partly, because they were, under God, the Principal Authors of their entring into the Land of Canaan; inasmuch as they brought them out of Egypt, conducted them thorough the Wilderness; and there by their Prayers to God, and Counsel to them, preserved them from utter Ruine, and gave Command and Direction from God for the distribution of the Land among them, and incouraged them to enter into it by promises and assurances of Success. And lastly, Moses substituted Joshua in his stead, stead, and commanded him to carry them thither, and fear them there, which also he did.

9 And when they forgat the LORD their God s, * he sold them into the hand of Sisera, captain of the host of Hazor, and into the hand * of the Philistines, and into the hand of the king * of Moab, and they fought against them t.

* Judg. 4. 2. * Judg. 13. 1. * Judg. 3. 13.

s i. e. They revolted from him, as it is explained v. 10. and carried themselves as ungratefully and unworthily towards God, as if they had wholly forgotten his great and innumerable Favours, and their infinite Obligations to him. Forgetting of God, is oft put for all manner of Wickedness, whereof indeed that is the true cause. See Isa. 17. 10. Jer. 3. 21. Ezek. 22. 12. This he saith, partly, to Answer an Objection, That the reason why they desired a King, was, because in the time of the Judges they were at great uncertainties, and oft-times exercised with sharp Afflictions: to which he Answereth by Concession that they were so; but adds, by way of Reprotion, that they themselves were the cause of it, by their forgetting of God: So that it was not the fault of that kind of Government, but their transgressing the Rules of it; and partly, to mind them, that this their ungrateful Carriage towards God, was no new or strange thing, but an hereditary and inveterate Disease, that so they might more easily believe their own Guilt herein, and be more deeply humbled, both for their own, and for their Parents Sins. t To wit, with success, and subdued them.

10 And they cried unto the LORD, and said, We have sinned, because we have forsaken the LORD, and have served Baalim, and Ashtaroth: but now deliver us out of the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee.

11 And the LORD sent * Jerubbaal, and Bedan u, and * Jephthah, and * Samuel x, and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies on every side, and ye dwelled safe y.

* Judg. 6. 32. * Judg. 11. 1. * Judg. 13. 2. * 1 Chap. 7. 15.

u This certainly is one of the Judges; and because there is no Judge so called in the Book of Judges, it is reasonably concluded, that this was one of the Judges there mentioned, having two Names, as was very frequent. And this was, either, First, Samson, as most Interpreters believe, who is called Bedan; i. e. in Dan, or of Dan, or the Son Dan, one of that Tribe, to signifie that they had no reason to distrust that God, who could, and did, raise so eminent a Saviour out of so obscure a Tribe. Or, Secondly, Jair the Gileadite, of whom Judg. 10. 3. which may seem left to agree, First, With the Time and Order of the Judges; for Jair was before Jephthah, but Samson was after him. Secondly, With other Scripture for among the Sons of a more ancient, and a famous Jair, of whom see Numb. 32. 41. we meet with one called Bedan, 1 Chron. 7. 17. which Name seems here given to Jair the Judge, to distinguish him from that first Jair. Thirdly, With the following words, which shew that this Bedan was one of those Judges who delivered them out of the hand of their Enemies on every side, and made them to dwell safely; which seems not so properly to agree to Samson, who did only begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistines; as was foretold of him, Judg. 13. 5. as to Jair, who kept them in peace and safety, in the midst of all their Enemies, as may be gathered from Judg. 10. 3, 4, 5, 6. And so did all the rest of the Judges here mentioned. x He speaks of himself in the Third Person, which is frequent in the Hebrew Tongue, as Gen. 4. 23. Psal. 132. 1, 10, 11. Dan. 1. 6. Isa. 1. 1. And he mentions himself not without just ostentation, but for his own just and necessary Vindication, and for the justification and inforcement of his following Reproof, to shew that he had not degenerated from his Predecessors, nor had been so inconsiderable and unprofitable to them, as to give them any occasion to contrive or desire this change of Government in his days. y So that it was no Necessity, but meer Wantonness, that made you desire a Change.

12 And when ye saw that Nash the king of the children of Ammon came against you, * ye said unto me, Nay, but a king shall reign over us: when the LORD your God were your king a.

* Gen. 25. 14.

a See the Notes on Chapter 11. 1. a i. e. When God was your immediate King and Governor, who was both able and willing to deliver you, if you had cried to him, whereof you and your Ancestors have had plentiful experience; so that you did not at all need any other King; and your desire of another, was a manifest reproach against God, as if he were either grown Impotent, or Unfaithful, or Unmerciful to you.

13 Now therefore, behold the king whom ye have chosen b, and whom you have desired: and behold, the LORD hath set a king over you c.

b Though God chose him by Lot, yet the People are said to chuse him; either generally, because they chose that Form of Government: or particularly, because they approved of God's choice, chap. 10. 24. and confirmed it, chap. 11. 15. c He hath yielded to your importunate desire.

14 If ye will fear the LORD, and serve him, and obey his voice, and not rebel against the † commandment of the LORD, then shall both ye, and also the king that reigneth over you, † continue following the LORD d your God.

† Heb. Then shall ——— be, (i. e. walk, or go) after the Lord; i. e. God shall still go before you, as he hath hitherto done, as your Leader or Governor, to Direct, Protect, and Deliver you; and he will not forsake you, as you have given him just cause to do. Sometimes this Phrase of going after the Lord, signifies a Man's Obedience to God; but here it is otherwise to be understood (as it is no new thing, for the same Phrase in several places, to be understood in quite different Senses;) and it notes not a Duty to be performed, but a Promise of a Privilege to be received upon the performance of their Duty; because it is opposed to a threatning denounced in case of Disobedience, in the next Verse.

15 But if ye will not obey the voice of the LORD, but rebel against the commandment of the LORD, then shall the hand of the LORD be against you, as it was against your fathers e.

e Who lived under the Judges; and you shall have no advantage in that Point by the change of Government, nor shall your King be able to Protect you against God's Displeasure.

16 ¶ Now therefore stand f and see this great thing which the LORD will do before your eyes.

f He intends not the Posture of their Bodies, but the Confidency of their Minds, by serious and fixed Consideration.

17 Is it not wheat-harvest to day g? I will call unto the LORD, and he shall send † thunder, and † rain h, that ye may perceive and see that your wickedness i is great, which ye have done in the sight of the LORD, in asking you a king.

† Heb. voices. † Heb. waters.

g At which time it was a rare thing in those parts to have Thunder or Rain, as the Scripture oft implies; and St. Jerome affirms, who was an Eye-witness of it; the Weather being more constant and certain in its Seasons there, and in divers other parts, than it is with us who live in Islands, as all Travellers inform us. h That by this unseasonable and pernicious Storm you may understand that God is displeased with you; and also how Foolishly and Wickedly you have done in rejecting the Government of that God, at whose Command are all things both in Heaven and in Earth.

18 So Samuel called unto the LORD, and the LORD sent thunder and rain that day: and all the people greatly feared the LORD, and Samuel k.

i Who had such great Power and Favour with God.

19 And all the people said unto Samuel, Pray for thy servants k unto the LORD thy God l, that we die not m: for we have added unto all our sins, this evil, to ask us a king n.

k For so we shall still own our selves to be, though we have got another Master. l Whom thou hast so great an Interest in, and canst so easily prevail with for any Mercy, whilst we are ashamed and afraid to call him our God, because we have so highly offended him. m That this terrible Storm may be taken away, left our Persons and the Fruits of the Earth be all destroyed. n So horribly were they biassed with their Prejudices and Passions, that nothing but a Miracle could convince them of this particular Sin.

20 ¶ And Samuel said unto the people, Fear not o: (ye have done all this wickedness, yet turn not aside from following the LORD, but serve the LORD with all your heart:

o To wit, with a servile and despanding Fear, as if there were no Hope left for you.

21 And turn ye not aside p, for then should ye go q after vain things r, which cannot profit nor deliver; for they are vain.)

p To wit, after Idols; as they had often done before; and, notwithstanding this warning, did afterwards. q Or, should ye turn aside; which words are easily to be understood out of the foregoing Branch, such Ellipses being most frequent in Scripture, as Deut. 1. 4. 1 King. 14. 11. 2 King. 9. 27. * So Idols are called, Deut. 32. 21. Jer. 2. 5. and so they are, being meer nothings, 1 Cor. 8. 4. having no Divinity nor Power in them; no Influence upon us, nor Ule or Benefit to us. i i. e. Which will not only be unprofitable, but highly pernicious to you; the contrary Affirmative being understood under the Negative, as Exod. 20. 7. Numb. 21. 23. Deut. 2. 30.

22 * For the LORD will not forsake his people for his great Names sake s: because it hath pleased the LORD to make you his people t.

* Psal. 94. 14.

s i. e. For his own Honour, which would seem to suffer much among Men, if he should not preserve and deliver People in eminent Dangers; as if he were grown feeble, or forgetful, or inconstant, or unfaithful, or regardless of Human Affairs, or unkind to those who own and worship him, when all the rest of the World forsake him. Hence this Argument hath been oft pleaded with God, not without good success, as Exod. 32. 12. Numb. 14. 13, &c. And this reason God here alledgeth to take them off from all conceit of their own merit; and to assure them, that if they did truly repent of all their sins, and served God with all their heart, which is here supposed; yet even in that case their Salvation would not be due to their Merits; but only the effect of God's Free Mercy. t To wit, out of his own Free Grace, without any desert of yours, as he saith, Deut. 7. 7. and 9. 5. and therefore he will not easily forsake you, except you thrust him away.

23 Moreover, as for me, God forbid that I should sin against the LORD, † in ceasing to pray for you: but I will teach you the good and the right way.

† Heb. from ceasing.

x Think not that because you have so highly disobliged and rejected me, that I will revenge my self, by neglecting to pray for you, or by Praying against you, as I have now done for your Conviction and Humiliation, and so for your Preservation; I am sensible it is my Duty, as I am a Man, an Israelite, a Minister, a Prophet, to Pray for you. x Heb. and I will, &c. i.e. I will not only Pray for you, which is one Branch of my Duty; but will also Teach and Instruct you, which is the other Branch of it. And though you have cast me off from being your Judge and Ruler, yet I will not cease to be your Instructor and Monitor, to keep you from Sin and Destruction.

23 Only fear the LORD, and serve him y in truth with all your heart: for consider ‖ how great things he hath done for you z.

‖ Or, what a great things, &c.

y Otherwise neither my Prayer nor Counsels will stand you in any stead. z Or, among you, both at this time and formerly.

25 But if ye shall still do wickedly, ye shall be consumed, both ye and your king.

CHAP. XIII.

Saul and Jonathan's foolish hand. Jonathan smiteth the garison of the Philistines at Gibeah: the people are called together at Gilgal, 1,——4. the Philistines great host: the Israelites run into caves and trembles, the Philistines great spoil: the Israelites run into caves and trembles, 5,——7. Saul offereth before Samuel cometh to him: he reproves him for it: foretelleth to him that his kingdom should not last long, 8,——14. three companies of the Philistines invade the land: they had no smith in all their land, 15,——19. Not had any of the Israelites, save Saul and Jonathan, sword or spear, 15,——25.

SAul † reigned one year a, and when he had reigned two years over Israel, † Heb. the son of one year in his reigning.

a i.e. Had now reigned one Year, from his first Election at Mizpeh, in which time these things were done, which are recorded chap. 11. and 12. to wit, Peaceably, or Righteously. Compare 2 Sam. 2. 10.

2 Saul chose b him three thousand men of Israel c: whereof two thousand were with Saul in Michmash d, and in mount Bethel, and a thousand were with Jonathan in Gibeah of Benjamin: and the rest of the people he sent every man to his tent.

b Heb. And (i.e. Then, as that Adverb is oft used, as Gen. 3. 5. and 18. 10, &c.) Saul chose. c Which he thought sufficient for constant Attendance and Service, intending to summon the rest when need should be. d A tract of Ground near Ramah and Bethel, in the Border of Benjamin, and near to the Philistines.

* Chap. 10. 5. ‖ Or, the hill.

3 And Jonathan smote the * garison of the Philistines e that was in ‖ Geba f, and the Philistines heard of it: and Saul blew the trumpet throwout all the land, saying, Let the Hebrews hear g.

e The first Design of Saul and Jonathan, was to Free their Land from the Garisons which the Philistines had in it; and they first begin to clear their own Country of Benjamin. f Not the same place called Gibeah, ver. 2. (for if the place were the same, why should he vary the Name of it in the same Story, and in the next Verse? Nor is it likely that Jonathan would chuse that place for his Camp, where the Philistines had a Garison:) but another place in the same Tribe, in which there were two distinct places, Geba and Gibeah, Josh. 18. 24, 28. g i.e. He sent Messengers to tell them all what Jonathan had done, and how the Philistines were enraged at it, and made great preparations for War; and therefore what necessity there was of gathering themselves together, and coming to him, for his and their own Defence.

4 And all Israel heard say, that Saul h had smitten a garison of the Philistines, and that Israel also † was had in abomination with the Philistines: and the people were called together after Saul to Gilgal i.

† Heb. did stink.

h i.e. Jonathan by Saul's Direction and Encouragement. The Actions of an Army are commonly ascribed to their General. i The place before appointed by Samuel, chap. 10. 8.

5 ¶ And the Philistines gathered themselves together to fight with Israel, thirty thousand charets k, and six thousand horsemen, and people as the sand which is on the sea-shore in multitude, and they came up and pitched in Michmash, eastward from * Beth-aven.

* Josh. 7. 2. & 18. 12.

k This number seems incredible to Infidels. To whom it may be sufficient to reply, That it is far more rational to acknowledge a mistake in him that copied out the Sacred Text in such Numeral or Historical Passages, wherein the Doctrine of Faith and Good Life is not directly concerned, than upon such a Pretence to question the Truth and Divinity of the Holy Scriptures, which are so fully Attested, and evidently Demonstrated. And the mistake is not great in the Hebrew, Schalish for Schelishim; and so indeed those two Ancient Translators, the Syriack and Arabick translate it, and are supposed to have read in their Hebrew Copies, Three thousand. Nor is it necessary that all these should be Military Charets, but many of them might be for Carriage of things belonging to so great an Army; for such a distinction of Charets we find, Exod. 14. 7. But there is no need of this Reply. Charets here may very well be put for the Men that rode upon them, and fought out of them, by a Figure called a Metonymy, of the Subject for the Adjunct; or the thing containing, for the thing contained in it, than which none more frequent. In the very same manner, and by the very same Figure, the Ruler is put for the Meat in it, Deut. 28. 5, 17. the Wild Goats, for the wild Beasts of the Wilderness, Psal. 29. 8. the Rock, for the Liquor in it, Deut. 32. 11. the Cup, for the Drink in it, Jer. 49. 12. 1 Cor. 10. 21. And, to come more closely to the Point, an Horse is put for an Horse-load of Wares laid upon it, 1 Kings 10. 28. and an Asse of bread, is put for an Asse-load of Bread, both in the Hebrew Text of 1 Sam. 16. 20. and in an Ancient Greek Poet. And, yet nearer, the word Charets, is manifestly put, either for the Horses belonging to them; or rather, for the Men that fought out of them, as 2 Sam. 10. 18. where it is said in the Hebrew, that David slew seven hundred Charets; that is, seven thousand Men, which fought in Charets, as it is explained, 1 Chron. 19. 18. and 1 King. 20. 21. where Ahab is said to smite Horses and Charets; and 1 Chron. 18. 4. and Psalm 76. 6. where the Charet and Horse (i.e. the Men that ride and fight in Charets, or upon Horses) are said to be cast into a dead sleep: and Ezek. 39. 20. where it is said, ye shall be filled at my Table with Horses and Charets, (i.e. with Men belonging to the Charets, for surely the Charets of Iron had been very improper Food,) with mighty Men, &c. And lee any cavilling Infidel produce a wise Reason, why it may not, and ought not to be so understood here also? Add to all this, that the Philistines were not alone in this Expedition, but had the help of the Canaanites and the Syrians, as is very credible, both from Ecclesiast. 47. 20. and from the Nature of the thing. If it be further enquired, Why the Philistines should raise so great an Army at this time? The Answer is obvious; That not only their Old and Formidable Enemy Samuel was yet alive, but a New Enemy was risen, even King Saul, who was lately confirmed in his Kingdom, and had been Baffled with his good Success against the Ammonites, and was likely to grow more and more Potent, if not timely prevented; and they thought that now the Israelitish Affairs were come to some Consistency, being put into the hands of a King; and therefore they thought fit once for all to put forth all their Strength to suppress the Israelites, and to prevent that Ruine which otherwise threatned them.

6 When the men of Israel saw that they were in a strait l: (for the people were distressed m) then the people did * hide themselves in caves n, and in thickets, and in rocks, and in high places, and in pits.

* Judg. 6. 2.

l Notwithstanding their former Presumption, That if they had a King, they should be free from all such straits. And hereby God intended to teach them the Vanity of all Carnal confidence in Men; and that they did not one jot less need the Help and Favour of God now, than they did before, when they had no King. m They were not mistaken in their apprehensions of Danger, as Men oft are, for they were really in great Danger, their Enemy's Host far exceeding theirs, both in Number, and Order, and Courage, and Arms. n Whereof there were divers in those parts for this very use, as we read in Josephus, and in the Holy Scripture.

7 And some of the Hebrews went over Jordan, to the land of Gad and Gilead: as for Saul, he was yet in Gilgal, and all the people o † followed him trembling.

† Heb. trembled after him.

o To wit, his whole Army, opposed to the common People, v. 6.

8 ¶ * And he tarried seven days p, according to the set time that Samuel had appointed: but Samuel came not to Gilgal, and the people were scattered from him.

* Chap. 10. 8.

p Not seven compleat Days; for that the last Day was not finished, plainly appears from Samuel's reproof, which had then been grounds-less and absurd, and he had falsly charged Saul with breaking God's Command therein, v. 13. And as Samuel came on the seventh Day, and that with intent to sacrifice; so doubtless he came in due time, for that Work which was to be done before Sun-setting, Ex. 29. 38, 39. So Saul waited only six compleat Days, and part of the seventh, which is here called seven Days: for the word Day, is oft used for a part of the Day, as among Lawyers, so also in Sacred Scripture, as Matth. 12. 40. where Christ is said to be in the heart of the Earth three days and three nights; i.e. one whole Day, and part of the other two Days. Moreover this place may be thus rendred: He tarried until the seventh day, (as this same Phrase is used, Gen. 7. 10. Heb. until the seventh of the days) (as the Hebrew Lamed is oft taken) the set time that Samuel had appointed.

9 And Saul said, Bring hither a burnt-offering to me, and peace-offerings. And he offered the burnt-offering q.

q Either himself; or rather by the Priest, as Solomon is said to offer, 1 King. 3. 4. Compare 1 Sam. 1. 3.

10 And it came to pass, that as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt-offering, behold, Samuel came r, and Saul went out to meet him, that he might † salute him s.

† Heb. bless him.

r i.e. It was told Saul, Behold Samuel is coming. s i.e. Congratulate his coming. This he did, partly out of Custom; and partly, that by this Testimony of his Affection and Respect to Samuel, he might prevent that Rebuke which his guilty Conscience made him expect.

11 ¶ And Samuel said, What hast thou done? And Saul said, Because I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the days appointed a, and that the Philistines gathered themselves together to Michmash:

t He suspected that Saul had transgressed; either by his dejected Countenance, or some Words uttered by him, though not here expressed: but he asks him, that he might be more fully and certainly informed, and that Saul might be brought to an ingenuous Confession of his Sin, and true Repentance for it. u i.e. When the seventh Day was come, and a good part of it past, whereas I concluded thou wouldst not come that Day, and that thou hadst forgotten thy Appointment, or been hindred by some extraordinary Occasion.

12 Therefore said I, the Philistines will come down now upon me to Gilgal, and I have not † made † supplication unto the LORD x: I forced my self y therefore, and offered a burnt-offering z.

† Heb. I made not the face of the LORD.

x Hence it appears, that Sacrifices were accompanied with solemn Prayers. y I did it against my own Mind and Inclination. My Conscience told me I should forbear it, and punctually obey God's Command delivered to me by Samuel, but my necessity urged me to make haste.

13 And Samuel said to Saul, Thou hast done foolishly a: thou hast not kept the commandment of the LORD thy God a, which he commanded thee: for now would the LORD have established thy kingdom upon Israel for ever b.

z In that very thing wherein thou thinkest thou hast done wisely and politickly, in disobeying my express Command upon a pretended necessity, or reason of State. a Not only upon common grounds, as thou art his Creature, and one of his People; but in a special manner, who hath conferred peculiar Favours and Honours upon thee: which is an aggravation of thy sin. b Quest. How could this be true, when the Kingdom was promised to Judah, Gen. 49. 10. and consequently must necessarily be taken away from Saul, and from his Tribe? Ans. First, The Phrase, for ever, in Scripture use, oft-times signifies only a long time, as Gen. 43. 9. Exod. 21. 6. 1 Sam. 27. 12. So this had been abundantly verified, if the Kingdom had been enjoyed by Saul, and by his Son, and by his Son's Son; after whom the Kingdom might have come to Judah. Secondly, Though the Kingdom had been promised to Saul, and to his Posterity for ever in a larger fence, yet that was upon condition of his Obedience. And therefore God might well promise the Kingdom to Judah, because at that time, and before, he foresaw that Saul would by his Disobedience forfeit that Promise, and that he would take the forfeiture, and transfer the Kingdom to Judah.

14 But now thy kingdom shall not continue: the LORD hath fought c him a man after his own heart d, and the LORD hath commanded e him to be captain over his people, because thou hast not kept that which the LORD commanded thee f.

1 Sam. 15. 28. Acts 13. 22

c i.e. Hath found or discovered, as Men do by seeking. An Anthropopathy. d i.e. Such a Man as he desires, one who will fulfil all the desires of his Heart, and not oppose them, as thou dost. e i.e. Hath appointed or decreed, as the word command is sometimes used: for it was not yet actually done. f Quest. First, What was Saul's sin? Ans. Elicius, First, That Saul invaded the Priests Office, and offered the Sacrifice himself: which is not probable, both because he had Priests with him, and among others an eminent one, Ahiah, chap. 14. 3. and therefore had no occasion nor pretence for that presumption. Or rather, Secondly, That Saul did not wait the full time for Samuel's coming; for that is the thing which God commanded, chap. 10. 8. and the breach of this Command is the only thing for which Saul makes an Apology, v. 11. 12. Quest. Secondly, Why did God so severely punish Saul for so small an Offence, and that occasioned by great Necessity, and done with an honest Intention? Ans. First, Men are very incompetent Judges of God's Judgments, because they see but very little, either of the Majesty of the offended God, or of the hainous Nature and Aggravations of the Offence. For instance, Men see nothing but Saul's outward act, which seems small; but God saw with how wicked a Mind and Heart he did this, with what Rebellion against the Light of his own Conscience, as his own words imply; with what gross infidelity and distrust of God's Providence; with what contempt of God's Authority, and Justice, and many other wicked Principles and Motions of his Heart, unknown to Men. Besides, God clearly saw all that wickedness that yet lay hid in his Heart, and foresaw all his other Crimes; and therefore had far more grounds for his Sentence against him, than we can imagine. Secondly, God doth sometimes punish small sins severely, and that for divers weighty reasons, as that all Men may see what the least sin deserves, and how much they owe to God's free and rich Mercy, for pasting by their great Offences; and what need they have not to indulge themselves in any small sin, as Men are very prone to do, upon vain presumptions of God's Mercy, whereby they are easily and commonly drawn on to hainous Crimes; and for many other Reasons: so that some such instances of God's Severity, are necessary Discipline and Caution to all Mankind in the present and future Ages; and therefore there is far more of Mercy and Kindness in such Actions, than of Rigour and Harshness, since this is but particular to one Person, and the other is an universal God. Thirdly, It must be remembred, that the Kingdom of Saul, and of Israel, was now in its Infancy; and that this was the first Command which he received from God. And it hath been ever held a piece of Wisdom in all Law-givers, severely to punish the first Violations of their Laws, to secure their Honour and Obedience, and to affright and caution Offenders for the future. And accordingly God dealt with Cain the first Murderer; with Israel, for their first Idolatery with the Calf; with the first miscarriage of the Priests, Levit. 10. 1. with the first prophaner of the Sabbath, Numb. 15. 32. with the first gross Hypocrites in the Christian Church, Acts 5. 5, 10. And therefore it is neither strange nor unjust, if he deal with Saul after the same manner, and upon the same grounds. Fourthly, Though God threaten Saul with the loss of his Kingdom for this sin; yet it is not improbable, that there was a tacit condition implied, as is usual in such cases, as Jonah 3. 4. to wit, if he did not heartily repent of this and of all his sins: for a full, and final, and peremptory Sentence of Saul's rejection, is plainly ascribed to another Cause, chap. 15. 11, 23, 26, 28, 29. and till that second Offence, neither the Spirit of the Lord departed from him, nor was David anointed in his stead, chap. 16. 13, 14.

15 And Samuel arose, and gat him up from Gilgal, unto Gibeah of Benjamin g. And Saul numbred the people that were † present with him, * about six hundred men.

† Heb. found * Ch. 14. 2.

g Whither Saul also followed him; as appears from the next Verse: either, because it was better fortified than Gilgal: or, because he expected a greater increase of his Army there, it being in his own Tribe, and nearer the heart of his Kingdom: or, because he hoped for Samuel's Assistance there.

16 And Saul, and Jonathan his son, and the people that were present with them, abode in Gibeah of Benjamin: but the Philistines encamped in Michmash.

17 And the spoilers came out of the camp of the Philistines in three companies h; one company turned unto the way that leadeth to Ophrah i, unto the land of Shual.

h They might march several ways, and so waste several parts of the Country. i A City of Benjamin, Jos. 18. 23. South-west from Michmash.

18 And another company turned the way to Bethhoron k; and another company turned to the way of the border that looketh to the valley of Zeboim toward the wilderness.

k A City of Ephraim, Jos. 16. 3. Northwest from Michmash. I i.e. The Wilderness of Jordan, Eastward.

19 ¶ Now there was no smith found throughout all the land of Israel m: (for the Philistines said, † Lest the Hebrews make them swords or spears.)

† We must take them away.

m This was a Politick course of the Philistines, which also other Nations have used. So the Chaldeans took away their Smiths, 2 King. 24. 14. Jer. 24. 1. and 29. 2. And Tarquin obliged the Romans by Covenant, That they should use no Iron but in the Tillage of their Lands.

20 But all the Israelites went down to the Philistines n to sharpen every man his share, and his coulter, and his axe, and his mattock.

n Not to the Land of the Philistines, for it is not said so, and that was too remote; but to the Stations and Garisons which the Philistines yet retained in several parts of Israel's Land, though Samuel's Authority had so far over-awed them, that they durst not give the Israelites much Disturbance. In these, therefore, the Philistines kept all the Smiths; and here they allowed them the exercise of their Art for the uses here following.

21 Yet they had † a file for the mattocks, and for † Heb. a file with the coulters, and for the forks, and for the axes o, and † to sharpen the goads.

o So the fence is, They allowed them some small helps to make their Mattocks, and in some sort to serve their present use. But their words may be otherwise translated, and are so by some Learned, both Ancient and Modern, Translators: Thus, Therefore the mouths or edges of the mattocks, and coulters, &c. were dull or blunt. Or rather thus, When (Heb. and put for when, as the Particle, and, is sometimes rendred, as Mark 15. 25.) the mouths or edges of the mattocks, &c. were blunt. So this passage very well agrees both with the foregoing and following words; and the whole fence of the place is entirely thus, They went to the Philistines to sharpen their shares, and mattocks, and coulters, and axes, when they were blunt, and (which was more strange, They were forced to go to them, even) to sharpen their goads.

† Heb. to set.

22 So it came to pass in the day of battel, that there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any of the people, that were with Saul and Jonathan p, but with Saul and with Jonathan his son was there found.

p Quest. How could the Israelites smite either the Garison of the Philistines above, v. 3. or the Host of the Ammonites, chap. 11. 11. without Arms? And when they had conquered them, Why did they not take away their Arms, and reserve them to their own use? Ans. 1. This want of Swords and Spears is not affirmed concerning all Israel, but is restrained unto those 600. who were with Saul and Jonathan? whom God by his Providence might suffer to be without those Arms, that the glory of the following Victory might be wholly ascribed to God; as for the very same reason God would have but 300 Men left with Gideon, and those armed only with Trumpets, and Pitchers, and Lamps, Judg. 7. There were no doubt a considerable number of Swords and Spears among the Israelites, but they generally hid them, as now they did their Persons, from the Philistines. And the Philistines had not yet attained to so great a power over them, as wholly to disarm them, but thought it sufficient to prevent the making of new Arms; knowing that the old ones would shortly be decayed, and useless. 2. There were other Arms more common in those times and places, than Swords and Spears; to wit, Bows and Arrows, and Slings and Stones; as appears from Judg. 20. 16. 2 Sam. 1. 18, 22. 2 King. 3. 25. 1 Chron. 12. 1,2. besides Clubs, and Instruments of Agriculture, which might easily be turned into Weapons of War. 3. God so governed the Affairs of the Israelites, that they had no great number of Swords, or Spears, Judg. 5. 8. that so they might be kept in more dependence upon, and subjection unto God, wherein their Safety and Happiness consisted. And therefore, that famous Victory obtained against the Philistines in Samuel's days, was not got by the Sword of Men, but only by Thunder from Heaven. chap. 7. 10.

23 And the ‖ garison of the Philistines went out to the passage of Michmash q.

‖ Or, Ranging Castle.

q A place so called, because it was near to Michmash, and led towards Gibeah, which, it seems, they designed to besiege; and in the mean time, to waste the adjoyning Country.

CHAP. XIV.

Jonathan and his armour-bearer secretly smite the Philistines army: they flie one another. 1,—15. Which being perceived, 16, 17. Saul pursues one another. 1,—15. Which being perceived, 16, 17. Saul pursues and smiteth the Philistines: the captivated and hidden Israelites joining in with the pursuit, 18,—23. *Saul adjureth the people not to eat any thing

l None of those who either saw Jonathan Eating, or heard of it, informed against him; partly, because they were satisfied, that his Ignorance excused him, and that there was some other reason of God's not answering: and partly, from their great Love to Jonathan, whom they would not expose to Death for so small an Offence.

40 Then said he unto all Israel, Be ye on one side, and I and Jonathan my son will be on the other side: and the people said unto Saul, Do what seemeth good unto thee.

41 Therefore Saul said unto the LORD God of Israel, † Give a perfect lot. And Saul and Jonathan were taken: but the people † escaped n.

†Heb. Give Thummim

Deut. 24. 8

| Or, shew the innocent.

m Or, declare (for giving, is oft put for declaring, or pronouncing, as Deut. 11. 29. and 13. 1, 2. Prov. 9. 9.) the perfect, or guiltless person. i.e. O Lord, to guide the Lot, that it may discover who is Guilty in this Matter, and that it may clear the Innocent. n To wit, the Danger; they were pronounced Guiltless.

† Heb. went forth.

42 And Saul said, Cast lots between me and Jonathan my son: and Jonathan was taken m.

m God so ordered the Lot; not that he approved Saul's Execration, v. 24. or his Oath that the Transgressor should die, v. 39. nor that he would expose Jonathan to Death (for he designed to rule the hearts of the People, and of Saul also, that Jonathan should not die); but because he would have the whole matter brought to light; partly, that Saul's Folly might be chastised, when he saw what Danger it had brought upon his Eldest and Excellent Son; partly, that Jonathan's Innocency might be cleared; and partly, to establish the Authority of Kings and Rulers, and the Obedience which Subjects owe to all their lawful Commands.

43 Then Saul said to Jonathan, Tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathan told him, and said, I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in mine hand, and lo, I must die m.

m I am sentenced to Death for it; which is hated measure. He had another Answer, That he knew not of his Father's Command: but that being said before, v. 27. it was needless here to repeat it.

*Rut. 1. 17.

44 And Saul answered, * God do so, and more also o: for thou shalt surely die p, Jonathan.

o From this, and other like expressions of Saul's, some gather that he was exceeding prone to the vice of Swearing and Cursing. p Strange perverseness! He who was so indulgent, as to spare wicked Agag, chap. 15. is now so severe as to destroy his own worthy Son: he that could easily dispense with God's Righteous and Reasonable Command, will not bear the violation of his own rash and foolish Command; because his own Authority and Power is concerned in this, and only God's in the other.

45 And the people said unto Saul, Shall Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? God forbid: * as the LORD liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground: for he hath wrought with God q this day. So the people rescued Jonathan, that he died not.

* 2 Sam. 14. 14. 1 Kings 1. 52.

q i.e. In concurrence with God, or by God's help he had wrought this Salvation. God is so far from being offended with Jonathan, as thou apprehendest, that he hath graciously owned and assisted him in the great service of this day.

46 Then Saul went up from following the Philistines r: and the Philistines went to their own place.

r Partly, because he was discouraged by God's refusing to Answer him; and partly, because his delays had given them occasion to secure themselves.

47 ¶ So Saul took the kingdom s over Israel, and fought against all his enemies on every side, against Moab, and against the children * of Ammon, and against Edom, and against the kings of Zobah t, and against the Philistines: and whithersoever he turned himself, he vexed them n.

* Chap. 11. 11.

s i.e. Recovered it, and resumed the administration of it, after he had in a manner lost it; partly, by Samuel's Sentence, chap. 13. 14. and partly, by the Philistines, who had almost turned him out of it. But now being encouraged by this success, he returns to the exercise of his Kingly Office. t Which lay not far from Damascus. See 2 Sam. 8, 5. n Heb. He condemned them, he treated them like wicked People, and Enemies to God and his People: or, he punished them.

48 And he ‖ gathered an host, and * smote the Amalekites x, and delivered Israel out of the hand of them that spoiled them.

‖ Or, wrought mightily.

* Ch. 15. 7.

x Which is here mentioned only in the general, but is particularly described in the next Chapter.

49 Now the sons of Saul were Jonathan, and Ishui y, and Melchishua: and the names of his two daughters were these; the name of the first-born, Merab, and the name of the younger, Michal.

y Called also Abinadab, chap. 31. 2. and 1 Chron. 8. 33. Ishbosheth, Saul's other Son, is here omitted, because he intended to mention only those of his Sons who went with him into the Battels here mentioned, and who were afterwards slain with him.

50 And the name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz: and the name of the captain of his host was Abner, the son of Ner, Saul's uncle.

51 And Kish was the father of Saul, and Ner the father of Abner was the son of * Abiel.

* Ch. 9. 1.

52 And there was sore war against the Philistines all the days of Saul: and when Saul saw any strong man, or any valiant man, * he took him unto him z.

* Ch. 14. 52.

z Into his Service, or Army.

CHAP. XV.

Samuel sendeth Saul to destroy the Amalekites: His Army, 1,——4. He forewarneth the Kenites: Spareth Agag, and the best of the Spoil: God rejecteth Saul from being King, 6——11. Saul Samuel declares to Saul: he commendeth, excuseth, at last humbleth himself, 12,——25. Samuel is unmoved herewith: His Mantle Rent is a sign to Saul of his Ruine, God cannot lye, 26,——29. Samuel killeth Agag: Goeth from Saul, and mourneth for him, 30,——35.

SAmuel also said unto Saul, * The LORD sent me to anoint thee to be king over his people a, over Israel: now therefore hearken b thou unto the voice of the LORD thy God.

* Chap. 9. 17.

a The Lord made thee King, and therefore thou are highly obliged to serve and obey him. b Thou hast commitred one Error already, for which God hath severely rebuked and threatned: now therefore make amends for thy former Error, and regain God's Favour by thy exact Obedience to what he now commands.

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I remember that which Amalek did to Israel c, * how he laid wait for him in the way when he came up from Egypt d.

* Exod. 17. 8. Numb. 24. 20.

c I seem to have forgotten, but now I will shew that I remember, and now will revenge those old Injuries done 400 Years ago, which now I will punish in their Children: which was the more just, because they continued in their Parents cruel Practices; below, v. 33. d When he was newly come out of cruel and long Bondage, and was now weak, and weary, and faint, and hungry, Deut. 25. 18. and therefore it was Barbarous and Inhuman, instead of that pity which even Nature prompted them to afford, to add affliction to the afflicted; it was also horrid Impiety to fight against God himself, and to lift up their Hand in a manner against the Lord's Throne, as some Translate these words, Exod. 17. 16. whilst they struck at that People which God had brought forth in so stupendious and miraculous a way.

3 Now go and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have e, and spare them not f; but slay both man and woman, infant and suckling g, ox and sheep, camel and asse h.

e Both Persons and Goods, kill all that live, and consume all things without life, for I will have no Name nor Remnant of that People whom long since I have Curled and Devoted to utter Destruction. f Shew no Compassion or Favour to any of them. The same thing repeated to prevent mistake, and oblige Saul to the exact performance hereof; or, to leave him without excuse, in case of neglect. g For their Parents Crime and Punishment: which was not unjust, because God is the Supreme Lord and giver of Life, and can require his own when he pleaseth; Infants also are born in sin, Psal. 51. 5. and therefore liable to God's Wrath, Eph. 2. 3. and to death, Rom. 5. 12, 14. Their death also was rather a Mercy than a Curse to them, as being the occasion of preventing the vast increase of their Sin and Punishment. h Which being all made for Man's benefit, it is not strange nor unjust, if they suffer with him, and for him, and for the instruction of Mankind.

4 And Saul called the people together, and numbred them in Telaim, two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand men of Judah k.

k Who are particularly Noted here, as also chap. 11. 8. either as Select Persons of extraordinary Strength and Courage: or to commend that Tribe, which though the Kingdom had been promised to their own Tribe, yet were forward in serving and obeying a King of another, and that a far meaner Tribe.

5 And Saul came to a city of Amalek l, and ‖ laid wait m in the valley.

‖ Or, set

l Their chief City, where their King was, as is probable from v. 8. m Intending to draw them forth of their City by some pretence, like that of Joshua, Jos. 7. and then to intercept them, and so surprize their City: which hapily they did, though it be not here Recorded, it being not worth while to mention all the minute Circumstances of such matters.

6 ¶ And Saul said unto the Kenites n, Go, depart, get ye down from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them: for ye shewed kindness p to all the children of Israel, when they came up out of Egypt. So the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites.

n A People descending from, or nearly related unto Jethro, who anciently dwelt in Rocks near the Amalekites, Numb. 24. 21. and afterwards some of them dwelt in Judah, Judg. 1. 16. whence it is probable they removed, (which, dwelling in Tents, they could easily do) and retired to their old habitation, because of the Wars and Troubles wherewith Judah was annoyed. p Some of your Progenitors did so, Exod. 18. 12. Numb. 10. 31. and for their sakes all of you shall fare the better. You were not Guilty of that sin for which Amalek is now to be destroyed.

— And

7 And Saul smote the Amalekites from Havilah until thou comest to * Shur q, that is over against Egypt.

* Gen. 16. 7.

q i.e. From one end of their Country to the other; he smote all that he met with: but a great number of them fled away upon the noise of his coming, as is usual in such cases, and fearred themselves in other places, until the Storm was over, when they returned again: of whom we read before, chap. 13. 6. and 14. 22.

8 And he took Agag the king of the Amalekites alive r, and * utterly destroyed all the people s with the edge of the sword.

* Ch. 14. 21.

r Whom Saul spared, either out of foolish pity for the goodliness of his Person, which Josephus Notes: or, for his respect to his Royal Majesty, in the preservation of which he thought himself concerned: or, for the Glory of his Triumph: Compare v. 12. s To wit, the Body of the People, but not every Individual Person, as hath been shewed. Universal Particles are commonly thus understood, as is confessed.

9 But Saul and the people t spared Agag, and the best of the sheep, and of the oxen, and ‖ of the fatlings, and the lambs, and all that was good u, and would not utterly destroy them: but every thing that was vile, and refuse, that they destroyed utterly x.

Or, fatling

t The one proposed to do so, and the other consented to it, and so both were Guilty. u Which it is more than probable they reserved for their own use, rather than for Sacrifice; because they knew God would not accept a Sacrifice contrary to his own command. x Thus they obey God only so far as they could without inconvenience to themselves; they destroyed only what was not worth keeping, nor fit for their use.

10 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Samuel, saying,

11 It * repenteth me y that I have set up Saul to be king: for he is turned back from following me, and hath not † performed my commandments. And it grieved Samuel, and he cried unto the LORD all night z.

* Gen. 6. 6. † Heb. raised up.

y Repentance properly Notes grief of heart, and change of Counsels, and therefore cannot be in God who is unchangeable, most Wise, and most Blessed; but it is ascribed to God in such cases, when men give God cause to Repent, and when God alters his Course and Method of dealing, and Treats a Person as if he did indeed repent of all the kindness he had shewed to him. z To implore his pardoning Mercy for Saul, and for the People; so far was he from rejoycing in their Calamities, as an envious and selfseeking Person would have done.

12 And when Samuel rose early to meet Saul in the morning, it was told Samuel, saying, Saul came to Carmel a, and behold, he set him up a † place b, and is gone about, and passed on, and gone down to Gilgal.

† Heb. hand.

a Not Mount Carmel, of which Josh. 12. 22. but another Mountain or Town in the Tribe of Judah; of which see Josh. 15. 55. b i.e. A Monument or Trophy of his Victory, as the same Hebrew word is used, 2 Sam. 18. 18. And this may be here Noted by way of censure, That he set it up not to God's honour, but to himself, i.e. to his own praise; which he minded in the first fact, Josh. 12. 5. and therefore liable to God's Wrath, Eph. 2. 3. and to death, Rom. 6. 12, 14. Their death also was rather a Mercy than a Curse to them, as being the occasion of preventing the vast increase of their Sin and Punishment. b Which being all made for Man's benefit, it is not strange nor unjust, if they suffer with him, and for him, and for the instruction of Mankind.

13 And Samuel came unto Saul, and Saul said unto him, Blessed be thou of the LORD c; I have † performed the commandment of the LORD d.

† Heb. raised up.

c I thank thee, and I beg that God would bless thee, for sending me upon this Employment, and giving me this opportunity of manifesting my Obedience to God. d To wit, for the main and substance of it, to wit, the Extirpation of that wicked People: for he thought the sparing of Agag and the Cattel very inconsiderable in the case; though indeed it was expresly contrary to God's Command: but Self-interest made him exceeding partial in his own Cause: or else like a bold Hypocrite, he pretends that for his part he had obeyed God; resolving, it seems, to cast the blame upon the People, as he did.

14 And Samuel said, What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear e?

e How can this Evidence of Guilt consist with the profession of my Innocency?

15 And Saul said, They f have brought them from the Amalekites: for the people spared the best of the sheep, and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto the LORD g thy God h, and the rest we have utterly destroyed.

f i.e. The People. Thus, after the manner of all Hypocrites, he excuseth himself, and lays the blame upon the People; whereas they could not do it without his privity and consent; and he should have used his Power and Authority to over-rule them for God's sake, as he had done formerly for his own sake. But the truth is, he was zealous for his own Honour and Interest, but lake-warm where God only was concerned. g It is not likely that this was his and the Peoples Design; but this he now pretends, and ascribes that to his Piety, which was indeed the effect of his Impiety and Avarice. h Whom thou Lovest and Serveit, and therefore must needs be pleased with our Pious respect to him and his Service.

16 Then Samuel said unto Saul, Stay, and I will tell thee what the LORD hath said to me this night. And he said unto him, Say on.

17 And Samuel said, When thou wast little in thine own sight i, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and the LORD anointed thee king over Israel?

i i.e. Modest, Humble, and Submissive, as 1 Sam. 9. 21. and 10. 22. Whereby he implies, that now he was grown Proud, and Stubborn, and Impudent, both to commit sin, and justifie it.

18 And the LORD sent thee on a journey, and said, Go, and utterly destroy the sinners k the Amalekites, and fight against them, until † they be consumed.

† Heb. they consume them.

k So called by way of Eminency, as that word is used, Gen. 13. 13. Matth. 9. 10. John 9. 24. 31.

19 Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst flye upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the LORD l?

l Who cannot be deceived by thy fair professions of Religion, but knows very well, that thou didst not seek Sacrifices for God, but Prey for thy self.

20 And Saul said unto Samuel, Yea, I have obeyed the voice of the LORD m, and have gone the way which the LORD sent me, and have brought Agag the king of Amalek n, and have utterly destroyed the Amalekites.

m He addeth Obstinacy and Impenitency to his Crime, and justifies his Fact, though he hath nothing of any Moment to say, but what he said before. So he gives Samuel the lye, and reflects upon him, as one that had falsly Accused him. n To be dealt with as God pleaseth, and as thou thinkest fit.

21 But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the chief of the things which should have been utterly destroyed o, to sacrifice unto the LORD thy God in Gilgal.

o Heb. the chief of the devoted things: which being devoted to Destruction, I thought it most proper to destroy them by way of Sacrifice to God. But God had commanded Saul himself to smite and slay all upon the place, above, verse 3.

22 And Samuel said, * Hath the LORD as great a delight in burnt-offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD? Behold, * to obey is better than sacrifice p: and to hearken q, than the fat of rams r.

* Psal. 50. 8, 9. Isa. 1. 11. * Eccl. 5. 1. Hos. 6. 6. Mat. 5. 23. and 9. 13. and 12. 7.

p Because Obedience to God is a Moral Duty, constantly and indispensably necessary; but Sacrifice is but a Ceremonial Institution, sometimes unnecessary, as it was in the Wilderness; and sometimes sinful, when it is offered by a polluted hand, or in an irregular manner. Therefore thy gross Disobedience to God's express Command, is not to be compensated with Sacrifice. q i.e. To obey, as hearing is oft used in Scripture. r Then the choicest part of all the Sacrifice, to wit, the Fat, which was appropriated to God, Levit. 3. 16. Whereas the Offerer might partake of other parts of it.

23 For rebellion s is as the sin of † witchcraft, † Heb. divination. and stubbornness u is as * iniquity and idolatry x: because thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, he hath also rejected thee from being king y.

* See Ha. 66. 3. Heb.

s i.e. Disobedience to God's express Precept, which was Saul's case. t Is, though not so great, yet as inexcusable and impudent a sin, as Witchcraft; as plainly Condemned, and as certainly Destructive and Damnable. u Either, wilful and presumptuous sin, whereby a man violently breaks loose from God's Command, and resists his Authority: Or rather, Perseverance or Continuance in sin, justifying it, and pleading for it, which was Saul's present Crime. x Or, the Iniquity of Idolatry; this being an Hendiadis; as Judgment and Justice, Deut. 16. 18. is put for the Judgment of Justice, or Just Judgment. Or, Idolatry (for so the Hebrew word Aven signifies, as Jer. 10. 15. Hos. 5. 15. and 10. 5. Compare with 1 Kings 12. 29.) even the Teraphim, which is here mentioned as one of the worst kinds of Idolatry. y i.e. Hath pronounced the Sentence of Rejection: for that he was not actually Rejected or Deposed by God, plainly appears, because not only the People, but even David, after this, owned him as King: and Samuel, at Saul's desire, did honour him; i.e. own him as King, before the People, v. 30.

24 ¶ And Saul said unto Samuel, I have sinned z: for I have transgressed the commandment of the LORD, and thy words a; because I feared the people b, and obeyed their voice.

z Which confession proceeded not from true Repentance, but from the fence of his great Danger, and from a desire of recalling that dreadful Sentence denounced against him. a i.e. The Commandment of the Lord delivered to me by thy words. Another Hendiadis. b Who, as thou knowest, are fee upon mischief, and would probably have broken forth into a Mutiny or Rebellion, had I done otherwise. But how little he feared the People, may be seen by 1 Sam. 11. 7. and 14. 24. But this was a false cause: nor doth he acknowledge the true cause, which was his Covetousness, and because he did not fear God.

25 Now therefore, I pray thee, pardon my sin c, and turn again with me d, that I may worship the LORD e.

c Use

t Use thy great Interest with God to obtain the Pardon of my sin. Or, do thou pardon my sin against thee: for he had sinned not only against God, but against Samuel also, as God's Prophet; and therefore needed a Pardon both from God and Man. d To Gilgal, whence Saul was gone forth to meet Samuel; and Samuel is here said to turn again to Gilgal; not properly, for he had not now been there; but by way of Concomitancy, because he accompanied Saul, who was come thence, and returned thither: See the like expression, Ruth 1. 10, 22. and 2. 6. e That I may offer further Sacrifices to God; partly, to praise him for the past Victory; and partly, to implore his Mercy, and the taking off of my sin and punishment. This was a politick device of Saul's; That Samuel might at least seem to countenance his Design, in reserving the Cattel for Sacrifice: which Samuel seeing, refused to do it. Heb. and I will worship the Lord, i. e. I will seek his Pardon and Favour.

26 And Samuel said unto Saul, I will not return with thee f: for thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being king over Israel.

f This was no lye, though he afterwards returned, because he spoke what he meant; his words and intentions agreed together, though afterwards he saw reason to change his Intentions. Compare Gen. 19. 2, 3. Which may relieve many perplexed Consciences, who think themselves obliged to do what they have said they would do, though they see just cause to change their minds.

*See 1 Kin. 11. 31. *Chr. 12. 7. 1 Kin. 11. 31.

27 And as Samuel turned about to go away, * he laid hold upon the skirt of his mantle, and it rent.

28 And Samuel said unto him, * The LORD hath rent the kingdom of Israel from thee g this day, and hath given it to a neighbour of thine h, that is better than thou.

g Samuel makes use of the emergent occasion, as a sign, to signifie and confirm his former Prediction. h Either, another Man: or, another Israelite: for the word Neighbour, is used both ways: or rather, one of the Neighbouring Tribe, even Judah, whose Interest also did not only joyn to that of Benjamin, but was partly mixed with it.

† Or, eternity, or, victory. *Num. 23. 19. 2 Tim. 2. 13. Tit. 1. 2.

29 And also the † strength of Israel i will not lie k, nor repent l: for he is not a man that he should repent.

i So he calls God here; partly, to shew the reason why God will not change his mind; because lying is a weakness, and proceeds from the sence of a Man's weakness, because he cannot many times accomplish his Design without Lying and Dissimulation; which therefore many Princes have used for this very reason. But, saith he, God needs no such Artifices; he can do whatsoever he pleaseth by his Absolute Power, and hath no need to use lyes to accomplish his Will: partly, to shew that Israel should be no loser by Saul's loss, as he might vainly imagine, because he had saved them from their Enemies on every side, chap. 14. 47. For not Saul, but God, was the Strength and Protector of Israel, and he would continue to save them when Saul was lost and gone: and partly, to assure Saul that God would execute this Threatning, because he wanted not strength to do it, and none could hinder him in it. l i. e. Nor change his Counsel; which also is an effect of weakness and imperfection, either of Wisdom or Power.

30 Then he said, I have sinned; yet honour me now, I pray thee, before the elders of my people, and before Israel m, and turn again with me, that I may worship the LORD thy God.

m Here he plainly discovers his Hypocrisie, and the true motive of this and his former Confession; he was not solicitous for the Favour of God, but for his Honour and Power with Israel.

31 So Samuel turned again after Saul n, and Saul worshipped the LORD.

n Not to Worship the Lord with him, for that he did not; and therefore it is here mentioned that Saul only Worshipped the Lord: but for two other reasons; First, That the People might not upon pretence of this Sentence of rejection, immediately withdraw all Respect and Obedience to their Sovereign; whereby they would both have sinned against God, and have been as Sheep without a Shepherd. Secondly, That he might rectifie Saul's Error, and execute God's Judgment upon Agag.

† Heb. of Amalek.

32 ¶ Then said Samuel, Bring ye hither to me Agag the king † of the Amalekites: and Agag came unto him delicately o. And Agag said p, Surely the bitterness of death is past q.

o Or, in Delights; or, in his Ornaments; i. e. He came not like an Offender, expecting the Sentence of Death; but in that Garb and Gesture which became his Quality. p Or, Perhaps Saul: This being the reason why he came to. q I who have escaped Death from the hands of a Warlike Prince in the fury of Battel, shall certainly never suffer Death from an old Prophet in time of Peace.

*Numb. 24. 25.

33 And Samuel said, * As thy sword hath made women childless r, so shall thy mother be childless among women. And Samuel hewed Agag in pieces s before the LORD t in Gilgal.

r Whereby it appears; that he was a cruel Tyrant, and guilty of many bloody Actions, and that towards God's People, though it be not related elsewhere. And this seems to be added for the fuller vindication of God's Justice, and to shew, that although God did at this time remember and revenge a Crime committed by this Man's Ancestors 500 Years ago, yet he did not punish an Innocent Son for his Father's Crimes, but one that allowed and perfisted in the same evil courses. s This he did by divine Instinct, and in pursuance of God's express and particular Command, above, v. 3. which being sinfully neglected by Saul, is now executed by Samuel. See the like example 1 King. 18. 40. But these are no Precedents for private Persons to take the Sword of Justice into their hands. For we must live by the Laws of God, and not by extraordinary examples. t Either, before the Ark, which, it seems, Saul carried with him in this, as he did, in his former expedition, chap. 14. 18. or, before God's Altar: or, in the publick Assembly.

34 ¶ Then Samuel went to Ramah, and Saul went up to his house to * Gibeah of Saul.

*Cha. 11.4

35 And Samuel came no more to see Saul u until the day of his death: nevertheless, Samuel mourned for Saul u: and the LORD repented that he had made Saul king over Israel.

u i. e. To visit him, either, in token of Respect or Friendship: or, to seek Counsel from God for him, or to give Counsel to him. Seeing is put for Visiting here, and 2 Kings 8. 29. Otherwise he did see him afterwards, chap. 19. 24. Though indeed it was not Samuel that came thither with design to see Saul, which is implied in the Phrase here; but Saul went thither to see Samuel, and that accidentally. x Partly for Saul's sake, whose fad condition he lamented: and partly, for Israel's sake, whose estate he feared might by this means be doubtful and dangerous.

CHAP. XVI.

Samuel is sent by God; who, under pretence of a Sacrifice for fear of Saul, cometh to Bethlehem: Sanctifieth Jesse and his sons, 1,——5. His humane Judgment in chusing Eliab the eldest son is reproved, 6, 7. God had chosen David the youngest to be King in Saul's place, 8.——12. Samuel anointeth him, and the spirit of God cometh upon him: but departeth from Saul: And an evil spirit cometh upon him, 13, 14. He sends for David to quiet it: His Praise: Saul loveth him, and maketh him his Armour-Bearer: He playeth before Saul when the evil spirit disquieted him, 15,——23.

AND the LORD said unto Samuel, How long wilt thou mourn for Saul a, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel b? Fill thine horn with oyl c, and go, I will send thee to Jesse the Bethlehemite: for I have provided me † a king d among his sons.

† Heb. for myself.

a And pray for his Restitution, which the following words imply that he did. b The manifestation of my peremptory Will, should make thee submit to my pleasure. c Which was used in the Inauguration of Kings, as chap. 10. 1. and 1 Kings 1. 39. But here it is used in the Designation of a King, though David was not actually made King by it, but still remained a Subject, as is evident from chap. 24. 6. And the reason of this Anticipation was, partly, the comfort of Samuel, and other good men, against their great fears in case of Saul's Death, of which they expected every day to hear: and partly, the assurance of David's Title, which otherwise would have been very doubtful. For the prevention of which doubts, it was very meet, that the same Person and Prophet who had Anointed Saul, might now, upon God's rejection of Saul, anoint David to succeed him upon his Death; and because Samuel was now not far from his Death, and was to die before Saul, it was fit that David's Anointing should be hasined and done before its proper time. d This Phrase is very Emphatical, and implies the difference between this and the former King. Saul was a King of the Peoples providing, he was the product of their inordinate and sinful desires; they desired him for themselves, and for their own glory and safety, as they supposed: but this is a King of my own providing, one that I have fixed out, one of that Tribe to which I have allotted the Kingdom, Gen. 49. 10. A King for me; not one to gratifie the People's desires, but to fulfil all my Will, as is said, Act. 13. 22. and to serve my Glory. Or, my King; the Hebrew Phrase, to me, or for me, being commonly used for the word mine.

2 And Samuel said, How can I go e? if Saul hear it, he will kill me. And the LORD said, Take an heifer † with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice to the LORD f.

† Heb. in thy hand.

e To wit, Safely? A Question which seems to favour of Human frailty: for he should have strongly believed that God who had set him upon the Work, would carry him through it. f Which he used oft to do, sometimes in one place, and sometimes in another, that so he might encourage and keep up the Worship of God in all of them. This was one cause, though not the only cause, of his coming: nor was he obliged to declare all the causes of it.

3 And call Jesse to the sacrifice g, and I will shew thee what thou shalt do: and thou shalt anoint unto me him whom I name h unto thee.

g i. e. Invite him to the Feast, which, after the manner, was made of the Flesh of the Sacrifice: and it belonged to Samuel, as the Offerer of the Sacrifice, to invite whom he pleased. h i. e. Whom I shall describe, as it were, by name.

4 And Samuel did that which the LORD spake, and came to Bethlehem: and the elders of the town trembled at his † coming i, and said, Comest thou † Heb. peaceably? k?

i Partly, because it was strange and unexpected to them, this being but an obscure Town, Mich 5. 2. and remote from Samuel, and therefore they justly thought there was some extraordinary reason for it; and their guilty Consciences made them fear that he came to denounce some dreadful and particular Judgment of God upon them: and partly, lest Saul, whose heart was estranged from, and and inceused against Samuel, should upon this occasion conceive a jealousie of them, and a displeasure against them. k Heb. in or with Peace; either, first, to thy self. Comest thou voluntarily, or to flee from the Rage of Saul? Or, Secondly to us. Comest thou with no evil Tidings to us, either from God, or from Saul? The Hebrew Phrase, comest thou in Peace, being as much as to say (in our Phrase) is all well?

5 And he said, Peaceably: I am come to sacrifice unto the LORD: sanctifie your selves l, and come with me to the sacrifice m: and he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice n.

l Prepare your selves in the manner expressed, Exod. 19. 14, 15. m Heb. in the Sacrifice; i. e. joyn with me in this act of Worshipping God, and offering this Sacrifice, thereby to give Thanks for the Blessings you have received from him, and to pray for what you want. n It seems evident, that there was something peculiar in Jesse's Invitation. For First, Both he and his Sons were Invited, whereas the others are only Invited for their own Persons. Secondly, The different Phrase here used, that he Sanctified these, when he only had the other Sanctify themselves; argues a singular care and agency of Samuel in their Sanctification: (unless we should say, He sanctified them, in no more but that he caused them to be sanctified; that is, these in particular amongst others.) Which makes it probable, that the rest were only to joyn with him in the act of Sacrificing; but these, and only these, were Invited to Feast upon the remainders of the Sacrifice; which Feast is here called a Sacrifice, as it is above verse 3. And the only inconvenience of this Interpretation is, that the word Sacrifice is taken in different senses in the same Verse, which is unusual thing. See Matth. 8. 22. And this difference may possibly be insinuated by the differing prepositions prefixed to the same word, the first being Bazzabach, and the latter Lazzabach. Howsoever, that only Jesse and his Sons were present at the Feast, may seem probable, from Samuel's design of Privacy, and from the following Relation.

6 ¶ And it came to pass, when they were come o, that he looked on * Eliab, and said, Surely the LORDS anointed is before him p.

* Chron. 27. 18. † Heb. for me.

o When the mouth of Jesse's Sons were come, either to the place of the Feast, or to some other place near it, appointed for this private Discourse, whither they were to come before they went to the Feast. It must also be understood, that Samuel had acquainted Jesse with his Design, which is easily gathered out of the context, and needed not be expressed. p i. e. Is in this place where God is now present. For it is observable, that not only the Sacrifice is said to be Offered, but even the Feast upon the remainders of it is said to be, eaten before the Lord, Deut. 12. 7. i. e. before or near his Altar, where God was present in a special manner. And the ground of this expression seems to be this, That Jesse brought not all his Sons together, but made one after another to come to the place, and to pass before Samuel, who stood before the Lord, in some place near the Altar, that this great business might be managed with more Solemnity. And Eliab being the Person now before Samuel, is said to be now before the Lord. But whatsoever the ground of this Phrase is, this is certain and confessed, that this is his meaning. This I take to be the Person whom I am sent to Anoint: wherein yet he was greatly mistaken, as other Prophets sometimes were, when they hastily spake their own thoughts, before they had consulted God in the case, as 2 Sam. 7. 3.

7 But the LORD said q unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature r, because I have refused him: for the LORD seeth not as man seeth: For man looketh on the † outward appearance s, but the LORD looketh on the † Heb. heart. t.

q By secret inspiration. r Whereby thou wast once deceived Sam. in Saul, chap. 10. 23, 24. and therefore thouldst not now be deceived a second time. s Men value Men by their outsides. t God esteems of Men by the goodness of their hearts, and hath now proceeded by that Rule in the choice of a King, and would have done so before, if the People's sinful desires had not provoked him to give them a bad King.

8 Then Jesse called * Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel: and he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

* Called also Shimeah, 2 Sam. 13. 3. and Shimmah, 1 Chron. 2. 13.

9 Then Jesse made Shammah u to pass by: and he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

u Called also Shimeah, 2 Sam. 13. 3. and Shimmah, 1 Chron. 2. 13.

10 Again Jesse made seven of his sons x to pass before Samuel; and Samuel said unto Jesse, The LORD hath not chosen † these.

x i. e. The rest of his Sons, which were seven, besides David's for in all he had eight, 1 Sam. 17. 12. It is true, there are but seven of them named, 1 Chron. 2. 13, 14, 15. but that may be, because one of them was either born of a Concubine; or an obscure Person: or, one that died immediately after this time.

11 And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and behold, he keepeth the sheep y. And Samuel said unto Jesse, * Send and fetch him: for we will not sit † down z till he come hither.

y And consequently is the most unfit of all my Sons for that high Employment. Either therefore he did not throughly understand David's great Wisdom and Valour, or he judgeth him unfit, by reason of his mean Education. And God so ordered it by his Providence, that David's choice might plainly appear to be God's Work, and not Samuel's, or Jesse's Design. z To wit, to the Feast. Qu. How could David be admitted to this Feast, being, as it seems, not sanctified with the rest of his brethren? Answ. 1. It is not strange, if the Prophet, by God's direction, dispenced with the ordinary Rule, in a Person to extraordinary, both for his Piety, and the Dignity to which he was chosen. 2. It is not affirmed, that David did fit down with them to the Feast; but only, that they would not do so till he came. And when he was come, and Samuel had done what he intended with him, David, for ought we know, might depart, and the rest fit down to the Feast. For David was not now actually raised to any higher degree, but returned to his former employment; as we read below, v. 19.

12 And he sent, and brought him in: now he was ruddy a, and withal, † of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look b to, and the LORD said, Arise, anoint him: for this is he.

† Heb. fair of eyes.

a Which may be referred either to the colour of his hair; or rather, to the complexion of his Face. b Of a comely, but Masculine and Majestick Aspect.

13 Then Samuel took the horn of oyl, and * anointed him in the midst of his brethren c: and * the spirit of the LORD came upon David from that day forward d. So Samuel rose up and went to Ramah.

* Psal. 89. 20. * See Num. 27. 18.

c According to this Translation, his Brethren were present at this Act, and knew that David was Anointed King. But this seems to me, neither consistent with Samuel's design of Secresie; nor with Eliab's scornful words concerning him after this, chap. 17. 28. But to this, others reply, That David's Brethren saw David's Unction, but did not particularly understand, that he was Anointed to the Kingdom; but were only told by Samuel, that he was Anointed to some great Service, which hereafter they should know, but at present it was fit to be concealed: Thus Jesse only, and David, understood the whole business, and his Brethren were able to attest to that Act of Samuel's Anointing him, which, with other collateral Evidences, was abundantly sufficient to prove David's right to the Kingdom, if need should be. And this seems fairly to accord, and explain the matter: But the words may be otherwise Translated out of the Hebrew, That he Anointed him out of the midst of his brethren; i. e. He selected him from amongst the rest of his Brethren to be King. As Christ is said to be raised from the midst of his brethren. And whereas, the Hebrew Word is Bekereb, in the midst; not mikkereb, out of the midst; it is considered, that the Preposition beth, in, is oft used for min, of or out of, as hath been formerly shewed by many instances; and so it may be here. And further, the place may be thus rendred; that Samuel anointed him, being taken out of the midst of his brethren: and to these words may be added, to signifie, That Samuel took him out from the rest of the Company, and privately Anointed him; Jesse only being present at the Action. And thus there is an Ellipsis of a Verb or Particle, which is frequent; as Gen. 12. 15. The woman was taken (i. e. was taken and carried) into Pharaoh's house; and many such places. d i. e. He was immediately endowed with extraordinary Gifts of God's Spirit, as Strength, and Courage, and Wisdom, and Magnanimity, and other excellent qualities which fitted him for, and put him upon Noble Attempts; for which, he precisely grew famous, even whilst he lived a private Life: See below v. 18. and 17, 34, &c.

14 ¶ But the spirit of the LORD departed from Saul e, and an * evil spirit f from the LORD g troubled him h.

*Cha. 19. 9 ‖ Or, terrified.

e God took away that prudence, and courage, and alacrity, and other gifts and assistances of God's Spirit, wherewith he had qualified him for the management of his Publick Employment. f Properly to called: for what need is there of forsaking the proper signification of the Word? It is evident both from Scripture, and Experience, that God hath permitted some men to be really acted, and disquieted by the Devil: and why not Saul as well as others? g i. e. By God's permition or judgment, delivering him up to Satan. h Stirred up in him unruly and tormenting Passions; as Envy, Rage, Fear, Despair, and the like.

15 And Saul's servants said unto him, Behold now, an evil spirit † from God troubleth thee.

† Heb. of God.

16 Let our lord now command thy servants i which are before thee, to seek out a man, who is a cunning player on an harp, and it shall come to pass, when the evil spirit from God is upon thee, that he shall play with his hand, and thou shalt be well k.

i And the Success confirms their Opinion. For although Musick cannot directly have any influence upon an Evil Spirit to drive him away; yet, because the Devil, as it seems, had not Possession of him, but only made use of the Passions of his Mind, and all humours of his Body to molest him: and because it is manifest, that Musick hath a mighty Power to qualifie and sweeten these, and to make a man sedate and chearful, as is evident by the unanimous consent of Learned Writers, and by common Experience; it is not strange, if the Devil had not that power over him when his Mind was more composed, which he had when it was disordered; as the Devil had less power over Lunaticks in the decrease, than in the increase of the Moon: Mat. 17. 15, 18. And seeing Musick prepared the Lord's Prophets for the Entertainment of the good Spirit, as 2 Kings 3. 15. Why might it not disquiet Saul to the resistance of the evil Spirit? and why might not the clearing of his Heart, in some measure strengthen him against those temptations of the Devil, which were led by his Melancholick Humour?

17 And Saul said unto his servants, Provide me now a man that can play well, and bring him to me.

18 Then answered one of the servants, and said, Behold, I have seen a son of Jesse the Bethlehemite, that is cunning in playing, and a mighty valiant man, and a man of war, and prudent in ‖ Or, speech matters k, and a comely person, and the LORD is with him l.

k Wonder not, that David was so suddenly advanced, from a poor contemptible Shepherd, to so great Reputation; for these were the Effects of that Spirit of the Lord which he received when he was Anointed. Though some would hence infer, that the things related in this Chapter, happened after the History of Chapter 15. though it be placed before, such Transpositions being not unusual in Historical Relations. l i.e. Directs and prospers all his undertakings.

19 ¶ Wherefore Saul sent messengers unto Jesse, and said, Send me David thy son, which is with the sheep.

20 And Jesse took an ass laden with bread, and a bottle of wine, and a kid, and sent them by David his son unto Saul m.

m This Present, though in our Times it would seem contemptible, yet was very agreeable to the usage of those Times, and to the condition of Jesse, which was but mean in the World. And it seems to have been the Custom of those Times, as it is yet in the Eastern Countries (when they made their appearance before Princes, or great Persons, to bring a Present; See Gen. 32. 20. Gen. 43. 25. and elsewhere.) To which civil Custom, that Religious Precept seems conformable, Deut. 23. 15. Deut. 16. 16. None shall appear before me empty. And he might send it; partly, as a Testimony of his respect to his Sovereign; and partly, to gain David favour and acceptance with him; being sensible, that he was going into a place and state of hazard; but knowing Saul's furious Temper, he durst not refuse to send him; and he too, him the more willingly, because this seemed a most likely means to accomplish God's Promise of the Kingdom, and to prepare him for it.

21 And David came to Saul, and stood before him n: and he loved him greatly, and he became his armour-bearer o.

n i.e. Ministred unto him; or, (as we use to speak) waited upon him, as that Phrase oft signifies; as Deut. 1. 38. and 10. 8. o He had that Place conferred upon him, though we do not read that he ever exercised it; for it seems he was gone back to his Father upon some occasion not related; and had abode with him some considerable time before the War described, Chap. 17. happened.

22 And Saul sent to Jesse, saying, Let David, I pray thee, stand before me: for he hath found favour in my sight.

23 And it came to pass, when the evil spirit † Heb. of † from God was upon Saul, that David took an God. harp, and played with his hand: so Saul was refreshed, and was well, and the evil spirit departed from him p.

p To wit, for a season. And the reason of this Success, may be, partly natural and common; of which, see v. 16. and partly supernatural and special, reflecting David; whom God designed by this means, to bring into favour with the King and his Court, and so to smooth the way for his Advancement.

CHAP. XVII.

The Armies of the Israelites and Philistines ready for Battel: Goliah terrifieth her Fearless with his Stature, Armour and Challenge, 1.——11. David sent by his Father to visit his Brethren; is willing to Encounter with him, 12.——27. for which Eliab chideth him: He is brought to Saul, and shewedh the reason of his Confidence, 28.——30. He taketh a Staff: And Sling, with five Stones, 38.—40. Goliah curseth and threateneth him, 41.—44. David's Faith: He giveth him, 45.——52. The Philistines fly: Are spoiled and plundered, 53.—54. Saul taketh notice of David, 55.—58.

NOW the Philistines gathered together their armies to battel a, and were gathered together between Shocho and Azekah in ‖ Ephesdammin. ‖ Or, the coast of Dammin.

a To Revenge their former great and shameful Defeat, Chap. 14.

2 And Saul and the men of Israel were gathered together, and pitched by the valley of Elah, and † set the battel in array against the Philistines. † Heb. ranged the battel.

3 And the Philistines stood on a mountain on the one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side b: and there was a valley between them.

b Where they had disposed and fortified their Camps, that if the one should assault the other, the Assailant should have the disadvantage, and be obliged to fight from a lower place.

† Heb. a middle man, or a man between. 4 ¶ And there went out † a champion c out of the camp of the Philistines, named Goliah, of Gath, whose height was six cubits and a span d.

c Heb. a man between two; either because he used to come forth, and stand between the two Armies; or, because he moved that the business should be decided between two, whereof he would be one. d Which is not strange, for besides the Giants mentioned in Scripture, Herodotus, Diodorus Siculus, and Pliny, and others, make mention of persons seven Cubits high; which is near double to an ordinary mans height.

5 And he had an helmet of brass upon his head; and he was † armed with a coat of mail: and the † Heb. weight of the coat was five thousand shekels e of brass.

e The common Shekle contained only a fourth part of an Ounce; and so 5000 Shekels made 1250 Ounces, which make exactly 78 pounds. Which weight is not unfuitable to a man of such vast greatness and strength as his Height speaks him to be.

6 And he had greaves of brass upon his legs: and a ‖ target of brass between his shoulders. ‖ Or, gittith

7 And the staff of his spear was like a weavers † beam f, and his spears † head weighed six hundred † Heb. Bare. shekels of iron, * and one bearing a shield went be- * Heb. fore him. He.

f On which the Weavers fasten their Web. It was like this for thickness; and for length, that he omits, as safe to be collected by proportion to the rest. And though the whole weight of Goliah's Armour may seem prodigious; yet it is not so much by far, as one Athanatus did manage: of whom Pliny relates, That he saw him come into the Theatre with Arms weighing 1200 Ounces.

8 And he stood and cryed unto the armies of Israel, and said unto them, Why are ye come out to set your battel in array? am not I a Philistine, and ye servants to Saul? choose ye a man for you, and let him come down to me g.

g That the Battel may be decided by us Two alone. Such offers were frequent in those Times. And possibly he thought the Valiant Jonathan, who had assaulted an whole Army, would never have refused this Challenge. But God so ordered the matter, that none should accept it, because he would reserve this Honour for David, as a step to his Kingdom.

9 If he be able to fight with me, and to kill me, then will we be your servants: but if I prevail against him, and kill him, then shall ye be our servants, and serve us.

10 And the Philistine said, I defie the armies of Israel this day: give me a man that we may fight together.

11 When Saul and all Israel heard those words of the Philistine, they were dismayed, and greatly afraid h.

h Which may seem strange, considering the glorious Promises, and their late Experiences of Divine Assistance. But the truth is, all Men do so entirely depend upon God in all things, that when he withdraws his help, the most Valiant and Resolute Persons cannot find their Hearts nor Hands, as daily experience shews.

12 ¶ Now David was * the son of that * Ephra- * Chap. thite i of Bethlehem-Judah, whose name was Jesse, 17. 58. Gen. 35. and he had eight sons k: and the man went among 19. men for an old man in the days of Saul.

i i.e. Of the man of Ephrathah, or Bethlehem, Gen. 35. 19. k See on chap. 16. 10.

13 And the three eldest sons of Jesse went, and followed Saul to the battel: and the names of his three sons that went to the battel, were Eliab the firstborn, and next unto him Abinadab, and the third Shammah.

14 And David was the youngest, and the three eldest followed Saul.

15 But David went and returned from Saul l to feed his fathers sheep at Bethlehem.

l Either 1. From Saul's Court: where having been entertained by Saul, to relieve him in his Melancholy Fits, he was permitted to go to his Father's House, to be sent for again upon occasion. Or, 2. From Saul's Camp, whither he used to come to visit his Brethren; as appears from v. 17.

16 And the Philistine drew near morning and evening, and presented himself forty days.

17 And Jesse said unto David his son, Take now for thy brethren an Ephah of this parched corn, and these ten loaves, and † run to the camp to thy † Heb. brethren.

18 And carry these ten † cheeses unto the captain † Heb. of their thousand m, and look how thy brethren fare, and take their pledge n.

m A Food then much in use, which they used to mix with Water, or Milk, or Oyl, &c.

n In whole Power it was in a great measure, either to preserve them, or to expose them to utmost hazards. o i.e. Bring me some tokes of their welfare from them.

19 Now Saul, and they, and all the men of Israel were in the valley of Elah, fighting with the Philistines p.

p i.e. In a posture and readiness to fight with them; as it is explained, v. 20, 21. Men are oft said in Scripture, to do what they intend, and are prepared to do; as hath been shewed formerly by instances.

20 And

20 And David rose up early in the morning, and left the sheep with a keeper, and took, and went as Jesse had commanded him: and he came to the ‖ Or, place of the carriages. trench q as the host was going forth to the ‖ fight, and shouted r for the battel.

q i.e. To the Camp or Army which was there Intrenched. r As the manner was, both to animate themselves, and to terrifie their Enemies.

21 For Israel and the Philistines had put the battel ‖ Or, he put the battel in array in array, army against army.

† Heb. the vessels from the keeper of the carriage. 22 And David left his † carriage s in the hand of and came and † saluted his brethren.

† Heb. asked his brethren of peace. s The Provisions which he had brought to his brethren.

23 And as he talked with them, behold, there came up the champion (the Philistine of Gath, Goliah by name) out of the armies of the Philistines, and spake according to the same words: and David heard them.

24 And all the men of Israel, when they saw the † Heb. from man, fled † from him, and were sore afraid. his face.

25 And the men of Israel said, Have ye seen this man that is come up? surely to defie Israel is he come up: and it shall be that the man who killeth him, the King * Josh. 15. will enrich him t with great riches, and * will give 16. him his daughter, and make his fathers house free u in Israel.

t It is observable, that Saul in his great Distress, doth not encourage himself in God, nor seek his counsel or favour by Prayers and Sacrifices, but expects Relief from Men only. This was one effect and sign of the departure of God's Spirit from him. u Free from all those Tributes and Charges which either the Court or the Camp required.

26 And David spake to the men that stood by him, saying, What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, and taketh away the reproach from Israel? for who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defie the armies of the living God x?

x Why should you all be thus dismayed at him? he is but a Man, and that of an accursed Race, a Stranger and Enemy to God, and no way able to stand before them who have the Living and Almighty God for their Strength and Refuge?

27 And the people answered him after this manner, saying, So shall it be done unto the man that killeth him.

28 ¶ And Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spake unto the men, and Eliab's anger was kindled against David y, and he said, Why camest thou down hither? and with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart z; for thou art come down that thou mightest see the battel.

y Either because he thought him guilty of intollerable Folly, and Pride, and Presumption, in pretending to such an Attempt: or because he feared and concluded he would be certainly ruined in the Enterprize: or rather, because he envied him the glory of so great an undertaking; and took this proffer of David's to be, what indeed it was, a Reproach to himself, and to all the rest, that having the great God on their side, had not the Faith or Courage to fight with him. z Thou are much fitter to tend Sheep, than to appear in an Army, or to fight with a Giant. a Thy self-confidence, and vain-glory, and curiosity.

29 And David said, What have I now done? Is † Heb. there not a cause b? was

b Either, 1. Of my coming: My Father sent me on an Errand. Or rather, 2. Of my thus speaking: Is there not Reason in what I say? Is this Giant Invincible? is our God unable to oppose him, and Subdue him?

30 ¶ And he turned from him towards another, † Heb. and spake after the same † manner c: and the people word. answered him again after the former manner.

c For being secretly moved by God's Spirit to undertake the Combat, he speaks with divers Persons about it, that so it might come to the King's ear.

31 And when the words were heard which David † Heb. spake, they rehearsed them before Saul: and he † sent him. for him.

32 ¶ And David said to Saul, Let no mans heart fail because of him: thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine.

33 And Saul said to David, Thou art not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him: for thou art but a youth d, and he a man of war from his youth.

d Either, 1. For Age, to wit, comparatively to Goliah, being now not much above 20 years old, as is supposed. Or rather, 2. For Military skill, as the words following explain it; as if he should say, Thou are but a Novice, a raw and unexperienced Soldier, and therefore unable to fight with him.

34 And David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion and a bear e, and took a ‖ lamb out of the flock: ‖ Or, kid.

e Not both together, but one after another, at several times.

35 And I went out after him, and smote him f, and delivered it out of his mouth: and when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him.

f To wit, the Lyon, as appears by his Beard: which having particularly mentioned, it was easily understood, and believed, that he did the same to the Bear; which therefore it was needless to express.

36 Thy servant slew both the lion and the bear g: and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, seeing he hath defied the armies of the living God.

g This he is probably thought to have done after he was Anointed; when he was endowed with singular gifts of God's Spirit: and among others, with extraordinary courage of Heart, and strength of Body.

37 David said moreover, The LORD that delivered me out of the † paw of the lion, and out of † Heb. hand the † paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the † Heb. hand hand of this Philistine h. And Saul said unto David, Go i, and the LORD be with thee.

h His Good-will is the same to me, that it then was, and his Power is not diminished. i It is not strange, that Saul confents to the Combat, considering David's pious and convincing Discourse, grounded upon sensible Experience; and withal, the dangerous condition of the Israelitish Affairs, and the absolute refusal of all other Persons.

38 ¶ And Saul † armed David with his armour k, † Heb. and he put an helmet of brass upon his head, also he clothed &c. armed him with a coat of mail. with his k Either, 1. With Saul's own Armour which he used to wear in clothes. Battel; which seems not to agree with the extraordinary height of Saul's Stature, 1 Sam. 10. 23. Nor is it like that Saul would disarm himself, when he was going forth to the Battel, v. 20, 21. Or, 2. With Armour taken out of his Armory. Not that the whole Armory of Saul was brought into the Field; but that some chosen Arms were taken out thence, and brought for any emergent occasion. Or rather, 3. With his vestments, or garments. For, 1. So the Hebrew Word properly and usually signifies; and so this same Word is Translated, 1 Sam. 18. 4. 2. His Armor is distinguished from this, and is particularly described in the following words. He seems therefore to speak of some Military Vestments which were then used in War, and were contrived for defence; such as Buff-coats now are.

39 And David girded his sword upon his armour, and he assayed to go, for he had not proved it: and David said unto Saul, I cannot go with these: for I have not proved them. And David put them off him.

l I have no skill nor experience in the management of this kind of Arms.

40 And he took his staff m in his hand and chose him five n smooth stones o out of the ‖ brook, and put ‖ Or, Valley. them in a † shepherds † bag which he had, even in a † Heb. scrip, and his sling was in his hand p, and he drew Vessel. near to the Philistine.

m His Shepherds Staff. These Arms were in themselves contemptible, yet chosen by David; partly, because he had no skill to use other Arms; partly, because he had inward assurance of the Victory, even by these Weapons; and partly, because such a Conquest would be most honourable to God, and most shameful, and discouraging to the Philistines. n That if one should hit him, he might make use of another. o Because such Stones would go most freely out of the Sling; and consequently, with more force and certainty, directly to the Mark which he aimed at. p This sort of Weapons was not unusual in the Fights of ancient Times; and many arrived at great dexterity in flinging Stones with great certainty; of which we have instances both in Scripture, as Judg. 20. 16. and in Diodorus Siculus, and Livy, and other Authors.

41 And the Philistine came on, and drew near unto David, and the man that bare the shield went before him.

42 And when the Philistine looked about, and saw David, he disdained him: for he was but a youth, and ruddy, and of a fair countenance q.

q Not having so much as the countenance of a Martial Person.

43 And the Philistine said unto David, Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves r? and the Philistine cursed David by his gods s.

r i.e. With a Staff. The Plural Number for the Singular; as Gen 21. 7. and 45 7. s He prayed that his god Dagon, and Ashtaroth, &c. would destroy him.

44 And the Philistine said to David, Come to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field.

45 Then said David to the Philistine, Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: but I come to thee in the name of the LORD of hosts t, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied u.

t i.e. By a Commission from him, with confidence in him, and assurance of his Help, and for the vindication of his Honour.
u In defying that Army and People whereof he is the Lord and Protector.

† Heb. float thee up.

46 This day will the LORD † deliver thee into mine hand, and I will smite thee, and take the head from thee, and I will give the carcases of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth, that all the earth may know that * there is a God in Israel x.

* 2 Kings 5. 15.

x Heb. that God, the only true God, is for Israel; or on Israel's side, and against you. Or, that Israel hath a God, a God indeed, one who is able to help them; and not such an impotent Idol as you serve.

47 And all this assembly shall know, that the LORD saveth not with sword and spear y, (for the battel is the LORD's z,) and he will give you into our hands a.

y i.e. That he can save without these Arms, and with the most contemptible Weapons, such as mine seem to thee. z i.e. The Events of War are wholly in his Power, to give Success to whom, and by what means he pleaseth. a David speaks thus confidently, because he was assured of it by a particular Inspiration from God.

48 And it came to pass, when the Philistine arose, and came, and drew nigh to meet David, that David hasted, and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine.

49 And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his fore-head, that the stone sunk into his fore-head b, and he fell upon his face to the earth.

b Either, 1. The Stone pierced through his Helmet; which such Stones being slung would not seldom do; as even Diodorus Siculus relates. Or 2. The Stone might get in through one of those holes which are left in Helmets, that he that wears it may see his way, and how to direct his blows. Or rather, 3. The proud Giant had life up that part of his Helmet which covered his Fore-head; and that in contempt of David and his Weapons, and by the singular direction of God's Providence.

50 So David prevailed over the Philistine, with a sling, and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him; but there was no sword in the hand of David.

51 Therefore David ran and stood upon the Philistine, and took his sword c, and drew it out of the sheath thereof, and slew him d, and cut off his head therewith. And when the Philistines saw their champion was dead, they fled.

c Hence it appears, that David was not a little Man, as many fancy; but a Man of considerable bulk and strength, because he was able to manage a Giant's Sword; which also he did, both here and below, Chap. 21. 9. d Qu. How could this be, when he threw him before with the Stone, & so? Ans. There he gives a general account of the Event of the Battel; and of the Giant's Death: but here he gives a particular Relation of the manner and instrument of his Death. The Stone threw him down to the Earth, and bereaved him of the use of his Sense and Motion; but there remained some Life in him, (as frequently doth in such cases) which the Sword took away, and so compleated the Work.

52 And the men of Israel and of Judah arose, and shouted, and pursued the Philistines, until thou come to the valley, and to the gates of Ekron: and the wounded of the Philistines fell down by the way to Shaarim, even unto Gath, and unto Ekron.

53 And the children of Israel returned from chasing after the Philistines, and they spoiled their tents e.

e Heb. their camps i.e. Their Camp: but he speaks of it in the Plural Number, because of the great extent, and various quarters of their Camp.

54 And David took the head of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem f; but he put his armour in his tent g.

f Either, to terrifie the Jebusites, who yet held the Fort of Zion, 2 Sam. 5. 7. or, for some other reason not Recorded, nor now known. g i.e. In the Tent which was erected for him in the Camp, upon this occasion. There it was kept for the present; though afterwards it seems to have been translated to the Tabernacle; where we find his Sword, Chap. 21. and it is not unlikely the rest of his Armour was there also.

55 And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said unto Abner the captain of the host, Abner, whose son is this youth h? and Abner said, As thy soul liveth, O king, I cannot tell i?

h Qu. How could David be unknown to Saul, with whom he had lived, Chap. 16. 21? Ans. That might well be, for divers reasons, lived, Chap. 16. 21? Ans. That might well be, for divers reasons, because David was not constantly with him; nor, as it seems, used by him, but upon extraordinary Occasions, and desperate fits of Melancholy; from which, possibly he had been free for a good while. by God's special Providence and Care for his People Israel, that so he might be capable of Governing and Protecting them against the Philistines, who watched all opportunities against them, and at last broke forth into an open War. Thus David had been for some considerable time dismissed from Saul's Court, and was returned home. And therefore it is not strange, if Saul had for the present forgotten David. For Kings, because of the Incumbrance of Publick Business, and the multitude of Persons who come to them on several occasions, may easily forget some Persons; yea, such as have frequently been with them, especially their Servants whom they do not use to observe with so much attention and care as they do others. Add to this, that the distemper of Saul's mind might make him forgetful; and that David might now be much changed, both in his countenance and in his habit, from what he had before; and it is apparent, that the change of habits makes so great a difference, that it oft keeps us from the knowledge of those Persons whom in other habits we very well know. Some give this Answer, That this was the first time that Saul had seen David; and that David's exploit here Recorded, was performed before that which is Recorded Chap. 17. 15, &c. though it be placed after it: But that is confuted by comparing Chap. 18 1, 2, 3. i Which is not strange, because Abner's conversation and employment was generally in the Camp, when David was at the Court; and when Abner was there, he took little notice of a Person so much inferior to him as David was.

56 And the king said, Inquire thou whose son the stripling is.

57 And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul, with the head of the Philistine in his hand.

58 And Saul said to him, Whose son art thou, thou young man? and David answered, I am the son of thy servant Jesse, the Bethlehemite.

CHAP. XVIII.

Jonathan loved David: They Covenant together, 1,—4. Saul envieth David's praise: In his fury seeketh to kill him, 5,——11. is afraid of him: And removeth him: He is loved by the people, 12,——16. Saul offereth David his Daughters, first Merab who is given to Adriel; then Michal who loveth David, 17,——20. Saul demandeth 100 foreskins of the Philistines for a Dowry: David promiseth: Delivereth double the number: Obtaineth Michal, 21,——27. Saul's fear and hatred: And David's Glory increaseth, 28,—30.

AND it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was † knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul a.

a Partly, for his excellent Vertues and Endowments, which shone forth both in his Speeches and Actions; partly, for the great and good Service which he had done to God and to his People; and partly, for the similitude of their Age and Qualities.

2 And Saul took him that day, and would let him go no more home to his fathers house b.

b By which it appears, that before-time David had not his constant residence at Court, but did return to his Father's House, and thence again to the Court, as occasion required.

3 Then Jonathan and David made a covenant c, because he loved him as his own soul.

c i.e. An agreement of sincere and perpetual Friendship between them.

4 And Jonathan stript himself of the robe that was upon him, and gave it to David, and his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle d.

d Partly, as a pledge of his great respect and affection to him: and partly, to vindicate David from that contempt which might cleave to him for his former Pastoral habit and condition, and to put him into an habit suitable to his present Greatness and Glory.

5 ¶ And David went out e whithersoever Saul sent him, and I behaved himself wisely: and Saul set him over the men of war f, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and also in the sight of Saul's servants.

e Upon Military expeditions, of which that word is often used. f Gave him some considerable Command in his Army, though not the Supreme.

6 And it came to pass, as they came, when David was returned from the slaughter of the ‖ Philistine g, that the women came out of all the cities of Israel h, singing, and dancing i, to meet king Saul, with tabrets, with joy, and with † instruments of musick.

‖ Chap. 21. 11. & 29. 5.

† Heb. three-corded instruments.

g Either, First, From some eminent Victory obtained by him against the Philistines, though not particularly related, wherein also Saul might be present and concerned. Or rather, Secondly, From the slaughter of Goliah, and the other Philistines with him. Against this it is Objected, That this Song was Sung either after David was advanced and employed, as is related v. 5. and therefore not immediately after that great Victory; or, before he was so advanced; and then it would have raised Saul's Jealousie and Envy, and consequently hindered David's Advancement. But it may be replied, That this Song, though placed afterwards, was sung before David's Advancement, related v. 5. And that this did not hinder David's preferment, must be ascribed, partly, to Saul's Policy, who, though he had an Eye upon David, and designed to crush him upon a fit occasion; yet saw it necessary for his own Reputation, and the encouragement of other Mens Valour, and for the satisfaction of Jonathan's patronate Desire, and the just and general Expectation of the whole Army and People, to give him some considerable Preferment for the present; and principally, to God's Providence over-ruling Saul, against his own Inclination, and his mistaken Interest. h i.e. Out of all the neighbouring Cities, by or through which the Victorious Army marched. i According to the Custom of those times and places: Of which see Exod. 15. 20. Judg. 11. 34.

7 and the women answered one another k as they played, and said, * Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands l.

* Chap. 21. 11. & 29. 5.

k Singing by parts alternately. l So they said, because David killed Goliah, which was the principal cause of all the following slaughter of the Philistines.

8 ¶ And Saul was very wroth, and the saying † displeased him, and he said, They have ascribed unto David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed but thousands: and what can he have more, but the kingdom m?

† Heb. was evil in his eyes.

m What greater honour can they give him, but that of the Kingdom? Or thus: And moreover, this will not rest here, they will certainly give him the Kingdom: they will translate the Crown from me to him. Or thus: And moreover, the Kingdom certainly belongs to him; i.e. I now perceive that this is the Favourite of God, and of the People; this is that Man after God's own Heart, to whom Samuel told me that God would transfer my Kingdom.

9 And Saul eyed David n from that day and forward.

n i.e. Narrowly observed all his Counsels and Actions, that he might understand whether he had any Design upon the Kingdom or no; and that he might find some colourable Pretence of putting him to death.

10 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that the * evil spirit from God came upon Saul o, and he prophecied p in the midst of the house: and David played with his hand as at other times: and there was a javelin in Sauls hand q.

* Chap. 16. 14.

o Saul's Envy, and Jealousie, and Discontent revived his Melancholick Distemper, which the Devil, according to his wont, struck in with. p Or, he feigned himself to be a Prophet, for so Hebrew Verbs in Hithpahel often signifie; i.e. he useth uncouth Gestures, and Signs, and Speeches, as the Prophets, or Sons of the Prophets used to do: for which they were by the ignorant and ungodly sort reputed mad Men, 2 King. 9. 11. And it may seem probable, that Saul did now speak of Divine Things politickly, that thereby he might lull David asleep, and kill him, before he suspected any Danger. q Which he kept there for the following purpose.

11 And Saul cast the javelin; for he said, I will smite David even to the wall with it: and David avoided out of his presence twice r.

r Once at this time, and another time upon a like occasion, chap. 19. 10.

12 ¶ And Saul was afraid of David s, because the LORD was with him, and was departed from Saul.

s Lest as he had gotten the favour of God and of all the People, he should also take away his kingdom.

13 Therefore Saul removed him from him t, and made him his captain over a thousand, and he went out, and came in u before the people.

t From his Presence and Court; which he did, partly, because he feared left David should watch and find an opportunity to kill him, as he had designed to kill David; partly, because he was a great Eye-sore, and his presence now made him more sad than ever his Malice had made him cheerful: and principally, that hereby he might expose him to the greatest hazards, and in time fore betray him into the hands of the Philistines. u He led his Soldiers forth to Battel, and brought them back again with safety. Compare 2 Sam. 5. 2. Or else the Phrase of coming in and going out, may be understood (as elsewhere) for conversing; or (as we use to say) going to and fro about business; as chap. 29. 6.

14 And David ‖ behaved himself wisely in all his ways, and the LORD was with him x.

‖ Chap. 16. 18.

x So that he had great Prudence in his Conduct, and prosperous success following his Designs: which are two principal Qualifications of a General, and of a Prince. Thus God turned all Saul's Devices upon himself, and to David's Advantage.

15 Wherefore when Saul saw that he behaved himself very wisely, he was afraid of him.

16 But all Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.

17 ¶ And Saul said to David, Behold, my elder daughter Merab, her will I give thee to wife y: only be thou † valiant for me, and fight the LORD's battels: for Saul said, Let not mine hand be upon him, but let the hand of the Philistines be upon him z.

y This was no more than Saul was obliged to do by his former promise, chap. 17. 25. which here he renews and pretends to perform, though he intended nothing less, as the Sequel shews. Whereby he makes himself guilty of Ingratitude, Injustice, and breach of Truth, and wichal of gross Hypocrisie. z He thought to gear an offer would oblige him, who was of himself Valiant enough, to give proofs of more than common Valour, and to venture upon the most dangerous Enterprizes.

18 And David said unto Saul, Who am I? and what is my life a, or my fathers family in Israel, that I should be son in law to the king?

a i.e. My manner of living! How obscure is that Condition in which I was born and have been bred! Or rather thus: How little is my life worth, that by the expoling of that to some hazard (which Saul required of him) I should purchase a King's Daughter! In these Expressions David sheweth not only his Humility, but also his Wisdom, in discovering to deep a sense of his own meanness, that Saul might see how far he was from aspiring at the Kingdom, and might have no occasion to suspect that he was already anointed thereto.

19 But it came to pass at the time when Merab Sauls daughter should have been given to David b, that she was given unto Adriel the Meholathite c to wife.

b When the Marriage was even ready to be solemnized. c The Son of Barzillai, as he is called 2 Sam. 21. 8. This was an act of great Injustice and Perfidiousness; and accordingly this Marriage was accursed by God, and the Children begotten in it, were by God's appointment cut off, 2 Sam. 21.

20 And Michal Sauls daughter loved David: and they told Saul, and the thing † pleased him d.

† Heb. was right in his eyes.

d Not for any Respect he had to David; but for his own malicious and wicked Ends, that he might make use of her Love to David, to ensnare and ruine him, which he thought might be done many ways, whereof one is here expressed.

21 And Saul said, I will give him her, that she may be a snare to him, and that the hand of the Philistines may be against him. Wherefore Saul said to David, Thou shalt * this day e be my son in law, in the one of the twain f.

* Verse 26.

e i.e. Suddenly, within a time which probably Saul prefixed. f Whereas I have only two Daughters, and thou wast disappointed of thy expectation in the one by an unexpected accident, thou shalt certainly have the other, which is the same thing. Heb. in the twain. Thus the Cities of Gilead is put for one of them, Judg. 12. 7. And the sides of the Ship for one of the sides, Jonah 1. 5. Or, he saith, in the twain, or, in both, because he was in effect betrothed to the one, and should be married to the other, and so was his Son in law upon a double account.

22 ¶ And Saul commanded his servants, saying, Commune with David g secretly, and say, Behold, the king hath delight in thee, and all his servants love thee: now therefore be the kings son in law.

g Whom having so lately and grossly deceived, he found backward to embrace his motion, and therefore lets others on work to persuade him.

23 And Sauls servants spake those words in the ears of David: and David said, Seemeth it to you a light thing to be a kings son in law, seeing that I am a poor man, and lightly esteemed h?

h And therefore neither have Estate nor Credit to give (according to the manner, Gen. 34. 12. Exod. 22. 16, 17.) a Dowry suitable to her Quality.

24 And the servants of Saul told him, saying, † On this manner spake David.

† Heb. according to these words.

25 And Saul said, Thus shall ye say to David, The king desireth not any dowry, but an hundred fore-skins of the Philistines, to be avenged of the kings enemies. But Saul thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines.

i These he desires rather than their Heads; partly, for the greater convenience of bringing them, and presenting them before him; partly, to cover his Malice against David with a pretence of Zeal for God, and for his People, and for the Covenant of Circumcision; and partly, that the Philistines might be the more enraged against David for this reproachful and barbarous usage of them, and might therefore watch all opportunities to destroy him.

26 And when his servants told David these words, it pleased David well to be the kings son in law k: and the days l were not † expired.

k As for other Reasons, so especially because this opened the Door to the Kingdom which God had promised him. l i.e. The time allowed by Saul to David for the execution of this Exploit.

27 Wherefore David arose, he, and his men, and slew of the Philistines two hundred men, and David brought their fore-skins, and they gave them in full tale to the king m, that he might be the kings son in law: and Saul gave him Michal his daughter to wife.

m He doubled the number required; partly, to oblige Saul the more to the performance of his Promise; and partly, to shew his great Respect and Affection to Saul's Daughter.

28 ¶ And

28 ¶ And Saul saw and knew that the LORD was with David, and that Michal Sauls daughter loved him.

29 And Saul was yet the more afraid of David n, and Saul became Davids enemy continually.

n Because he both lost his Design against David's life, and had now pived a way for him to the Throne.

30 Then the princes of the Philistines went forth o: and it came to pass after they went forth, that David behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of Saul, so that his name was much † set by.

o To wit, to war against the Israelites, being provoked both by their former losses, and especially by that act of David's, related above, v. 27.

CHAP. XIX.

Saul purposeth to kill David: Jonathan disclosseth it: speaketh in his behalf to Saul: who sweareth not to kill him: he returneth to court, 1,—7. By reason of his success in a new war, Saul again seeketh to kill him: Michal acquainteth him with it: he flyeth: she deceiveth her father, 8,—17. David cometh to Samuel at Ramah: Saul sendeth messengers twice to apprehend him: then both prophesie, 18,—21. He goeth himself thither and prophesieth likewise, 22,—24.

AND Saul spake to Jonathan his son a, and to all his servants b, that they should kill David.

a Whom, though lately engaged in a League of Friendship with David, he thought to oblige to it by fense of his own Interest, as being the next Heir of the Crown, and likely to suffer most by David's advancement. b What before he secretly designed, now he openly and impudently avowed.

2 But Jonathan Sauls son, delighted much in David: and Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to kill thee: now therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thy self until the morning c, and abide in a secret place, and hide thy self.

c Left he kill thee before I discourse with him, and endeavour to reconcile him to thee; which I think not fit to attempt as yet, whilst he is in the fit of Rage against thee; but I intend to do in the morning, when I may hope to find him in a better Temper.

3 And I will go out and stand by my father in the field, where thou art d, and I will commune with my father of thee, and what I see, that I will tell thee.

d In the Field where my Father useth to walk, where also I would have thee to hide thy self, that I may know where to find thee at hand, to acquaint thee with the success of my Endeavours, that thou maist accordingly either return to Court, or speedily depart.

4 ¶ And Jonathan spake good of David unto Saul his father e, and said unto him, Let not the king sin against his servant, against David: because he hath not sinned against thee, and because his works have been to thee-ward very good.

e Which he could not do without hazard to himself. Herein therefore he performed the Duty of a true Friend, and of a valiant Man.

5 For he did put his * life in his hand f, and slew the Philistine, and the LORD wrought a great salvation for all Israel: thou sawest it, and didst rejoyce: wherefore then wilt thou sin against innocent blood, to slay David without a cause?

* Judg. c. 12. & 12. 3. Ch. 28. 21. Psal. 119. 109.

f i. e. He exposed his life to eminent hazard. See the Notes on Judg. 12. 3.

6 And Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan, and Saul sware, As the LORD liveth, he shall not be slain g.

g This great change is not to be ascribed to any true Repentance for his sin against David, or any better affection which he now had to him; but merely to his own worldly Interest; because he was convinced by Jonathan's discourse, that he could not kill him, without great inconvenience and shame to himself.

7 And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan shewed him all those things: and Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence as † in times past.

† Heb. yesterday, third day.

8 ¶ And there was war again: and David went out, and fought with the Philistines, and slew them with a great slaughter, and they fled from † him.

† Heb. his face.

9 And * the evil spirit † from the LORD was upon Saul h, as he sat in his house with his javelin in his hand: and David played with his hand.

* Chap. 16. 14. & 18. 10. † Heb. of the Lord.

h David's successes against the Philistines, which should have cheered his heart, made him sad, and the Devil watched the opportunity to improve his Melancholy, as before he had done.

10 And Saul sought to smite David even to the wall with the javelin: but he slipt away out of Sauls presence; and he smote the javelin into the wall: and David fled, and escaped that night.

* Psal. 59. title.

11 *Saul also sent messengers unto Davids house to watch him, and to slay him in the morning i: and Michal Davids wife told him, saying, If thou save not thy life to night, to morrow thou shalt be slain k.

i Why not in the Night? Ans. Partly, because it would have been barbarous, and most dishonourable to Saul, to break into David's House by Night, and kill him in his own House and Bed; and it seemed more expedient to kill him as he came out of his House in the Morning: partly, because the Night might give David some opportunity of escaping, which the Day-light would prevent: and principally, by God's singular Providence, infatuating Saul's Mind to take the worst course, that David might be delivered from him. k Which she might learn, either by information from Jonathan, or some other Courtier that was privy to the Design: or from her own observation of some suspicious or dangerous Persons hovering about the House.

12 ¶ So Michal let David down thorow a window l: and he went and fled, and escaped.

l Because they lay in wait for him at the Doors of the House, whereforever he should come forth there.

13 And Michal took † an image m, and laid it in the bed, and put a pillow of goats hair for his bolster n, and covered it with a cloth o.

m Heb. Teraphim, which was an Image made in human shape: which she might keep secretly, either out of a superstitious regard to it, or out of meer curiosity. This stratagem she used, because knowing her Fathers unquiet, and jealous, and furious Temper, she suspected he might come or send, to see whether David was there or no. n Or, put great Goats hair upon his Bolster; i. e. upon the Head and Face of the Image, which lay upon his Bolster, that it might have some kind of resemblance of David's Head and Hair, at least in a sick man's Bed, where there useth to be but a glimmering light. Goats is here put for Goats hair, as it manifestly is, Exod. 25. 4. and 26. 7. and 35. 26. It is acknowledged by learned Writers, that in those Eastern Countries, Goats had much longer hair than ours have, and were thorn like Sheep, and that their hair was not unlike to a Mans or Womans hair; as may also be gathered from Cant. 4. 1. thy hair is as a flock of Goats; i. e. as the Hair of a flock Goats. And as there was Goats hair of several colours, (as the Wool of Sheep in divers parts is of very differing colours, as white, or black, or yellow, &c.) so it is most probable he took that colour which was likest the colour of David's hair. And she took this rather than the hair of another Man, because she procuring and ordering of that would have taken up some time; whereas the had Goats hair of all sorts at hand, as being used in Spinning or Weaving, &c. Or, the sense may be this, according to our Translation, That she put a Pillow of the softest part of Goats hair under the head of the Image, as they used to put under the heads of sick Men; whereby also the head of the Image sinking into the Pillow, might be less discerned, especially when it was either wholly or in part covered with a Cloth. And all this Art was used, that David being supposed, and, by some Persons who were sent to enquire, perceived, as they thought, to be in the Bed, Saul might be hindred from pursuing and overtaking him before he had got into some secure place. o Upon pretence of his being sick, and needing some such covering, but really in design to prevent the discovery of her Deceit.

14 And when Saul sent messengers p to take David, she said, He is sick.

p To wit, other Messengers in the Morning, supposing the former to be either slow or perfidious.

15 And Saul sent the messengers again to see David q, saying, Bring him up to me in the bed, that I may slay him.

q Or only, to see David, which they did not before, but went away satisfied (as it was fit they should) with her Report and Testimony of his Sickness.

16 And when the messengers were come in, behold, there was an image in the bed, with a pillow of goats hair for his bolster.

17 And Saul said unto Michal, Why hast thou deceived me so, and sent away mine enemy, that he is escaped? And Michal answered Saul, He said unto me, Let me go: Why should I kill thee? r r If thou dost not permit me to escape, without discovery, I shall be forced for my own defence to kill thee. Though it is most likely, this was a Lye, and a Fiction of her own.

18 ¶ So David fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel to Ramah s, and told him all that Saul had done to him: and he and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.

s Partly, for Comfort and Direction in his great Distress; and partly, for Safety, supposing that Saul would be ashamed to execute his bloody Designs in the presence of so venerable a Person as Samuel, who had laid so great Obligations upon Saul, and had such great and just Reputation with the People.

19 And it was told Saul, saying, Behold, David is at Naioth in Ramah t.

t Or, near Ramah; the Hebrew preposition beth. in, being oft put for near, as it is apparently used, Numb 33. 37, 38 Jos. 5. 13. Jer. 20. 2. and 32. 7. Naioth was either an House or College in the Town of Ramah, or a Village in the Territory of Ramah, or near to the Town of Ramah; in which there was a College of the Prophets, amongst whom Samuel thought David might be secure.

20 And Saul sent messengers to take David u: and when they saw the company of the prophets prophesying x, and Samuel standing as appointed over them y, the spirit of God was upon the messengers of Saul, and they also prophesied z.

† Heb. it. 1 Sam. 19. 24. Chap. 10. 11.

u Thus Saul's Wickedness and Fury increased; and he that at first used only secret Practices against David, now breaks forth into open and impudent Hostilities; plainly declaring, that he neither feared God, nor reverenced Man. He would have punished Samuel, as afterwards he did Ahimelech, for giving David Entertainment, but that he feared the People, who had so great and unanimous a Veneration for him. x i. e. Speaking of God, or of the things of God by Divine Inspiration; either praising God, or instructing Men. Compare Numb. 11. 25. 1 Sam. 10. 5. y To instruct, moderate and direct them in those Holy Exercises. For though they prophesied by Divine Inspiration, which Samuel could not govern; yet they were both to prepare and dispose themselves for it beforehand, and to make good improvement of it afterwards, in both which they needed Samuel's Counsel and Assistance. And whereas some might fallly pretend to those Raptures; or the Devil might transform himself into an Angel of Light, and convey some evil or false Suggestions into some of their Minds, Samuel's Presence and Judgment was necessary to prevent and to detect such Impostures. Besides, Samuel would by his present Conjunction with them in those Holy Exercises, encourage them, and stir up others to the coveting of those Gifts, and the performance of such Religious Duties. z Being inspired by God to do so, as wicked Balaam also was; that being wrapt up into such an Extasie, their Minds might be wholly taken up with those matters, and quite taken off from their Design of seizing David.

21 And when it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise: and Saul sent messengers again the third time, and they prophesied also.

22 Then went he also to Ramah, and came to a great well that is in Sechu: and he asked, and said, Where are Samuel and David a? And one said, Behold, they be at Naioth in Ramah.

a For, his Messengers not returning, he knew not exactly where they were.

23 And he went thither to Naioth in Ramah: and the spirit of God was upon him also b, and he went on, and prophesied until he came to Naioth in Ramah:

b It came upon him in the way; whereas it came not upon his Messengers till they came to the place. Whereby God would convince Saul of the Vanity of all his Designs against David, and that in them he fought against God himself.

24 And he ſtript off his clothes c also d, and prophesied before Samuel e in like manner f, and † lay down g naked h all that day, and all that night: wherefore they say, * Is Saul also among the Prophets k?

† Heb. fell.

* Chap. 10. 11.

c To wit, his Military or Royal Garments: which he did, either that he might fuit himself and his habit to the rest of the Company; or, because his mind being altogether taken up with Divine things, he did not understand nor heed what he did. d This implies, that the Messengers which he sent, who probably were Military Persons, had done so before him. e This doth not contradict 1 Sam 19. 25. where it is said, that Samuel came to meet to see Saul: for here Saul goes to Samuel, and that not with design to see him, but to surprize David. f As the rest of the Prophets there did. g Heb. fell, to wit, down upon the Earth; for his Mind being in an Extasie, he had not the use of his Senses or Motion, as he, Numb. 24. 4. God so ordering it, that David might have an opportunity to escape. h i. e. Script of his upper Garments, as was said before, and as the word Naked is oft used, as Isa. 20. 2. Mich. 1. 8. See also 2 Sam. 6. 20. Job. 22. 6. And it is here repeated to signifie how long he lay in that posture. i So God kept him as it were in Chains, till David was got out of his reach. k The same Proverb which was taken up upon a like occasion, 1 Sam. 10. 12. is here remembred and revived upon this new occasion, as an Evidence of God's wonderful Care over David; he made in some sort a Prophet, that he might make David a King.

CHAP. XX.

David complaineth to Jonathan of Saul: he comforteth him: can hardly believe what David saith of his father: promiseth to give him notice how his absence was taken: they renew a covenant of friendship, and swear to each other, 1,—17. Their sign, 18,—23. Saul asketh for David at the feast of the new moon, 24,—27. Jonathan excuseth David: Saul incensed bereat revileth Jonathan, and seeketh to kill him, 28,—34. Jonathan advertiseth David, 35,—40. They part with tears, 41, 42.

AND David fled a from Naioth in Ramah b, and came and said before Jonathan, What have I done? what is mine iniquity? and what is my sin before thy father c, that he seeketh my † life d?

† Heb. soul.

a Whilst Saul lay in an Extasie. b To Gibeah where Jonathan was, taking the opportunity of Saul's absence. c What is it which this inconstant thy Father against me? What Crime doth he charge me with? d To wit, to destroy it, as this Phrase is oft used, as Exod. 22. 23. Psal. 35. 12. and 54. 3. and 63. 9.

2 And he said unto him, God forbid; thou shalt not die e: behold, my father will do nothing either great or small, but that he will † shew it me: and why should my father hide this thing from me? it is not so.

† Heb. uncover mine ear.

e I will secure thee by my Interest with my Father; nor doth he design to destroy thee; for what he doth in his frantick fits is not to be imputed to him; and when he comes to himself, I doubt not to reconcile thee to him. For Jonathan gave credit to his Father's Oath, chap. 19. 6. and the worthiest Minds are least suspicious, and most charitable in their Opinions of others.

3 And David sware f moreover, and said, Thy father certainly knoweth that I have found grace in thine eyes; and he said, Let not Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved: but truly as the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, there is but a step between me and death.

f The matter being of great moment, and Jonathan doubting the truth of it, he confirms his word with an Oath, which follows in the end of the Verse. Only he interposeth a reason why Saul concealed it from Jonathan.

4 Then said Jonathan unto David, † Whatsoever thy soul desireth g, I will even do it for thee.

† Heb. as to all the desire of thy soul, so I will do for thee.

g To wit, for the discovery of the truth, and for the preservation of thy life.

5 And David said unto Jonathan, Behold, to morrow is the new moon h, and I should not fail to sit with the king at meat i: but let me go, that I may hide my self in the fields, unto the third day at even.

h Which was a solemn and Festival time, as among the Romans and other Heathens, so also with the Hebrews, who solemnized it with offering Peace-offerings to God, and Feasting together upon the remainders of it, after the manner. See Numb. 10. 10. and 28. 11. Psal. 81. 3. i Then he useth to expect no company above other times. k i. e. Unto the next Day, but one after the new Moon; as appears by comparing v. 18, 27, 35. His meaning is not, that he should hide himself in any certain place all the three Days, but that he should secure himself either at Jerusalem with his Friends, or in any other Place till the third Day.

Or, to-night.

6 If thy father at all miss me l, then say, David earnestly asked leave of me m, that he might run to Bethlehem his city n, for there is a yearly † sacrifice o: for there for all the family p.

† Or, to-night.

l Queſt. How could David imagine that Saul would expect his Company, whom he had once and again endeavoured to kill? Ans. First, He might suppose that David would ascribe all that to his Madness and frantick Fits, which being over, he would promise himself safety in the King's presence. Secondly, David might not think that Saul would indeed expect him to Feast with him, considering his late and great danger from Saul; but that Saul would make use of this pretence, and require his presence, that he might lay hold upon him; and therefore he desired to try the Experiment. m Who being the King's Son and Duty, used to give Licence to Military Men to depart for a season upon just occasions. n i. e. The place of his Birth and Education, John 7. 42. o A Sacrifice which was offered up in some high place there Yearly, upon some special occasion not mentioned in Scripture, which was accompanied with a Feast: or, a yearly Feast, as the Hebrew word is sometimes used. p Wherein all the Members of our Family used to meet together, when they will earnestly expect me above others, and will charge me with Pride and Unnaturalness, if I neglect their Invitation.

7 If he say thus, It is well, thy servant shall have peace: but if he be very wroth then be sure q that evil is determined by him.

q Heb. know thou: For indeed David knew well enough that Saul designed to kill him; but he useth this course for Jonathan's Information and Satisfaction, and for his own greater Vindication, if he did wholly withdraw himself from Saul, and from his Wife; which he foresaw he should be forced to do.

8 Therefore thou shalt deal kindly with thy servant r: for * thou hast brought thy servant into a covenant of the LORD with thee: notwithstanding, if there be in me iniquity, slay me thy self r: for why shouldest thou bring me to thy father s?

* Chap. 18. 3. & 23. 18.

r In giving me timely notice, and a true account of Saul's Disposition and Intention towards me. s i. e. A solemn Covenant, not lightly undertaken, but seriously entred into, in the name and fear of God, and in his presence, calling him to be the Witness of our Sincerity therein, and the Avenger of Perfidiousness in him that breaks it. t I am concerned thou shouldst kill me. u Why shouldst thou betray me to thy Father, by concealing his evil Intentions from me?

9 And Jonathan said, Far be it from thee t: for if I knew certainly, that evil were determined by my father to come upon thee, then would not I tell it thee?

t I abhor the Thoughts of either killing thee my self, or giving thee up to my Father to slay thee.

10 Then said David to Jonathan, Who shall tell me? or what if thy father answer thee roughly?

u By what Means or Messenger shall I understand this? for peradventure thou wilt not be able to come to me thy self.

11 ¶ And Jonathan said unto David, Come, and let us go out into the field x. And they went out both of them into the field.

x Left we be over-heard.

12 And

12 And Jonathan said unto David, O LORD God of Israel a, when I have † sounded my father, about to morrow any time, or the third day, and behold, if there be good toward David, and I then send not unto thee, and † shew it thee ;

† Heb. searched.

a Do thou hear and judge between us. It is an abrupt Speech, which is usual in great Passions.

13 The LORD do so, and much more to Jonathan : but if it please my father to do thee evil, then I will shew it thee, and send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace ; and the LORD be with thee, as he hath been with my father b.

b The Lord give thee that Honour and Success in all thy Affairs which he hath given to my Father. Jonathan undoubtedly knew of Samuel's final and irrevocable Sentence of Saul's Rejection from the Kingdom, and of the Substitution of some other Person after God's own Heart in his stead ; and that David was this Person, he might strongly suspect (that which even Saul suspected) both from his eminent Piety, and Wisdom, and Valour, and universal Worth, and from the great Things which God had done, both by him, and for him, in preserving and advancing him by such unusual Methods ; and it is most likely that Jonathan did ask David about it, and that David did Faithfully inform him of the whole Truth, as may be gathered both from the words here following, and from chap. 23. 17. And that the knowledge hereof did not raise Jealousie, and Envy, and Rage in him, who was the next Heir of the Crown, as it did in his Father, must be ascribed to Jonathan's Piety towards God, to whose disposal he cheerfully submitted himself, and to his sincere Friendship to David, in whose Happiness he rejoyced as in his own.

14 And thou shalt not only while yet I live, shew me the kindness of the LORD c, that I die not d :

c Or, And wilt thou not, if I shall then be alive, (to wit, when the Lord shall be with thee, as he hath been with my Father, as he now is ; i. e. when God shall have advanced thee to the Kingdom, as he did him :) yea, wilt thou not (the same Particle twice repeated for asseveration) i.e. I am well assured that thou wilt) shew me the kindness of the Lord ; i.e. either such kindness as the Lord hath shewed to thee in preserving thy Life in the midst of so many, and such great Dangers : or, that kindness to which thou hast engaged thy self, in the Covenant sworn between thee and me in God's presence. d That thou do not kill me or mine, as Princes of another Line use to kill the nearest Relations of the former Line, from whom the Kingdom was translated to them ; which they do either by way of Revenge, or in Policy, and reason of State, to secure the Kingdom to themselves.

* 2 Sam. 9. 3.

15 But also thou shalt not cut off * thy kindness e from my house for ever : no not when the LORD hath cut off the enemies of David, every one from the face of the earth f.

e He saith not, the kindness of the Lord, as before, because the Covenant be-ween them seems to have been only Personal, and not comprehending their Posterity. And therefore as Jonathan speaks confidently of his own Preservation by virtue of that Covenant ; so he here lays this additional Obligation upon David, That he would extend his kindness to all his Progeny. f Which he will certainly do without exception of Saul my Father, and those of his Children who have joyned, or shall joyn with him in his Hostilities and Cruelties against David. And by this word, Enemies, he implies the reasonableness of his Request, because Jonathan was none of that number, and therefore not to be treated as such.

† Heb. cut.

16 So Jonathan † made a covenant with the house of David g, saying, Let the LORD even require it at the hand of Davids enemies h.

h The Covenant which before was Personal, he now extends to the whole House of David, expecting a reciprocal Enlargement of it on David's side, which doubtless he obtained. h If either I or any of my house shall break this Covenant, and shall prove Enemies to David or to his House, let the Lord, the Witness of this Covenant, severely punish the Violators of it, whoever they are. Others thus : Let the Lord require and punish the breach of this Covenant in David, if he break it. But because it was ominous and reproachful to suppose such a thing of David, by a Figure called Euphemismus, he names David's Enemies for David ; as they also expound 1 Sam 25. 22. But the former sense seems more probable, because this Verse contains only Jonathan's Stipulation or Covenant with David and his House, which being expressed in the former part of it, is in this latter part confirmed by the usual form of Imprecations ; and the Restipulation or Covenant of David to Jonathan and his House, is mentioned in the next Verse. Yet may that other sense stand well enough ; taking these words for Jonathan's Adjuration of David to be kind to him, confirmed with an Imprecation in case he do otherwise. As if he should say, I Adjure thee, as thou hopest to escape such a Mischief (which I had rather might befal three Enemies than thee) that thou deal not so ungratefully with me or my House. Which Adjuration of Jonathan, David seconds by an Oath in the next Verse, at the request of Jonathan.

17 And Jonathan caused David to swear again i, ‖ Or, by his because he loved him k : for he loved him as he loved his own soul. love towards him.

i Heb. And Jonathan added or proceeded to make David Swear ; i. e. Having himself Sworn to David, or Adjured David, in the foregoing Verse, he here requires David's Oath to him, by way of Restipulation or Confirmation. k Because he had a true Friendship for David, he desired that the Covenant might be inviolably observed through all their Generations.

18 Then Jonathan said to David, To morrow is the new moon : and thou shalt be missed, because thy seat l will be † empty.

† Heb. missed.

l i.e. The place where David used to sit at Meals with Saul. See v. 25.

19 And when thou hast stayed three days m, then thou shalt go down ‖ † quickly, and come to the place where thou didst hide thy self, † when the businesse was in hand n, and shalt remain by the stone ‖ Ezel o.

m Either at Bethlehem with thy Friends, v. 6. or elsewhere, as thou shalt see fit. n Heb. in the day of businesse : or, of the businesse, the businesse. And these words are to be joyned, either, 1. with the words next Going before ; and so they note the time when David hid himself there ; which was, when this same business which now they were treating of, was in agitation formerly ; to wit, to discover Saul's Mind and Purpose towards him ; chap. 19 2,3. Or, 2. With the more remote words ; and so they note the time when David should come the way, to the place appointed, and formerly used to hide himself in, upon a like occasion ; to wit, in the day when the businesse here spoken of was to be done ; i. e. when the discovery of Saul's Mind was to be made. o Or, by the stone of going, or travelling, i. e. By that Stone which directs Travellers in the way ; to wit, in some Cave, or convenient Place, which was near that Stone.

in the day of businesse, or, the businesse

20 And I will shoot three arrows on the side thereof as though I shot at a mark p.

p He chose this way to avoid Saul's suspicion, because Bows and Arrows were the principal Arms of those Times ; and Jonathan, as well as others, did oft go forth to Exercise himself with them, both for Recreation, and improvement of his Skill in that Art. Besides, he knew not that he should have any opportunity of private Converse with David, by reason of Passengers, though the Event proved better than he expected.

21 And behold, I will send a lad, saying, Go, find out the arrows q. If I expressly say unto the lad, Behold, the arrows are on this side of thee, take them ; then come thou, for there is peace to thee, and † no hurt, as the LORD liveth.

† Heb. not any thing.

q I will send him out before I shoot, to find out, and take up the Arrows which I shall shoot. And I shall shoot them either short of him, or beyond him, as I shall see occasion.

22 But if I say thus unto the young man, Behold the arrows are beyond thee : go thy way, for the LORD hath sent thee away r.

r Take this for an intimation of God's Providence, that thou shouldest keep away from the Court.

23 And as touching * the matter which thou and I have spoken of, behold, the LORD be † between thee and me for ever.

* Verse 14, 15. † Heb. amongst.

24 ¶ So David hid himself in the field s : and when the new moon was come, the king sat him down to eat meat.

s To wit, at the time appointed : for it seems probable, that he went first to Bethlehem, as he had Jonathan tell his Father, v. 6. and thence returned to the Field, when the occasion required : else we must charge him with a downright Lye, which ought not to be imagined (without any apparent cause) concerning so good a Man ; especially, in so distressed and dangerous a Condition. And why should he hide himself there so long before the time, when Jonathan was to come thither to inform him ? Nor were there any need of appointing a certain time to meet, if David were there all the while.

25 And the king sat upon his seat as at other times, even upon a seat by the wall : and Jonathan arose, and Abner sat by Sauls side, and Davids place u was empty.

t To wit, from his Seat where he was sat next to the King, whence he arose, and sicod up at Abner's coming, to do Honour to him, who was his Father's Cousin, and the General of the Army. u Which seems to have been next to Abner on the same side with him.

26 Nevertheless, Saul spake not any thing that day : for he thought, something hath befallen x, he is not clean, surely he is not clean.

x Some Accident which hath rendred him unclean, and so unfit to partake of this Feast, which consisted in part of the remainders of their Peace-offerings, according to the Law, Levit. 7. 20. Unfit also to come into any company, much more, into the King's company, lest he should pollute them also. See above, on v. 5. See also, Levit. 11. and 15.

27 And it came to pass on the morrow, which was the second day of the month y, that Davids place was empty : and Saul said unto Jonathan his son z, Wherefore cometh not the son of Jesse a to meat, neither yesterday, nor to day b ?

y Or, on the morrow of the new moon, being the second day : Either, 1. Of the three Days appointed, v. 5. 19. Or, 2. Of the Feast. Or, 3. Of the Month. z Who was David's Friend, and best knew his mind, and his ways. a So he calls him in Scorn and Contempt, to note the meanness of his Original ; and as not deigning to call him by his proper Name : See below, chap. 22. 9. and 25. 10. b For the Uncleanness which came by some chance, usually lasted but for one Day. See Levit. 11.

28 And

28 And Jonathan answered Saul, David earnestly asked leave of me to go to Bethlehem.

29 And he said, Let me go, I pray thee, for our family hath a sacrifice in the city, and my brother, he hath commanded me to be there : and now, if I have found favour in thine eyes, let me get away, I pray thee, and see my brethren : therefore he cometh not to the kings table.

c Either in his Father's Name, or in the Right of the First-born ; one Branch of which was Authority over his Brethren in all the Concerns of the Family ; whereof this was one.

30 Then Sauls anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he said unto him, ‖ † Thou son of the perverse rebellious woman d, do not I know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion e, and unto the confusion of thy mothers nakedness f ?

‖ Or, thou perverse rebellious son. † Heb. woman of perverseness.

d This base Temper of thine, thou hadst not from me, but from thy Mother ; of whose perverseness I have had so much experience. Or, thou son of perverse rebellion ; i. e. Thou perverse and rebellious Son : Or, thou most perverse rebel : For in the Hebrew Language, the word Son, thus used, is an aggravation of a Man's Crime ; and notes one who is extraordinarily addicted to it. Thus he calls him, because he hid and preferred that Man whom the King had commanded to be brought forth, that he might be slain. e For it will be a horrible shame and reproach unto thee, that David by his crafty Insinuations, and fair Pretences, should cheat thee of thy Kingdom. f Men will conclude, That thy Mother was a Whore, and thou a Bastard ; and that thou hast no Royal Blood in thy Veins, that canst so tamely give up thy Crown to so contemptible a Person.

31 For as long as the son of Jesse liveth upon the ground, thou shalt not be ſtablished, nor thy kingdom g : wherefore now send and fetch him unto me, for he † shall surely die.

† Heb. is a son of death.

g Thus he grosly mistakes the Cause of Jonathan's loss of the Kingdom, which was not David's Art, but Saul's Sin ; and vainly endeavours to prevent God's irrevocable Sentence.

32 And Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said unto him, Wherefore shall he be slain ? what hath he done ?

33 And Saul cast a javelin at him to smite him h, whereby Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David.

h i.e. To wound him, though not to smite him even to the wall ; as he designed to do to David, chap. 19. 10.

34 So Jonathan arose from the table in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the second day of the month : for he was grieved for David, because i his father had done him shame.

i Or, and because : for this is a second cause of his Grief. The Conjunction and is oft-times omitted, and to be supplied ; as Psalm 33. 2. and 144. 9. Jer. 63. 11. Habak. 3. 11.

35 ¶ And it came to pass in the morning k, that Jonathan went out into the field, at the time appointed with David, and a little lad with him.

k To wit, of the third Day appointed for this Work, v. 5.

36 And he said unto his lad, Run, find out now the arrows which I shoot. And as the lad ran, he shot an arrow † beyond him.

37 And when the lad was come to the place l of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond thee ?

l i.e. Near to the place. Or, and the Lad went, or was going on to the place : For the Words following shew, that he was not yet come thither. The Hebrew Verb, ba, which properly signifies to come, sometimes signifies to go ; as here, and Ruth 3. 7. and Jonah 1. 3.

38 And Jonathan cried after the lad, Make speed, haste, stay not m. And Jonathans lad gathered up the arrows, and came to his master.

m So he bids him, because finding the Coast clear, he made haste to take the opportunity to speak with his dearly beloved David.

39 But the lad knew not any thing : only Jonathan and David knew the matter.

40 And Jonathan gave his † artillery n unto † his lad, and said unto him, Go, carry them to the city.

† Heb. his Vessels. † Heb. his lad.

n His Bow, and Arrows, and Quiver.

41 ¶ And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose out of a place toward the south o, and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himself three times : and they kissed one another, and wept one with another, until David exceeded p.

o In respect of the Stone where David by appointment had himself hid. p As well he might, because he was driven away, not only from his dear Friend Jonathan, but also from his Wife, and all his Relations, and from the Commonwealth of Israel, and from the Service of God ; as he complains below, Chap. 26. 19.

42 And Jonathan said to David, Go in peace, ‖ forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the Name of the LORD, saying, The LORD be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed for ever q. And he arose and departed : and Jonathan went into the city.

‖ Or, the Lord be witness of that which we.

q Therefore double not but I will ever love thee, and faithfully serve thee ; and the like I allure my self from thee ; and this must be our comfort in our State of Separation.

CHAP. XXI.

David cometh to Nob to Ahimelech the priest ; pretendeth secret businesse from Saul : obtaineth bread : Ahimelech giveth him the shew-bread, 1,——6. Doeg seeth this, 7. David asketh arms : Ahimelech giveth him Goliah's sword, 8, 9. David cometh to Achish : is known : and afraid : feigneth himself mad, 10,——13. Achish is angry with his servants for bringing him, 14, 15.

THEN came David to Nob a to Ahimelech the priest b, and * Ahimelech was afraid at the meeting of David c, and said unto him, Why art thou alone, and no man with thee d ?

* Or, called Abimelech. Mat. 12. 26.

a A City of Priests, as it is called Chap. 22. 19. Either, 1. Because it was assigned to the Priests. For though it be not expressed by this Name among their Cities, Jos. 21. yet it might be one of those Cities their named by some other Name, which Name might be changed ; or another new Name added to the old for some reason now unknown, as was very usual among the Hebrews ? Compare 1 Chron. 6. Or, 2. Because it was now inhabited by the Priests for the service of the Tabernacle, which now was here ; as appears from v. 7, 8. For as the Kings of Israel were to Consule with God's Oracle in all their weighty Affairs ; to they endeavoured to have it in, or near their own Habitations. Hence it was first carried by Joshua to Shiloh in his Tribe of Ephraim ; and afterwards by David into his Tribe and City ; and now, as it seems, had been by David carried to Nob, a City in the Tribe of Benjamin, Neh. 11. 32. near to Anathoth, 1 King. 2. 26. Hither David resorted, partly for a Supply of his Necessities, which he supposed he might receive here, without danger of being betrayed into Saul's hands : and principally, that in this great Distress, and his Resolution of going out of the Kingdom, he might seek and receive Comfort and Counsel from the Lord. b To wit, the chief Priest, Brother to that Ahiah, chap. 14. 3. and he being now dead, his Succeſſor in the Priesthood, for they were both Sons of Ahitub, 1 Sam. 14. 3. and 22. 11. c Suspecting some extraordinary cause of his coming in such a manner, and fearing the worſt, as Men usually do in such cases. d For though David had some Servants and Companions, as is manifeſt from v. 4, 5. and from Matth. 12. 3, 4. whom Jonathan probably had sent to a place appointed to serve and guard him ; yet they were left at another place : as David himself affirmeth, v. 2. And David was now alone, as also he was when he fled to Achish, v. 10.

2 And David said unto Ahimelech the priest, The King hath commanded me a businesse, and hath said unto me, Let no man know any thing of the businesse whereabout I send thee, and what I have commanded thee : and I have appointed my servants † to such and such a place f.

† Heb. to the place of such an one.

f This seems to be a plain Lye extorted from him, by Fear and Necessity. But as it was officious for himself, so it was pernicious to all the Priests there. Whence David afterwards declares his true penitance for this sin of Lying, Psalm 119. 29. f To ascertain place which is not material nor convenient now to mention ; because the whole business requires concealment.

3 Now therefore what is under thine hand g ? give me five loaves of bread in mine hand, or what † there is † other † present.

g To wit, in thy Power, and ready for thee to give, and for me to take, and eat.

† Heb. is found.

4 And the priest answered David, and said, There is no common bread under mine hand h, but there is * hallowed bread i, if the young men have kept themselves at least from women k.

* Exod. 25. 30. Lev. 24. 5. Numb. 28. 9.

h To wit, here in the Tabernacle : though doubtless he had enough of that, and of other Provisions in his House ; but David was in great haste, and in fear of Dog whom he saw, and knew there, chap. 22. 22. and therefore would not stay till any thing could be fetched thence. i The Shew-bread, which was appropriated to the Priests ; of which see Exod. 25. 30. Lev. 24. 5. k Either from undeanness by Women, which might be divers ways contracted : or from Conjugal converse with their Wives ; which though it did not defile them, yet he thought might debar them from the participation of such very Sacred things ; which he gathered by the Analogy of that Precept, Exod. 19. 15. There was a double impediment to the giving of this Bread to them ; 1. Its Sacredness in its self ; which the Priest implies, and David answers v. 5. and the Priest was satisfied therein by David's extraordinary Occasions, and great Necessities. 2. The Purity and Abstinence from all Women, of which the opposition David lies in those that ate it ; concerning which he now enquires. And though he mention this only concerning David's near Kin, and out of Modesty and Reverence to David, forbears to name him ; yet he is also included in the number, as David's answer shews.

Lev. 22. 3.

5 And David answered the priest, and said unto him, Of a truth women have been kept from us about these three days l, since I came out m, and the vessels n of the young men are holy, and the bread is in a manner common ? how much more then is it holy this day † in the vessel o.

Or, the bread is in a manner common ? how much more then is it holy this day ? Heb. Exod. † Heb. upon.

l As well he might, because he was driven away, not only from his dear Friend Jonathan, but also from his Wife, and all his Relations, and from the Commonwealth of Israel, and from the Service of God ; as he complains below, Chap. 26. 19.

m To wit, of the Tabernacle, where I left them. n Their Vessels, Bodies, and Garments, which is most probable, because they were to be used in the Service of God. o To wit, of the Bread.

q As long as the Law required, Exod. 19. 15. And so long David and his men had, it seems, hid themselves for fear of Saul in some of those Caves, whereof there were many in those parts; whereby they were kept both from all Converse with any other Persons besides themselves, and consequently from Women: and withal, from Food convenient for them. m From the place where Jonathan and David met. n i.e. Either, 1. Their Garments, or other Utensils for their Journey. Or, 2. Their Bodies, for of them the Question was, v. 4. and having now said, that Women had been kept from them, he infers, that therefore their Bodies were Holy; their Members were undefiled. Thus the word vessel is used, 1 Thess. 4. 4. and in other Authors, both Greek and Latin. o Heb. and this (to wit, the Bread; which is easily supplied out of the former Verse, because that was the thing about which the present discourse was, and against the giving whereof the Priest started an Objection, v. 4. to which, David here giveth an Answer) is in a manner, or, after a sort common: i.e. Considering the time, and our necessity, this may be asked in a manner, like common Bread, and so is used by others. For though for a season whilest it is to stand before the Lord, it be so Holy, that the Priest himself might not eat it; yet afterwards it is eaten by the Priest, and by his whole Family, as their common Food; and so it may be by us, in our circumstances. p If it were but newly put into the Vessel, it must give place to the great Law of Necessity, and Charity; because God will have Mercy preferred before Sacrifice. Or thus, Especially, when, or, The rather because this day there is other (i.e. new Bread) sanctified in the vessel: i.e. put into the Vessel which was made to receive this Bread, Exod. 25. 29. and thereby Sanctified, or Consecrated to God: and therefore the former Shew-bread is now to be removed, and employed for the common use of the Priest and his Family.

* Mar. 2. 26. Luk. 6. 4.

6 So the priest * gave him hallowed bread, for there was no bread there p, but the shew-bread that was taken from before the LORD, to put hot bread in the day when it was taken away q.

p To wit, in the Tabernacle, where David and the Priest now were. q Which was done upon the Sabbath-day, Levit. 24. 8. For though they might not then kindle a Fire to heat the Bread in, yet they might, and did keep it hot in an Oven that had been heated before the Sabbath.

* Psal. 52. title.

7 (Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day detained r before the LORD, and his name was * Doeg an Edomite s the chiefest of the herdmen that belonged to Saul.

r Not by force from others, but by his own choice; he fixed his abode there for that day; either because it was the Sabbath-day on which he might not proceed in his Journey, or other Business: or for the discharge of some Vow: or to beg direction and help from God in some great Business. s i.e. At the Tabernacle. t Either, 1. By his Habitation, and Conversation among those People for some considerable time, as, for the same reason Uriah is called the Hittite; and Obed-Edom the Gittite: Or rather, 2. By his Birth, and Nation: but he was proselited to the Jewish Religion: or took it up for sinister Ends, being advanced, as here we read, to a place of Trust and Preferment, possibly upon this occasion.

8 ¶ And David said unto Ahimelech, And is there not here under thine hand spear or sword? for I have neither brought my sword, nor my weapons with me u, because the Kings business required haste w.

u Theie he left behind him, that he might with less suspicion remove from place to place, and hide himself from Saul and his Spies. w The Message came to me, when I was unarmed, and the business required so great expedition that I could not go home to fetch my Weapons.

* Chap. 17. 2.

9 And the Priest said, The sword of Goliah the Philistine, whom thou slewest in * the valley of Elah, behold, it is here wrapt in a cloth behind the ephod y: if thou wilt take that, take it, for there is no other save that, here. And David said, There is none like that z, give it me.

y i.e. Behind that Holy Place allotted for the keeping of the Sacred, or Priestly Garments; all which are here comprehended under the Ephod; which, as the chief of the kind, is put for all the rest. Here it was laid up as a Sacred Monument of God's Power and Goodness, and that famous Victory, related chap. 17. z Because it not only served him for his use, for he was a strong and tall Man, and one that could wield that Sword, as we saw, chap. 17. but was also a Pledge of God's Favour to him, and a great Encouragement to his Faith.

* Abimelech. Psal. 34. title.

10 ¶ And David arose, and fled that day for fear of Saul, and went to * Achish the king of Gath a:

a A strange Action: but it must be considered, 1. That Saul's Rage was so great and implacable, his Power also, and Diligence in hunting after him so great, that he despaired of escaping him any other way: and it is not strange if a desperate Disease, produceth a desperate Remedy. 2. David might reasonably think, that being perfecuted, and banished by Saul, and the very Israelites under his Command, he should be welcome to the Philistines; who would be glad, not only to be freed from all those Evils which he had from time to time done, and was likely further to do to them, but also to make him their Friend, and oblige him by their Kindness; and to make him the more odious and irreconcilable to Saul and the Israelites. Quest. But why did he go to these, and not rather to some other neighbour Nation? Ans. Because they were all at Peace with Saul; and therefore would certainly have delivered him up, upon Saul's Demands.

11 And the servants of Achish said unto him, Is not this David the king of the land b? did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying, * Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands c.

* Chap. 21. 11.

b Or, of this land; i.e. Of the Land of Canaan. They call him King, either more generally for the Governour, as that word is used, Deut. 33. 5. for the most eminent Captain and Commander, and, as it were the King of the Israelitish Armies: or, rather more specially, the king; to wit, the King elect, the Person designed to be King: for, by this time, the Fame of Saul's Rejection, and David's Destination to the Kingdom, was got abroad among the Israelites, and from them, probably to the Philistines Ears. c And therefore consider what to do; and now thine, and our great Enemy is in thy hand, be sure thou never let him go alive.

12 And David laid up these words in his heart, and was sore afraid c of Achish the king of Gath:

c Left either their Revenge or Policy should prompt them to kill him.

13 And * he changed his behaviour d before them, * Psal. 34. and feigned himself mad e in their hands f, and || scrabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard.

|| Or, was making.

d His Speech and Gesture; and, it may be, his Habit also. e Which they might the more easily believe; partly, because of the disappointment of his great hopes, and his extream danger and trouble from Saul, which might well make him mad: and partly, because he had put himself into their hands; which they supposed, none but a Fool, or a mad Man would have done. And David counterfeited this Madness, that he might procure, both their Pity, and their Contempt; that they being freed from jealousies and fears of future Mischief from David, and from his wise Conduct, of which they had fad Experience, might be secure of him, and so spare him. f i.e. Whilest he was in their Power, and before them.

14 Then said Achish unto his servants, Lo, ye see the man || is mad g: wherefore then have ye brought him to me h?

|| Or, plaieth the mad man.

g And so were Achish and his Men too, to be so soon cheated. But this must be ascribed to the Wise and Powerful Providence of God; who, in answer to David's Prayer now made, which is Recorded Psalm 34. and 56. did infatuate them, as he hath done many others in like cases. h What Service can I expect from him? Or, What cause have I to fear him?

Or, plaieth the mad man.

15 Have I need of mad men i, that ye have brought this fellow to play the mad man in my presence? shall this fellow come into mine house k?

i I need wise Men, not such Fools, or mad Men, as this is. k I will not have my Court disgraced with entertaining such Fellows.

CHAP. XXII.

David cometh to Adullam, where companies resort to him, 1, 2. He goeth to Mizpeh and commendeth his parents to the King of Moab, 3, 4. Admonished by Gad he returneth to Judah: Saul purseth him: complaineth of his servants unfaithfulness, 5,——8. Doeg accuseth Ahimelech: Saul sentenceth him, the high priest, and the rest of the priests, to die: Doeg slayeth 85 priests: the city Nob and all in it is laid waste: only Abiathar the priest remained alive flying to David, 9,——20. David acknowledgeth himself to be the cause thereof. 22, 23.

DAvid therefore departed thence, and * escaped to the cave of Adullam a: and when his brethren, and all his fathers house heard it, they went down thither to him b.

* Psal. 57. title.

a A Place of considerable strength, 2 Sam. 23. 13. 1 Chron. 11. 15. in the Land of Judah, Jos. 15. 21, 35. which being his own Tribe, and the Tribe to which God had first promised the Kingdom, Gen. 49. 10. he hoped for some Protection and Assistance there. b Partly to comfort and assist him; partly, to secure themselves at the present from Saul's Rage, which they knew to be Fierce and Cruel, and thought he might extend it to David's Friends; especially, because they had so lately entertained him, chap. 20. 6, 29. And partly, that they might share with David in his Honour and Advancement; which they now concluded certain, and near, though it was interrupted with some difficulties.

2 And every one that was in distress c, and every one that was in debt d, and every one that was || discontented e, gathered themselves unto him, and he became a captain over them f: and there were with him about four hundred men.

|| Heb. bitter of soul.

c Through Want, or Oppression, or otherwise. d How could David receive, and countenance such Persons to the wrong of their Creditors? Answ. 1. David might be ignorant of their Debts: and it is most likely they concealed that, and pretended other Causes of their coming to him, as the Protection of the Innocent, and the Defence of his just Rights, &c. 2. They might be, and probably were, poor Debtors, whom their Creditors were obliged to spare, and favour, Exod. 22. 25. And though their Persons were with David, yet their Lands and Goods were liable to their Creditors. e Or, bitter in soul; i.e. In an afflicted and calamitous Condition. f He did not justifie, nor maintain any Injustice or Wickedness, which some of them possibly might be guilty of; but on the contrary, he instructed, and obliged them to the practise of all Justice and Honesty; as appears from chap. 25. 15. And he only saved them for his just Defence.

3 ¶ And

3 ¶ And David went thence to Mizpeh of Moab g, and he said unto the king of Moab h, Let my father and my mother i, I pray thee, come forth, and be with you, till I know what God will do for me k.

g So called, to distinguish it from that, Mizpeh, 1 Sam. 7. 5. h Partly, because he was related to, and defenced from him as his people, Ruth 4. 10. And partly, because he was Saul's Friend; 1 Sam. 14. 47. and therefore more likely to be David's Friend. i Who being very aged, were not able to endure those Journies and Hardships which David foresaw that he was likly to be exposed to. k Till I see the Accomplishment of God's Promise made to me.

4 And he brought them before the king of Moab l and they dwelt with him all the while that David was in the hold m.

l Into his Presence that he might see them, and give them leave to dwell in his Dominion. m Either, 1. In Mizpeh of Moab, which was a very strong Hold. But it is apparent, he speaks of some Hold, where his Father and Mother were exposed to fear and danger from Saul; which they were not in the King of Moab's Royal City. Or, 2. In the Cave of Adullam; mentioned above, v. 1. Or, 3. In Holds; the Singular Number being put for the Plural; as is frequent; i.e. as long as David was forced to go from Place to Place, and from Hold to Hold, to secure himself: for it concern'd David to secure his Father, and he did doubtless secure him for all that time; and not only whilst he was in the Hold of Mizpeh, or of Adullam, which was but a little while.

5 ¶ And the prophet * Gad said unto David, Abide not in the hold n; depart, and get thee into the land of Judah o. Then David departed and came into the forest of Hareth p.

* 2 Sam. 24. 11. 1 Chron. 21. 9. 2 Chron. 29. 25.

n Do not shut up thy self in Holes, and Holds. Go and shew thy self in the Land of Judah, that thou maist publickly put in thy Claim to the Kingdom after Saul's Death; and that thy Friends may be invited and encouraged to appear on thy behalf. Hereby also God would exercise David's Faith, and Wisdom, and Courage; and so prepare him for the Kingdom, and uphold, and increase his Reputation among the People. p Where there were many Caves and lurking Places.

6 ¶ When Saul heard that David was discovered, and the men that were with him: (now Saul abode in Gibeah under a || tree in Ramah q, having his spear in his hand r, and all his servants were standing about him.)

|| Or, grove, high place.

q i.e. In the Territory of Gibeah, in, or near (for to the Hebrew Particle is oft used; as hath been shewed) Ramah. Or, in the town of Gibeah — in an high place; for to the word Ramah unquestionably signifies; and so it is here rendred by some, both Ancient and Modern Interpreters. r Either as an Ensign of Majesty, for in old times Kings carried a Spear instead of a Scepter; as Justin and others note; or, as an Instrument of Self-defence or Cruelty, as occasion required.

7 Then Saul said unto his servants that stood about him, Hear now, ye † Benjamites s, will the son of Jesse give every one of you fields, and vineyards, and make you all captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds t:

† Heb. Jemini. Chap. 9. 21.

s You that are of my own Tribe and Kindred, from whom David designs to transplant the Kingdom to another Tribe. t Will he distribute Profits and Preferments amongst you Benjamites, as I have done, and intend still to do? will he not rather prefer those of his own Tribe before you?

8 That all of you have conspired against me, and there is none that † sheweth me that my son hath made a league with the son of Jesse u, and there is none of you that is sorry for me, or sheweth unto me, that my son hath stirred up my servant against me to lie in wait x, as at this day?

† Heb. uncovereth mine ear.

u This he suspected, partly, from Jonathan's passionate Love for David, which he had formerly, and constantly declared; and from his late discontent and departure from his Father, mentioned, chap. 20. 33. and partly, from David's Confidence, in Invading the Land with Four hundred Men, which he thought he would never presume to do, without some Encouragement or promise of Assistance from Jonathan. x i.e. To design against my Crown, and Life; (which will appear to be a most groundless Suspicion, and false Accusation.)

† Psal. 52. title.

9 ¶ Then answered * Doeg the Edomite (which was set over the servants of Saul) and said, I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob y, to Ahimelech the son of † Ahitub.

10 And he enquired of the LORD for him z, and † gave him victuals, and gave him the sword of Goliah the Philistine.

† Psal. 52. 7.

z This is not Recorded, Chap. 21. and therefore some think, that Doeg to curry favour with Saul, feigned this; for it is certain, David chargeth him with the Sin of Lying, Psalm 52. 4. though it is not improbable, that he told other Lyes also, not here expressed: and withal, he was guilty of concealing part of the Truth, which in this Case he was obliged to declare for Ahimelech's just Defence; to wit, the cunning Pretence and Artifice whereby David circumvented Ahimelech. Others think this was true, because Ahimelech seems to confess it, v. 15. though that may be spoken by way of confession. If it were so as Doeg declares, this was no new thing. Then he might add, that it was not so; though this be not here mentioned: for 1. It is evident, That all his Answer or Apology, is not here expressed; for here is not a word of the Victuals or Sword which he gave him.

11 Then the king sent to call Ahimelech the priest the son of Ahitub, and all his fathers house a, the priests that were in Nob: and they came all of them to the king.

a Of the House of Eli, which God had threatned to cut off, chap. 2. 31.

12 And Saul said, Hear now, thou son of Ahitub b: and he answered, † Here I am, my lord.

† Heb. to me.

b He shews his Contempt and Anger, that he would not vouchsafe to name him: See before, on chap. 2. 27.

13 And Saul said unto him, Why have ye conspired against me, thou, and the Son of Jesse, in that thou hast given him bread, and a sword, and hast enquired of God for him, that he should rise against me to lie in wait, as at this day?

14 Then Ahimelech answered the king, and said, And who is so faithful among all thy servants, as David c, which is the king's son in law, and goeth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thine house.

c He doth not determine the Differences between Saul and David; nor affirm, what David now was: but only declared what David had formerly been, both really, and in publick Name and Opinion.

15 Did I then begin to enquire of God for him? be it far from me: let not the king impute any thing d unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father: for thy servant knew nothing of all this e, † less or more.

† Heb. little or great.

d Or, this thing; to wit, which thou now chargest me with, That I should assist David in any evil Design against thee. Or, of thy Suspicion concerning him. For as for Saul's Attempts upon David, well might Ahimelech impute them wholly to the Violence of Saul's Passion and Disease, seeing even Jonathan did so, as may be gathered from 1 Sam. 20. 2.

16 And the king said, Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, thou and all thy fathers house.

17 ¶ And the king said unto the † footmen that stood about him, Turn, and slay the priests of the LORD, because their hand is with David, and † that because they knew when he fled, and did not shew it me. But the servants of the king would not put forth their hand to fall upon the priests of the LORD f.

f Chusing rather to offend the King, by disobeying his wicked and bloody Command, than to offend God, by shedding the Blood of such Innocent and Sacred Persons.

18 And the king said to Doeg, Turn thou g, and fall upon the priests. And Doeg the Edomite h turned, and he fell upon the priests, and * slew on that day * Chap. fourscore and five persons i that did wear a linen ephod k.

22. 18. 2 Sam. 6. 14.

g Or, go about, to wit, from Man to Man, till thou hast killed all. h Which is noted to wipe off the stain of this Butchery from the Israelitish Nation, and to shew, why he was so ready to do it, because he was one of that Nation which had an implacable hatred against all Israelites, and against the Priests of the Lord. i With his own hand: which was not difficult, when no resistance was made. Or, Not at that time, as some fansie, but usually; such as used to minister to the Lord in a Linen Ephod, which Priests and Levites used to do. See Exod. 28. 40, &c. 1 Sam. 2. 18.

19 And Nob the city of the priests smote he l with the edge of the sword, both men and women, children and sucklings, and oxen, and asses, and sheep, with the edge of the sword.

l Either Saul, or Doeg, with the help of some others whom Saul appointed to that work. By this barbarous and bloody Fact Saul thought to affright all his Subjects from giving any Countenance or Assistance to David.

20 ¶ And one of the sons of Ahimelech, the Son of Ahitub, named Abiathar m, escaped and fled after David n:

m Who by his Father's death was now High-Priest. n To Keilah, chap. 23. 6.

21 And Abiathar shewed David, that Saul had slain the LORD's priests.

22 And David said unto Abiathar, I knew it o that day, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would surely tell Saul: I have occasioned the death of all the persons of thy father's house.

o His Mother and Ambition made me suspect that he would do it.

23 Abide thou with me, fear not: for he that seeketh my life, seeketh thy life: but with me thou shalt be in safeguard p.

p Because God will certainly preserve me to the Kingdom which he hath promised: and I by his help will protect thee.

CHAP. XXIII.

David enquiring of the Lord by Abiathar, rescueth Keilah, and goeth into it, 1,—6. God shewing him the coming of Saul, and treachery of the Keilites, 7,— 12. He flieth thence to the wilderneſs of Ziph with his 600 men, 13,—15. Here Jonathan cometh to him and reneweth the covenant of friendſhip with him, 16,—18. The Ziphites diſcover him to Saul, 19,—23. Who purſueth him into the wilderneſs of Maon, 24,—26. He is called away by a meſſage that the Philiſtines had invaded the land, 27, 28. David dwelleth at En-gedi, 29.

THen they told David a, ſaying, Behold, the Philiſtines fight againſt Keilah b, and they rob the threſhing-floors c.

a Or, Now they had told David, to wit, before he heard of the ſlaughter of the Prieſts. b A City in the Tribe of Judah, Joſ. 15. 44. not far from the Foreſt of Hareth, where David now was, ibid. 22. 5. c Which uſually were without the Cities in places open to the Wind. See Judg. 6. 11. Ruth 3. 2, &c.

2 Therefore David enquired of the LORD d, ſaying, Shall I go and ſmite theſe Philiſtines e? And the LORD ſaid unto David, Go, and ſmite the Philiſtines, and ſave Keilah.

d Either by Abiathar; or rather, by Gad, who was a Prophet, 2 Sam. 24. 11. and David's Seer, 1 Chron. 21. 9. and was now with David, ibid. 22. 5. for Abiathar was not yet come to him, to 6. e For the caſe was both doubtful and new, he having not yet made any Attempt upon the Philiſtines, but by Saul's Commiſſion; and dangerous, becauſe of the ſmall number of his Forces.

3 And David's men ſaid unto him, Behold, we be afraid here in Judah f: how much more then if we come to Keilah againſt the armies of the Philiſtines g?

f i.e. In this part of Judah, wherein we ſee we have no Army to oppoſe us: for elſe Keilah alſo was in Judah. g When we ſhall have a Potent Enemy before us, the Philiſtines, and, it may be, another behind us, even Saul, who probably will come forth, either to reſiſt the Philiſtines, or to intercept us.

4 Then David enquired of the LORD yet again h: And the LORD anſwered him, and ſaid, Ariſe, go down to Keilah: for I will deliver the Philiſtines into thine hand.

h Not for his own, but for his Soldiers Satisfaction and Encouragement; as Gideon did. Judg. 7.

5 So David and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philiſtines, and brought away their cattel i, and ſmote them with a great ſlaughter: ſo David ſaved the inhabitants of Keilah.

i Which the Philiſtines had either brought out of their Land, or had taken from the Iſraelites in their march, for the ſuſtenance of their Army.

6 And it came to paſs when Abiathar the ſon of Ahimelech † fled to David to Keilah, that he came down with an ephod k in his hand.

† Or, fled

k Or, with the Ephod, to wit, the High-Prieſts Ephod, in which were the Urim and the Thummim, Ex. 28. 30. which when Ahimelech and the reſt of the Prieſts went to Saul, were probably left in his hand, and to his care; which gave him the opportunity both of eſcaping, whilſt Doeg the Edomite was killing his Brethren, and of bringing away the Ephod, which Saul had oft greatly neglected, and now was juſtly deprived of it.

7 ¶ And it was told Saul that David was come to Keilah: and Saul ſaid, God hath † delivered him into mine hand l: for he is ſhut in, by entring into a town that hath gates and bars m.

† Heb. alienated him. Gr. ſold him.

l He eaſily believed what he greedily deſired, though his own Experience had oft ſhewed him how ſtrangely God had delivered him out of his Hands, and what a ſingular Care God had over him. m So that which he choſe for his Safety, will be his certain Ruine.

8 And Saul called all the people together, to war, to go down to Keilah, to beſiege David and his men.

9 ¶ And David knew that Saul ſecretly practiſed n miſchief againſt him, and * he ſaid to Abiathar the prieſt, Bring hither the ephod o.

* Numb. 27. 21.

n Whereby it may ſeem he pretended that he raiſed this Army to defend Keilah and his Country from the Philiſtines, and kept his Intention againſt David in his own Breaſt. Or, deſigned or deviſed: for ſo the word ſignifies; and ſo it is here tranſlated by many, and it ſeems both from 6. 8. and from his publickly avowed jealouſie of, and rage againſt David, that he declared his deſign to be againſt him, as a Traitor to his Crown and Dignity. o And put it upon thee, that thou maiſt aſk Counſel of God for me.

10 Then ſaid David p, O LORD God of Iſrael, thy ſervant hath certainly heard that Saul ſeeketh to come to Keilah, to deſtroy the city for my ſake.

p To wit, by the Prieſt, for he was to make the enquiry of God, Numb. 27. 21. and David puts the words into his Mouth.

11 Will the men of Keilah deliver me up into his hand q? Will Saul come down as thy ſervant hath heard? O LORD God of Iſrael, I beſeech thee tell thy ſervant. And the LORD ſaid r, He will come down.

q To wit, if I continue in their City, and if Saul come down. r From this place it may appear that Gods anſwer by Urim and Thummim, was not by any change in the colour or ſituation of the precious Stones in the Breaſt-Plate of the Ephod, but by a Voice or Suggeſtion from God to the High-Prieſt. i.e. He purpoſeth to come, if thou continueſt here. For ſtill as David's queſtion, ſo God's anſwer, is upon ſuppoſition, as is here ſufficiently implied.

12 Then ſaid David, Will the men of Keilah † deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul? and the LORD ſaid, They will deliver thee up s.

† Heb. ſhut me up.

s To wit, if thou abideſt there. For God ſaw their hearts, their purpoſes, and paſſions, their averſion from David, and their affections to Saul, and knew better than themſelves what they would do in that caſe.

13 ¶ Then David and his men, which were about ſix hundred u, aroſe, and departed out of Keilah, and went whitherſoever they could go x: and it was told Saul that David was eſcaped from Keilah, and he forbare to go forth.

u Two hundred being added to his former number, chap. 22. 2. upon his laſt and great Succeſs againſt the Philiſtines. x Hither or thither, where they could find refuge, or an hiding place.

14 And David abode in the wilderneſs in ſtrong holds, and remained in a mountain in the wilderneſs of Ziph: and Saul ſought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand y.

y As Saul fondly perſuaded himſelf, he intended, v. 7.

15 And David ſaw z that Saul was come out to ſeek his life: and David was in the wilderneſs of Ziph in a wood.

z Either by Information from his Spies: or, by Proſpect from the top of the Mountain where he was.

16 ¶ And Jonathan Sauls ſon aroſe, and went to David in the wood a, and ſtrengthned his hand in God b.

a Where David had appointed to meet him at that time. b He comforted and ſupported him againſt all his Fears, by minding him of God's infallible Promiſes made to him, and his ſingular Providence which hitherto had and ſtill would be with him.

17 And he ſaid unto him, Fear not, for the hand of Saul my father ſhall not find thee, and thou ſhalt be king over Iſrael, and I ſhall be next unto thee c: and * that alſo Saul my father knoweth c.

* chap. 24. 20.

c Which he gathered either from David's Generoſity, Ingenuity, &c. and true Friendſhip to him; or from ſome Promiſe made to him by David concerning it. Or, the meaning of the words next unto thee, may be as much as to ſay, I ſhall be under thee, after thee, or inferior to thee, as the Phraſe ita ſecum ſus oft ſignifies. So that the whole imports thus much; I do not look to be King my ſelf (as by my Birth I might expect,) but that thou ſhalt be King (God having ſo appointed) and I but in a Secondary place inferior to thee. c By ſtrong and well-grounded Conjecture, as hath been noted.

18 And they two made a covenant d before the LORD e: and David abode in the wood, and Jonathan went to his houſe.

d, e Renewed their former Covenant. e i.e. Seeing themſelves as in God's Preſence, and calling upon him to be Witneſs between them.

19 ¶ Then came up the * Ziphites f to Saul to Gibeah, ſaying, Doth not David hide himſelf with us in ſtrong holds in the woods, in the hill of Hachilah, which is † on the ſouth of Jeſhimon?

* Pſal. 54. title.

f Who were of David's own Tribe, though for this their unnatural and ſtrange carriage to him, he calls them Strangers, Pſal. 54. 3.

20 Now therefore, O King, come down according to all the deſire of thy ſoul to come down, and our part ſhall be g to deliver him into the king's hand.

g It ſhall be our Care and buſineſs to the utmoſt of our Power. Or, we will undertake to deliver him, or betray him to thee.

21 And Saul ſaid, Bleſſed be ye of the LORD, for ye have compaſſion on me h.

h Whilſt others harden their Hearts againſt me, and joyn with David in his treaſonable Conſpiracy, you ſhew your pity to me by your readineſs to help me.

22 Go, I pray you, prepare yet i, and know, and ſee his place where his † haunt is k, and who hath ſeen † Heb. him there: for it is told me that he dealeth very ſubtilly.

i To wit, the matter, inform your ſelves certainly of things, and diſpoſe them ſo that we may not be fruſtrated in our Attempt. k In what Cave, or Wood, or Mountain he is moſt frequently.

23 See therefore, and take knowledge of all the lurking places where he hideth himſelf, and come ye again to me with the certainty, and I will go with you: and it ſhall come to paſs, if he be in the land, that I will ſearch him out throughout all the thouſands of Judah l.

l i.e. Through all the parts of that Tribe. Every Tribe was divided into Thouſands, as Counties are now with us into Hundreds. See Judg. 6. 15. Or, with all the Thouſands of Judah; i.e. I will raiſe againſt him all the Forces of that Tribe in which he truſteth and hideth himſelf. This he ſaith to animate them to the more vigorous Proſecution of him.

24 And

24 And they aroſe, and went to Ziph before Saul m: but David and his men were in the wilderneſs of Maon n, in the plain on the ſouth of Jeſhimon.

m To prepare things for Saul, who marched after them. n Whither he went from the Wilderneſs of Ziph, upon ſuſpicion or information that Saul was coming thither.

25 Saul alſo and his men went to ſeek him, and they told David: wherefore he came down into a rock o, and abode in the wilderneſs of Maon: and when Saul heard that, he purſued after David in the wilderneſs of Maon.

o i.e. into a Cave which was in the Rock; or, which might be called a Rock, not for the height, but the ſtrength of its ſituation: where at firſt he might think to hide himſelf, but upon further intelligence or conſideration he removed from thence upon Saul's approach. Or, he came down from the Rock, i.e. Either, Firſt, From the Mountain mentioned in the next Verſe, whence he came down, that ſo he might get out of Saul's ſight and reach. Or, Secondly, From the Hill of Hachilah, where David hid himſelf, which is ſaid to be on the South of Jeſhimon, v. 19. as this place where he now was, is alſo deſcribed, ver. 24. only that ſpeaks of the Plain, and this of the Rock or Hill adjoyning to it, or in the midſt of it. Or, he came down to Selah, as the Syriack and Arabick tranſlate it; a place ſo called from the many Rocks or Stones which were in it, or near it.

26 And Saul went on this ſide of the mountain, and David and his men on that ſide of the mountain: and David made haſte to get away for fear of Saul: for Saul and his men compaſſed David and his men round about p to take them.

p Dividing themſelves into ſeveral Parties, each marching a ſeveral way after him.

27 ¶ But there came a meſſenger unto Saul, ſaying, Haſte thee, and come: for the Philiſtines have † invaded the land q.

† Heb. breaked out upon the land, &c.

q God ſtirring them up by his all-diſpoſing Providence to do it at this time for David's reſcue. Compare 2 Kings 19. 9.

28 Wherefore Saul returned from purſuing after David, and went againſt the Philiſtines: therefore they called that place ‖ Sela-hammahlekoth r.

That is, the rock of ſeparation.

r i.e. The Rock of Diviſions, becauſe there Saul was ſeparated, and in a manner pulled aſunder from David, who was now almoſt within his reach.

29 ¶ And David went up from thence, and dwelt in ſtrong holds at En-gedi.

CHAP. XXIV.

Saul purſueth David to En-gedi: Cometh into a Cave in which was David with his Men: Who catteth off the Skirt of Saul's Mantle, but will not kill him, 1,——7. He communeth with Saul, and hereby evidenceth his Innocency towards him, 8,——15. Saul acknowledgeth his Fault, taketh an Oath of David, and departeth, 16,——23.

AND it came to paſs, when Saul was returned from † following the Philiſtines, that it was told him, ſaying, Behold, David is in the wilderneſs of En-gedi.

† Heb. the Philiſtines.

2 Then Saul took three thouſand choſen men out of all Iſrael, and went to ſeek David and his men upon † the rocks of the wild goats a.

† Heb. the faces of the wild goats, &c. upon a Which the wild Goats uſe to delight and climb into. Theſe very Rocks are exceeding ſteep, and full of Precipices, and dangerous to Travellers, as an eye-witneſs hath left upon Record. And yet Saul was ſo tranſported with Rage, as to venture himſelf and his Army here, that he might take David, who, as he thought, would judge himſelf ſafe, and therefore be ſecure in ſuch inacceſſible places.

3 And he came to the ſheep-coats b by the way, † where was a cave, and * Saul went in to cover his feet c: and * David and his men remained in the ſides of the cave d:

† Heb. upon the way, where.

* Heb. cover the feet of Saul.

b Which ſome think to have been Caves into which they uſed to drive their Sheep for ſhelter in tempeſtuous Weather. c i.e. To caſe his Belly, as this Phraſe is thought to be uſed, Judg. 3. 24. The reaſon whereof is, becauſe the Eaſtern and ſome other Nations of old wore no Breeches, but ſoote and long Coats or Gowns, like thoſe which Women with us wear; but ſhorter, whence their Feet and Legges were in a great part uncovered; and ſometimes other parts, which alſo in Scripture are deſigned by the name of the Feet, (of which ſee on Gen. 49. 10. Deut. 28. 57. 2 Kings 18. 27. Iſa. 7. 20.) were expoſed to view. But when they were to perform this office of Nature, which obliged them firſt to lift up their Garments, they afterwards diſpoſed them ſo decently, that all thoſe parts might be covered and kept out of the ſight of others. But poſſibly the words may have another meaning, and it is not to be diſpiſed, that thoſe ancient and venerable Interpreters, the Syriack and Arabick, interpret this Place and Phraſe quite otherwiſe, that Saul went in to ſleep there: which was no uncouth thing to Saul, who being a Military Man, uſed to ſleep with his Soldiers upon the bare Ground, as he did chap. 26. 7. And it is not improbable that Saul being exceeding weary with his eager and almoſt inceſſant purſuit, firſt of David, then of the Philiſtines, and now of David again, both needed and deſired ſome ſleep, God alſo diſpoſing him thereunto, that David might have this eminent occaſion to demonſtrate his Integrity to Saul, and to all Iſrael; and, the ſeaſon poſſibly being hot, he might chuſe to ſleep in the Cave, for the benefit of the ſhade. But all the queſtion is, how it may appear that this is the meaning of this Phraſe, and what is the reaſon and ground of it? To which many things may be ſaid. Firſt, That this Phraſe is but twice uſed in Scripture, as far as I remember, here, and Judg. 3. 24. and this ſeems conveniently enough agree to both of them; nay, this ſeems may ſeem better to agree with that place, Purpoſe, 3. for that Supreme Paſſion, or Supreme Chamber (for both ſeem to be the ſame place, and were appointed by for the ſame uſe, v. 24. 25.) ſeems to be a place far more convenient for ſleeping, than for eating of Nature. And the Servants judged him gone to ſleep f (which might take up a conſiderable time), rather than to that other work which: requires but a little time. See my Notes on Judg. 3. 24. Secondly, That there are many Hebrew Phraſes, which do confeſſedly ſignifie ſeveral things, albeit, the reaſon of ſuch ſig ifications be more utterly unknown to us, though it was doubtleſs known to the ancient Hebrews. Nor need I inſtance in particulars, ſeeing it is ſo in all Languages, and particularly in the Engliſh Tongue at this day, in which the uſe of many Proverbs and Phraſes is well underſtood, though the reaſon of them be now loſt. Which if our modern Infidel, who ſcoff at ſome paſſages of Scripture, which they either do not, or will not underſtand, would conſider, they would loſe much of their ſport. Thirdly, Although there be not that clear and full proof of this Phraſe which ſome may require (though indeed it cannot be reaſonably expected in a thing ſo ancient, and in a Parcle of ſo conciſe and narrow a Language as the Hebrew is, and in an expreſſion ſo rarely uſed in Scripture), yet there are ſome intimations in Scripture which may ſeem to favour this Interpretation. For Perſons compoſing themſelves to ſleep in this manner, are not only noted in the general to have been covered with a Mantle, as is ſaid of Siſera, Judg. 4. 18, 19. but particularly they are ſaid to have their Feet covered, as is expreſly obſerved concerning Ruth when ſhe lay down to ſleep in the threſhing floor, Ruth 3. 4, 7. The reaſon whereof may poſſibly be this, That when they lay down to ſleep in their Garments, they were fenced as to the other parts of their Body, only their Feet were open and viſible; and therefore it was convenient to cover their Feet; partly, to prevent the inconveniences of Cold, (for which reaſon we here take ſpecial care to cover our Feet in bed-caſes); and partly, for decency ſake, leſt their Garments being looſe and large below, ſhould be diſordered, and ſo their Nakedneſs ſhould appear, as it happened to Noah, Gen. 9. 21. Compare Exod. 20. 26. And therefore it cannot ſeem ſtrange or forced, if in this place Saul's covering of his feet, deſign his compoſing himſelf to his reſt. And if this be ſo, then the following difficulties of this Hiſtory will appear to be plain and eaſie. For if Saul were faſt aſleep, which might eaſily be perceived by David and his Men within; then it is not ſtrange that Saul neither heard David and his men talking of him, nor felt David when he came to cut off his lap. d For that there were vaſt Caves in thoſe parts is affirmed not only by Joſephus, but alſo by Heathen Authors; and Strabo in his 16th Book writes of one which could receive four thouſand Men.

4 And the men of David ſaid unto him, Behold, the day of which the LORD ſaid unto thee, Behold, I will deliver thine enemy into thine hand, that thou mayeſt do to him, as it ſhall ſeem good unto thee f. Then David aroſe and cut off the ſkirt of † Heb. the Saul's robe privily g.

f Queſt. How came it to paſs that Saul did not hear the debates of David and his Men? Anſ. Firſt, The greater noiſe of Saul's Men and Horſes juſt by the Caves mouth, might eaſily drown the leſſer. Secondly, There were in theſe large and capacious Caves, ſeveral Cells or Parts, whereof ſome were more inward and remote from the Caves mouth, in which they might freely converſe and diſcourſe, and yet neither be heard nor ſeen by Saul, though they could eaſily ſee him, and obſerve all his poſtures and actions, becauſe he was in the mouth of the Cave. Thirdly, Saul might be aſleep, as hath been diſcourſed. f Not that either God ſaid theſe words, or made any ſuch particular promiſe, as ſome ſuppoſed; but they put this conſtruction upon thoſe confuſed and known Promiſes which God had made to him, of delivering him from all his Enemies, and carrying him through all hinderances and difficulties to the Throne and Kingdom: Which Promiſe they conceived put him under an Obligation of watching and taking all opportunities which God by his Providence ſhould put into his hand for their accompliſhment, whereof this was an eminent inſtance. g Or, How could David do that, and Saul not perceive it? Anſ. Firſt, This might be ſome looſe and upper Garment, which Saul might then lay at ſome diſtance from him, as we often do on the ſame occaſion. Secondly, In thoſe vaſt Caves there were divers particular Cells and Rooms which were diſtinct one from another, yet ſo as there were ſecret paſſages from one to another, as may be gathered from the relations of Hiſtorians and Travellers. At the mouth of one of theſe, Saul might lay his upper Garment: which David perceiving, and very well knowing all the Cells and Paſſages of that Cave, might go ſome ſecret way to it, and cut off a little part of it. Thirdly, The noiſe which David's motion might be ſuppoſed to make, was but ſmall, and that he well knew would be perfectly drowned with the far greater noiſe of Saul's Army, which lay at the mouth of the Cave. Fourthly, The Heroical Actions of great Men in Scripture are not to be meaſured by common Rules. And as divers of the Prophets and Saints of old were in ſome of their Actions, (i. David might be in this, moved to it by a ſecret and divine impulſe, which alſo gave him confidence of God's aſſiſtance therein, and of the ſucceſs of his Enterprize. Fifthly, This difficulty doth perfectly vaniſh, if Saul was NOW aſleep. And as no man can prove that he was not; ſo that he was, may ſeem probable from what is ſaid on 1, 3.

g Juſt which was Saul's.

4 And

5 And it came to pass afterwards, that * David's heart smote him, because he had cut off Saul's skirt.
*1 Sam. 24. 10.
h Not only because it was injurious, and reproachful, and dangerous to the King; but possibly because he had some secret thought of doing more to him, though he suppressed and overcame it; for he attempted this in pursuance of his Soldiers suggestion, v. 4. which if followed would have carried him to further Action.

6 And he said unto his men i, The LORD forbid that I should do this thing k unto my master l the LORD's anointed, to stretch forth mine hand against him m, seeing he is the anointed of the LORD n.
i Either, First, Before he cut off Saul's lap. Or rather, Secondly, Afterward, when he returned with Saul's lap in his hand, and his Soldiers were enraged that he had not killed him. k Which you persuade me to do, even cut off Saul. l Whom I must still own for my Sovereign Lord and King, to whom I owe Allegiance whilst he lives, although after his death the right of the Kingdom be mine. m To wit, to kill him. A Synedochical expression. See Gen. 37. 22. n i. e. Anointed by God to the Kingdom; by which Unction his Person was made Sacred and Inviolable, and is so to be accounted by me, and you, and all his Subjects. And as God only Exalted him, and God only could pronounce a Sentence of Deprivation of his Kingdom against him; so it belongs to God only to execute his own Sentence, and actually to Depose him.

So David † stayed o his servants with these words, and suffered them not to rise against Saul: but Saul rose up out of the cave, and went on his way.
o Heb. cut, or clave, or divided, or cut them off. The word notes both the earnestness and violence of David's men in prosecuting their desire, and David's resoluteness in opposing them, as it were, by force. Wherein he shews great Piety, and Generosity, and Loyalty to Saul.

8 David also arose afterward, and went out of the cave, and cried after Saul, saying, My lord the king. And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his face to the earth, and bowed himself.

*Psal. 141. 5.
9 ¶ And David said unto Saul, * Wherefore hearest thou mens words p, saying, Behold, David seeketh thy hurt?
p He prudently and medsily Transfuses the fault from Saul to his followers, and evil counsellors.

10 Behold, this day thine eyes have seen, how that the LORD hath delivered thee to day into mine hand in the cave: and some bade me kill thee, but mine eye q spared thee, and I said, I will not put forth mine hand against my lord, for he is the LORD's anointed.
*2 Sam. 12. 22. Psal. 18. 2.
q Which words are easily understood both from the nature of the thing, and from the use of this Phrase in other Scriptures, as Deut. 7. 16. and 13. 8. The Eye is said to spare, because it affects the Heart with pity, and moves a Man to spare.

11 Moreover, my father r, See, yea, see the skirt of thy robe in my hand: for in that I cut off the skirt of thy robe, and killed thee not, know thou and see, that there is neither evil nor transgression in mine hand, and I have not sinned against thee; yet thou huntest my soul to take it.
r So he calls him; partly, because he was his Father-in-law; partly, in testimony of his respect and subjection to him as to a Father; and partly, that by to amiable a compellation he might both insinuate himself into his favour, and mind him of that Duty which as a Father he owed to David. I neither design mischief against thee with my hearty nor will I execute it with my hand, which my false accusers told thee I would do, if thou didst at any time fall into my hand.

† Or, will avenge.
12 The LORD judge † between me and thee, and the LORD avenge me of thee s: but mine hand shall not be upon thee u. s Or, will avenge me of thee, to wit, if thou dost persist in thy injurious and cruel designs against me. u I will not execute Vengeance on thee, but will leave it wholly to God.

13 As saith the proverb of the ancients, Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked x: but mine hand shall not be upon thee.
x i. e. Wicked men use to do wicked actions, among which this is one, to kill their Sovereign Lord and King; as David implied above, v. 2. and more fully expresseth chap. 26. 6. And therefore if I were so wicked and vile a Person as the Courtiers represent me to thee, I should make no conscience of laying violent hands upon thee, but should assassinate thee when I had opportunity. Which because I have now neglected and refused to do, though moved to it by some of my wicked Soldiers; know therefore that I am not guilty of any wicked designs against thee, but am just and innocent towards thee. Or thus: wicked actions (such as that would have been if I had killed thee) proceed only from those wicked, of which number I am none, and therefore my hand shall not be upon thee.

14 After whom is the king of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue? After a dead dog, *Chap. 26. 20. after a flea y.
y After a worthless, contemptible, and impotent person, such as I am. Thou disparagest my self in contending with such a Person; and even thy conquest of me will be inglorious and shameful.

15 The LORD therefore be judge, and judge between me and thee, and see, and plead my cause, and † deliver me out of thine hand.
† Heb. judge.

16 ¶ And it came to pass when David had made an end of speaking these words unto Saul, that Saul said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And Saul lift up his voice, and wept a.
2 Sam. 3. 31.
z He knew his voice, though being at a great distance from him, he could not discern his face. a Partly, from the sense of his Sin against God, and of his wicked and base carriage to David, (for there are some such Temporary Passions oft-times in Hypocrites and ungodly Men) and principally from the remembrance of so great and so late a danger as he had now escaped; which commonly produceth Grief and Tears; as 2 Sam. 13. 36. Yet these may be tears of affection or tenderness (upon the sense of David's kindness) rather than of grief.

17 And he said to David, Thou art more righteous than I: for thou hast rewarded me good b, whereas I have rewarded thee evil c. b For the Evil that I have designed and done to thee. c For thy good will to me.

18 And thou hast shewed this day how that thou hast dealt well with me: forasmuch as when the LORD had † delivered me into thine hand, thou killedst me not.
† Heb. shut up.

19 For if a man find his enemy, will he let him go well away d? wherefore the LORD reward thee good, for that thou hast done unto me this day.
d i. e. He will certainly destroy him. And therefore thou hast not dealt with me after the manner of Men, but hast imitated the clemency of God in this act.

20 And now behold, * I know well e that thou Chap. shalt be surely king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be established in thine hand.
e Or, am convinced, not only by the fame of Samuel's Anointing thee, but by God's singular Providence watching over thee; and by that good Spirit, and those great and Princely Vertues wherewith God hath endowed thee.

21 Swear now therefore unto me by the LORD, that thou wilt not cut off my seed after me f, and that thou wilt not destroy my name g out of my fathers house.
f As Princes use to destroy their Competitors, and those that have any hopes of, or pretence to their Crown; and Saul had endeavoured to destroy David for the same reason, and therefore he feared a retaliation. g To wit, by cutting off my Seed. So it is the same thing repeated in other words, as is usual in Scripture.

22 And David sware unto Saul h: and Saul went home; but David and his men gat them up unto the hold i.
h Qu. How then could David destroy so many of Saul's Sons, 2 Sam. 21. 8? Ans. David could bind himself by his Oaths, but he could not bind God, to whose good pleasure all Promises, Vows, and Oaths, must in all reason be submitted; and that was done by God's Command, and God was well pleased with it, 2 Sam. 21. 14. Nor is it to be supposed that David sware not to destroy any of them in case God should specially Command it, or that should by miscariage render themselves obnoxious to the Sword of Justice: but only that he would not do it barely on his own private accounts, or for the occasions of so doing. i To wit, of Engedi, v. 1. For having had so great and frequent experience of Saul's Inconstancy, and Malice, and Perfidiousness, he would trust him no more.

CHAP. XXV.

Samuel dieth: David goeth to the Wilderness of Paran, 1. Nabal's Riches, 2. His and his Wife Abigail's Nature and Condition, 3. David requesteth of Nabal some Relief for his Camp: He entreateth David's Messengers scornfully. David is provoked, and minded to destroy him, 13.—15. Abigail understands it, 14.—17. Taketh a Present, 18.—22. And by her Wisdom, 23.—31. Pacifieth David, 32.—35. Nabal hearing of this, dyeth, 36.—38. David taketh Abigail and Ahinoam to be his Wives, 39.—43. Saul having given Michal to Phalti, 44.

AND * Samuel died, and all the Israelites were Ch. 28. gathered together, and lamented him, and buried him in his house a at Ramah. And David arose, and went down to the wilderness of Paran b. a According to the manner of those Times. See Gen. 23. 9. and 50. 5. Matth. 27. 60. b In the Southern Borders of the Land of Judah, that so when occasion served, he might retire out of Saul's Dominions.

2 And there was a man in Maon c, whose possessions were in Carmel d, and the man was very great, and he had three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats: and he was shearing his sheep in Carmel.
c A place in or near to the Wilderness of Paran. See chap. 23. 24. d Not that Carmel in Iudah; of which see chap. 15. 12. and 1 Kings 18. 19 but another in the Tribe of Judah, near unto Maon, as appears from Jos. 15. 55.

3 Now the name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife Abigail: and the woman of good good understanding, and of a beautiful countenance: but the man was churlish, and evil in his doings, and he was † of the house of Caleb e.

Gen. 4. Canaanite.
e This is added to aggravate his Crime, That he was a degenerate Branch of that Noble Stock of Caleb, and consequently of the Tribe of Judah, as David was.

4 ¶ And David heard in the wilderness, that Nabal did shear his sheep f. f Which Times were celebrated with Feasting and Jollity. See 2 Sam. 13. 23, 24.

5 And David sent out ten young men, and David said unto the young men, Get ye up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and † greet him in my name.
† Heb. ask the peace in my name.

6 And thus shall ye say to him that liveth in prosperity g, † Peace be both to thee, and peace be to thine house h, and peace be unto all that thou hast i.
† Heb. to the peace. Heb. to him that liveth. Heb. to all that are thine.
g Heb. to him that liveth. Life is oft put for a prosperous and happy life, as in that Prayer, Let the King live, 1 Sam. 10. 24. 1 Kings 1. 25. and in other passages of Scripture, and other Authors; for an afflicted and calamitous life is unworthy of the name of life, and is esteemed a kind of death, and oft so called, as 2 Cor. 1. 10. and 11. 23. By this expression David both congratulates Nabal's felicity, and tacitly minds him of the penury and distress in which David and his Men now were. h i. e. To all thy Family. i To all thy Goods. So David's Prayer is very comprehensive, reaching to his Soul, and Body, and Wife, and Children, and Servants, and all his Estate.

7 And now I have heard that thou hast shearers: now thy shepherds which were with us, we † hurt them not, neither was there ought missing unto them, all the while they were in Carmel k.
k Which, considering the licentiousness of Soldiers, and the necessities which David and his Men were oft exposed to, was no small favour and priviledge, which Nabal was bound both in justice, and gratitude, and prudence to require.

8 Ask thy young men, and they will shew thee: wherefore let the young men find favour in thine eyes: (for we come in a good day l) give I pray thee, whatsoever cometh to thine hand, unto thy servants m, and to thy son n David.
l i. e. In a day of Feasting and Rejoycing; when Men are most cheerful and liberal; when thou mayst relieve us out of thy abundance without damage to thy self; when thou art receiving the Mercies of God, and therefore obliged to pity and relieve distressed and indigent Persons, Deut. 12. 12. and 14. 26, 29. and 15. 7. m To us who have been and still are ready to serve and guard thee and thine. Or, the word Servants may be only used as a word of respect, frequently used in Scripture, where Inferiors speak to Superiors, especially when they be suppliants, and beg some favour. n So he calls himself, to shew that respect and affection which he bore to Nabal, as being elder and wealthier than himself, and of the same Tribe with himself, and a Branch of so worthy a Family as Nabal's was.

9 And when Davids young men came, they spake to Nabal according to all those words in the name of David, and † ceased.
† Heb. rested.

10 ¶ And Nabal answered David's servants, and said, Who is David o? and who is the son of Jesse? There be many servants now a days that break away, every man from his master p. o What relation or obligation have I to David? p Hereby he taxeth both David, as one revolted from, and risen up against Saul his Lord and Master; and his Soldiers as Runagates from their Masters and Creditors, &c. See chap. 22. 2.

11 Shall I then take my bread, and my water q, and my † flesh that I have killed for my shearers, and give it unto men whom I know not whence they be?
q He speaketh thus, either because in those hot and dry Parts Water was scarce and precious: or, Water is here put for any kind of Drink, as Bread is oft taken for all sorts of Meat.

12 So David's young men turned their way, and went again, and came and told him all those sayings.

13 And David said unto his men, Gird ye on every man his sword r. And they girded on every man his sword, and David also girded on his sword: and there went up after David about four hundred men, and two hundred abode by the stuff s. r Having resolved and sworn to revenge himself of Nabal, as is expressed ver. 21, 22. s See chap. 17. 22. and 30. 24.

14 ¶ But one of the young men told Abigail † Nabals wife, saying, Behold, David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master; and he † railed on them.
† Heb. flew upon them.
† Wisely considering the mischievous effects likely to follow so churlish a message.

15 But the men were very good unto us, and we were not † hurt, neither missed we any thing as long as we were conversant with them, when we were in the fields.
† Heb. reproached us.

16 They were a wall u unto us both by night and day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep.
u i. e. A defence against wild Beasts, and Robbers, and Enemies.

17 Now therefore know, and consider what thou wilt do: for evil is determined against our master, and against all his household x: for he is such a son of Belial, that a man cannot speak to him y.
x Which it was easie to guess; either from some threatning expressions which David's Men used; or from the consideration of David's great Power, and that rage which so high a provocation was likely to produce in Military Persons. y To wit, without hazard to himself, and therefore I acquaint thee, rather than him, with this matter.

18 ¶ Then Abigail made haste, and took two hundred loaves z, and two bottles of wine, and five sheep ready dressed, and five measures of parched corn, and an hundred † clusters of raisins, and two † Or, lumps hundred cakes of figs, and laid them on asses.
z Which she did without his leave, and against his mind, because it was a case of apparent necessity, for the preservation of her self, and Husband, and all the Family from imminent ruin. And surely, that real and urgent necessity which dispenseth with God's positive Commands, might well dispense with the Husband's right in this case.

19 And she said unto her servants, Go on before me, behold, I come after you a: but she told not her husband Nabal.
a For she knew she could quickly overtake them.

20 And it was so, as she rode on the ass, that she came down by the covert of the hill b, and behold, David and his men came down c against her, and she met them.
b In the lower part, and under the shadow of the Hill, or of the Trees that grew upon it; so that David did not see her till she met him. c To wit, from another opposite Hill.

21 (Now David had said d, Surely in vain have I kept all that this fellow e hath in the wilderness, so that nothing was missed of all that pertained unto him, and he hath requited me evil for good.
d Either in his Journey, or as soon as he heard that reproachful answer. e Whom he thought unworthy to be named, for his barbarous Ingratitude and Churlishness.

22 So, and more also God unto the enemies of David f, if I leave of all that pertain unto him by the morning light, any that pisseth against the wall g.)
f i. e. Unto David himself. But because it might seem ominous and unnatural to Curse himself, therefore by a Figure called Euphemismus, instead of David, he mentions David's Enemies. See 1 Sam. 20. 16. The words may be thus rendred: So and more also let God do for (the Hebrew Lamed being very oft so used) the Enemies of David, i. e. Let God work for them, and give them as much Prosperity and Success as Nabal hath hitherto had. Or, let God utterly destroy their Enemies; and especially, my self the chief of them, if I do not destroy this Man. g i. e. Any of the Males, for they only do so; and of them this Phrase is manifestly understood; 1 Kings 14. 10. and 21. 21. and 2 Kings 9. 8. And Men not wholly barbarous have generally spared Women in such cases. Qu. Why then was Abigail so much concerned and afraid? Answ. Partly from humanity, and the horror of so general and dreadful a Slaughter of her Family and nearest Relations: and partly, because when the Sword was once drawn, she knew not where it would rest, nor whether she should escape: for she knew nothing of this limitation of David's threatning, till she came to him.

23 And when Abigail saw David, she hasted and lighted off the ass, and fell before David on her face, and bowed her self to the ground h, h Not only in token of deep reverence, but as a most humble suppliant; as 2 Kings 4. 27.

24 And fell at his feet, and said, Upon me, my LORD, upon me let this iniquity be h, and let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak in thine † audience, and hear the words of thine handmaid.
h Impute Nabal's Sin to me, and if thou pleasest, punish it in me, who here offer my self as a Sacrifice to thy just indignation. This whole Speech of Abigail is done with great artifice; and her duty here, by an absolute submitting to Mercy, without any pretence of justification of what was done, (but rather with aggravation of it) endeavour to work upon David's Generosity, and good nature, to pardon it. And, with great Art, first would divert the Punishment from her Husband to her self, because she had then much more to say, why David should spare her, then why he should spare Nabal. And there was hardly any head of Argument, wherein the greatest Orator might argue in this case, which she doth not manage to the best advantage, and most plausible intimations for such an exigent.

25 Let not my lord, I pray thee, † regard i this man of Belial no, even Nabal: for as his name is, so is he; Nabal is his name, and folly is with him k: but I thine handmaid saw not the young men of my lord, whom thou didst send.
† Heb. lay it to his heart.

1 His Person and Words deserve thy contempt, but not thy regard. m For such he hath throwed him self to be by this wicked and abominable carriage towards thee. n His noted folly and stubbornness is a more proper Object for thy pity than anger. His sordid pusillanimity in suffering his Servants did not proceed from any ill design, or Malice, but from brutish Sottishness, and want of the understanding of a Man in him. It may be thought a great Crime, that standing of a Man in him. It may be thought a great Crime, that she traduceth her Husband in this manner. But this may be said for her, That she told them nothing but what they all knew concerning him, and that she only seemed to take away that which he never had indeed, to wit, his good Name, that she might preserve that which he had, and which was more dear and important to him, even his Life and Soul. o Though I freely submit my self to the Punishment in my Husband's stead, yet I was innocent of the Crime.

26 Now therefore, my lord, as the LORD liveth and as thy soul liveth, seeing the LORD hath withholden thee from coming to shed blood p, and from † avenging thy self with thine own hand; now let thine enemies, and they that seek evil to my lord be as Nabal q.

† Heb. saving thy self.

p Seeing God hath so ordered this business by his wise and wonderful Providence, that I should accidentally, and unexpectedly come to the knowledge of my Husband's vile and foolish Carriage; and that I should come to meet thee, and find thee so gracious, as to give a favourable Audience; and all this, that hereby he might withhold thee from the Sin of Blood-guiltiness. q Let them be as contemptible and hateful as Nabal is, and will be for this odious Action; let them be as unable to do thee any hurt as he is; let them be forced to yield to thee, and implore thy Pardon and Favour, as Nabal now doth by my mouth: let the Vengeance thou didst design upon Nabal and his Family, fall upon their heads, who, by their cursed Nature and inveterate Malice against thee, do more deserve it than this silly Fool for this one miscarriage; and much more than all the rest of our Family, who, as they are none of thine Enemies, nor such as seek thee evil, so they were no way guilty of this wicked Action. And therefore spare these, and execute thy Vengeance upon more proper Objects.

27 And now this ‖ blessing r which thine handmaid hath brought unto my lord, let it even be given unto the young men that † follow my lord s.

‖ Or, present.

† Heb. walk at the feet of, &c.

r So a Gift or Present is called here, and Gen. 33. 11. and elsewhere; not only because the matter of it comes from God's blessing; but also because it is given with a Blessing, or with a good Will. s As being unworthy of thine acceptance or use.

28 I pray thee, forgive the trespass of thine handmaid t: for the LORD will certainly make my lord a sure house u, because my lord fighteth the battels of the LORD x, and evil hath not been found in thee, all thy days y.

t i. e. Which I have taken upon my self, v. 24, and which, if it be not Pardoned, but Punished, the Punishment will reach to me. u i. e. Will give the Kingdom to thee, and to thy House for ever, as he hath promised thee. And therefore let God's great kindness to thee, make thee gentle and merciful to others; do not sully thy approaching Glory with the stain of Innocent Blood; but consider, that it is the glory of a King (which thou art by God's appointment, and shall ere long actually be) to pass by Offences; and that it will be thy loss to act contrary to such as will thereby be profited. x i. e. For the Lord's sake, and for the People of the Lord against their Enemies; especially, the Philistines. And as that this is thy proper Work, and therein thou mayest expect God's blessing and help; so it is not thy work to draw thy Sword in thy own private quarrel against any of the people of the Lord; and God will not bless thee in it. y Though thou hast been oft aspersed, and charged with many Crimes, by Saul and others; yet thy Innocency hath been, and is evident to all Men: Do not therefore now by this cruel act of Vengeance justifie thine Enemies Reproaches, nor blemish thy great and just Reputation.

29 Yet a man z is risen to pursue thee, and to seek thy soul a: but the soul of my lord shall be bound in the bundle of life b with the LORD thy God c, and the souls of thine enemies, them shall he fling out, † as out of the middle of a sling d.

† Heb. in the midst of the bought of a sling.

z To wit, Saul, though no way injured nor justly provoked by thee. a i. e. To take away thy Life. b Or, in the bundle: i. e. In the Society, or Congregation of the living; out of which, men are taken, and cut off by Death. The Phrase is taken from the common usage of Men, who bind those things in bundles, which they are afraid to lose, because things that are solitary and unbound, are soon lost. The meaning of the place is, God will preserve thy Life; and therefore it becomes not thee, unjustly and unnecessarily to take away the Lives of any; especially of the People of thy God and Saviour. c i. e. In the hand and custody of God, who, by his watchful Providence, preserves this Bundle, and all that are in it; and thee in a particular and singular manner, as being thy God in a peculiar way, and special Covenant. God himself will hide, and keep thee in the secret of his Presence. Psal. 31. 20. where no hand of violence can reach thee. And therefore all the Attempts of Saul or others against thee, are vain and ridiculous. For who can destroy whom God will keep? d God himself will cut them off suddenly, violently, and irresistibly; and cast them far away; both from his Presence, and from thy Neighbourhood, and from all capacity of doing thee any hurt.

30 And it shall come to pass, when the LORD shall have done to my lord, according to all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have appointed thee ruler over Israel;

31 That this shall be † no grief unto thee, nor † Heb. an offence of heart unto my lord e, either that thou Stumbling or Remorse. hast shed blood causeless f, or that my lord † hath Heb. saving. avenged himself g: but when the LORD shall have † Heb. dealt well with my lord, then remember thine hand-Israel so, Jose. 6. 26. maid h.

e Thy Mind and Conscience will be free from all the Torments which the guilt and shame of such an Action would cause in thee. By which, the cunningly insinuates, what a blemish this would be to his Glory, what a disturbance to his Peace and Felicity, if he proceeded to execute his Purpose: and withal implies, how sweet and comfortable it would be to him to remember, that he had for conscience to God denied himself, and restrained his Passions. f Which he signifies would be done if he should go on. For though Nabal had been guilty of abominable Rudeness, Unchristianness, and Ingratitude; yet he had done nothing worthy of Death, by the Laws of God or of Man. And whatsoever he had done, the rest of his Family were innocent. g Which is directly contrary to God's Law, Levit. 19. 18. Deut. 32. 35. compare with Rom. 12. 19. h When God shall make thee King, and I shall have occasion to apply my self to thee for Justice, or Relief, let me find Grace in thy sight, and do let me do at this time. Or, and the Lord will bless my lord, and recompense thee for this Mortification of thy Passion, and thou wilt remember thine handmaid: i. e. Thou wilt remember my Counsel with satisfaction to thy self, and thankfulness to me.

32 ¶ And David said unto Abigail, Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, which sent thee i this day to meet me:

i Which by his gracious and singular Providence so disposed Matters, that thou shouldest come to me: He rightly begins at the Fountain of this Deliverance, which was God; and then proceeds to the Instruments.

33 And blessed be thy advice, and blessed be thou k, which hast kept me this day from coming to shed blood l, and from avenging my self with mine own hand.

k i. e. The Lord bless and recompense thee, for this thy good Advice. l Which I had sworn to do. Hereby it plainly appears, That Oaths whereby Men bind themselves to any Sin, are Null and Void: and as it was a Sin to make them; so it is adding sin to sin to perform them.

34 For in very deed, as the Lord God of Israel liveth, which hath kept me back from hurting thee m, except thou hadst hasted and come to meet me, surely there had not been left unto Nabal by the morning light, any that pisseth against the wall.

m Not that he intended to kill her, but the Males only: as was noted on v. 22. But their Destruction was a dreadful Affliction and Damage to her.

35 So David received of her hand that which she had brought him, and said unto her, Go up in peace to thine house: see, I have hearkened to thy voice, and have accepted thy person n.

n i. e. Shewed my Acceptance of thy Person, by my grant of thy Request: See Gen. 19. 21.

36 ¶ And Abigail came to Nabal, and behold he held a feast in his house like the feast of a king o, and Nabals heart was merry within him, for he was very drunken: wherefore she told him nothing p, less or more, until the morning light.

o As the manner was upon those solemn Occasions. Sordid Covetousness, and vain Prodigality were met together in him. p He being then uncapable of Admonition, his Reason and Conscience being both asleep.

37 But it came to pass in the morning, when the wine was gone out of Nabal, and his wife had told him these things that his heart died within him, and he became as a stone q.

q He was oppressed with Grief, and fainted away through the fear and horror of so great a Mischief, though it was past. As one, who having in the Night galloped over a narrow Plank, laid upon a broken Bridge, over a deep River; when in the Morning he came to review it, was struck dead with the horror of the danger he was in.

38 And it came to pass about ten days after, that the LORD smote Nabal, that he died r.

r God either inflicted some other stroke or Disease upon him, or increased his Grief and Fear to such an height, as killed him.

39 ¶ And when David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, Blessed be the LORD, that hath pleaded the cause of my reproach from the hand of Nabal s, and hath kept his servant from evil t: for the LORD hath returned the wickedness of Nabal upon his own head. And David sent u and communed with Abigail, to take her to him to wife.

s How could David rejoyce at the Death of his Enemy? Answ. Although it may be said, that he rejoyced not in Nabal's Death as such, but only in the declaration of God's Justice in Punishing so great a Wickedness; which was an honour to God, and a document, and therefore a benefit to Mankind, and so a Publick good, and cause of Joy: Yet the matter is not weighty, if we confess, that this was another instance of Humane Infirmity in David, and that that it is not propos'd for our Imitation, but for our Caution. Yet it may be further said, That this was not purely an act of private Revenge, because David was a Publick Person, and Anointed King: and therefore Nabal's Reproach cast upon David above, v. 10, 11. was a contempt of God, and of his Ordinance and Appointment; which was vindicated by this remarkable Judgment. t i. e. From the sin of Blood-shed and Self-revenge, v. 33. u To wit, Messengers; which he thought fitter than to go himself; partly, because if he had met with a Repulse, it had been less Ignominious; and partly, because he would leave her to her freedom and choice, and would not so much as seem to take her by violence. But this doubtless was not done immediately after Nabal's Death, but in some convenient space of time after it; though such Circumstances be commonly omitted in the Sacred History; which gives only the Heads, and most important Passages of things.

40 And when the servants of David were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake unto her, saying, David sent us unto thee, to take thee to him to wife.

41 And she arose, and bowed her self on her face to the earth, and said x, Behold, let thine handmaid be a servant to wash the feet of the servants of my lord.

x She shewed this Reverence, and spake thus to them, as representing David's Person.

42 And Abigail hasted, and arose and rode upon an ass, with five damsels of hers that went † after her: and she went after the messengers of David y, and became his wife.

y Not immediately, but some competent time after they were gone. She considered not David's present Straits and penury, which she thought her plentiful Estate might supply; nor his danger from Saul; but by a true and strong Faith, rested upon God's Promise made to David, not doubting but God would perform it.

43 David also took Ahinoam † of Jezreel, and they were also both of them his wives.

† Or, Ezr, as the Hebrew Vau is oft-times used. For this seems to be added, as a reason why David took other Wives, because Saul had given his former Wife to another Man, that he might as far as he could extinguish all Relation and Kindred to him, whom he hated; and withal, cut off his Hopes and Pretence to the Crown upon that account.

44 ¶ But z Saul had given * Michal his daughter, Davids wife, to Phalti the son of Laish, which was of Gallim.

z Or, Had, as the Hebrew Vau is oft-times used. For this seems to be added, as a reason why David took other Wives, because Saul had given his former Wife to another Man, that he might as far as he could extinguish all Relation and Kindred to him, whom he hated; and withal, cut off his Hopes and Pretence to the Crown upon that account.

CHAP. XXVI.

Saul by the discovery of the Ziphites cometh to Hachilah against David, 1—3. Who cometh with Abishai to Saul's Camp; slayeth him from killing Saul, but taketh his Spear and Cruse, 5,——12. He upbraideth Abner, 13,——17. Exhorteth Saul, 18,——20. who acknowledgeth his sin, 21,——25.

AND the Ziphites came unto Saul a to Gibeah, saying, * Doth not David hide himself in the hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon b?

a Having once betrayed him before, they thought their Cafe desperate with David; and therefore did more strenuously assist Saul in discovering him, in order to his Ruine. b He is returned to his former hours: of which see Chap. 23. 19. This place might be convenient for him, either for its nearness to Abigail's Estate: or because he might think, that Saul was mollified, and the Ziphites cautioned by the unsuccessfulness of their former attempt: or because he could from thence, make good his Retreat into other places, if need were.

2 Then Saul arose, and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, having three thousand chosen men of Israel with him, to seek David in the wilderness of Ziph.

3 And Saul pitched in the hill of Hachilah which is before Jeshimon by the way: but David abode in the wilderness, and he saw c that Saul came after him into the wilderness.

c i. e. He understood by Information, probably, from his dear friend Jonathan.

4 David therefore sent out spies, and understood that Saul was come in very deed.

5 ¶ And David arose, and came to the place where Saul had pitched d: and David beheld the place where Saul lay, and * Abner the son of Ner the captain of his host: and Saul lay in the ‖ trench e, and the people pitched round about him.

d Came near to the skirts of Saul's Camp; which he might easily discover from some neighbouring Hill, or Wood: and yet, not be discerned himself. And it is probable, he came rather disguised, and towards Night. e Encompassed with his Carriages for better Security. Compare, 1 Sam. 17. 20.

6 Then answered David, and said to Ahimelech the Hittite f, and to Abishai the son of Zeruiah g, brother to Joab, saying, Who will go down with me to Saul to the camp? And Abishai said, I will go down with thee.

f So called, either because he was one of that Nation, but Converted to the Jewish Religion: Compare 2 Sam. 11. 3. and 23. 39. Or, from his Habitation amongst, or some Relation to some of that People. g David's Sister: See 1 Chron. 2. 16. His Father is not named; either because he was now dead; or because he was an obscure Person.

7 So David and Abishai came to the people h by night, and behold, Saul lay sleeping within the trench, and his spear stuck in the ground at his bolster: but Abner and the people lay round about him.

b i. e. To Saul's Host and Camp. It might seem a bold and strange Attempt; but many things are to be considered in it. That Heroical Persons have oft attempted this as of no less difficulty and danger than this was; as many credible Histories declare. 2. That David did, and might easily perceive, that they were all fast asleep. 3. That David had a particular Assurance that God would protect him to the Kingdom. 4. That he had a special Instinct from God, to this Work; and possibly God might inform him, that he had cast them into a dead sleep, that he might have this Record opportunity of manifesting his Innocency towards Saul, and the Justice of his Cause.

8 Then said Abishai to David, God hath † delivered thine enemy into thine hand this day: now † Heb. shut up. therefore let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear, even to the earth at once, and I will not smite him the second time i.

i I will Nail him to the Ground at one blow, that I shall not need a second stroke.

9 And David said to Abishai, Destroy him not: for who can stretch forth his hand against the LORD's anointed, and be guiltless k?

k Though Saul be a cruel Tyrant, and reiected by God, yet he is our Sovereign Lord and King; and I, though deposed King, as yet am but a private Person, and his Subject: and therefore cannot kill him without Sin, nor will I consent that thou should'st do it.

10 David said furthermore, As the LORD liveth, the LORD shall smite him l, or his day shall come to die m, or he shall descend into battel and perish.

l By some sudden and mortal Stroke. m According to the course of Nature.

11 The LORD forbid that I should stretch forth mine hand against the LORD's anointed: but, I pray thee, take thou now the spear that is at his bolster n, and the cruse of water o, and let us go.

n Which will shew where we have been, and where we could have done. o Which might be put there, either to wash himself in case of any accidental Pollution, which oft happened in the Night: or to refresh him, and quench his thirst in that hot Climate and Season: or for divers other uses.

12 So David took the spear, and the cruse of water from Sauls bolster, and they gat them away, and no man saw it, nor knew it, neither awaked: for they were all asleep, because a deep sleep † from the LORD was fallen upon them.

† Heb. of the LORD.

p Sent upon them by the Lord, for David's advantage.

13 ¶ Then David went over to the other side, and stood on the top of an hill afar off; a great space being between them.

q That his Person might be out of their reach, and that his Voice might be heard; which in a clear Air, and in the silence of the Night might be heard at a great distance.

14 And David cried to the people, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, Answerest thou not, Abner? Then Abner answered and said, Who art thou that criest to the king?

r Or, with or beside the king, i. e. So near to him, for as to disturb the King.

15 And David said to Abner, Art not thou a valiant man? and who is like to thee s in Israel? Wherefore then hast thou not kept thy lord the king? for there came one of the people in to destroy the king thy lord.

s For Courage and Conduct: and therefore thy fault herein is the greater.

16 This thing is not good: that thou hast done: as the LORD liveth, ye are † worthy to die, because ye have not kept your master the LORD's anointed. And now see where the kings spear is, and the cruse of water that was at his bolster.

† Heb. Sons of death.

t i. e. It is very bad, a great Crime. A Figure called Meiosis, as Deut. 12. 5. and 19. 2.

17 And Saul knew David's voice, and said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And David said, It is my voice, my lord, O king.

u As thou wilt my Son by Marriage, fo thou hast expected the care and affection of a Son to me now of late and time.

18 And he said, Wherefore doth my lord pursue after his Servant? for what have I done? or what evil is in mine hand?

19 Now

19 Now therefore, I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If the LORD have ſtirred thee up againſt me x, let him † accept an offering y: but if they be the children of men z, they be curſed before the LORD: for they have driven me out this day from † abiding in the inheritance of the LORD a, ſaying, Go, ſerve other gods b.

x If the Lord hath by the evil Spirit which he hath ſent, or by his ſecret Providence, directed thy Rage againſt me for the Puniſhment of thine, or my Sins. y Let us offer up a Sacrifice to God in order to appeaſe his Wrath againſt us. z Who by their craftie Inſinuations, and Calumnies, have incenſed thee againſt me. He ſheweth his Prudence, and Reverence, and Meekneſs; that he Accuſeth not the King, but tranſlateth the fault wholly upon his Evil Miniſters; as the Iſraelites do in the like Caſe Exod. 5. 16. a From the Land which God hath given to his People for their Inheritance, and where he hath eſtabliſhed his Preſence and Worſhip. a This was the Language of their Actions. For by driving him from God's Land, and the place of his Worſhip, into Foreign and Idolatrous Lands, they expoſed him to the peril of being either enſnared by their Counſels, or Examples; or forced by their threats and power to worſhip Idols.

20 Now therefore let not my blood fall to the earth b before the face of the LORD c: for the king of Iſrael is come out to ſeek a flea d, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains d.

* Chap. 24. 14.

b Do not attempt to ſpill my Innocent Blood like Water upon the ground. c Remember, if thou doeſt it, God the Juſtice of all Men ſeeth it, and will avenge it of thee; though I will not avenge my ſelf. d Hard to be taken, and not worth catching; a mean and contemptible Perſon. d Where his advantage doth no way compenſate his Labour.

21 ¶ Then ſaid Saul, I have ſinned. Return, my ſon David, for I will no more do thee harm, becauſe my ſoul was precious in thine eyes this day: behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly e.

e He not only confeſſeth, but aggravateth his fault, becauſe his Conſcience was fully convinced, though his Heart was not changed.

22 And David anſwered and ſaid, Behold the kings ſpear, and let one of the young men come over and fetch it.

23 The LORD render to every man his righteouſneſs and his faithfulneſs f: for the LORD delivered thee into my hand to day, but I would not ſtretch forth mine hand againſt the LORD's anointed.

f I deſire, that God would deal no otherwiſe with me, than I have dealt with thee.

24 And behold, as thy life was much ſet by this day in mine eyes, ſo let my life be much ſet by in the eyes of the LORD, and let him deliver me out of all tribulation.

25 Then Saul ſaid to David, Bleſſed be thou, my ſon David: thou ſhalt both † do great things, and alſo ſhalt ſtill prevail. So David went on his way g, and Saul returned to his place.

† Heb. in doing thou ſhalt do.

g Knowing Saul's unſtable and deceitful Heart, he would not truſt to any of his Profeſſions, or Promiſes, but kept out of his reach.

CHAP. XXVII.

David with his 600 Men, and all his Family, goeth to K. Achiſh: And obteineth there a while: Saul purſueth no more after him, 1.—4. He obtaineth Ziklag of Achiſh to dwell in, 5.—7. He invadeth his neighbour Nations: Leaves no man alive to complain: Perſuadeth Achiſh he fought againſt Judah, 8.——12.

† Heb. he conſumed.

AND David ſaid in his heart, I ſhall now † periſh one day by the hand of Saul a: there is nothing better for me, than that I ſhould ſpeedily eſcape into the land of the Philiſtines b, and Saul ſhall deſpair of me, to ſeek me any more in any coaſt of Iſrael, ſo ſhall I eſcape out of his hand.

a I ſee by this late experience his reſtleſs and implacable hatred againſt me; and how little heed is to be given to all his pretences of Repentance or Friendſhip. b But this was certainly a very great miſtake and fault in David: for 1. This proceeded from groſs diſtruſt of God's Promiſe and Providence; and that after ſuch repeated demonſtrations of God's peculiar Care over him, which gave him cauſe to conclude, quite contrary to what is here ſaid. 2. He forſakes the place where God had ſettled him, Chap. 22. 5. and given him both aſſurance and experience of his Protection there. 3. He voluntarily runs upon that Rock, which he curſed his Enemies for throwing him upon, Chap. 26. 19. and upon many other Snares and Dangers, as the following hiſtory will ſhew; and withal, deprives the people of the Lord of thoſe ſuccours which he might have given them, in caſe of a Battel. But it pleaſed God to leave David to himſelf in this, as well as in other particulars, that theſe might be ſenſible demonſtrations of the Infirmities of the beſt Men; and of the neceſſity of God's Grace, and daily direction and aſſiſtance: and of the treaſures and riches of God's Mercy, in paſſing by ſuch great Offences. And beſides, God hereby deſigned to accompliſh his own Counſel, to withdraw David from the Iſraelites, that Saul and they might fall by the hand of the Philiſtines, without any reproach or inconvenience to David, whom God had put into a ſafe place.

2 And David aroſe, and he paſſed over with the ſix hundred men that were with him, unto Achiſh the ſon of Maoch, king of Gath c.

c It might ſeem a bold adventure: but 1. He thought himſelf forced to it by Saul's inveterate Rage, and continued reſolutions to Perſecute him. 2. It is probable, he had ſent ſome Perſons to Treat with him, and had agreed upon Conditions; and received aſſurance of his fafe and peaceable abode with him. 3. David reaſonably thought, that Achiſh would gladly receive him, as indeed he did; partly, becauſe he ſaw Saul's implacable Enmity againſt him: partly, becauſe by this means he ſhould be freed from the moſt formidable Enemy which he had in all Iſrael, who might do him moſt miſchief in the Battel; which it ſeems at this time he deſigned: and partly, becauſe he came not now alone, as he did before, but brought with him ſufficient Pledges of his Fidelity to Achiſh; namely, all his Soldiers, and his and their Wives, v. 3.

3 And David dwelt with Achiſh at Gath, he and his men, every man with his houſhold even David with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreeliteſs, and Abigail the Carmeliteſs, Nabals wife.

4 And it was told Saul that David was fled to Gath, and he ſought no more again for him d.

d By which it is implied, That he would have gone on in Perſecuting David, if he had continued in his Dominions.

5 ¶ And David ſaid unto Achiſh, If I have now found grace in thine eyes, let them give me a place in ſome town in the country, that I may dwell there: for why ſhould thy ſervant dwell in the royal city with thee f?

e A prudent deſire. Hereby David deſigned, 1. To preſerve his People, both from the Idolatry, and other Vices, which converſation with the Philiſtines would have expoſed them to: and from that Envy, and Malice, and Mitchief, which diverſity of Religion, or other Prejudices, might have cauſed. 2. That he might have opportunity of enterprizing ſomething againſt God's Enemies, without the knowledge or obſervation of the Philiſtines. f Which is too great an honour for me, and too burdenſome to thee, and may be an occaſion of ſuſpicion and offence to thy People, and of many other inconveniences.

6 Then Achiſh gave him Ziklag g that day: wherefore Ziklag pertaineth unto the kings of Judah h unto this day i.

g Not only to Inhabit, but to Poſſeſs it as his own. Which he did, to lay the greater obligations upon David, whom he knew to able to ſerve him. h It was given to the Tribe of Judah before, Joſh. 15. 31. and afterwards to the Tribe of Simeon, Joſh. 19. 5. whoſe inheritance was given them within the inheritance of the children of Judah. Chap. 19. 1. But the Philiſtines kept the Poſſeſſion of it till this time, and were hitherto permitted to do ſo. And being now given by them to David, it now belonged not to the people of the Tribe of Judah, to whom it was allotted before; but to the King of Judah, David and his Heirs for ever. i This, and ſome ſuch Clauſes ſeem to have been added by ſome Sacred Writers, after the main ſubſtance of the ſeveral Books was written.

7 And † the time that David dwelt in the country of the Philiſtines, was † a full year and four months k.

† Heb. days and four months; days being put for a year; as in Levit. 25. 29. Or, ſome days and four months; i.e. Some days above † Heb. four Months. Or, ſome days and (for, even, or that is, the Conjunction, and, being oft ſo uſed, as hath been proved above) four months.

8 ¶ And David and his men went up, and invaded the Geſhurites, and the ‖ Gezrites l, and the Amalekites m: for thoſe nations were † of old the inhabitants of the land, as thou goeſt to Shur, even unto the land of Egypt.

‖ Or, Girzites.

† Heb. from of old.

l Who were anciently ſeated in other places, Joſh. 12. 12. and 13. 3. but for ſome reaſons not now known, they changed their Seats, as was then very uſual and feared themſelves and had for ſome conſiderable time lived near the Amalekites. m The remnant of thoſe whom Saul deſtroyed, 1 Sam. 15. who fled from his Sword, and retired into remote and deſert places.

9 And David ſmote the land, and left neither man nor woman alive n, and took away the ſheep, and the oxen, and the aſſes, and the camels, and the apparel, and returned, and came to Achiſh.

n To wit, in that part where he came: but there were more of the Amalekites yet left in another part of that land, Chap. 30. 1.

10 And Achiſh ſaid, ‖ Whither have ye made a road to day? And David ſaid, Againſt the ſouth of Judah, and p againſt the ſouth of the Jerahmeelites o, and againſt the ſouth of the Kenites r.

‖ Or, Upon what have you made a road to day?

o Theſe and the following Words are ambiguous: for they may be underſtood, either of the Southern parts of Judah, &c. which he would have Achiſh underſtand: or, of another Country lying Southward from Judah, &c. which David meant, and which was the truth. So though it was not a downright lye; yet it was an Equivocation, with an intention to deceive, which is the property of a Lye, and was contrary to that ſimplicity wh. h became a Saint both as a Prince, and as an eminent Profeſſor of the true Religion.

p For, that is: for in the following words, he particularly expreſſeth what part of the South of Judah he went againſt, even that which was Inhabited by the Jerahmeelites, and by the Kenites.

q The Poſterity of Hezron, a Family of Judah, 1 Chron. 2. 9, 25. r The Poſterity of Jethro, which choſe to dwell in the South of Judah, Judg. 1. 16. See Numb. 24. 21.

11 And David ſaved neither man nor woman alive, to bring tidings to Gath, ſaying, Leſt they ſhould tell on us s, ſaying, ſo did David, and ſo will be his manner all the while he dwelleth in the countrey of the Philiſtines.

s That the tidings of this Action againſt this People (who were, it ſeems, either Tributaries to, or confederates with Achiſh) might neither come quickly nor certainly to Achiſh his Court: which he might the rather promiſe himſelf, becauſe Achiſh and all his Men were now baſily imployed in their Warlike Preparations againſt the Iſraelites; and if any flying rumour came thither, he thought by his intereſt and Artifices he could eaſily diſcredit and daſh it. Beſides the conſideration of God's Curſe denounced againſt the People whom he had now deſtroyed, and of God's particular Promiſes made to him, and of his ſpecial Providence which he conſtantly experienced watching over him, made him more ſecure and confident in this and in many other hazardous attempts.

12 And Achiſh believed David t, ſaying, He hath made his people Iſrael † utterly to abhor him: therefore he ſhall be my ſervant for ever.

† Heb. to ſtink.

t Partly, becauſe of his confidence in David's Authority and Fidelity: partly, becauſe moſt Men eaſily believe what they heartily wiſh to be true: And partly, from God's Providence, which blinded him in this and in divers other particulars relating to David's coming hither, and abiding here.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Achiſh intending War againſt Iſrael, reſteth on David, 1.——2. Saul having deſtroyed the Witches, yet Samuel being dead, in his fear, forſaken of God, ſeeketh to a Witch, 3.——5. She, encouraged by Saul, raiſeth Samuel: Of whom hearing his approaching ruine, he ſwooneth, 9.——20. The Woman, with his Servants, refreſh him with Meat, 21.——25.

AND it came to paſs in thoſe days, that the Philiſtines gathered their armies together for warfare to fight with Iſrael a: And Achiſh ſaid unto David, Know thou aſſuredly, that thou ſhalt go out with me to battel b, thou and thy men.

a Encouraged thereunto by Samuel's death, and Saul's degeneration, and David's preſe ce with Achiſh. b This he ſaith, partly, to try his Sincerity; and partly, in confidence of David's Fidelity.

2 And David ſaid to Achiſh, Surely thou ſhalt know what thy ſervant can do c. And Achiſh ſaid to David, Therefore d will I make thee keeper of mine head for ever.

c He ſpeaks ambiguouſly, as he did before, that Achiſh might underſtand him, as he did, of his acting for him againſt the Iſraelites; whereas he meant it of his acting for the Iſraelites againſt the Philiſtines, to which he was obliged both by God's expreſs Command, and by his inſeſible and manifold obligations to God, and to God's People; and by his own manifeſt inocence. Though it is likely he would have managed his Affairs with all poſſible regard and care of Achiſh's Perſon, to whom alone, upon the matter, David ſtood obliged, and not to the reſt of the Philiſtines, who had an ill opinion of him, as we ſhall ſee. d For that Valour which I doubt not thou wilteſt ſhew on my behalf. e i.e. Of my Body and Life, the Captain of my Life-Guard.

3 ¶ Now e Samuel was dead: and all Iſrael had lamented him, and buried him in Ramah, even in his own city f: and Saul had put away thoſe that had familiar ſpirits, and the wizards g out of the land h.

f Where he had his Birth and Education, and moſt ſetled Habitation, 1 Sam. 19. 18. g According to God's Command, Levit. 19. 31. and 20. 6, 27. Deut. 18. 11. This he did, either by Samuel's Inſtigation: or from a conceit that the evil Spirit came upon him by ſome of their means: or, that he might gain the repute of a Religious Prince, which was very uſeful to him: or, that he might quiet his troubled Conſcience, and pleaſe God, as far as his Intereſt would give him leave. And this is here related, partly, to ſhew that an Hypocrite, and wicked Man, may obey ſome of God's Commands: and principally to bring in the following Hiſtory. h Of Iſrael.

† Or, Gaſh.

4 ¶ And the Philiſtines gathered themſelves together, and came and pitched in Shunem i: and Saul gathered all Iſrael together, and they pitched in Gilboa k.

i A Town in the Tribe of Iſſachar, Joſ. 19. 18. k A Mountain not far from the Valley of Jezreel, where the Battel was fought, chap. 31. 1. 2 Sam. 1. 21. So the two Armies ſeem to be placed in the ſame manner as they were chap. 17. each upon an Hill, and a Valley between them.

5 And when Saul ſaw the hoſt of the Philiſtines l, he was afraid, and his heart greatly trembled m.

l From Mount Gilboa, chap. 31. 1. m Partly, from the greatneſs and reſoluteneſs of the Hoſt of the Philiſtines, who were the apreſſors: partly, from the loſs of David, who might, have been of great uſe to him at this time: partly, from the Conſcience of his own manifeſt Guilt, and juſt expectation of Divine Vengeance oft threatned, and now in all likelihood to be inflicted upon him.

6 And when Saul enquiredof the LORD n, the LORD anſwered him not o, neither by dreams, nor by Urim, nor by Prophets p.

n In his ſlight and perfunctory way, as chap. 14. 19. as appears from hence, that when God did not ſpeedily anſwer him, he goes to the Devil for an anſwer, v. 7. For which reaſon he is ſaid, not to have enquired of the Lord, 1 Chron. 10. 14. i.e. not ſeriouſly, and after the right order. Preſſably he enquired by ſome Prophet then with him, or by the Prieſt before the Ark. o Becauſe he fought him not in due order; not by the Urim and Thummim which were in the Ephod, which he by his cruelty to the Prieſts had loſt, chap. 23. 6. and becauſe he did not truly repent of, nor put away his ſins, which provoked God, and kept him from anſwering; as 38. 39. p i.e. Neither by ordinary means, nor extraordinary.

7 ¶ Then ſaid Saul unto his ſervants, Seek me a woman q that hath a familiar ſpirit r, that I may go to her, and enquire of her. And his ſervants ſaid to him ſ, Behold, there is a woman that hath a familiar ſpirit at Endor t.

q Rather than a man; for he thought that Sex moſt likely to be given to thoſe wicked Arts, as being the weaker Sex, and to apreſt to be deceived, and moſt prone to Superſtition, and of times moſt malicious and revengeful. r One that converſeth with the Devil, and dead Men's Ghoſts, and by them can diſcover future things. See Iſa. 8. 19. ſ Inſtead of diſſuading him from this wicked and deſtructive practice, which they ſhould and would have done, if they had either loved God or their King, they further him in it. t A place in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, within Judah, not very far from the place where the Armies were encamped.

8 And Saul diſguiſed himſelf u, and put on other raiment, and he went, and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night, and he ſaid, I pray thee divine unto me by the familiar ſpirit, and bring me him up whom I ſhall name unto thee.

u Both becauſe he was aſhamed to be known, or thought guilty of this practice; and becauſe he ſuſpected that the Woman, had ſhe known him, would not practice her Art before him.

9 And the woman ſaid unto him, Behold, thou knoweſt x what Saul hath done, how he hath cut off thoſe that have familiar ſpirits, and the wizards out of the land: wherefore then layeſt thou a ſnare for my life, to cauſe me to die y?

x For his Speech and Garb diſcovered him to be an Iſraelite, and therefore acquainted with theſe matters. y By adviſing me to Saul as guilty of a capital Crime.

10 And Saul ſware to her by the LORD, ſaying, As the LORD liveth, there ſhall no † puniſhment happen to thee for this thing.

† Heb. iniquity.

So Or.

11 Then ſaid the woman, Whom ſhall I bring up unto thee? And he ſaid, Bring me up Samuel z.

z Whoſe kindneſs and compaſſion to him, as he had formerly experienced, ſo now he expected it in his deep diſtreſs. This practice of divination by the dead, or by the Ghoſts or Souls of dead Perſons, called up by Magical Art, was very uſual among all Nations, and from them Saul learned it.

12 And when the woman ſaw Samuel, ſhe cryed with a loud voice a: and the woman ſpake to Saul, ſaying, Why haſt thou deceived me? For thou art Saul b.

a For fear of her life, Saul himſelf being Witneſs of her Crime. b This ſhe knew, either by ſome geſture or Reverence, which thus ſuppoſed Samuel might ſhew to Saul, as to the King: or, by ſome intimation from this Ghoſt, or from the Spirit by whom he, ſhe had called him.

13 And the king ſaid unto her, Be not afraid: for what ſaweſt thou? And the woman ſaid unto Saul, I ſaw ‖ gods aſcending out of the earth c.

‖ Or, a God.

c i.e. A god, a divine Perſon, glorious and full of majeſty and ſplendor, exceeding not only mortal Men, but common Gods. She uſeth the Plural Number, gods, either after the manner of the Hebrew Language, which commonly uſeth the word of one Perſon or, after the Language and Cuſtom of the Heathens. But the whole Coherence ſhows that it was but one. For Saul deſired but one, v. 11. and he enquires, and the Woman anſwers only of one, v. 14. d As if it came from the place of the dead.

14 And he ſaid unto her, What form is he of? And the ſaid, An old man cometh up, and he is covered with a mantle e. And Saul perceived that it was Samuel ſ, and he ſtooped with his face to the ground, and bowed himſelf.

† Heb. what is his form?

e The uſual Habit of Prophets, 2 Kings 2. 8, 13. Zech. 13. 4. and particularly of Samuel, 1 Sam. 15. 27. ſ The Woman preceeded, and Saul upon her ſuggeſtion believed that it was Samuel indeed; and to many Pagoſts, and ſome other Writers conceived. But that it was not Samuel, but the Devil repreſenting Samuel, is ſufficiently evident. For, Firſt, It is moſt incredible, that God, who had juſt now refuſed to anſwer Saul by the means which himſelf appointed, and uſed in that caſe, would anſwer him, or ſuffer Samuel to anſwer him in that way, and upon the uſe of thoſe means which God detested and contemned: which would have given great countenance and encouragement to Saul and the Witch, and all Professors and Considers of those Devilish Arts. Secondly, There are divers passages in this Relation which plainly discover that this was no good, but an evil Spirit: As first, That he receives that Worship from Saul, v. 12. which good Spirits would not suffer, Revel. 12. 10. and 22. 8, 9. Secondly, That amongst his other sins for which he condemneth him, he omitteth this of asking Counsel of one that had a familiar Spirit, to enquire of it a fit which transgression, which is here, he is expressly said to have died, 1 Chron. 10. 13. which the true Samuel, who was so zealous for God's Honour, and so faithful a Reprover, would never have neglected, especially now, when he takes Saul in the very Fact. Thirdly, That he pretends himself to be disquieted, and brought up, v. 15. by Saul's Impiety, and the Witches Arts; which is most false, and impious, and absurd to imagine, concerning those blessed Souls who are reconciled to their God, Eph. 2. 16. and entred into peace and rest, Isa. 57. 2. and lodged in Abraham's bosom, Luk. 16. 22. and rest from their labours, Revel. 14. 13. The only Argument of any colour to the contrary, is only this, That the Devil could not so particularly and punctually answer Saul's former Events, as this Samuel doth, v. 16. For this also hath little weight in it, it being confessed and more easily known, that evil Spirits lurked in the Oracles of the Heathens, and otherwhiles have oft times foretold future contingencies; for God being pleased to Reveal such things to them, and to permit them to be the Instruments of Revealing them to Men, for the trial of Faith, and for the terror and punishment of others. Besides, the Devil might forsee this by strong conjectures, as by the manifestest, strength, courage, and refolutenefs of the Philistine Host, and the quite contrary constitution of the Israelites, and by divers other things not unknown to the reach of mortal Men, but such as were above humane Prudence: he reach of mortal Men, but such as he in his great Sagacity could eafily discern. And for that expreſs determination of the time, to morrow, v. 19. that word may be understood not of the very next day, but indefinitely of some short time after this, as it is taken, Exod. 13. 14. Deut. 6. 20. Jos. 4. 6, 21. And then it was easie to gather from the present posture of the two Armies, that the Fight and the Rout of the Israelites was very near. And that it was not the very next day, but some days after this, is evident from the extreme scarcity of the Story, and hath been proved by a late Learned Writer. See my Latin Synopſis on this place.

15 ¶ And Samuel said to Saul, Why hast thou disquieted me to bring me up g? And Saul answered, I am sore distressed; for the Philistines make war against me, and God is departed from me, and answereth me no more, neither † by prophets, nor by dreams h: therefore I have called thee, that thou mayest make known unto me what I shall do.

g As the Devil appeared in Samuel's Shape and Garb, so also he speaketh in his Person, that he might enſnare Saul, and encourage either to seek to him in this wicked way. And God permits him to do so for Saul's great condemnation and punishment. h He counteth the Urim here, because he neither did nor could enquire by that, because Ahimelech had carried it away to David, and to be expected to answer that way.

16 Then said Samuel, Wherefore then dost thou ask of me, seeing the LORD is departed from thee, and is become thine enemy?

17 And the LORD hath done ‖ to him i, as he spake by † me k: for the LORD hath rent the kingdom out of thine hand, and given it to thy neighbour, even to David:

‖ Or, for himself. † Chap. 15. 27. † Heb. mine hand.

i i. e. To David, as it is explained in the following words. The Pronoun Relative put before the Noun to which it belongs, as is usual in the Hebrew Text, as Pſal. 97. 1. and 105. 19. Prov. 7. 7, 8. Jer. 40. 5. Otherwise, to him, is put for to thee; such changes of Persons being frequent among the Hebrews. Otherwise, for himself, i. e. for the accomplishment of his Counsel, and Prediction, and Oath, and for the Glory of his Justice and Holiness. k Still he nourisheth this perſuasion in Saul, that it was the true Samuel that spake to him.

† Chap. 15. 19.

18 † Because thou obeyedst not the voice of the LORD, nor executedst his fierce wrath upon Amalek l, therefore hath the LORD done this thing unto thee this day.

l He mentions this as an eminent instance of his disobedience.

Chap. 31. 7.

19 Moreover, the LORD will also deliver † Israel with thee, into the hand of the Philistines: and to morrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me m: the LORD also shall deliver the host of Israel into the hand of the Philistines.

† Heb. Israel.

m i. e. In the state of the dead; and so it was true both of Saul and Jonathan. Or, in the state of rest: For though thou shalt suffer here for the sin, yet after death thou shalt be happy, as dying in the Lord's Quarrel: So the Devil's design might be to flatter Saul into an opinion of his own future happiness, and so take him off from all serious thoughts and cares about it. And it is here observable, that as it was the manner of the Heathen Oracles to answer ambiguously, the better to save his credit in case of mistake, (the Devil himself not being certain of future events, but only conjecturing at what was most likely:) so doth this counterfeit Samuel here. For, as concerning the time, he says to morrow: which he understood indefinitely for the very next day, or for some short time after. And, as concerning the condition, thou shalt be with me; which may be understood either of a good condition, if understood as spoken in the Person of Samuel; or, of a bad condition, if understood as spoken by an evil Spirit; or, at least indefinitely of a dead condition, be it good or evil: which last he foresaw by circumstances to be very likely.

20 Then Saul † fell straightway all along on the earth n, and was sore afraid, because of the words of Samuel, and there was no strength in him: for he had eaten no bread all the day, nor all the night.

n Being quite dis-spirited with these sad and surprizing tidings, and so unable to stand.

21 ¶ And the woman came unto Saul o, and saw that he was sore troubled, and said unto him, Behold, thine handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and I have put my life in my hand, and have hearkened unto thy words which thou spakest unto me.

o From whom she departed, when she had brought him and Samuel together, that they might more freely converse together, as being alone.

22 Now therefore, I pray thee, hearken thou also unto the voice of thine hand-maid p, and let me set a morsel of bread before thee; and eat, that thou mayest have strength when thou goest on thy way.

p This earnestness did not come meerly from her humanity and respect to Saul, but from a prudent and necessary care of her self, because if Saul had died in her House, his Blood would have been charged upon her.

23 But he refused, and said I will not eat. But his servants, together with the woman, compelled him q, and he hearkened unto their voice: so he arose from the earth, and sate upon the bed.

q i. e. Did over-perſuade him, by importunate intreaties, as the next words shew.

24 And the woman had a fat calf in the house, and she hasted, and killed it, and took flour, and kneaded it, and did bake unleavened *bread*s thereof.

r Not having time to Leaven it.

25 And she brought it before Saul, and before his servants, and they did eat: then they rose up, and went away that night s.

s i. e. Before Morning. For he came by Night, v. 8. and went away before Day; not willing to have it discovered that he had consulted with a Witch.

CHAP. XXIX.

David marching with the Philistines: is disallowed by their Princes: Achiſh pleadeth for him, and against his will, disimiſseth him. 1, —. He expostulateth with Achiſh, 2. His Answer, 5, 10. David departeth, 11.

NOW the Philistines gathered together all their armies to Aphek a: and the Israelites pitched by a fountain which is in Jezreel.

a Either, that in the Tribe of Asher, Jos. 19. 24. or rather another Town of that Name in Issachar, though not mentioned elsewhere in Scripture; this being the case of many places, to be but once named.

2 And the lords of the Philistines passed on by hundreds, and by thousands: but David, and his men passed on the rereward with Achish b.

b i. e. As the Life-guard of Achiſh, as he had promised, cap. 28. 2. Achiſh being, as it seems, the General of the Army.

3 Then said the princes of the Philistines c, What do these Hebrews here? And Achish said unto the princes of the Philistines, Is not this David the servant of Saul the king of Israel, which hath been with me these days, or these years d, and I have found no fault in him, since he fell unto me unto this day.

c The Lords of the other eminent Cities and Territories, who were confederate with him in this expedition. d Q. d. and I say Days? I might have said Years; either because he hath now been with me a full Year and four Months, chap. 27. 7. or because he was with me some Years ago, 1 Sam. 21. 10. and since that time hath been known to me. And it is no improbable, but David, after his escape from thence, might hold some correſpondency with Achiſh, as finding him to be a Man of more generous Temper than the rest of the Philistines, and supposing that he might have need of him for a Refuge in case Saul continued to seek his Life. ∴ i. e. Since he revolted, or left his own King to turn to me. For that ſenſe Achiſh put upon this escape of David (as it is called chap. 27. 1.) and so it is the Phrase of falling to a party, elsewhere used, Jer. 37. 13, 14.

4 And the princes of the Philistines were wroth with him e; and the princes of the Philistines said unto him, * Make this fellow return, that he may go again to his place which thou hast appointed him f, and let him not go down with us to battel, lest in the battel he be an adversary to us: for wherewith should he reconcile himself unto his master? should it not be with the heads of these men g?

* Gen. 21. 10.

e Were unsatisfied and offended with Achiſh for this Intension and Declaration. f Herein the wise and gracious Providence of God appeared, both in helping him out of those Snares and Difficulties, out of which no human wit could have extricated him, but he must either have been, or have been thought to be a Traitor, and an ungrateful unworthy Person either to the one or to the other side; and moreover in giving him the happy opportunity of recovering his own, and his All from the Amalekites, which had been irrecoverably loſt, if he had gone into this Battel. And the Kindness of God to David was the greater, because it had been most just for God to have left David in all those Difficulties into which his own sinful Counsel and Course had brought him. g i. e. Of these our Soldiers? They speak according to the Rules of Reaſon and true Policy; for by this very Courſe, great Enemies have sometimes been reconciled together.

5 Is not this David, of whom they sang one to another in dances, saying, * Saul slew his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

* Chap. 18. 6, 7. & 21. 11.

6 ¶ Then Achish called David, and said unto him, Surely, as the LORD liveth h, thou hast been upright, and thy going out, and thy coming in with me i in the host is good in my sight; for I have not found evil in thee, since the day of thy coming unto me k, unto this day: nevertheless † the lords favour thee not.

† Heb. are not good in the eyes of the lords.

h He sweares by Jehovah; either, because he did acknowledge their Jehovah to be a God, being, it may be, convinced and instructed therein by David, though he did worship Dagon with him, and above him: or, because this was David's God, and therefore he swore by him; partly, out of complaisance with David, that he might receive his unwelcome Message to him with less offence; and partly, that this Oath might gain more Credit to his words with David. i i. e. The whole Conversation with me. See chap. 18. 13. and many other places where that Phrase is used. k Though before that time there was Evil in thee towards me and my People.

7 Wherefore now return and go in peace, that thou † displease not the lords of the Philistines.

† Heb. do not evil in the eyes of the lords of the Philistines.

8 ¶ And David said unto Achish, But what have I done? and what hast thou found in thy servant so long as I have been † with thee unto this day, that I may not go to fight against the enemies of my lord the king l?

l This was deep dissimulation and flattery, but he apprehended it needful, left he should tacitly confess himself guilty of that whereof they accused him, and thereby expose himself to the utmost hazards. Those perplexities he brought himself into by his irregular course, in forsaking the Land of Judah, where God had placed him, chap. 22. 5. and promised him Protection, and putting himself into the hands of the Philistines.

9 And Achish answered and said to David, I know that thou art good in my sight, as an angel of God m: notwithstanding the princes of the Philistines have said, He shall not go up with us to the battel.

m In whom nothing is blame-worthy. Or, it may be used to expreſs David's great Wisdom; (as well as Integrity) as 2 Sam. 14. 17. and 2 Sam. 19. 27. The Heathens acknowledged good Spirits, which also they worshipped as an inferior sort of Deities, who were Messengers and Ministers to the Supreme God; only Achiſh had learned the Title of Angels, from the Israelites his Neighbours, and especially from David's Conversation.

10 Wherefore now rise up early in the morning, with thy masters servants n that are come with thee: and as soon as ye be up early in the morning, and have light, depart o.

n He insinuates the ground of the Philistines Jealousie concerning David and his Men, that they were all Servants of Saul, and therefore had an Obligation, and were suspected to have an Affection to their old Lord and Master, against whom even David himself could not make them fight, especially with, and for the Philistines. o Before the Battel begin, leſt, if you delay, the Lords of the Philistines fall upon you, and destroy you.

11 So David and his men rose up early to depart in the morning, to return into the land of the Philistines, and the Philistines went up to Jezreel.

CHAP. XXX.

The Amalekites in David's abſence ſpoil Ziklag: and carry away the people and his two wives captives, 1, —5. David asking counſel is encouraged by God to purſue them, 7, —10. By the means of an Egyptian, who was left behind, he is brought to the enemies, and routeth all the ſpoil: and ſpoileth them, 11, —22. Medes an order for the dividing the prey, 23, —25. Sendeth preſents to his friends, 26, —31.

AND it came to paſs, when David and his men were come to Ziklag on the third day a, that the Amalekites b had invaded the south c, and Ziklag, and smitten Ziklag d, and burnt it with fire:

a To wit, after David's departure from Achiſh; for Ziklag was at a great distance from the Camp and place of Fight, as appears from 2 Sam. 1. 2. and David's Men being all Foot-men, could make but slow Marches. b The remainders of that People who lived near those Parts where David had destroyed their Brethren, chap. 27. 8, 9.

c To wit, the Southern part of Judah, and the adjacent parts: See below, v. 14. d i. e. Sacked and spoiled it.

2 And had taken the women captives that were therein: they slew not any e, either great or small, but carried them away, and went on their way.

e Which was strange, considering how David dealt with them, chap. 27. 9. But this must be ascribed partly to their hellish or fleshly Interest: for they might reserve them, either to make sale of them for their Profit, or to abuse them for their Lust; or, in order to revenge themselves upon David and his Men, by reserving them to extraordinary, and lingring, and repeated punishments; but principally, to God's over-ruling and wonderful Providence, who let these Bounds to their Rage: and though he designed to ſcourge David's Sin and Folly, yet would not deliver him nor his up to death.

3 ¶ So David and his men came to the city, and behold, it was burnt with fire, and their wives, and their sons, and their daughters were taken captives.

4 Then David and the people that were with him lift up their voice and wept, until they had no more power to weep f.

f Till either the Humour was wholly spent, or the Conſideration of their Calamity had made them ſtupid.

5 And Davids two wives were taken captives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite.

6 And David was greatly distressed: for the people spake of stoning him g, because the soul of all the people was † grieved, every man for his sons, and for his daughters: but David encouraged himself in the LORD his God h.

g As the Author of their Miſeries, by causing to Ziklag at first, by provoking the Amalekites to this Course, and by countenancing or marching away with Achiſh, and leaving their Wives and Children unguarded. h i. e. In this that he is always, and allowedly God, was his God by Covenant-relation, and typical Grace, constant and fatherly all these, as he had shewed himself to be in the whole course of his Providence towards him.

7 And David said to Abiathar the priest, Ahimelechs son, I pray thee, bring me hither the ephod: and Abiathar brought thither the ephod to David.

8 And David enquired at the LORD, saying, Shall I pursue after this troop? shall I overtake them? And he answered him, Pursue, for thou shalt surely overtake them, and without fail recover all.

i And put it upon his back, that thus mast equipt he might go according to the Ordinance, Numb. 27. 21. See above, chap. 23. 6. It was fruitleſs of his former Error in not bringing it to him, of God by the Ephod, when he came to Achiſh, and when he were out with Achiſh to the Battel; and his Necessity now brings him to his Duty, and his Duty meets with Success.

k Before, O David answered more distinctly and punctually, chap. 23. 2. but now he answers ſpecifically, and leſt as an occasion, because his firſt here required more Faith. So gracious is our God, that he considers even the degree of our Necessities, and accommodates himself to them.

9 So David went, he and the six hundred men that were with him, and came to the brook Besor, where those that were left behind, stayed.

10 But David pursued, he and four hundred men: (for two hundred abode behind, which were so faint, that they could not go over the brook Besor.)

l A small number for such an Attempt: but God works through Faith, giving God the Glory of his Power and Faithfulness.

11 ¶ And they found an Egyptian in the field m, and brought him to David, and gave him bread, and he did eat; and they made him drink water;

m Whom by his Habit they guessed to be a Souldier, that had been engaged in that Expedition. n Partly, out of Boorishness and contempt of a perishing Creature: and partly, in hatred to, and detestation of him they might learn the true state of their Enemies.

12 And they gave him a piece of a cake of figs, and two clusters of raisins: and † when he had eaten, his spirit came again to him: for he had eaten no bread, nor drunk any water, three days, and three nights o.

† Heb. he revived.

o Which is to be understood Synecdochically of one whole day and part of two others, as the time is reckoned, chap. 25. 36. as appears from the next Verse, where he says, three days ago I fell sick, but in the Hebrew it is, to day is the third day since I fell sick.

13 And David said unto him, To whom belongest thou? and whence art thou? And he said, I am a young man of Egypt p, servant to an Amalekite, and my master left me q, because three days agone I fell sick.

p God by his Providence for ordering it, that he was not one of that cursed Race of the Amalekites, who were to be utterly destroyed, but an Egyptian, who might be spared. q In this Place and Condition: which was barbarous inhumanity: for he ought, and easily might have carried him away with the Prey which they had taken.

But

But he paid dear for this Cruelty, for this was the occasion of the ruine of him and of all their Company. And God by his secret Providence ordered the matter thus for that very end. So that there is no fighting against God, who can make the smallest accidents serviceable to the production of the greatest Effects.

14 We made an invasion upon the south of the Cherethites r, and upon the coast which belongeth to Judah, and upon the south of Caleb s, and we burnt Ziklag with fire.

r i.e. The Philistines, as is manifest from v. 16. who are so called Zeph. 2. 5. s This is added by way of Explication: q. d. that part of the South of Judah which belongs to Caleb's Posterity, Jos. 14. 13.

15 And David said to him, Canst thou bring me down to this company? And he said, Swear unto me by God, that thou wilt neither kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master, and I will bring thee down to this company t.

t For his Master had told him whither they intended to go, that he might come after them, as soon as he could.

16 ¶ And when he had brought him down, behold, they were spread abroad upon all the earth u, eating, and drinking, and dancing, because of all the great spoil that they had taken out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Judah.

u Secure and careless, because they were now come almost to the Borders of their own Country, and the Philistines and Israelites both were otherwise engaged, and David, as they believed, with them. So they had no visible cause of danger; and yet then they were nearest to their destruction.

17 And David smote them from the twilight x, even unto the evening of the † next day: and there escaped not a man of them, save four hundred young men which rode upon camels, and fled.

† Heb. their morrow.

x. The word signifies both the Morning and Evening Twi-light. But the latter seems here intended, partly because their Eating, and Drinking, and Dancing, was more customary and proper work for the Evening, than for the Morning; and partly, because the Evening was more convenient for David, that the fewness of his Forces might not be discovered by the Day-light. Obseth. It is not likely that David would fall upon the Amalekites before his Men, who had been tired with a long and hasty March, were refreshed. Anſw. Nor is it said that he did. It is probable, that when he came near them, he reposed himself, and his Army, in some secret Place, whereof there were many in these Parts, for a convenient Season; and then marched on so as to come to them at the Evening time.

18 And David recovered all that the Amalekites had carried away: and David rescued his two wives.

19 And there was nothing lacking to them, neither small nor great, neither sons nor daughters, neither spoil, nor any thing that they had taken to them: David recovered all.

20 And David took all the flocks, and the herds y: which they drave before those other cattel z, and said, This is David's spoil.

y To wit, which the Amalekites had taken from the Philistines or others. z Before those who belonged to Ziklag. z i. e. The Subtil ites, who lately were to incenſed against David, that they spoke of Stoning him: now upon this Success magnifie him, and Triumphantly celebrate his Praise; and say concerning this Spoil, David purchased it by his Valour and Conduct, and he may dispose of it as he pleaseth.

21 ¶ And David came to the two hundred men, which were so faint that they could not follow David, whom they had made also to abide at the brook Besor: and they went forth to meet David, and to meet the people that were with him a: and when David came near to the people, he ‖ saluted them b.

‖ Or, asked them how they did.

a To congratulate the Victory; which, it is probable, David had sent a Messenger to acquaint them with. b He spoke kindly to them, and did not blame them because they went no further with them.

22 Then † answered all the wicked men, and men of Belial d of † those that went with David, and said, Because they went not with us e, we will not give them ought of the spoil that we have recovered, save to every man his wife, and his children, that they may lead them away, and depart.

c When those 400 often required, or expected a part of the Spoil; and they gathered from David's words and carriage, that he intended to give it to them. d So he calls them for their Covetousness, and Injustice, and Churlishness to their Brethren. By which Expressions we may judge, how heinous and odious those Sins are in God's sight. e Which was from their impotency; not by choice, or design. Herein there was their Iniquity and Unreasonableness, they would put this on for no fault.

23 Then said David, Ye shall not do so, my brethren f, with that which the LORD hath given us g, who hath preserved us, and delivered the company that came against us, into our hand.

f He useth his Power and Authority to over-rule them; but manageth it with all sweetneſs, calling them Brethren; not only as of the same Nation and Religion with him, but as his Fellow-Soldiers.

g What he hath freely imparted to us, we should not unkindly and injuriously with-hold from our Brethren.

24 For who will hearken unto you in this matter h? but * as his part is that goeth down to the battel, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the ſtuff: they ſhall † 1 Sam. 30. 24. part alike i.

h What wife or juſt Man will be of your Opinion in this matter?

i A prudent and equitable Conſtitution, and therefore practiſed by the Romans, as Polybius and others note. The Reaſon of it is manifeſt; because they were expoſed to hazards, as well as their Brethren: and were a Reſerve to whom they might retreat in caſe of a Defeat; and they were now in actual Service, and in the ſtation in which their General had placed them.

25 And it was ſo from that day † that he made it a ſtatute, and an ordinance for Iſrael unto this day. † Heb. et Iſrael.

26 ¶ And when David came to Ziklag, he ſent of the ſpoil unto the elders of Judah k, even to his friends (ſaying, Behold, a † preſent for you of the ſpoil of the † Heb. bleſſing. enemies of the LORD.)

k Partly in gratitude for their former favour to him: and partly, in Policy, to engage their Affections to him now, when he apprehended Saul's death near. l He intimates, that though he was fled to the Philiſtines, yet he imployed not his Forces againſt the Iſraelites, as, no doubt, Saul's Courtiers and Soldiers reported that he deſigned; but only againſt God's Enemies.

27 To them which were in Bethel m, and to them which were in † ſouth Ramoth n, and to them which were in Jatter o, † Heb. the ſouth of Ramoth.

m In Kiriath-jearim, where the Ark was, 1 Sam. 10. 3. n A City in the Tribe of Simeon, Joſ. 19. 8. ſo called by way of diſtinction, from Ramoth in Gilead, which was more Northward, 1 King. 22. 12. o Of which, ſee Joſh. 15. 48.

28 And to them which were in Aroer p, and to them which were in Siphmoth, and to them which were in Eſhtemoa, p Not that beyond, Jordan, Numb. 32. 34. as many think; which was too remote from David: but another Place of that Name in Judah, where reſt of the Places here named were: This being one of thoſe Places where David and his men were wont to haunt, as is expreſſed v. 31.

29 And to them which were in Rachal, and to them which were in the cities of the Jerahmeelites, and to them which were in the cities of the Kenites,

30 And to them which were in Hormah, and to them which were in Chor-athan, and to them which were in Athach, 31 And to them which were in Hebron, and to all the places where David himſelf, and his men were wont to haunt q.

q Or, to go. Whither they uſed to reſort in the time of Saul's Perſecution, either to hide themſelves in ſome of their Territories; or, to get Proviſion from thence.

CHAP. XXXI.

The Iſraelites are ſmitten by the Philiſtines. Saul's ſons are ſlain: Saul is wounded: he falleth on his own ſword: as doth his armour-bearer, 1—5. The reſt flee: and the Philiſtines poſſeſs their towns, and triumph over the dead carcaſſes, 6—10. They of Jabeſh-Gilead by night take down the bodies of Saul and of his ſons and burn them: and mournfully bury their bones, 11—13.

NOW the Philiſtines fought againſt Iſrael a: and the men of Iſrael fled from before the Philiſtines, and fell down ‖ ſlain in mount Gilboa. ‖ Or, wounded.

a Whilſt David was ingaged againſt the Amalekites. So he returns to the hiſtory, which had been interrupted, to give an account of David's concerns.

2 And the Philiſtines followed hard upon Saul, and upon his ſons; and the Philiſtines ſlew * Jonathan b, and Abinadab c, and Malchiſhua, Sauls ſons. * Heb. ſmote.

b David's dear Friend; God ſo ordering it for the further exerciſe of David's Faith and Patience; and that David might depend upon God alone for his Crown, and receive it ſolely from him, and not from Jonathan; who doubtleſs, had he lived, would have ſpeedily ſettled the Crown upon David's Head, which would have in ſome ſort eclipſed the Glory of God's Grace and Power in this Work. There was alſo a ſpecial Providence of God, in taking away Jonathan, (who of all Saul's Sons, ſeems to have been the faireſt for the Crown) for the preventing Diviſions, which have happened amongſt the People concerning the Succeſſor: David's way to the Crown being by this means made the more clear. c Called alſo Iſhui, 1 Sam. 14. 49. Iſhbi-ſheth was not here, being poſſibly at home for the management of Publick Affairs there.

3 And the battel went fore againſt Saul, and the † archers † hit him, and he was ſore wounded of the archers. † Heb. men of the bow. † Heb. found.

4 Then ſaid Saul unto his armour-bearer, Draw thy ſword, and thruſt me through therewith, leſt theſe uncircumciſed come, and thruſt me through, and abuſe me d. But his armour-bearer would not, for he was fore afraid: therefore Saul took a ſword and fell upon it e.

d Leſt they take me, and put me to ſome ſhameful and cruel death.

e And died of the Wound, as it follows.

5 And when his armour-bearer ſaw that Saul was dead, he fell likewiſe upon his ſword, and died with him.

6 So Saul died with his three ſons, and his armour-bearer, and all his men that ſame day together.

7 ¶ And when the men of Iſrael that were on the other ſide of the valley f, and they that were on the other ſide Jordan g, ſaw that the men of Iſrael fled, and that Saul and his ſons were dead, they forſook the cities and fled, and the Philiſtines came and dwelt in them.

f To wit, the Valley of Jezreel, where the Battel was fought. g Or rather, on this ſide Jordan; for theſe were in the moſt danger: and the Hebrew Preposition is indifferently uſed for on this ſide, or for beyond.

8 And it came to paſs on the morrow, when the Philiſtines came to ſtrip the ſlain, that they found Saul and his three ſons fallen in mount Gilboa.

9 And they cut off his head h, and ſtripped off his armour, and ſent into the land of the Philiſtines round about, to publiſh it in the houſe of their idols i, and among the people.

h As the Iſraelites did by Goliah. i To give them the glory of this Victory.

10 And they put his armour in the houſe of Aſhtaroth: and they faſtned his body to the wall of Beth-ſhan.

11 ¶ And when the inhabitants of Jabeſh-Gilead k heard ‖ of that which the Philiſtines had done to Saul: ‖ Or, coming.

k Which was beyond Jordan: for the People on this ſide Jordan were fled from their Cities, as was now ſaid.

12 All the valiant men aroſe, and went all night, and took the body of Saul, and the bodies of his ſons, from the walls of Beth-ſhan, and came to Jabeſh, and * burnt them there l. * Jer. 34. 5.

l Burnt their Fleſh, after the manner.

13 And they took their bones, and * buried them under a tree at Jabeſh, and faſted ſeven days m. * 2 Sam. 2. 4, 5. & 21. 12, 13.

m To teſtifie their Sorrow for the publick loſs of Saul, and of the People of God; and to intreat God's Favour to prevent the utter Extinction of his People. But you muſt not underſtand this word of faſting ſtrictly, as if they eat nothing for ſeven whole Days; but in a more large and general ſenſe, as it is uſed both in Sacred and Prophane Writers; that they did eat but little, and that ſeldom; and that but mean Food, and drunk only Water for that time.

II. SAMUEL.

CHAP. I.

David being at Ziklag receiveth tidings by an Amalekite of Saul and Jonathan's death: the meſſenger pretendeth himſelf to have ſlain Saul, 1—12. David cauſeth him to be put to death, 13—16. Lamenteth Saul and Jonathan with a ſong, 17—27.

NOW it came to paſs after the death of Saul, when David was returned from * the ſlaughter of the Amalekites, and David had abode two days in Ziklag a, * 1 Sam. 30. 17.

a Which though burnt, yet was not ſo conſumed by the Fire, that David and his Men could not lodge in it.

2 It came even to paſs on the third day b, that behold a man came out of the camp from Saul, with his clothes rent, and earth upon his head c: and ſo it was when he came to David, that he fell to the earth, and did obeiſance.

b From David's return to Ziklag, as the foregoing words manifeſt. c Pretending ſorrow for the loſs of God's People, in compliance with David's humour.

3 And David ſaid unto him, From whence comeſt thou? And he ſaid unto him, Out of the camp of Iſrael am I eſcaped.

4 And David ſaid unto him, † How went the matter? I pray thee tell me. And he anſwered, That the people are fled from the battel, and many of the people alſo are fallen and dead, and Saul and Jonathan his ſon d are dead alſo. † Heb. what was, &c.

d He mentions only theſe two, as thoſe who ſeemed moſt to obſtruct David's coming to the Crown.

5 And David ſaid unto the young man that told him, How knoweſt thou that Saul and Jonathan his ſon be dead e?

e For the knowledge of this did moſt concern both David and the whole Commonwealth of Iſrael.

6 And the young man that told him, ſaid, As I happened by chance upon mount Gilboa, behold, Saul leaned upon his ſpear: and lo, the chariots and † horſemen followed hard after him. † Heb. horſe: or, captains of the horſe-men.

7 And when he looked behind him, he ſaw me, and called unto me: and I anſwered, † Here am I. † Heb. behold me.

8 And he ſaid unto me, Who art thou? and I anſwered him, I am an Amalekite.

9 He ſaid unto me again, Stand, I pray thee, upon me f, and ſlay me: for ‖ anguiſh is come upon me g, becauſe my life is yet whole within me h. ‖ Or, my coat of mail; (or, my cruſhing, ſtrait-ning, or diſtreſs) is come upon me, for my breath is yet whole within me.

f i.e. Lean upon me with thy weight and force, that the Spear may come through me: Or, ſtay by me; i.e. Stop thy flight, and tarry ſo long with me till thou haſt killed me. g i.e. I am in great pain of Body, and anguiſh of Mind. Or thus, my coat of mail: or, embroidered coat, hath hindered me, that the Spear could not pierce into me. Thus divers both Hebrew and other Learned Expoſitors underſtand it. h I am heart-whole, and not likely to die, as well as not willing to live.

10 So I ſtood upon him, and ſlew him i, becauſe I was ſure that he could not live after that he was fallen k: and I took the crown that was upon his head l, and the bracelet that was on his arm, and have brought them hither unto my lord m.

i Or, finiſhed him.

k It is moſt probable this was a Lye, deviſed to gain David's Favour, as he ſuppoſed. For, 1. Saul was not killed by a Spear, as he pretends, but by his Sword, 1 Sam. 31. 4. 2. It is expreſly ſaid, That Saul's armour-bearer being yet living, ſaw that Saul was dead, 1 Sam. 31. 5. which doubtleſs he would very thoroughly examine and know, before he would fall himſelf upon that occaſion, as he did. 3. Saul's death is manifeſtly aſcribed to his own Action, even to his falling upon his Sword, v. 5. & This he addeth by way of caution and excuſe, that it might be thought an act of neceſſity and kindneſs, and not of choice or ill-will that he killed him. But here alſo he betrays himſelf: for how could this be true, when Saul's life was whole within him, as he had now ſaid, v. 9? Nor that he then were fit which would have expoſed him too much, and that unneceſſarily, to the Rage of the Philiſtines; but that he uſed to wear it. It is not likely that he found it now actually upon Saul's Head, but that he met with it in ſome part of the Camp, whether Saul had brought it to wear it when he law fit. l Unto thee, whom, now Saul is dead, I own for my Lord and King.

m Unto me, as the Iſraelites did by Goliah. 1 Sam. 17. 54. & 21. 9.

11 Then David took hold on his clothes, and * rent them, and likewiſe all the men that were with him. * Gen. 37. 34. & 44. 13. 1 Sam. 4. 12. & 31. 13.

12 And they mourned and wept, and faſted until even, for Saul and for Jonathan his ſon, and for the people of the LORD, and for the houſe of Iſrael, becauſe they were fallen by the ſword.

13 ¶ And David ſaid unto the young man that told him, Whence art thou? And he anſwered, I am the ſon of a ſtranger, an Amalekite.

n David heard and knew before what he was, but he aſked it again judicially, in order to his Trial and Puniſhment.

14 And David ſaid unto him, * How waſt thou not afraid to ſtretch forth thine hand to deſtroy the LORD's anointed o? * Pſal. 105. 15.

o Why didſt not thou refuſe to kill him, as his Armour-bearer had done? For notwithſtanding his great danger, ſomething might have fallen out through God's All-diſpoſing Providence, whereby his Life might have been preſerved.

15 And David called one of the young men, and ſaid, Go near, and fall upon him. And he ſmote him that he died.

16 And David ſaid unto him, Thy blood be upon thy head p: for thy mouth hath teſtified againſt thee, ſaying, I have ſlain the LORD's anointed.

p The guilt of the bloodleſs of death lies upon thy ſelf, not upon me. q thy free and voluntary Confeſſion is ſufficient proof of thy guilt in killing the King.

17 ¶ And David lamented with this lamentation over Saul, and over Jonathan his ſon:

18 (Alſo he bade them * teach the children of Judah the uſe of) the bow r: behold, it is written * or, in the book ‖ of Jaſher.) ‖ Or, of the upright.

r Having mentioned David's Lamentation in general, before he comes to the particular deſcription of it, he interpoſeth this Verſe by way of Parenthesis; to ſignifie, That David did not ſo give up himſelf himself to Lamentation, as to neglect his great business, the care of the Commonwealth, which now lay upon him; but took particular care to terrifie them against such further Losses and Calamities as he bewails in the following Song; and by his Example, and this Counsel, to instruct the People, that they should not give up themselves to Sorrow and Despondency for their great and general Loss; but should raise up their Spirits, and betake themselves to Action. z David being now actually King upon Saul's death, takes his Power upon him, and gives forth his Commands. a These he more particularly reacheth, because they were the Chief, and now the Royal Tribe, and likely to be the great Bulwark to all Israel against the Philistines, and likely to be their Borderers; and withal, to be the most friendly and true to him, and to his Interest. u i.e. The use of their Arms, which are all Synecdochically expressed, under the name of the bow, which then was one of the chief Weapons; and for the dexterous use where of Jonathan is commended in the following Song: which may be one reason, why he now gives forth this Order, that so they might strive to imitate Jonathan in the Military Skill, and to excel him, as he did. x Not the following Song, as many think, for that is written here, and therefore it was needless to refer us to another Book for it; but this foregoing Counsel and course which David took to repair the last Loss, which is here mentioned but briefly, and in general terms; but, as it seems, more largely and particularly described in the Book of Jasher: Of which, see on Josh. 10. 13.

19 The beauty of Israel y is slain upon the high places z: how are the mighty fallen a!

y Their Flower and Glory, Saul and Jonathan, and their Army, consisting of weary and valiant Men. z Heb. upon thy high places; i.e. These which belong to thee, O Land of Israel. a How strangely! how unexpectedly! how dreadfully and universally!

20 Tell it not in Gath b, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters c of the Philistines rejoice; lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.

b This is not a Precept, but a Poetical Wish; whereby he doth not so much desire, that this might not be done, which he knew to be vain and impossible; as expresseth his Sorrow, because it was, and would be divulged to the great dishonour of God, and of his People. c He mentions these, because it was the custom of Women in those Times and Places to celebrate their Victories which their Men obtained, with Triumphant Songs and Dances; as Exod. 15. Jer. 31. 4. 1 Sam. 18. 6.

21 Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you d, nor fields of † offerings e: for there the shield of the mighty f † is vilely g cast away h; the shield of Saul, as though he had not been anointed with oil i.

d This is no proper Imprecation; which he had no reason to inflict upon those barren Mountains; but only a passionate representation of the Horror which he conceived at this publick Loss; which was such, as if he thought every Person or Thing which contributed to it, were fit to bear the Tokens of Divine Displeasure, such as these, when the Earth wants the blessed and necessary Influences of Dew and Rain. e i.e. Fruitful Fields, which may produce late and goodly Fruits fit to be offered unto God. f The Shield of the valiant Men of Israel. g Dishonourably: for it was a great Reproach to any Soldier, to cast away or lose his Shield. h To writhe themselves, that they might flee more swiftly away, as the Heathen did, and Saul with the rest; as is said, 1 Sam. 31. 1. 2. i As if he had been no more, nor better than a common Soldier: he was exposed to the same kind of Death and Reproach as they were.

22 From the blood of the slain, from the fat of the mighty, the bow of Jonathan turned not back k, and the sword of Saul returned not empty l.

k To wit, without Effect: Compare Isa. 45. 23. and 55. 11. Their Arrows shot from their Bows, and their Swords did seldom miss, and commonly pierced Fat, and Flesh, and Blood, and reached even to the Heart and Bowels. l i.e. Not filled and glutted with Blood: for the Sword is Metaphorically said to have a mouth, which we translate an edges; and to devour, 2 Sam. 2. 26. and 11. 25. Jer. 2. 30. and 46. 10. And this their former forwardness is here mentioned as an aggravation of their last Inhumanity.

23 Saul and Jonathan were lovely, and ‖ pleasant m in their lives n, and in their death they were not divided o: they were swifter than eagles p, they were stronger than lions q.

m Amiable, and obliging in their Carriage and Conversation, both towards one another, and towards their People: for, as for Saul's private behaviour towards Jonathan, it was only a sudden Passion, by which his ordinary Temper was not to be measured; and for his Carriage towards David, 1 Sam. 20. 33. that was from that worldly and Reason of State which usually engageth even good-natured and well-natured Princes, to the same Hostilities in like cases. But it is observable, That David speaks not a word here of the Piety and other Vertues; but only commends him for those things which were truly in him. A fit Pattern for all Preachers in their Funeral Commendations. n Jonathan was not false to his Father, as was reported; but stuck close to him. o And as he lived, so he died with him, at the same time, and in the same common and good Cause. p Expeditious and nimble in pursuing their Enemies, and executing their Designs; which is a great Commendation in a Prince, and in a Soldier. q In regard of their bodily Strength, and the Courage of their Minds.

24 Ye daughters of Israel r weep over Saul, who clothed you in scarlet s, with other delights; who put on ornaments of gold upon your apparel.

r These he mentions; partly, because the Women then used to make Songs both of Triumph, and of Lamentation, as occasion required: and partly, because they usually are most delighted with the Ornaments of the Body here following. s This he did, partly, because he procured them so much Peace as gave them opportunity of enriching themselves: and partly, because he took these things as Spoils from the Enemies, and clothed his own People with them. Compare Psal. 68. 12.

25 How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battel! O Jonathan, thou wast slain in thine high places t.

t Which were in thy Country, and (had not thy Father disinherited thee by his Sins) in thy Dominions.

26 I am distressed for thee u, my brother Jonathan, very pleasant hast thou been unto me: thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women x.

u i.e. For the loss of thee. For, besides the loss of a true Friend, and all the comfort of Friendship, which is inestimable; he lost him who both could, and undoubtedly would have given him a speedy, and quiet, and sure Possession of the Kingdom: whereas now, he met with long and troublesom Interruptions. x i.e. That Love wherewith they love their Husbands, or Children: for their affections are usually more vehement and ardent than Mens.

27 How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war y perished?

y Either, 1. Metaphorically so called; to wit, Saul and Jonathan, and the brave Commanders and Soldiers of Israel; who might have been called, the chariots of Israel, and the horsemen thereof. Or, rather, 2. Properly: for, together with the Men, their Arms were lost, which was a very great aggravation of their loss, and that loss seems to be at this time more irrecoverable and dangerous, than the loss of their Men.

CHAP. II.

David by God's direction with his company goeth up to Hebron, where he is made king of Judah, 1, —3. He commendeth them of Jabesh-Gilead for burying Saul, 5, —7. Abner maketh Ish-bosheth king of Israel, 9, —11. A mortal fight between twelve of Abner's and twelve of Joab's men, 12, —17. Asahel pursueth Abner, and is slain by him, 18, —24. At Abner's motion Joab sounded a retreat, 25, —31. Asahel's burial, 32.

AND it came to pass after this, that David enquired of the LORD a, saying, Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah b: And the LORD said unto him, Go up. And David said, Whither shall I go up? And he said, Unto Hebron c.

a By Urim, as 1 Sam. 23. 6, 9. and 30. 7, 8. Thus David begins at the right end, and lays his Foundation in God's Counsel and Assistance, which now he seeks. b He asketh not whether he should take the Kingdom; for that was appointed and known before; and he would not offend God, nor dishonour his Ordinance with frivolous and unnecessary Enquiries; but only where he should enter upon it; whether in Judah, as he supposed, because of his relation to that Tribe, and his interest in it; or whether in some other Tribe: for he doth not limit God, but resolves exactly to follow his Counsels. c Which was next to Jerusalem (part whereof the Jebusites now possessed) the chief City of that Tribe, and a City of the Priests, Josh. 21. 10, &c. and in the very center or middle of that Tribe, to which the whole Tribe might speedily resort, when need required.

2 So David went up thither, and his two wives also, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail Nabals wife the Carmelite.

3 And his men that were with him, did David bring up, every man with his houshold: and they dwelt in the cities of Hebron d.

d i.e. The Cities or Towns belonging and subject to Hebron, which was the Metropolis, Josh. 21. 11, 12. For in Hebron it self there was not space for them all, because it was filled with Priests, and with David's Court.

4 And * the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah e: and they told David, saying, That * the men of Jabesh-Gilead were they that buried Saul.

e This they did upon just grounds, because not only the Kingdom was promised to that Tribe, Gen. 49. 10. but David was designed and anointed by God, whose Will both they and all Israel were obliged to observe and obey. And they wisely refused not to neglect their Duty, though they saw the other Tribes would. Yet their prudent Caution and Modesty is observable, That they make him King of Judah only, and not of all Israel. And therefore there was need of a Third Anointing to the Kingdom over all Israel, which he had chap. 5. 3. But as for that First Anointing, 1 Sam. 16. 13. it was only a Designation of the Person who should be King, but not an actual Inauguration of him to the Kingdom.

5 ¶ And David sent messengers unto the men of Jabesh-Gilead, and said unto them, Blessed be ye of the LORD, that † ye have shewed this kindness f unto your lord, even unto Saul, and have buried him.

f This Respect and Affection to procure him Burial. For as it is, is, and ever was esteemed an act of Inhumanity to deny Burial to the Dead; for is an act of Mercy and Kindness to Bury them.

6 And now the LORD shew kindness and truth g unto you: and I also will requite you this kindness h, because ye have done this thing.

g i.e. True and real Kindness; not in words only, but also in actions, as you have now done to your King, the Lord's anointed. h So far am I from being offended with you for this Kindness to my late Enemy, that I will requite it.

7 Therefore now let your hands be strengthened, and † be ye valiant i: for your master Saul is dead k, and also † the house of Judah have anointed me king over them.

i Be not afraid lest the Philistines should punish you for this Fact, but take good Courage, I will defend you. k Or, though your Master Saul be dead, and so your Hearts may faint within you, as if you were now Sheep without a Shepherd.

8 ¶ But Abner the son of Ner l, captain of * Sauls host, took ‖ Ishbosheth m the son of Saul, and brought him over to Mahanaim n.

l Partly, out of Envy and Malice against David; and partly, out of his own Ambition and Desire of Rule, because he knew that Ishbosheth would have only the name of King, whilst he had the Power. m Called also Eshbaal, 1 Chron. 8. 33. and 9. 39. It being usual with the Hebrews, instead of Baal, the name of false gods, to put Bosheth, which signifies shame, or confusion, or a shameful thing; as appeareth by comparing Judg. 9. 53. with 2 Sam. 11. 21. and 2 Sam. 4. 4. with 1 Chron. 8. 34. and from Jer. 3. 24. Hos. 9. 10. n A place beyond Jordan, whither he carried him; partly, to secure those brave and valiant Men of Jabesh-Gilead to himself: and principally because this place was most remote from David, and from the Philistines too; and therefore here he might recruit his Forces with less disturbance than in other places.

9 And he made him king over Gilead o, and over the Ashurites p, and over Jezreel q, and over Ephraim, and over Benjamin, and over all † Israel r.

o Largely so taken for all the Land of Israel beyond Jordan, as it is Josh. 22. 9. Judg. 10. 8. p i.e. The Tribe of Asher, as the Chaldee Paraphrast and others understand it. q A large and rich Valley situate in the Borders of the Tribes of Zebulun, Issachar and Naphtali, and so put Synecdochically for them all. r Except Judah, as it follows.

10 Ishbosheth Saul's son was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and reigned two years s: but the house of Judah followed David.

s To wit, before the following War broke forth. Compare 1 Sam. 13. 1. For that he reigned longer, may appear both from the following Verse, and from chap. 3. 1. and from the following History. Though some think he reigned only two Years, and that the rest of David's seven Years the Israelites by Abner's instigation stuck to the House of Saul, but were in suspence whether they should confer the Crown upon Mephibosheth the right Heir, but a Child; or upon Ishbosheth a grown Man, whom with some difficulty, and after long debates amongst themselves, they preferred.

11 (And the † time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah, was seven years and six months.)

12 ¶ And Abner the son of Ner, and the servants t of Ishbosheth the son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to Gibeon u.

t i.e. His Officers, and Commanders, and their Army. u In the Country of Benjamin, Josh. 18. 25. near Judah, to fight with David's Army, and to bring back the rest of the Kingdom to Saul's House.

13 And Joab the son of Zeruiah, and the servants of David, went out x, and met † together y by the * pool of Gibeon: and they sate down, the one on the one side of the pool, and the other on the other side of the pool.

x To Battel. Quest. How could or durst this one Tribe oppose all the rest? Ans. First, This Tribe was very numerous and valiant of themselves, and they had a King of extraordinary Courage, and Conduct, and Success. Secondly, There were great numbers of the other Tribes which favoured them, as appears from 1 Chron. 12. Thirdly, They had the encouragement of special Promises of God, made both to their Tribe, and to David. y i.e. Met the opposite Army, and put themselves into a Posture for Battel.

14 And Abner said to Joab z, Let the young men now arise, and play a before us: and Joab said, Let them arise.

z Abner trusting to his greater numbers, offers Battel. a i.e. Shew their Prowess and Dexterity in managing their Weapons, and Fighting together. He speaks like a vain-glorious and cruel Man, and a Soldier of Fortune, that esteemed it a Sport to see Men wounding and killing one another. So this he designed, partly for their mutual Recreation, and trial of Skill and Valour; and partly, that by this occasion they might be engaged in a Battel.

15 Then there arose and went over by number twelve of Benjamin b, which pertained to Ishbosheth the son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David.

b He selected all his Combatants out of that Tribe, both because that was a warlike and valiant Tribe; and that he might give the more honour to his own Tribe.

16 And they caught every one his fellow by the head c, and thrust his sword in his fellows side; so they fell down together: Wherefore that place was called ‖ Helkath-hazzurim d, which is in Gibeon.

c By the Hair of the Head, which after their manner was of a considerable length, and thereof is gave their Enemy advantage; which every one of them endeavoured to use, and to improve against the other. d Or, the field of Rocks; i.e. of Men who stood like Rocks unmovable, each one dying upon the Spot where he fought.

17 And there was a very sore battel that day: and Abner was beaten, and the men of Israel, before the servants of David.

18 ¶ And there were three sons of Zeruiah there, Joab, and Abishai, and Asahel: and Asahel was as light † of foot † as a wild roe.

19 And Asahel pursued after Abner, and in going down he turned not to the right hand, nor to the left from † following Abner.

20 Then Abner looked behind him, and said, Art thou Asahel? And he answered, I am.

21 And Abner said to him, Turn thee aside to thy right hand, or to thy left, and lay thee hold on one of the young men, and take thee his ‖ armour e. But Asahel would not turn aside from following of him.

e If thou are ambitious to get a Trophy or Mark of thy Valour, desist from me who am an old and experienced Captain, and go to some young and raw Soldier; try thy Skill upon him, and take away his Arms from him.

22 And Abner said again to Asahel, Turn thee aside from following of me: Wherefore should I smite thee to the ground? how then should I hold my face to Joab thy brother f?

f He was loth to enrage Joab too much against him, because his guilty Conscience told him that his Cause was bad, and therefore he prefaged ill success, and that he might need such a Friend as Joab, to make his peace with David.

23 Howbeit, he refused to turn aside: Wherefore Abner with the hinder end of the spear g, smote him * under the fifth rib h, that the spear came out behind him, and he fell down there, and died in the same place i: and it came to pass, that as many as came to the place where Asahel fell down and died, stood still.

g Which was sharp pointed after the manner. h The fear of the Liver and Bowels, where Wounds are mortal. i Upon the Spot, not being able to go one step further.

24 Joab also and Abishai pursued after Abner: and the sun went down when they were come to the hill of Ammah, that lieth before Giah, by the way of the wilderness of Gibeon.

25 ¶ And the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together after Abner, and became one troop, and stood on the top of an hill k.

k Where, being upon the upper Ground, they might better defend themselves.

26 Then Abner called to Joab, and said, Shall the sword devour for ever? knowest thou not that it will be bitterness in the latter end l? How long shall it be then, ere thou bid the people return from following their brethren m?

l It will produce dreadful Effects, and many bloody Slaughters, if by a further prosecution thou makest them desperate; which is against all the Rules of Policy. m Be Natural and Religious: whom therefore they should not pursue with so fierce a Rage, as if they were pursuing the Philistines.

27 And Joab said, As God liveth, unless thou hadst spoken n, surely then † in the morning the people had ‖ gone up every one from following his brother.

n Unless thou hadst made the motion that they might fight, i.e. It was thou, not I, that gave the first occasion of the Fight. Which, already, he intimates, That Abner was the sole cause of this War; and that if he had not given Commission and Command, the War had never been undertaken, but all things had been ended by an amicable Agreement: which might have been made that very morning, if he had so pleased.

28 So Joab blew a trumpet, and all the people stood still, and pursued after Israel no more, neither fought they any more o.

o Either, first, at that time. Or rather, Secondly, In any pitch'd Battel.

29 And Abner and his men walked all that night through the plain, and passed over Jordan, and went through all Bithron p, and they came to Mahanaim.

p Otherwise called, the Wilderness of Bethel, Gen. 31. 13. which were beyond Jordan. Or, some other Country, now not known by that name: which is the case of hundreds of places.

22 And Joab returned from following Abner: and when he had gathered all the people together, there lacked of Davids servants nineteen men, and Asahel.

23 But the servants of David had smitten of Benjamin and of Abners men, so that three hundred and threescore men died.

24 ¶ And they took up Asahel, and buried him in the sepulchre of his father, which was in Bethlehem: and Joab and his men went all night, and they came to Hebron at break of day.

CHAP. III.

The war between the house of David and the house of Saul. Six sons born to David in Hebron, 1,—5. Abner displeased with Ishbosheth, 6,—11. Makes a league with David: who reproveth him that he bring with him Michal: with her he sets out, and communes with the elders of Israel: he visiteth David and dismisseth him, 12,—21. Joab returning from hatred murdereth him with the king, and treacherously murdereth Abner, 22,—27. David's false fast, 28,—30. Mourneth over Abner, 31,—39.

NOw there was long war a between the house of Saul, and the house of David: but David waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker.

a For five Years longer: for it is probable that Ishbosheth was made king prudently upon Saul's death, to give them countenance for their Rebellion against David; and the other Tribes did not submit to him till before seven Years were expired.

2 ¶ And unto David were sons born in Hebron: and his firſt-born was Ammon, of Ahinoam the Jezreelitess:

3 And his second Chileab b, of Abigail † the wife of Nabal the Carmelite: and the third Absalom, the c ſon of Maacah, the daughter of Talmai king of Geſhur:

b Called also Daniel, 1 Chron. 3. 1. c A part of Syria, Northward from the Land of Israel, Deut. 3. 14. Jos. 12. 5. See 2 Sam. 13. 37. and 14. 23. and 15. 8. Her he married, as it may seem, in Policy, that he might have a powerful Friend and Allie to assist him against Ishbosheth's Party in the North, whilst himself oppoſed him in the Southern parts. But he paid dear for making Piecy part of his Policy herein, as the Hiſtory of Absalom theweth. There were other Geſhurites Southward from Canaan, whom David invaded, 1 Sam. 27. 8. and it is not impoſſible but they were a Colony of these in the North.

4 And the fourth, Adonijah the ſon of Haggith: and the fifth, Shephatiah the ſon of Abital:

5 And the sixth, Ithream by Eglah Davids wife d: these were born to David in Hebron.

† This is added, either because ſhe was of obſcure Parentage, and was known by no other Title but her relation to David: or, to distinguiſh her from ſome other Perſon of that name, who poſſibly might be of no good fame: or, becauſe this was his firſt and moſt proper Wife, beſt known by her other name of Michal, who, though ſhe had no Child by David after ſhe feceſted at him for dancing before the Ark, chap. 6. 23. yet might have one before that time. And ſhe might be named the laſt of theſe here, becauſe ſhe was given away from David, and married to another Man, when David took the other Wives, and therefore though ſhe had been firſt, yet now ſhe was become the laſt of them. Or, this Title, being put in the laſt place, may belong to all the reſt of the Women abovementioned, by a Figure called Zeugma, to diſtinguiſh them from his Concubines, 2 Sam. 5. 13. 1 Chron. 3. 9.

6 ¶ And it came to paſs while there was war between the houſe of Saul, and the houſe of David, that Abner made himſelf ſtrong for the houſe of Saul.

e He oſed all his endeavours to ſupport Saul's Houſe. Which is mentioned, to ſhew the reaſon of his deep Reſentment of the following Aſperſion. Or, he ſtrengthned himſelf in the Houſe of Saul; i. e. he ſo managed all theſe Affairs, as to get all the Riches and Power into his own hands: which made Ishbosheth ſuſpect that he aimed at the Kingdom, and ſought to Marry the King's Concubine in order to it, as the manner was. See 2 Sam. 12. 8. and 16. 21. and 1 King. 2. 17.

7 And Saul had a concubine whoſe name was * Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah: and Ishbosheth ſaid to Abner, Wherefore haſt thou gone in unto my fathers concubine?

* Chap. 21. 8.

f Rather, Firſt, To ſatisfie thy own Luſt. Or rather, Secondly, In that pretence to take away my Crown firſt. For this was that which ſtirred up his Jealouſie and Rage, and cauſed him to ſpeak as he did, whether otherwiſe he neither would nor durſt. For whether Abner were guilty or no, it is not evident from the following words: for if it were true, great Men cannot endure to be told of their Faults, though they be true and great.

8 Then was Abner very wroth for the words of Ishbosheth, and ſaid, Am I a dogs head g, which againſt h Judah do ſhew kindneſs this day unto the houſe of Saul thy father, to his brethren, and to his friends, and have not delivered thee into the hand of David i, that thou chargeſt me to day with a fault concerning this woman k.

g i.e. A vile and contemptible Creature, as a Dog was. See Deut. 23. 18. 1 Sam. 24. 14. 2 Sam. 9. 8. and 16. 9. Job 30. 1. Eccleſ. 9. 4. And a Dogs head is put for a Dog by a Synecdoche, uſual both in the Hebrew and in other Languages, as the Head is oft put for the whole Man in the Latin Tongue. h So the Particle Lamed is well rendred, as ei, which among the Hebrews is conſtelly of the ſame nature and uſe, is uſed Eccleſ. 9. 12. Jer. 34. 7. Eccle. 17. 5. Amos 7. 15. i Which I could oft and eaſily have done. k Either that thou accuſeſt me falſly concerning this matter: or, that thou canſt not wink at ſo ſmall a Fault (for ſo he eſteemed it) as Converſation with this Woman, who, whatſoever ſhe formerly was, is now ſo impotent and inconſiderable, that ſhe can do thee no ſervice, as I have done.

9 * So do God to Abner, and more alſo, except as * Ruth. the LORD hath ſworn to David l, even ſo I do to him:

l Whence it appears that this wicked Wretch did all this while fight againſt his own Knowledge and Conſcience, and againſt God himſelf.

10 To tranſlate the kingdom from the houſe of Saul, and to ſet up the throne of David over Iſrael, and over Judah, from Dan even to Beerſheba.

11 And he could not anſwer Abner a word again m, becauſe he feared him n.

m Becauſe he durſt not provoke Abner further, leſt he ſhould really execute what he ſuppoſed as yet he only threatned. n As having a greater Intereſt in, and power with both the Army and the reſt of the People, than himſelf had.

12 ¶ And Abner ſent meſſengers to David on his behalf o, ſaying, Whoſe is the land p? ſaying alſo, Make thy league with me q, and behold, my hand ſhall be with thee, to bring about all Iſrael unto thee.

o Who in his name and ſtead might treat with David concerning his Reconciliation with him. Thus God over-rules the Luſts and Paſſions of wicked Men, to accompliſh his own wiſe and holy Purpoſes. And who then dare contend with that God who makes even his Enemies to do his work, and deſtroy themſelves? p To whom doth this whole Land belong, but to thee? Is it not thine by Divine Right? Saul's Son is but an Uſurper, thou only art the rightful owner. q That thou wilt pardon all paſt Offences to me, and to all Iſrael, and thou wilt receive me into thy Grace and Favour.

13 ¶ And he ſaid, Well, I will make a league with thee r: but one thing I require of thee, † that † Heb. is, Thou ſhalt not ſee my face, except thou firſt bring Michal Sauls daughter, when thou cometſt to ſee my face. Heb.

r To wit, upon thy terms: which, all Circumſtances conſidered, ſeems to be lawful, to prevent the great effuſion of Iſraelitiſh Blood, which otherwiſe would certainly have been ſpilt. And although the principle of this action of Abner's was baſe and wicked, yet the action in it ſelf was Lawful and Commendable, and no more than his Duty to God and David obliged him to; and therefore David might well perſuade and induce him to it.

14 And David ſent meſſengers to Ishbosheth Sauls ſon s, ſaying, Deliver me my wife Michal t, which I eſpouſed to me * for an hundred fore-ſkins of the Philiſtines. * 1 Sam. 18. 25.

s Whoſe Conſent was neceſſary, both to take her away from her preſent Huſband, and to perſuade her to return to David. Hereby David opened to him alſo a door of hope for his Reconciliation, leſt being deſperate he ſhould hinder Abner in his preſent Deſign. † Who, though ſhe was taken from me by force, and conſtrained to marry another, 1 Sam. 25. 44. yet is indeed my rightful Wife. Her David demands, partly, for the affection he ſtrongly had, and ſtill retained to her: partly, to deliver her from the Sin and Reproach of Adultery with another Man, who was not in truth and juſtice her Huſband, though he was ſo called and accounted: and partly, upon a politick Conſideration, that ſhe might ſtrengthen his Right and Title to the Kingdom.

15 And Ishbosheth ſent and took her from her huſband u, even from * Phaltiel the ſon of Laiſh. * 1 Sam. 25. 44.

u For, being forſaken by Abner, he durſt not deny David, into whoſe Power he ſaw he muſt unavoidably come: and beſides, he ſuppoſed that ſhe might be an effectual Inſtrument to make his Peace with David.

16 And her huſband went with her † along weeping behind her to Bahurim x: then ſaid Abner unto him, Go, return. And he returned. † Heb.

x A City of Benjamin, upon the Borders of Judah. See 2 Sam. 19. 16. 1 King. 2. 8.

17 ¶ And Abner had communication with the elders of Iſrael, ſaying, Ye ſought for David † in times paſt to be king over you y. † Heb. yeſterday, and third day.

y Even in Saul's time you highly honoured him, and prized his Conduct, and wiſhed that the Power were in his hands; and great numbers of you went to him, when he was in the Hold, 1 Chron. 12. And after Saul's death you would gladly have advanced him to the Crown, if your reſpect to Saul's Family, together with my Authority and Influence, had not diverted you.

18 Now then do it z; for the LORD hath ſpoken of David a, ſaying, By the hand of my ſervant David, I will ſave my people Iſrael out of the hand of the Philiſtines, and out of the hand of all their enemies b.

z You ſhall have my free Conſent and utmoſt Aſſiſtance in procuring it. a He wickedly pretends Religion, when he intended nothing but the ſatisfaction of his own Pride, and Malice, and Fury againſt Ishbosheth. b It is very probable God ſpake theſe words, but undoubtedly he ſpake the ſame ſenſe by Samuel, though it be not expreſſed before.

19 And Abner alſo ſpake in the ears of Benjamin c: and Abner went alſo to ſpeak in the ears of David in Hebron, all that ſeemed good to Iſrael, and that ſeemed good to the whole houſe of Benjamin.

c To theſe he particularly applies himſelf, becauſe they might be thought moſt kind to Saul and his Houſe, and moſt loth to let the Kingdom go out of their own Tribe; and therefore it was neceſſary that he ſhould uſe all his Art and Power with them, to perſuade them to a compliance with his Deſign; and beſides, they were a valiant Tribe, and bordering upon Judah, and ſituate between them and the other Tribes; and therefore the winning of them, would be of mighty concernment to bring in all the reſt.

20 So Abner came to David to Hebron, and twenty men with him: and David made Abner, and the men that were with him, a feaſt d.

d Which in thoſe times was cuſtomary when Perſons entred into Covenant. See Gen. 26. 30. and 31. 44. 46.

21 And Abner ſaid unto David, I will ariſe, and go, and will gather all Iſrael e unto my lord the king, that they may make a league with thee, and that thou mayeſt reign over all that thy heart deſireth. And David ſent Abner away, and he went in peace.

e i.e. The Elders and Chieftains of all Iſrael, Repreſenting and Ruling all the reſt.

22 ¶ And behold, the ſervants of David, and Joab, came from purſuing a troop f, and brought in a great ſpoil with them: (but Abner was not with David in Hebron, for he had ſent him away, and he was gone in peace.)

f Of Robbers, either Philiſtines, or Edomites, or ſome others, who taking advantage of the Diſcord between the Houſes of Saul and David, made inroads into Judah, as they had occaſion.

23 When Joab and all the hoſt that was with him, were come, they told Joab, ſaying, Abner the ſon of Ner came to the king, and he hath ſent him away, and he is gone in peace.

24 Then Joab came to the king, and ſaid, What haſt thou done g? behold, Abner came unto thee: why is it that thou haſt ſent him away, and he is quite gone?

g Thou haſt committed a great over-ſight, to diſmiſs ſo dangerous and miſchievous a Perſon, when he was in thy hands.

25 Thou knoweſt Abner the ſon of Ner, that he came to deceive thee, and to know thy going out, and thy coming in h, and to know all that thou doeſt.

h To ſearch out my Counſels and ſecret Deſigns, and to make uſe of them againſt thee.

26 And when Joab was come out from David, he ſent meſſengers after Abner i, which brought him again from the well of Sirah: but David knew it not.

i In the King's Name, and upon pretence of ſome further Communication with him.

27 And when Abner was returned to Hebron, Joab * took him aſide in the gate k, to ſpeak with him † quietly l: and ſmote him there under the fifth rib, that he died, for the blood of * Aſahel his brother m. * 2 Sam. 2. 23. † Heb. in peace. * Chap. 2. 23.

k In the entrance into the City before he came to the King; and in the place where Conferences uſed to be. l With appearance of great Civility and Kindneſs. Or, ſecretly, as having ſome matter of great importance to utter, which none but himſelf muſt hear. m As he did Aſahel, chap. 2. 23. n In revenge the death of Aſahel; and withal (though that be not here mentioned) to ſecure his own ſtandi g, and rid his hands of ſo great and powerful a Competitor. And this was Joab's Deſign; but God had other Deſigns in it, both to puniſh Abner's manifold Wickedneſs, and particularly his Rebellion againſt David, and againſt God and his own Conſcience therein; and that David might not owe his Kingdom to Abner, and to his Revenge and Treachery, but wholly to God's wiſe and powerful Providence.

28 ¶ And afterward when David heard it, he ſaid o, I and my kingdom are guiltleſs before the LORD p for ever, from the † blood of Abner the ſon of Ner:

o Publikly before his Courtiers and People; and ſeriouſly as in God's preſence. p I call the Lord to Witneſs, that this was not done by my inſtigation or Authority, or by any publick Counſel, but only by Joab's Malice; and therefore I truſt that God will not puniſh me nor my Kingdom, but Joab only.

29 Let it q reſt on the head of Joab, and on all his † fathers houſe r, and let there not * fail from the houſe of Joab one that hath an iſſue ſ, or that is a leper, or that leaneth on a ſtaff t, or that falleth on the ſword, or that lacketh bread. † Heb. houſe. * Gen. 49. 7.

q i.e. This Blood, the guilt and puniſhment of it. † But Children were not to ſuffer for their Parents ſin, Deut. 24. 16. And therefore either this was only a Prediction; or, if it were an Imprecation, David may ſeem to have tranſgreſſed his Bounds, and mingled his Paſſion with his Zeal, that he might expreſs his utter deteſtation of this horrid Murder; and how far he was from having any hand in it. r Which was not only a troubleſome and thameful Diſeaſe, but alſo infectious, both to him that had it, and to all that touched him: ſo that, whilſt it was upon a Man, he was cut off in a great part from Converſe either with God or Men. t Through crazineſs, or feebleneſs, or lameneſs, whereby he is rendred unfit for Action and publick Service.

30 So Joab and Abiſhai u his brother ſlew Abner, becauſe he had ſlain their brother * Aſahel at Gibeon in the battel w. * Chap. 2. 23.

u For though Joab only committed the Murder, yet Abiſhai was guilty of it, becauſe it was done with his Conſent, and Counſel, and Help, and Approbation: for by theſe and ſuch like actions Men are involved in the guilt of other mens Sins, at leaſt in God's Judgment. w Which he did in the fury of Blood, and for his own neceſſary defence; and therefore it was no puniſhment of this unneceſſary and treacherous Murder in a time of Peace.

31 ¶ And David ſaid to Joab x, and to all the people that were with him, * Rent your clothes, and gird you with ſackcloth, and mourn before Abner y. And king David himſelf followed the † bier z. * Joſh. 7. 6. † Heb. bed.

x Him he eſpecially obliged to it; partly, to bring him to Repentance for his Sin: partly, to expoſe him to publick ſhame, and to the contempt and hatred of all the People, with whom he had too great an Intereſt, which hereby David deſigned to diminiſh. y i.e. Attending upon his Corps, and paying him that Reſpect and Honour which was due to his Quality. z Which was againſt the uſage of Kings, and might ſeem below David's Dignity; but it was now expedient to vindicate himſelf from all ſuſpicion and connivance or concurrence in this Action.

32 And they buried Abner in Hebron: and the king lift up his voice, and wept at the grave of Abner; and all the people wept.

33 And the king lamented over Abner, and ſaid, Died Abner as † a fool dieth a? † Heb. Nabal. So Gr.

a i.e. As a wicked Man, for ſuch are oft called Fools in Scripture. Was he cut off by the hands of Juſtice for his Crimes? Nothing leſs; but by Joab's Malice and Treachery. Or, did he die by his own Folly, becauſe he had not Wiſdom or Courage to defend himſelf? Ah no. The words may be thus rendred: had or ſhould Abner die like a Fool, or a vile contemptible Perſon? i.e. unregarded, unpitied, unrevenged; as Fools or vile Perſons die, for whole death none are concerned. Or, How is Abner dead? like a Fool. piecing his mistchance. He being honourable for a great Man and a Soldier to fight, if met with by an Enemy, and not (having his Arms at hand) ſtand ſtill like a Fool to be killed, without making any reſiſtance or defence; which, by this treachery of Joab, happened to be his caſe.

34 Thy hands were not bound, nor thy feet put into fetters c: as a man falleth before † wicked men ſo falleſt thou. And all the people wept again over him. † Heb. ſons of iniquity.

And therefore either this was only a Prediction; or, if it were an Imprecation, David may ſeem to have tranſgreſſed his Bounds, and mingled his Paſſion with his Zeal, that he might expreſs his utter deteſtation of this horrid Murder; and how far he was from having any hand in it. f Which was not only a troubleſome and thameful Diſeaſe, but alſo infectious, both to him that had it, and to all that touched him: ſo that, whilſt it was upon a Man, he was cut off in a great part from Converſe either with God or Men. t Through crazineſs, or feebleneſs, or lameneſs, whereby he is rendred unfit for Action and publick Service.

u For though Joab only committed the Murder, yet Abiſhai was guilty of it, becauſe it was done with his Conſent, and Counſel, and Help, and Approbation: for by theſe and ſuch like actions Men are involved in the guilt of other mens Sins, at leaſt in God's Judgment. w Which he did in the fury of Blood, and for his own neceſſary defence; and therefore it was no puniſhment of this unneceſſary and treacherous Murder in a time of Peace.

31 ¶ And David ſaid to Joab x, and to all the people that were with him, * Rent your clothes, and gird you with ſackcloth, and mourn before Abner y. And king David himſelf followed the † bier z. * Joſh. 7. 6. † Heb. bed.

32 And they buried Abner in Hebron: and the king lift up his voice, and wept at the grave of Abner; and all the people wept.

The words may be thus rendred: had or ſhould Abner die like a Fool, or a vile contemptible Perſon? i.e. unregarded, unpitied, unrevenged; as Fools or vile Perſons die, for whole death none are concerned. They have ſo great a Command over all the Soldiers, and ſo great Favour with the People, that I cannot Puniſh them without apparent hazzard to my Perſon and Kingdom; eſpecially, now when all the Tribes, except Judah, are yet in a ſtate of Oppoſition againſt me. But this, although it might give ſome colour to the delay of their Puniſhment for a ſeaſon, yet it may ſeem to have been one of David's Infirmities, that he did not do it within ſome reaſonable time, both becauſe this Indulgence proceeded from a diſtruſt of God's Power and Faithfulneſs; as if God could not, or would not make good his Promiſe of the Kingdom to him, without, and againſt Joab and all his Confederates; and becauſe it was contrary to God's Law, which ſeverely requires the Puniſhment of wilful Murderers, Gen. 9. 6. Exod. 21. 14. Numb. 35. 21. which David had no power to diſpence with. And David might, and ſhould have remembred, how dear Saul paid for this very thing, that he diſpenſed with God's Command, and ſpared thoſe whom God commanded him to ſlay, 1 Sam. 15. And it ſeems David's Conſcience oft ſmote him for this: which made him watch for a fit opportunity to remove, and then puniſh him, and having neglected it till death, he declareth his Sorrow for that neglect, by giving Solomon a charge to execute it after his death, 1 King. 2. 5, 6, 34.

f This Hiſtory is inſerted as that which encouraged theſe Men to this wicked Murder, becauſe Saul's Family was now reduced to a low ebb; and if Iſhboſheth was diſpatched, there would be none left, but a lame Child, who was altogether unfit to manage the Kingdom, eſpecially in ſo troubleſome a time as this was; and therefore the Crown muſt neceſſarily come to David by their act and deed; for which they promiſed themſelves no ſmall recompence. g The place of that laſt and fatal Fight, 1 Sam. 29. 11. h Called alſo Merib-baal, 1 Chron. 8. 34.
